

This is a digital copy of a book that was preserved for generations on library shelves before it was carefully scanned by Google as part of a project to make the world's books discoverable online.

It has survived long enough for the copyright to expire and the book to enter the public domain. A public domain book is one that was never subject to copyright or whose legal copyright term has expired. Whether a book is in the public domain may vary country to country. Public domain books are our gateways to the past, representing a wealth of history, culture and knowledge that's often difficult to discover.

Marks, notations and other marginalia present in the original volume will appear in this file - a reminder of this book's long journey from the publisher to a library and finally to you.

Usage guidelines

Google is proud to partner with libraries to digitize public domain materials and make them widely accessible. Public domain books belong to the public and we are merely their custodians. Nevertheless, this work is expensive, so in order to keep providing this resource, we have taken steps to prevent abuse by commercial parties, including placing technical restrictions on automated querying.

We also ask that you:

- + Make non-commercial use of the files We designed Google Book Search for use by individuals, and we request that you use these files for personal, non-commercial purposes.
- + Refrain from automated querying Do not send automated queries of any sort to Google's system: If you are conducting research on machine translation, optical character recognition or other areas where access to a large amount of text is helpful, please contact us. We encourage the use of public domain materials for these purposes and may be able to help.
- + Maintain attribution The Google "watermark" you see on each file is essential for informing people about this project and helping them find additional materials through Google Book Search. Please do not remove it.
- + Keep it legal Whatever your use, remember that you are responsible for ensuring that what you are doing is legal. Do not assume that just because we believe a book is in the public domain for users in the United States, that the work is also in the public domain for users in other countries. Whether a book is still in copyright varies from country to country, and we can't offer guidance on whether any specific use of any specific book is allowed. Please do not assume that a book's appearance in Google Book Search means it can be used in any manner anywhere in the world. Copyright infringement liability can be quite severe.

About Google Book Search

Google's mission is to organize the world's information and to make it universally accessible and useful. Google Book Search helps readers discover the world's books while helping authors and publishers reach new audiences. You can search through the full text of this book on the web at <http://books.google.com/>

43614

HARVARD COLLEGE LIBRARY

THE BEQUEST OF EVERT JANSEN WENDELL
CLASS OF 1882
OF NEW YORK

1918

J R O N T I S P I E C E

More than all with powerful Genius blest,
Come take thine empire o'er the willing breast;

[illegible]

•

THE DRAMATIC WORKS
OF
WILLIAM SHAKSPEARE,

FROM THE TEXT OF JOHNSON, STEVENS, AND REED;

WITH GLOSSARIAL NOTES, HIS LIFE,

AND A Critique on his Genius & Writings,

BY NICHOLAS ROWE, ESQ.

LONDON:
PRINTED FOR MASON AND CO.; AND PUBLISHED BY JONES AND CO.
WARWICK SQUARE.

1823.

THE DRAMATIC WORKS
OF
WILLIAM SHAKSPEARE,

JOHNSON,

GLOSSARIA

LIFE,

AND A

Critique on his Genius & Writings,

BY

NICHOLAS ROWE, ESQ.

LONDON:

PRINTED FOR MASON AND CO.; AND PUBLISHED BY JONES AND CO.
WARWICK SQUARE.

1623.

LIFE
OF
WILLIAM SHAKSPEARE
BY MR. NICHOLAS ROWE, WITH REMARKS ON HIS GENIUS AND WRITINGS.

WILLIAM SHAKSPEARE was the son of Mr. John Shakspeare, and was born at Stratford-upon-Avon, in Warwickshire, in April, 1564. His family, as appears by the register and public writings relating to that town, were of good figure and fashion there; and are mentioned as gentlemen. His father, who was a considerable dealer in wool, had so large a family, ten children in all, that though he was his eldest son, he could give him no better education than his own employment. He had bred him, it is true, for some time at a free school, where, it is probable, he acquired what Latin he was master of: but, the narrowness of his circumstances; and the want of his assistance at home, forced his father to withdraw him from thence, and unhappily prevented his further proficiency in that language. It is without controversy, that in his works we scarce find any traces of any thing that looks like an imitation of the ancients. The delicacy of his taste, and the natural bent of his own great genius, (equal, if not superior, to some of the best of theirs,) would certainly have led him to read and study them with so much pleasure, that some of their fine images would naturally have insinuated themselves into, and been mixed with, his own writings; so that his not copying at least something from them, may be an argument of his never having read them. Whether his ignorance of the ancients were a disadvantage to him or not, may admit of a dispute: for, though the knowledge of them might have made him more correct, yet, it is not improbable, but that the regularity and deference for them, which would have attended that correctness, might have restrained some of that fire, impetuosity, and even beautiful extravagance, which we admire in Shakspeare: and, I believe, we are better pleased with those thoughts, altogether new and uncommon, with which his own imagination supplied him so abundantly, than if he had given us the most beautiful passages out of the Greek and Latin poets, and that in the most agreeable manner that it was possible for a master of the English language to deliver them.

Upon his leaving school, he seems to have given entirely into that way of living which his father proposed to him; and, in order to settle in the world after a family manner, he thought fit to marry while he was yet very young. His wife was the daughter of one Hathaway, said to have been a substantial yeoman in the neighbourhood of Stratford. In this kind of settlement he continued for some time, till an extravagance that he was guilty of forced him both out of his country, and that way of living which he had taken up; and though it seemed at first to be a blemish upon his good manners, and a misfortune to him, yet it afterwards happily proved the occasion of exerting one of the greatest geniuses that ever was known in dramatic poetry. He had, by a misfortune common enough to young fellows, fallen into ill company, and amongst them, some that made a frequent practice of deer-stealing, engaged him more than once in robbing a park that belonged to Sir Thomas Lucy, of Charlecote, near Stratford. For this he was prosecuted by that gentleman, as he thought, somewhat too severely; and, in order to revenge that ill usage, he made a ballad upon him. This, probably, the first essay of his poetry, is said to have been so very bitter, that it redoubled the prosecution against him to that degree, that he was obliged to leave his business and family in Warwickshire, for some time, and shelter himself in London.

It is at this time, and upon this accident, that he is said to have made his first acquaintance in the playhouse. He was received into the company then in being, at first in a very mean rank, but his admirable wit, and the natural turn of it to the stage, soon distinguished him, if not as an extraordinary actor, yet as an excellent writer. His name is printed, as the custom was in those times, amongst those of the other players, before some old plays, but without any particular account of what sort of parts he used to play; and though I have enquired, I could never meet with any further account of him this way, than that the top of his performance was the Ghost in his own Hamlet. I should have been much more pleased to have learned, from certain authority, which was the first play he wrote; it would be without doubt a pleasure to any man, curious in things of this kind, to see and know what was the first essay of a fancy like Shakspeare's. Perhaps we are

LIFE OF THE AUTHOR.

ings, like those of other authors, among their and nature so large a share in what he did, th his youth, as they were the most vigorous, and ation in them, were the best. I would not be t so loose and extravagant, as to be independent t out that what he thought was commonly so g self, that it wanted little or no correction, and wa judgment at the first sight. But, though the ord e written, be generally uncertain, yet there are pa x their dates. So the Clerus at the end of the iment very handsomely turned to the Earl of n when that lord was general for the Queen in Ire h, and her successor King James, in the latter en play's being written after the accession of the l England. Whatever the particular times of his began to grow wonderfully fond of diversions sed to see a genius arise amongst them of so p ty capable of furnishing their favourite enterta ut, he was in himself a good natured man, of g agreeable companion; so that it is no wonder, if, self acquainted with the best conversations o l of his plays acted before her; and, without de favour: it is that maiden princess plainly when our ventral, thrown by the west."—A Midsummer Night's Dream.

a compliment very properly brought in, and ve well pleased with that admirable character of l irth, that she commanded him to continue it ve. This is said to be the occasion of his writ she was obeyed, the play itself is an admirable improper to observe, that this part of Palstaff r the name of Oldcastle: some of that family ased to command him to alter it; upon which e was indeed avoided; but I do not know whet t to blame in his second choice, since it is c ight of the garter, and a lieutenant general, v ars in France in Henry the Fifth's and Henry the n conferred upon him, it was not to her only he his wit made. He had the honour to meet wi our and friendship from the Earl of Southamp his friendship to the unfortunate Earl of Ess cated his poem of Venus and Adonis. There l nce of this patron of Shakspeare's, that if I ended down by Sir William D'Avenant, who was airs, I should not have ventured to have insert e gave him a thousand pounds, to enable him ard he had a mind to. A bounty very great, an o that profuse generosity the present age has sh or friendships he contracted with private men, I every one, who had a true taste of merit, and cov lue and esteem for him. His exceeding cand inclined all the gentler part of the world to lo men of the most delicate knowledge and poli

en Jonson began with a remarkable piece of l who was at that time altogether unknown to th the players, in order to have it acted; and th r having turned it carelessly and superciliously c an ill-natured answer, that it would be of no s luckily cast his eye upon it, and found someth ead it through, and afterwards to recommend M Jonson was certainly a very good scholar, and i ough at the same time I believe it must be allow ure than a balance for what books had given th upon this occasion was, I think, very just and n Suckling, Sir William D'Avenant, Endymio onson; Sir John Suckling, who was a profes

Shakspeare, had undertaken his defence against Ben Jonson with some warmth; Mr. Hales, who had sat still for some time, told them, That if Mr. Shakspeare had not read the ancients, he had likewise not stolen any thing from them; and that, if he would produce any one topic fully treated by any one of them, he would undertake to show something upon the same subject at least as well written by Shakspeare.

The latter part of his life was spent, as all men of good sense will wish theirs may be, in ease, retirement, and the conversation of his friends. He had the good fortune to gather an estate equal to his occasion, and, in that, to his wish; and is said to have spent some years before his death at his native Stratford. His pleasurable wit and good-nature engaged him in the acquaintance, and entitled him to the friendship, of the gentlemen of the neighbourhood. Amongst them, it is a story, almost still remembered in that country, that he had a particular intimacy with Mr. Combe, an old gentleman noted thereabouts for his wealth and his usury: it happened, that in a pleasant conversation amongst their common friends, Mr. Combe told Shakspeare in a laughing manner, that he fancied he intended to write his epitaph, if he happened to outlive him; and since he could not know what might be said of him when he was dead, he desired it might be done immediately: upon which Shakspeare gave him these four verses:

"Ten to the hundred lies here engraved;
Tis a hundred to ten his soul is not saved;
If any man ask, Who lies in this tomb?
Oh! be! quoth the devil, 'tis my John-a-Combe."

But the sharpness of the satire is said to have stung the man so severely, that he never forgave it.

He died in the 53d year of his age, and was buried on the north side of the chancel, in the great church at Stratford, where a monument is placed in the wall. On his grave-stone underneath is—

"Good friend for Jesus' sake forbear
To dig the dust inclosed here,
Blame be the man that spurs three stones,
And curst be he that moves my bones."

He had three daughters, of which two lived to be married; Judith, the elder, to one Mr. Thomas Quincey, by whom she had three sons, who all died without children; and Susanna, who was his favourite, to Dr. John Hall, a physician of good reputation in that country. She left one child only, a daughter, who was married first to Thomas Nashe, Esq. and afterwards to Sir John Barnard of Abington, but died likewise without issue.

This is what I could learn of any note, either relating to himself or family; the character of the man is best seen in his writings. But since Ben Jonson has made a sort of an essay towards it in his Discoveries, I will give it in his words:

"I remember the players have often mentioned it as an honour to Shakspeare, that in writing (whatsoever he penned) he never blotted out a line. My answer hath been, Would he had a blotted a thousand! which they thought a malevolent speech. I had not told posterity this, but for their ignorance, who chose that circumstance to commend their friend by, wherein he most faulted: and to justify mine own candour, for I loved the man, and do honour his memory, on this side idolatry, as much as any. He was, indeed, honest, and of an open and free nature, had an excellent fancy, brave notions, and gentle expressions; wherein he flowed with that facility, that sometimes it was necessary he should be stopped. His wit was in his own power; would the rule of it had been so too. But he redeemed his vices with his virtues; there was ever more in him to be praised than pardoned."

Besides his plays in this edition, there are two or three ascribed to him by Mr. Langbaine, which I have never seen, and know nothing of. He wrote likewise, Venus and Adonis, and Tarquin and Lucrece, in stanzas, which have been printed in a late collection of poems.

His plays are properly to be distinguished only into comedies and tragedies. Those which are called histories, and even some of his comedies, are really tragedies, with a run or mixture of comedy amongst them. That way of tragi-comedy was the common mistake of that age, and is indeed become so agreeable to the English taste, that though the severer critics among us cannot bear it, yet the generality of our audiences seem to be better pleased with it than with an exact tragedy. The Merry Wives of Windsor, The Comedy of Errors, and The Taming of a Shrew, are all pure comedy; the rest, however they are called, have something of both kinds. It is not very easy to determine which way of writing he was most excellent in. There is certainly a great deal of entertainment in his comical humours; and though they did not then strike at all ranks of people, as the satire of the present age has taken the liberty to do, yet there is a pleasing and a well-distinguished variety in those characters which he thought fit to meddle with. Falstaff is allowed by every body to be a master-piece; the character is always well sustained, though drawn out into the length of three plays; and even the account of his death given by his old landlady, Mrs. Quickly, in the first Act of Henry the Fifth, though it be extremely natural, is yet as diverting as any part of his life. If there be any fault in the draught he has made that though he has made him a thief, lying, cowardly, vain, way vicious, yet he has given him so much wit as to make me I do not know whether some people have not, in remembrance of formerly afforded them, been sorry to see his friend Hal use him to the crown in the end of The Second Part of Henry the Sixth; in The Merry Wives of Windsor he has made him at the same time remember his Warwickshire prosecutor, Shallow; he has given him very near the same coat of arms as the knights of that county, describes for a family there, and makes him very pleasantly upon them. That whole play is admirable; the plot well opposed; the main design, which is to cure Ford of his jealousy, very well conducted. In Twelfth-Night there is something pleasant in the fantastical steward Malvolio. The parasite and clown, in All's well that ends well, is as good as any thing of that kind. Petruchio, in The Taming of the Shrew, is an uncommon version of Benedick and Beatrice, in Much Ado about Nothing; you like it, have much wit and sprightliness all along. His character there was hardly any play writ in that time, are all very good. Thersites in Troilus and Cressida, and Apemantus in Timon, are pieces of ill-nature and satirical snarling. To these I might add the character of Shylock the Jew, in The Merchant of Venice; but, as it was received and acted as a comedy, and the part of the Jew was played by a comedian, yet I cannot but think it was designed tragically by Shakespeare in it such a deadly spirit of revenge, such a savage fierceness, and a designation of cruelty and mischief, as cannot agree either to a comedy. The play itself, take it altogether, seems to me to be one of any of Shakspeare's. The tale, indeed, in that part relating to the extravagant and unusual kind of bond given by Antonio, is too far from probability; but taking the fact for granted, we must allow it to be well written. There is something in the friendship of Antonio to Bassanio, and tender. The whole of the fourth Act (supposing, as I do, that it is extremely fine. But there are two passages that deserve notice, what Portia says in praise of mercy, and the other on the authority of Jaques, in As you like it, is as singular and odd as it is. It is a hard task for any one to go beyond him in the description of the various scenes of man's life.

LIFE OF THE AUTHOR.

All the world's a stage,
Men and women merely players;
They have their exits and their entrances,
And one life in this time plays many parts,
Being seven ages. At first, the infant,
Mewling and puking in the nurse's arms;
Then the whining school-boy with his satchel,
And morning face, creeping like snail
To school. And then, the lover,
Sighing like furnace, with a woeful ballad
Made to his mistress' eye-brow. Then, a soldier;
Full of strange oaths and bearded like the pard,
Fiercely proud, sad, doting and quick in quarrel,
And his bubble reputation
Topp'd with cannon's mouth. And then, the justice;
In and belg, with good capon lined,
With vice, and beard of formal cut,
And saws and modern instances;
For thus the sixth age shifts
Into the slipper'd pantaloon,
With stock and shoe, and pouch on side;
His huge wheel's well saved, a world too wide
In his shank; and his big manly voice,
Turning towards childish treble, pipes
And whistles in his sound. Last scene of all,
This strange eventful history,
Closes the fifth, and more oblivion;
And, age eyes, seen lava, seen every thing."

everywhere so lively, that the thing he would represent stands less every part of it. I will venture to point out one more, which uncommon as any thing I ever saw; it is an image of Patience he says.

—She never told her love, Incarnement, like a warm "th' had Dye damask cheek; she piped in thought,
The Patience on a monument,
At Grave."

and what a task would it have been for the greatest master to express the passions designed by this sketch of statuary in general, natural to the characters, and easy in itself; a

the wit most constantly sprightly and pleasing, except in those places where he runs into doggerel rhymes, as in The Comedy of Errors, and some other plays. As for his jingling sometimes, and playing upon words, it was the common vice of the age he lived in; and if we find it in the pulpit, made use of as an ornament to the sermons of some of the gravest divines of those times, perhaps it may not be thought too light for the stage.

But certainly the greatness of this author's genius does so where so much appear, as where he gives his imagination an entire loose, and raises his fancy to a flight above mankind, and the limits of the visible world. Such are his attempts in The Tempest, A Midsummer-Night's Dream, Macbeth, and Hamlet. Of these, The Tempest, however it comes to be placed the first by the publishers of his works, can never have been the first written by him: it seems to me as perfect in its kind as almost any thing we have of his. One may observe, that the unities are kept here, with an exactness uncommon to the liberality of his writing, though that was what, I suppose, he valued himself least upon, since his excellencies were all of another kind. I am very sensible, that he does, in this play, depart too much from that likeness to truth which ought to be observed in these sort of writings, yet he does it so very finely, that one is easily drawn in to have more faith for his sake, than reason does well allow of. His magic has something in it very solemn and very poetical, and that extravagant character of Caliban is mighty well sustained, shows a wonderful invention in the author, who could strike out such a particular wild image, and is certainly one of the finest and most uncommon grotesques that ever was seen. The observation which, I have been informed, three very great men concurred in making upon this part, was extremely just; that Shakspeare had not only found out a new character for his Caliban, but had also devised and adapted a new manner of language for that character.

It is the same magic that raises the Fairies in A Midsummer-Night's Dream, the Witches in Macbeth, and the Ghost in Hamlet, with thoughts and language so proper to the parts they sustain, and so peculiar to the talent of this writer. But of the two last of these plays I shall have occasion to take notice, among the tragedies of Shakspeare. If one undertook to examine the greatest part of these by those rules which are established by Aristotle, and taken from the model of the Grecian stage, it would be no very hard task to find a great many faults, but as Shakspeare lived under a kind of mere light of nature, and had never been made acquainted with the regularity of those written precepts, so it would be hard to judge him by a law he knew nothing of. We are to consider him as a man that lived in a state of almost universal licence and ignorance: there was no established judge, but every one took the liberty to write according to the dictates of his own fancy. When one considers, that there is not one play before him of a reputation good enough to entitle it to an appearance on the present stage, it cannot but be a matter of great wonder that he should advance dramatic poetry so far as he did. The fable is what is generally placed the first, among those that are reckoned the constituent parts of a tragic or heroic poem; not, perhaps, as it is the most difficult or beautiful, but as it is the first properly to be thought of in the contrivance and course of the whole; and with the fable ought to be considered the fit disposition, order, and conduct, of its several parts. As it is not in this province of the drama, that the strength and mastery of Shakspeare lay, so I shall not undertake the tedious and ill-natured trouble to point out the several faults he was guilty of in it. His tales were seldom invented, but rather taken either from the true history, or novels and romances: and he commonly made use of them in that order, with those incidents, and that extent of time in which he found them in the authors from whence he borrowed them. So The Winter's Tale, which is taken from an old book, called The Delectable History of Dorastus and Fawnia, contains the space of sixteen or seventeen years, and the scene is sometimes laid in Bohemia, and sometimes in Sicily, according to the original order of the story. Almost all his historical plays comprehend a great length of time, and very different and distinct places: and in his Antony and Cleopatra, the scene travels over the greatest part of the Roman empire. But in recompence for his carelessness in this point, when he comes to another part of the drama, the manners of his characters, in acting or speaking what is proper for them, and fit to be shewn by the poet, he may be generally justified, and in very many places greatly commended. For those plays which he has taken from the English or Roman history, let any man compare them, and he will find the character as exact in the poet as the historian. He seems, indeed, so far from proposing to himself any one action for a subject, that the title very often tells you, it is The Life of King John, King Richard, &c. What can be more agreeable to the idea our historians give of Henry the Sixth, than the picture Shakspeare has drawn of him? His manners are everywhere exactly the same with the story; one finds him still described with simplicity, passive sanctity, want of courage, weakness of mind, and easy submission to the governance of an imperious wife, or prevailing faction: though, at the same time, the poet does justice to his good qualities, and moves the pity of his audience for him, by shewing him pious, disinterested, a contemner of the things of this world, and wholly resigned to the severest dispensations of God's providence. There is a short scene in The Second Part of Henry the Sixth, which I cannot but think admirable in its kind. Cardinal Beaufort, who had murdered the Duke of Gloucester, is shewn in the last agonies on his praying over him. There is so much terror in one, so much in the other, as must touch any one who is capable either of the English, that prince is drawn with that greatness of mind, which are attributed to him in any account of his reign. If an equal degree, and the shades in this picture do not bear a truth, I believe, might be, that he forbore doing it out of reverence it could have been no very great respect to the memory of some certain parts of her father's life upon the stage. He with that minister of the great king; and, certainly, nothing than the character of Cardinal Wolsey. He has shewn him yet, by a wonderful address, he makes his fall and ruin the whole man with his vices and virtues, is finely and second scene of the fourth Act. The distresses, likewise, of are very movingly touched; and, though the art of the poet from any gross imputation of injustice, yet one is inclined with a fortune more worthy of her birth and virtue. Nor, are persons represented, less justly observed, in those characters, and of this, the fierceness and impatience of Coriolanus, the common people; the virtue and philosophical temper of greatness of mind in M. Antony, are beautiful proofs. For the them exactly as they are described by Plutarch, from whom them. He has, indeed, followed his original pretty close, incidents that might have been spared in a play. But, as I seems most commonly rather to describe those great men in the of their lives, than to take any single great action, and form. However, there are some of his pieces, where the fable is. Such are, more especially, Romeo and Juliet, Hamlet and Romeo and Juliet is plainly the punishment of their two families, and animosities that had been so long kept up between them, of so much blood. In the management of this story, he has tender and passionate in the love-part, and very pitiful in led on much the same tale with the Electra of Sophocles. In is engaged to revenge the death of his father, their mothers concerned in the murder of their husbands, and are afterwards. There is in the first part of the Greek tragedy something very tra, but, as Mr. Dacier has observed, there is something very the manners he has given that princess and Orestes in the his hands in the blood of his own mother. On the contrary, he same pity towards his father, and resolution to revenge the same abhorrence for his mother's guilt, which, to provoke by incest but, it is with wonderful art and justice of judg- him from doing violence to his mother. To prevent any thing father's Ghost forbid that part of his vengeance, and thus dis- error and terror. The latter is a proper passion of tragedy to be carefully avoided. And, certainly, no dramatic writ- ing terror in the minds of an audience than Shakspeare has in Macbeth, but more especially the scene where the king is as well as this play, is a noble proof of that manly spirit with how powerful he was in giving the strongest motions to ou. I cannot leave Hamlet without taking notice of the advan- on this master-piece of Shakspeare distinguish itself upon the performance of that part. A man, who, though he had n as a great many, must have made his way into the esteem of excellency. No man is better acquainted with Shakspeare indeed, he has studied him so well, and is so much a master his he performs, he does it as if it had been written on pu- author had exactly conceived it as he plays it. I must own for the most considerable part of the passages relating to th- submitted to the public: his veneration for the memory of him to make a journey into Warwickshire on purpose to gath- of a name for which he had so great a veneration.

LIFE OF THE AUTHOR.

CONTENTS.

THE AUTHOR.....
WIVES OF WINDSOR.....
TH NIGHT, OR WHAT YOU WILL.....
MPREST.....
NTLEMEN OF VERONA.....
RE FOR MEASURE.....
ADO ABOUT NOTHING.....
MER NIGHT'S DREAM.....
LABOUR LOST.....
ANT OF VENICE.....
LIKE IT.....
PLL THAT ENDS WELL.....
OF THE SHREW.....
S TALE.....
Y OF ERRORS.....
TH.....
JOHN.....
D II.....
IV. FIRST PART.....
IV SECOND PART.....
V.....
VI. FIRST PART.....
VI. SECOND PART.....
VI. THIRD PART.....
D III.....
VIII.....
S AND CRESSIDA.....
ANUS.....
CESAR.....
Y AND CLEOPATRA.....
OF ATHENS.....
INA.....
ANDRONICUS.....
ES PRINCE OF TYRE.....
PAR.....
AND JULIET.....
I. PRINCE OF DENMARK.....
LO, THE MOOR OF VENICE.....

THE MERRY WIVES
OF WINDSOR.

PERSONS REPRESENTED.

SIR JOHN FALSTAFF.

FENTON.

SHALLOW, a Country Justice.

SLENDER, Cousin to Shallow.

MR. FORD, } Two Gentlemen dwelling at

MR. PAGE, } Windsor.

WILLIAM PAGE, a Boy, Son to Mr. Page.

SIR HUGH EVANS, a Welsh Parson.

DR. CAIUS, a French Physician.

Host of the Garter Inn.

BARDOLPH,

PISTOL,

STEWART,

} Followers of Falstaff.

ROBIN, Page to Falstaff.

SIMPLE, Servant to Slender.

RUGBY, Servant to Dr. Caius.

Mrs. FORD.

Mrs. PAGE.

Mrs. ANNE PAGE, her Daughter, in love with

Fenton.

Mrs. QUICKLY, Servant to Dr. Caius.

Servants to Page, Ford, &c.

SCENE, Windsor; and the parts adjacent.

ACT I.

SCENE I.—Windsor. Before PAGE's House.

Enter Justice SHALLOW, SLENDER, and Sir HUGH EVANS.

Shal. Sir Hugh, persuade me not; I will make a Star-chamber matter of it: if he were twenty Sir John Falstuffs, he shall not abuse Robert Shallow, esquire.

Slw. In the county of Gloster, justice of peace, and coroner.

Shal. Ay, cousin Slender, and Cust-alorum.†

Slw. Ay, and rotalorum too; and a gentleman born, master parson; who writes himself emigere; in any bill, warrant, quitance, or obligation, emigere.

Shal. Ay, that we do; and have done any time these three hundred years.

Slw. All his successors, gone before him, have done't; and all his ancestors, that come after him, may: they may give the dozen white laces in their coat.

Shal. It is an old coat.

Eva. The dozen white louses do become an old coat well; it agrees well, passant: it is a familiar beast to man, and signifies—love.

Shal. The lace is the fresh fish; the salt fish is an old coat.

Slw. I may quarter, coz?

Shal. You may, by marrying.

Eva. It is marrying indeed, if he quarter it.

Shal. Not a whit.

Eva. Yes, py'r't-lady, if he has a quarter of your coat, there is but three skirts for yourself, in my simple conjectures: but that is all one: If Sir John Falstaff have committed dispar-agements unto you, I am of the church, and will be glad to do my benevolence, to make atonements and compromises between you.

Shal. The Council* shall hear it, it is a riot.

Eva. It is not meet the Council hear a riot; there is no fear of God in a riot: the Council, look you, shall desire to hear the fear of God, and not to hear a riot; take your vizament† in that.

Shal. Ha! o' my life, if I were young again, the sword should end it.

Eva. It is petter that friends is the sword, and end it: and there is also another device in my prau, which, peradventure, prings goot discretions with it: There is Anne Page, which is daughter to master George Page, which is pretty virginity.

Slw. Mistress Anne Page? She has brown hair, and speaks small‡ like a woman.

Eva. It is that fery version for all the world, as just as you will desire; and seven hundred pounds of monies, and gold, and silver, is her grandsire, upon his death's-bed, (Got deliver to a joyful resurrection!) gave, when she is able to overtake seventeen years old: it were a goot motion, if we leave our prubbles and prabbles, and desire a marriage between master Abraham, and mistress Anne Page.

Shal. Did her grandsire leave her seven hundred pound?

Eva. Ay, and her father is make her a petter penny

Shal. I know the young gentlewoman; she has good gills.

Eva. Seven hundred pounds, and possibilities, is good gifts.

* A title formerly appropriated to chaplains.

† Custos rotulorum.

‡ By our.

* Court of Star-chamber.

† Advancement.

‡ Soft.

master Page:

I do despise a false; or, as I the knight, Sir
h you, be ruled peat the door hat, ha! Got

and your friend,
e young master
shall tell you
o your likings.
worships well:
ster Shallow.
ad to see you;
art! I wished kill'd:—How and I love you my heart.

ea and no, I do.
u, good master
greyhound, Sir?
(otsale.
Sir.
I'll not confess.
your fault, 'tis

and a fair dog;
ood, and fair.—

I would I could

istians ought to master Page.

ort confess it.
not redress'd; is e hath wrong'd ord, he hath,— esquire, saith,

RDOLPH, NYW,

you'll complain

my men, killed
edge.

er's daughter?
e answer'd.

—I have done

y this.

it were known

good words.

age.—Slender,
atter have you

ter in my head
oney-catching;

Pistol. They

ade me drunk,

et.

S

the cottage kind but paring

Slaw. Ay, it is no matter.

Pist. How now, Mephostophilus?

Slaw. Ay, it is no matter.

Nym. Slice, I say! peace, peace;† alice! that's my humour.

Slaw. Where's Simple, my man?—can you tell, cousin?

Eva. Peace: I pray you! Now let us understand: There is three umpires in this matter as I understand: that is—master Page, fidelicet, master Page; and there is myself, fidelicet, myself; and the three party is, lastly and finally, mine host of the Garter.

Page. We three, to hear it, and end it between them.

Eva. Fery goot: I will make a prief of it in my note-book; and we will afterwards 'ork upon the cause, with as great discreetly as we can.

Fal. Pistol,—

Pist. He hears with ears.

Eva. The tevil and his tam! what phrase is this, He hears with ear? Why, it is affectations.

Fal. Pistol, did you pick master Slender's purse?

Slaw. Ay, by these gloves, did he, (or I would I might never come in mine own great chamber again else,) of seven groats in mill-sixpences, and two Edward shovel-boards,‡ that cost me two shillings and twopence a-piece of Yeard Miller, by these gloves.

Fal. Is this true, Pistol?

Eva. No; it is false, if it is a pick-purse.

Pist. Ha, thou mountain-foreigner!—Sir John, and master mine,

I combat challenge of this latten bilbo:§

Word of denial in thy labras|| here;

Word of denial; froth and scum, thou liest.

Slaw. By these gloves, then 'twas he.

Nym. Be advised, Sir, and pass good humours: I will say, marry true, with you, if you run the nuthook's¶ humour on me; that is the very note of it.

Slaw. By this hat, then he in the red face had it: for though I cannot remember what I did when you made me drunk, yet I am not altogether an ass.

Fal. What say you, Scarlet and John?

Bard. Why, Sir, for my part, I say, the gentleman had drunk himself out of his five sentences.

Eva. It is his five senses: he, what the ignorance is!

Bard. And being sap, Sir, was, as they say, cashier'd; and so conclusions pass'd the careires.††

Slaw. Ay, you spake in Latin then too; but 'tis no matter: I'll ne'er be drunk whilst I live again, but in honest, civil, godly company, for this trick: if I be drunk, I'll be drunk with those that have the fear of God, and not with drunken knaves.

Eva. So Got 'ndge me, that is a virtuous mind.

Fal. You hear all these matters denied, gentlemen; you hear it.

Enter Mistress ANNE PAGE with wine; Mistress FORD and Mistress PAGE following.

Page. Nay, daughter, carry the wine in; we'll drink within. [Exit ANNE PAGE.]

* The name of an ugly spirit.

† Few words.

‡ King Edward's shillings, used in the game of shuffle-board.

§ Blade as thin as a lath.

¶ If you say I am a thief.

†† The bounds of good behaviour.

|| Lips.

 Drunk.

Sir. O heavens! this is mistress Anne Page.

Page. How now, mistress Ford?

Ford. Mistress Ford, by my troth, you are very well met: by your leave, good mistress.

[Kissing her.]

Page. Wife, bid these gentlemen welcome:—Come, we have a hot venison pasty to dinner; come, gentlemen, I hope we shall drink down all unkindness.

[Exeunt all but SHALLOW, SLENDER, and EVANS.]

Slen. I had rather than forty shillings, I had my book of Songs and Sonnets here:—

Enter SIMPLE.

How now, Simple! where have you been? I must wait on myself, must I? You have not The Book of Riddles about you, have you?

Slen. Book of Riddles? why, did you not lend it to Alice Shortcake upon Allhallowmas last, a fortnight afore Michaelmas?

Shal. Come, coz, come, coz; we stay for you. A word with you, coz: marry, this, coz; there is, as 'twere, a tender, a kind of tender, made afar off by Sir Hugh here;—Do you understand me?

Slen. Ay, Sir, you shall find me reasonable; if it be so, I shall do that that is reason.

Shal. Nay, but understand me.

Slen. So I do, Sir.

Eva. Give ear to his motions, master Slender: I will description the matter to you, if you be capacity of it.

Slen. Nay, I will do as my cousin Shallow says: I pray you, pardon me; he's a justice of peace in his country, simple though I stand here.

Eva. But that is not the question; the question is concerning your marriage.

Shal. Ay, there's the point, Sir.

Eva. Marry, is it; the very point of it; to mistress Anne Page.

Slen. Why, if it be so, I will marry her, upon any reasonable demands.

Eva. But can you affection the 'oman? Let me command to know that of your mouth, or of your lips; for divers philosophers hold, that the lips is parcel of the mouth,—Therefore, precisely, can you carry your good will to the maid?

Shal. Cousin Abraham Slender, can you love her?

Slen. I hope, Sir,—I will do, as it shall become one that would do reason.

Eva. Nay, God's lords and his ladies, you must speak possitable, if you can carry her your desires towards her.

Shal. That you must: Will you, upon good dowry, marry her?

Slen. I will do a greater thing than that, upon your request, cousin, in any reason.

Shal. Nay, conceive me, conceive me, sweet coz; what I do, is to pleasure you, coz: Can you love the maid?

Slen. I will marry her, Sir, at your request; but if there be no great love in the beginning, yet heaven may decrease it upon better acquaintance, when we are married, and have more occasion to know one another: I hope, upon familiarity will grow more contempt: but if you say, marry her, I will marry her, that I am freely dissolved, and dissolutely.

Eva. It is a fery discretion answer; save, the fault is in the 'ort dissolutely: the 'ort is, according to our meaning, resolutely;—his meaning is good.

• An intended blunder.

Shal. Ay, I think my cousin meant well.

Slen. Ay, or else I would I might be hanged, la.

Re-enter ANNE PAGE.

Shal. Here comes fair mistress Anne:—Would I were young, for your sake, mistress Anne!

Anne. The dinner is on the table; my father desires your worships' company.

Shal. I will wait on him, fair mistress Anne.

Eva. Od's plessed will! I will not be absence at the grace.

[Exeunt SHALLOW and Sir H. EVANS.]

Anne. Will't please your worship to come in, Sir.

Slen. No, I thank you, forsooth, heartily; I am very well.

Anne. The dinner attends you, Sir.

Slen. I am not a-hungry, I thank you, forsooth: Go, sirrah, for all you are my man, go, wait upon my cousin Shallow: [Exit SIMPLE.]

A justice of peace sometime may be beholden to his friend for a man:—I keep but three men and a boy yet, till my mother be dead: But what though? yet I live like a poor gentleman born.

Anne. I may not go in without your worship: they will not sit, till you come.

Slen. I'faith, I'll eat nothing; I thank you as much as though I did.

Anne. I pray you, Sir, walk in.

Slen. I had rather walk here, I thank you; I bruised my shin the other day with playing at sword and dagger with a master of fence, three veney^a for a dish of stewed prunes; and, by my troth, I cannot abide the smell of hot meat since. Why do your dogs bark so? be there bears i' the town?

Anne. I think, there are, Sir; I heard them talked of.

Slen. I love the sport well; but I shall as soon quarrel at it, as any man in England.—You are afraid, if you see the bear loose, are you not?

Anne. Ay, indeed, Sir.

Slen. That's meat and drink to me now: I have seen Sackerson[†] loose, twenty times; and have taken him by the chain: but, I warrant you, the women have so cried and shriek'd at it, that it pass'd;—but women, indeed, cannot abide 'em; they are very ill-favoured rough things.

Re-enter PAGE.

Page. Come, gentle master Slender, come; we stay for you.

Slen. I'll eat nothing; I thank you, Sir.

Page. By cock and pye, you shall not choose, Sir: come, come.

Slen. Nay, pray you, lead the way.

Page. Come on, Sir.

Slen. Mistress Anne, yourself shall go first.

Anne. Not I, Sir; pray you, keep on.

Slen. Truly, I will not go first; truly, la: I will not do you that wrong.

Anne. I pray you, Sir.

Slen. I'll rather be unmannerly than troublesome: you do yourself wrong, indeed, la.

[Exeunt.]

SCENE II.—The same.

Enter Sir HUGH EVANS and SIMPLE.

Eva. Go your ways, and ask of Doctor Caius' house, which is the way: and there

^a Three set-to's, bouts, or hits.

[†] The name of a bear exhibited at Paris-Garden in Southwark.

[‡] Surpassed all expression.

which is in the nurse, or his ner, and his

—give her this together's ac-Page; and the
her to solicit Anne Page:
an end of my
se to come.

[Exit.

Garter Inn.

HOLPH, Nym,

rook? Speak

st turn away

s; cashier: let

k.

ear, Keisar,

Bardolph, be

I well, bully

ollow: Let me

at a word; fol-

[Exit Host.

a tapster is a s a new jerkin;

tapster: Go;

desired; I will

[Exit BAND.

ght! wilt thou

nk: Is not the

is not heroic,

t of this tinder-

is flitching was not time.

steal at a mi-

Steal! Yoh;

out at heels.

ue

st cuney-catch;

ve food.

of this town?

substance good.

tell you what I indeed I am in

but I am now

ritt. Briefly, I

d's wife; I spy

discourses, she itation: I can ear style; and our, to be Eng-

Falstaff's.

ell, and trans-

into English.

ill) that humour

Pat. Now, the report goes, she has all the rule of her husband's purse; she hath legions of angels.*

Pist. As many devils entertain; and, To her,
boy, say I.

Nym. The humour rises; it is good: humour me the angels.

Fal. I have writ me here a letter to her: and here another to Page's wife; who even now gave me good eyes too, examin'd my parts with most judicious eyliads: sometimes the beam of her view gilded my foot, sometimes my portly belly.

Pist. Then did the sun on dung-hill shine.

Nym. I thank thee for that humour.

Fal. O, she did so course o'er my extensors with such a greedy intention, that the appetite of her eye did seem to scorch me up like a burning glass! Here's another letter to her:
she bears the purse too; she is a region in Guiana, all gold and bounty. I will be cheater to them both, and they shall be exchequers to me; they shall be my East and West Indies, and I will trade to them both. Go, bear them this letter to mistress Page; and thou this to mistress Ford: we will thrive, lads, we will thrive.

Pist. Shall I Sir Pandarus of Troy become,
And by my side wear steel? then, Lucifer take
all!

Nym. I will run no base humour; here, take the humour letter; I will keep the 'haviour of reputation.

Fal. Hold, sirrah, [to Ros.] bear you these letters tightly;†

Sail like my pinnacle to these golden shores.—
Rogues, hence avaunt! vanish like hail-stones.

go; [pack!

Trudge, plod, away, o' the hoof; seek shelter,
Falstaff will learn the humour of this age,
French thrift, you rogues; myself, and skirted
page. [Exit FALSTAFF and ROBIN.

Pist. Let vultures gripe thy guts! for gourd and fallam's holds,

And high and low beguile the rich and poor:
Tetter! I'll have in pouch, when thou shalt lack,
Base Phrygian Turk!

Nym. I have operations in my head, which be humours of revenge.

Pist. Wilt thou revenge?

Nym. By welkin, and her star!

Pist. With wit, or steel?

Nym. With both the humours, I:

I will discuss the humour of this love to Page.

Pist. And I to Ford shall eke unfold,

How Falstaff, varlet vile,

His dove will prove, his gold will hold,

And his soft couch defile.

Nym. My humour shall not cool: I will incense† Page to deal with poison; I will poison him with yellowness, for the revolt of mien
is dangerous: that is my true humour.

Pist. Thou art the Mars of malcontents: I second thee; troop on. [Exit.

SCENE IV.—A Room in Dr. CAIUS' House.

Enter Mrs. QUICKLY, SIMPLE, and RUQUY.

Quick. What; John Rugby!—I pray thee, go to the casement, and see if you can see my master, master Doctor Caius, coming: if he do, i'faith, and find any body in the house,
here will be an old abusing of God's patience,
and the king's English.

* Gold coin. † Exchequer, an officer in the Exchequer.
‡ Cleverly. § False dice.

¶ Sixpence I'll have in pocket.

‡ Instigate.  Jealousy.

Rug. I'll go watch.

[Exit RUGBY.]

Quick. Go; and we'll have a peep at the closet at night, in faith, at the latter end of a sth-coal fire. An honest, willing, kind fellow, as ever servant shall come in house withal; and, I warrant you, no tall-tale, nor no brood-bate: his worst fault is, that he is given to prayer; he is something peevish that way: but nobody but has his fault;—but let that pass. Peter Simple, you say your name is?

Sir. Ay, for fault of a better.

Quick. And master Blunder's your master?

Sir. Ay, forsooth.

Quick. Does he not wear a great round beard, like a Glover's paring knife?

Sir. No, forsooth: he hath but a little wee hair, with a little yellow beard; a Cain-colored beard.

Quick. A well-sprighted man, is he not?

Sir. Ay, forsooth: but he is as tall; a man of his hands, as any is between this and his head; he hath fought with a warrenier.

Quick. How say you?—O, I should remember him! Does he not hold up his head, as it were, and strut in his gait?

Sir. Yes, indeed, does he.

Quick. Well, heaven send Anne Page no worse fortune! Tell master parson Evans, I will do what I can for your master: Anne is a good girl, and I wish—

Re-enter RUGBY.

Rug. Out, alas! here comes my master.

Quick. We shall all be shent: Run in here, good young man; go into this closet. [Shuts SIMPLE in the closet.] He will not stay long.—What, John Rugby! John, what, John, I say!—Go, John, go inquire for my master; I doubt, he be not well, that he comes not home:—and turn, down, adown-a, &c. [Sings.]

Enter Doctor CAIUS.

Caius. Vat is you sing? I do not like dese toys; Pray you, go and vetch me in my closet a better red; a box, a green-a box; Do intend vat I speak? a green-a box.

Quick. Ay, forsooth, I'll fetch it you. I am glad he went not in himself; if he had found the young man, he would have been horn-mad. [Aside.]

Caius. Fe, fe fe, fe! ma foi, il fait fort chaud. J'en rais à la Cour,—la grand affaire.

Quick. Is it this, Sir?

Caius. Ouy; mette le au mon pocket; Depeche, quickly:—Vere is dat knave, Rugby?

Quick. What, John Rugby! John!

Rug. Here, Sir.

Caius. You are John Rugby, and you are Jack Rugby: Come, take-a your rapier, and come after my heel to de court.

Rug. Tis ready, Sir, here in the porch.

Caius. By my trot, I tarry too long:—Od's be! Qu'ay j'oublié? dere is some simples in my closet, dat I vill not for the varld I shall leave behind.

Quick. Ah me! he'll find the young man here, and be mad.

Caius. O diable, diable! vat is in my closet?—Villany! larron! [Pulling SIMPLE out.] Rugby, my rapier.

Quick. Good master, be content.

Caius. Verefore shall I be content-a?

Quick. The young man is an honest man.

Caius. Vat shall de honest man do in my closet? dere is no honest man dat shall come in my closet.

Quick. I beseech you, be not so dogmatic; hear the truth of it: He came of an errand to me from parson Hugh.

Caius. Vell.

Sir. Ay, forsooth, to desire her to—

Quick. Peace, I pray you.

Caius. Peace-a your tongue:—Speak-a your tale.

Sir. To desire this honest gentlewoman, your maid, to speak a good word to mistress Anne Page for my master, in the way of marriage.

Quick. This is all, indeed, is; but I'll ne'er put my finger in the fire, and need not.

Caius. Sir Hugh send-a you?—Rugby, baillez me some paper:—Tarry you a little-a while. [Writes.]

Quick. I am glad he is so quiet: if he had been thoroughly moved, you should have heard him so loud, and so melancholy;—But notwithstanding, man, I'll do your master what good I can: and the very yea and the no is, the French Doctor, my master,—I may call him my master, look you, for I keep his house; and I wash, wring, brow, bake, scour, dress meat and drink, make the beds, and do all myself;—

Sir. 'Tis a great charge, to come under one body's hand.

Quick. Are you avis'd o' that? you shall find it a great charge: and to be up early, and down late;—but notwithstanding, (to tell you in your ear; I would have no words of it;) my master himself is in love with mistress Anne Page: but notwithstanding that,—I know Anne's mind,—that's neither here nor there.

Caius. You jack'nape; give-a dis letter to Sir Hugh; by gar, it is a shallenge: I vill cut his throat in de park; and I vill teach a scurvy jack-a-nape priest to meddle or make:—you may be gone; it is not good you tarry here:—by gar, I vill cut all his two stones; by gar, he shall not have a stone to trow at his dog. [Exit SIMPLE.]

Quick. Alas, he speaks but for his friend.

Caius. It is no matter-a for dat:—do not you tell-a me dat I shall have Anne Page for myself?—by gar, I vill kill de Jack priest; and I have appointed mine host of de Jarterre to measure our weapon:—by gar, I vill myself have Anne Page.

Quick. Sir, the maid loves you, and all shall be well: we must give folks leave to prate: What, the good-jer!

Caius. Rugby, come to the court vit me;—By gar, if I have not Anne Page, I shall turn your head out of my door:—Follow my heels, Rugby. [Exeunt CAIUS and RUGBY.]

Quick. You shall have An fools-head of your own. No, I know Anne's mind for that: never a woman in Windsor knows more of Anne's mind than I do; nor can do more than I do with her, I thank heaven.

Fent. [Within.] Who's within there, ho?

Quick. Who's there, I trow? Come near the house, I pray you.

Enter FENTON.

Fent. How now, good woman; how dost thou?

Quick. The better, that it pleases your good worship to ask.

Fent. What news? how does pretty mistress Anne?

* Wife. † Foolish. ‡ Brave.
 § The keeper of a warren. || Scolded, reprimanded.

* The gougere, what the pox!

the with most commonly sprightly and pleasing, except in those places where he runs into doggerel rhymes, as in The Comedy of Errors, and some other plays. As for his jangling sometimes, and playing upon words, it was the common vice of the age he lived in; and if we find it in the pulpit, made use of as an ornament to the sermons of some of the greatest divines of those times, perhaps it may not be thought too light for the stage.

But certainly the greatness of this author's genius does so where so much appear, as where he gives his imagination an entire loose, and raises his fancy to a flight above mankind, and the limits of the visible world. Such are his attempts in The Tempest, A Midsummer-Night's Dream, Macbeth, and Hamlet. Of these, The Tempest, however it comes to be placed the first by the publishers of his works, can never have been the first written by him: it seems to me as perfect in its kind as almost any thing we have of his. One may observe, that the unities are kept here, with an exactness uncommon to the liberties of his writing; though that was what, I suppose, he valued himself least upon, since his excellencies were all of another kind. I am very sensible, that he does, in this play, depart too much from that likeness to truth which ought to be observed in these sort of writings: yet he does it so very finely, that one is easily drawn in to have more faith for his sake, than reason does well allow of. His magic has something in it very solemn and very poetical, and that extravagant character of Caliban is mighty well sustained, shows a wonderful invention in the author, who could strike out such a particular wild image, and is certainly one of the finest and most uncommon grotesques that ever was seen. The observation which, I have been informed, three very great men concurred in making upon this part, was extremely just, that Shakspeare had not only found out a new character for his Caliban, but had also devised and adapted a new manner of language for that character.

It is the same magic that raises the Fairies in A Midsummer-Night's Dream, the Witches in Macbeth, and the Ghost in Hamlet, with thoughts and language so proper to the parts they sustain, and so peculiar to the talent of this writer. But of the two last of these plays I shall have occasion to take notice, among the tragedies of Shakspeare. If one undertook to examine the greatest part of these by those rules which are established by Aristotle, and taken from the model of the Grecian stage, it would be no very hard task to find a great many faults; but as Shakspeare lived under a kind of mere light of nature, and had never been made acquainted with the regularity of those written precepts, so it would be hard to judge him by a law he knew nothing of. We are to consider him as a man that lived in a state of almost universal licence and ignorance: there was no established judge, but every one took the liberty to write according to the dictates of his own fancy. When one considers, that there is not one play before him of a reputation good enough to entitle it to an appearance on the present stage, it cannot but be a matter of great wonder that he should advance dramatic poetry so far as he did. The fable is what is generally placed the first, among those that are reckoned the constituent parts of a tragic or heroic poem; not, perhaps, as it is the most difficult or beautiful, but as it is the first properly to be thought of in the contrivance and course of the whole; and with the fable ought to be considered the fit disposition, order, and conduct, of its several parts. As it is not in this province of the drama, that the strength and mastery of Shakspeare lay, so I shall not undertake the tedious and ill-natured trouble to point out the several faults he was guilty of in it. His tales were seldom invented, but rather taken either from the true history, or novels and romances: and he commonly made use of them in that order, with those incidents, and that extent of time in which he found them in the authors from whence he borrowed them. So The Winter's Tale, which is taken from an old book, called The Delectable History of Dorastus and Fawnia, contains the space of sixteen or seventeen years, and the scene is sometimes laid in Bohemia, and sometimes in Sicily, according to the original order of the story. Almost all his historical plays comprehend a great length of time, and very different and distinct places: and in his Antony and Cleopatra, the scene travels over the greatest part of the Roman empire. But in recompence for his carelessness in this point, when he comes to another part of the drama, the manners of his characters, in acting or speaking what is proper for them, and fit to be shown by the poet, he may be generally justified, and in very many places greatly commended. For those plays which he has taken from the English or Roman history, let any man compare them, and he will find the character as exact in the poet as the historian. He seems, indeed, so far from proposing to himself any one action for a subject, that the title very often tells you, it is The Life of King John, King Richard, &c. What can be more agreeable to the idea our historians give of Henry the Sixth, than the picture Shakspeare has drawn of him? His manners are everywhere exactly the same with the story; one finds him still described with simplicity, passive sanctity, want of courage, weakness of mind, and easy submission to the governance of an imperious wife, or prevailing faction: though, at the same time, the poet does justice to his good qualities, and moves the pity of his audience for him, by shewing him pious, disinterested, a contemner of the things of this world, and wholly resigned to the severest dispensations of God's providence. There is a short scene in The Second Part of Henry the Sixth, which I cannot but think admirable in its kind. Cardinal Beaufort, who had murdered the Duke of Gloucester, is shewn in the last agonies on his shall we wag!

d rather hear

ow, and PAGE.
are fool, and alty, yet I can-
She was in nd, what they ll, I will look guise to sound
I lose not my is labour well
[Exit.

Garter Inn.

STOL.

any.

une oyster,

in content, Sir, e to pawn: I ods for three fellow; Nym;
the grate like
ioned in hell, riends, you ws: and when of her fan, I adst it not.
adst thou not

son: Think'st
s? At a word,
no gibbet for a throng;—to —You'll not
—you stand unconfinable
lo, to keep the l, I, I myself
eaven on the
our in my ne-edge, and to ul ensconce?
looks, your bold-beating honour! You

d'st thou more

ould speak with

ELY.

od-morrow.

r worship.

other was, the

. What with our worship a man; and I'll

Ford, Sir;—I

ays:—I myself

ten goods
urses in a crowd.
† Protect

Fal. Well, on: Mistress Ford, you say,— Quick. Your worship says very true: I pray your worship, come a little nearer this way.

Fal. I warrant thee, nobody hears;—mine own people, mine own people.

Quick. Are they so? Heaven bless them, and make them his servants!

Fal. Well: mistress Ford;—what of her?

Quick. Why, Sir, she's a good creature.
Lord, lord! your worship's a wanton: Well,
heaven forgive you, and all of us, I pray!

Fal. Mistress Ford;—come, mistress Ford,— Quick. Marry, this is the short and the long of it; you have brought her into such a cana-ries,* as 'tis wonderful. The best courtier of them all, when the court lay at Windsor, could never have brought her to such a canary. Yet there has been knights, and lords, and gentlemen, with their coaches; I warrant you, coach

after coach, letter after letter, gift after gift;
smelling so sweetly, (all musk,) and so rush-ling, I warrant you, in silk and gold; and in such alligant terms; and in such wine and sugar of the best, and the fairest, that would have won any woman's heart; and, I warrant you, they could never get an eye-wink of her.— I had myself twenty angels given me this morning: but I defy all angels, (in any such sort, as they say,) but in the way of honesty:—
and, I warrant you, they could never get her so much as sip on a cup with the proudest of them all: and yet there has been earls, may,
which is more, pensioners; but, I warrant
you, all is one with her.

Fal. But what says she to me? be brief, my good she Mercury.

Quick. Marry, she hath received your letter;
for the which she thanks you a thousand times: and she gives you to notify, that her husband will be absence from his house between ten and eleven.

Fal. Ten and eleven?

Quick. Ay, forsooth; and then you may come and see the picture, she says, that you wot
of;—master Ford, her husband, will be from home. Alas! the sweet woman leads an ill life with him; he's a very jealousy man; she leads a very frampold† life with him, good
heart.

Fal. Ten and eleven: Woman, commend me to her; I will not fail her.

Quick. Why, you say well: But I have an other messenger to your worship: Mistres Page hath her hearty commendations to yo too;—and let me tell you in your ear, she's a fartuous a civil modest wife, and one (I to you) that will not miss your morning nor eve-ing prayer, as any is in Windsor, who'er ‡
the other: and she bade me tell your worship
that her husband is seldom from home; bu
she hopes, there will come a time. I nev knew a woman so dote upon a man; surely,
think you have charms, la; yes, in truth.

Fal. Not I, I assure thee, setting the attra-tion of my good parts aside, I have no oth-charms.

Quick. Blessing on your heart for't!

Fal. But, I pray thee, tell me this: has For-wife, and Page's wife, acquainted each oth-
how they love me?

Quick. That were a jest, indeed!—they ha-not so little grace, I hope:—that were a tri-indeed! But mistress Page would desire § to send her your little page of all loves; † husband has a marvellous infection to the h-

* A mistake of Mrs. Quickly's for quarrelsome.
† Know. ‡ Fretful, peevish. § By all means

Page said, truly, master Page is at honest. Never a wife in Windsor leads a better life than she does; do what she will, say what she will, take all, pay all, go to bed when she list, nor when she list, all is as she will; and, truly, she deserves it. for if there be a kind woman in Windsor, she is one. You must lose her your page, no remedy.

Fal. Why, I will.

Quar. Nay, but do so then. and, look you, may come and go between you both; and, in any case, have a day-word,* that you may know one another's mind, and the boy never need to understand any thing, for 'tis not good that children should know any wickedness: as I said, you know, have discretion, as they can, and know the world.

Fal. Fare thee well, commend me to them. There's my purse, I am yet thy debtor.—I go along with this woman—This news attracts me. [Exit QUICKLY and ROBIN.]

Fal. This punk is one of Cupid's carriers:—Up on more sails, pursue, up with your sights; she is my prize, or ocean when I am all. [Exit PEROT.]

Fal. Nay, 't is thou so, old Jack? go thy ways; I'll make more of thy old body than I have done. Will they yet look after thee? Will they, after the expense of so much money, be any a gamer? Good body, I thank thee: Let them say, 'tis grossly done; so it be fairly done, no matter.

Enter BARDOLPH.

Fal. Sir John, there's one master Brook below would fain speak with you, and he acquainted with you, and hath sent your worship Amos's draught of sack.

Fal. Brook, is his name?

Fal. Ay, Sir.

Fal. Call him in; [Exit BARDOLPH.] Such Brooks are welcome to me, that o'erflow such cups. Ah! ha! mistress Ford and mistress Page, have I encompassed you? go to; via!

Re-enter BARDOLPH, with FORD disguised.

Fal. Bless you, Sir.

Fal. And you, Sir: Would you speak with me?

Fal. I make bold, to press with so little permission upon you.

Fal. You're welcome; What's your will? Or leave, drawer. [Exit BARDOLPH.]

Fal. Sir, I am a gentleman that have spent much; my name is Brook.

Fal. Good master Brook, I desire more acquaintance of you.

Fal. Good Sir John, I sue for yours: not to change you; for I must let you understand, I think myself in better plight for a lender than you are: the which hath something embolden'd me to this unreasoned intrusion; for they say, money go before, all ways do lie open.

Fal. Money is a good soldier, Sir, and will on.

Fal. Truth, and I have a bag of money here to bid me: if you will help me to bear it, Sir John, take all, or half, for easing me of the weight.

Fal. Sir, I know not how I may deserve to be your partner.

Fal. I will tell you, Sir, if you will give me the hearing.

Fal. Speak, good master Brook; I shall be glad to be your servant.

Fal. Sir, I hear you are a scholar,—I will be brief with you;—and you have been a man long known to me, though I had never so good means, as desire, to make myself acquainted with you. I shall discover a thing to you, wherein I must very much lay open mine own imperfection: but, good Sir John, as you have one eye upon my follies, as you hear them unfolded, turn another into the register of your own; that I may pass with a reproof the easier, with you yourself know, how easy it is to be such an offender.

Fal. Very well, Sir; proceed.

Fal. There is a gentlewoman in this town, her husband's name is Ford.

Fal. Well, Sir.

Fal. I have long loved her, and, I protest to you, bestowed much on her; followed her with a dotting observance; engrossed opportunities to meet her; for'd every slight occasion, that could but niggardly give me sight of her; not only bought many presents to give her, but have given largely to many, to know what she would have given: briefly, I have pursued her, as love hath pursued me; which hath been, on the wing of all occasions. But whatsoever I have merited, either in my mind, or in my means, need; I am sure, I have received none; unless experience be a jewel: that I have purchased at an infinite rate; and that hath taught me to say this:

Love like a shadow flies, when substance love pursues;

Pursuing that that flies, and flying what pursues.

Fal. Have you received no promise of satisfaction at her hands?

Fal. Never.

Fal. Have you importuned her to such a purpose?

Fal. Never.

Fal. Of what quality was your love, then?

Fal. Like a fair house, built upon another man's ground; so that I have lost my edifice by mistaking the place where I erected it.

Fal. To what purpose have you unfolded this to me?

Fal. When I have told you that, I have told you all. Some say, that, though she appear honest to me, yet, in other places, she enlargeth her mirth so far, that there is shrewd construction made of her. Now, Sir John, here is the heart of my purpose: You are a gentleman of excellent breeding, admirable discourse, of great admittance,† authentic in your place and person, generally allowed‡ for your many warlike, court-like, and learned preparations.

Fal. O, Sir!

Fal. Believe it, for you know it.—There is money; spend it, spend it; spend more; spend all I have; only give me so much of your time in exchange of it, as to lay an amiable siege to the honesty of this Ford's wife. use your art of wooing, win her to consent to you, if any man may, you may as soon as any.

Fal. Would it apply well to the vehemency of your affection, that I should win what you would enjoy? Methinks, you prescribe to yourself very preposterously.

Fal. O, understand my drift! she dwells so securely on the excellency of her honour, that the folly of my soul dares not present itself; she is too bright to be looked against. Now, could I come to her with any detection in my hand, my desires had instance and argument to

* Suck.

† In the greatest companies.

‡ Reward.

§ Approved.

* A catch-word.

† A most phrase of exultation.

SCENE III.—Windsor Park.

Enter CAIUS and RUGBY.

Caius. Jack Rugby!

Rug. Sir.

Caius. Vat is de clock, Jack?

Rug. 'Tis past the hour, Sir, that Sir Hugh promised to meet.

Caius. By gar, he has save his soul, dat he is no come; he has pray his Pible vell, dat he is no come; by gar, Jack Rugby, he is dead already, if he be come.

Rug. He is wise, Sir; he know, your worship would kill him, if he came.

Caius. By gar, de herring is no dead, so as I vill kill him. Take your rapier, Jack; I vill tell you how I vill kill him.

Rug. Alas, Sir, I cannot fence.

Caius. Villany, take your rapier.

Rug. Forbear; here's company.

Enter Host, SHALLOW, SLENDER, and PAGE.

Host. 'Bless thee, bully doctor.

Shal. 'Save you, master doctor Caius.

Page. Now, good master doctor!

Slen. Give you good-morrow, Sir.

Caius. Vat be all you, one, two, tree, four, come for?

Host. To see thee fight, to see thee soine,* to see thee traverse, to see thee here, to see thee there; to see thee pass thy punto, thy stock, thy reverse, thy distance, thy montant.† Is he dead, my Ethiopian? is he dead, my Francisco? ha, bully! What says my Æsculapius? my Galen? my heart of elder? ha! is he dead, bully Stale? is he dead?

Caius. By gar, he is de coward Jack priest of the world; he is not show his face.

Host. Thou art a Castilian king, Urinal! Hector of Greece, my boy!

Caius. I pray you, bear witness that me have stay six or seven, two, tree hours for him, and he is no come.

Shal. He is the wiser man, master doctor: he is a curer of souls, and you a curer of bodies; if you should fight, you go against the hair of your professions: is it not true, master Page?

Page. Master Shallow, you have yourself been a great fighter, though now a man of peace.

Shal. Bodykins, master Page, though I now be old, and of the peace, if I see a sword out, my finger itches to make one: though we are justices, and doctors, and churchmen, master Page, we have some salt of our youth in us; we are the sons of women, master Page.

Page. 'Tis true, master Shallow.

Shal. It will be found so, master Page. Master doctor Caius, I am come to fetch you home. I am sworn of the peace; you have showed yourself a wise physician, and Sir Hugh hath shown himself a wise and patient churchman: you must go with me, master doctor.

Host. Pardon, guest justice:—A word, monsieur Muck-water.‡

Caius. Muck-vater! vat is dat?

Host. Muck-water, in our English tongue is valour, bully.

Caius. By gar, then I have as much muck-vater as de Englishman:—Scurvy jack-dog-priest! by gar, me vill cut his ears.

Host. He will clapper-claw thee tightly, bully.

* Fence.

† Court term for sparring.

‡ Term in fencing.

§ Draught of a draught.

drive her then
er reputation,
and other her gly embattled
Sir John?
st make bold
your hand;
you shall, if

shall.
hn, you shall master Brook,

with her (I ment; even st, or go-be-shall be with at that time husband, will nt, you shall ance. Do

illy knave! I to call him
ly knave hath his wife seems ter as the key
and there's my

Sir; that you

butter rogue!
will awe him
like a meteor Brook, thou er the pea-wife.—Come knave, and I aster Brook,
cuckold:—

[Exit.]

can rascal is k with impaprovident jea-
o, the hour is ld any man of having a abused, my gnawn at, villanous
en of abomi-does me this amon sounds vell; yet they
of fiends but devil himself
an ass, a se-will not be ning with my man with my viter's bottle, olding, than lots, then she d what they et, they will at Heaven
even o'clock
text my wife, that Page. I so soon, than
e' cuckold!

[Exit.]

his riles
enough.

Caius. Clapper-da-claw! vat is dat?

Host. That is, he will make thee amends.

Caius. By gar, me do look, he shall clapper-da-claw me; for, by gar, me vill have it.

Host. And I will provoke him to't, or let him wag.

Caius. Me tank you for dat.

Host. And moreover, bally,—But first, master guest, and master Page, and oke cavalero slender, go you through the town to Frogmore.

[Aside to them.]

Page. Sir Hugh is there, is he?

Host. He is there: see what humour he is in; and I will bring the doctor about by the side: will it do well?

Shal. We will do it.

Page, Shal. and Slan. Adieu, good master doctor.

[Exeunt PAGE, SHALLOW, and SLANDER.]

Caius. By gar, me vill kill de priest; for he speak for a jack-an-ape to Anne Page.

Host. Let him die: but, first, smother thy impatience; throw cold water on thy choler: go about the fields with me through Frogmore; I will bring thee where Mrs. Anne Page is, at a farm-house a feasting; and thou shalt woo her: Cry'd game, said I well?

Caius. By gar, me tank you for dat: by gar, I love you; and I shall procure-a you de good guest, de curi, de knight, de lords, de gentlemen, my patients.

Host. For the which, I will be thy adversary towards Anne Page; said I well?

Caius. By gar, tis good; vell said.

Host. Let us wag then.

Caius. Come at my heels, Jack Rugby.

[Exeunt.]

ACT III.

SCENE I.—A Field near Frogmore.

Enter Sir HUGH EVANS and SIMPLE.

Eva. I pray you now, good master Slander's serving-man, and friend Simple by your name, which way have you looked for master Caius, that calls himself Doctor of Physic?

Sim. Marry, Sir, the city-ward, the park-ward, every way; old Windsor way, and every way, but the town way.

Eva. I most vehemently desire you, you will also look that way.

Sim. I will, Sir.

Eva. Pless my soul! how full of cholers I am, and tremping of mind!—I shall be glad, if he have deceived me:—how melancholies I am!—I will knog his urinals about his knave's custard,* when I have good opportunities for the work:—pless my soul! [Sings.]

To shallow rivers, to whose falls
Melodious birds sing madrigals;
There will we make our beds of roses,
And a thousand fragrant posies.
To shallow—

Merry on me! I have a great dispositions to cry.

Melodious birds sing madrigals;—
When as I sat in Babylon,†—
And a thousand fragrant posies.
To shallow—

Slan. Yonder he is coming, this way, Sir Hugh.

Eva. He's welcome:—

To shallow rivers, to whose falls—

* Shal. † Delight, the first line of the 138th Psalm.

Heaven prosper the right!—What weapons is he?

Slan. No weapons, Sir: There comes my master, master Shallow, and another gentleman from Frogmore, over the stile, this way.

Eva. Pray you, give me my gown; or else keep it in your arms.

Enter PAGE, SHALLOW, and SLANDER.

Shal. How now, master parson! Good morning, good Sir Hugh. Keep a gamester from the dice, and a good student from his book, and it is wonderful.

Slan. Ah, sweet Anne Page!

Page. Save you, good Sir Hugh!

Eva. Pless you from his mercy sake, all of you!

Shal. What! the sword and the word! do you study them both, master parson?

Page. And youthful still, in your doublet and hose, this raw rheumatick day?

Eva. There is reasons and causes for it.

Page. We are come to you, to do a good office, master parson.

Eva. Very well: What is it?

Page. Yonder is a most reverend gentleman, who belike, having received wrong by some person, is at most odds with his own gravity and patience, that ever you saw.

Shal. I have lived fourscore years and upward; I never heard a man of his place, gravity, and learning, so wide of his own respect.

Eva. What is he?

Page. I think you know him; master doctor Caius, the renowned French physician.

Eva. Got's will, and his passion of my heart! I had as lief you would tell me of a mess of porridge.

Page. Why?

Eva. He has no more knowledge in Hippocrates and Galen,—and he is a knave besides; a cowardly knave, as you would desires to be acquainted withal.

Page. I warrant you, he's the man should fight with him.

Slan. O, sweet Anne Page!

Shal. It appears so, by his weapons.—Keep them asunder;—here comes doctor Caius.

Enter HOST, CAIUS, and RUGBY.

Page. Nay, good master parson, keep in your weapon.

Shal. So do you, good master doctor.

Host. Disarm them, and let them question; let them keep their limbs whole, and hack our English.

Caius. I pray you, let-a me speak a word vit your ear: Verefore vill you not meet-a me?

Eva. Pray you, use your patience. In good time.

Caius. By gar, you are de coward, de Jack dog, John ape.

Eva. Pray you, let us not be laughing-stops to other men's humours; I desire you in friendship, and I will one way or other make you amends:—I will knog your urinals about your knave's cogcomb, for missing your meetings and appointments.

Caius. Diable!—Jack Rugby,—mine Host a Jarterre, have I not stay for him, to kill him? have I not, at de place I did appoint?

Eva. As I am a Christians soul, now, look you, this is the place appointed; 'Til be judgment by mine Host of the Garter.

Host. Peace, I say, Guallia and Gaul, French and Welsh; soul-curer and body-curer.

MERRY WIVES OF WINDSOR.

[ACT III]

excellent!
fine host of the subtle? am I a factor? no; he mutions. Shall
my Sir Hugh?
and the noastrial; so —
so. — Boys of
I have directed
arts are mighty,
burnt sack be
ords to pawn:—
follow, follow.
Follow, gen-

PAGE, and HOST.
dat? have you

ade us his vout-
at we may be prains together,
all, scurvy, cog-
e Garter.
art; he promise
by gar, he de-

noddies:—Pray
[Exeunt.]

in Windsor.

of Robin.

way, little gal-flower, but now
had you rather,
aster's heels?
go before you
ke a dwarf.
ering boy; now,

ge. Whither go your wife: Is

he may hang to-
I think, if your would marry.
—two other hus-

pretty weather-

hat the dickens um of. What do urrah?

never hit on's ie between my ife at home, in-ur,—I am sick,

PAGE and ROBIN.
s? hath he any
are, they sleep;
y, this boy will easy as a can-elve score. He n; he gives her and now she's
s boy with her,

louting stock.

A man may hear this shower sing in the wind!—
and Falstaff's boy with her!—Good plots!—
they are laid; and our revolted wives shew damnation together. Well; I will take him, then torture my wife, pluck the borrowed veil
of modesty from the so seeming^o mistress Page, divulge Page himself for a secure and wild Actæon; and to these violent proceedings all my neighbours shall cry aim.† [Clock strikes.]
The clock gives me my cue, and my assurance bids me search; there I shall find Falstaff: I shall be rather praised for this, than mocked;
for it is as positive as the earth is firm, that Falstaff is there: I will go.

Enter PAGE, SHALLOW, SLENDER, HOST, Sir
HUGH EVANS, CAIUS, and RUGBY.

Shal. Page, &c. Well met, master Ford.
Ford. Trust me, a good knot: I have good cheer at home; and, I pray you, all go with
me.

Shal. I must excuse myself, master Ford.
Slen. And so must I, Sir; we have appointed to dine with mistress Anne, and I would not break with her for more money than I'll speak
of.

Shal. We have lingered about a match between Anne Page and my cousin Slender, and this day we shall have our answer.

Slen. I hope, I have your good-will, father
Page.

Page. You have, master Slender; I stand wholly for you:—but my wife, master doctor, is for you altogether.

Caius. Ay, by gar; and de maid is love-a me; my nursh-a. Quickly tell me so much.

Host. What say you to young master Fenton? he capers, he dances, he has eyes of youth,
he writes verses, he speaks holyday,† he smells
April and May: he will carry't, he will carry't;
'tis in his buttons; he will carry't.

Page. Not by my consent, I promise you.
The gentleman is of no having;‡ he kept company with the wild Prince and Poins; he is of too high a region, he knows too much. No, he shall not knit a knot in his fortunes with the finger of my substance: if he take her, let him take her simply; the wealth I have waits on my consent, and my consent goes not that way.

Ford. I beseech you, heartily, some of you go home with me to dinner: besides your cheer,
you shall have sport; I will show you a monster.—Master doctor, you shall go;—so shall you, master Page;—and you, Sir Hugh.

Shal. Well, fare you well:—we shall have the freer wooing at master Page's.

[Exeunt SHALLOW and SLENDER.]

Caius. Go home, John Rugby; I come anon.
[Exit RUGBY.]

Host. Farewell, my hearts: I will to my honest knight Falstaff, and drink canary with him. [Exit HOST.]

Ford. [Aside.] I think, I shall drink in pipe-wine first with him; I'll make him dance.
Will you go, gentles?

All. Have with you, to see this monster.
[Exeunt.]

SCENE III.—A Room in FORD's House.

Enter Mrs. FORD and Mrs. PAGE.

Mrs. Ford. What, John! what, Robert!

Mrs. Page. Quickly, quickly: Is the buck-basket—

Mrs. Ford. I warrant:—What, Robin, I say.

o Specious. † Shall encourage.
‡ Out of the common style. § Not rich.

Enter Servants with a basket.

Mrs. Page. Come, come, come.

Mrs. Ford. Here, set it down.

Mrs. Page. Give your man the change; we will be brief.

Mrs. Ford. Marry, as I told you before, John, and Robert, be ready here hard by in the brew-house, and when I suddenly call you, come both, and without any pause, or staggering, take this basket on your shoulders: that done, wage with it in all haste, and carry it among the whistlers* in Datchet mead, and there empty it in the muddy ditch, close by the Thames' side.

Mrs. Page. You will do it?

Mrs. Ford. I have told them over and over; my lack no direction: Be gone, and come when you are called. [Exeunt Servants.]

Mrs. Page. Here comes little Robin.

Enter Robin.

Mrs. Ford. How now, my eyes-winketh it that news with you?

Rob. My master Sir John is come in at your back-door, mistress Ford; and requests your company.

Mrs. Page. You little Jack-a-lent, have you him two to us?

Rob. Ay, I'll be sworn: My master knows not of your being here; and hath threatened to put me into everlasting liberty, if I tell you of it; so, he swears, he'll turn me away.

Mrs. Page. That's a good boy; this secrecy of thine shall be a tailor to thee, and shall make thee a new doublet and hose.—I'll go hide me.

Mrs. Ford. Do so:—Go tell thy master, I am gone. Mistress Page, remember you your son. [Exit Robin.]

Mrs. Page. I warrant thee; if I do not act it, let me be. [Exit Mrs. Page.]

Mrs. Ford. Go to then; we'll use this unwholesome humidity, this gross watry pumpon;—we'll teach him to know turtles from figs.

Enter FALSTAFF.

Fal. Here I caught thee, my heavenly jewel! Why, now let me die, for I have lived long enough; this is the period of my ambition: O this blessed hour!

Mrs. Ford. O sweet Sir John!

Fal. Mistress Ford, I cannot cog, I cannot prate, mistress Ford. Now shall I sin in my wish: I would thy husband were dead: I'll speak it before the best lord, I would make thee my lady.

Mrs. Ford. I your lady, Sir John! alas, I should be a pitiful lady.

Fal. Let the court of France show me such another; I see how thine eye would emulate the diamond: Thou hast the right arched bent of the brow, that becomes the ship-tire, the tire-valiant, or any tire of Venetian admittance.†

Mrs. Ford. A plain kerchief, Sir John: my brows become nothing else; nor that well neither.

Fal. Thou art a traitor to say so: thou would'st make an absolute courtier; and the firm fixture of thy foot would give an excellent motion to thy gait, in a semi-circled farthingale. I see what thou wert, if fortune thy foe were not; nature is thy friend: Come, thou must not hide it.

* Struckers of hair. † A young small hawk.
† A puppet thrown at in Lent, like shrove-cakes.
‡ Venetian fashion.

Mrs. Ford. Believe me, there's no such thing in me.

Fal. What made me love thee! let that persuade thee, there's something extraordinary in thee. Come, I cannot cog, and say, thou art this and that, like a many of these lipping hawthorn buds, that come like women in men's apparel, and smell like Bucklers-bury* is simple-time; I cannot: but I love thee; none but thee; and thou deservest it.

Mrs. Ford. Do not betray me, Sir; I fear, you love mistress Page.

Fal. Thou might'st as well say, I love to walk by the Countess-gate; which is as hateful to me as the reek of a lime-kiln.

Mrs. Ford. Well, heaven knows, how I love you; and you shall one day find it.

Fal. Keep in that mind; I'll deserve it.

Mrs. Ford. Nay, I must tell you, so you do; or else I could not be in that mind.

Rob. [within.] Mistress Ford, mistress Ford! here's mistress Page at the door, sweating, and blowing, and looking wildly, and would needs speak with you presently.

Fal. She shall not see me; I will succumb; I am behind the arras.‡

Mrs. Ford. Pray you, do so; she's a very tattling woman.—[Falstaff hides himself.]

Enter Mistress PAGE and ROBIN.

What's the matter? how now?

Mrs. Page. O mistress Ford, what have you done? You're shamed, you are overthrown, you are undone for ever.

Mrs. Ford. What's the matter, good mistress Page?

Mrs. Page. O well-a-day, mistress Ford! having an honest man to your husband, to give him such cause of suspicion!

Mrs. Ford. What cause of suspicion?

Mrs. Page. What cause of suspicion?—Out upon you! how am I mistook in you?

Mrs. Ford. Why, alas! what's the matter?

Mrs. Page. Your husband's coming hither, woman, with all the officers in Windsor, to search for a gentleman, that, he says, is here now in the house, by your consent, to take an ill advantage of his absence: You are undone.

Mrs. Ford. Speak louder.—[Aside.]—'Tis not so, I hope.

Mrs. Page. Pray heaven it be not so, that you have such a man here; but 'tis most certain your husband's coming with half Windsor at his heels, to search for such a one. I come before to tell you. If you know yourself clear, why I am glad of it; but if you have a friend here, convey, convey him out. Be not amazed; call all your senses to you; defend your reputation, or bid farewell to your good life for ever.

Mrs. Ford. What shall I do?—There is a gentleman, my dear friend; and I fear not mine own shame, so much as his peril: I had rather than a thousand pound, he were out of the house.

Mrs. Page. For shame, never stand you had rather, and you had rather; your husband's here at hand, bethink you of some conveyance: in the house you cannot hide him.—O, how have you deceived me!—Look, here is a basket; if he be of any reasonable stature, he may creep in here, and throw foul linen upon him, as if it were going to bucking: Or, it is whiting-time, send him by your two men to Datchet mead.

* Formerly chiefly inhabited by druggists. † I'ron.
‡ Hide. § Taquetry. || Bleaching time.

go in there:

e't! O let me your friend's

Falstaff! Are

thee; help me never—cover him with

r master, boy:
—You dissem-

t, John! [Exit take up these e's the cowl-
+ carry them ead, quickly,

d Sir Hugh

if I suspect
sport at me,
erve it.—How

th.
u to do whither
dle with buck-

wash myself of Ay, buck; I
season too, it
with the basket.]
ought; I'll tell
be my keys:
k, find out: I'll
—Let me stop

t ontented: you

p, gentlemen,
w me, gentle-
[Exit.

humours, and

ion of France.

emen; see the

AGE, and CAIUS.
ble excellency

th pleases me
ceived, or Sir

is he in, when
in the basket?
he will have
g him into the onest rascal; I ere in the same

and hath some ing here; for alousy tell now.
try that: And
with Falstaff.
obey this me-

out foolish car-

asket.

What.

tion, mistress Quickly, to him, and excuse his throwing into the water; and give him another hope, to betray him to another punishment?

Mrs. Page. We'll do it; let him be sent for to-morrow eight o'clock, to have amends.

Re-enter FORD, PAGE, CAIUS, and Sir Hugh EVANS.

Ford. I cannot find him: may be the knave bragged of that he could not compass.

Mrs. Page. Heard you that?

Mrs. Ford. Ay, ay, peace:—You use me
well, master Ford, do you?

Ford. Ay, I do so.

Mrs. Ford. Heaven make you better than your thoughts?

Ford. Amen.

Mrs. Page. You do yourself mighty wrong, master Ford.

Ford. Ay, ay; I must bear it.

Eva. If there be any pody in the house, and in the chambers, and in the coffers, and in the presses, heaven forgive my sins at the day of judgement!

Caius. By gar, nor I too; dere is no bodias.

Page. Fie, fie, master Ford! are you not ashamed? What spirit, what devil suggests this imagination? I would not have your distemper in this kind, for the wealth of Windsor Castle.

Ford. 'Tis my fault, master Page: I suffer
for it.

Eva. You suffer for a pad conscience: your wife is as honest a 'omans, as I will desires among five thousand, and five hundred too.

Caius. By gar, I see 'tis an honest woman.

Ford. Well;—I promised you a dinner:—
Come, come, walk in the park: I pray you, pardon me; I will hereafter make known to you, why I have done this.—Come, wife;—
come, mistress Page; I pray you pardon me;
pray heartily, pardon me.

Page. Let's go in, gentlemen; but, trust me, we'll mock him. I do invite you to-morrow morning to my house to breakfast; after, we'll a birding together; I have a fine hawk for the bush: Shall it be so?

Ford. Any thing.

Eva. If there is one, I shall make two in the company.

Caius. If there be one or two, I shall make a de turd.

Eva. In your teeth: for shame.

Ford. Pray you go, master Page.

Eva. I pray you now, remembrance to-morrow on the lousy knave, mine host.

Caius. Dat is good; by gar, vit all my heart.

Eva. A lousy knave; to have his gibes, and his mockeries. [Exeunt.

SCENE IV.—A Room in PAGE's House.

Enter FENTON, and Mistress ANNE PAGE.

Fent. I see, I cannot get thy father's love;
Therefore, no more turn me to him, sweet Name?

Ann. Alas! how then?

Fent. Why, thou must be thyself.
He doth object, I am too great of birth;
And that, my state being gall'd with my expense,

I seek to heal it only by his wealth:
Besides these, other bars he lays before me,—
My riots past, my wild societies;
And tells me, 'tis a thing impossible
I should love thee, but as a property.

Anne. May be, he tells you true.

Fent. No, heaven so speed me in my time to come!

Albert, I will confess, thy father's wealth Was the first motive that I woo'd thee, Anne: Yet, wooing thee, I found thee of more value Than stamps in gold, or sums in sealed bags; And 'tis the very riches of thyself That now I aim at.

Anne. Gentle master Fenton, Yet seek my father's love: still seek it, Sir: If opportunity and humble suit Cannot attain it, why then.—Hark you hither.
[They converse apart.]

Enter SHALLOW, SLENDER, and Mrs. QUICKLY.

Shal. Break their talk, mistress Quickly; my kinsman shall speak for himself.

Slen. I'll make a shaft or a bolt on't: * slid, 'tis but venturing.

Shal. Be not dismay'd.

Slen. No, she shall not dismay me: I care not for that,—but that I am afraid.

Quick. Hark ye; master Slender would speak a word with you.

Anne. I come to him.—This is my father's choice.

O, what a world of vile ill-favour'd faults Looks handsome in three hundred pounds a year! [Aside.]

Quick. And how does good master Fenton? Pray you, a word with you.

Shal. She's coming; to her, coz. O boy, thou hadst a father!

Slen. I had a father, mistress Anne;—my uncle can tell you good jests of him.—Pray you, uncle, tell mistress Anne the jest, how my father stole two geese out of a pen, good uncle.

Shal. Mistress Anne, my cousin loves you.

Slen. Ay, that I do; as well as I love any woman in Gloucestershire.

Shal. He will maintain you like a gentlewoman.

Slen. Ay, that I will, come out and long-tail, under the degree of a squire.

Shal. He will make you a hundred and fifty pounds jointure.

Anne. Good master Shallow, let him woo for himself.

Shal. Marry, I thank you for it; I thank you for that good comfort. She calls you, coz: I'll leave you.

Anne. Now, master Slender.

Slen. Now, good mistress Anne.

Anne. What is your will?

Slen. My will? O'd's heartlings, that's a pretty jest, indeed! I ne'er made my will yet, I thank heaven, I am not such a sickly creature, I give heaven praise.

Anne. I mean, master Slender, what would you with me?

Slen. Truly, for mine own part, I would little or nothing with you: Your father, and my uncle, have made motions: if it be my luck, so if not, happy man be his dole! They can tell you how things go, better than I can: You may ask your father; here he comes.

Enter PAGE and Mistress PAGE.

Page. Now, master Slender:—Love him, daughter Anne.—

Why, how now! what does master Fenton here?

You wrong me, Sir, thus still to haunt my house:

I told you, Sir, my daughter is dispos'd of.

Fent. Nay, master Page, be not impatient.

Mrs. Page. Good master Fenton, come not to my child.

Page. She is no match for you.

Fent. Sir, will you hear me?

Page. No, good master Fenton.

Come, master Shallow: come, son Slender, in:— [Fenton.]

Knowing my mind, you wrong me, master [Exeunt PAGE, SHALLOW, and SLENDER.]

Quick. Speak to mistress Page.

Fent. Good mistress Page, for that I love your daughter

In such a righteous fashion as I do,

Perforce, against all checks, rebukes, and manners,

I must advance the colours of my love,

And not retire: Let me have your good will.

Anne. Good mother, do not marry me to yond' fool.

Mrs. Page. I mean it not; I seek you a better husband

Quick. That's my master, master doctor.

Anne. Alas, I had rather be set quick i' the earth,

And howl'd to death with turnips.

Mrs. Page. Come, trouble not yourself: Good master Fenton,

I will not be your friend, nor enemy:

My daughter will I question how she loves you, And as I find her, so am I affected;

Till then, farewell, Sir:—She must needs go Her father will be angry. [In:]

[Exeunt MISTRESS PAGE and ANNE.]

Fent. Farewell, gentle mistress; farewell, Nan.

Quick. This is my doing, now;—Nay, said I, will you cast away your child on a fool, and a physician? Look on master Fenton:—this is my doing.

Fent. I thank thee; and I pray thee, once to-night

Give my sweet Nan this ring: There's for thy pains. [Exit.]

Quick. Now heaven send thee good fortune! A kind heart he hath: a woman would run through fire and water for such a kind heart. But yet, I would my master had mistress Anne; or I would master Slender had her; or, in sooth, I would master Fenton had her: I will do what I can for them all three; for so I have promised, and I'll be as good as my word; but speciously* for master Fenton. Well, I must of another errand to Sir John Falstaff from my two mistresses; What a boast am I to slack it? [Exit.]

SCENE V.—A Room in the Garter Inn.

Enter FALSTAFF and BARDOLPH.

Fal. Bardolph, I say,—

Bard. Here, Sir.

Fal. Go fetch me a quart of sack; put a toast in't. [Exit BARD.] Have I lived to be carried in a basket, like a barrow of butcher's offal; and to be thrown into the Thames? Well; if I be served such another trick, I'll have my brains ta'en out, and butter'd, and give them to a dog for a new year's gift. The rogues slighted me into the river with as little remorse as they would have drowned a bitch's blind puppies, fifteen i' the litter: and you may know

* A proverb:—a shaft was a long arrow, and a bolt, a half-shot one. † Knows, poet or rick. ‡ Lot.

* Speciously.

† Night.

‡ Litter.

of alacrity in deep as hell, I ned, but that now; a death
as a man; and n, when I had en a mountain

the wine.

, Sir, to speak

me sack to the s cold, as if I ills to cool the

Y.

y you mercy:

es:" Go brew

bullet-sperm in ow now!

your worship

d ford enough:
have my belly

art, that was on with her pon a foolish

for it, that it

Her husband

desires you

en eight and quickly. she'll ll her so; and

t her consider

merit.

nd ten, say'st

t miss her.

[Exit.

Master Brook;

n I like his

come to know

d Ford's wife?

s my business.

ue to you; I

ointed me.

er Brook.

o change her

the peaking

ook, dwelling

, comes me in atter we had

ed, as it were,

ly, and at his

s, thither pro-

temper, and,

us wife's love.

Ford. What, while you were there?

Fal. While I was there.

Ford. And did he search for you, and could not find you?

Fal. You shall hear. As good luck would have it, comes in one mistress Page; gives intelligence of Ford's approach; and, by her invention, and Ford's wife's distraction, they conveyed me into a buck-basket.

Ford. A buck-basket!

Fal. By the Lord, a buck-basket: rammed me in with foul shirts and smocks, socks, foul stockings, and greasy napkins; that, master Brook, there was the rankest compound of villanous smell, that ever offended nostril.

Ford. And how long lay you there?

Fal. Nay, you shall hear, master Brook, what I have suffered to bring this woman to evil for your good. Being thus crammed in the basket, a couple of Ford's knaves, his hinds, were called forth by their mistress, to carry me in the name of foul clothes to Datchet-lane: they took me on their shoulders; met the jealous knave their master in the door; who asked them once or twice what they had in their basket: I quaked for fear, lest the lunatic knave would have searched it; but Pate, ordaining he should be a cuckold, held his hand. Well; on went he for a search, and away went I for foul clothes. But mark the sequel, master Brook: I suffered the pangs of three several deaths: first, an intolerable fright, to be detected with a jealous rotten bell-wether: next, to be compassed like a good bilbo,* in the circumference of a peck, hilt to point, heel to head: and then, to be stopped in, like a strong distillation, with stinking clothes that fretted in their own grease: think of that,—a man of my kidney,—think of that; that am as subject to heat as butter; a man of continual dissolution and thaw; it was a miracle to 'scape suffocation. And in the height of this bath, when I was more than half stewed in grease, like a Dutch dish, to be thrown into the Thames, and cooled, glowing hot, in that surge, like a horse-shoe, think of that;—hissing hot,—think of that, master Brook.

Ford. In good sadness,† Sir, I am sorry that for my sake you have suffered all this. My suit then is desperate; you'll undertake her no more.

Fal. Master Brook, I will be thrown into Etna, as I have been into Thames, ere I will leave her thus. Her husband is this morning gone a birding: I have received from her another embassy of meeting; 'twixt eight and nine is the hour, master Brook.

Ford. 'Tis past eight already, Sir.

Fal. Is it? I will then address me to my appointment. Come to me at your convenient leisure, and you shall know how I speed; and the conclusion shall be crowned with your enjoying her: Adieu. You shall have her, master Brook; master Brook, you shall cuckold Ford.

[Exit.

Ford. Hum! ha! is this a vision? is this a dream? do I sleep? Master Ford, awake; awake, master Ford; there's a hole made in your best coat, master Ford. This 'tis to be married! this 'tis to have linen, and buck-baskets!—Well, I will proclaim myself what I am: I will now take the lecher; he'll at my house: he cannot 'scape me; 'tis impossible he should; he cannot creep into a halfpenny purse, nor into a pepper-box: but, lest the

* Bilboa, where the best blades are made.

† Serious-sore.

‡ Make yourself ready.

devil that guides him should aid him, I will search impossible places. Though what I am I cannot avoid, yet to be what I would not, shall not make me tame. if I have horns to make one mad, let the proverb go with me, I'll be horn mad. [Exit.]

ACT IV.

SCENE I.—The Street.

Enter Mrs. PAGE, Mrs. QUICKLY, and WILLIAM.

Mrs. Page. Is he at master Ford's already, think'st thou.

Quick. Sure, he is by this; or will be presently: but truly, he is very courageous* mad, about his throwing into the water. Mistress Ford desires you to come suddenly.

Mrs. Page. I'll be with her by and by; I'll but bring my young man here to school: Look, where his master comes; 'tis a playing-day, I see.

Enter Sir HUGH EVANS.

How now, Sir Hugh? no school to-day?

Eva. No; master Slender is let the boys leave to play.

Quick. Blessing of his heart!

Mrs. Page. Sir Hugh, my husband says, my son profits nothing in the world at his book; I pray you, ask him some questions in his acquaintance.

Eva. Come hither, William; hold up your head; come.

Mrs. Page. Come on, airrah; hold up your head; answer your master, be not afraid.

Eva. William, how many nouns is in nouns?

Will. Two.

Quick. Truly, I thought there had been one sander more; because they say, od's nouns.

Eva. Peace your tattlings. What is fair, William?

Will. Pulcher.

Quick. Poulcats! there are fairer things than poulcats, sure.

Eva. Your are a very simplicity 'oman; I pray you, peace. What is laps, William?

Will. A stone.

Eva. And what is a stone, William?

Will. A pebble.

Eva. No, it is laps; I pray you remember in your pain.

Will. Lapis.

Eva. That is good William. What is he, William, that does lend articles?

Will. Articles are borrowed of the pronoun; and be thus declined, Singulariter, nominativo, hic, hec, hoc.

Eva. Nominativo, hic, hec, hoc; pray you, mark. genitivo, huius: Well, what is your accusative case?

Will. Accusativo, hinc.

Eva. I pray you, have your remembrance, child; Accusativo, hinc, hanc, hoc.

Quick. Hang hog is Latin for bacon, I warrant you.

Eva. Leave your prabbles, 'oman. What is the locative case, William?

Will. O—Vocativo, O.

Eva. Remember, William; locative is, caref.

Quick. And that's a good root.

Eva. 'Oman, forbear.

Mrs. Page. Peace.

Eva. What is your genitive case plural, William?

Will. Genitive case?

Eva. Ay.

Will. Genitive,—horum, harum, horum.

Quick. Vengeance of Jenny's case! lie on her!—never name her, child, if she be a whore.

Eva. For shame, 'oman.

Quick. You do ill to teach the child such words: he teaches him to hick and to hack, which they'll do fast enough of themselves; and to call horum:—lie upon you!

Eva. 'Oman, art thou lunatic? hast thou no understandings for thy cases, and the numbers of the genders? Thou art as foolish Christian creatures as I would desires.

Mrs. Page. Pr'ythee hold thy peace.

Eva. Show me now, William, some declensions of your pronouns.

Will. Fornooth, I have forgot.

Eva. It is ki, ka, cod; if you forget your kies, your kas, and your cods, you must be preeches! Go your ways, and play, go.

Mrs. Page. He is a better scholar, than I thought he was.

Eva. He is a good sprag! memory. Farewell, mistress Page.

Mrs. Page. Adieu, good Sir Hugh. [Exit Sir Hugh.] Get you home, boy.—Come, we stay too long. [Exit Eva.]

SCENE II.—A Room in Ford's House.

Enter FALSTAFF and Mrs. FORD.

Fal. Mistress Ford, your sorrow hath eaten up my sufferance: I see, you are obsequious in your love, and I profess requital to a hair's breadth; not only, mistress Ford, in the simple office of love, but in all the accoutrement, complement, and ceremony of it. But are you sure of your husband now?

Mrs. Ford. He's a birding, sweet Sir John.

Mrs. Page. [Within.] What ho, gossip Ford! what ho!

Mrs. Ford. Step into the chamber, Sir John. [Exit FALSTAFF.]

Enter Mrs. PAGE.

Mrs. Page. How now, sweetheart? who's at home beside yourself?

Mrs. Ford. Why, none but mine own people.

Mrs. Page. Indeed?

Mrs. Ford. No, certainly;—speak louder. [Aside.]

Mrs. Page. Truly, I am so glad you have nobody here.

Mrs. Ford. Why?

Mrs. Page. Why, woman, your husband is in his old lunes again: he so takes on yonder with my husband; so rails against all married mankind; so curses all Eve's daughters, of what complexion soever; and so buffets himself on the forehead, crying, Peer out, peer out! that any madness, I ever yet beheld, seemed but tameness, civility, and patience, to this his distemper he is in now: I am glad the fat knight is not here.

Mrs. Ford. Why, does he talk of him?

Mrs. Page. Of none but him; and swears, he was carried out, the last time he searched for him, in a basket: protests to my husband, he is now here; and hath drawn him and the rest of their company from their sport, to make another experiment of his suspicion. but I am glad the knight is not here; now he shall see his own foolery.

Mrs. Ford. How near is he, mistress Page?

* Breeched, i. e. flogged

† Apt to learn.

‡ Sorrowful.

§ Mad Sta.

|| As children call on a maid to push forth his horns

* Outrageous.

meet end; he will

—the knight is

you are utterly man. What a him, away with er.

ould he go? how put him into the

FF.

re i' the basket:

I master Ford's
astols, that none
might slip away
you here?

I creep up into

says use to dis-Creep into the

ere on my word.

unk, well, vault,
e remembrance
em by his note:
house.

your own sem-
unless you go out

disguise him?

know not. There
h for him; other-a muffler, and a

nothing: any ex-

ff.

the fat woman

ve.

it will serve him;
re's her thum'd

up, Sir John.

John: mistress

en for your head.

we'll come dress

the while.

[Exit FALSTAFF.

band would meet

it abide the old

rs, she's a witch;

uth threatened to him to thy hus-

guide his cudgel

and coming?

ness,† is he; and ever he hath had

for I'll appoint

gain, to meet him

d last time.

here presently:

h of Brentford.

y men, what they go up, I'll bring

[Exit.

onest varlet! we

which we will do,

et honest too:

We do not act, that often jest and laugh;
'Tis old but true, Still serve out all the drug.
[Exit.]

Re-enter Mrs. FORD, with two Servants.

Mrs. Ford. Go, Sirs, take the basket again on your shoulders; your master is hard at door; if he bid you set it down, obey him:
quickly, despatch. [Exit.]

1. Serv. Come, come, take it up.

2. Serv. Pray heaven, it be not full of the knight again.

1. Serv. I hope not; I had as lief bear so much lead.

Enter FORD, PAGE, SHALLOW, CAIUS, and Sir HUGH EVANS.

Ford. Ay, but if it prove true, master Page,
have you any way then to unfool me again?— Set down the basket, villain:—Somebody call my wife:—You, youth in a basket, come out here!—O, you panderly rascals! there's a knot, a ging,* a pack, a conspiracy against me: Now shall the devil be shamed. What!
wife, I say! come, come forth; behold what honest clothes you send forth to bleaching.

Page. Why, this passes!† Master Ford, you are not to go loose any longer; you must be pinioned.

Eva. Why, this is lunatics! this is mad as a mad dog!

Shal. Indeed, master Ford, this is not well;
indeed.

Enter Mrs. FORD.

Ford. So say I too, Sir.—Come hither, mistress Ford; mistress Ford, the honest woman,
the modest wife, the virtuous creature, that hath the jealous fool to her husband!—I suspect without cause, mistress, do I?

Mrs. Ford. Heaven be my witness, you do,
if you suspect me in any dishonesty.

Ford. Well said, brazen-face; hold it out.— Come forth, sirrah.

[Pulls the clothes out of the basket.

Page. This passes!

Mrs. Ford. Are you not ashamed? let the clothes alone.

Ford. I shall find you anon.

Eva. 'Tis unreasonable! Will you take up your wife's clothes? Come away.

Ford. Empty the basket, I say.

Mrs. Ford. Why, man, why?

Ford. Master Page, as I am a man, there was one conveyed out of my house yesterday
in this basket: Why may not he be there again?
In my house I am sure he is: my intelligence is true; my jealousy is reasonable: Pluck me out all the linen.

Mrs. Ford. If you find a man there, he shall die a flea's death.

Page. Here's no man.

Shal. By my fidelity, this is not well, master
Ford; this wrongs you.

Eva. Master Ford, you must pay, and not follow the imaginations of your own heart:
this is jealousies.

Ford. Well, he's not here I seek for.

Page. No, nor no where else, but in your brain.

Ford. Help to search my house this one time;
if I find not what I seek, show no colour for my extremity, let me for ever be your table-
sport; let them say of me, As jealous as Ford, that searched a hollow walnut for his wife's

* Seriously.

* Grog.

† Surpasses, to go beyond bounds.

leman.* Satisfy me once more; one more search with me.

Mrs. Ford. What ho, mistress Page! come you, and the old woman down; my husband will come into the chamber.

Ford. Old woman! What old woman's that?

Mrs. Ford. Why, it is my maid's aunt of Breckford.

Ford. A witch, a quean, an old cozening quean! Have I not forbid her my house? She comes of errands, does she? We are simple men; we do not know what's brought to pass under the profession of fortune-telling. She works by charms, by spells, by the figure, and such daubery as this is; beyond our element: we know nothing.—Come down, you witch, you hag you; come down I say.

Mrs. Ford. Nay, good, sweet husband;—good gentlemen, let him not strike the old woman.

Enter FALSTAFF in women's clothes, led by Mrs. PAGE.

Mrs. Page. Come, mother Pratt, come, give me your hand.

Ford. I'll prat her:—Out of my door, you witch! [Beats him.] You rag, you baggage, you polecat, you ronyon! out! out! I'll conjure you, I'll fortune-tell you. [Exit FALSTAFF.]

Mrs. Page. Are you not ashamed? I think, you have kill'd the poor woman.

Mrs. Ford. Nay, he will do it:—'Tis a goodly credit for you.

Ford. Hang her, witch!

Eva. By yea and no, I think, the 'oman is a witch indeed: I like not when a 'oman has a great peard; I spy a great peard under her muffer.

Ford. Will you follow, gentlemen? I beseech you follow, see but the issue of my jealousy: if I cry out thus upon no trail,† never trust me when I open again.

Page. Let's obey his humour a little further: Come, gentlemen.

[Exit PAGE, FORD, SHALLOW, and EVANS.]

Mrs. Page. Trust me, he beat him most pitifully.

Mrs. Ford. Nay, by the mass, that he did not; he beat him most unpitifully, methought.

Mrs. Page. I'll have the cudgel hallowed, and hang o'er the altar; it hath done meritorious service.

Mrs. Ford. What think you? May we, with the warrant of woman-hood, and the witness of a good conscience, pursue him with any further revenge?

Mrs. Page. The spirit of wantonness is, sure, stared out of him; if the devil have him not in fee-simple, with fine and recovery, he will never, I think, in the way of waste, attempt us again.

Mrs. Ford. Shall we tell our husbands how we have served him?

Mrs. Page. Yes, by all means; if it be but to scrape the figures out of your husband's brains. If they can find in their hearts, the poor unvirtuous fat knight shall be any further afflicted, we two will still be the ministers.

Mrs. Ford. I'll warrant, they'll have him publicly shamed: and, methinks, there would be no period to the jest, should he not be publicly shamed.

Mrs. Page. Come, to the forge with it then, shape it: I would not have things cool.

[Exit.]

SCENE III.—A Room in the Garter Inn.

Enter Host and BARDOLPH.

Bard. Sir, the Germans desire to have three of your horses; the duke himself will be to-morrow at court, and they are going to meet him.

Host. What duke should that be, comes so secretly? I hear not of him in the court. Let me speak with the gentlemen; they speak English?

Bard. Ay, Sir, I'll call them to you.

Host. They shall have my horses, but I'll make them pay, I'll sauce them: they have had my houses a week at command; I have turned away my other guests, they must come off; I'll sauce them: Come. [Exit.]

SCENE IV.—A Room in FORD'S HOUSE.

Enter PAGE, FORD, Mrs. PAGE, Mrs. FORD, and Sir HUGH EVANS.

Eva. 'Tis one of the pest discretions of a 'oman as ever I did look upon.

Page. And did he send you both these letters at an instant?

Mrs. Page. Within a quarter of an hour.

Ford. Pardon me, wife: Henceforth do what thou wilt;

I rather will suspect the sun with cold, Than thee with wantonness: now doth thy honour stand,

In him that was of late an heretic, As firm as faith.

Page. 'Tis well, 'tis well; no more. Be not as extreme in submission,

As in offence; But let our plot go forward: let our wives

Yet once again, to make us public sport, Appoint a meeting with this old fat fellow, Where we may take him, and disgrace him for it.

Ford. There is no better way than that they spoke of.

Page. How! to send him word they'll meet him in the park at midnight! fie, fie; he'll never come.

Eva. You say, he has been thrown in the rivers; and has been grievously peaten, as an old 'oman methinks, there should be terrors in him, that he should not come, methinks, his flesh is punished, he shall have no desires.

Page. So think I too.

Mrs. Ford. Devise but how you'll use him when he comes,

And let us two devise to bring him thither.

Mrs. Page. There is an old tale goes, that Herne the hunter,

Sometimes a keeper here in Windsor forest, Doth all the winter time, at still midnight, Walk round about an oak, with great ragged horns; [cattle;

And there he blasts the tree, and takes* the And makes milch-kine yield blood, and shakes a chain

In a most hideous and dreadful manner: You have heard of such a spirit; and well you know,

The superstitious idle-headed eld; Received, and did deliver to our age,

This tale of Herne the hunter for a truth.

Page. Why, yet there want not many, that do fear

In deep of night to walk by this Herne's oak: But what of this?

Mrs. Ford. Marry, this is our device;

* Lover.

† Search.

‡ Scold.

§ Cry out.

* Strikes.

† Old age.

MERRY WIVES OF WINDSOR.

meet with us,
age horns on his

oubted but he'll

on have brought

[plot?]
what is your

ave we thought

ny little son,

r growth, we'll

{white,

ries, green and

on their heads,

on a sudden,

ewly met,

rush at once

on their sight,

and fly.

about,

nuclear knight;

f fairy revel,

res to tread,

the truth,

him sound,†

known,

horn the spirit,

or.

hey'll ne'er do't.

ren their beha-

ck-an-apes also,

ber.

nt. I'll go buy

the queen of all

ite.

ay;—and in that

Nan away,

[Aside.

send to Falstaff

gain in name of

Sure, he'll come.

hat: Go, get us

admirable pleas-

ORD, and EVANS.

rd,

now his mind.

Exit Mrs. FORD.

good will,

h Nan Page.

ded, is an idiot;

ll affects:

nd his friends

t he, shall have

orthier come to

Sim. Marry, Sir, I come to
John Falstaff from master Ble

Host. There's his chamber

castle, his standing-bed, and

painted about with the story

fresh and new: Go, knock

Knock, I say.

Sim. There's an old woman

gone up into his chamber; I'

stay, Sir, till she come down:

with her, indeed.

Host. Ha! a fat woman! t

robbed: I'll call.—Bully k

John! speak from thy lungs m

there? it is thine host, thine!

Fal. [abore.] How now, mi

Host. Here's a Bohemian-?

coming down of thy fat woma

send, bully, let her descend;

honourable: Fye! privacy!

Enter FALSTAF

Fal. There was, mine host,

even now with me; but she's

Sim. Pray you, Sir, was't

man of Brentford?

Fal. Ay, marry, was it, mu

would you with her?

Sim. My master, Sir, my

sent to her, seeing her go tho

to know, Sir, whether one N

guiled him of a chain, had th

Fal. I spake with the old w

Sim. And what says she, I

Fal. Marry, she says, that th

that beguiled master Blende

oned him of it.

Sim. I would, I could have

woman herself; I had othe

spoken with her too, from his

Fal. What are they? let us

Host. Ay, come; quick.

Sim. I may not conceal the

Fal. Conceal them, or thou

Sim. Why, Sir, they were:

mistress Anne Page; to know

master's fortune to have her,

Fal. 'Tis, 'tis his fortune.

Sim. What, Sir?

Fal. To have her,—or no: I

man told me so.

Sim. May I be so bold to w

meet with us,
age horns on his

oubted but he'll

on have brought

[plot?]
what is your

ave we thought

ny little son,

r growth, we'll

{white,

ries, green and

on their heads,

on a sudden,

ewly met,

rush at once

on their sight,

and fly.

about,

nuclear knight;

f fairy revel,

res to tread,

the truth,

him sound,†

known,

horn the spirit,

or.

hey'll ne'er do't.

ren their beha-

ck-an-apes also,

ber.

nt. I'll go buy

the queen of all

ite.

ay;—and in that

Nan away,

[Aside.

send to Falstaff

gain in name of

Sure, he'll come.

hat: Go, get us

admirable pleas-

ORD, and EVANS.

rd,

now his mind.

Exit Mrs. FORD.

good will,

h Nan Page.

ded, is an idiot;

ll affects:

nd his friends

t he, shall have

orthier come to

Sim. Marry, Sir, I come to
John Falstaff from master Ble

Host. There's his chamber

castle, his standing-bed, and

painted about with the story

fresh and new: Go, knock

Knock, I say.

Sim. There's an old woman

gone up into his chamber; I'

stay, Sir, till she come down:

with her, indeed.

Host. Ha! a fat woman! t

robbed: I'll call.—Bully k

John! speak from thy lungs m

there? it is thine host, thine!

Fal. [abore.] How now, mi

Host. Here's a Bohemian-?

coming down of thy fat woma

send, bully, let her descend;

honourable: Fye! privacy!

Enter FALSTAF

Fal. There was, mine host,

even now with me; but she's

Sim. Pray you, Sir, was't

man of Brentford?

Fal. Ay, marry, was it, mu

would you with her?

Sim. My master, Sir, my

sent to her, seeing her go tho

to know, Sir, whether one N

guiled him of a chain, had th

Fal. I spake with the old w

Sim. And what says she, I

Fal. Marry, she says, that th

that beguiled master Blende

oned him of it.

Sim. I would, I could have

woman herself; I had othe

spoken with her too, from his

Fal. What are they? let us

Host. Ay, come; quick.

Sim. I may not conceal the

Fal. Conceal them, or thou

Sim. Why, Sir, they were:

mistress Anne Page; to know

master's fortune to have her,

Fal. 'Tis, 'tis his fortune.

Sim. What, Sir?

Fal. To have her,—or no: I

man told me so.

Sim. May I be so bold to w

* A cannibal. † A cunning woman; scholar like.

villain : do not say, they be fled ; Germans are honest men.

Enter Sir HUGH EVANS.

Ans. Where is mine host ?

Host. What is the matter, Sir ?

Ans. Have a care of your entertainments : there is a friend of mine come to town, tells me, there is three cousin Germans, that has cozened all the hosts of Readings, of Maidenhead, of Colebrook, of horses and money. I tell you for good-will, look you : you are wise, and full of gibes and rousing-stogs ; and 'tis not convenient you should be cozened : Fare you well. [Exit.

Enter Doctor CAIUS.

Caius. Vere is mine Host de Jarterre.

Host. Here, master doctor, in perplexity, and doubtful dilemma.

Caius. I cannot tell vat is dat : but it is tell me, dat you make grand preparation for a duke de Jermey : by my trot, dere is no duke, dat the court is know to come ; I tell you for good vill : adieu. [Exit.

Host. Hue and cry, villain, go :—assist me, knight ; I am undone :—fly, run, hue and cry, villain ! I am undone !

[Exit Host and BARDOLPH.

Fal. I would, all the world might be cozened ; for I have been cozen'd and beaten too. If it should come to the ear of the court, how I have been transformed and how my transformation hath been washed and cudgelled, they would melt me out of my fat, drop by drop, and liquor fishermen's boots with me ; I warrant, they would whip me with their fine wits, till I were as crest-fallen as a dried pear. I never prospered since I forswore myself at Prinewell. Well, if my wind were but long enough to my prayers, I would repent.—

Enter Mrs. QUICKLY.

Now ! whence come you ?

Quick. From the two parties, forsooth.

Fal. The devil take one party, and his dam the other, and so they shall be both beatowed ! I have suffered more for their sakes, more, than the villainous inconstancy of man's disposition is able to bear.

Quick. And have not they suffered ? Yes, I warrant ; speciously one of them ; mistress Ford, good heart, is beaten black and blue, but you cannot see a white spot about her.

Fal. What tell'st thou me of black and blue ? I was beaten myself into all the colours of the rainbow, and I was like to be apprehended for the witch of Brentford, but that my admirable dexterity of wit, my counterfeiting the action of an old woman, deliver'd me, the knave constable had set me i' the stocks, i' the common stocks, for a witch.

Quick. Sir, let me speak with you in your chamber : you shall hear how things go ; and, I warrant, to your content. Here is a letter will say somewhat. Good hearts, what ado here is to bring you together ! Sure, one of you does not serve heaven well, that you are so crossed.

Fal. Come up into my chamber. [Exit.

SCENE VI.—Another Room in the Garter Inn.

Enter Fenton and Host.

Host. Master Fenton, talk not to me ; my mind is heavy, I will give over all. [purpose,

Fent. Yet here we speak : Assist me in my

* A game at cards.

And, as I am a gentleman, I'll give thee A hundred pound in gold, more than your loss.

Host. I will hear you, master Fenton ; and I will, at the least, keep your counsel.

Fent. From time to time I have acquainted you

With the dear love I bear to fair Anne Page ; Who, mutually, hath answer'd my affection (So far forth as herself might be her chooser,) Even to my wish : I have a letter from her Of such contents as you will wonder at ; The mirth whereof so larded with my matter, That neither, singly, can be manifested, Without the show of both ;—wherein fat Falstaff

Hath a great scene : the image of the jest.

[Showing the letter.

I'll show you here at large. Hark, good mine host.

[one,

To-night at Herne's oak, just 'twixt twelve and Must my sweet Nan present the fairy queen ; The purpose why, is here,* in which disguise, While other jests are something rank on foot, Her father hath commanded her to slip Away with Slender, and with him at kton Immediately to marry : she hath consented ; Now, Sir,

Her mother, even strong against that match, And firm for doctor Caius, hath appointed That he shall likewise shuffle her away, While other sports are tasking of their minds, And at the deanery, where a priest attends, Straight marry her : to this her mother's plot She, seemingly obedient, likewise hath Made promise to the doctor ;—Now, thus it rests :

Her father means she shall be all in white ; And in that habit, when Slender sees his time To take her by the hand, and bid her go, She shall go with him :—her mother hath intended,

The better to denote her to the doctor, (For they must all be mask'd and vizarded,) That, quaint † in green, she shall be loose enrob'd,

With ribbands pendant, flaring 'bout her head ; And when the doctor spies his vantage ripe, To pinch her by the hand, and, on that token, The maid hath given consent to go with him.

Host. Which means she to deceive ? father or mother ?

Fent. Both, my good host, to go along with me :

And here it rests,—that you'll procure the vicar To stay for me at church, 'twixt twelve and one, And, in the lawful name of marrying, To give our hearts united ceremony.

Host. Well, husband your device ; I'll to the vicar.

Bring you the maid, you shall not lack a priest.

Fent. So shall I evermore be bound to thee ; Besides, I'll make a present recompense.

[Exit.

ACT V.

SCENE I.—A Room in the Garter Inn.

Enter FALSTAFF and Mrs. QUICKLY.

Fal. Pr'ythee, no more prattling ;—go.—I'll hold ; This is the third time ; I hope, good luck lies in odd numbers. Away, go ; they say, there is divinity in odd numbers, either in nativity, chance, or death.—Away.

Quick. I'll provide you a chain ; and I'll do what I can to get you a pair of horns.

* In the letter † Fantastically ‡ Keep to the time.

THE MERRY WIVES OF WINDSOR.

wears: hold up your [Exit Mrs. QUICKLY.]
ORD.

Master Brook, the night, or never. Be midnight, at Herne's onders.

er yesterday, Sir, as
anted?

er Brook, as you see,
ut I came from her,
or old woman. That husband, hath the
usy in him, master
d frenzy. I will tell sly, in the shape of ape of man, muster
th with a weaver's
so, life is a shuttle.
with me; I'll tell you
ce I plucked geese,
ed top, I knew not till lately. Follow things of this knave
I will be revenged, te into your hand.—
band, master Brook!
[Exit.]

Windsor Park.

W., and SLENDER.

ll couch i' the castleght of our fairies.—
my daughter.

ave spoke with her,
* how to know one
white, and cry, man;
that we know one

But what needs either
the white will de-
It hath struck ten

ok; light and spirits
heaven prosper our il but the devil, and horns. Let's away;
[Exit.]

reet in Windsor.

ORD, and Dr. CAIUS.

or, my daughter is in r time, take her by
to the deanery, and
efore into the park;

e to do; Adieu.
ll, Sir. [Exit CAIUS.]
ice so much at the will chase at the
ughter: but 'tis no nding, than a great

n now, and her troop devil, Hugh?
ouched in a pit hard red lights; which, at
's and our meeting,
the night.

choose but amaze

amazed, he will be
he will every way

ed

Mrs. Ford. We'll betray his Mrs. Page. Against such lechery,

Those that betray them do me
Mrs. Ford. The hour draw to the oak!

SCENE IV.—Wind

Enter Sir HUGH EVANS,

Evans. Trib, trib, fairies; ce ber your parts: be bold, I pr into the pit; and when I give do as I bid you; Come, come

SCENE V.—Another par

Enter FALSTAFF disguised, with

Fal. The Windsor bell hat
the minute draws on: Now,
gods assist me:—Remember,
a bull for thy Europa; love a
—O powerful love! that, in makes a beast a man; in som beast.—You were also, Jup
the love of Leda;—O, omni near the god drew to the goose!—A fault done first i beast;—O Jove, a beastly fau other fault in the semblance on't, Jove; a foul fault.—Wh backs, what shall poor men d
here a Windsor stag; and the
i' the forest: send me a cool r
who can blame me to piss a comes here? my doe?

Enter Mrs. FORD and A

Mrs. Ford. Sir John? art
deer? my male deer?

Fal. My doe with the black sky rain potatoes; let it thunc
Green Sleeves; hail kissing-co
eringoes; let there come a ten tion, I will shelter me here.

Mrs. Ford. Mistress Page i sweetheart.

Fal. Divide me like a bri haunch; I will keep my side shoulders for the fellow* of my horns I bequeath your hus woodman? ha! Speak I like H
—Why, now is Cupid a chil
he makes restitution. As I welcome!

Mrs. Page. Alas! what noi

Mrs. Ford. Heaven forgive

Fal. What should this be?

Mrs. Ford. } Away, away.

Mrs. Page. }

Fal. I think, the devil wi damned, lest the oil that is hell on fire; he would neve
thus.

Enter Sir HUGH EVANS, like QUICKLY, and PISTOL; AN Fairy Queen, attended by others, dressed like fairies, a
on their heads.

Quick. Fairies, black, grey, f
You moon-shine revellers, and You orphan-heirs of fixed des Attend your office, and your Crier Hobgoblin, make the fal

* Keeper of the forest.

ma, list your names; silence, you
y toys.

Windsor chimnies shalt thou leap:
thou find'st unrak'd, and hearths swept,
the maids as blue as bilberry:
queen hates sluts, and sluttish;
are fairies; he, that speaks to them,
die:

a couch: No man their works must [Lies down upon his face.

me's Pede?—Go you, and where you
a maid,

in sleep, has thrice her prayers said,
e organs of her fantasy,
e sound as careless infancy;
e sleep, and think not on their sins,
arms, legs, back, shoulders, sides,
shins.

bout, about;

door castle, elves, within and out:
back, couples, on every sacred room;

stand till the perpetual doom,
wholesome, as in state 'tis fit;

owner, and the owner it.

chains of order look you scour
balm, and every precious flower:

ointment, coat, and several crest,
blazon, evermore be blest!

p, meadow-fairies, look, you sing,
Garter's compass, in a ring:

more that it bears, green let it be,
fresh than all the field to see;

with qui mal y pense, write,
tulle, flowers purple, blue, and

re; pearl, and rich embroidery,
ow fair knighthood's bending knee:

flowers for their character.†
erse. But, till 'tis one o'clock,

if custom, round about the oak
e hunter, let us not forget.

r you, lock hand in hand, your-es in order set:

glow-worms shall our lanterns be,
r measure round about the tree.

small a man of middle earth.

ens defend me from that Welsh
e transform me to a piece of cheese!

worm, thou wast o'er-look'd even
by birth.

th trial-fire touch me his finger-
:

ste, the flame will back descend,
e to no pain; but if he start,

h of a corrupted heart.
ial, come

e, will this wood take fire?
[They burn him with their tapers.

sh, oh!
rapt, corrupt, and tainted in deairies; sing a scornful rhyme:

trip, still pinch him to your time.

right; indeed he is full of lecheries

SONG.

ge on sinful fantasy!
ge on lust and luxury!
ust is but a bloody fire,
indled with unchaste desire,
art; whose flames aspire,
hs do blow them, higher and higher.

berry

† The letters.

Pinch him, fairies, mutually;

Pinch him for his villany;

*Pinch him, and burn him, and turn him about,
Till candles, and star-light, and moonshine be out.*

During this song, the fairies pinch FALSTAFF.

*Doctor CAIUS comes one way, and steals away
a fairy in green; SLENDER another way, and takes off a fairy in white; and FENTON comes,
and steals away Mrs. ANNE PAGE. A noise of hunting is made within. All the fairies run away. FALSTAFF pulls off his buck's head, and rises.*

*Enter PAGE, FORD, Mrs. PAGE, and Mrs. FORD.
They lay hold on him.*

Page. Nay, do not fly: I think, we have watch'd you now;

Will none but Herne the hunter serve your turn?

Mrs. Page. I pray you, come; hold up the jest no higher:—

Now, good Sir John, how like you Windsor wives? [yokes

*See you these, husband? do not these fair
Become the forest better than the town?*

Ford. Now, Sir, who's a cuckold now?—
Master Brook, Falstaff's a knave, a cuckoldly

knave; here are his horns, master Brook:
And, master Brook, he hath enjoyed nothing of Ford's but his buck-basket, his cudgel, and twenty pounds of money; which must be paid to master Brook; his horses are arrested for it,

master Brook.

Mrs. Ford. Sir John, we have had ill luck;
we could never meet. I will never take you for my love again, but I will always count you my deer.

Fal. I do begin to perceive that I am made an ass.

Ford. Ay, and an ox too; both the proofs are extant.

Fal. And these are not fairies? I was three or four times in the thought, they were not fairies: and yet the guiltiness of my mind, the sudden surprise of my powers, drove the gross-

ness of the suppers into a received belief, in despite of the teeth of all rhyme and reason, that they were fairies. See now, how wit may be made a Jack-a-lent, when 'tis upon ill employment.

Eca. Sir John Falstaff, serve Got, and leave your desires, and fairies will not pince you.

Ford. Well said, fairy Hugh.

Eca. And leave you your jealousies too, I pray you.

Ford. I will never mistrust my wife again,
till thou art able to woo her in good English.

Fal. Have I laid my brain in the sun, and dried it, that it wants matter to prevent so gross o'er-reaching as this? Am I ridden with a Welsh goat too? Shall I have a coxcomb of frize? 'tis time I were choked with a piece of toasted cheese.

Eca. Seese is not good to give putter; you pelly is all putter.

Fal. Seese and putter! Have I lived to stand at the taunt of one that makes fritters

of English? This is enough to be the decay of lust and late-walking, through the realm.

Mrs. Page. Why, Sir John, do you think, though we would have thrust virtue out of our hearts by the head and shoulders, and have given ourselves without scruple to hell, that

• Horns which Falstaff had.

† A fool's cap of Welsh materials.

MERRY WIVES OF WINDSOR.

made you our de-

ing? a bag of flax?

and of intolerable

nderous as Satan?

is wife?

ations, and to ta-

and metheglins,

ings, and starings,

me: you have the

I am not able to

ignorance itself is

as you will.

ing you to Windsor,

to have cozened of

have been a pan-

ou have suffered,

will be a biting

et, let that go to

I'll all be friends.

nd, all's forgiven

ght. thou shalt eat

sc; where I will

se, that now laughs

nder hath married

nt that: If Anne

e, by this, doctor

[Aside.

er.

er Page.

ow now, son? have

make the best in

; would I were ton to marry miss a great lubberly

e church, I would

ould have swung

at had been Anne

er stir, and 'tis a ou took the wrong.

me that? I think

a girl: If I had

he was in woman's ad him.

own folly: Did not know my daughter

te, and cried mum,

ne and I had ap-

Anne, but a poster, cannot you see

heart: What shall I

Mrs. Page. Good George, knew of your purpose; turn into green; and, indeed, she doctor at the deanery, and th

Enter CAIUS

Caius. Vere is mistress Pa cozened; I ha' married me / poem, by gar, a boy; it is n / gar, I am cozened.

Mrs. Page. Why, did / green?

Caius. Ay, be gar, and 't / I'll raise all Windsor.

Ford. This is strange: W / right Anne?

Page. My heart misgives / master Fenton.

Enter Fenton and A

How now, master Fenton?

Anne. Pardon, good father / pardon!

Page. Now, mistress? how / not with master Slender?

Mrs. Page. Why went yo / doctor, maid?

Fent. You do amaze* her / of it.

You would have married he / Where there was no propri / The truth is, She and I, loz / Are now so sure, that nothi / The offence is holy, that she / And this deceit loses the na / Of disobedience, or undutec / Since therein she doth evita / A thousand irreligious curc / Which forced marriage we / upon her.

Ford. Stand not amaz'd: / dy:—

In love, the heavens theme / state;

Money buys lands, and wiv / Fal. I am glad, though / special stand to strike at m / hath glanced.

Page. Well, what remedy / give thee joy!

What cannot be eschew'd, / Fal. When night-dogs run / are chas'd.

Eva. I will dance and / wedding.

Mrs. Page. Well, I will / Master Fenton,

Heaven give you many, ma / Good husband, let us every / And laugh this sport o'er by / Sir John and all.

Ford. Let it be so:—Sir J / To master Brook you yet sh / For he, to-night, shall lie w

* Confound her by your questio

THE
T W E L F T H N I G H T; OR,
WHAT YOU WILL.

PERSONS REPRESENTED.

OMINO, Duke of Illyria.
SEBASTIAN, a Young Gentleman, Brother to Viola.
ANTONIO, a Sea-captain, Friend to Sebastian.
A Sea-captain, Friend to Viola.
VALENTINE, } Gentlemen attending on the CURIO, } Duke.
SIR TONY BELCH, Uncle of Olivia.
SIR ANDREW AGON-CHIEK.
MALVOLIO, Steward to Olivia.

FABIAN, } Servants to Olivia.
CLOWN, }
OLIVIA, a rich Countess.
VIOLA, in love with the Duke.
MARIA, Olivia's woman.
Lords, Priests, Sailors, Officers, Musicians,
and other Attendants.
SCENE, a City in Illyria; and the Sea-coast near it.

ACT I.

SCENE I.—An Apartment in the DUKE's
Palace.

Enter DUKE, CURIO, LORDS; Musicians
attending.

Duke. If music be the food of love, play on,
Give me excess of it; that, surfeiting,
The appetite may sicken, and so die.—
That strain again;—it had a dying fall:
O, it came o'er my ear like the sweet south,
That breathes upon a bank of violets,
Stealing, and giving odour.—Enough; no
more;

'Tis not so sweet now, as it was before.
O spirit of love, how quick and fresh art thou!
That notwithstanding thy capacity
Receiveth as the sea, nought enters there,
Of what validity* and pitch soever,
But falls into abatement and low price,
Even in a minute! so full of shapes is fancy,
That it alone is high-fantastical.†

Cur. Will you go hunt, my lord?

Duke. What, Curio?

Cur. The hart.

Duke. Why, so I do, the noblest that I have:
O, when mine eyes did see Olivia first,
Methought, she purg'd the air of pestilence;
That instant was I turn'd into a hart;
And my desires, like fell and cruel hounds,
E'er since pursue me.—How now? what news
from her?

Enter VALENTINE.

Val. So please my lord, I might not be admitted,
But from her handmaid do return this answer:
The element itself, till seven years heat,‡
Shall not behold her face at ample view;

But, like a cloistress, she will veiled walk,
And water once a day her chamber round
With eye-offending brine: all this, to season
A brother's dead love, which she would keep
And lasting, in her sad remembrance. [fresh, Duke. O, she, that hath a heart of that fine frame,

To pay this debt of love but to a brother,
How will she love, when the rich golden shaft,
Hath kill'd the flock of all affections else
That live in her! when liver, brain, and heart,
These sovereign thrones, are all supplied, and fill'd,

(Her sweet perfections,) with one self king!—
Away before me to sweet beds of flowers;
Love-thoughts lie rich, when canopied with bowers. [Exeunt.

SCENE II.—The Sea Coast.

Enter VIOLA, CAPTAIN, and Sailors.

Vio. What country, friends, is this?

Cap. Illyria, lady.

Vio. And what should I do in Illyria?

My brother he is in Elysium.

Perchance, he is not drown'd:—What think you, sailors?

Cap. It is perchance, that you yourself were saved.

Vio. O my poor brother! and so, perchance, may he be.

Cap. True, madam: and, to comfort you with chance,

Assure yourself, after our ship did split,
When you, and that poor number saved with
you,

Hung on our driving boat, I saw your brother,
Most provident in peril, bind himself

(Courage and hope both teaching him the practice)

To a strong mast, that lived upon the sea,
Where, like Arion on the dolphin's back,

TH NIGHT; OR, WHAT YOU WILL. [ACT I

with the waves,
ld
my hope,
authority,
this country?
was bred and
very place.

my father name (him:

month
'twas fresh
great ones do,
did seek daughter of a [ing her ce, then leav-

brother,
dear love,
company

the world,
sion mellow,

ass;
of suit,

in thee, cap-

beauteous wall
at thee
that suits character.

ounteously,
my aid
all become ve this duke;
much to him,
I can sing,
of music,
his service.
I'll commit;
my wit.

your mute I'll [see!
t mine eyes not
on. [Exeunt.

AVIA'S House.

d MARIA.

is my niece, to us? I am sure,

u must come in my lady, takes

rs.
fore excepted.
onfine yourself

myself no finer and enough to too; an they
s in their own

king will undo

you: I heard my lady talk of it yesterday; and
of a foolish knight, that you brought in one night here, to be her wooer.

Sir To. Who? Sir Andrew Ague-cheek?

Mar. Ay, he.

Sir To. He's as tall* a man as any's in Illyria.

Mar. What's that to the purpose?

Sir To. Why, he has three thousand ducats
a year.

Mar. Aye, but he'll have but a year in all these ducats; he's a very fool, and a prodigal.

Sir To. Fye, that you'll say so! he plays o'
the viol-de-gambo, and speaks three or four languages word for word without book, and hath all the good gifts of nature.

Mar. He hath, indeed,—almost natural: for,
besides that he's a fool, he's a great quarreller;
and, but that he hath the gift of a coward to allay the gust he hath in quarrelling, 'tis thought among the prudent, he would quickly have the gift of a grave.

Sir To. By this hand, they are scoundrels, and substractors, that say so of him. Who are they?

Mar. They that add moreover, he's drunk nightly in your company.

Sir To. With drinking healths to my niece;
I'll drink to her, as long as there is a passage
in my throat, and drink in Illyria: He's a coward and a coystil,† that will not drink to my niece, till his brains turn o' the toe like a parish-top. What, wench? Castiliano vulgo;
for here comes Sir Andrew Ague-face.

Enter Sir ANDREW AGUE-CHEEK.

Sir And. Sir Toby Belch! how now, Sir Toby Belch?

Sir To. Sweet Sir Andrew!

Sir And. Bless you, fair shrew.

Mar. And you too, Sir.

Sir To. Accost, Sir Andrew, accost.

Sir And. What's that?

Sir To. My niece's chamber-maid.

Sir And. Good mistress Accost, I desire better acquaintance.

Mar. My name is Mary, Sir.

Sir And. Good mistress Mary Accost,—

Sir To. You mistake, knight: accost, is, front her, board her, woo her, assail her.

Sir And. By my troth, I would not undertake her in this company. Is that the meaning of accost?

Mar. Fare you well, gentlemen.

Sir To. An thou let part so, Sir Andrew
'would you might'st never draw sword again.

Sir And. An you part so, mistress, I would I might never draw sword again. Fair lady do you think you have fools in hand?

Mar. Sir, I have not you by the hand.

Sir And. Marry, but you shall have; an here's my hand.

Mar. Now, Sir, thought is free: I pray you bring your hand to the buttery-bar, and let drink.

Sir And. Wherefore sweet heart? what your metaphor?

Mar. It's dry, Sir.

Sir And. Why, I think so; I am not such a ass, but I can keep my hand dry. But what your jest?

Mar. A dry jest, Sir.

Sir And. Are you full of them?

Mar. Ay, Sir; I have them at my finger ends: marry, now I let go your hand, I'm barren. [Exit Mar.

* Stout.

† Keystil, a bastard hawk.

Sir To. O knight, thou lack'st a cup of canary. When did I see thee so put down?

Sir And. Never in your life, I think; unless you see canary put me down: Methinks, sometimes I have no more wit than a Christian, or an ordinary man has: but I am a great eater of beef, and, I believe, that does harm to my wit.

Sir To. No question.

Sir And. An I thought that, I'd forswear it. I'll ride home to-morrow, Sir Toby.

Sir To. Pourquoy, my dear knight?

Sir And. What is pourquoy? do or not do? I would I had bestowed that time in the tongues, that I have in fencing, dancing, and bear-baiting. O, had I but followed the arts!

Sir To. Then hadst thou had an excellent head of hair.

Sir And. Why, would that have mended my hair?

Sir To. Past question; for thou seest, it will not curl by nature.

Sir And. But it becomes me well enough, does't not?

Sir To. Excellent; it hang's like flax on a distaff, and I hope to see a housewife take thee between her legs, and spin it off.

Sir And. Faith, I'll home to-morrow, Sir Toby: your niece will not be seen; or, if she be, it's four to one she'll none of me: the count himself, here hard by, woos her.

Sir To. She'll none o' the count; she'll not match above her degree, neither in estate, years, nor wit; I have heard her swear it. Tut, there's life in't, man.

Sir And. I'll stay a month longer. I am a fellow o' the strangest mind i' the world; I delight in masques and revels sometimes altogether.

Sir To. Art thou good at these kick-shaws, knight?

Sir And. As any man in Illyria, whatsoever be he, under the degree of my betters; and yet I will not compare with an old man.

Sir To. What is thy excellence in a galliard, knight?

Sir And. Faith, I can cut a caper.

Sir To. And I can cut the mutton to't.

Sir And. And, I think, I have the back-trick, simply as strong as any man in Illyria.

Sir To. Wherefore are these things hid? wherefore have these gifts a curtain before them? are they like to take dust, like mistress Mall's picture? why dost thou not go to church in a galliard, and come home in a coranto? My very walk should be a jig; I would not so much as make water, but in a sink-a-pace.* What dost thou mean? is it a world to hide virtues in? I did think, by the excellent constitution of thy leg, it was formed under the star of a galliard.

Sir And. Ay, 'tis strong, and it does indifferently well in a flame-coloured stock.† Shall we set about some revels?

Sir To. What shall we do else? were we not born under Taurus?

Sir And. Taurus? that's sides and heart.

Sir To. No, Sir; it is legs and thighs. Let me see thee caper: ha! higher: ha, ha! — excellent! [Exeunt.]

SCENE IV.—A Room in the Duke's Palace.

Enter VALENTINE, and VIOLA in man's attire.

Val. If the duke continue these favours towards you, Cesario, you are like to be much advanced; he hath known you but three days, and already you are no stranger.

Vio. You either fear his humour, or my negligence, that you call in question the continuance of his love. Is he inconstant, Sir, in his favours?

Val. No, believe me.

Enter DUKE, CURIO, and Attendants.

Vio. I thank you. Here comes the count.

Duke. Who saw Cesario, ho?

Vio. On your attendances, my lord; here.

Duke. Stand you awhile aloof. — Cesario, Thou know'st no less but all, I have unclasp'd To thee the book even of my secret soul: Therefore, good youth, address thy gait* unto her;

Be not denied access, stand at her doors, And tell them, there thy fixed foot shall grow, Till thou have audience.

Vio. Sure, my noble lord, If she be so abandon'd to her sorrow As it is spoke, she never will admit me.

Duke. Be clamorous, and leap all civil bounds. Rather than make unprofitable returns.

Vio. Say, I do speak with her, my lord; What then?

Duke. O, then unfold the passion of my love, Surprise her with discourse of my dear faith: It shall become thee well to act my woes; She will attend it better in thy youth, Than in a nuncio of more grave aspect.

Vio. I think not so, my lord.

Duke. Dear lad, believe it, For they shall yet belie thy happy years That say, thou art a man. Diana's lip Is not more smooth, and rubious; thy small pipe

Is as the maiden's organ, shrill, and sound, And all is semblative a woman's part. I know, thy constellation is right apt For this affair: — Some four, or five, attend him, All, if you will, for I myself am best, When least in company: — Prosper well in this, And thou shalt live as freely as thy lord, To call his fortunes thine.

Vio. I'll do my best, To woo your lady. yet, [Aside.] a barful† strife! Whoe'er I woo, myself would be his wife. [Exeunt.]

SCENE V.—A Room in OLIVIA'S House.

Enter MARIA, and CLOWN.

Mar. Nay, either tell me where thou hast been, or I will not open my lips, so wide as a bristle may enter, in way of thy excuse. My lady will hang thee for thy absence.

Clo. Let her hang me: he, that is well hunged in this world, needs to fear no colours.

Mar. Make that good.

Clo. He shall see none to fear.

Mar. A good lenten‡ answer: I can tell thee where that saying was born, of, I fear no colours.

Clo. Where, good mistress Mary?

Mar. In the wars; and that may you be bold to say in your foolery.

Clo. Well, God give them wisdom, that have it; and those that are fools, let them use their talents.

Mar. Yet you will be hang'd, for being so long absent: or, to be turn'd away; is not that as good as a hanging to you?

* Go thy way.

• Caper, pass, the name of a dance.

† Stocking

‡ Full of impediments.

‡ Short and spare.

THE NIGHT; OR, WHAT YOU WILL. [ACT I.]

prevents a bad
day, let summer
am resolved on
other will hold;
fall.
apt! Well, go
leave drinking,
e's flesh as any more o' that;
excuse wisely,
[Exit.

MALVOLIO.
put me into good
they have thee,
that am sure I man: For what itty fool, than a lady!
s? Take away
I'll no more of
ust.
that drink and give the dry fool
had the dishon-
mend, he is no
let the botcher
mended, is but sses, is but patamends, is but his simple syllo-ent, What rem-
but calamity,
ade take away
take her away.
ay you.
degree!—Lady,
that's as much as y brain. Good ve you a fool.

onna.
or it, madonna;
wer me.
other idleness,
ourn't thou?
er's death.
e I, madonna.
eaven, fool.
onna, to mourn
u heaven.—Take fool, Malvolio?

all the pangs of that decays the er fool.
speedy infirmity,
olly! Sir Toby ox; but he will nce that you are Malvolio?
takes delight in im put down the fool, that has no

the hose or beeches.
me.

more brain than a stone. Look you now, he's out of his guard already; unless you laugh and minister occasion to him, he is gagged, I protest, I take these wise men, that crow so at these set kind of fools, no better than the fools' zanies."

Oli. O, you are sick of self-love, Malvolio, and taste with a distempered appetite. To be generous, guiltless, and of free disposition, is to take those things for bird-bolts,† that you deem cannon-bullets: There is no slander in an allowed fool, though he do nothing but rail; nor no railing in a known discreet man, though he do nothing but reprove.

Clo. Now Mercury endue thee with leasing,‡ for thou speakest well of fools!

Re-enter MARIA.

Mar. Madam, there is at the gate a young gentleman, much desires to speak with you.

Oli. From the count Orsino, is it?

Mar. I know not, madam; 'tis a fair young man, and well attended.

Oli. Who of my people hold him in delay?

Mar. Sir Toby, madam, your kinsman.

Oli. Fetch him off, I pray you; he speaks nothing but madman: Fye on him! [Exit MARIA.] Go you, Malvolio; if it be a suit from the count, I am sick, or not at home; what you will, to dismiss it. [Exit MALVOLIO.] Now you see, Sir, how your fooling grows old, and people dislike it.

Clo. Thou hast spoke for us, madonna, as if thy eldest son should be a fool: whose skull Jove cram with brains, for here he comes, one of thy kin, has a most weak pis mater.§

Enter Sir TOBY BELCH.

Oli. By mine honour, half drunk.—What is he at the gate, cousin?

Sir To. A gentleman.

Oli. A gentleman? What gentleman?

Sir To. 'Tis a gentleman here—A plague o' these pickle-herrings!—How now, sot?

Clo. Good Sir Toby,—

Oli. Cousin, cousin, how have you come so early by this lethargy?

Sir To. Lechery! I defy lechery: There's one at the gate.

Oli. Ay, marry; what is he?

Sir To. Let him be the devil, an he will, I care not: give me faith, say I. Well, it's all one. [Exit.

Oli. What's a drunken man like, fool?

Clo. Like a drown'd man, a fool, and a madman: one draught above heat makes him a fool; the second mads him; and a third drowns him.

Oli. Go thou and seek the coroner, and let him sit o' my coz; for he's in the third degree of drink, he's drown'd: go look after him.

Clo. He is but mad yet, madonna; and the fool shall look to the madman. [Exit CLOWN.]

Re-enter MALVOLIO.

Mal. Madam, yond young fellow swears he will speak with you. I told him you were sick; he takes on him to understand so much, and therefore comes to speak with you: I told him you were asleep; he seems to have a fore-knowledge of that too, and therefore comes to speak with you. What is to be said to him, lady? he's fortified against any denial.

Oli. Tell him, he shall not speak with me.

* Fools' baubles. † Short arrows. ‡ Lying.
§ The cover of the brain.

Mal. He has been told so; and he says, he'll stand at your door like a sheriff's post, and be the supporter of a bench, but he'll speak with you.

Ob. What kind of man is he?

Mal. Why, of man kind.

Ob. What manner of man?

Mal. Of very ill manner; he'll speak with you, will you, or no.

Ob. Of what personage, and years, is he?

Mal. Not yet old enough for a man, nor young enough for a boy; as a squash is before he a pease-cod, or a codling when 'tis almost an apple. 'Tis with him e'en standing water, between boy and man. He is very well-favour'd, and he speaks very shrewishly; one would think, his mother's milk were scarce out of him.

Ob. Let him approach: Call in my gentlewoman.

Mal. Gentlewoman, my lady calls. [Exit.]

Re-enter MARIA.

Ob. Give me my veil: come, throw it o'er my face;
We'll once more hear Orsino's embassy.

Enter VIOLA.

Vi. The honourable lady of the house, which is she?

Ob. Speak to me, I shall answer for her. Your will?

Vi. Most radiant, exquisite, and unmatchable beauty,—I pray you, tell me, if this be the lady of the house, for I never saw her. I would be loath to cast away my speech, for, besides that it is excellently well penn'd, I have taken great pains to con it. Good beauties, let me sustain no scorn: I am very comptible,* even to the least sinister usage.

Ob. Whence came you, Sir?

Vi. I can say little more than I have studied, and that question's out of my part. Good gentle one, give me modest assurance, if you be the lady of the house, that I may proceed in my speech.

Ob. Are you a comedian?

Vi. No, my profound heart: and yet, by the very fangs of malice, I swear, I am not that I play. Are you the lady of the house?

Ob. If I do not usurp myself, I am.

Vi. Most certain, if you are she, you do usurp yourself; for what is yours to bestow, is not yours to reserve. But this is from my commission: I will on with my speech in your praise, and then show you the heart of my message.

Ob. Come to what is important in't: I forgive you the praise.

Vi. Alas, I took great pains to study it, and 'tis poetical.

Ob. It is the more likely to be feigned; I pray you, keep it in. I heard, you were saucy at my gates; and allowed your approach, rather to wonder at you than to hear you. If you be not mad, be gone; if you have reason, be brief: 'tis not that time of moon with me, to make one in so skipping a dialogue.

Ob. Will you hoist sail, Sir? here lies your way.

Vi. No, good swabber: I am to hull here a while longer.—Some mollification for your guest, sweet lady.

Ob. Tell me your mind.

Vi. I am a messenger.

Ob. Sure, you have some hideous matter to deliver, when the courtesy of it is so fearful. Speak your office.

Vi. It alone concerns your ear. I bring no overture of war, no taxation of homage; I hold the olive in my hand: my words are as full of peace as matter.

Ob. Yet you began rudely. What are you? what would you?

Vi. The rudeness, that hath appear'd in me, have I learn'd from my entertainment. What I am, and what I would, are as secret as maidenhead: to your ears, divinity; to any other's, profanation.

Ob. Give us the place alone: we will hear this divinity. [Exit MARIA.] Now, Sir, what is your text?

Vi. Most sweet lady,—

Ob. A comfortable doctrine, and much may be said of it. Where lies your text?

Vi. In Orsino's bosom.

Ob. In his bosom? In what chapter of his bosom?

Vi. To answer by the method, in the first of his heart.

Ob. O, I have read it; it is heresy. Have you no more to say?

Vi. Good madam, let me see your face.

Ob. Have you any commission from your lord to negotiate with my face? you are now out of your text: but we will draw the curtain, and show you the picture. Look you, Sir, such a one as I was this present:† is't not well done? [Unveiling.]

Vi. Excellently done, if God did all.

Ob. 'Tis in grain, Sir; 'twill endure wind and weather.

Vi. 'Tis beauty truly blent,‡ whose red and white

Nature's own sweet and cunning hand laid on: Lady, you are the cruel'st she alive, If you will lead these graces to the grave, And leave the world no copy.

Ob. O, Sir, I will not be so hard-hearted; I will give out divers schedules of my beauty: It shall be inventori'd, and every particle, and utensil, labelled to my will: as, item, two lips indifferent red; item, two grey eyes, with lids to them; item, one neck, one chin, and so forth. Were you sent hither to 'praise me?

Vi. I see you what you are: you are too proud;

But, if you were the devil, you are fair. My lord and master loves you; O, such love Could be but recompens'd, though you were The nonpareil of beauty! {crown'd

Ob. How does he love me?

Vi. With adorations, with fertile tears, With groans that thunder love, with sighs of fire.

Ob. Your lord does know my mind, I cannot love him:

Yet I suppose him virtuous, know him noble, Of great estate, of fresh and stainless youth; In voices well divulg'd,‡ free, learn'd, and valiant,

And, in dimension, and the shape of nature, A gracious person: but yet I cannot love him; He might have took his answer long ago.

Vi. If I did love you in my master's flame, With such a suffering, such a deadly life, In your denial I would find no sense, I would not understand it.

* Accountable.

† It appears from several parts of this play that the original version of Maria was very short.

‡ Presents.

† Blended, mixed together.

‡ Well spoken of by the world.

Oli. Why, what would you?

Vio. Make me a willow cabin at your gate,
And call upon my soul within the house;
Write loyal cantons* of contemned love,
And sing them loud even in the dead of night;
Holla your name to the reverberate hills,
And make the babbling gossip of the air
Cry out, Olivia! O, you should not rest Between the elements of air and earth,
But you should pity me.

Oli. You might do much: What is your parentage?

Vio. Above my fortunes, yet my state is well:
I am a gentleman.

Oli. Get you to your lord;
I cannot love him: let him send no more;
Unless, perchance, you come to me again,
To tell me how he takes it. Fare you well:
I thank you for your pains: spend this for me.

Vio. I am no fee'd post,† lady; keep your purse;
My master, not myself, lacks recompense.
Love make his heart of flint, that you shall love;
And let your fervour, like my master's, be Plac'd in contempt! Farewell, fair cruelty.
[Exit.

Oli. What is your parentage?
*Above my fortunes, yet my state is well:
I am a gentleman.*—I'll be sworn thou art;
Thy tongue, thy face, thy limbs, actions, and
spirit,
Do give thee five-fold blazon:‡—Not too fast:—
soft! soft!
Unless the master were the man.—How now?
Even so quickly may one catch the plague?
Methinks, I feel this youth's perfections,
With an invisible and subtle stealth,
To creep in at mine eyes. Well, let it be.—
What, ho, Malvolio!—

Re-enter MALVOLIO.

Mal. Here, madam, at your service.

Oli. Run after that same peevish messenger,
The county's§ man: he left this ring behind him,
Would I, or not; tell him, I'll none of it.
Desire him not to flatter with his lord,
Nor hold him up with hopes; I am not for him:
If that the youth will come this way to-morrow,
I'll give him reasons for't. Hie thee, Malvolio.

Mal. Madam, I will. [Exit.

Oli. I do I know not what: and fear to find Mine eye too great a flatterer for my mind.
Fate, show thy force: Ourselves we do not owe;¶

What is decreed, must be; and be this so!
[Exit.

ACT II.

SCENE I.—The Sea-coast.

Enter ANTONIO and SEBASTIAN.

Ant. Will you stay no longer? nor will you not, that I go with you?

Seb. By your patience, no: my stars shine darkly over me; the malignancy of my fate might, perhaps, distemper yours; therefore I shall crave of you your leave, that I may bear
my evils alone: It were a bad recompense for your love to lay any of them on you.

Ant. Let me yet know of you, whither you are bound.

Seb. No, 'sooth, Sir; my determinate voyage is mere extravagancy. But I perceive in you so excellent a touch of modesty, that you will not extort from me what I am willing to keep in; therefore it charges me in manners the rather to express* myself. You must know of me then, Antonio, my name is Sebastian, which I called Rodorigo; my father was that Sebastian of Messaline, whom, I know, you have heard of: he left behind him, myself, and a sister, both born in an hour. If the heavens had been pleased, 'would we had so ended! but,

you, Sir, altered that; for, some hour before you took me from the breach of the sea, was my sister drowned.

Ant. Alas, the day!

Seb. A lady, Sir, though it was said she much resembled me, was yet of many accounted beautiful: but, though I could not, with such estimable wonder, overfar believe that, yet thus far I will boldly publish her, she bore a mind that envy could not but call fair: she is drowned already, Sir, with salt water, though I seem to drown her remembrance again with
more.

Ant. Pardon me, Sir, your bad entertain-
ment.

Seb. O, good Antonio, forgive me your trouble.

Ant. If you will not murder me for my love, let me be your servant.

Seb. If you will not undo what you have done,
that is, kill him whom you have recovered, desire it not. Fare ye well at once: my bosom is full of kindness; and I am yet so near the manners of my mother, that upon the least occasion more, mine eyes will tell tales of me. I am bound to the count Orsino's court: farewell. [Exit.

Ant. The gentleness of all the gods go with
thee!

I have many enemies in Orsino's court,
Else would I very shortly see thee there:
But come what may, I do adore thee so,
That danger shall seem sport, and I will go.
[Exit.

SCENE II.—A Street.

Enter VIOLA; MALVOLIO following.

Mal. Were not you even now with the countess Olivia?

Vio. Even now, Sir; on a moderate pace I have since arrived but hither.

Mal. She returns this ring to you, Sir; you might have saved me my pains, to have taken it away yourself. She adds moreover, that you should put your lord into a desperate assurance she will none of him: And one thing
more; that you be never so hardly to come again in his affairs, unless it be to report your lord's taking of this. Receive it so.

Vio. She took the ring of me; I'll none of it.

Mal. Come, Sir, you peevishly threw it to her; and her will is, it should be so returned:
if it be worth stooping for, there it lies in your eye; if not, be it his that finds it. [Exit.

Vio. I left no ring with her: What means this lady? [her]

Fortune forbid, my outside have not charm'd
She made good view of me; indeed, so much.
That, sure, methought, her eyes had lost her
tongue,

For she did speak in starts distractedly.
She loves me, sure; the cunning of her passion
Invites me in this churlish messenger.
None of my lord's ring! why, he sent her none
I am the man;—If it be so, (as 'tis,) [Reveal

* Cantos, verses.

† Messenger.

‡ Count.

§ Echoing.

¶ Proclamation of gentility.

‡ Own, possess.

Poor lady, she were better love a dream.
Disguise, I see, thou art a wickedness,
Wherein the pregnant * enemy does much.
How easy is it, for the proper-false !
In women's waten hearts to set their forms !
Alas, our frailty is the cause not we ;
For, such as we are made of, such we be.
How will this fudge ? My master loves her dearly ;

And I, poor monster, fond as much on him ;
And she, mistaken, seems to dote on me :
What will become of this ! As I am man,
My state is desperate for my master's love ;
As I am woman, now alas the day !
What thriftless sighs shall poor Olivia breathe ?
O time, thou must untangle this, not I ;
It is too hard a knot for me to untie. [Exit.]

SCENE III.—A Room in OLIVIA'S House.

Enter Sir TOBY BELCH, and Sir ANDREW AGUE-CHEEK.

Sir To. Approach, Sir Andrew : not to be a-bed after midnight, is to be up betimes ; and dilecto surgere, thou know'st,——

Sir And. Nay, by my troth, I know not : but I know, to be up late, is to be up late.

Sir To. A false conclusion ; I hate it as an unfilled can : To be up after midnight, and to go to bed then, is early ; so that, to go to bed
after midnight, is to go to bed betimes. Do not our lives consist of the four elements ?

Sir And. Faith, as they say ; but, I think,
it rather consists of eating and drinking.

Sir To. Thou art a scholar ; let us therefore eat and drink.—Marian, I say !—a stoop of wine !

Enter CLOWN.

Sir And. Here comes the fool, i' faith.

Cl. How now, my hearts ? Did you never see the picture of us three ?

Sir To. Welcome, ass. Now let's have a catch.

Sir And. By my troth, the fool has an excellent breast. I had rather than forty shillings had such a leg ; and so sweet a breath to smell, as the fool has. In sooth, thou wast in very gracious fooling last night, when thou spokest of Picrogramitus, of the Vapians passing the equinoctial of Quesubus ; 'twas very good, i' faith. I sent thee sixpence for thy lemon. Hadst it ?

Cl. I did impetuous thy gratility ;  for Mal-volio's nose is no whipstock : My lady has a white hand, and the Myrmidons are no bottle-able houses.

Sir And. Excellent ; Why, this is the best fooling, when all is done. Now, a song.

Sir To. Come on ; there is sixpence for you :
let's have a song.

Sir And. There's a testril of me too : if one might give a——

Cl. Would you have a love-song, or a song of good life ?

Sir To. A love-song, a love-song.

Sir And. Ay, ay ; I care not for good life.

SONG.

Cl. O mistress mine, where are you roaming ?
O, stay and hear ; your true love's coming,
That can sing both high and low :
Trip no further, pretty sweeting ;
Journeys end in lovers' meeting,
Every wise man's son doth know.

* Dextrous, ready hand. † False deceiver. ‡ Suit.
§ Legermaine is. || Voice. ¶ Mistress.
 I did impetuous thy gratuity.

Sir And. Excellent good, i' faith !

Sir To. Good, good.

Cl. What is love ? * do not hereafter ;
Present mirth hath present laughter ;
What's to come, is still unsure :
In delay there lies no plenty ;
Then come kiss me sweet-and-twenty,
Youth's a stuff will not endure.

Sir And. A mellifluous voice, as I am true
knight.

Sir To. A contagious breath.

Sir And. Very sweet and contagious, i' faith.

Sir To. To hear by the nose, it is dulcet in contagion. But shall we make the walking dance * indeed ? Shall we rouse the night-owl in a catch, that will draw three souls out of one weaver ? shall we do that ?

Sir And. An you love me, let's do't : I am dog at a catch.

Cl. By'r lady, Sir, and some dogs will catch
well.

Sir And. Most certain : let our catch be, Thou knavest.

Cl. Hold thy peace, thou knave, knight ! I shall be constrain'd i't to call thee knave,
knight.

Sir And. 'Tis not the first time I have con-strain'd one to call me knave. Begin, fool ; it begins, Hold thy peace.

Cl. I shall never begin, if I hold my peace.

Sir And. Good, i' faith ! Come, begin.

[They sing a catch.

Enter MARIA.

Mar. What a catterwauling do you keep here ! If my lady have not called up her steward, Malvolio, and bid him turn you out of doors, never trust me.

Sir To. My lady's a Cataian, † we are politicians ; Malvolio's a Peg-a-Ramsey, ‡ and Three merry men we be. Am not I consanguneous ? am I not of her blood ? Tilly-valley, § lady ! There dwelt a man in Babylon, lady, lady !
[Singing.]

Cl. Beshrew me, the knight's in admirable fooling.

Sir And. Ay, he does well enough, if he be disposed, and so do I too ; he does it with a better grace, but I do it more natural.

Sir To. O, the twelfth day of December,——

[Singing.]

Mar. For the love of God, peace.

Enter MALVOLIO.

Mal. My masters, are you mad ? or what are you ? Have you no wit, manners, nor honesty, but to gabble like tinkers at this time of night ?
Do ye make an alehouse of my lady's house,
that ye squeak out your coziers || catches without any mitigation or remorse of voice ? Is there no respect of place, persons, nor time, in you ?

Sir To. We did keep time, Sir, in our catches. Sneak up ! ¶

Mal. Sir Toby, I must be round with you.
My lady bade me tell you, that, though she harbours you as her kinsman, she's nothing allied to your disorders. If you can separate yourself and your misdemeanors, you are welcome to the house ; if not, an it would please you to take leave of her, she is very willing to bid you farewell.

Sir To. Farewell, dear heart, since I must needs
be gone.

Mar. Nay, good Sir Toby.

* Drink till the sky turns round. † Romance.

‡ Name of an old song.

§ Equivalent to tilly-folly, shilly-shally.

|| Coblers.

¶ Hang yourself.

THE NIGHT; OR, WHAT YOU WILL. [ACT II.]

are almost done.

you.

[Singing.

and spare not?

re not.

he.—Art any thou think, be-shall be no more

and ginger shall

Go, Sir, rub
stoop of wine,

prized my lady's contempt, you uncivil rule;†
and. [Exit.

ed as to drink
lunge him to the se with him, and

rate thee a chal-
nation to him by

ant for to-night;
was to-day with
out. For month him: if I do and make him
ank I have wit-ed: I know, I

as; tell us some-

he is a kind of t, I'd beat him

uritan† thy ex-

reason for't, but

at he is, or any ear; an affec-
out book, and best persuaded inks, with ex-
of faith, that
and on that notable cause

some obscure colour of his manner of his forehead, and most feeling-
like my lady
we can hard-device.

he letters that
from my niece,

horse of that

† Method of M^r.
Affected

Sir And. And your horse now would make him an ass.

Mar. Ass, I doubt not.

Sir And. O, 'twill be admirable.

Mar. Sport royal, I warrant you: I know, my physic will work with him. I will plant you two, and let the fool make a third, where he shall find the letter; observe his construction of it. For this night, to bed, and dream on the event. Farewell. [Exit.

Sir To. Good night, Penthesilea.*

Sir And. Before me, she's a good wench.

Sir To. She's a beagle, true-bred, and one that adores me; What o' that?

Sir And. I was adored once too.

Sir To. Let's to bed, knight.—Thou hadst need send for more money.

Sir And. If I cannot recover your niece, I am a foul way out.

Sir To. Send for money, knight; if thou hast her not i'the end, call me Cut.†

Sir And. If I do not, never trust me, take it how you will.

Sir To. Come, come; I'll go burn some sack,
'tis too late to go to bed now: come, knight;
come, knight. [Exeunt.

SCENE IV.—A Room in the DUKE's Palace.

Enter DUKE, VIOLA, CURIO, and others.

Duke. Give me some music:—Now, good morrow, friends:—

Now, good Cesario, but that piece of song,
That old and antique song we heard last night;
Methought, it did relieve my passion much;
More than light airs and recollected terms,
Of these most brisk and giddy-paced times:—
Come, but one verse.

Cur. He is not here, so please your lordship, that should sing it.

Duke. Who was it?

Cur. Febo, the jester, my lord; a fool, that the lady Olivia's father took much delight in:
he is about the house.

Duke. Seek him out, and play the tune the while. [Exit CURIO.—Music.

Come hither, boy; If ever thou shalt love,
In the sweet pangs of it, remember me:
For, such as I am, all true lovers are;
Unstaid and skittish in all motions else,
Save, in the constant image of the creature
That is belov'd.—How dost thou like this tune?

Vio. It gives a very echo to the seat
Where Love is thron'd.

Duke. Thou dost speak masterly: [eye
My life upon't, young though thou art, thine
Hath stay'd upon some favour; that it loves;
Hath it not, boy?

Vio. A little, by your favour.

Duke. What kind of woman is't?

Vio. Of your complexion.

Duke. She is not worth thee then. What years, i'faith?

Vio. About your years, my lord.

Duke. Too old, by heaven; Let still the woman take

An elder than herself; so wears she to him,
So sways she level in her husband's heart.
For, boy, however we do praise ourselves,
Our fancies are more giddy and unfirm,
More longing, wavering, sooner lost and worn,
Than women's are.

Vio. I think it well, my lord.

Duke. Then let thy love be younger than thyself,

Or thy affection cannot hold the bent:

* Amazon.

† Horse.

‡ Courtship.

For women are as roses ; whose fair flower,
Being once display'd, doth fall that very hour.

Vio. And so they are : alas, that they are so ;
To die, even when they to perfection grow !

Re-enter CURIO, and CLOWN.

Duke. O fellow, come, the song we had last night :—

Mark it, Curio ; it is old, and plain :
The spinsters and the knitters in the sun,
And the free maids, that weave their thread
with bones,*

Do use to chaunt it ; it is silly sooth,†
And dallies with the innocence of love,
Like the old age.‡

Cla. Are you ready, Sir ?

Duke. Ay ; pr'ythee, sing.

[Music.

Song.

Cla. Come away, come away, death,
And in sad cypress let me be laid ;
Fly away, fly away, breath ;
I am slain by a fair cruel maid.
My shroud of white, stuck all with yew,
O, prepare it ;
My part of death no one so true
Did share it.

Not a flower, not a flower sweet,
On my black coffin let there be strown ;
Not a friend, not a friend greet
My poor corpse, where my bones shall be thrown :
A thousand thousand sighs to save,
Lay me, O, where
Sad true lover ne'er find my grave,
To weep there.

Duke. There's for thy pains.

Cla. No pains, Sir ; I take pleasure in singing, Sir.

Duke. I'll pay thy pleasure then.

Cla. Truly, Sir, and pleasure will be paid,
one time or another.

Duke. Give me now leave to leave thee.

Cla. Now, the melancholy god protect thee ;
and the tailor make thy doublet of changeable taffeta, for thy mind is a very opal.§—I would have men of such constancy put to sea, that their business might be every thing, and their intent every where ; for that's it, that always makes a good voyage of nothing.—Farewell.

[Exit CLOWN.

Duke. Let all the rest give place.—

[Excunt CURIO and Attendants.

Once more, Cesario,
Get thee to yon' same sovereign cruelty :
Tell her, my love, more noble than the world,
Prizes not quantity of dirty lands ;
The parts that fortune hath bestow'd upon her,
Tell her, I hold as giddily as fortune ;
But 'tis that miracle, and queen of gems,
That nature pranks|| her in, attracts my soul.

Vio. But, if she cannot love you, Sir ?

Duke. I cannot be so answer'd.

Vio. 'Sooth, but you must.

Say, that some lady, as, perhaps, there is,
Hath for your love as great a pang of heart
As you have for Olivia : you cannot love her ;
You tell her so ; Must she not then be answer'd ?

Duke. There is no woman's sides,
Can hide the beating of so strong a passion
As love doth give my heart : no woman's heart
So big, to hold so much ; they lack retention.
Alas, their love may be call'd appetite,—
No motion of the liver, but the palate,—

That suffer surfeit, cloyment, and revolt ;
But mine is all as hungry as the sea,
And can digest as much : make no compare
Between that love a woman can bear me,
And that I owe Olivia.

Vio. Ay, but I know,—

Duke. What dost thou know ?

Vio. Too well what love women to men may owe :

In faith, they are as true of heart as we.
My father had a daughter lov'd a man,
As it might be, perhaps, were I a woman,
I should your lordship.

Duke. And what's her history ?

Vio. A blank, my lord : She never told her
love,

But let concealment, like a worm i'the bud,
Feed on her damask cheek : she pin'd in
thought ;

And, with a green and yellow melancholy,
She sat like Patience on a monument,
Smiling at grief. Was not this love, indeed ?
We men may say more, swear more : but, indeed,

[prove
Our shows are more than will ; for still we Much in our vows, but little in our love.

Duke. But died thy sister of her love, my boy ?

Vio. I am all the daughters of my father's house,

[not :—
And all the brothers too ;—and yet I know
Sir, shall I to this lady ?

Duke. Ay, that's the theme.
To her in haste ; give her this jewel ; say,
My love can give no place, bide no deny.*

[Excunt.

SCENE V.—OLIVIA'S Garden.

*Enter Sir TOBY BELCH, Sir ANDREW AGUE-
CHEEK, and FABIAN.*

Sir To. Come thy ways, Signior Fabian.

Fab. Nay, I'll come ; if I lose a scruple of this sport, let me be boiled to death with melancholy.

Sir To. Would'st thou not be glad to have the niggardly rascally sheep-biter come by some notable shame ?

Fab. I would exult, man : you know, he brought me out of favour with my lady, about a bear-baiting here.

Sir To. To anger him, we'll have the bear again ; and we will fool him black and blue :—
Shall we not, Sir Andrew ?

Sir And. An we do not, it is pity of our lives.

Enter MARIA.

Sir To. Here comes the little villain :—How now, my nettle of India ?

Mar. Get ye all three into the box-tree :
Malvolio's coming down this walk ; he has been yonder i'the sun, practising behaviour to his own shadow, this half hour : observe him, for the love of mockery ; for, I know, this letter will make a contemplative ideot of him.
Close, in the name of jesting ! [The men hide themselves.] Lie thou there ; [throws down a letter.] for here comes the trout that must be caught with tickling. [Exit MARIA.

Enter MALVOLIO.

Mal. 'Tis but fortune ; all is fortune. Maria once told me, she did affect me : and I have heard herself come thus near, that, should she fancy,† it should be one of my complexion.
Besides, she uses me with a more exalted re-

* Lace makers.

† Simple truth.

‡ Tunes of simplicity.

|| A precious stone of all colours. // Dricks.

* Denial.

† Love.

FIFTH NIGHT; OR, WHAT YOU WILL. [ACT II.]

follows her. What

ning rogue!
tion makes a rare
jets* under his beat the rogue:—

,

him.

, the lady of the
t the wardrobe.

deeply in; look,

onths married to

to hit him in the

about me, in my ng come from a sleeping:

humour of state:
regard,—telling ould they should man Toby:

e' now, now.

with an obedient rown the while;
watch, or play
ly approaches;

?

drawn from us

im thus, quench-

ustere regard of

take you a blow

in fortunes having

this prerogative of drunkenness.

break the sinews

treasure of your

ant you.

or many do call

o we here?

ng up the letter.

ear the gin.

urt of humours

ny lady's hand:

s, and her T's;

at P's. It is, in and her T's:

en beloved, this,

y phrases!—By the impressure

ses to seal: 'tis

is be?

ff him up.

ouch.

Fab. Thus wins him, liver and all.

Mal. [Reads] Jove knows, I love:

But who?

Lips do not move,

No man must know.

No man must know.—What follows? the numbers altered!—No man must know:—If this should be thee, Malvolio?

Sir To. Marry, hang thee, brock!*

Mal. I may command, where I adore:

But silence, like a Lucrece knife,

With bloodless stroke my heart doth gore;

M, O, A, I, doth sway my life.

Fab. A fustian riddle!

Sir To. Excellent wench, say I.

Mal. M, O, A, I, doth sway my life.—Nay,
but first, let me see,—let me see,—let me see.

Fab. What a dish of poison has she dressed
him!

Sir To. And with what wing the stanniest checks; at it!

Mal. I may command where I adore. Why,
she may command me; I serve her, she is my lady. Why, this is evident to any formal capacity. There is no obstruction in this;—And the end,—What should that alphabetical position portend? if I could make that resemble something in me,—Softly!—M, O, A, I.—

Sir To. O, ay! make up that:—he is now at a cold scent.

Fab. Sowter† will cry upon't, for all this,
though it be as rank as a fox.

Mal. *M, Malvolio;—M,—why, that begins
my name.*

Fab. Did not I say, he would work it out?
the cur is excellent at faults.

Mal. M.—But then there is no consonancy
in the sequel; that suffers under probation: A should follow, but O does.

Fab. And O shall end, I hope.

Sir To. Ay, or I'll cudgel him, and make him cry, O.

Mal. And then I comes behind;

Fab. Ay, an you had any eye behind you,
you might see more detraction at your heels,
than fortunes before you.

Mal. M, O, A, I.—This simulation is not as the former:—and yet, to crush this a little, it would bow to me, for every one of these letters are in my name. Soft; here follows prose.—
*If this fall into thy hand, revoke. In my stars I am above thee; but be not afraid of greatness:
Some are born great, some achieve greatness, and some have greatness thrust upon them. Thy fates open their hands; let thy blood and spirit embrace them. And, to inure thyself to what thou art like to be, cast thy humble slough,|| and appear fresh.
Be opposite with a kinsman, surly with servants;
let thy tongue tang arguments of state; put thyself into the trick of singularity: She thus advises thee, that sighs for thee. Remember who commended thy yellow stockings; and wished to see thee ever cross-gartered: I say, remember. Go to; thou art made, if thou desirest to be so; if not,
let me see thee a steward still, the fellow of servants, and not worthy to touch fortune's fingers.
Farewell. She that would alter services with thee.*

The fortunate-unhappy.
Day-light and champion¶ discovers not more:
this is open. I will be proud, I will read politic authors, I will baffle Sir Toby, I will wash off gross acquaintance, I will be point-device, the very man. I do not now fool myself, to let imagination jade me; for every

* Badger.

† Hawk.

‡ Fly at it.

§ Name of a brand.

¶ Open country.

|| Skin of a snake.

 Utmost exactness.

reason excites to this, that my lady loves me. She did commend my yellow stockings of late; she did praise my leg being cross-gartered; and in this she manifests herself to my love, and with a kind of injunction, drives me to these habits of her liking. I thank my stars, I am happy. I will be strange, stout, in yellow stockings, and cross-gartered, even with the confusion of putting on. Jove, and my stars be praised!—Here is yet a postscript. Thou shalt not choose but know who I am. If thou entertainest my love, let it appear in thy smiling; thy smile becomes thee well: therefore in my presence still smile, dear my sweet, I pray thee. Jove, I thank thee—I will smile; I will do every thing that thou wilt have me. [Exit.]

Fab. I will not give my part of this sport for a pension of thousands to be paid from the treasury.

Sir To. I could marry this wench for this device.

Sir And. So could I too.

Sir To. And ask no other dowry with her, but such another jest.

Enter MARIA.

Sir And. Nor I neither.

Fab. Here comes my noble gull-catcher.

Sir To. Wilt thou set thy foot o' my neck?

Sir And. Or o' mine either?

Sir To. Shall I play my freedom at trayling,* and become thy bond-slave?

Sir And. I'faith, or I either.

Sir To. Why, thou hast put him in such a dream, that, when the image of it leaves him, he must run mad.

Mar. Nay, but say true; does it work upon him?

Sir To. Like aqua-vitæ with a midwife.

Mar. If you will then see the fruits of the plot, mark his first approach before my lady: he will come to her in yellow stockings, and in a colour she abhors, and cross-gartered, a fashion she detests; and he will smile upon her, which will now be so unsuitable to her disposition, being addicted to a melancholy as she is, that it cannot but turn him into a notable contempt. if you will see it, follow me.

Sir To. To the gates of Tartar, thou most excellent devil of wit!

Sir And. I'll make one too. [Exit.]

ACT III.

SCENE I.—OLIVIA'S Garden.

Enter VIOLA, and CLOWN with a tabor.

Vio. Save thee, friend, and thy music: Dost thou live by thy tabor?

Clo. No, Sir, I live by the church.

Vio. Art thou a churchman?

Clo. No such matter, Sir; I do live by the church; for I do live at my house, and my house doth stand by the church.

Vio. So thou may'st say, the king liest by a beggar, if a beggar dwell near him: or, the church stands by the tabor, if thy tabor stand by the church.

Clo. You have said, Sir.—To see this age!—A sentence is but a cheveril; glove to a good ear. How quickly the wrong side may be turned outward!

Vio. Nay, that's certain; they, that dally nicely with words, may quickly make them wanton.

Clo. I would therefore, my sister had had no name, Sir.

Vio. Why, man?

Clo. Why, Sir, her name's a word; and to dally with that word, might make my sister wanton: But, indeed, words are very rascals, since bonds disgraced them.

Vio. Thy reason, man?

Clo. Troth, Sir, I can yield you none without words; and words are grown so false, I am loath to prove reason with them.

Vio. I warrant, thou art a merry fellow, and carest for nothing.

Clo. Not so, Sir, I do care for something; but in my conscience, Sir, I do not care for you; if that be to care for nothing, Sir, I would it would make you invisible.

Vio. Art not thou the lady Olivia's fool?

Clo. No, indeed, Sir; the lady Olivia has no folly: she will keep no fool, Sir, till she be married; and fools are as like husbands, as pilchards are to herrings, the husband's the bigger; I am, indeed, not her fool, but her corrupter of words.

Vio. I saw thee late at the count Orsino's.

Clo. Foolery, Sir, does walk about the orb, like the sun; it shines every where. I would be sorry, Sir, but the fool should be as oft with your master, as with my mistress: I think, I saw your wisdom there.

Vio. Nay, an thou pass upon me, I'll no more with thee. Hold, there's expenses for thee.

Clo. Now Jove, in his next commodity of hair, send thee a beard!

Vio. By my troth, I'll tell thee; I am almost sick for one; though I would not have it grow on my chin. Is thy lady within?

Clo. Would not a pair of these have bred, Sir?

Vio. Yes, being kept together, and put to use.

Clo. I would play lord Pandarus* of Phrygia, Sir, to bring a Cressida to this Troilus.

Vio. I understand you, Sir; 'tis well begg'd.

Clo. The matter, I hope, is not great, Sir, begging but a beggar. Cressida was a beggar. My lady is within, Sir. I will construe to them whence you come, who you are, and what you would, are out of my welkin: I might say, element; but the word is over-worn. [Exit.]

Vio. This fellow's wise enough to play the fool;

And, to do that well, craves a kind of wit. He must observe their mood on whom he jests, The quality of persons, and the time; And, like the haggard,† check at every feather That comes before his eye. This is a practice, As full of labour as a wise man's art. For folly, that he wisely shows, is fit; But wise men, folly-fallen, quite taint their wit.

Enter SIR TOBY BELCH and SIR ANDREW AGUE-CHIEK.

Sir To. Save you, gentleman

Vio. And you, Sir.

Sir And. Dieu vous garde, monsieur.

Vio. Et vous aussi; votre serviteur.

Sir And. I hope, Sir, you are; and I am yours.

Sir To. Will you encounter the house? my niece is desirous you should enter, if your trade be to her.

Vio. I am bound to your niece, Sir. I mean, she is the list of my voyage.

* A boy's diversion story and trip. † Dulle. ‡ Kid.

* See the play of Troilus and Cressida. † A hawk not well trained. ‡ bounding, strutting.

THE NIGHT; OR, WHAT YOU WILL. [ACT III

put them to mo-

erstand me, Sir,
mean by bidding

to enter.
with gait and en-

MARIA.

lady, the heavens

the courtier! Razia

ce, lady, but to vouchsafed ear.
and vouchsafed:—

shut, and leave

NEW, and MARIA.

most humble

ant's name, fair

was never merry

d compliment:

Oursine, youth.

s must needs be servant, madam.

on him: for his

[me]

er than fill'd with

et your gentle

[thoughts]

ay you;

f him:

ther suit,

t that,

ech you: I did

u did here,

I abuse

ar me, you:

must I sit,

ful cunning,

rs: What might

at the stake,

uzzled thoughts

ink? To one of

ot a bosom,

hear you speak.

s a vulgar proof,

is time to smile

to be proud!

much the better

wolf?

[Clock strikes.

waste of time.—

I not have you:

is come to harper man:

on

f Step.

Vio. Then westward-hoe: [ship.
Grace, and good disposition 'tend your lady-
You'll nothing, madam, to my lord by me?

Oh. Stay:

I pr'ythee, tell me, what thou think'st of me.

Vio. That you do think, you are not what you are.

Oh. If I think so, I think the same of you.

Vio. Then think you right; I am not what I am.

Oh. I would, you were as I would have you

be!

Vio. Would it be better, madam, than I am,

I wish it might; for now I am your fool.

Oh. O, what a deal of scorn looks beautiful

In the contempt and anger of his lip!

A murd'rous guilt shows not itself more soon

Than love that would seem hid: love's night is noon.

Cesario, by the roses of the spring,

By maidhood, honour, truth, and every thing,

I love thee so, that maugre^o all thy pride,

Nor wit, nor reason, can my passion hide.

Do not extort thy reasons from this clause,

For, that I woo, thou therefore hast no cause:

But, rather, reason thus with reason fetter:

Love sought is good, but given unsought, is better.

Vio. By innocence I swear, and by my youth,

I have one heart, one bosom, and one truth,

And that no woman has; nor never none

Shall mistress be of it, save I alone.

And so adieu, good madam; never more

Will I my master's tears to you deplore.

Oh. Yet come again: for thou, perhaps,

may'st move

That heart, which now abhors, to like his love.

[Exeunt.

SCENE II.—A Room in OLIVIA's house.

Enter Sir TOBY BELCH, Sir ANDREW AGUE-

CHEEK, and FABIAN.

Sir And. No faith, I'll not stay a jot longer.

Sir To. Thy reason, dear venom, give thy reason.

Fab. You must needs yield your reason, Sir

Andrew.

Sir And. Marry, I saw your niece do more favours to the count's serving man, than ever

she bestowed upon me; I saw't i' the orchard.

Sir To. Did she see thee the while, old boy?

tell me that.

Sir And. As plain as I see you now.

Fab. This was a great argument of love in her toward you.

Sir And. 'Blight! will you make an ass o'

me?

Fab. I will prove it legitimate, Sir, upon the oaths of judgement and reason.

Sir To. And they have been grand jury-men,

since before Noah was a sailor.

Fab. She did show favour to the youth in your sight, only to exasperate you, to awake

your dormouse valour, to put fire in your heart,

and brimstone in your liver: You should then have accosted her; and with some excellent jeat, fire-new from the mint, you should have banged the youth into dumbness. This was looked for at your hand, and this was baulked:

the double gift of this opportunity you let time

wash off, and you are now sailed into the north of my lady's opinion; where you will hang like an icicle on a Dutchman's beard, unless you do redeem it by some laudable attempt, either of valour, or policy.

o In spite of

be any way, it must be with I hate: I had as lief be a politician.

men, build me thy fortunes up-valour. Challenge me the fight with him; hurt him in piece shall take note of it:
if, there is no love-broker in re prevail in man's commen-
in, than report of valour.

so way but this, Sir Andrew.
either of you hear me a chal-

ite it in a martial hand; be it is no matter how witty, so d full of invention. taunt him
of ink: if thou show'st him
all not be amiss; and as many thy sheet of paper, although enough for the bed of Ware;
in down; go, about it. Let gh in thy ink; though thou pen, no matter. About it, shall I find you?

all thee at the cubiculo: & Go.

[Exit Sir ANDREW.
manakin to you, Sir Toby.
likes dear to him, lad; some ing, or so.

have a rare letter from him:
for it.

trust me then; and by all youth to an answer. I think,
poor cannot hale them togeter, if he were opened, and blood in his liver as will clog
'll eat the rest of the anatomy.
opposite, the youth, bears in
at presage of cruelty.

Enter MARIA.

where the youngest wren of sire the spleen, and will laugh

fitches, follow me. you' gull
d beathen, a very renegade;
ristian, that means to be savaghtly, can ever believe such ges of grossness. He's in was-gartered?

anously; like a pedant that
'the church. I have dogged orderer. He does obey every that I dropped to betray him.
a face into more lines, than are
with the augmentation of the
not seen such a thing as 'tis;
ear hurling things at him. I ill strike him, if she do, he'll for a great favour.

bring us, bring us where he is [Exit]

IE III.—A Street.

TOKIO and SEBASTIAN.

ot, by my will, have troubled you make your pleasure of
I no further chide you.

stay behind you, my desire,
fled steel, did spur me forth;
to see you, (though so much,
awn one to a longer voyage,)

seen Elizabeth's reign. † Crabbed.
which held forty persons ) Waggon ropes.

But jealousy what might befall your travel,
Being skillless in these parts; which to a stranger,

Unguided, and unfriended, often prove
Rough and unhospitable: My willing love,
The rather by these arguments of fear,
Set forth in your pursuit.

Seb. My kind Antonio,

I can no other answer make, but, thanks,
And thanks, and ever thanks: Often good turns
Are shuffled off with such uncurrent pay:
But, were my worth,* as is my conscience, firm,
You should find better dealing. What's to do?
Shall we go see the reliques of this town?

Ant. To-morrow, Sir; best, first, go see your lodging.

Seb. I am not weary, and 'tis long to-night;
I pray you, let us satisfy our eyes
With the memorials, and the things of fame,
That do renown this city.

Ant. Would, you'd pardon me;

I do not without danger walk these streets:
Once, in a sea-fight, gainst the count his gal-
lies,

I did some service; of such note, indeed,
That, were I ta'en here, it would scarce be an-swer'd. [people.]

Seb. Belike, you slew great number of his

Ant. The offence is not of such a bloody nature;

Albeit the quality of the time, and quarrel,
Might well have given us bloody argument.
It might have since been answer'd in repaying
What we took from them; which, for traffic's
sake,

Most of our city did: only myself stood out:
For which, if I be laps'd in this place,
I shall pay dear.

Seb. Do not then walk too open.

Ant. It doth not fit me. Hold, Sir, here's my purse;

In the south suburbs, at the Elephant,
Is best to lodge: I will bespeak our diet, Whiles you beguile the time, and feed your knowledge,

With viewing of the town; there shall you have me.

Seb. Why I your purse?

Ant. Haply, your eyes shall light upon some toy

You have desire to purchase; and your store,
I think, is not for idle markets, Sir.

Seb. I'll be your purse-bearer, and leave you An hour. [for]

Ant. To the Elephant.—

Seb. I do remember. [Exit.]

SCENE IV.—OLIVIA'S Garden.

Enter OLIVIA and MARIA.

Oli. I have sent after him. He says, he'll come;

How shall I feast him? what bestow on him?
For youth is bought more oft, than begg'd, or borrow'd.

I speak too loud.—

Where is Malvolio?—he is sad, and civil,
And suits well for a servant with my fortunes,—

Where is Malvolio?

Mar. He's coming, madam;
But in strange manner. He is sure possess'd.

Oli. Why, what's the matter? does he rave?

Mar. No, madam,
He does nothing but smile; your ladyship
Were best have guard about you, if he come;

* Wealth. † Caught. ‡ Grave and demure.

ELFTH NIGHT; OR, WHAT YOU WILL

ted in his wits.

I'm as mad as he,
equal be.—

VOLIO.

(Smiles fantastically.)

occasion.

he sad: This does
the blood, this cross-
that, if it please the
the very true son-
se all.

u, man! what is the

und, though yellow
his hands, and com-
I think, we do know

Malvolio?

heart; and I'll come

Why dost thou smile

it?

olio!

Yes; Nightingales

with this ridiculous

atness.—'Twas well

by that, Malvolio?

—

cess,—

eatness thrust upon

—

commended thy yellow

es?

the cross-gartered.

le, if thou desirest to e a servant still.

lsuamer madness.†

nt

gentleman of the

I could hardly en-

ads your ladyship's

at Servant.] Good

oked to. Where's

of my people have

ould not have him

lowry.

OLIVIA and MARIA.

me near me now?

to look to me? This etter? she sends him

ar stubborn to him;

the letter. Cast

be opposite with a

let thy tongue tang

ut thyself into the

consequently, sets

a sad face, a reve-

ne, in the habit of orth. I have limed

g, and Jove make

o went away now,

Hot weather madness.

ore.

Let this fellow be looked to: F
volio, nor after my degree, b
every thing adheres together
a scruple, no scruple of a scr
no incredulous or unsafe circ can be said? Nothing, than between me and the full pros
Well, Jove, not I, is the do is to be thanked.

Re-enter MARIA, with Sir T
FABIAN.

Sir To. Which way is he sanctity? If all the devils in little, and Legion himself pos speak to him.

Fab. Here he is, here he is you, Sir? how is't with you,

Mal. Go off; I discard y
my private; go off.

Mar. Lo, how hollow the in him! did not I tell you?— prays you to have a care of h

Mal. Ah, ha! does she so!

Sir To. Go to, go to; peace deal gently with him; let me

you, Malvolio? how is't with defy the devil: consider, f mankind.

Mal. Do you know what y

Mar. La you, an you speal how he takes it at heart! Pri bewitched!

Fab. Carry his water to the

Mar. Marry, and it shall b morning, if I live. My lady him for more than I'll say.

Mal. How now, mistress?

Mar. O lord!

Sir To. Pr'ythee, hold thy the way: Do you not see, y me alone with him.

Fab. No way but gentleness
the fiend is rough, and will no

Sir To. Why, how now, my dost thou, chuck?

Mal. Sir?

Sir To. Ay, Biddy, come man! 'tis not for gravity to p
with Satan: Hang him, foul

Mar. Get him to say his p
Toby, get him to pray.

Mal. My prayers, minx?

Mar. No, I warrant you, b godliness.

Mal. Go, hang yourselves shallow things: I am not of y shall know more hereafter.

Sir To. Is't possible?

Fab. If this were played w
I could condemn it as an imp

Sir To. His very genius b fection of the device, man.

Mar. Nay, pursue him now take air, and taint.

Fab. Why, we shall make t

Mar. The house will be the

Sir To. Come, we'll have hi and bound. My niece is a

that he is mad; we may carr pleasure, and his penance, t

lume, tired out of breath, pr mercy on him: at which tim

the device to the bar, and finder of madmen. But see,!

† Companion.

† Jolly

† A play among boys.

† Colliers were accounted great che

Enter Sir ANDREW AGUE-CHEEK.

More matter for a May-morning.
 Here's the challenge, read it; I
 there's vinegar and pepper in't.
 Is't so saucy?

Al. Ay, is it, I warrant him: do but

Give me. (Reads.) Youth, whatsoever
 thou art but a scurvy fellow.
 Good, and valiant.

Wonder not, nor admire not in thy
 I do call thee so, for I will show thee
 I for't.

A good note: that keeps you from the
 the law.

Thou comest to the lady Olivia, and in she uses thee kindly: but thou liest in that is not the matter I challenge thee

very brief, and exceeding good sense-

I will way-lay thee going home; where chance to kill me,—
 I find.

Thou killest me like a rogar and a villain you keep o'the windy side of the hill.

Fare thee well: And God have mercy of our souls! He may have mercy upon if my hope is better, and so look to thy-friend, as thou usest him, and thy
 my. ANDREW AGUE-CHEEK.

If this letter move him not, his legs
 I'll give't him.

you may have very fit occasion for't,
 in some commerce with my lady,
 by and by depart.

Go, Sir Andrew, scout me for him at
 of the orchard, like a bum-bailiff.
 ever thou usest him, draw, and, as rest, swear horrible, for it comes to that a terrible oath, with a swaggersharply twanged off, gives manhood robation than ever proof itself would sed him. Away.

Nay, let me alone for swearing.

[Exit.

Now will not I deliver his letter: for vious of the young gentleman gives to be of good capacity and breeding;
 riment between his lord and my niece
 no less, therefore this letter, being so ly ignorant, will breed no terror in i, he will find it comes from a clodst, Sir, I will deliver his challenge by mouth; set upon Ague cheek a nota-
 t of valour; and drive the gentleman,
 ow, his youth will aptly receive it,
 at hideous opinion of his rage, skill,
 I impetuosity. This will so fright
 a, that they will kill one another by like cockatrices.

Enter OLIVIA and VIOLA.

Here he comes with your niece give
 y, till he take leave, and presently

I will meditate the while upon some revenge for a challenge.

Enter Sir TOBY, FABIAN, and MARIA.
 have said too much unto a heart of
 stone,
 mine honour too uncharity* out.

* Uncharitably.

There's something in me, that reproves my fault,
 But such a headstrong potent fault it is,
 That it but mocks reproof.

Vio. With the same 'baviour that your passion bears,

Go on my master's griefs.

Oh. Here, wear this jewel for me, 'tis my picture,

Refuse it not, it hath no tongue to vex you.
 And, I beseech you, come again to-morrow.

What shall you ask of me, that I'll deny,
 That honour, say'd, may upon asking give?

I'w. Nothing but this, your true love for my master.

Oh. How with mine honour may I give him
 Which I have given to you? [that

Vio. I will acquit you.

Oh. Well, come again to-morrow: Fare thee
 well;

A fiend, like thee, might bear my soul to hell.
 [Exit.

Re-enter Sir TOBY BELCH, and FABIAN.

Sir To. Gentleman, God save thee.

Vio. And you, Sir.

Sir To. That defence thou hast, betake thee
 to't. of what nature the wrongs are thou hast done him, I know not; but thy interceper, full of despatch, bloody as the hunter, attends thee
 at the orchard end: dismount thy tack,* be yare† in thy preparation, for thy assailant is quick, skilful, and deadly.

Vio. You mistake, Sir; I am sure, no man hath any quarrel to me; my remembrance is very free and clear from any image of offence done to any man.

Sir To. You'll find it otherwise, I assure you.
 therefore, if you hold your life at any price,
 betake you to your guard, for your opposite hath in him what youth, strength, skill, and wrath, can furnish man withal.

Vio. I pray you, Sir, what is he?

Sir To. He is knight, dubbed with unhacked rapier, and on carpet consideration; but he is a devil in private brawl: souls and bodies hath he divorced three, and his incensement at this moment is so implacable, that satisfaction can be none but by pangs of death and sepulchre:
 hob, nob, is his word; give't, or take t.

Vio. I will return again into the house, and desire some conduct of the lady. I am no fighter.
 I have heard of some kind of men, that put quarrels purposely on others, to taste their valour: belike, this is a man of that quirk.†

Sir To. Sir, no; his indignation derives itself out of a very competent injury, therefore, get you on, and give him his desire. Back you shall not to the house, unless you undertake that with me, which with as much safety you might answer him: therefore, on, or strip your sword stark naked, for meedle you must,
 that's certain, or forswear to wear iron about
 you.

Vio. This is as uncivil, as strange. I beseech you, do me this courteous office, as to know of the knight what my offence to him is; it is something of my negligence, nothing of my purpose.

Sir To. I will do so. Signior Fabian, stay you
 by this gentleman till my return.

[Exit Sir TOBY.

Vio. Pray you, Sir, do you know of this matter?

Fab. I know, the knight is incensed against

* Rapier

† Ready

‡ Quirk.

THE NIGHT; OR, WHAT YOU WILL. [ACT III.]

...nt; * but nothing
...anner of man is

...ful promise, to
...are like to find
He is, indeed,
...and fatal oppo-
...ave found in any
...towards him? I
...if I can.
...to you for't: I
...with air priest,
...knows so much
[Exeunt.]

...ANDREW.
...devil; I have
...pass with him,
...he gives me the
...tion, that it is
...he pays you
...ound they step
...er to the Sophy.
...eddle with him.
...ow he pacified
...ger.
...thought he had
...tence, I'd have
...hallenged him.
...I'll give him
...Stand here,
...ill end without
...I'll ride your
[Aside.]

...OLA.
...ke up the quar-
...outh's a devil.
...d] of him; and
...war were at his
...; he will fight
...y, he hath bet-
...and he finds
...ng of. there-
...of his vow; he

A little thing
...much I lack of
[Aside.]
...him furious.
...ere's no reme-
...honour's sake,
...cannot by the
...omised me, as
...he will not hurt
...his oath!

[Draws.]
...inst my will.
[Draws.]
...If this young
...ult on me;
...you.
[Drawing.]
...are you?
...dares yet do

...you he will.
+ Adversary.
Does for you.
+ Laws of duet.

Sir To. Nay, if you be an undertaker, I am for you. [Draws.]

Enter two OFFICERS.

Fab. O good Sir Toby, hold; here come the officers.

Sir To. I'll be with you anon. [To ANTONIO.]

Vio. Pray, Sir, put up your sword, if you please. [To Sir ANDREW.]

Sir And. Marry, will I, Sir;—and, for that I promised you, I'll be as good as my word: He will bear you easily, and reins well.

1 Off. This is the man; do thy office.

2 Off. Antonio, I arrest thee at the suit Of count Orsino.

Ant. You do mistake me, Sir.

1 Off. No, Sir, no jot; I know your favour well, [head.—

Though now you have no sea-cap on your head. Take him away; he knows, I know him well.

Ant. I must obey.—This comes with seeking you;

But there's no remedy; I shall answer it.

What will you do? Now my necessity

Makes me to ask you for my purse: It grieves me

Much more, for what I cannot do for you, Than what befalls myself. You stand amaz'd; But be of comfort.

2 Off. Come, Sir, away.

Ant. I must entreat of you some of that money.

Vio. What money, Sir?

For the fair kindness you have show'd me here, And, part, being prompted by your present

Out of my lean and low ability [trouble, I'll lend you something: my having is not much; I'll make division of my present with you:

Hold, there is half my coffer.

Ant. Will you deny me now?

Is't possible, that my deserts to you

Can lack persuasion? Do not tempt my misery,

Lest that it make me so unsound a man,

As to upbraid you with those kindnesses

That I have done for you.

Vio. I know of none;

Nor know I you by voice, or any feature:

I hate ingratitude more in a man,

Than lying, vainness, babbling, drunkenness,

Or any taint of vice, whose strong corruption

Inhabits our frail blood.

Ant. O heavens themselves!

2 Off. Come, Sir, I pray you, go.

Ant. Let me speak a little. This youth that you see here,

I snatch'd one half out of the jaws of death;

Reliev'd him with such sanctity of love,—

And to his image, which, methought, did promise

Most venerable worth, did I devotion.

1 Off. What's that to us? The time goes by;

away.

Ant. But, O, how vile an idol proves this god!— [shame.—

Thou hast, Sebastian, done good feature

In nature there's no blemish but the mind;

None can be call'd deform'd, but the unkind:

Virtue is beauty; but the beauteous-evil

Are empty trunks, o'erflourish'd* by the devil.

1 Off. The man grows mad; away with him.

Come, come, Sir.

Ant. Lead me on.

[Exeunt OFFICERS, with ANTONIO.]

Vio. Methinks, his words do from such passion fly,

That he believes himself; so do not I.

* Ornamented.

Prove true, imagination, O, prove true,
That I, dear brother, be now ta'en for you!

Sir To. Come hither knight; come hither, Fabian; we'll whisper o'er a couplet or two of most sage saws.

Vin. His nam'd Sebastian; I my brother know
Yet living in my glass;* even such, and so,
In favour was my brother; and he went
Still in this fashion, colour, ornament,
For him I imitate: O, if it prove,
Tempests are kind, and salt waves fresh in love! [Exit.

Sir To. A very dishonest paltry boy, and more a coward than a hare: his dishonesty appears, in leaving his friend here in necessity,
and denying him; and for his cowardship, ask Fabian.

Fab. A coward, a most devout coward, religious in it.

Sir And. 'Shid, I'll after him again, and beat
him.

Sir To. Do, cuff him soundly, but never draw
thy sword.

Sir And. Am I do not,— [Exit.

Fab. Come, let's see the event.

Sir To. I dare lay any money, 'twill be nothing yet. [Exeunt.

ACT IV.

SCENE I.—The Street before OLIVIA's House.

Enter SEBASTIAN and CLOWN.

Clo. Will you make me believe, that I am not sent for you?

Seb. Go to, go to, thou art a foolish fellow;
Let me be clear of thee.

Clo. Well held out, i'faith! No, I do not know you; nor I am not sent to you by my lady, to bid you come speak with her; nor your name is not master Cesario; nor this is not my use neither.—Nothing, that is so, is so.

Seb. I pr'ythee, vent† thy folly somewhere
Thou know'st not me. [else;

Clo. Vent my folly! He has heard that word of some great man, and now applies it to a fool. Vent my folly! I am afraid this great lubber, the world, will prove a cockney.—I pr'ythee now, ungird thy strangeness, and tell me what I shall vent to my lady; Shall I vent
to her, that thou art coming?

Seb. I pr'ythee, foolish Greek, depart from
me;

There's money for thee; if you tarry longer,
I shall give worse payment.

Clo. By my troth, thou hast an open hand:—
These wise men, that give fools money, get themselves a good report after fourteen years'
purchase.

Enter Sir ANDREW, Sir TOBY, and FABIAN.

Sir And. Now, Sir; have I met you again?
there's for you. [Striking SEBASTIAN.

Seb. Why, there's for thee, and there, and
there:

Are all the people mad? [Beating Sir ANDREW.

Sir To. Hold, Sir, or I'll throw your dagger o'er the house.

Clo. This will I tell my lady straight; I would not be in some of your coats for two-pence.

[Exit CLOWN.

Sir To. Come on, Sir; hold.

[Holding SEBASTIAN.

Sir And. Nay, let him alone, I'll go another way to work with him; I'll have an action of battery against him, if there be any law in Il-

lyria: though I struck him first, yet it's no matter for that.

Seb. Let go thy hand.

Sir To. Come, Sir, I will not let you go.
Come, my young soldier, put up your iron:
you are well fleshed; come on.

Seb. I will be free from thee. What would'st
thou now?

If thou dar'st tempt me further, draw thy sword.
[Draws.

Sir To. What, what? Nay, then I must have an ounce or two of this malapert blood from
you. [Draws.

Enter OLIVIA.

Oli. Hold, Toby; on thy life, I charge thee,
hold.

Sir To. Madam?

Oli. Will it be ever thus? Ungracious wretch,
Fit for the mountains, and the barbarous caves,
Where manners ne'er were preach'd! out of my sight!

Be not offended, dear Cesario:—

Rudesby,* be gone!—I pr'ythee, gentle friend, [Exeunt Sir TOBY, Sir ANDREW, and FABIAN.

Let thy fair wisdom, not thy passion, sway
In this uncivil and unjust extent†
Against thy peace. Go with me to my house;
And hear thou there how many fruitless pranks
This ruffian hath botch'd up,‡ that thou thereby May'st smile at this: thou shalt not choose but
go;

Do not deny: Besbrow§ his soul for me,
He started one poor heart of mine in thee.

Seb. What relish is in this? how runs the stream?

Or I am mad, or else this is a dream:—

Let fancy still my sense in Lethe steep;
If it be thus to dream, still let me sleep!

Oli. Nay, come, I pr'ythee: 'Would thou'dst be rul'd by me!

Seb. Madam, I will.

Oli. O, say so, and so be! [Exeunt.

SCENE II.—A Room in OLIVIA's House.

Enter MARIA and CLOWN.

Mur. Nay, I pr'ythee, put on this gown, and this beard; make him believe, thou art Sir
Topas the curate; do it quickly: I'll call Sir
Toby the whilst. [Exit MARIA.

Clo. Well, I'll put it on, and I will dissemble|| myself in't; and I would I were the first that ever dissembled in such a gown. I am not fat enough to become the function well;
nor lean enough to be thought a good student:
but to be said, an honest man and a good housekeeper, goes as fairly, as to say, a careful man, and a great scholar. The competitors¶
enter.

Enter Sir TOBY BELCH and MARIA.

Sir To. Jove bless thee, master parson.

Clo. Bonos dies, Sir Toby: for as the old hermit of Prague, that never saw pen and ink,
very wittily said to a niece of king Gorboduc,
That, that is, is: so I, being master parson, am master parson; For what is that, but that?
and is, but is?

Sir To. To him, Sir Topas.

Clo. What, hoa, I say,—Peace in this prison!

Sir To. The knave counterfeits well; a good knave.

Mal. [In an inner chamber.] Who calls there?

Clo. Sir Topas, the curate, who comes to visit Malvolio the lunatic.

* Rude fellow.

† Violence.

‡ Made up.

§ Ill betide.

|| Disguise.

¶ Confederates.

THE NIGHT; OR, WHAT YOU WILL

good Sir Topas,

how vexest thou
but of ladies?

reason.

thus wronged:

I am mad; they darkness.

than! I call thee

I am one of those evil himself with

use is dark?

ows* transparent

stones towards

as ebony; and

action?

as; I say to you,

I say, there is in which thou art

mans in their fog.

as dark as igno-

as dark as hell;

on thus abused: I

, make the trial

Pythagoras, con-

grandam might

his opinion?

soul, and no way

ain thou still in opinion of Py-

by wits; and fear

sposess the soul

ell.

Sir Topas!

ers †

one this without

thee not.

voice, and bring in I would, we

If he may be

ld he were; for I

my niece, that I

this sport to the ny chamber.

day and MARIA.

does. [Singing.

ly.

o calls, ha?

ou wilt deserve

candle, and pen,

gentleman, I will

t.

besides your five

man so notori-

an my wits, fool,

are mad, indeed,

ts than a fool.

ertied me, keep

ay conversation.

Topas.

a passion of.

me in darkness, send minister
and do all they can to face wits.

Clo. Advise you what you is here.—Malvolio, Malvolio, t vens restore! endeavour thyself
leave thy vain bibble babble.

Mal. Sir Topas,—

Clo. Maintain no words with low.—Who, I, Sir? not I, Sir.
good Sir Topas.—Marry, amen
will.

Mal. Fool, fool, fool, I say,—

Clo. Alas, Sir, be patient.

Sir? I am about* for speaking

Mal. Good fool, help me to some paper; I tell thee, I am

wits, as any man in Illyria.

Clo. Well-a-day,—that you

Mal. By this hand, I am: C

ink, paper, and light, and con

set down to my lady; it shall more than ever the bearing of I

Clo. I will help you to't. I are you not mad indeed? or d

terfeit?

Mal. Believe me, I am not;

Clo. Nay, I'll ne'er believe

I see his brains. I will fetch paper, and ink.

Mal. Fool, I'll requite it in gree: I pr'ythee, begone.

Clo. I am gone, Sir.

And anon, Sir,

I'll be with you again,

In a trice;

Like to the old rice,†

Your need to sustain;

Who with dagger of law

In his rage and his sword

Cries, ah, ha! to the

Like a mad lad,

Pare thy nails, dad,

Adieu, Goodman drit

SCENE III.—OLIVIA'S

Enter SEBASTIAN

Seb. This is the air; that is t
This pearl she gave me, I do f
And though 'tis wonder that er
Yet 'tis not madness. Where?
I could not find him at the Ele
Yet there he was; and there I fo
That he did range the town to His counsel now might do me
For though my soul disputes
sense,

That this may be some error, b
Yet doth this accident and flood
So far exceed all instance, all
That I am ready to distrust mi
And wrangle with my reason,
To any other trust,‡ but that I
Or else the lady's mad; yet, if She could not sway her house
followers,¶

Take, and give back, affairs,
patch,

With such a smooth, discreet,
As, I perceive, she does: there's
That is deceivable. But here

* Secluded, reprimanded.
† A buffoon character in the old p
the modern harlequin.
‡ Account. § Remains. ¶ Sides

Enter OLIVIA and a Painter.

OL. Bless not this haste of mine: If you mean well,
Now go with me, and with this holy man,
Into the country^{*} by: there, before him,
And underneath that consecrated roof,
Flight me the full assurance of your faith;
That my most jealous and too doubtful soul
May live at peace: He shall counsel it,
Whom you are willing it shall come to note;
What time we will our celebration keep
According to my birth.—What do you say?

AN. I'll follow this good man, and go with you;

And, having sworn truth, ever will be true.

OL. Then lead the way, good father;—And heaven so shine,
That they may fairly note this act of mine!

[Exit.

ACT V.

SCENE I.—The Street before OLIVIA's House.

Enter CLOWN and FABIAN.

FAB. Now, as thou lovest me, let me see his letter.

CL. Good master Fabian, grant me another request.

FAB. Any thing.

CL. Do not desire to see this letter.

FAB. That is, to give a dog, and, in recompense, desire my dog again.

Enter DUKE, VIOLA, and Attendants.

DUKE. Belong you to the lady Olivia, friends?

CL. Ay, Sir; we are some of her trappings.

DUKE. I know thee well; How dost thou, my good fellow?

CL. Truly, Sir, the better for my foes, and the worse for my friends.

DUKE. Just the contrary; the better for thy friends.

CL. No, Sir, the worse.

DUKE. How can that be?

CL. Marry, Sir, they praise me, and make an ass of me; now my foes tell me plainly I am an ass: so that by my foes, Sir, I profit in the knowledge of myself; and by my friends I am abused: so that, conclusions to be as kisses, if your four negatives make your two affirmatives, why, then the worse for my friends, and the better for my foes.

DUKE. Why, this is excellent.

CL. By my troth, Sir, no; though it please you to be one of my friends.

DUKE. Thou shalt not be the worse for me; there's gold.

CL. But that it would be double-dealing, Sir, I would you could make it another.

DUKE. O, you give me ill counsel.

CL. Put your grace in your pocket, Sir, for this once, and let your flesh and blood obey it.

DUKE. Well, I will be so much a sinner to be a double-dealer; there's another.

CL. Primo, secundo, tertio, is a good play; and the old saying is, the third pays for all: the triplex, Sir, is a good tripping measure; or the bells of St. Bennet, Sir, may put you in mind; One, two, three.

DUKE. You can fool no more money out of me at this throw: if you will let your lady know, I am here to speak with her, and bring her along with you, it may awake my bounty further.

CL. Marry, Sir, lullaby to your bounty, till

I come again. I go, Sir; but I would not have you to think, that my desire of having is the sin of covetousness: but, as you say, Sir, let your bounty take a nap, I will awake it anon.

[Exit CLOWN.

Enter ANTONIO and OFFICERS.

VIO. Here comes the man, Sir, that did rescue me.

DUKE. That face of his I do remember well; Yet, when I saw it last, it was besmear'd As black as Vulcan, in the smoke of war: A hawbling vessel was he captain of, For shallow draught, and bulk, unprizable; With which such scathful^{*} grapple did he make With the most noble bottoms of our fleet, That very envy, and the tongue of him, Cried fame and honour on him.—What's the matter?

I OF. Orsino, this is that Antonio, That took the Phoenix, and her freight,[†] from Candy;

And this is he, that did the Tiger board, When your young nephew Titus lost his leg: Here in the streets, desperate of shame, and state,

In private brabble did we apprehend him.

VIO. He did me kindness, Sir; drew on my side;

But, in conclusion, put strange speech upon me, I know not what 'twas, but distraction.

DUKE. Notable pirate! thou salt-water thief! What foolish boldness brought thee to their mercies,

Whom thou, in terms so bloody, and so dear, Hast made thine enemies?

ANT. Orsino, noble Sir, Be pleas'd that I shake off these names you give me;

Antonio never yet was thief, or pirate, Though, I confess, on base and ground enough, Orsino's enemy. A witchcraft drew me hither: That most ungrateful boy there, by your side, From the rude sea's enrag'd and foamy mouth Did I redeem; a wreck past hope he was: His life I gave him, and did thereto add My love, without retention, or restraint All his in dedication: for his sake, Did I expose myself, pure for his love, Into the danger of this adverse town; Drew to defend him, when he was beset; Where being apprehended, his false cunning, (Not meaning to partake with me in danger,) Taught him to face me out of his acquaintance, And grew a twenty-years-removed thing, While one would wink; denied me mine own purse,

Which I had recommended to his use Not half an hour before.

VIO. How can this be?

DUKE. When came he to this town?

ANT. To-day, my lord; and for three months before,

(No interim, not a minute's vacancy,)

Both day and night did we keep company.

Enter OLIVIA and Attendants.

DUKE. Here comes the countess: now heaven walks on earth.—

But for thee, fellow, fellow, thy words are madness:

Three months this youth hath tended upon me; But more of that anon.—Take him aside.

OLI. What would my lord, but that he may not have,

* Little chapel.

† Until

* Mischievous.

† Freight.

THE NIGHT; OR, WHAT YOU WILL. [ACT V

Unceable?—
use with me.

Cesario?—Good
my duty hushes

tune, my lord,
ne ear,

ess? you uncivil

scious altars
gs hath breath'd

What shall I do?
lord, that shall

ad I the heart to point of death,

rousy, [this:

But hear me
past my faith,

strument

place in your tyrant, still,

I know, you

[dearly,
wear, I tender

el eye,
master's spite.—

ghts are ripe in

love,
a dove. [Going.

ot, and willingly.
aths would die.

[Following.

more than my life.
I shall love wife;

love,
my love!

am I beguil'd?
who does do you

myself! Is it so ber.

rit an Attendant.
[To VIOLA.

Cesario, husband,
that deny!

of thy fear,
propriety:†

rtunes up;
and then thou

[father!
—O, welcome,

PRIEST.

reverence,
we intended

ason now
thou dost know,

youth and me.

own thy property.

Priest. A contract of eternal bond of love,
Confirm'd by mutual joinder of your hands,
Attested by the holy close of lips,
Strengthen'd by interchangement of your rings;
And all the ceremony of this compact
Seal'd in my function, by my testimony:
Since when, my watch hath told me, toward
my grave,

I have travell'd but two hours.

Duke. O, thou dissembling cub! what wilt thou be,

When time hath sow'd a grizzle on thy case?
Or will not else thy craft so quickly grow,

That thine own trip shall be thine overthrow?
Farewell, and take her; but direct thy feet,

Where thou and I henceforth may never meet.

Vio. My lord, I do protest,—

Oh, O, do not swear; [fear.

Hold little faith, though thou hast too much

Enter Sir ANDREW AGRE-CHEEK, with his head
broke.

Sir And. For the love of God, a surgeon;
send one presently to Sir Toby.

Oh. What's the matter?

Sir And. He has broke my head across, and has given Sir Toby a bloody coxcomb too: for the love of God, your help: I had rather than forty pounds, I were at home.

Oh. Who has done this, Sir Andrew?

Sir And. The count's gentleman, one Cesa-rio: we took him for a coward, but he's the very devil incarnadine.

Duke. My gentleman, Cesario!

Sir And. Od's lifelings here he is:—You broke my head for nothing; and that that I did, I was set on to do't by Sir Toby.

Vio. Why do you speak to me? I never hurt you: You drew your sword upon me, without cause; But I bespake you fair, and hurt you

not.

Sir And. If a bloody coxcomb be a hurt, you have hurt me; I think, you set nothing by a bloody coxcomb.

Enter Sir TOBY BELCH, drunk, led by the CLOWN.

Here comes Sir Toby halting, you shall hear more: but if he had not been in drink, he would have tickled you othergates† than he did.

Duke. How now, gentleman? how is't with
you?

Sir To. That's all one; he has hurt me, and there's the end on't.—Sot, did'st see Dick surgeon, sot?

Clo. O he's drunk, Sir Toby, an hour ago; his eyes were set at eight i'the morning.

Sir To. Then he's a rogue. After a passy-measure, or a pavin,‡ I hate a drunken rogue.

Oh. Away with him: Who hath made this havoc with them?

Sir And. I'll help you, Sir Toby, because we'll be dress'd together.

Sir To. Will you help an ass-head, and a coxcomb, and a knave? a thin-faced knave, a gull?

Oh. Get him to bed, and let his hurt be look'd
to.

[Exit CLOWN, Sir TOBY, and Sir ANDREW.]

Enter SEBASTIAN.

Seb. I am sorry, madam, I have hurt your
kinsman;

* Skia. † Otherways. ‡ Serious dances.

the brother of my blood,
no less, with wit, and safety.
age regard upon me, and move it hath offended you;
at one, even for the vows
ther but so late ago.

is, one voice, one habit, and
one;

ative, that is, and is not.

O my dear Antonio!

was rack'd and tortur'd me,
there.

are you?

on that, Antonio?

you made division of your-

two, is not more twin atures. Which is Sebastian?
derful!

id there? I never had a bro-

that deity in my nature,

where. I had a sister,

waves and surges have de-

kin are you to me?

[To VIOLA.

me? what name? what paren-

me: Sebastian was my father;

was my brother too,

to his watery tomb:

same both form and suit

fit us.

am, indeed;

imension grossly clad.

tomb I did participate,

an, as the rest goes even,

let fall upon your cheek,

welcome, drowned Viola!

had a mole upon his brow.

ad mine.

that day when Viola from her

irteen years.

cord is lively in my soul!

ed, his mortal act,

de my sister thirteen years.

lets to make us happy both,

mine usurp'd attire,

ne, till each circumstance

fortune, do cohere, and jump,

: which to confirm,

a captain in this town,

iden weeds; by whose gentle

to serve this noble count

so of my fortune since

en this lady, and this lord.

it, lady, you have been mis-

[To OLIVIA.

r bias drew in that.

been contracted to a maid;

ein, by my life, deceiv'd,

id both to a maid and man.

amaz'd; right noble is his

ret the glass seems true,

e in this most happy wreck:

id to me a thousand times,

[To VIOLA.

ld'st love woman like to me.

those sayings will I over-

earings keep as true in soul,

As doth that orb'd continent the fire
That severs day from night.

Duke. Give me thy hand;

And let me see thee in thy woman's weeds.

Vio. The captain, that did bring me first on shore,

Hath my maid's garments: he, upon some
action,

Is now in durance; at Malvolio's suit,

A gentleman, and follower of my lady's.

Oh. He shall enlarge him.—Fetch Malvolio
hither:—

And yet, alas, now I remember me,

They say, poor gentleman, he's much distract.

Re-enter CLOWN, with a letter.

A most extracting frenzy of mine own
From my remembrance clearly banish'd his.—

How does he, sirrah?

Clo. Truly, madam, he holds Belzebub at the stave's end, as well as a man in his case may do: he has here writ a letter to you, I should have given it you to-day morning; but as a madman's epistles are no gospels, so it skills
not much, when they are delivered.

Oli. Open it, and read it.

Clo. Look then to be well edified, when the fool delivers the madman:—By the lord, mad-

am.—

Oli. How now! art thou mad?

Clo. No, madam, I do but read madness:
an your ladyship will have it as it ought to be,
you must allow ear.*

Oli. Pr'ythee, read i'thy right wits.

Clo. So I do, madonna; but to read his right wits, is to read thus: therefore perpend,† my princess, and give ear.

Oh. Read it you, sirrah. [To FABIAN.

Fab. [Reads.] By the Lord, madam, you wrong me, and the world shall know it: though you have put me into darkness, and given your drunken cousin rule over me, yet have I the benefit of my senses as well as your ladyship. I have your own letter that induced me to the semblance I put on;
with the which I doubt not but to do myself much right, or you much shame. Think of me as you please. I leave my duty a little unthought of, and speak out of my injury.

The madly-used MALVOLIO.

Oli. Did he write this?

Clo. Ay, madam.

Duke. This savours not much of distraction.

Oh. See him deliver'd, Fabian; bring him
hither. [Exit FABIAN.

My lord, so please you, these things further thought on,

To think me as well a sister as a wife,

One day shall crown the alliance on't, so please
you,

Here at my house, and at my proper cost

Duke. Madam, I am most apt to embrace your offer.—

Your master quits you; [To VIOLA.] and, for your service done him,

So much against the mettle† of your sex,

So far beneath your soft and tender breeding,

And since you call'd me master for so long,

Here is my hand; you shall from this time be
Your master's mistress.

Oli. A sister!—you are she.

Re-enter FABIAN, with MALVOLIO.

Duke. Is this the madman?

Oli. Ay, my lord, this same:

How now, Malvolio?

THE TWELFTH NIGHT; OR, WHAT YOU WILL

He done me wrong,

no.

Pray you, peruse that it is your hand,

in hand, or phrase;

nor your invention:

Well, grant it then,

sty of honour,

such clear lights of

[you,

and cross-garter'd to

gs, and to frown

lighter" people:

edient hope,

he to be imprison'd,

sited by the priest,

rious geck,† and gull,

d on? tell me why.

is not my writing,

like the character:

Maria's hand.

e, it was she

mad; then can't in

here were presuppos'd

Pr'ythee, be content:

shrewdly pass'd upon

grounds and authors

plaintiff and the judge

ar me speak;

no brawl to come,

is present hour,

In hope it shall not,

self, and Toby,

Salvolbo here,

uncourteous parts

at him: Maria writ

great importance;†

he hath married her.

ice it was follow'd,

ghter than revenge;

stly weigh'd,

past.

† Impertunacy.

Old. Alas, poor fool! how I
thee!

Clo. Why, some are born g greatness, and some have g
them. I was one, Sir, in thi Sir Topas, Sir; but that's Lord, fool, I am not mad;—B ber? Madam, why laugh you rascal? an you smile not, he's g
the whirligig of time brings Mal. I'll be revenged on t
you.

Old. He hath been most no Duke. Pursue him, and peace:—

He hath not told us of the ca
When that is known and golde
A solemn combination shall b
Of our dear souls—Mean tim
We will not part from hence.
For so you shall be, while yo
But, when in other habits you
Orsino's mistress, and his fan

SONG.

Clo. When that I was and a lid
With hey, ho, the wind
A foolish thing was but a
For the rain it raineth e
But when I came to man's
With hey, ho, the wind
'Gainst knave and thief so
For the rain it raineth e
But when I came, alas! t
With hey, ho, the wind
By swaggering could I no
For the rain it raineth e
But when I came unto my
With hey, ho, the wind
With toss-pots still had dr
For the rain it raineth e
A great while ago the wor
With hey, ho, the wind
But that's all one, our play
And we'll strive to please

• Chorus.

THE TEMPEST.

PERSONS REPRESENTED.

King of Naples.
 Brother.
 rightful Duke of Milan.
 Brother, the usurping Duke of Milan.
 son to the King of Naples.
 wisest old Counsellor of Naples.
 Lords.
 page and deformed Slave.
 Master.
 drunken Butler.
 Ship, Boatswain, and Mariners.

MIRANDA, Daughter to Prospero.

ARIEL, an Airy Spirit.

IRIS, CERES, JUNO, NYMPHS,
 REAPERS, } Spirits.

Other Spirits attending on PROSPERO.

SCENE, the Sea, with a ship; afterwards an uninhabited Island.

ACT I.

SCENE I.—On a Ship at Sea.

with Thunder and Lightning.

PROSPERO and a BOATSWAIN.

Boatswain,—

PROSPERO. Master: what cheer?

BOATSWAIN. Speak to the mariners: fall
 we run ourselves aground: be-
 [Exit.

Enter MARINERS.

MARINERS. Hail, my hearts; cheerly, cheerly, we'll work; we'll work. Take in the top-sail;
 master's whistle.—Blow, till thou art, if room enough!

PROSPERO. SEBASTIAN, ANTONIO, FERDINAND,
 GONZALO, and others.

BOATSWAIN. Have care. Where's
 the men?

PROSPERO. Now, keep below.

BOATSWAIN. Is the master, boatswain?

PROSPERO. You not hear him? You mar our your cabins: you do assist the good, be patient.

BOATSWAIN. In the sea is. Hence! What care for the name of king? To cabin:
 we'll not go.

PROSPERO. Yet remember whom thou hast

so that I more love than myself.
 Counsellor, if you can command
 us to silence, and work the peace
 of us, we will not hand a rope more, nor city. If you cannot, give thanks for us so long, and make yourself
 a cabin for the mischance of the ship.—Cheerly, good hearts.—Out
 say. [Exit.

PROSPERO. A great comfort from this fellow:
 hath no drowning mark upon him; his complexion is perfect gallows. Stand fast, good fate, to his hanging! make the rope of his destiny our cable, for our own doth little advantage! If he be not born to be hanged,

 our case is miserable. [Exit.

Re-enter BOATSWAIN.

BOATSWAIN. Down with the top-mast; yare; lower, lower; bring her to try with main course.
 [A cry within.] A plague upon this howling!
 they are louder than the weather, or our office.—

Re-enter SEBASTIAN, ANTONIO, and GONZALO.

SEBASTIAN. Yet again? what do you here? Shall we give o'er, and drown? Have you a mind to sink?

ANTONIO. A pox o' your throat! you bawling, blasphemous, uncharitable dog!

BOATSWAIN. Work you, then.

SEBASTIAN. Hang, cur, hang! you whoreson, insolent house-maker, we are less afraid to be drowned than thou art.

GONZALO. I'll warrant him from drowning; though the ship were no stronger than a nut-shell, and as leaky as an unstanch'd wench.

BOATSWAIN. Lay her a-hold, a-hold; set her two courses; off to sea again, lay her off.

Enter MARINERS wet.

MARINERS. Mar. All lost! to prayers, to prayers! all lost! [Exit.

BOATSWAIN. What, must our mouths be cold?

GONZALO. The king and prince at prayers! let us assist them,

For our case is as theirs.

SEBASTIAN. I am out of patience.

ANTONIO. We are merely cheated of our lives by drunkards.—

This wide-chapp'd rascal;—'Would, thou
 might'st lie drowning,

The washing of ten tides!

GONZALO. He'll be hanged yet;

Though every drop of water swear against it,
 And gape at wid'st to glut him.

[A confused noise within.]

† Present instant

* Incontinent

† Absolutely.

THE TEMPEST.

split! Farewell, Farewell, brother!—

be king. [Exit.
[Exit.
thousand furlongs
ground; long
The wills above
a dry death.
[Exit.
before the Cell of

MIRANDA.
Dearest father, you

near, allay them:
our down stinking [cheek, to the welkin's
ve suffer'd
a brave vessel,
creatures in her,
cry did knock Poor souls! they

er, I would earth, or e'er
swallowed, and
her.

our piteous heart,

care of thee, (who ce, my daughter!)
t, nought knowing an more better
full poor cell,

thoughts.

Lend thy hand,
nt from me.—So;
y down his mantle.
u thine eyes; have [touch'd
he wreck, which in thee
mine art
is no soul—
s an hair,
vessel,
hich thou saw'st

ther.

but stopp'd
quisition;

pe thine ear;
st thou remember
this cell?
or then thou wast
[not

house, or person?
he, that
ance.

an assurance ants: Had I not
at tended me?

Pro. Thou had'st, and mor
how is it,

That this lives in thy mind?
In the dark backward and al
If thou remember'st aught, ere How thou cam'st here (thou n Mira. But that I do not.

Pro. Twelve years since,
years since,
Thy father was the duke of M
A prince of power.

Mira. Sir, are not you my

Pro. Thy mother was a pie
She said—thou wast my da
father

Was duke of Milan; and his
A princess; no worse issued.

Mira. O, the heavens!
What foul play had we, thi
Or blessed was't we did?

Pro. Both, both, my girl:
By foul play, as thou say'st,
But blessedly help hither.

Mira. O, my heart bleeds
To think o' the teen† that I ha
Which is from my remembrat
further.

Pro. My brother, and thy u
I pray thee, mark me,—that
Be so perfidious!—he whom,
Of all the world I lov'd, and
The manage of my state; as,
Through all the signories it
And Prospero the prime duke,
In dignity, and, for the libe
Without a parallel; those be
The government I cast upon
And to my state grew stranger
And wrapt in secret studies.
Dost thou attend me?

Mira. Sir, most heedfully.

Pro. Being once perfected h
How to deny them; whom whom

To trash† for over-topping; n
The creatures that were mine;
them,

Or else new-form'd them: hav
Of officer and office, set all he
To what tune pleased his ear;
The ivy, which had hid my pe
And suck'd my verdure out tend'st not:

I pray thee, mark me.

Mira. O good Sir, I do.

Pro. I thus neglecting worl
To closeness, and the better
With that, which, but by being O'er-priz'd all popular rate, Awak'd an evil nature: and
Like a good parent, did begot
A falsehood, in its contrary as
As my trust was; which had,
A confidence sans‡ bound.
lorded,

Not only with what my reven
But what my power might else
Who having, unto truth, by t
Made such a sinner of his me
To credit his own lie,—he did
He was the duke; out of the
And executing the outward fi
With all prerogative;—Hence Growing,—Dost hear?

Mira. Your tale, Sir, woul

† Quite.

• Abyss. † Sorrow. ‡ Cut at

no screen between this part he day'd it for, he needs will be in : Me, poor man!—my library is large enough; of temporal things

now incapable : confederates was for sway) with the king of
his,
annual tribute, do him homage;
crown to his crown, and bend
yet unbow'd, (alas, poor Milan!)
he stooping.

his condition, and the event; then
be a brother. [tell me,
old sin

nobly of my grandmother :
have borne bad sons.

his condition.

Caples, being an enemy
etc, hearkens my brother's suit;
at he in lieu o' the premises,—
I know not how much tribute,— fly extirpate me and mine
kingdom; and confer fair Milan, ancours, on my brother: Whereon,
I am levied, one midnight
purpose, did Antonio open [ness, Milan; and, i' the dead of dark-
for the purpose hurried thence rying self.

h, for pity!

bring how I cried out then,
er again, it is a hint;
time eyes.

a little further.

bring thee to the present business
upon us; without the which, this pertinent. [story

efore did they not stroy us?

demanded, wench,

okes that question. Dear, they
not;

ve my people bore me) nor set body on the business, but fairer painted their foul ends.

hurried us aboard a bark;
leagues to sea; where they prease of a boat, not rigg'd, [pared ail, nor mast, the very rats
had quit it there they hoist us,
sea that roar'd to us, to sigh
whose pity, sighing back again,
ving wrong.

k! what trouble

o you!

cherubim [smile,
hat did preserve me! Thou didst
a fortitude from heaven, [salt;

deck'd the sea with drops full eden groan'd; which raised in me
rg stomach, to bear up
t should ensue.

'came we ashore?

vidence divine.

bad, and some fresh water, that politian, Gonzalo,
arity, (who being then appointed design,) did give us; with a, linens, stuffs, and necessaries,
have steaded much; so, of his cesses,

w'd my books, he furnish'd me,

From my own library, with volumes that I prize above my dukedom.

Mira. 'Would I might

But ever see that man!

Pro. Now I arise.—

Sit still, and hear the last of our sea-sorrow.
Here in this island we arriv'd; and here [sit
Have I, thy schoolmaster, made thee more pro-
Than other princes can, that have more time
For vainer hours, and tutors not so careful.

Mira. Heavens thank you for't! And now, I pray you, Sir,

(For still 'tis beating in my mind,) your reason
For raising this sea storm?

Pro. Know thus far forth.—

By accident most strange, bountiful fortune,
Now, my dear lady, hath mine enemies
Brought to this shore; and by my presence
I find my zenith doth depend upon
A most auspicious star; whose influence
If now I court not, but omit, my fortunes
Will ever after droop.—Here cease more questions;

Thou art inclin'd to sleep; 'tis a good dulness,
And give it way;—I know thou canst not choose.— [Miranda sleeps.

Come away, servant, come: I am ready now;
Approach, my Ariel; come.

Enter ARIEL.

Ari. All hail, great master! grave sir, hail!
I come

To answer thy best pleasure; be't to fly,
To swim, to dive into the fire, to ride
On the curl'd clouds; to thy strong bidding
Ariel, and all his quality. [task

Pro. Hast thou, spirit,
Perform'd to point* the tempest that I bade

Ari. To every article. [thee?

I boarded the king's ship; now on the beach,
Now in the waist, the deck, in every cabin,
I flam'd amazement: Sometimes, I'd divide,
And burn in many places; on the top-mast,
The yards, and bowsprit, would I flame distinctly, [precursors

Then meet, and join: Joy's lightnings, the O' the dreadful thunder-claps, more momentary [cracks

And sight-out-running were not: The fire, and Of sulphurous roaring, the most mighty Neptune [tremble,

Seem'd to besiege, and make his bold waves
Yea, his dread trident shake.

Pro. My brave spirit!

Who was so firm, so constant, that this coil
Would not infect his reason?

Ari. Not a soul

But felt a fever of the mad, and play'd
Some tricks of desperation. All, but mariners, Plung'd in the foaming brine, and quit the vessel. [dinand,

Then all a fire with me: the king's son, Fer-
With hair up-starting (then like reeds, not hair,)
Was the first man that leap'd; cried, Hell is
And all the devils are here. [empty,

Pro. Why, that's my spirit!

But was not this nigh shore?

Ari. Close by, my master.

Pro. But are they, Ariel, safe?

Ari. Not a hair perish'd;

On their sustaining garments not a blemish,
But fresher than before; and, as thou bad'st
me,

In troops I have dispers'd them 'bout the isle;
The king's son have I landed by himself;

* Consideration. † Suggestion.
‡ Stubborn resolution.

* The minutest article ‡ Bussle, tumult.

Whom I left cooling of the air with sighs,
In an odd angle of the isle, and sitting,
His arms in this sad knot.

Pro. Of the king's ship,
The mariners, say, how thou hast dispos'd,
And all the rest o' the fleet?

Ari. Safely in harbour
Is the king's ship; in the deep nook, where once
Thou call'dst me up at midnight, to fetch dew
From the still vex'd Bermoothes,* there she's
The mariners all under hatches stow'd; [hid:
Whom, with a charm join'd to their suffer'd
labour,
I have left asleep: and for the rest o' the fleet,
Which I dispers'd, they all have met again;
And are upon the Mediterranean flote,†
Bound sadly home for Naples; [wreck'd,
Supposing that they saw the king's ship
And his great person perish.

Pro. Ariel, thy charge
Exactly is perform'd; but there's more work:
What is the time o' the day?

Ari. Past the mid season.

Pro. At least two glasses: the time 'twixt
six and now,
Must by us both be spent most precious.

Ari. Is there more toil? Since thou dost give me pains, [mis'd,
Let me remember thee what thou hast pro-
Which is not yet perform'd me.

Pro. How now? moody?
What is't thou canst demand?

Ari. My liberty.

Pro. Before the time be out? no more.

Ari. I pray thee
Remember, I have done thee worthy service;
Told thee no lies, made no mistakings, serv'd
Without or grudge or grumblings: thou didst promise
To bate me a full year.

Pro. Dost thou forget
From what a torment I did free thee?

Ari. No.

Pro. Thou dost! and think'st
It much, to tread the ooze of the salt deep;
To run upon the sharp wind of the north;
To do me business in the veins o' the earth,
When it is bak'd with frost.

Ari. I do not, Sir.

Pro. Thou liest, malignant thing! Hast thou forgot [envy,
The foul witch Sycorax, who, with age, and
Was grown into a hoop? hast thou forgot her?

Ari. No, Sir. [tell me.

Pro. Thou hast: where was she born? speak;

Ari. Sir, in Argier.‡

Pro. O, was she so? I must,
Once in a month, recount what thou hast been,
Which thou forget'st. This damn'd witch, Sycorax,

For mischiefs manifold, and sorceries terrible
To enter human hearing, from Argier, Thou know'st, was banish'd; for one thing she
did,

They would not take her life: Is not this true?

Ari. Ay, Sir.

Pro. This blue-ey'd hag was hither brought with child,
And here was left by the sailors. Thou, my slave, [vant,

As thou report'st thyself, wast then her ser-
And, for thou wast a spirit too delicate
To act her earthy and abhorr'd commands,
Refusing her grand hests,|| she did confine
By help of her more potent ministers, [thee,

And in her most unmitigable rage,
Into a cloven pine; within which rift
Imprison'd, thou didst painfully remain
A dozen years; within which space she died,
And left thee there; where thou did'st vent thy groans, [island,

As fast as mill-wheels strike: then was this (Save for the son that she did litter here,
A freckled whelp, hag-born) not honour'd with A human shape.

Ari. Yes; Caliban her son.

Pro. Dull thing, I say so; he, that Caliban,
Whom now I keep in service. Thou best know'st
What torment I did find thee in: thy groans Did make wolves howl, and penetrate the breasts

Of ever-angry bears; it was a torment
To lay upon the damn'd, which Sycorax
Could not again undo; it was mine art,
When I arriv'd, and heard thee, that made gape
The pine, and let thee out.

Ari. I thank thee, master.

Pro. If thou more murmur'st, I will rend an
And peg thee in his knotty entrails, till [oak,
Thou hast howl'd away twelve winters.

Ari. Pardon, master:
I will be correspondent to command,
And do my spiriting gently.

Pro. Do so; and after two days
I will discharge thee.

Ari. That's my noble master!
What shall I do? say what? what shall I do.

Pro. Go make thyself like to a nymph o' the
Be subject to no sight but mine; invisible [sea;
To every eye-ball else. Go, take this shape,
And hither come in't: hence, with diligence.

[Exit Ariel.
Awake, dear heart, awake! thou hast slept Awake! [well;

Mira. The strangeness of your story put Heaviness in me.

Pro. Shake it off: come on;
We'll visit Caliban, my slave, who never Yields us kind answer.

Mira. 'Tis a villain, Sir,
I do not love to look on.

Pro. But, as 'tis,
We cannot miss* him: he does make our fire,
Fetch in our wood; and serves in offices
That profit us. What, ho! slave, Caliban!
Thou earth, thou! speak.

Cal. [Within.] There's wood enough within.

Pro. Come forth, I say; there's other business for thee:

Come forth, thou tortoise! when?

Re-enter ARIEL, like a Water-Nymph.

Fine apparition! My quaint Ariel,
Hark in thine ear.

Ari. My lord, it shall be done. [Exit.

Pro. Thou poisonous slave, got by the devil himself
Upon thy wicked dam, come forth!

Enter CALIBAN.

Cal. As wicked dew as e'er my mother brush'd
With raven's feather from unwholesome fen,
Drop on you both! a south-west blow on ye,
And blister you all o'er!

Pro. For this, be sure, to-night thou shalt have cramps, [chins
Side-stitches that shall pen thy breath up; un-Shall, for that vast of night that they may work,
All exercise on thee: thou shalt be pinch'd

* Bermudas. † Wave. ‡ Algiers. || Commands.

* Do without.

† Fairies.

As thick as honey-combs, each pluck more Than bees that made them. [singing]

Cal. I must eat my dinner.
This island's mine, by my own right; here
Which thou tak'st from me. When thou comest first,

'on stalk'st me, and ead'st such of me;
would'st give me

Water with berries in't; and teach me how
To name the bigger light, and how the less,
That burn by day and night: and then I lov'd
thee,

And show'd thee all the qualities o' the isle,
The fresh springs, hallow'd pits, barren place, and fertile;

Could he I that did so!—All the charms
Of Sycorax, toads, beetles, bats, light on you!
For I am all the subjects that you have,
Which first was mine own king: and here you sty me

In this hard rock, whilst you do keep from me
The rest of the island.

Pro. Thou most lying slave, Whom stripes may move, not kindness: I have us'd thee,

Pit as thou art, with human care; and lodg'd
In mine own cell, till thou didst seek to violate
The honour of my child.

Cal. O ho, O ho!—would it had been done!
Thou didst prevent me; I had peopled else
This isle with Calibans.

Pro. Abhorred slave;
Which any print of goodness will not take,
Being capable of all ill! I pitied thee,
Took pains to make thee speak, taught thee
each hour

(the thing or other: when thou didst not, sa-know thine own meaning, but would'st gabble
like

A thing most brutish, I endow'd thy purposes
With words that made them known: But thy vile race,

Though thou didst learn, had that in't which good natures

Could not abide to be with; therefore wast thou Deservedly confin'd into this rock,
Who hadst deserv'd more than a prison. [on't]

Cal. You taught me language; and my profit Is, I know how to curse: the red plague rid me for learning me your language! [you,

Pro. Hag-seed, hence!
Fetch us in fuel; and be quick, thou wert best,
To answer other business. Shrug'st thou, ma-
If thou neglect'st, or dost unwillingly [like?

What I command, I'll rack thee with old cramps;

Fill all thy bones with aches; make thee roar,
That beasts shall tremble at thy din.

Cal. No, 'pray thee!—

I must obey: his art is of such power, [Aside.
It would control my dam's god, Setebos,
And make a vassal of him.

Pro. So, slave; hence! [Exit Caliban.

Re-enter ARIEL invisible, playing and singing;
FERDINAND following him.

ARIEL'S Song.

Come unto these yellow sands,
And then take hands:
Court'sied when you have, and kiss'd,
(The wild waves whist!)
Foot it feebly here and there;
And, sweet sprites, the burden bear.
Hark, hark!

• Distant.

† Still, almost.

Bar. Bough, wough. [disparately.

The mated dogs bark:

Bar. Bough, wough. [disparately.

Hark, hark! I hear

The strain of strutting chivalry,

Cry, Cock-a-doodle-do.

Fer. Where should this music be? 't' the air,
or the earth?

It sounds no more:—and sure, it waits upon
Some god of the island. Sitting on a bank,
Weeping again the king my father's wreck,
This music crept by me upon the waters;
Allaying both their fury, and my passion,
With its sweet air: thence I have follow'd it,
As it hath drawn me rather:—But 'tis gone.
No, it begins again.

ARIEL sings.

Fall fathoms for thy father lies;
Of his bones are coral made;
Those are pearls that were his eyes:
Nothing of him that doth fade,
But doth suffer a sea-change
Into something rich and strange.
Sea-nymphs hourly ring his knell:
Hark! now I hear them,—ding-dong, bell.

[Burdens, ding-dong.

Fer. The ditty does remember my drown'd
father:—

This is no mortal business, nor no sound
That the earth owes:—I hear it now above me.

Pro. The fringed curtains of thine eye ad-
And say, what thou seest yond'. [vance

Mira. What is't? a spirit?

Lord, how it looks about! Believe me, Sir,
It carries a brave form:—But 'tis a spirit.

Pro. No, wench; it eats and sleeps, and bath such senses

As we have, such: This gallant which thou
Was in the wreck; and but he's something stain'd

With grief, that's beauty's canker, thou might'st
A goodly person: he hath lost his fellows,
And strays about to find them.

Mira. I might call him

A thing divine; for nothing natural
I ever saw so noble.

Pro. It goes on,

As my soul prompts it:—Spirit, fine spirit! I'll Within two days for this. [free thee

Fer. Most sure, the goddess

On whom these airs attend!—Vouchsafe, my

May know, if you remain upon this island;

And that you will some good instruction give,

How I may bear me here: My prime request,

Which I do last pronounce, is, O you wonder!

If you be maid, or no?

Mira. No, wonder, Sir;

But, certainly a maid.

Fer. My language! heavens!—

I am the best of them that speak this speech,

Were I but where 'tis spoken.

Pro. How! the best?

What wert thou, if the king of Naples heard

Fer. A single thing, as I am now, that wonders

To hear thee speak of Naples: He does hear me;

And, that he does, I weep: myself am Naples;

Who with mine eyes, ne'er since at ebb, beheld

The king, my father, wreck'd.

Mira. Alack, for mercy!

Fer. Yes, faith, and all his lords; the duke

And his brave son, being twain. [of Milan,

Pro. The duke of Milan,

And his more braver daughter, could control

thee,

• Opera.

† Conclude

the first sight
[Aside. delicate Ariel,
word, good Sir;
if some wrong: a [Thus
her so ungently?
aw; the first
ove my father

th, I'll make you
more.—
ers: but this swift

light winning [Aside.
word more; I ost here usurp
d hast put thyself
win it

an dwell in such a house, [temple:
ell with't.
[To Ferd.
a traitor.—Come.
t together:
hy food shall be ther'd roots, and Follow.

nt, till [He draws.

um, for

word up, traitor;
st not strike, thy
e from thy ward;†
th this stick,

ny garments.

re
not hate thee.

hush! [as he,
more such shapes
Caliban: Foolish
Caliban,

te no ambition

[To Ferd.
y again,

all bound up.
ss which I feel,
a, or this man's
out light to me, n once a day
else o' the earth

† Guard.

Let liberty make use of; space enough
Have I in such a prison.

Pro. It works:—Come on.— Thou hast done well, fine Ariel!—Follow
me.— [To Ferd. and Mira.

Hark, what thou else shalt do me. [To Ariel.
Mira. Be of comfort;
My father's of a better nature, Sir,
Than he appears by speech; this is unwonted,
Which now came from him.

Pro. Thou shalt be as free
As mountain winds: but then exactly do
All points of my command.

Ari. To the syllable.
Pro. Come, follow: speak not for him.
[Exeunt.

ACT II.

SCENE I.—Another Part of the Island.

Enter ALONSO, SEBASTIAN, ANTONIO, GONZALO,
ADRIAN, FRANCISCO, and others.

Gon. Beseech you, Sir, be merry: you have cause

(So have we all) of joy; for our escape
Is much beyond our loss: Our hint of woe
Is common; every day, some sailor's wife,
The masters of some merchant, and the merchant, [cle,

Have just our theme of woe: but for the mira-
I mean our preservation, few in millions
Can speak like us: then wisely, good Sir,
Our sorrow with our comfort. [weigh

Alon. Pr'ythee, peace.
Seb. He receives comfort like cold porridge.

Ant. The visitor will not give him o'er so.
Seb. Look, he's winding up the watch of his wit; by and by it will strike.

Gon. Sir,——
Seb. One:—Tell. [offer'd, Gon. When every grief is entertained, that's Comes to the entertainer—

Seb. A dollar.
Gon. Dolour comes to him, indeed; you have spoken truer than you purposed.

Seb. You have taken it wiselier than I meant
you should.

Gon. Therefore, my Lord,— Ant. Fie, what a spendthrift is he of his Alon. I pr'ythee, spare. [tongue!

Gon. Well, I have done: But yet—
Seb. He will be talking.

Ant. Which of them, he, or Adrian, for a good wager, first begins to crow!

Seb. The old cock.
Ant. The cockrel.

Seb. Done: The wager?
Ant. A laughter.

Seb. A match.
Adr. Though this island seem to be desert,—

Seb. Ha, ha, ha!
Ant. So, you've paid. [ble,—

Adr. Uninhabitable, and almost inaccessi-
Seb. Yet,

Adr. Yet—
Ant. He could not miss it.

Adr. It must needs be of subtle, tender, and delicate temperance.*

Ant. Temperance was a delicate wench.
Seb. Ay, and a subtle; as he most learnedly delivered. [sweetly.

Adr. The air breathes upon us here most
Seb. As if it had lungs, and rotten ones.

Ant. Or, as 'twere perfumed by a fen. [life.
Gon. Here is every thing advantageous to

Ant. True; save means to live.

* Temperance.

Seb. Of that there's none, or little.

Gen. How lush* and luscious the grass looks? how green?

Ant. The ground, indeed, is tawny.

Seb. With an eye† of green in't.

Ant. He misses not much. [totally.

Seb. No; he doth but mistake the truth.

Gen. But the rarity of it is (which is indeed almost beyond credit)—

Seb. As many vouch'd rarities are.

Gen. That our garments, being, as they were, drenched in the sea, hold, notwithstanding, their freshness, and glosses; being rather new dyed, than stain'd with salt water.

Ant. If but one of his pockets could speak, would it not say, he lies?

Seb. Ay, or very falsely pocket up his report.

Gen. Methinks, our garments are now as fresh as when we put them on first in Afric, at the marriage of the king's fair daughter Claribel to the king of Tunis.

Seb. 'Twas a sweet marriage, and we prosper well in our return.

Ant. Tunis was never graced before with such a paragon to their queen.

Gen. Not since widow Dido's time.

Ant. Widow? a pox o' that! How came that widow in? Widow Dido!

Seb. What if he had said, widower Æneas too! good lord, how you take it!

Ant. Widow Dido, said you? you make me study of that: she was of Carthage, not of Tunis.

Gen. This Tunis, Sir, was Carthage.

Ant. Carthage?

Gen. I assure you, Carthage. [harp.

Ant. His word is more than the miraculous.

Seb. He hath raised the wall, and houses too.

Ant. What impossible matter will he make easy next?

Seb. I think, he will carry this island home in his pocket, and give it his son for an apple.

Ant. And, sowing the kernels of it in the sea, bring forth more islands.

Gen. Ay?

Ant. Why, in good time.

Gen. Sir, we were talking, that our garments seem now as fresh, as when we were at Tunis, at the marriage of your daughter, who is now queen.

Ant. And the rarest that e'er came there.

Seb. 'Bate, I beseech you, widow Dido.

Ant. O, widow Dido; ay, widow Dido.

Gen. Is not, Sir, my doublet as fresh as the first day I wore it? I mean, in a sort.†

Ant. That sort was well fish'd for.

Gen. When I wore it at your daughter's marriage? [against Alon. You cram these words into mine ears, The stomach of my sense: 'Would I had never Married my daughter there! for, coming thence,

My son is lost; and, in my rate, she too, Who is so far from Italy remov'd, I ne'er again shall see her. O thou mine heir Of Naples and of Milan, what strange fish Hath made his meal on thee!

From. Sir, he may live; I saw him beat the surges under him, And ride upon their backs; he trod the water, Whose enmity he flung aside, and breasted The surge most swoln that met him: his bold head

'Bove the contentious waves he kept, and oar'd Himself with his good arms in lusty stroke

To the shore, that o'er his wave-worn basis bow'd,

As stooping to relieve him: I not doubt, He came alive to land.

Alon. No, no, he's gone.

Seb. Sir, you may thank yourself for this great loss; [daughter,

That would not bless our Europe with your But rather lose her to an African;

Where she, at least, is banish'd from your eye, Who hath cause to wet the grief on't.

Alon. Pr'ythee, peace.

Seb. You were kneel'd to, and importun'd otherwise

By all of us; and the fair soul herself Weigh'd, between loathness and obedience, at Which end o' the beam she'd bow. We have lost your son,

I fear, for ever: Milan and Naples have More widows in them of this business' making, Than we bring men to comfort them: the fault's Your own.

Alon. So is the dearest of the loss.

Gen. My lord Sebastian, The truth you speak doth lack some gentleness, And time to speak it in: you rub the sore, When you should bring the plaster.

Seb. Very well.

Ant. And most chirurgeonly.

Gen. It is foul weather in us all, good Sir, When you are cloudy.

Seb. Foul weather?

Ant. Very foul.

Gen. Had I a plantation of this isle, my lord,—

Ant. He'd sow it with nettle-seed.

Seb. Or docks, or mallows. [do?

Gen. And were the king of it, What would I

Seb. 'Scape being drunk, for want of wine.

Gen. I' the commonwealth I would by contraries

Execute all things: for no kind of traffic Would I admit; no name of magistrate; Letters should not be known; no use of service, Of riches or of poverty; no contracts, Successions; bound of land, tilth, vineyard, No use of metal, corn, or wine, or oil: [none. No occupation; all men idle, all; And women too; but innocent and pure: No sovereignty:—

Seb. And yet he would be king on't.—

Ant. The latter end of his commonwealth forgets the beginning. [produce

Gen. All things in common nature should Without sweat or endeavour: treason, felony, Sword, pike, knife, gun, or need of any engine,* Would I not have; but nature should bring forth,

Of its own kind, all foison,† all abundance, To feed my innocent people.

Seb. No marrying 'mong his subjects?

Ant. None, man; all idle; whores, and knaves. [Sir,

Gen. I would with such perfection govern, To excel the golden age.

Seb. 'Save his majesty!

Ant. Long live Gonzalo!

Gen. And, do you mark me, Sir?—

Alon. Pr'ythee, no more: thou dost talk nothing to me.

Gen. I do well believe your highness; and did it to minister occasion to these gentlemen, who are of such sensible and nimble lungs, that they always use to laugh at nothing.

Ant. 'Twas you we laughed at.

Gen. Who, in this kind of merry fooling, am

THE TEMPEST.

ay continue, and

ere given!

flat-long.

of brave mettle;

of her sphere, if

ve weeks without

ng solemn music.

go a bat-fowling.

be not angry.

I will not adven-

Will you laugh

vy?

lon. Seb. and Ant.

leep! I wish mine

[I find

at up my thoughts:

of it:

en it doth,

ile you take your {rest,

ous heavy.

leeps. Exit Ariel.

usiness possesses

climate. [them!

ink? I find not nimble.

consent; [might,

rr-stroke. What

at might?—No n thy face,

occasion speaks

crown

g?

peak?

thou speak'st

thou didst say?

asleep

ding, speaking,

{moving,

ep—die rather;

{wink'st

ctly;

my custom: you

hich to do,

water.

low.

purpose cherish,

, in stripping it,

en, indeed,

om run,

cheek, proclaim

th, indeed,

ld.

embrance, this

(Who shall be of as little men

When he is earth'd) hath here

(For he's a spirit of persuasie

The king, his son's alive; 'ti

That he's undrown'd, as he swims.

Seb. I have no hope.

That he's undrown'd.

Ant. O, out of that no hope

What great hope have you

way, is Another way so high an hope

Ambition cannot pierce a wis

But doubts discovery there.

with me,

That Ferdinand is drown'd?

Seb. He's gone.

Ant. Then, tell me,

Who's the next heir of Naples

Seb. Claribel.

Ant. She that is queen of dwells

Ten leagues beyond man's life

Can have no note, unless the

(The man; ' the moon's too slow

chins

Be rough and rasorable; she,

We were all sea-swallow'd, t

again;

And, by that, destin'd to perf

Whereof what's past is prologu

In yours and my discharge.

Seb. What stuff is this?—H

'Tis true my brother's daugh

Tunis;

So is she heir of Naples; 'twix

There is some space.

Ant. A space whose every

Seems to cry out, How shall th

Measure us back to Naples?—H

And let Sebastian wake!—H

That now hath seiz'd them; w!

Than now they are: There be

Naples,

As well as he that sleeps; lord

As amply, and unnecessarily,

As this Gonzalo; I myself cou

A chough* of as deep chat. (

The mind that I do! what a al

For your advancement! Do

Seb. Methinks, I do.

Ant. And how does your oon

Tender your own good fortune

Seb. I remember,

You did supplant your brother

Ant. True:

And, look, how well my garne

Much feater than before: My br

Were then my fellows, now th

Seb. But, for your conscience

Ant. Ay, Sir; where lies th

'Twould put me to my slipper;

This deity in my bosom: twent

That stand 'twixt me and Mil

they,

And melt, ere they molest!

No better than the earth he lies

If he were that which now he's

With this obedient steel, three

Can lay to bed for ever: whiles y

To the perpetual wink for aye!

This ancient moreel, this air Pr

Should not upbraid our course. I

They'll take suggestion,† as a c

* A bird of the jack-law kind. † Br

They'll tell the clock to any business that
We say baffle the hour.

Seb. Thy case, dear friend,
Shall be my precedent; as thou got'st Milan,
I'll come by Naples. Draw thy sword: one stroke

Shall free thee from the tribute which 'thou
And I the king shall love thee. [pay'nt;

Ant. Draw together:

And when I rear my hand, do you the like,
To fall it on Gonzalo.

Seb. O, but one word. [They converse apart.

Music. Re-enter ARIEL, invisible.

Ari. My master through his art foresees the danger [forth,
That these, his friends, are in; and sends me
(For else his project dies,) to keep them living.
[Sings in GONZALO'S ear.

While you here do snoring lie,
Open-eyed conspiracy

His time doth take:

If of life you keep a care,

Shake off slumber, and beware:

Awake! awake!

Ant. Then let us both be sudden.

Gen. Now, good angels, preserve the king!

[They awake.

Alon. Why, how now, ho! awake! Why are you drawn?

Wherefore this ghastly looking?

Gen. What's the matter?

Seb. Whiles we stood here securing your repose, [ing
Even now, we heard a hollow burst of bellow-
like bulls, or rather lions; did it not wake you?
It struck mine ear most terribly.

Alon. I heard nothing.

Ant. O, 'twas a din to fright a monster's ear;
To make an earthquake! sure it was the roar
Of a whole herd of lions.

Alon. Heard you this, Gonzalo?

Gen. Upon mine honour, Sir, I heard a humming, [me:
And that a strange one too, which did awake
I shak'd you, Sir, and cried; as mine eyes
open'd, [noise,
I saw their weapons drawn:---there was a
That's verity: 'Best stand upon our guard;
Or that we quit this place: let's draw our weapons.

Alon. Lead off this ground; and let's make further search
For my poor son.

Gen. Heavens keep him from these beasts!
For he is, sure, i' the island.

Alon. Lead away.

Ari. Prospero my lord shall know what I have done:

So, king, go safely on to seek thy son. [Aside.
[Exeunt.

SCENE II.—Another part of the island.

Enter CALIBAN, with a burden of wood.

A noise of thunder heard.

Cal. All the infections that the sun sucks up From bogs, fens, flats, on Prosper fall, and make him

By inch-meal a disease! His spirits hear me,
And yet I needs must curse. But they'll nor pinch, [mire,

Fright me with urchin shows, pitch me i' the Nor lead me, like a fire-brand, in the dark

(Out of my way, unless he bid them; but
For every trifle are they set upon me:

Sometimes like apes, that moe^a and chatter at
me,

And after, bite me; then like hedge-hogs, which Lie tumbling in my bare-foot way, and mount
Their prick at my foot-fall; sometime am I
All wound with adders, who, with cloven
tongues,

Do hiss me into madness:---Lo! now! lo!

Enter TAINCOLO.

Here comes a spirit of his; and to torment me,
For bringing wood in slowly: I'll fall flat;
Perchance, he will not mind me.

Tvin. Here's neither bush nor shrub, to bear off any weather at all, and another storm brewing; I hear it sing i' the wind: yond' some black cloud, yond' huge one, looks like a foul bumbard; that would shed his liquor. If it should thunder, as it did before, I know not where to hide my head: yond' some cloud cannot choose but fall by painfuls.---What have we here? a man or a fish? Dead or alive? A fish: he smells like a fish; a very ancient and fish-like smell; a kind of, not of the newest, Poor-John. A strange fish! Were I in England now (as once I was), and had but this fish painted, not a holiday-fool there but would give a piece of silver: there would this monster make a man; any strange beast there makes a man: when they will not give a dott to relieve a lame beggar, they will lay out ten to see a dead Indian. Legg'd like a man! and his fins like arms! Warm, o' my troth! I do now let loose my opinion, hold it no longer; this is no
fish but an islander, that hath lately suffered by a thunderbolt. [Thunder.] Alas! the storm is come again: my best way is to creep under his gaberdine; † there is no other shelter hereabout: Misery acquaints a man with strange bed-fellows. I will here shroud, till the dregs of the storm be past.

Enter STEPHANO, singing; a bottle in his hand.

Ste. I shall no more to sea, to sea,
Here shall I die ashore;---

This is a very scurvy tune to sing at a man's funeral:

Well, here's my comfort.

[Drinks.

The master, the swabber, the boatswain, and I,
The gunner, and his mate,

Lov'd Mall, Meg, and Marian, and Margery,
But none of us car'd for Kate:

For she had a tongue with a tang,

Would cry to a sailor, Go, hang:

She lov'd not the savour of tar nor of pitch,

Yet a tailor might scratch her where-e'er she did itch:

Then to sea, boys, and let her go hang.

This is a scurvy tune too: But here's my comfort. [Drinks.

Cal. Do not torment me: O!

Ste. What's the matter? Have we devils here? Do you put tricks upon us with savages, and men of Inde[‡]? Ha! I have not scap'd drowning, to be afeard now of your four legs;
for it hath been said, As proper a man as ever went on four legs, cannot make him give ground: and it shall be said so again, whilst Stephano breathes at nostrils.

Cal. The spirit torments me: O!

Ste. This is some monster of the isle, with four legs; who hath got, as I take it, an ague:
Where the devil should he learn our language?

^a Make mouths. † A black-jack of leather, to hold beer
[‡] The frock of a peasant. † India.

THE TEMPEST.

it be but for that:
 keep him tame, and
 a present for any
 at a leather.

pr'ythee;
 and does not talk
 waste of my bottle:
 afore, it will go
 can recover him,
 not take too much
 in that hath him,

little hurt; thou ling: [wilt
 e.
 open your mouth;
 language to you,
 will shake your hat soundly: you open your chaps

voice: It should
 these are devils:

ices; a most deli-
 voice now is to backward voice to detract. If all over him, I will men! I will pour

call me? Mercy!
 monster: I will
 on.

beest Stephano,
 for I am Trinculo.
 friend Trinculo.
 come forth; I'll
 my be Trinculo's
 art very Trinculo,
 le the siege* of Trinculos?

with a thunder-
 w'n'd, Stephano?
 crown'd. Is the under the dead
 ear of the storm:
 no? O Stephano,

me about; my

on if they be not

celestial liquor:

me? How can'st bottle, how thou
 a butt of sack,
 rboard, by this
 bark of a tree,
 was cast a-shore.
 bottle, to be thy
 not earthly.

thou escap'dst.

like a duck; I can

ough thou canst

de like a goose.

more of this?

my cellar is in a ny wine is hid.

is thine ague?

from heaven?

Ste. Out o' the moon, I do was the man in the moon, whe
 Cal. I have seen thee in her,
 thee;

My mistress showed me thee, th

Ste. Come, swear to that; k

will furnish it anon with new c

Trin. By this good light, thi

low monster:---I afeard of him

monster:---The man i' the moon

credulous monster:---Well dra

good sooth.

Cal. I'll show thee every fer island;

And kiss thy foot: I pr'ythee,

Trin. By this light, a most drunken monster; when his go rob his bottle.

Cal. I'll kiss thy foot: I'll s subject.

Ste. Come on then; down, a

Trin. I shall laugh myself t puppy-headed monster! A mo

ster! I could find in my heart t

Ste. Come, kiss.

Trin. ---but that the poor mo

An abominable monster!

Cal. I'll show thee the be pluck thee berries;

I'll fish for thee, and get thee v

A plague upon the tyrant that

I'll bear him no more sticks, b

Thou wond'rous man.

Trin. A most ridiculous mon

wonder of a poor drunkard.

Cal. I pr'ythee, let me bring t

grow;

And I with my long nails will d

Show thee a jay's nest, and ma

To snare the nimble marmozet

To clust'ring filberds, and son

thee

Young sea-nells* from the rock

with me?

Ste. I pr'ythee now, lead th

any more talking.---Trinculo, t our company else being drown

hent here.---Here; bear my

Trinculo, we'll fill him by and l

Cal. Farewell master; farwe

[E

Trin. A howling monster; a

ster.

Cal. No more dams I'll make;

Nor fetch in firing

At requiring,

Nor scrape trenchering,;

'Hun' Ban, Ca---Cal

Has a new master---C

Freedom, hey-day! hey-day,

dom, hey-day, freedom

Ste. O brave monster! lead th

ACT III.

SCENE I.---Before PROSI

Enter FERDINAND, bears

Fer. There be some sports a their labour

Delight in them sets off: some ki

Are nobly undergone; and moe

Point to rich ends. This my m

As heavy to me, as 'tis odious;

* Sea gulls.

The mistress, which I serve, quickens what's dead,

And makes my labours pleasures: O, she is Ten times more gentle than her father's crab-
bed;

And he's composed of harshness. I must
Sew thousands of these logs, and pile them up,
Upon a sore injunction: My sweet mistress Weeps when she sees me work; and says, such business

Had not like execution. I forget:
But these sweet thoughts do even refresh my Most busy hours, when I do it.

Enter MIRANDA; and PROSPERO at a distance.

Mira. Alas, now I pray you,
Work not so hard: I would, the lightning had Burst up these logs, that you are enjoind to pile!

Pro. Set it down, and rest you: when this Tide weep for having wearied you: My father
Is hard at study; pray now, rest yourself;
It's safe for these three hours.

Fer. O most dear mistress,
The sun will set, before I shall discharge
What I most strive to do.

Mira. If you'll sit down,
I'll bear your logs the while: Pray, give me that;
I'll carry it to the pile.

Fer. No, precious creature:
I had rather crack my shins, break my back,
Than you should such dishonour undergo,
While I sit lazy by.

Mira. It would become me
As well as it does you: and I should do it
With much more ease; for my good will is to it,
And yours against.

Pro. Poor worm! thou art infected;
This visitation shows it.

Mira. You look wearily.

Fer. No, noble mistress; 'tis fresh morning
with me,

When you are by at night. I do beseech you,
(Chiefly, that I might set it in my prayers,)
What is your name?

Mira. Miranda:—O my father,
I have broke your heart* to say so!

Fer. Admir'd Miranda!
Indeed, the top of admiration; worth
What's dearest to the world! Full many a lady
I have ey'd with best regard; and many a time
The harmony of their tongues hath into bondage
Brought my too diligent ear: for several virtues
Have I lik'd several women; never any
With so full soul, but some defect in her
Did quarrel with the noblest grace she ow'd,†
And put it to the foil: But you, O you,
So perfect, and so peerless, are created
Of every creature's best.

Mira. I do not know
One of my sex; no woman's face remember,
Save, from my glass, mine own; nor have I seen None that I may call men, than you, good friend,

And my dear father: how features are abroad,
I am skill-less of; but, by my modesty,
(The jewel in my dower,) I would not wish
Any companion in the world but you;
Nor can imagination form a shape,
Besides yourself, to like of: but I prattle
Something too wildly, and my father's precepts
Therein forget.

Fer. I am, in my condition,
A prince, Miranda; I do think, a king;
(I would, not so!) and would no more endure

This wooden slavery, than I would suffer
The flesh-fly blow my mouth.—Hear my soul
speak;—

The very instant that I saw you, did
My heart fly to your service; there resides,
To make me slave to it; and, for your sake,
Am I this patient log-man.

Mira. Do you love me?

Fer. O heaven, O earth, bear witness to this soul.

And crown what I profess with kind event,
If I speak true; if hollowly, invert
What best is bodied me, to mischief! I,
Beyond all limit of what else* I the world,
Do love, prize, honour you.

Mira. I am a fool,

To weep at what I am glad of.

Pro. Fair encounter

Of two most rare affections! Heavens rain
On that which breeds between them!

Fer. Wherefore weep you?

Mira. At mine unworthiness, that dare not What I desire to give; and much less take,
What I shall die to want: But this is trifling.
And all the more it seeks to hide itself,
The bigger bulk it shows. Hence, bashful cunning!

And prompt me, plain and holy innocence!
I am your wife, if you will marry me;
If not, I'll die your maid: to be your fellow
You may deny me; but I'll be your servant,
Whether you will or no.

Fer. My mistress, dearest,
And I thus humble ever.

Mira. My husband then?

Fer. Ay, with a heart as willing
As bondage e'er of freedom: here's my hand.

Mira. And mine, with my heart in't: And now farewell,
Till half an hour hence.

Fer. A thousand! thousand!

[Exit FER. and MIRA.]

Pro. So glad of this as they, I cannot be,
Who are surpris'd with all; but my rejoicing
At nothing can be more. I'll to my book;
For yet, ere supper time, must I perform
Much business appertaining.

SCENE II.—Another part of the island.

Enter STEPHANO and TRINCULO; CALIBAN
following with a bottle.

Ste. Tell not me;—when the butt is out, we will drink water; not a drop before: therefore bear up, and board 'em: servant-monster,
drink to me.

Trin. Servant-monster? the folly of this island! They say, there's but five upon this isle: we are three of them; if the other two be brained like us, the state totters.

Ste. Drink, servant-monster, when I bid thee; thy eyes are almost set in thy head.

Trin. Where should they be set else? he were a brave monster indeed, if they were set
in his tail.

Ste. My man-monster hath drowned his tongue in sack: for my part, the sea cannot drown me: I swam, ere I could recover the shore, five-and-thirty leagues, off and on, by this light.—Thou shalt be my lieutenant, monster, or my standard.

Trin. Your lieutenant, if you list; he's no standard.

Ste. We'll not run, monsieur monster.

Trin. Nor go neither: but you'll lie, like dogs; and yet say nothing neither.

* Command.

† Own'd.

THE TEMPEST.

[ACT III.]

in thy life, if

Let me lick thy nant. [shoe:

rant monster; I oe: Why, thou ere over man a much sack as I trous lie, being
ster?

' wilt thou let monster should

o death, I pr'y-

tongue in your
the next tree---
t, and he shall

Wilt thou be

I made thee?

nd repeat it; I

o.

ble.

t,

hath

monkey, thou;

d destroy thee:

urn any more in

applant some of

---[To Caliban,]

this isle;

tness will

w, thou dar'st;

and I'll serve

compassed?

ield him thee

into his head.

Thou scurvy

him blows,

when that's

he; for I'll not

urther danger:

o farther, and,

y out of doors,

xt nothing; I'll

ed?

[Strikes him.]

another time.

-Out o' your

A pox o' your inking du---A dress, & swings.]

murrain on your monster, and the devil take your fingers.

Cal. Ha, ha, ha!

Ste. Now, forward with your tale. Pr'ythee stand further off.

Cal. Beat him enough: after a little time,
I'll beat him too.

Ste. Stand further.---Come, proceed.

Cal. Why, as I told thee, 'tis a custom with
him

I' the afternoon to sleep: there thou may'st
brain him,

Having first seiz'd his books; or with a log
Batter his skull, or paunch him with a stake,
Or cut his wezand* with thy knife: Remember,

First to possess his books; for without them
He's but a sot, as I am, nor hath not

One spirit to command: They all do hate him,
As rootedly as I: Burn but his books;

He has brave utensils, (for so he calls them,)
Which, when he has a house, he'll deck withal.

And that most deeply to consider, is
The beauty of his daughter; he himself

Calls her a non-pareil: I ne'er saw woman,
But only Sycorax my dam, and she;

But she as far surpasseth Sycorax,
As greatest does least.

Ste. Is it so brave a lass?

Cal. Ay, lord; she will become thy bed, I warrant,

And bring thee forth brave brood.

Ste. Monster, I will kill this man: his daughter and I will be king and queen; (save our graces!) and Trinculo and thyself shall be viceroys:---Dost thou like the plot, Trinculo?

Trin. Excellent.

Ste. Give me thy hand; I am sorry I beat thee: but, while thou livest, keep a good tongue in thy head.

Cal. Within this half hour will he be asleep;
Wilt thou destroy him then?

Ste. Ay, on mine honour.

Ari. This will I tell my master.

Cal. Thou mak'st me merry: I am full of pleasure;

Let us be jocund: Will you troll the catch
You taught me but while-ere?

Ste. At thy request, monster, I will do reason, any reason: Come on, Trinculo, let us sing. [Sings.

Flout 'em, and scout 'em; and about 'em, and
flout 'em;

Thought is free.

Cal. That's not the tune.

[ARIEL plays the tune on a tabor and pipe.

Ste. What is this same?

Trin. This is the tune of our catch, played by the picture of No-body.

Ste. If thou beest a man, show thyself in thy likeness: if thou beest a devil, take't as thou list.

Trin. O, forgive me my sins!

Ste. He that dies, pays all debts: I defy thee.---Mercy upon us!

Cal. Art thou afeard?

Ste. No, monster, not I.

Cal. Be not afeard; the isle is full of noises, Sounds, and sweet airs, that give delight, and hurt not.

Sometimes a thousand twangling instruments
Will hum about mine ears; and sometimes voices,

That, if I then had wak'd after long sleep,
Will make me sleep again: and then, in dreaming,

* Throat.

The clouds, methought, would open, and show
riches

Ready to drop upon me; that, when I wak'd,
I tried to dream again.

Ala. This will prove a brave kingdom to me,
where I shall have my needs for nothing.

Cal. When Prospero is destroyed.

Ala. That shall be by and by: I remember the story.

Fra. The sound is going away: let's follow
it, and after, do our work.

St. Lead, monster; we'll follow.—I would,
I could see this taker: he lays it on.

Fra. Will come! I'll follow, Stephano.

[Exeunt.]

SCENE III.—Another part of the island.

Alonso, Sebastian, Antonio, Gonzalo,
Adrian, Francisco, and others.

Gen. By'r lakia,* I can go no further, Sir;
My old bones ache: here's a mass trod, indeed,
though forth-right, and meanders! by your
I mean must rest me. [patience,

Ala. Old lord, I cannot blame thee,
thou art myself attack'd with weariness,
to the dulling of my spirits: sit down, and rest.
Even here I will put off my hope, and keep it
no longer for any further: he is drown'd,
whom thus we stray to find; and the sea mocks
our frustrate search on land: Well, let him go.

Ant. I am right glad that he's as out of hope.

[Aside to Sebastian.]

Do not, for one repulse, forgo the purpose
that you resolv'd to effect.

Seb. The next advantage

Will we take thoroughly.

Ant. Let it be to-night;

For, now they are oppress'd with travel, they will not, nor cannot, use such vigilance,
as when they are fresh.

Seb. I say, to-night: no more.

Solemn and strange music; and Prospero above, invisible. Enter several strange Shapes, bringing in a banquet; they dance about it with gentle actions of salutation; and, inviting the king,
&c. to eat, they depart.

Ala. What harmony is this? my good friends,
hark!

Gen. Marvellous sweet music!

Ala. Give us kind keepers, heavens! What were these?

Seb. A living drollery:† Now I will believe, that there are unicorns; that, in Arabia
There is one tree, the phoenix' throne; one
At this hour reigning there. [phoenix

Ant. I'll believe both;

And what does else want credit, come to me,
And I'll be sworn 'tis true: Travellers ne'er
did lie,

Though fools at home condemn them.

Gen. If in Naples

I should report this now, would they believe
If I should say I saw such islanders, [no?

(For, certes,† these are people of the island,)
Who, though they are of monstrous shape, yet,
note,

Their manners are more gentle-kind, than of Our human generation you shall find

Many, nay, almost any.

Fra. Honest lord, [present,
Thou hast said well; for some of you there
Are worse than devils. [Aside.

Ala. I cannot too much muse,†

Such shapes, such gestures, and such sounds, expressing

(Although they want the use of tongues), a kind Of excellent dumb discourse.

Fra. Praise in departing.

[Aside.

Fra. They vanish'd strangely.

Seb. No matter, since

They have left their viands behind; for we have stomachs.—

Will't please you taste of what is here?

Ala. Not I.

Gen. Faith, Sir, you need not fear: When we were boys, [ours,
Who would believe that these were mountain-Dew-lapp'd like bulls, whose throats had hanging at them

Wallets of flesh? or that these were such men, Whose heads stood in their breasts? which now
we find,

Each putting-out an eye for one, will bring us
Good warrant of.

Ala. I will stand to, and feed,

Although my last: no matter, since I feel
The best is past:—Brother, my lord the duke, Stand too, and do as we.

Thunder and Lightning. Enter ARIEL like a harpy; claps his wings upon the table, and,
with a quaint device, the banquet vanishes.

Ari. You are three men of sin, whose destiny
(That hath to instrument this lower world,
And what is in't,) the never-surfetted sea
Hath caus'd to belch up; and on this island
Where man doth not inhabit; you 'mongst men
Being most unfit to live. I have made you mad;

[Seeing ALON, SEB. &c. draw their swords.

And even with such like valour, men hang and drown [fellows

Their proper selves. You fools! I and my
Are ministers of fate; the elements

Of whom your swords are temper'd, may as well [slabs

Wound the loud winds, or with bemock'd-at Kill the still-closing waters, as diminish
One dowle* that's in my plume; my fellow-ministers

Are like invulnerable: if you could hurt,
Your swords are now too massy for your strengths,

And will not be uplifted: But, remember,
(For that's my business to you,) that you three
From Milan did supplant good Prospero,
Expos'd unto the sea, which hath requit it,
Him, and his innocent child: for which foul
deed

The powers, delaying, not forgetting, have Incens'd the seas and shores, yea all the creatures,

Against your peace: Thee, of thy son, Alonso,
They have bereft; and do pronounce by me,
Lingering perdition (worse than any death
Can be at once,) shall step by step attend
You, and your ways; whose wrath to guard you from (Which here, in this most desolate isle, else falls Upon your heads,) is nothing, but heart's sor-

And a clear life ensuing. [row,

He vanishes in thunder: then, to soft music, enter the Shapes again, and dance with mops and meers, and carry out the table.

Fra. [Aside.] Bravely the figure of this harpy hast thou

Perform'd, my Ariel; a grace it had, devouring;
Of my instruction hast thou nothing 'bated,

* Our Lady. † Show. ‡ Certainly. § Wonder.

* Down.

† Pure, innocent

THE TEMPEST.

[ACT IV.

with good life,
neener ministers
my high charms

knit up
are in my power;
whilst I visit
they suppose is

ERO from above,
g holy, Sir, why

onstrous!
and told me of it;
d the thunder,
pe, pronounc'd
s my trespass.
ledged, and
ummet sounded,
[Exit.

SEN. and ANT.
desperate; their

eat time after,
do beseech you
w them swiftly,
s ecstasy"

[Exeunt.

ERO's cell.

and MIRANDA.

unish'd you,

nds; for I

mine own life,

once again

nations

and thou

ere, afore Hea-

emand, [ven,

t her off,

strip all praise,

me own acquiughter: But

ot before

ay

ter'd,

avens let fall

at barren hate,

shall bestrew

is so loathly,

therefore, take

ou. [heed,

ong life,

murkiest den,

strong't sug-

ever melt

away

as' steeds are

Sprinkling.

Pro. Fairly spoke:
Sit then, and talk with her, she is thine own,—
What, Ariel; my industrious servant Ariel!

Enter ARIEL.

Ari. What would my potent master? here I am.

Pro. Thou and thy meaner fellows your last service

Did worthily perform; and I must use you
In such another trick: go, bring the rabble,
O'er whom I give thee power, here, to this place:

Incite them to quick motion; for I must Bestow upon the eyes of this young couple
Some vanity of mine art; it is my promise,
And they expect it from me.

Ari. Presently?

Pro. Ay, with a twink.

Ari. Before you can say, Come, and go,
And breathe twice; and cry, so, so;
Each one, tripping on his toe,
Will be here with mop and mow:

Do you love me, master? no.

Pro. Dearly, my delicate Ariel: Do not ap-
Till thou dost hear me call. [proach,

Ari. Well I conceive. [Exit.

Pro. Look, thou be true; do not give dal-liance [straw
Too much the rein; the strongest oaths are
To the fire i' the blood: be more abstemious,
Or else, good night, your vow!

Fer. I warrant you, Sir;

The white-cold virgin snow upon my heart
Abates the ardour of my liver.

Pro. Well---

Now come, my Ariel; bring a corollary,*
Rather than want a spirit; appear, and perty.---
No tongue; all eyes; be silent. [Soft music.

A Masque. Enter IRLS.

Iris. Ceres, most bounteous lady, thy rich lees
Of wheat, rye, barley, vetches, oats, and peas;
Thy turfy mountains, where live nibbling sheep,
And flat meads thatch'd with stover, them b-

keep;
Thy banks with peonied and lillied brims,
Which spongy April at thy best betrimed,
To make cold nymphs chaste crowns; and broom groves,

Whose shadow the dismissed bachelor love:
Being lass-lorn; thy pole-clipt vineyard;
And thy sea-marge, sterile, and rocky-hard,
Where thou thyself dost air: The queen o'

sky,
Whose watery arch, and messenger, am I,
Bids thee leave these; and with her sovereign
grace,

Here on this grass-plot, in this very place,
To come and sport, her peacocks fly amain;
Approach, rich Ceres, her to entertain.

Enter CERES.

Cer. Hail, many-colour'd messenger, that Dost disobey the wife of Jupiter; [ne'er
Who, with thy saffron wings, upon my flowers
Diffusest honey-drops, refreshing showers:
And with each end of thy blue bow dost crown
My bosky acres, and my unshrubb'd downs, Rich scarf to my proud earth; Why hath thy queen [green?

Summon'd me hither, to this short-grass'd

Iris. A contract of true love to celebrate;
And some donation freely to estate
On the bless'd lovers.

* Surplus.

† Command.

‡ Woofy.

Cer. Tell me, heavenly bow,
If Venus, or her son, as thou dost know,
Do now attend the queen? since they did plot
The manner, that dusky Dis* my daughter got,
Her and her blind boy's scandal'd company
I have sworn.

Air. Of her society
Be not afraid: I met her daily
Cutting the clouds towards Paphos; and her son Dove-drawn with her: here thought they to
have done

Some wanton charm upon this man and maid,
Whose vows are, that no bed-rite shall be paid,
Till Hymen's torch be lighted: but in vain;
Her hot minion is return'd again;
Her waspish-headed son has broke his arrows,
Swears he will shoot no more, but play with
And be a boy right out. [sparrows,

Cer. Highest queen of state,
Gent Juno comes; I know her by her gait.

Enter Juno.

Juno. How does my bounteous sister? Go
with me,

T. Mean this twain, that they may prosperous
And honour'd in their issue. [he,

Sings.

Juno. Honour, riches, marriage-blessing,
Long continuance, and increasing,
Hourly joys be still upon you!
Juno sings her blessings on you.

Cer. Earth's increase, and fulsome plenty;
Barns, and garners never empty;
Vines, with clust'ring bunches growing;
Plants, with goodly burden bearing;
Spring come to you, at the farthest,
In the very end of harvest!
Scarcity, and want, shall shun you;
Ceres' blessing so is on you.

Fer. This is a most majestic vision, and Harmonious charmingly: May I be bold
To think these spirits?

Pro. Spirits, which by mine art
I have from their confines call'd to enact
My present fancies.

Fer. Let me live here ever;
So rare a wonder'd father, and a wife,
Make this place Paradise.

[Juno and Ceres whisper, and send Iats on employment.

Pro. Sweet now, silence:
Juno and Ceres whisper seriously;
There's something else to do: hush, and be
Or else our spell is marr'd. [mute,

Air. You nymphs, call'd Naiads, of the wand-d'ring brooks, [looks,
With your sedg'd crowns, and ever harmless
Leave your crisp channels, and on this green
land

Answer your summons; Juno does command:
Come, temperate nymphs, and help to celebrate

A contract of true love; be not too late.

Enter certain Nymphs.

You sun-burn'd sicklemen, of August weary,
Come hither from the furrow, and be merry;
Make holy-day: your rye-straw hats put on,
And these fresh nymphs encounter every one
In country footing.

Enter certain Reapers, properly habited: they join with the Nymphs in a graceful dance; towards the end whereof Prospero starts suddenly, and speaks; after which, to a strange, hollow, and soften'd noise, they homely vanish.

Pro. [Aside.] I had forgot that foul conspiracy
Of the beast Caliban, and his confederates,
Against my life; the minute of their plot
Is almost come.---[To the spirits.] Well done;--- avoid;---no more.

Fer. This is most strange: your father's in some passion
That works him strangely.

Mira. Never till this day,
Saw I him touch'd with anger so distemper'd.

Pro. You do look, my son, in a mov'd sort,
As if you were dismay'd: be cheerful, Sir:
Our revels now are ended. these our actors,
As I foretold you, were all spirits, and
Are melted into air, into thin air:

And, like the baseless fabric of this vision,
The cloud-capp'd towers, the gorgeous palaces,
The solemn temples, the great globe itself,
Yea, all which it inherit, shall dissolve;
And, like this insubstantial pageant faded,*
Leave not a rack behind: We are such stuff
As dreams are made of, and our little life
Is rounded with a sleep.---Sir, I am vex'd; Bear with my weakness; my old brain is troubled.

Be not disturb'd with my infirmity:
If you be pleas'd, retire into my cell,
And there repose; a turn or two I'll walk,
To still my beating mind.

Fer. Mira. We wish you peace. [Exeunt.

Pro. Come with a thought:---I thank you:--- Ariel, come.

Enter ARIEL.

Ari. Thy thoughts I cleave to; What's thy pleasure?

Pro. Spirit,
We must prepare to meet with Caliban.

Ari. Ay, my Commander: when I presented
Ceres,

I thought to have told thee of it; but I fear'd,
Lest I might anger thee.

Pro. Say again, where didst thou leave these varlets?

Ari. I told you, Sir, they were red-hot with drinking;

So full of valour, that they smote the air
For breathing in their faces; beat the ground
For kissing of their feet: yet always bending
Towards their project: Then I beat my tabor,
At which, like unback'd colts, they prick'd
their ears,

Advanc'd their eye-lids, lifted up their noses,
As they smelt music; so I charm'd their ears,
That, calf-like, they my lowing follow'd,
through

Tooth'd briars, sharp furzes, pricking goos,
and thorns, [them
Which enter'd their frail shins: at last I left
I' the filthy mantled pool beyond your cell,
There dancing up to the chins, that the foul
O'er-stunk their feet. [lake

Pro. This was well done, my bird:
Thy shape invisible retain thou still:
The trumpery in my house, go, bring it hither,
For stale; to catch these thieves.

Ari. I go, I go. [Exit.

Pro. A devil, a born devil, on whose nature
Nurture can never stick; on whom my pains,

* Vanished.

† A body of clouds in motion; but it is generally supposed that the author wrote trunk.

‡ Salt.

§ Education.

* Plots † Abundance ‡ Able to produce such wonders.

THE TEMPEST.

[ACT V.]

ate lost ;
r grows,
ue them all,
ring apparel,
them on this visible. Enter SCULO; all wet.
that the blind
ar his cell.
h, you say, is lle better than horse-piss; at uation.
r, monster? If ust you; look monster.
y favour still:
ng thee to
ee: therefore,
bottles in the e and dishonour
loss.
n my wetting:
monster.
e, though I be
net. Seest thou [enter:
no noise, and may make this Caliban,
begin to have peer! O worthy robe here is for
it is but trash.
know what be-Stephano!
mculo; by this
it.
fool! what do
? Let's along,
awake,
our skins with [pinches;
-Mistress line,
the jerkin under
like to lose your line and level,
st. here's a gar-
rewarded, while steal by line and
ite, there's none lime upon
he rest.
e shall lose our

† Ever
‡ Bird-lime.

And all be turn'd to barnacles, or to apes
With foreheads villainous low.
Ste. Monster, lay-to your fingers; help to bear this away, where my hog'shead of wine is, or I'll turn you out of my kingdom: go to, carry this.
Trin. And this.
Ste. Ay, and this.
A noise of hunters heard. Enter divers Spirits,
in shape of hounds, and hunt them about;
PROSPERO and ARIEL setting them on.
Pro. Hey, Mountain, hey!
Ari. Silcer! there it goes, Silcer!
Pro. Fury, Fury! there, Tyrant, there! hark,
hark!
[CAL. STE. and TRIN. are driven out.
Go, charge my goblins that they grind their
joints
With dry convulsions; shorten up their sinews
With aged cramps; and more pinch-spotted make them
Than pard,* or cat o' mountain.
Ari. Hark, they roar.
Pro. Let them be hunted soundly: At this Lie at my mercy all mine enemies: [hour
Shortly shall all my labours end, and thou Shalt have the air at freedom: for a little,
Follow, and do me service. [Exeunt.

ACT V.

SCENE I.—Before the Cell of PROSPERO.

Enter PROSPERO in his magic robes, and ARIEL.

Pro. Now does my project gather to a head:
My charms crack not; my spirits obey; and
time

Goes upright with his carriage. How's the day?

Ari. On the sixth hour; at which time, my
You said our work should cease. [lord,

Pro. I did say so,
When first I rais'd the tempest. Say, my spirit,
How fares the king and his?

Ari. Confin'd together

In the same fashion as you gave in charge;

Just as you left them, Sir; all prisoners

In the lime-grove which weather-fends† your cell;

They cannot budge, till you release. The king,

His brother, and yours, abide all three distracted;

And the remainder mourning over them,
Brim-full of sorrow, and dismay; but chiefly

Hau you term'd, Sir, The good old lord, Gonzalo;

His tears run down his beard, like winter's drops

From eaves‡ of reeds: your charm so strongly
works them,

That if you now beheld them, your affections
Would become tender.

Pro. Dost thou think so, spirit?

Ari. Mine would, Sir, were I human.

Pro. And mine shall.

Hast thou, which art but air, a touch, a feeling
Of their afflictions? and shall not myself,

One of their kind, that relish all as sharply,
Passion as they, be kindlier mov'd than thou
art?

Though with their high wrongs I am struck to
the quick,

Yet, with my nobler reason, 'gainst my fury
Do I take part: the rarer action is

In virtue than in vengeance: they being pen'd,
The sole drift of my purpose doth extend

Not a frown further: Go, release them, Ariel;

Not a frown further: Go, release them, Ariel;

Not a frown further: Go, release them, Ariel;

Not a frown further: Go, release them, Ariel;

Not a frown further: Go, release them, Ariel;

Not a frown further: Go, release them, Ariel;

Not a frown further: Go, release them, Ariel;

Not a frown further: Go, release them, Ariel;

Not a frown further: Go, release them, Ariel;

Not a frown further: Go, release them, Ariel;

Not a frown further: Go, release them, Ariel;

Not a frown further: Go, release them, Ariel;

Not a frown further: Go, release them, Ariel;

Not a frown further: Go, release them, Ariel;

Not a frown further: Go, release them, Ariel;

Not a frown further: Go, release them, Ariel;

Not a frown further: Go, release them, Ariel;

Not a frown further: Go, release them, Ariel;

Not a frown further: Go, release them, Ariel;

Not a frown further: Go, release them, Ariel;

Not a frown further: Go, release them, Ariel;

Not a frown further: Go, release them, Ariel;

Not a frown further: Go, release them, Ariel;

Not a frown further: Go, release them, Ariel;

Not a frown further: Go, release them, Ariel;

Not a frown further: Go, release them, Ariel;

Not a frown further: Go, release them, Ariel;

Not a frown further: Go, release them, Ariel;

Not a frown further: Go, release them, Ariel;

* Leopard. † Defends from bad weather. ‡ Thatch.

Will break, their senses I'll restore,
Be themselves.

Oh them, Sir. [Exit,
Of hills, brooks, standing lakes,
groves;

On the sands with printless foot
Ebbing Neptune, and do fly him,
So back, you demi-puppets, that
Do the green-sour ringlets make,
Sweet not bites; and you, whose
No
Knight-mushrooms; that rejoice
At man's curfew; by whose aid
As though you be,) I have be-d [winds,
A sun, call'd forth the mutinous
The green sea and the azure vault
Up to the dread rattling thunder
Fire, and rifted Jove's stout oak bolt: the strong-bas'd promontory
shake; and by the spurs pluck'd

cedar: graves, at my command,
Their sleepers; open, and let them not art. But this rough magic

: and, when I have requir'd
y music, (which even now I do,) end upon their senses, that in is for, I'll break my staff,
A fathoms in the earth,
has did ever plummet sound, hook. [Solena music.

EL: after him, ALONSO, with a re, attended by GONZALO, SEBAS-TROXIO in like manner, attended and FRANCISCO. They all enter the Prospero had made, and there
ed; which PROSPERO observing,

and the best comforter
d fancy, cure thy brains, boil'd within thy skull! There
well-stopp'd — [stand,
, honourable man,
en sociable to the show of thine,
drops.—The charm dissolves

; wing steals upon the night, arkness, so their rising senses
e the ignorant fumes that mantle reason.—O my good Gonzalo,
rver, and a loyal air
allow'st, I will pay thy graces
word and deed.—Most cruelly lonso, use me and my daughter
as a furtherer in the art;—
'd for't now, Sebastian.—Flesh
lood,
vine, that entertain'd ambition,
ree* and nature; who, with Se-
n,
rd pinches therefore are most

;) I've kill'd your king; I do forgive [standing ough thou art!—Their under-ll; and the approaching tide
ll the reasonable shores,
ol and muddy. Not one of them,
on me, or would know me—

at and rapier in my cell;
[Exit ARIEL.

ty, or tenderness of heart.

I will dis-case me, and myself present,
As I was sometime Milan:—quickly, spirit;
Thou shalt ere long be free.

ARIEL re-enters, singing, and helps to untie
PROSPERO.

Ar. Where the bee sucks, there suck I;
In a cowslip's bell I lie:
There I couch when cicads do cry.
On the bat's back I do fly,
After summer, merrily
Merrily, merrily, shall I live now,
Under the blossom that hangs on the bough.

Pro. Why, that's my dainty Ariel: I shall miss thee;
But yet thou shalt have freedom. No, no, no. —
To the king's ship, invisible as thou art:
There shalt thou find the mariners asleep
Under the hatches; the master, and the boatswain,

Being awake, enforce them to this place;
And presently, I pry thee.

Ari. I drink the air before me, and return
Or e'er your pulse twice beat. [Exit ARIEL.

Gon. All torment, trouble, wonder, and amazement

Inhabits here: Some heavenly power guide us
Out of this fearful country!

Pro. Behold, Sir king,
The wronged duke of Milan, Prospero:
For more assurance that a living prince
Does now speak to thee, I embrace thy body;
And to thee, and thy company, I bid
A hearty welcome.

Alon. Wh'er* thou beest he, or no,
Or some enchanted trifle to abuse me,
As late I have been, I not know: thy pulse Beats, as of flesh and blood; and, since I saw
thee,

Th' affliction of my mind amends, with which,
I fear, a madness held me. This must crave
(An if this be at all,) a most strange story
Thy dukedom I resign; and do entreat
Thou pardon me my wrongs:—But how should

Prospero

Be living, and be here?

Pro. First, noble friend,
Let me embrace thine age; whose honour can-
Be measur'd, or confin'd. [not

Gon. Whether this be,
Or be not, I'll not swear.

Pro. You do yet taste
Some subtillies o' the isle, that will not let you Believe things certain:—Welcome, my friends
all:—

But you, my brace of lords, were I so minded, [Aside to SEN. and ANT.

I here could pluck his highness' frown upon
And justify you traitors; at this time [you,
I'll tell no tales.

Seb. The devil speaks in him. [Aside.

Pro. No:—

For you, most wicked Sir, whom to call brother
Would even infect my mouth, I do forgive
Thy rankest fault; all of them; and require
My dukedom of thee, which, perforce, I know,
Thou must restore.

Alon. If thou beest Prospero,
Give us particulars of thy preservation:
How thou hast met us here, who three hours
since [lost,
Were wreck'd upon this shore; where I have How sharp the point of this remembrance is!
My dear son Ferdinand.

THE TEMPEST.

, Sir,
the loss; and Patience

er help; of whose soft
e her sovereign aid,
t.
ss?
as late; and, portablen
s, have I means much omfort you; for I

y were living both in [I wish
there! that they were,
n that cosy bed
hen did you lose your pest. I perceive, these

o much admire, reason; and scarce think truth, their words
at howsoever you have our senses, know for nd that very duke
th of Milan; who most (landed,
you were wreck'd, was
o more yet of this;
lay by day,
akfast, nor
ing. Welcome, Sir;
ere have I few attend-

oad: pray you, look in.
have given me again,
as good a thing;
wonder, to content ye,
edom.

opens, and discovers FER-DA playing at chess.

ou play me false.
love,
rld.
ore of kingdoms you
e, ir play.

one dear son

racle!
eaten, they are merciful:
hout cause.

[FERD. kneels to ALON.
lessings
ass thee about!
ou can'st here,

atures are there here!
nd is! O brave new
n't! [world,
e.
maid, with whom thou

ee cannot be three hours:
t hath sever'd us,
ogether?

al
ndence, she's mine;

† Bearable

I chose her, when I could n
For his advice; nor thought
Is daughter to this famous
Of whom so often I have he
But never saw before; of w Received a second life, and
This lady makes him to me.

Alon. I am her's:
But O, how oddly will it so Must ask my child forgiveness

Pro. There, Sir, stop:
Let us not burden our names
With a heaviness that's gone

Gen. I have inly wept,
Or should have spoken ere t
you gods,

And on this couple drop a b
For it is you, that have chal
Which brought us hither!

Alon. I say, Amen, Gonz

Gen. Was Milan thrust fr
issue

Should become kings of Na
Beyond a common joy, and
With gold on lasting pillars
Did Claribel her husband s
And Ferdinand, her brother
Where he himself was lost;]
In a poor isle; and all of us
When no man was his own.

Alon. Give me your hands

Let grief and sorrow still en
That doth not wish you joy
Gen. Be't so! Amen!

Re-enter ARIEL, with the M
SWAIN amazedly se

O look, Sir, look, Sir; here
I prophesied, if a gallows w
This fellow could not drow
phemy,
That swear'st grace o'erboa
Hast thou no mouth by la
news?

Boats. The best news is, t
found

Our king, and company: th
Which, but three glasses a split,—

Is tight and yare,† and brave
We first put out to sea.

Ari. Sir, all this service
Have I done since I went.

Pro. My tricksy† spirit!

Alon. These are not nat
strengthen,
From strange to stranger:
you hither?

Boats. If I did think, Sir,
I'd strive to tell you. We w
And, (how, we know not,
hatches,

Where, but even now, with
Of roaring, shrieking, howlin
And more diversity of sound
We were awak'd; straitway
Where we, in all her trim, f
Our royal, good, and gallat
Cap'ring to eye her: On a t
Even in a dream, were we
And were brought moping!

Ari. Was't well done?

Pro. Bravely, my diligence
- free.

* In his room.

† Ready.

Alon. This is as strange a maze as e'er men trod :

And there is in this business more than nature Was ever conduct* of: some oracle Must rectify our knowledge.

Pro. Sir, my liege,
Do not infest your mind with beating on The strangeness of this business; at pick'd leisure,

Which shall be shortly, single I'll resolve you (Which to you shall seem probable,) of every. These happen'd accidents: till when, be cheerful,

And think of each thing well.—Come hither, spirit; [Aside.]

Set Caliban and his companions free: Untie the spell. [Exit ARIEL.] How fares my gracious Sir?

There are yet missing of your company Some few odd lads, that you remember not.

Re-enter ARIEL, driving in CALIBAN, STEPHANO, and TRINCULO, in their stolen apparel.

Ste. Every man shift for all the rest, and let no man take care for himself; for all is but fortune:—Coragio, bully-monster, Coragio!

Trin. If these be true spies which I wear in my head, here's a goodly sight.

Cal. O Setebos, these be brave spirits, in-How fine my master is! I am afraid [deed! He will chastise me.

Seb. Ha, ha;
What things are these, my lord Antonio!
Will money buy them?

Ant. Very like; one of them
Is a plain fish, and, no doubt, marketable.

Pro. Mark but the badges of these men, my lords, [knaves,
Then say, if they be true:†—This misshapen His mother was a witch; and one so strong That could control the moon, make flows and ebbs,

And deal in her command, without her power: These three have robb'd me; and this demi-devil (For he's a bastard one,) had plotted with them To take my life: two of these fellows you Must know, and own; this thing of darkness I Acknowledge mine.

Cal. I shall be pinch'd to death.

Alon. Is not this Stephano, my drunken butler?

Seb. He is drunk now: Where had he wine?

Alon. And Trinculo is reeling ripe: Where should they Find this grand liquor that hath gilded them?—How cam'st thou in this pickle?

Trin. I have been in such a pickle, since I saw you last, that, I fear me, will never out of my bones: I shall not fear fly-blowing.

Seb. Why, how now, Stephano?

Ste. O, touch me not; I am not Stephano, but a cramp.

Pro. You'd be king of the isle, sirrah?

Ste. I should have been a sore one then.

* Conductor.

† Honest.

Alon. This is as strange a thing as e'er I look'd on.

[Pointing to CALIBAN.

Pro. He is as disproportion'd in his manners, As in his shape:—Go, sirrah, to my cell; Take with you your companions; as you look To have my pardon, trim it handsomely.

Cal. Ay, that I will; and I'll be wise hereafter,

And seek for grace: What a thrice-double ass Was I, to take this drunkard for a god, And worship this dull fool?

Pro. Go to; away!

Alon. Hence, and bestow your luggage where you found it.

Seb. Or stole it, rather.

[Exeunt CAL. STE. and TRIN.

Pro. Sir, I invite your highness, and your train,

To my poor cell: where you shall take your rest For this one night; which (part of it,) I'll waste With such discourse, as, I not doubt, shall make Go quick away: the story of my life, [it

And the particular accidents, gone by, Since I came to this isle: And in the morn, I'll bring you to your ship, and so to Naples, Where I have hope to see the nuptial Of these our dear-beloved solemniz'd; And thence retire me to my Milan, where Every third thought shall be my grave.

Alon. I long

To hear the story of your life, which must Take the ear strangely.

Pro. I'll deliver all;

And promise you calm seas, auspicious gales, And sail so expeditious, that shall catch Your royal fleet far off.—My Ariel;—chick,—That is thy charge; then to the elements Be free, and fare thou well!—[Aside.] Please you, draw near. [Exeunt.

EPILOGUE.

SPOKEN BY PROSPERO.

Now my charms are all o'erthrown,
And what strength I have's mine own;
Which is most faint: now, 'tis true,
I must be here confin'd by you,
Or sent to Naples: Let me not,
Since I have my dukedom got,
And pardon'd the deceiver, dwell
In this bare island, by your spell;
But release me from my bands,
With the help of your good hands.*
Gentle breath of yours my sails
Must fill, or else my project fails,
Which was to please: Now I want Spirits to enforce, art to enchant;
And my ending is despair,
Unless I be reliev'd by prayer;
Which pierces so, that it assaults
Mercy itself, and frees all faults.
As you from crimes would pardon'd be,
Let your indulgence set me free.

* Applause: noise was supposed to dissolve a spell

THE GENTLEMEN
OF VERONA.

PERSONS REPRESENTED.

Julia.

Proteus.

Valentine.

Her escape.

Valentine.

Milan.

Outlaws.

JULIA, a Lady of Verona, beloved by Proteus.
SILVIA, the Duke's Daughter, beloved by Valentine.

LOCETTA, Waiting-woman to Julia.

Servants, Musicians.

SCENE, sometimes in Verona; sometimes in Milan; and on the Frontiers of Mantua.

in Verona.

PROTEUS.

Young Proteus;

homely wits:

tender days

mir'd love,

many,

abroad,

at home,

idleness.

and thrive

begin.

Sweet Valentine,

you, haply, seest

thy travel

ness,

and, in thy

[danger,

holy prayers,

Valentine.

for my success.

pray for thee.

story of deep

Hellespont.

deeper love;

in love.

er boots in love;

Hellespont.

me not the

thee not.

with groans;

home streets, &c.

With heart-sore sighs; one fading moment's mirth,

With twenty watchful, weary, tedious nights:

If haply won, perhaps, a hapless gain;

If lost, why then a grievous labour won;

However, but a folly bought with wit,

Or else a wit by folly vanquished.

Pro. So, by your circumstance, you call me fool.

Val. So, by your circumstance, I fear, you'll

Pro. 'Tis love you cavil at; I am not Love.

Val. Love is your master, for he masters you:

And he that is so yoked by a fool,

Methinks should not be chronicled for wise.

Pro. Yet writers say, As in the sweetest bud

The eating canker dwells, so eating love

Inhabits in the sweetest wits of all.

Val. And writers say, As the most forward

Is eaten by the canker ere it blow, [bud

Even so by love the young and tender wit

Is turn'd to folly; blasting in the bud,

Loosing his verdure even in the prime,

And all the fair effects of future hopes.

But wherefore waste I time to counsel thee,

That art a votary to fond desire?

Once more adieu: my father at the road

Expects my coming, there to see me shipp'd.

Pro. And thither will I bring thee, Valentine.

Val. Sweet Proteus, no; now let us take our

leave.

At Milan, let me hear from thee by letters,

Of thy success in love, and what news else

Betideth here in absence of thy friend;

And I likewise will visit thee with mine.

Pro. All happiness bechance to thee in

Milan!

Val. As much to you at home! and so, fare-

well.

[Exit VALENTINE.]

Pro. He after honour hunts, I after love:

He leaves his friends, to dignify them more;

I leave myself, my friends, and all for love.

Thou, Julia, thou hast metamorphos'd me;
Made me neglect my studies, lose my time,
War with good counsel, set the world at naught;
Made wit with musing weak, heart sick with
thought.

Enter SPEED.

Speed. Sir Proteus, save you: Saw you my
master?

Pro. But now he parted hence, to embark for Milan.

Speed. Twenty to one then, he is shipp'd already;

And I have play'd the sheep, in losing him.

Pro. Indeed a sheep doth very often stray,
As if the shepherd be a while away.

Speed. You conclude that my master is a shepherd then, and I a sheep?

Pro. I do.

Speed. Why then my horns are his horns,
whether I wake or sleep.

Pro. A silly answer, and fitting well a sheep.

Speed. This proves me still a sheep.

Pro. True; and thy master a shepherd.

Speed. Nay, that I can deny by a circumstance.

Pro. It shall go hard, but I'll prove it by another.

Speed. The shepherd seeks the sheep, and not the sheep the shepherd; but I seek my master, and my master seeks not me; therefore, I am no sheep.

Pro. The sheep for fodder follow the shepherd, the shepherd for food follows not the sheep, thou for wages followest thy master,
thy master for wages follows not thee: therefore, thou art a sheep.

Speed. Such another proof will make me cry ho.

Pro. But dost thou hear? gav'st thou my letter to Julia?

Speed. Ay, Sir: I, a lost mutton, gave your letter to her, a laced mutton;* and she, a laced mutton, gave me, a lost mutton, nothing for my labour.

Pro. Here's too small a pasture for such a store of muttons.

Speed. If the ground be overcharged, you were best stick her.

Pro. Nay, in that you are astray; 'twere best pound you.

Speed. Nay, Sir, less than a pound shall serve me for carrying your letter.

Pro. You mistake; I mean the pound, a pound.

Speed. From a pound to a pin? fold it over and over,

'Tis threefold too little for carrying a letter to your lover.

Pro. But what said she? did she nod?

[SPEED nods.

Speed. I.

Pro. Nod, I? why, that's noddy.†

Speed. You mistook, Sir; I say, she did nod:
and you ask me, if she did nod; and I say, I.

Pro. And that set together, is—noddy.

Speed. Now you have taken the pains to set it together, take it for your pains.

Pro. No, no, you shall have it for bearing the letter.

Speed. Well, I perceive, I must be fain to bear with you.

Pro. Why, Sir, how do you bear with me?

Speed. Marry, Sir, the letter very orderly;

having nothing but the word, noddy, for my pains.

Pro. Beshrew* me, but you have a quick wit.

Speed. And yet it cannot overtake your slow purse.

Pro. Come, come, open the matter in brief:
What said she?

Speed. Open your purse, that the money, and the matter, may be both at once delivered.

Pro. Well, Sir, here is for your pains: What said she?

Speed. Truly, Sir, I think you'll hardly win
her.

Pro. Why? Could'st thou perceive so much
from her?

Speed. Sir, I could perceive nothing at all from her; no, not so much as a ducat for delivering your letter: And being so hard to me that brought your mind, I fear, she'll prove as hard to you in telling her mind. Give her no tokens but stones; for she's as hard as steel.

Pro. What, said she nothing?

Speed. No, not so much as—take this for thy pains. To testify your bounty, I thank you,
you have testern'd‡ me; in requital whereof,
henceforth carry your letters yourself: and so,
Sir, I'll commend you to my master.

Pro. Go, go, be gone, to save your ship from wreck;

Which cannot perish, having thee aboard,
Being destined to a drier death on shore:—

I must go send some better messenger;

I fear, my Julia would not deign my lines,
Receiving them from such a worthless post.

[Exit.

SCENE II.—The same. Garden of JULIA'S
house.

Enter JULIA and LUCETTA.

Jul. But say, Lucetta, now we are alone,
Would'st thou then counsel me to fall in love?

Luc. Ay, madam; so you stumble not unheedfully.

Jul. Of all the fair resort of gentlemen,
That every day with parley encounter me,
In thy opinion, which is worthiest love?

Luc. Please you, repeat their names, I'll show my mind

According to my shallow simple skill.

Jul. What think'st thou of the fair Sir Egle-mour?

Luc. As of a knight well-spoken, neat and fine;

But, were I you, he never should be mine.

Jul. What think'st thou of the rich Mercatio?

Luc. Well of his wealth; but of himself, so, so.

Jul. What think'st thou of the gentle Proteus?

Luc. Lord, lord! to see what folly reigns in us!

Jul. How now! what means this passion at his name?

Luc. Pardon, dear madam; 'tis a passing
That I, unworthy body as I am, [shame,
Should censure thus on lovely gentlemen.

Jul. Why not on Proteus, as of all the rest?

Luc. Then thus,—of many good I think him best.

Jul. Your reason?

Luc. I have no other but a woman's reason;
I think him so, because I think him so.

Jul. And would'st thou have me cast my love
on him?

Luc. Ay, if you thought your love not cast
away.

* In bedda.

† Talk.

‡ Given me a sixpence.

§ Pass sentence.

* A term for a courtship.

† A game at cards.

th never mov'd
 tuk, best loves
 s his love but ot, burns most not show their let men know
 h.
 m.
 m!
 low.
 ee?
 I sent, I think,
 [way,
 I, being in the
 rdon the fault,
 eedly broker!
 anton lines?
 my youth?
 reat worth,
 re.
 return'd;
 sight.
 erves more fee

[Exit.
 o'erlook'd the

again,
 n I chid her,
 m a maid,
 o my view?
 o, to that [Ay.
 rter construe,
 oush love,
 tch the nurse,
 s the rod!
 nce,
 d her here!
 to frown,
 heart to smile!
 back,
 past:—

hip?

macht on your [meat,

en?
 I let fall.
 g?

aat it concerns.
 where it con-
 r. [cerns,
 writ to you in

dam, to a tune:
 can set.

may be possi-
 o' love. [hle:
 ht a tune.

tion or destiny.

Jul. Heavy! belike, it hath some burden
 then.

Luc. Ay; and melodious were it, would you sing it.

Jul. And why not you?

Luc. I cannot reach so high.

Jul. Let's see your song:—How now, minion?

Luc. Keep tune there still, so you will sing
 it out:

And yet, methinks, I do not like this tune.

Jul. You do not?

Luc. No, madam; it is too sharp.

Jul. You, minion, are too saucy.

Luc. Nay, now you are too flat,
 And mar the concord with too harsh a descant:*

There wanteth but a meant to fill your song.

Jul. The mean is drown'd with your unruly base.

Luc. Indeed, I bid the base† for Proteus.

Jul. This babble shall not henceforth trouble
 Here is a coil‡ with protestation!— [me.

Go, get you gone; and let the papers lie:
 You would be fingering them, to anger me.

Luc. She makes it strange; but she would be best pleas'd

To be so anger'd with another letter. [Exit.

Jul. Nay, would I were so anger'd with the same!

O hateful hands, to tear such loving words!
 Injurious wasps! to feed on such sweet honey,

And kill the bees, that yield it, with your stings!

I'll kiss each several paper for amends.
 And here is writ—kind Julia;—unkind Julia!

As in revenge of thy ingratitude,
 I throw thy name against the bruising stones

Trampling contemptuously on thy disdain,
 Look, here is writ—love-wounded Proteus:—

Poor wounded name! my bosom, as a bed,
 Shall lodge thee, till thy wound be thoroughly

heal'd;

And thus I search it with a sovereign kiss.
 But twice, or thrice, was Proteus written

down?

Be calm, good wind, blow not a word away,
 Till I have found each letter in the letter.

Except mine own name; that some whirlwind bear

Unto a ragged, fearful, hanging rock,
 And throw it thence into the raging sea!

Lo, here in one line is his name twice writ,—
 Poor forlorn Proteus, passionate Proteus,

To the sweet Julia;—that I'll tear away;
 And yet I will not, with so prettily

He couples it to his complaining names:
 Thus will I fold them one upon another;

Now kiss, embrace, contend, do what you will.

Re-enter LUCETTA.

Luc. Madam, dinner's ready, and your ther stays.

Jul. Well, let us go.

Luc. What, shall these papers lie like tall-tales here? [up.

Jul. If you respect them, best to take them
 Luc. Nay, I was taken up for laying them

down:

Yet here they shall not lie, for catching cold.

Jul. I see, you have a month's mind to
 them.

Luc. Ay, madam, you may say what sights
 you see;

* A term in music.
 † A challenge.

‡ The tenor in music.
 } Bustle, stir. } Since.

THE TWO GENTLEMEN OF VERONA.

77

be, although you judge I wink.
come, will't please you go?

[Exeunt.]

—The same. A room in ANTONIO'S House.

ANTONIO and PANTHINO.

Pan. Pantino, what sad* talk was your brother held you in the cloister?

of his nephew Proteus, your what of him? [son.]

Pro. I order'd, that your lordship him to spend his youth at home.
son, of slender reputation,
reasons to seek preferment out:
wars, to try their fortune there;
over islands far away;
studious universities.

Pro. In all these exercises,
Proteus, your son, was meet;
sent me, to importune you,
and his time no more at home,
I be great impeachment† to his own no travel in his youth. [age,
and't thou much unpertune me
it]

Pro. Month I have been hammering.
and well his loss of time;
cannot be a perfect man,
and tutor'd in the world:
by industry achiev'd.

Pro. By the swift course of time:
whether were I best to send him?
k, your lordship is not ignorant,
panion, youthful Valentine,
emperor in his royal court.
it well.

Pro. It good, I think, your lordship
him thither:

Pro. To practise tilts and tournaments, discourse, converse with noble-
of every exercise, [men;
both and nobleness of birth.
thy counsel; well hast thou ad-
it]

Pro. As may'st perceive how well I like
of it shall make known,
a speediest execution
ch him to the emperor's court.
morrow, may it please you, Don
onso,

Pro. Gentlemen of good esteem,
ag to salute the emperor,
and their service to his will company; with them shall Pro-
[him.]

Pro. time,—now will we break with

Enter PROTEUS.

Pro. I love! sweet lines! sweet life!
and, the agent of her heart,
ath for love, her honour's pawn:
others would applaud our loves,
appiness with their consents!
ulia!

Pro. Now? what letter are you reading?

Pro. I please your lordship, 'tis a word

Pro. A nation sent from Valentine,
a friend that came from him

Pro. Give me the letter; let me see what

Pro. Little consequence. † Reproach utter to him.

Pro. There is no news, my lord; but that he writes

How happily he lives, how well belov'd,
And daily graced by the emperor;

Wishing me with him, partner of his fortune.

Ant. And how stand you affected to his wish?

Pro. As one relying on your lordship's will,
And not depending on his friendly wish.

Ant. My will is something sorted with his wish:

Muse* not that I thus suddenly proceed;

For what I will, I will, and there an end.

I am resolv'd, that thou shalt spend some time

With Valentinus in the emperor's court;

What maintenance he from his friends receives,

Like exhibition; thou shalt have from me.

To-morrow be in readiness to go:

Excuse it not, for I'm peremptory.

Pro. My lord, I cannot be so soon provided;

Please you, deliberate a day or two.

Ant. Look what thou want'st, shall be sent after thee:
No more of stay, to-morrow thou must go.—
Come on, Pantino; you shall be employ'd
To hasten on his expedition.

[Exeunt ANT. and PAN.]

Pro. Thus have I shunn'd the fire, for fear of burning; [drown'd:]

And drench'd me in the sea, where I am
I fear'd to show my father Julia's letter,

Lest he should take exceptions to my love;

And with the vantage of mine own excuse

Hath he excepted most against my love.

O, how this spring of love resembleth

The uncertain glory of an April day;

Which now shows all the beauty of the sun,

And by and by a cloud takes all away!

Re-enter PANTHINO.

Pan. Sir Proteus, your father calls for you,
He is in haste, therefore, I pray you, go. [to,

Pro. Why thus it is! my heart accords there-
And yet a thousand times it answers, no.

[Exeunt.]

ACT II.

SCENE I.—Milan. An Apartment in the DUKE'S Palace.

Enter VALENTINE and SPEED.

Speed. Sir, your glove.

Val. Not mine; my gloves are on.

Speed. Why then this may be yours, for this is but one

Val. Ha! let me see: ay, give it me, it's mine:—

Sweet ornament that decks a thing divine!

Ah Silvia! Silvia!

Speed. Madam Silvia! madam Silvia!

Val. How now, sirrah?

Speed. She is not within hearing, Sir.

Val. Why, Sir, who bade you call her?

Speed. Your worship, Sir; or else I mistook.

Val. Well, you'll still be too forward.

Speed. And yet I was last chidden for being too slow.

Val. Go to, Sir; tell me, do you know madam Silvia?

Speed. She that your worship loves?

Val. Why, how know you that I am in love?

Speed. Marry, by these special marks: First,
you have learned, like Sir Proteus, to wreath
your arms like a male-content; to relish a love

* Wonder.

† Allowance.

THE TWO GENTLEMEN OF VERONA.

red-breast; to walk alone,
the pestilence; to sigh, like
ad lost his A, B, C; to weep, ch that hath buried her gran-
e one that takes diet;* to t fears robbing; to speak pul-at Hallowmas,† You were ugh'd, to crow like a cock;
to walk like one of the lions;
was presently after dinner;
sadly, it was for want of ou are metamorphosed with a
I look on you, I can hardaster.

se things perceived in me?
all perceived without you.
e? They cannot.

ou? nay, that's certain, for,
so simple, none else would:
out these follies, that these ou, and shine through you an unripen'd fruit; that not an eye,
is a physician to comment

r, dost thou know my lady

you gaze on so, as she sits observed that? even she I

I know her not.

know her by my gazing on st her not?

hard favoured, Sir?

day, as well favoured.

as that well enough.

thou know?

is not so fair, as (of you)

at her beauty is exquisite,
ite.

ause the one is painted, and

count.

l? and how out of count?

r, so painted, to make her unts of her beauty.

est thou me? I account of

r saw her since she was

th she been deformed?

you loved her.

her ever since I saw her;

autiful.

her, you cannot see her.

ve us blind. O, that you your own had the lights ave, when you chid at Sir
gartered!

I see then?

resent folly, and her passe, being in love, could not
r, and you, being in love,
your hose.

then you are in love; for ould not see to wipe my

was in love with my bed:
vinged; me for my love,
e bolder to chide you for

, I stand affected to her.

were set; no, your affec-

† Hallowmas. ‡ Whipped.

Val. Last night she enjo
some lines to one she loves.

Speed. And have you?

Val. I have.

Speed. Are they not lame?

Val. No, boy, but as well as Peace, here she comes.

Enter SILVIA

Speed. O excellent motion puppet! now will he interpret

Val. Madam and mistress,
morrow.

Speed. O, 'give you good million of manners.

Sil. Sir Valentine and ser thousand.

Speed. He should give her gives it him.

Val. As you enjoin'd me,
letter,

Unto the secret nameless friend
Which I was much unwilling
But for my duty to your lady

Sil. I thank you, gentle clerkly† done.

Val. Now trust me, madam
For, being ignorant to whom

I writ at random, very doubtf

Sil. Perchance you think much pains?

Val. No, madam; so it stead
Please you command, a the

And yet,—

Sil. A pretty period! Well, I
And yet I will not name it:—

not;—

And yet take this again;—and Meaning henceforth to trouble

Speed. And yet you will;

yet.

Val. What means your lady?

like it?

Sil. Yes, yes; the lines are ve

But since unwillingly, take th

Nay, take them.

Val. Madam, they are for y

Sil. Ay, ay; you writ them quest:

But I will none of them; they

I would have had them writ m

Val. Please you, I'll write

another.

Sil. And, when it's writ, fo

it over:

And, if it please you, so; if m

Val. If it please me, madam

Sil. Why, if it please you,

labour;

And so good-morrow, servant.

Speed. O jest unseen, inscr

As a nose on a man's face, or a a steeple!

My master sues to her; and she

He being her pupil, to become

O excellent device! was ther

better?

That my master, being scribe, to write the letter?

Val. How now, Sir? what are with yourself?

Speed. Nay, I was rhyming

have the reason.

Val. To do what?

Speed. To be a spokesman from

Val. To whom?

Val. To whom?

Val. To whom?

Val. To whom?

Val. To whom?

Val. To whom?

Val. To whom?

Val. To whom?

Val. To whom?

Val. To whom?

Val. To whom?

Val. To whom?

Val. To whom?

Val. To whom?

Val. To whom?

yourself: why, she wooes you by figure?

A letter, I should say.

She hath not writ to me?

It need she, when she hath made yourself? Why, do you not perceive me.

Believing you indeed, Sir; But I've her earnest?

Give me none, except an angry

letter, she hath given you a letter.

The letter I writ to her friend.

That letter hath she deliver'd, and it were no worse.

Warrant you, 'tis as well:

For writ to her; and she, in modesty, out of idle time, could not again

use some messenger, that might her discover,

might her love himself to write unto her.—

It is in print, for in print I found it, Sir: 'tis dinner time.

Alas!

But hearken, Sir: though the sea can feed on the air, I am one shod by my victuals, and would be: O, be not like your mistress, moved. {Exeunt.

—Verona.—A Room in JULIA'S House.

Enter PROTEUS and JULIA.

Patience, gentle Julia.

Where is no remedy.

Possibly I can, I will return.

Turn not, you will return the remembrance for thy Julia's sake.

{Giving a ring.

Then we'll make exchange, here,

you this.

And the bargain with a holy kiss,

Give my hand for my true constancy;

At hour o'er-slips me in the day,

Give not, Julia, for thy sake,

One hour some foul mischance

Or my love's forgetfulness!

Give my coming, answer not;

For: nay not the tide of tears;

I stay me longer than I should;

{Exit JULIA.

Alas!—What! gone without a word?

We should do: it cannot speak,

Thou better deeds, than words, to

it.

Enter PANTHINO.

Proteus, you are staid for.

Come, I come:—

Parting strikes poor lovers dumb.

{Exeunt.

III.—The same.—A Street.

Enter LAUNCE, leading a dog.

'Twill be this hour ere I have all the kind of the Launces

of fault: I have received my proper prodigious son, and am going to conclusion.

† Kindred.

with Sir Proteus to the Imperial's court. I think, Crab my dog to be the sourest-natured dog that lives: my mother weeping, my father wailing, my sister crying, our maid howling, our cat wringing her hands, and all our house in a great perplexity, yet did not this cruel-hearted cur shed one tear: he is a stone, a very pebble stone, and has no more pity in him than a dog: a Jew would have wept to have seen our parting; why, my grandam having no eyes, look you, wept herself blind at my parting. Nay, I'll show you the manner of it. This shoe is my father;—no, this left shoe is my father;—no, no, this left shoe is my mother;—nay, that cannot be so neither,—yes, it is so, it is so; it hath the worse sole; This shoe, with the hole in it, is my mother, and this my father; A vengeance on't! there 'tis: now, Sir, this staff is my sister; for, look you, she is as white as a lily, and as small as a wand: this hat is Nan, our maid; I am the dog:—no, the dog is himself, and I am the dog,—O, the dog is me, and I am myself: ay, so, so. Now come I to my father; Father, your blessing; now should not the shoe speak a word for weeping; now should I kiss my father; well, he weeps on:—now come I to my mother, (O, that she could speak now!) like a wood* woman;—well, I kiss her,—why there 'tis; here's my mother's breath up and down: now come I to my sister, mark the moan she makes: now the dog all this while sheds not a tear, nor speaks a word; but see how I lay the dust with my tears.

Enter PANTHINO.

Pan. Launce, away, away, aboard; thy master is shipped, and thou art to post after with oars. What's the matter? why weepest thou, man? Away, ass; you will lose the tide, if you tarry any longer.

Laun. It is no matter if the tide were lost; for it is the unkindest tide that ever any man tied.

Pan. What's the unkindest tide?

Laun. Why, he that's tied here; Crab, my dog.

Pan. Tut, man, I mean thou'lt lose the flood; and, in losing the flood, lose thy voyage; and, in losing thy voyage, lose thy master; and, in losing thy master, lose thy service; and, in losing thy service,—Why dost thou stop my mouth?

Laun. For fear thou should'st lose thy tongue.

Pan. Where should I lose my tongue?

Laun. In thy tale.

Pan. In thy tail!

Laun. Lose the tide, and the voyage, and the master, and the service? The tide!—Why, man, if the river were dry, I am able to fill it with my tears; if the wind were down, I could drive the boat with my sighs.

Pan. Come, come away, man; I was sent to call thee.

Laun. Sir, call me what thou darest.

Pan. Wilt thou go?

Laun. Well, I will go. {Exeunt.

SCENE IV.—Milan.—An Apartment in the Duke's Palace.

Enter VALENTINE, SILVIA, THURIO, and SPEED.

Sil. Servant—

Val. Mistress?

SPEED. Master, Sir Thurio frowns on you.

* Crazy, distracted.

THE TWO GENTLEMEN OF VERONA.

or love.

s then.

you knocked him.

re sad.*

n. I seem so.

you are not?

ents.

that I am not?

of the contrary?

let you my folly?

our jerkin.

doublet.

double your folly.

ar Thurio? do you change

madam; he is a kind

re mind to feed on your air.

Sir.

one too, for this time.

Sir, you always end ere words, gentlemen, and

adam; we thank the giver.

servant?

et lady; for you gave the rows his wit from your spends what he borrows,

ny.

end word for word with wit bankrupt.

l, Sir: you have an ex-

l, I think, no other trea-owers; for it appears by

at they live by your bare

gentlemen, no more; here

DUKE.

ter Silvia, you are hard

ather's in good health:

ter from your friends

ll be thankful

ger from thence.

Don Antonio, your coun-

rd, I know the gentleman

worthy estimation,

rt so well reputed.

a son?

lord; a son, that well

rd of such a father.

am well?

as myself, for from our

gether:

and spent our hours to-

ave been an idle truant,

enefit of time,

th angel-like perfection;

for that's his name,

antage of his days;

but his experience old;

, but his judgment ripe;

far behind his worth

perhaps.

† Observe.

Come all the praises that I no
He is complete in feature, and
With all good grace to grace

Duke. Beshrew* me, Sir,
this good,

He is as worthy for an emper
As meet to be an emperor's co
Well, Sir; this gentleman is c
With commendation from gre
And here he means to spend l
I think, 'tis no unwelcome ne

Val. Should I have wish'd been he.

Duke. Welcome him then
worth;

Silvia, I speak to you; and ye
For Valentine, I need not 'cit
I'll send him hither to you pr

Val. This is the gentleman,
ship,

Had come along with me, but Did hold his eyes lock'd in he

Sil. Belike, that now she h

Upon some other pawn for fee

Val. Nay, sure, I think, sh soners still.

Sil. Nay, then he should be l

blind,

How could he see his way to

Val. Why, lady, love hath

eyes.

Thu. They say, that love

at all.

Val. To see such lovers, Thu

Upon a homely object love ca

Enter PROTEUS

Sil. Have done, have done
gentleman.

Val. Welcome, dear Prote
beseech you,

Confirm his welcome with son

Sil. His worth is warrant

him,

If this be he you oft have wis

Val. Mistress, it is: sweet

him

To be my fellow-servant to ye

Sil. Too low a mistress for s

Pro. Not so, sweet lady;

servant

To have a look of such a worl

Val. Leave off discourse of Sweet lady, entertain him for

Pro. My duty will I boast:

Sil. And duty never yet did

Servant, you are welcome to

treas.

Pro. I'll die on him that says

Sil. That you are welcome!

Pro. No; that you are wor

Enter SERVANT

Ser. Madam, my lord yo speak with you.

Sil. I'll wait upon his pleas

Come, Sir Thurio,

Go with me:—Once more, m

I'll leave you to confer of hon

When you have done, we look

Pro. We'll both attend upon

[Exit SILVIA, THURIO]

Val. Now, tell me, how do you came?

* Ill beside.

Pro. Your friends are well, and have them much commended.

Val. And how do yours?

Pro. I left them all in health.

Val. How does your lady? and how thrives your love?

Pro. My tales of love were wont to weary you;

I know, you joy not in a love-discourse.

Val. Ay, Proteus, but that life is alter'd now: I have done penance for contemning love;

These high imperious thoughts have punish'd me

With bitter fasts, with penitential groans,

With nightly tears, and daily heart-ache sighs;

For, in revenge of my contempt of love,

Love hath cheer'd sleep from my enthralled eyes,

And made them watchers of mine own heart's sorrow.

O, gentle Proteus, love's a mighty lord;

And hath so humbled me, as, I confess,

There is no woe to his correction,

Nor, to his service, no such joy on earth:

Now, no discourse, except it be of love;

Now can I break my fast, dine, sup, and sleep,

Upon the very naked name of love.

Pro. Enough; I read your fortune in your eye:

Was this the idol that you worship so?

Val. Even she; and is she not a heavenly saint?

Pro. No; but she is an earthly paragon.

Val. Call her divine.

Pro. I will not flatter her.

Val. O, flatter me; for love delights in praise.

Pro. When I was sick, you gave me bitter

And I must minister the like to you. [pills;]

Val. Then speak the truth by her; if not Yet let her be a principality, [divine,]

Sovereign to all the creatures on the earth.

Pro. Except my mistress.

Val. Sweet, except not any;

Except thou wilt except against my love.

Pro. Have I not reason to prefer mine own?

Val. And I will help thee to prefer her too:

She shall be dignified with this high honour,—

To bear my lady's train; lest the base earth

Should from her venture chance to steal a kiss,

And, of so great a favour growing proud,

Disdain to root the summer-swelling flower,

And make rough winter everlastingly.

Pro. Why, Valentine, what braggardism is this?

Val. Pardon me, Proteus: all I can, is nothing

To her, whose worth makes other worthies no-
she is alone. [thing;]

Pro. Then let her alone.

Val. Not for the world: why man, she is mine own;

And I as rich in having such a jewel,

As twenty seas, if all their sand were pearl,

The water nectar, and the rocks pure gold.

Pardon me, that I do not dream on thee,

Because thou seest me dote upon my love.

My foolish rival, that her father likes,

Only for his possessions are so huge,

Is gone with her along; and I must after,

For love, thou know'st, is full of jealousy.

Pro. But she loves you?

Val. Ay, and we are betroth'd;

Now, more, our marriage hour,

With all the cunning manner of our flight,

Remind'd of: how I must climb her window;

The ladder made of cords; and all the means

Plotted; and greed on, for my happiness.

Good Proteus, go with me to my chamber,

In these affairs to aid me with thy counsel.

Pro. Go on before; I shall inquire you forth:

I must unto the road, to disembark

Some necessities that I needs must use;

And then I'll presently attend you.

Val. Will you make haste?

Pro. I will.— [Exit Val.]

Even as one heat another heat expels,

Or as one nail by strength drives out another,

So the remembrance of my former love

Is by a newer object quite forgotten.

Is it mine eye, or Valentine's praise,

Her true perfection, or my false transgression,

That makes me, reasonless, to reason thus?

She's fair; and so is Julia, that I love;—

That I did love, for now my love is thaw'd;

Which, like a waxen image 'gainst a fire,

Bears no impression of the thing it was.

Methinks, my zeal to Valentine is cold;

And that I love him not, as I was wont:

O! but I love his lady too, too much;

And that's the reason I love him so little.

How shall I dote on her with more advice,*

That thus without advice begin to love her?

'Tis but her picture I have yet beheld,

And that hath dazzled my reason's light;

But when I look on her perfections,

There is no reason but I shall be blind.

If I can check my erring love, I will;

If not, to compass her I'll use my skill. [Exit.]

SCENE V.—The same.—A Street.

Enter SPEED and LAUNCE.

Speed. Launce! by mine honesty, welcome to Milan.

Laun. Forswear not thyself, sweet youth;

for I am not welcome. I reckon this always—

that a man is never undone, till he be hanged;

nor never welcome to a place, till some certain

shot be paid, and the hostess say, welcome.

Speed. Come on, you mad-cap, I'll to the alehouse with you presently; where, for one shot of fivepence, thou shalt have five thousand welcomes. But, sirrah, how did thy master part with madam Julia?

Laun. Marry, after they closed in earnest,

they parted very fairly in jest.

Speed. But shall she marry him?

Laun. No.

Speed. How then? Shall he marry her?

Laun. No, neither.

Speed. What, are they broken?

Laun. No, they are both as whole as a fish.

Speed. Why then, how stands the matter with

them?

Laun. Marry, thus; when it stands well with him, it stands well with her.

Speed. What an ass art thou? I understand

thee not.

Laun. What a block art thou, that thou canst not? My staff understands me.

Speed. What thou say'st?

Laun. Ay, and what I do too: look thee, I'll but lean, and my staff understands me.

Speed. It stands under thee, indeed.

Laun. Why, stand under and understand is all one

Speed. But tell me true, will't be a match?

Laun. Ask my dog; if he say, ay, it will; if he say, no, it will; if he shake his tail, and say nothing, it will.

Speed. The conclusion is then, that it will.

Laun. Thou shalt never get such a secret from me, but by a parable.

Speed. 'Tis well that I get it so. But, Launce,

* On further knowledge.

how say'st thou, that thy master is become a notable lover?

Lana. I never knew him otherwise.

Speed. Than how?

Lana. A notable lubber, as thou reportest him to be.

Speed. Why, thou whoreson ass, thou mistakest me.

Lana. Why, fool, I meant not thee; I meant thy master.

Speed. I tell thee, my master is become a hot lover.

Lana. Why I tell thee, I care not though he burn himself in love. If thou wilt go with me to the ale-house, so; if not, thou art an Hebrew, a Jew, and not worth the name of a Christian.

Speed. Why?

Lana. Because thou hast not so much charity in thee, as to go to the ale with a Christian: Wilt thou go?

Speed. At thy service. [Exit.

SCENE VI.—The same.—An Apartment in the Palace.

Enter PROTEUS.

Pro. To leave my Julia, shall I be forsworn;
To love fair Silvia, shall I be forsworn;
To wrong my friend, I shall be much forsworn;
And even that power, which gave me first my oath,
Provokes me to this threefold perjury.
Love bade me swear, and love bids me forswear:

O sweet-suggesting* love, if thou hast sinn'd,
Teach me, thy tempted subject, to excuse it.
At first I did adore a twinkling star,
But now I worship a celestial sun.
Unheeded vows may heedfully be broken;
And he wants wit, that wants resolved will
To learn his wit to exchange the bad for better.—

Fie, fie, unreverend tongue! to call her bad,
Whose sovereignty so oft thou hast preferr'd
With twenty thousand soul-confirming oaths.
I cannot leave to love, and yet I do;
But there I leave to love, where I should love.
Julia I lose, and Valentine I lose:
If I keep them, I needs must lose myself;
If I lose them, thus find I by their loss,
For Valentine, myself; for Julia, Silvia.
I to myself am dearer than a friend;
For love is still more precious than itself:
And Silvia, witness heaven, that made her fair!
Shows Julia but a swarthy Ethiop.
I will forget that Julia is alive,
Rememb'ring that my love to her is dead;
And Valentine I'll hold an enemy,
Aiming at Silvia as a sweeter friend.
I cannot now prove constant to myself,
Without some treachery used to Valentine:—
This night, he meaneth with a corded ladder
To climb celestial Silvia's chamber-window;
Myself in counsel, his competitor:†
Now presently I'll give her father notice
Of their disguising, and pretended‡ flight;
Who, all enrag'd, will banish Valentine;
For Thurio, he intends, shall wed his daughter:
But, Valentine being gone, I'll quickly cross,
By some sly trick, blunt Thurio's dull proceeding.

Love, lend me wings to make my purpose swift,
As thou hast lent me wit to plot this drift!

[Exit.

SCENE VII.—Verona.—A Room in JULIA'S House.

Enter JULIA and LUCETTA.

Jul. Counsel, Lucetta; gentle girl, assist me!
And, even in kind love, I do conjure thee,—
Who art the table wherein all my thoughts
Are visibly character'd and engrav'd,—
To lesson me; and tell me some good mean,
How, with my honour, I may undertake
A journey to my loving Proteus.

Luc. Alas! the way is wearisome and long.

Jul. A true-devoted pilgrim is not weary
To measure kingdoms with his feeble steps;
Much less shall she, that hath love's wings to fly;

And when the flight is made to one so dear,
Of such divine perfection, as Sir Proteus.

Luc. Better forbear, till Proteus make return.

Jul. O, know'st thou not, his looks are my soul's food?

Pity the dearth that I have pined in,
By longing for that food so long a time.
Didst thou but know the inly touch of love,
Thou would'st as soon go kindle fire with snow,
As seek to quench the fire of love with words.

Luc. I do not seek to quench your love's hot
But qualify the fire's extreme rage, [fire;
Lest it should burn above the bounds of reason.

Jul. The more thou dam'st* it up, the more it burns;

The current, that with gentle murmur glides,
Thou know'st, being stopp'd, impatiently doth rage;

But, when his fair course is not hindered,
He makes sweet music with the enamel'd
Giving a gentle kiss to every sedge [stones,
He overtaketh in his pilgrimage;
And so by many winding nooks he strays,
With willing sport, to the wild ocean.
Then let me go, and hinder not my course:
I'll be as patient as a gentle stream,
And make a pastime of each weary step,
Till the last step have brought me to my love;
And there I'll rest, as, after much turmoil,†
A blessed soul doth in Elysium.

Luc. But in what habit will you go along?

Jul. Not like a woman; for I would prevent
The loose encounters of lascivious men:
Gentle Lucetta, fit me with such weeds
As may beseeem some well-reputed page.

Luc. Why then your ladyship must cut your hair.

Jul. No, girl; I'll knit it up in silken strings,
With twenty odd-conceited true-love knots:
To be fantastic may become a youth
Of greater time than I shall show to be.

Luc. What fashion, madam, shall I make your breeches?

Jul. That fits as well, as—"tell me, good my lord,

"What compass will you wear your farthingale?" [Lucetta.

Why, even that fashion thou best lik'st, Luc.

Luc. You must needs have them with a cod-piece, madam.

Jul. Out, out, Lucetta! that will be ill-favour'd.

Luc. A round hose, madam, now's not worth a pin,

Unless you have a cod-piece to stick pins on.

Jul. Lucetta, as thou lov'st me, let me have What thou think'st meet, and is most mannerly;†
But tell me, wench, how will the world repute me,

* Tempting.

† Confederatc.

‡ Intended.

* Closest.

† Truebias.

For undertaking so untaid a journey?

I fear me, it will make me scandaliz'd.

Lac. If you think so, then stay at home, and go not.

Jal. Nay, that I will not.

Lac. Then never dream on infamy, but go. If Proteus like your journey, when you come, No matter who's displeas'd, when you are gone.

I fear me, he will scarce be pleas'd withal.

Jal. That is the least, Lucetta, of my fear: A thousand oaths, an ocean of his tears, And instances as infinite of love, Varrant me welcome to my Proteus.

Lac. All these are servants to deceitful men.

Jal. Base men, that use them to so base effect.

But truer stars did govern Proteus' birth: His words are bonds, his oaths are oracles; His love sincere, his thoughts immaculate; His tears, pure messengers sent from his heart; His heart as far from fraud, as heaven from earth.

Lac. Pray heaven, he prove so, when you come to him!

Jal. Now, as thou lov'st me, do him not that wrong,

To hear a hard opinion of his truth: Only deserve my love, by loving him; And presently go with me to my chamber, To take a note of what I stand in need of, To furnish me upon my longing journey. All that is mine I leave at thy dispose, My goods, my lands, my reputation; Only, in lieu thereof, despatch me hence: Come, answer not, but to it presently; I am impatient of my tarriance. [Exeunt.]

ACT III.

SCENE I.—Milan.—An Anti-room in the Duke's palace.

Enter DUKE, THURIO, and PROTEUS.

Duke. Sir Thurio, give us leave, I pray, awhile;

We have some secrets to confer about.—

[Exit THURIO.]

Now, tell me, Proteus, what's your will with me?

Pro. My gracious lord, that which I would discover,

The law of friendship bids me to conceal:

But, when I call to mind your gracious favours Done to me, undeserving as I am,

My duty pricks me on to utter that [me.]

Which else no worldly good should draw from

Know, worthy prince, Sir Valentine, my friend,

This night intends to steal away your daughter.

Myself am one made privy to the plot. [Enter] I know, you have determin'd to bestow her

On Thurio, whom your gentle daughter hates;

And should she thus be stolen away from you,

It would be much vexation to your age.

Thus, for my duty's sake, I rather chose

To cross my friend in his intended drift,

Than, by concealing it, heap on your head

A pack of sorrows, which would press you

Down, Being unprevailed, to your timeless grave.

Duke. Proteus, I thank thee for thine honest

care;

Which to requite, command me while I live.

This love of theirs myself have often seen,

Early, when they have judg'd me fast asleep;

And sometimes have purpos'd to forbid

Sir Valentine her company, and my court:

But, fearing lest my jealous aim^a might err,

And so, unworthily, disgrace the man,

(A rashness that I ever yet have shun'd,) I gave him gentle looks; thereby to find

That which thyself hast now disclos'd to me.

And, that thou may'st perceive my fear of this,

Knowing that tender youth is soon suggested, I nightly lodge her in an upper tower,

The key whereof myself have ever kept;

And thence she cannot be convey'd away.

Pro. Know, noble lord, they have devis'd a mean

How he her chamber-window will ascend,

And with a corded ladder fetch her down;

For which the youthful lover now is gone,

And this way comes he with it presently;

Where, if it please you, you may intercept him.

But, good my lord, do it so cunningly,

That my discovery be not aimed at;

For love of you, not hate unto my friend,

Hath made me publisher of this pretence. †

Duke. Upon mine honour, he shall never know

That I had any light from thee of this.

Pro. Adieu, my lord, Sir Valentine is coming. [Exit.]

Enter VALENTINE.

Duke. Sir Valentine, whither away so fast?

Val. Please it your grace there is a messenger

That stays to bear my letters to my friends,

And I am going to deliver them.

Duke. Be they of much import?

Val. The tenor of them doth but signify

My health, and happy being at your court.

Duke. Nay, then no matter; stay with me a while;

I am to break with thee of some affairs,

That touch me near, wherein thou must be secret.

'Tis not unknown to thee, that I have sought

To match my friend, Sir Thurio, to my daughter.

Val. I know it well, my lord; and, sure, the match [man]

Were rich and honourable; besides, the gentle-

Is full of virtue, bounty, worth, and qualities

Beseeming such a wife as your fair daughter:

Cannot your grace win her to fancy him?

Duke. No, trust me; she is peevish, sullen,

froward,

Proud, disobedient, stubborn, lacking duty;

Neither regarding that she is my child,

Nor fearing me as if I were her father:

And, may I say to thee, this pride of hers,

Upon advice, hath drawn my love from her;

And, where I thought the remnant of mine age

Should have been cherish'd by her child-like duty,

I now am full resolved to take a wife,

And turn her out to who will take her in:

Then let her beauty be her wedding-dower;

For me and my possessions she esteems not.

Val. What would your grace have me to do

in this?

Duke. There is a lady, Sir, in Milan here,

Whom I affect; but she is nice, and coy,

And nought esteems my aged eloquence.

Now, therefore, would I have thee to my tutor,

(For long ago I have forgot to court:

Besides, the fashion of the time is chang'd,)

How, and which way, I may bestow myself,

To be regarded in her sun-bright eye.

Val. Win her with gifts, if she respect not words;

^a Longed for.

^a Guern. † Tempted. ‡ Guessed. § Design.

Dumb jewels often, in their silent kind,
More than quick words, do move a woman's mind.

Duke. But she did scorn a present that I sent
her.

Val. A woman sometimes scorns what best contents her:

Send her another; never give her o'er;
For scorn at first makes after-love the more.
If she do frown, 'tis not in hate of you,
But rather to beget more love in you:
If she do chide, 'tis not to have you gone;
For why, the fools are mad, if left alone.
Take no repulse, whatever she doth say;
For, get you gone, she doth not mean, away;
Flatter, and praise, commend, extol their graces;

Though ne'er so black, say, they have angels'
faces.

That man that hath a tongue, I say, is no man,
If with his tongue he cannot win a woman.

Duke. But she, I mean, is promis'd by her friends

Unto a youthful gentleman of worth;
And kept severely from resort of men,
That no man hath access by day to her.

Val. Why then I would resort to her by
night.

Duke. Ay, but the doors be lock'd, and keys kept safe,
That no man hath recourse to her by night.

Val. What lets,* but one may enter at her window?

Duke. Her chamber is aloft, far from the ground;
And built so shelving that one cannot climb it Without apparent hazard of his life.

Val. Why then, a ladder, quaintly made of cords,
To cast up with a pair of anchoring hooks,
Would serve to scale another Hero's tower,
So bold Leander would adventure it.

Duke. Now, as thou art a gentleman of blood,
Advise me where I may have such a ladder.

Val. When would you use it? pray, Sir, tell me that.

Duke. This very night; for love is like a child,
That longs for every thing that he can come by.

Val. By seven o'clock I'll get you such a ladder.

Duke. But, hark thee; I will go to her alone;
How shall I best convey the ladder thither?

Val. It will be light, my lord, that you may bear it

Under a cloak, that is of any length.

Duke. A cloak as long as thine will serve the turn?

Val. Ay, my good lord.

Duke. Then let me see thy cloak;
I'll get me one of such another length.

Val. Why, any cloak will serve the turn, my
lord.

Duke. How shall I fashion me to wear a cloak?—

I pray thee, let me feel thy cloak upon me.—

What letter is this same? What's here?—To Silvia?

And here an engine fit for my proceeding!

I'll be so bold to break the seal for once.

[Reads.

*My thoughts do harbour with my Silvia nightly;
And slaves they are to me, that send them flying:
O, could their muster come and go as lightly, Himself would lodge, where senseless they are lying.*

* Hinders.

*My herald thoughts in thy pure bosom rest them;
While I, their king, that thither them imper-
tune,*

Do curse the grace that with such grace hath bless'd them,

*Because myself do want my servants' fortune:
I curse myself, for they are sent by me,
That they should harbour where their lord should What's here?* [be.

Silvia, this night I will enfranchise thee:

'Tis so; and here's the ladder for the purpose:—
Why, Phaeton, (for thou art Merops' son)
Wilt thou aspire to guide the heavenly car,
And with thy daring folly burn the world?
Wilt thou reach stars, because they shine on
thee?

Go, base intruder! overweening slave!
Bestow thy fawning smiles on equal mates;
And think, my patience, more than thy desert,
Is privilege for thy departure hence:

Thank me for this, more than for all the favours,
Which, all too much, I have bestow'd on thee.
But if thou linger in my territories,
Longer than swiftest expedition

Will give thee time to leave our royal court,
By heaven, my wrath shall far exceed the love
I ever bore my daughter, or thyself.

Be gone, I will not hear thy vain excuse,
But as thou lov'st thy life, make speed from hence. [Exit Duke.

Val. And why not death, rather than living torment?

To die, is to be banish'd from myself;
And Silvia is myself: banish'd from her,
Is self from self; a deadly banishment!
What light is light, if Silvia be not seen?
What joy is joy, if Silvia be not by?

Unless it be to think that she is by,
And feed upon the shadow of perfection.

Except I be by Silvia in the night,
There is no music in the nightingale;

Unless I look on Silvia in the day,
There is no day for me to look upon:

She is my essence; and I leave to be,
If I be not by her fair influence

Foster'd, illumin'd, cherish'd, kept alive.
I fly not death, to fly his deadly doom:

Tarry I here, I but attend on death;
But, fly I hence, I fly away from life.

Enter PROTEUS and LAUNCE.

Pro. Run, boy, run, run, and seek him out.

Laun. So-ho! so-ho!

Pro. What seest thou?

Laun. Him we go to find: there's not a hair
on's head, but 'tis a Valentine.

Pro. Valentine?

Val. No.

Pro. Who then? his spirit?

Val. Neither.

Pro. What then?

Val. Nothing.

Laun. Can nothing speak? master, shall I strike?

Pro. Whom would'st thou strike?

Laun. Nothing.

Pro. Villain, forbear.

Laun. Why, Sir, I'll strike nothing: I pray
you,—

Pro. Sirrah, I say, forbear: Friend Valentine, a word.

Val. My ears are stopp'd, and cannot hear good news,

So much of bad already hath possess'd them.

Pro. Then in dumb silence will I bury mine,
For they are harsh, untunable, and bad.

dead?
 Valentine. Indeed, for sacred Silvia on me? [via!—

Valentine. If Silvia have forsworn us? [me!—

It's a proclamation that you
 sh'd.

Thou art banished, O, that's the [friend.

From Silvia, and from me thy sed upon this woe already,
 of it will make me surfeit,
 that I am banished?

And she hath offer'd to the

It sh'd, stands in effectual force,)
 pearl, which some call tears:
 her's churlish feet she tender'd;
 her knees, her humble self;
 hands, whose whiteness so be-
 come,

thy waxed pale for woe:
 her knees, pure hands held up,
 groans, nor silver-shedding

her uncompassionate sire;
 if he be ta'en, must die.
 Incession chaf'd him so,
 y repeat was suppliant,
 from he commended her,
 threats of 'biding there.
 unless the next word that ask'd it,

ignant power upon my life
 e, breathe it in mine ear,
 can of my endless doleour.
 lament for that thou canst not for that which thou lament'st,

 so and breeder of all good.
 y, thou canst not see thy love;
 ying will abridge thy life.
 's staff; walk hence with that,
 against despairing thoughts.
 be here, though thou art hence;
 rit to me, shall be deliver'd
 k-white bosom of thy love.
 erves not to expostulate:
 ey thee through the city gate;
 with thee, confor at large
 concern thy love affairs: Silvia, though not for thyself,
 ger, and along with me.
 ee, Launce, an if thou seest my aste, and meet me at the northgate.

 th, find him out. Come, Valenter Silvia! hapless Valentine!

Enter VALENTINE and PROTEUS.

Out a fool, look you; and yet I think, my master is a kind of mat's all one, if he be but one

es not now, that knows me to

I am in love; but a team of horse

that from me; nor who 'tis I

is a woman: but that woman, I

self; and yet 'tis a milk maid:

aid, for she hath had gossips:

, for she is her master's maid,

wages. She hath more qualities

aniel,—which is much in a bare

re is a cat-log [Pulling out a paper) of her conditions. Imprimis, She can fetch and carry. Why, a horse can do no more; nay, a horse cannot fetch, but only carry; therefore, is she better than a jade. Item, She can milk; look you, a sweet virtue in a maid with clean hands.

Enter SPEED.

Speed. How now, signior Launce? what news with your mastership?

Laun. With my master's ship? why, it is at sea.

Speed. Well, your old vice still; mistake the word. What news then in your paper?

Laun. The blackest news that ever thou heard'st.

Speed. Why, man, how black?

Laun. Why, as black as ink.

Speed. Let me read them.

Laun. Pie on thee, Jolt-head; thou can'st not read.

Speed. Thou flow'st, I can.

Laun. I will try thee: Tell me this: Who begot thee?

Speed. Marry, the son of my grandfather.

Laun. O illiterate loiterer! it was the son of thy grandmother: this proves, that thou canst not read.

Speed. Come, fool, come; try me in thy paper.

Laun. There; and saint Nicholas* be thy speed!

Speed. Imprimis, She can milk.

Laun. Ay, that she can.

Speed. Item, She brews good ale.

Laun. And therefore comes the proverb,—Blessing of your heart, you brew good ale.

Speed. Item, She can sew.

Laun. That's as much as to say, Can she so?

Speed. Item, She can knit.

Laun. What need a man care for a stock with a wench, when she can knit him a stock.

Speed. Item, She can wash and scour.

Laun. A special virtue; for thou she need not be washed and scoured.

Speed. Item, She can spin.

Laun. Then may I set the world on wheels, when she can spin for her living.

Speed. Item, She hath many nameless virtues.

Laun. That's as much as to say, bastard virtues; that, indeed, know not their fathers, and therefore have no names.

Speed. Here follow her vices.

Laun. Close at the heels of her virtues.

Speed. Item, She is not to be kissed fasting, in respect of her breath.

Laun. Well, that fault may be mended with a breakfast: Read on.

Speed. Item, She hath a sweet mouth.

Laun. That makes amends for her sour breath.

Speed. Item, She doth talk in her sleep.

Laun. It's no matter for that, so she sleep not in her talk.

Speed. Item, She is slow in words.

Laun. O villain, that set this down among her vices! To be slow in words, is a woman's only virtue: I pray thee, out with't; and place it for her chief virtue.

Speed. Item, She is proud.

Laun. Out with that too; it was Eve's legacy, and cannot be ta'en from her.

Speed. Item, She hath no teeth.

Laun. I care not for that neither, because I love crusts.

Speed. Item, She is curst.

Laun. Well; the best is, she hath no teeth to bite.

* Oris.

* St. Nicholas presided over young scholars.

TWO GENTLEMEN OF VERONA.

Pro. I praise her liquor.
And, she shall: if she things should be

*eral.
cannot; for that's her purse she shall now, of another
cannot help. Well,

hair than wit, and
wealth than faults.
her. she was mine,
in that last article:

hair than wit,—
—at may be; I'll salt hides the salt,
the salt; the hair
than the wit; for What's next?
in hairs,— O, that that were an faults.

akes the faults gra-
and if it be a ble,—

ell thee,—that thy north-gate.

art thou? he hath hee.
um?

um, for thou hast scarce serve the

me sooner; 'pox of [Exit.

anged for reading
slave, that will
—I'll after, to re-
[Exit.

toom in the Duke's

PROTEUS behind.

, but that she will

from her sight.

despis'd most,
tail'd at me,
ning her.

love is as a figure
an hour's heat
lose his form.

rozen thoughts,
ad be forgot.—
our countryman,
oo, gone?

his going griev-

will kill that grief.
Thurio thinks not

old of thee,
gn of good desert,) er with thee.

oyal to your grace,
your grace.

willingly I would

and my daughter.

Graciosa! 3 Cut.

Pro. I do, my lord.

Duke. And also, I think, the
How she opposes her against

Pro. She did, my lord, wh
here.

Duke. Ay, and perversely
What might we do, to make
The love of Valentine, and k

Pro. The best way is to sh
With falsehood, cowardice, s
Three things that women hig

Duke. Ay, but she'll think,
hate.

Pro. Ay, if his enemy deliv
Therefore it must, with circum
By one, whom she esteemeth

Duke. Then you must unde
him.

Pro. And that, my lord, I sh
'Tis an ill office for a gentlem
Especially, against his very f

Duke. Where your good wa
tage him,

Your slander never can enda
Therefore the office is indiffer
Being entreated to it by your

Pro. You have prevailed, i
do it,

By aught that I can speak in
She shall not long continue le
But say, this weed her love fi

It follows not that she will lo
Thur. Therefore, as you unw
him,

Lest it should ravel, and be g
You must provide to bottom i
Which must be done, by prais

As you in worth dispraise Sir
Duke. And, Proteus, we d
this kind;

Because we know, on Valent
You are already love's firm v
And cannot soon revolt and c

Upon this warrant shall you l
Where you with Silvia may c
For she is lumpish, heavy, m

And, for your friend's sake, w
Where you may temper her, by
To hate young Valentine, an

Pro. As much as I can do,
But you, Sir Thurio, are not i
You must lay lime, to tangle*

By wailful sonnets, whose co
Should be full fraught with s Duke. Ay, much the force

poesy.
Pro. Say, that upon the alt
You sacrifice your tears, your

Write till your ink be dry; an Moist it again; and frame son
That may discover such integ

For Orpheus' lute was str sinews;

Whose golden touch could Make tigers tame, and huge l Forsake unsounded deeps to

After your dire-lamenting cle
Visit by night your lady's ch
With some sweet concert: to Tune a deploing damp;† i silence

Will well become such sw
This, or else nothing, will int
Duke. This discipline show

in love.

Pro. I do, my lord.

Duke. And also, I think, the
How she opposes her against

Pro. She did, my lord, wh
here.

Duke. Ay, and perversely
What might we do, to make
The love of Valentine, and k

Pro. The best way is to sh
With falsehood, cowardice, s
Three things that women hig

Duke. Ay, but she'll think,
hate.

Pro. Ay, if his enemy deliv
Therefore it must, with circum
By one, whom she esteemeth

Duke. Then you must unde
him.

Pro. And that, my lord, I sh
'Tis an ill office for a gentlem
Especially, against his very f

Duke. Where your good wa
tage him,

Your slander never can enda
Therefore the office is indiffer
Being entreated to it by your

Pro. You have prevailed, i
do it,

Ths. And thy advice this night I'll put in practice:
Therefore, sweet Proteus, my direction-giver,
Let us into the city presently
To sort* some gentlemen well skill'd in music:
I have a sonnet, that will serve the turn,
To give the onset to thy good advice.
Duke. About it gentlemen.
Pro. We'll wait upon your grace till after supper:
And afterward determine our proceedings.
Duke. Even now about it; I will pardon you.
[Exeunt.]

ACT IV.

SCENE I.—A Forest, near Mantua.

Enter certain OUTLAWS.

1 Out. Follow, stand fast; I see a passenger.
2 Out. If there be ten, shrink not, but down with 'em.

Enter VALENTINE and SPEED.

1 Out. Stand, Sir, and throw us that you have about you;
If not, we'll make you sit, and rise you.
Speed. Sir, we are undone! these are the villains
That all the travellers do fear so much.
Val. My friends,—
1 Out. That's not so, Sir; we are your enemies.
2 Out. Peace; we'll hear him.
3 Out. Ay, by my beard, will we;
for he's a proper man.
Val. Then know, that I have little wealth to Aman I am, cross'd with adversity: [To 1 Out.]
My riches are these poor habiliments,
Of which if you should here disfigure me,
You take the sum and substance that I have.
2 Out. Whither travel you?
Val. To Verona.
1 Out. Whence came you?
Val. From Milan.
2 Out. Have you long sojourned there?
Val. Some sixteen months; and longer might have staid,
If crooked fortune had not thwarted me.
1 Out. What, were you banish'd thence?
Val. I was.
2 Out. For what offence?
Val. For that which now torments me to rehearse:
I kill'd a man, whose death I much repent;
But yet I slew him manfully in fight,
Without false vantage, or base treachery.
1 Out. Why ne'er repent it, if it were done
so:
But were you banish'd for so small a fault?
Val. I was, and held me glad of such a doom.
1 Out. Have you the tongues?
Val. My youthful travel therein made me
Orde I often had been miserable. [Happy;]
2 Out. By the bare scalp of Robin Hood's fat friar,
This fellow were a king for our wild faction.
1 Out. We'll have him: Sirs, a word.
Speed. Master, be one of them;
It is an honourable kind of thievery.
Val. Peace, villain!
2 Out. Tell us this: Have you any thing to take to?
Val. Nothing, but my fortune.
2 Out. Know then, that some of us are gentlemen,
Such as the fury of ungovern'd youth,

Thrust from the company of sweet Silvia:
Myself was from Verona banish'd
For practising to steal away a lady,
An heir, and near allied unto the duke.
2 Out. And I from Mantua, for a gentleman,
Whom, in my mood, I stabb'd unto the heart.
1 Out. And I, for such like petty crimes as these.
But to the purpose,—(for we cite our faults,
That they may hold excus'd our lawless lives.)
And, partly, seeing you are beautified
With goodly shape; and by your own report
A linguist; and a man of such perfection,
As we do in our quality much want;— 2 Out. Indeed, because you are a banish'd
man,
Therefore, above the rest, we parley to you:
Are you content to be our general?
To make a virtue of necessity,
And live, as we do, in this wilderness?
2 Out. What say'st thou? wilt thou be of our consort?
Say, ay, and be the captain of us all:
We'll do thee homage, and be rul'd by thee,
Love thee as our commander, and our king.
1 Out. But if thou scorn our courtesy, thou diest.
2 Out. Thou shalt not live to brag what we have offer'd.
Val. I take your offer, and will live with Provided that you do no outrages [you;]
On silly women, or poor passengers.
2 Out. No, we detest such vile base practices.
Come, go with us, we'll bring thee to our crews,
And show thee all the treasure we have got;
Which, with ourselves, all rest at thy dispose.
[Exeunt.]

SCENE II.—Milan.—Court of the Palace.

Enter PROTEUS.

Pro. Already have I been false to Valentine,
And now I must be as unjust to Thurio.
Under the colour of commending him,
I have access my own love to prefer;
But Silvia is too fair, too true, too holy,
To be corrupted with my worthless gifts.
When I protest true loyalty to her,
She twits me with my falsehood to my friend;
When to her beauty I commend my vows,
She bids me think, how I have been forsworn
In breaking faith with Julia whom I lov'd:
And, notwithstanding all her sudden quips,
The least whereof would quell a lover's hope,
Yet, spangle-like, the more she spurs my love,
The more it grows and fawneth on her still.
But here comes Thurio: now must we to her
window,
And give some evening music to her ear.

Enter THURIO, and Musicians.

Ths. How now, Sir Proteus? are you crept
before us?
Pro. Ay, gentle Thurio; for, you know, that
love
Will creep in service where it cannot go.
Ths. Ay, but, I hope, Sir, that you love not
here.
Pro. Sir, but I do; or else I would be hence.
Ths. Whom? Silvia?
Pro. Ay, Silvia,—for your sake.
Ths. I thank you for your own. Now, gen-
Let's tune, and to it lustily a while. [Music.]

* Chorus out. † Well-looking. ‡ Language.

• Lawful. † Anger, resentment. ‡ Passionate reproaches.

TWO GENTLEMEN OF VERONA.

and JULIA in boy's

methinks you're
it?
cause I cannot be merry: I'll bring music, and see the peak?

[Music plays.

hear 'em.

he,
end her?

did lend her

ndness:

ess;
there.

ing:
g.

sadder than you

likes you not.
can likes me not.

the strings?
that he grieves

uff! it makes me

ot not in music.
s so,
is in the music!

spite,
always play but

ne play but one Proteus, that

gentlewoman?
e, his man, told

which, to-mor-
he must carry

company parts.
I will so plead,
g drift excels.

and Musicians.
er window.

our ladyship.
sic, gentlemen:

his pure heart's
um by his voice.

Sil. Sir Proteus, as I take i
Pro. Sir Proteus, gentle
servant.

Sil. What is your will?

Pro. That I may compass y

Sil. You have your wish;
this,—

That presently you bid you be Thou subtle, perjur'd, false, d
Think'st thou, I am so shallow
To be seduced by thy flattery,
That hast deceiv'd so many w Return, return, and make thy Far me,—by this pale queen o
I am so far from granting thy
That I despise thee for thy wi
And by and by intend to chid
Even for this time I spend in Pro. I grant, sweet love, t

But she is dead.

Jul. 'Twere false if I should
For, I am sure, she is not bur

Sil. Say, that she be; yet
friend,

Survives, to whom, thyself art
I am betroth'd: And art thou

To wrong him with thy import

Pro. I likewise hear, that V.

Sil. And so, suppose, am I;
Assure thyself, my love is bur

Pro. Sweet lady, let me n
earth.

Sil. Go to thy lady's grave
thence;

Or, at the least, in hers sepul

Jul. He heard not that.

Pro. Madam, if your heart l
Vouchsafe me yet your picture

The picture that is hanging in
To that I'll speak, to that I'll

For, since the substance of yo
Is else devoted, I am but a sh

And to your shadow I will ma

Jul. If 'twere a substance, y deceive it,

And make it but a shadow, as

Sil. I am very loath to be yo
But, since your falsehood sh

well
To worship shadows, and ador

Send to me in the morning, as
And so good rest.

Pro. As wretches have o'er-
That wait for execution in the

[Exit PROTEUS; and Sil

Jul. Host, will you go?

Host. By my hallidom,* I w

Jul. Pray you, where lies S

Host. Marry, at my house think, 'tis almost day.

Jul. Not so; but it bath b
night

That e'er I watch'd, and the m

SCENE III.—The

Enter EGLAMOR

Egl. This is the hour that m
Entreated me to call, and kno

There's some great matter al
Madam, madam!

SILVIA appears above, at a

Sil. Who calls?

* Holy dame, blessed

Egl. Your servant, and your friend;
One that attends your ladyship's command.

M. Sir Eglamour, a thousand thanks good-morrow.

Egl. As merry, worthy lady, to yourself,
According to your ladyship's impress,
I am thus early come, to know what service
It is your pleasure to command me in.

M. O Eglamour, thou art a gentleman, (Think not, I flatter, Sir, I swear, I do not.)
Valiant, wise, reverend, well accomplished.
Thou art not ignorant, what dear good will
I bear unto the beautiful Valentine;
How low my father would enforce me marry
Valentine, who my very soul abhor'd.
Thou'lt hasten her'd; and I have heard thee say,
No grief did ever come so near thy heart,
As when thy lady and thy true love died,
Upon whose grave thou vow'dst pure chastity.
Sir Eglamour, I would to Valentine,
To Mantua, where I hear he makes abode;
And, for the ways are dangerous to pass,
I do desire thy worthy company,
Upon whom faith and honour I repose.
Dost not my father's eager Eglamour,
But think upon my grief, a lady's grief;
And on the justice of my flying hence,
To keep me from a most unhappy match,
Which heaven and fortune still reward with plagues.

I do desire thee, even from a heart
As full of sorrows as the sea of sands,
To bear me company, and go with me:
Hast to hide what I have said to thee,
That I may venture to depart alone.

Egl. Madam, I pity much your grievance;
Which since I know they virtuously are plac'd,
I give consent to go along with you;
Seeking as little what betideth me,
As much I wish all good befortune you.
When will you go?

M. This evening coming.

Egl. Where shall I meet you?

M. At friar Patrick's cell,

Where I intend holy confession.

Egl. I will not fail your ladyship:

Good-morrow, gentle lady.

M. Good-morrow, kind Sir Eglamour.

[Exit.

SCENE IV.—The same.

Enter LAUNCE, with his dog.

Laun. When a man's servant shall play the cur with him, look you, it goes hard: one that I brought up of a puppy; one that I saved from drowning, when three or four of his blind brothers and sisters went to it! I have taught him—even as one would say precisely. Thus I would teach a dog. I was sent to deliver him,
as present to mistress Silvia, from my master;
and I came no sooner into the dining-chamber,
but he steps me to her trencher, and steals her cup's leg. O, 'tis a foul thing, when a cur cannot keep himself in all companies! I would love, as one should say, one that takes upon him to be a dog indeed, to be, as it were, a dog at all things. If I had not had more wit than he, to take a fault upon me that he did, I think truly he had been hang'd for't, sure as I live,
he had suffered for't: you shall judge. He casts me himself into the company of three or four gentleman-like dogs, under the duke's table: he had not been there (bless the mark) a plucking while; but all the chamber smelt him.
Out with the dog, says one; What cur is that?

o. Injuncheon, command.
; Owing.

↑ Plead.
; Submit.

says another; Whip him out, says the third;
Hang him up, says the duke. I, having been acquainted with the small before, knew it was Crab; and gave me to the fellow that whips
the dogs: Pfland, quoth I, you mean to whip the dog? Ay, marry, do I, quoth he. You do him
the more wrong, quoth I; 'twere I did the thing you wot of. He makes me no more ado, but whips me out of the chamber. How many masters would do this for their servant? Nay, I'll be sworn, I have sat in the stocks for paddocks he hath stolen, otherwise he had been executed: I have stood on the pillory for geese
he hath killed, otherwise he had suffered for't;
then think'st not of this now!—Nay, I remember the trick you served me, when I took my leave of madam Silvia; did not I bid thee still mark me, and do as I do? When didst thou see me heave up my leg, and make water against a gentleman's fardingale? didst thou ever see me do such a trick?

Enter PROTEUS and JULIA.

Pro. Sebastian is thy name? I like thee well,
And will employ thee in some service presently.
Jul. In what you please;—I will do what I can.

Pro. I hope, thou wilt.—How now, you whimsical peasant? [To LAUNCE.

Where have you been these two days lettering?
Laun. Marry, Sir, I carried mistress Silvia
the dog you bade me.

Pro. And what says she, to my little jewel?
Laun. Marry, she says, your dog was a cur;
and tells you, curish thanks is good enough
for such a present.

Pro. But she received my dog?

Laun. No, indeed, she did not: here have I brought him back again.

Pro. What, didst thou offer her this from me?

Laun. Ay, Sir; the other squirrel was stolen from me by the hangman's boys in the marketplace: and then I offered her mine own; who is a dog as big as ten of yours, and therefore the gift the greater.

Pro. Go, get thee hence, and find my dog.
Or ne'er return again into my sight. [Again,
Away, I say: Stay'st thou to vex me here?
A slave, that, still an end,* turns me to shame.

[Exit LAUNCE.

Sebastian, I have entertained thee,
Partly, that I have need of such a youth,
That can with some discretion do my business,
For 'tis no trusting to you foolish lowt;
But, chiefly, for thy face, and thy behaviour;
Which (if my augury deceive me not)
Witness good bringing up, fortune, and truth:
Therefore know thou, for this I entertain thee.
Go presently, and take this ring with thee,
Deliver it to madam Silvia:
She loved me well, deliver'd it to me.

Jul. It seems, you loved her not, to leave her She's dead, belike.

[taken:

Pro. Not so, I think she lives.

Jul. Alas!

Pro. Why dost thou cry, alas?

Jul. I cannot choose but pity her.

Pro. Wherefore should'st thou pity her?

Jul. Because, methinks, that she loved you
As you do love your lady Silvia: [as well
She dreams on him, that has forgot her love;
You dote on her, that cares not for your love.
'Tis pity, love should be so contrary;
And thinking on it makes me cry, alas!

Pro. Well, give her that ring, and therewithal

o. In the end.

TWO GENTLEMEN OF VERONA.

—Tell my lady,
 heavenly picture.
 into my chamber,
 and solitary.
 [Exit PROTEUS. could do such a entertain'd
 mbs:
 him
 with me?
 with me;
 y him.
 parted from me,
 and will:
 (nger)
 d not obtain;
 ve refus'd;
 ould have dis-
 d love;
 my master,
 myself,
 t so coldly,
 I not have him

test.
 ay you, be my [via.
 with madam Siler, if that I be at your patience
 I am sent on.
 Proteus, madam.
 picture?
 there.
 Picture brought.
 him from me,
 ights forget,
 in this shadow.
 this letter.—
 advis'd
 ould not;
 ap.
 on that again.
 um, pardon me.
 t's lines:
 protestations,
 which he will [break
 r ladyship this
 [me;
 that he sends it
 ousand times,
 parture:
 dan'd the ring,
 much wrong.

you tender her:
 er wrongs her
 now myself:
 test,
 eral times.
 Proteus hath forat's her cause of
 am, than she is:

When she did think my master
 She, in my judgement, was as
 But since she did neglect her
 And threw her sun-expelling
 The air hath starv'd the roses
 And pinch'd the lily-tincture
 That now she is become as bla Sil. How tall was she?
 Jul. About my stature: for,
 When all our pageants of deli
 Our youth got me to play the
 And I was trimm'd in madam
 Which served me as fit, by all n
 As if the garment had been m
 Therefore, I know she is abou
 And, at that time, I made her
 For I did play a lamentable p
 Madam, 'twas Ariadne, pass
 For Theseus' perjury, and unj
 Which I so lively acted with That my poor mistress, moved Wept bitterly; and, would I
 If I in thought felt not her ver
 Sil. She is beholden to thee.
 Alas, poor lady! desolate and I weep myself, to think upon Here, youth, there is my pos
 this

For thy sweet mistress' sake, be Farewell.
 Jul. And she shall thank you know her.—
 A virtuous gentlewoman, mild
 I hope my master's suit will be
 Since she respects my mistress
 Alas, how love can trifle with Here is her picture: Let me
 If I had such a tire,† this face
 Were full as lovely as is this c
 And yet the painter flatter'd b Unless I flatter with myself to Her hair is auburn, mine is pe
 If that be all the difference in I'll get me such a colour'd per
 Her eyes are grey as glass; a Ay, but her forehead's low, an
 What should it be, that he res
 But I can make respectives‡ in
 If this fond love were not a bl
 Come, shadow, come, and take
 For 'tis thy rival. O thou sen
 Thou shalt be worshipp'd, ki
 ador'd;
 And, were there sense in his i
 My substance should be statu
 I'll use thee kindly for thy mi
 That us'd me so; or else, by J
 I should have scratch'd out you
 To make my master out of love

ACT V.

SCENE I.—The same.—

Enter EOLAMOU

Egl. The sun begins to gild
 And now, it is about the very
 That Silvia, at Patrick's cell,
 She will not fail; for lovers be Unless it be to come before the
 So much they spur their exped

Enter SILVIA.

See, where she comes: Lady, a
 Sil. amen, amen! go on, go

† In disguise. ‡ In good earnest § Respectable.

Out at the postern by the abbey wall ;
I fear, I am attended by some spies.

Egl. Fear not : the forest is not three leagues
If we recover that, we are sure enough. [off ;
[Exit.

SCENE II.—The same.—An Apartment in the DUKE'S palace.

Enter THURIO, PROTEUS, and JULIA.

Tha. Sir Proteus, what says Silvia to my suit ?

Pro. O, Sir, I find her milder than she was ;
And yet she takes exceptions at your person.

Tha. What, that my leg is too long ?

Pro. No, that it is too little.

Tha. I'll wear a boot, to make it somewhat rounder.

Pro. But love will not be spur'd to what it loaths.

Tha. What says she to my face ?

Pro. She says, it is a fair one.

Tha. Nay, then the wanton lies ; my face is

Pro. But pearls are fair ; and the old saying is,
Black men are pearls in beauteous ladies' eyes.
Jul. 'Tis true ; such pearls as put out ladies'
eyes ;

For I had rather wink than look on them.

Tha. How likes she my discourse ? [Aside.

Pro. Ill, when you talk of war.

Tha. But well, when I discourse of love, and
peace.

Jul. But better, indeed, when you hold your peace. [Aside.

Tha. What says she to my valour ?

Pro. O, Sir, she makes no doubt of that.

Jul. She needs not, when she knows it coward-dice. [Aside.

Tha. What says she to my birth ?

Pro. That you are well deriv'd.

Jul. True, from a gentleman to a fool. [Aside.

Tha. Considers she my possessions ?

Pro. O, ay ; and pities them.

Tha. Wherefore ?

Jul. That such an ass should owe them. [Aside.

Pro. That they are out by lease.

Jul. Here comes the duke.

Enter DUKE.

Duke. How now, Sir Proteus ? how now, Thurio ?

Which of you saw Sir Eglamour of late ?

Tha. Not I.

Pro. Not I.

Duke. Saw you my daughter ?

Pro. Neither.

Duke. Why, then she's fled unto that peasant
Valentine ;

And Eglamour is in her company.

'Tis true ; for friar Laurence met them both,
As he in penance wander'd through the forest ;
Him he knew well, and guess'd that it was she ;
But, being mask'd, he was not sure of it.
Besides, she did intend confession [not ;
At Patrick's cell this even ; and there she was
These likelihoods confirm her flight from hence.
Therefore, I pray you, stand not to discourse,
But mount you presently ; and meet with me
Upon the rising of the mountain foot [fled ;
That leads towards Mantua, whither they are Despatch, sweet gentlemen, and follow me. [Exit.

Tha. Why, this it is to be a peevish girl,

That flies her fortune when it follows her :

I'll after ; more to be reveng'd on Eglamour,
Than for the love of reckless Silvia. [Exit.

Pro. And I will follow, more for Silvia's love,
Than hate of Eglamour that goes with her. [Exit.

Jul. And I will follow more to cross that
love,

Than hate for Silvia, that is gone for love. [Exit.

SCENE III.—Frontiers of Mantua—The Forest.

Enter SILVIA and OUTLAWS.

Out. Come, come,

Be patient, we must bring you to our captain.

Sil. A thousand more mischances than this one
Have learn'd me how to brook this patiently.

2 Out. Come, bring her away.

1 Out. Where is the gentleman that was with
her ?

3 Out. Being nimble footed, he hath outrun
But Moyses, and Valerius, follow him. [us,

Go thou with her to the west end of the wood,
There is our captain : we'll follow him that's
The thicket is beset, he cannot 'scape. [fled ;

1 Out. Come, I must bring you to our captain's cave :

Fear not, he bears an honourable mind,
And will not use a woman lawlessly.

Sil. O Valentine, this I endure for thee ! [Exit.

SCENE IV.—Another part of the Forest.

Enter VALENTINE.

Val. How use doth breed a habit in a man !

This shadowy desert, unfrequented woods,

I better brook than flourishing peopled towns :

Here can I sit alone, unseen of any,

And, to the nightingale's complaining notes,

Tune my distresses, and record my woes.

O thou that dost inhabit in my breast,

Leave not the mansion so long tenantless ;

Lest, growing ruinous, the building fall,

And leave no memory of what it was !

Repair me with thy presence, Silvia ;

Thou gentle nymph, cherish thy forlorn swain !—

What halloing, and what stir, is this to-day ?

These are my mates, that make their wills their
law,

Have some unhappy passenger in chase :

They love me well ; yet I have much to do,

To keep them from uncivil outrages.

Withdraw thee, Valentine ; who's this comes here ? [Steps aside.

Enter PROTEUS, SILVIA, and JULIA.

Pro. Madam, this service I have done for you, [doth,)

(Though you respect not aught your servant
To hazard life, and rescue you from him
That wou'd have forc'd your honour and your
love.

Vouchsafe me, for my meed, † but one fair look ;

A smaller boon than this I cannot beg,

And less than this, I am sure, you cannot give.

Val. How like a dream is this I see and hear !

Love, lend me patience to forbear a while. [Aside.

Sil. O miserable, unhappy that I am !

Pro. Unhappy, were you, madam, ere I came ;

But, by my coming, I have made you happy.

Sil. By thy approach thou mak'st me most unhappy.

Jul. And me, when he approacheth to your presence. [Aside.

* Julia. † Own. ‡ Foolish.

* Careless. † Sing. ‡ Reward.

hungry lion,
to the beast,
rescue me.
Valentine,
my soul;
re cannot be,)
us:
o more.
stood it next

alm look?
ill approv'd,*
they're below'd.
where he's be-

at best love,
then rend thy

those oaths
me. [two,
less thou hadst
e, better have much by one:

end!

of moving words
ilder form,
rms' end;
e of love, force

ny desire.
uncivil touch;

that's without

acherous man!
nought but mine

ew I dare not say
ould'st disprove

hen one's right
us, [hand
thee more,
for thy sake.

O time, most

al should be the

nfounds me.—
ty sorrow
ce,
suffer,

ee honest:—

hed, [pleas'd,
for these are
h's appear'd:—
plain and free,
give thee.

[Faints

how now? what

charg'd me

VIA;

never done.

Jul. Here 'tis: this is it. [Gives a ring.

Pro. How! let me see:—

Why this is the ring I gave to Julia.

Jul. O, cry your mercy, Sir, I have mistook;

This is the ring you sent to Silvia.

[Shows another ring.

Pro. But, how cam'st thou by this ring? at my depart,

I gave this unto Julia.

Jul. And Julia herself did give it me;

And Julia herself hath brought it hither.

Pro. How! Julia!

Jul. Behold her that gave aim* to all thy oaths,

And entertain'd them deeply in her heart:

How oft hast thou with perjury cleft the root†

O Proteus, let this habit make thee blush!

Be thou asham'd, that I have took upon me

Such an immodest raiment; if shame live

In a disguise of love:

It is the leaser blot, modesty finds, [minds.

Women to change their shapes, than men their

Pro. Than men their minds? 'tis true: O

heaven! were man

But constant, he were perfect: that one error

Fills him with faults; makes him run through all sins:

Inconstancy falls off, ere it begins:

What is in Silvia's face, but I may spy

More fresh in Julia's with a constant eye?

Val. Come, come, a hand from either:

Let me be blest to make this happy close!

Twere pity two such friends should be long foes.

Pro. Bear witness, heaven, I have my wish for ever.

Jul. And I have mine.

Enter OUTLAWS, with DUKE and THURIO.

Out. A prize, a prize, a prize!

Val. Forbear, I say; it is my lord the duke.

Your grace is welcome to a man disgrac'd,

Banish'd Valentine.

Duke. Sir Valentine!

Tha. Yonder is Silvia; and Silvia's mine.

Val. Thurio give back, or else embrace thy

death;

Come not within the measure† of my wrath:

Do not name Silvia thine; if once again,

Milan shall not behold thee. Here she stands,

Take but possession of her with a touch;—

I dare thee but to breathe upon my love.—

Tha. Sir Valentine, I care not for her, I;

I hold him but a fool, that will endanger

His body for a girl that loves him not:

I claim her not, and therefore she is thine.

Duke. The more degenerate and base art thou,

To make such means‡ for her as thou hast done,

And leave her on such slight conditions.—

Now, by the honour of my ancestry,

I do applaud thy spirit, Valentine,

And think thee worthy of an empress' love.

Know then, I here forget all former griefs,

Cancel all grudge, repeal thee home again.—

Plead a new state in thy unrivall'd merit,

To which I thus subscribe,—Sir Valentine,

Thou art a gentleman, and well deriv'd;

Take thou thy Silvia, for thou hast deserv'd her.

Val. I thank your grace; the gift hath made me happy.

I now beseech you, for your daughter's sake,

To grant one boon that I shall ask of you.

Duke. I grant it, for thine own, whate'er it is.

Val. These banish'd men, that I have kept

withal,

* Direction. † An allusion to cleaving the yin in archery.

‡ Length of my sword. † Interest.

are endued with worthy qualities;
 re them what they have committed here,
 at them be recall'd from their exile:
 no reformed, civil, full of good,
 fit for great employment, worthy lord.

2. Thou hast prevail'd: I pardon them,
 and thee;

3. of them, as thou know'st their deserts.

Let us go; we will include* all jars
 zinnaphs,† mirth, and rare solemnity.

And, as we walk along, I dare be bold our discourse to make your grace to smile:

* Corrodes

† Masks, reveals.

What think you of this page, my lord?

Duke. I think the boy hath grace in him; he blushes.

Val. I warrant you, my lord; more grace than boy.

Duke. What mean you by that saying?

Val. Please you, I'll tell you as we pass along.

That you will wonder what hath fortun'd.—

Come, Proteus; 'tis your penance, but to hear
 The story of your loves discovered:

That done, our day of marriage shall be yours;
 One feast, one house, one mutual happiness.

[Exeunt.]

URE FOR MEASURE.

PERSONS REPRESENTED.

Duke's absence. ned with Angelo nt to the Duke.	CLOWN, Servant to Mrs. Over-done. ABHORSON, an Executioner. BARNARDINE, a dissolute Prisoner ISABELLA, Sister to Claudio. MARIANA, betrothed to Angelo. JULIET, beloved by Claudio. FRANCISCA, a Nun. Mrs. OVER-DONE, a Bawd. Lords, Gentlemen, Guards, Officers, and other Attendants. SCENE, Vienna. in the Duke's
--	--

 and Attendants.

properties to un-[course;
 speech and dis-
 our own science,
 all advice
 en no more re-[able,
 s your worth is
 re of our people,
 e terms
 s pregnant in,
 ed any ur commission,
 ve you warp.—

lo.—
 at an Attendant.
 e will bear?
 with special soul
 pply;
 with our love;
 he organs
 k you of it?
 f worth
 and honour,

ur grace's will,

thy life,
 history
 belongings;

Endowments.

Are not thine own so proper,* as to waste
 Thyself upon thy virtues, them on thee.
 Heaven doth with us, as we with torches do;
 Not light them for themselves: for if our virtues
 Did not go forth of us, 'twere all alike
 As if we had them not. Spirits are not fleshly
 touch'd,

But to fine issues:† nor nature never lends
 The smallest scruple of her excellence,
 But, like a thrifty goddess, she determines Herself the glory of a creditor,
 Both thanks and use.‡ But I do bend my speech
 To one that can my part in him advertise;
 Hold therefore, Angelo;
 In our remove, be thou at full yourself;
 Mortality and mercy in Vienna
 Live in thy tongue and heart: Old Escalus,
 Though first in question, is thy secondary:
 Take thy commission.

Ang. Now, good my lord,
 Let there be some more test made of my metal,
 Before so noble and so great a figure
 Be stamp'd upon it.

Duke. No more evasion:
 We have with a heaven'd and prepared choice
 Proceeded to you; therefore take your honour.
 Our haste from hence is of so quick condition,
 That it prefers itself, and leaves unquestion'd
 Matters of needful value. We shall write to you,
 As time and our concernings shall importune,
 How it goes with us; and do look to know
 What doth befall you here. So, fare you well:
 To the hopeful execution do I leave you
 Of your commissions.

Ang. Yet, give leave, my lord,
 That we may bring you something on the way.

Duke. My haste may not admit it;
 Nor need you, on mine honour, have to do
 With any scruple: your scope§ is as mine own;
 So to enforce, or qualify the laws,
 As to your soul seems good. Give me your I'll privily away: I love the people, [hand;

* So much thy own property. † For high purposes.
 ‡ Interest. § Extent of power.

But do not like to stage me to their eyes:
Though I do well, I do not wish well
Their loud applause, and ever vehement;
Nor do I think the name of safe discretion,
That does affect it. Once more, fare you well.

Ang. The heavens give safety to your purposes!

Isabel. Lead forth, and bring you back in happiness.

Duke. I thank you: Fare you well. [Exit.

Isabel. I shall desire you, Sir, to give me leave
To have free speech with you; and it concerns
To look into the bottom of my plume: [she
A power I have; but of what strength and use
I am not yet instructed. [two

Ang. 'Tis so with me:—Let us withdraw together,

And we may soon our satisfaction have Touching that point.

Isabel. I'll wait upon your honour. [Exeunt.

SCENE II.—A Street.

Enter Lucio and two Gentlemen.

Isabel. If the duke, with the other dukes,
came not in competition with the king of Hungary,
why, then all the dukes fall upon the king.

1 Gent. Heaven grant us his peace, but not the king of Hungary's!

2 Gent. Amen.

Isabel. Then concluded like the executioners
plume, that went to sea with the ten commandments,
but scaped one out of the table.

2 Gent. Then shall not steal?

Isabel. Ay, that he razed.

1 Gent. Why, 'twas a commandment to command the captain and all the rest from their functions;
they put forth to steal: There's not a soldier of us all, that, in the thanksgiving
before meat, doth relish the petition well that prays for peace.

2 Gent. I never heard any soldier dislike it.

Isabel. I believe thee; for, I think, thou never was where grace was said.

2 Gent. No? a dozen times at least.

1 Gent. What? in metre?

Isabel. In any proportion,† or in any language.

1 Gent. I think, or in any religion.

Isabel. Ay! why not? Grace is grace, despite of all controversy: As for example; Thou thyself art a wicked villain, despite of all grace.

1 Gent. Well, there went but a pair of sheers between us;†

Isabel. I grant; as there may between the lin and the velvet: Thou art the list.

1 Gent. And thou the velvet: thou art good velvet; thou art a three-pil'd piece, I warrant thee: I had as lief be a list of an English kersey, as be pil'd, as thou art pil'd, for a French velvet.‡ Do I speak feelingly now?

Isabel. I think thou dost; and, indeed, with most painful feeling of thy speech: I will, out of thine own confession, learn to begin thy health; but, whilst I live, forget to drink after thee.

1 Gent. I think, I have done myself wrong;
have I not?

2 Gent. Yes, that thou hast; whether thou art tainted, or free.

Isabel. Behold, behold, where madam Mitigation comes! I have purchased as many disgraces under her roof, as come to—

2 Gent. To what, I pray?

1 Gent. Judge.

† Hedges. ‡ Measure. § A cut of the same cloth.
‡ A just on the law of hair by the French disease.

2 Gent. To three thousand dollars a year.

1 Gent. Ay, and more.

Isabel. A French crown* more.

1 Gent. Thou art always figuring diseases in me: but thou art full of error; I am sound.

Isabel. Nay, not as one would say, healthy;
but so sound, as things that are hollow: thy bones are hollow; impiety has made a feast
of thee.

Enter BARD.

1 Gent. How now? Which of your hips has the most profound solution?

Bard. Well, well; there's one yonder arrested, and carried to prison, was worth five thousand of you all.

1 Gent. Who's that, I pray thee?

Bard. Marry, Sir, that's Claudio, signior Claudio.

1 Gent. Claudio to prison! 'tis not so.

Bard. Nay, but I know, 'tis so: I saw him arrested; saw him carried away; and, which is more, within these three days his head's to be chopped off.

Isabel. But, after all this fooling, I would not have it so: Art thou sure of that?

Bard. I am too sure of it: and it is for getting madam Julietta with child.

Isabel. Believe me, this may be: he promised to meet me two hours since; and he was ever precise in promise-keeping.

2 Gent. Besides, you know, it draws something near to the speech we had to such a purpose.

1 Gent. But most of all, agreeing with the proclamation.

Isabel. Away; let's go learn the truth of it.

[Exeunt LUCIO and GENTLEMEN.

Bard. Thus, what with the war, what with the sweat,† what with the gallows, and what with poverty, I am custom-ashrunk. How now?
what's the news with you?

Enter CLOWN.

Clo. Yonder man is carried to prison.

Bard. Well; what has he done?

Clo. A woman.

Bard. But what's his offence?

Clo. Graping for trouts in a peculiar river.

Bard. What, is there a maid with child by
him?

Clo. No; but there's a woman with maid by him. You have not heard of the proclamation, have you?

Bard. What, proclamation, man.

Clo. All houses in the suburbs of Vienna must be pluck'd down.

Bard. And what shall become of those in the city?

Clo. They shall stand for seed: they had gone down too, but that a wise burgher put in for them.

Bard. But shall all our houses of resort in the suburbs be pull'd down?

Clo. To the ground, mistress.

Bard. Why, here's a change, indeed, in the commonwealth! What shall become of me?

Clo. Come; fear not you, good counsellors lack no clients: though you change your place,
you need not change your trade; I'll be your tapster still. Courage; there will be pity taken on you: you that have worn your eyes almost out in the service, you will be considered.

Bard. What's to do here, Thomas Tapster?
Let's withdraw.

* Crowned crown.

† The sweating sickness.

MEASURE FOR MEASURE.

er Claudio, led by the
ere's madam Juliet.
[Exeunt.

The same.
JULIET, and Officers;
Gentlemen.

st thou show me thus
I am committed.
disposition,
special charge.
god, Authority, offence by weight,—
whom it will, it will;
yet still 'tis just.
Claudio? whence

liberty, my Lucio,

much fast,
moderate use
atures do pursue,
n their proper bane,)
we drink, we die.
so wisely under an
ertain of my creditors:
I had as lief have the morality of im-offence, Claudio?
peak of would offend

der?

ust go.
d friend:—Lucio, a [Takes him aside.
y'll do you any good.

th me:—Upon a true
a's bed; [contract,
a fast my wife,
vation lack
e came not to,
flower

er friends;
met to hide our love,
us. But it chances,
tual entertainment,
is writ on Juliet.

ps?

so.

for the duke,—

glimpse of newness;

public be

ner doth ride,

at it may know

raight feel the spur:

his place,

it up,

governor

d penalties,

d armour, hung by

est have gone round,

n, and, for a name,

neglected act

y, for a name.

and thy head stands

, that a milk-maid,

it off. Send after

n.

he's not to be found.

Voraciously devour.

lickle.

I pr'ythee, Lucio, do me this
This day my sister should th
And there receive her appro
Acquaint her with the dang
Implore her, in my voice, tha
To the strict deputy; bid her
I have great hope in that: fo
There is a prompt and speech
Such as moves men; besides,
ous art

When she will play with reas
And well she can persuade.

Lucio. I pray, she may; a couragement of the like, v stand under grievous impos enjoying of thy life, who I should be thus foolishly lost tack. I'll to her.

Claud. I thank you, good

Lucio. Within two hours,—

Claud. Come, officer, away

SCENE IV.—A M

Enter DUKE and FRI

Duke. No; holy father;
thought;

Believe not that the dribbling
Can pierce a complete bosom:
To give me secret harbour, b
More grave and wrinkled than
Of burning youth.

Fri. May your grace speak

Duke. My holy Sir, none t
you

How I have ever lov'd the lif
And held in idle price to hau

Where youth, and cost, and I have delivered to lord Ang

(A man of stricture,[†] and fir
My absolute power and place

And he supposes me travell'
For so I have strew'd it in th

And so it is receiv'd: Now,]
You will demand of me, why

Fri. Gladly, my lord.

Duke. We have strict statute

laws,

(The needful hits and curb

Which for these fourteen ye

sleep;

Even like an o'ergrown lion i

That goes not out to prey: No

Having bound up the threat'ni

Only to stick it in their child

For terror, not to use; in time

Becomes more mock'd, than f

Dead to infliction, to themse

And liberty plucks justices by

The baby beats the nurse, and Goes all decorum.

Fri. It rested in your grace

To unloose this tied-up ju

And it in you more dread

Than in lord Angelo.

Duke. I do fear, too dreadf

Sith^{} 'twas my fault to give

'Twould be my tyranny to stril

For what I bid them do: For

done,

When evil deeds have their p

And not the punishment. Th

my father,

I have on Angelo impos'd the

Who may, in the ambush of

* Enter on her probation

† Completely armed.

‡ Shewy dress rustles. § Strictness

And yet my nature never in the sight,
To do it slander: And to behold his sway,
I will, as 'twere a brother of your order,
What both prince and people: therefore, I pre'y-
thee,

Supply me with the habit, and instruct me
How I may formally in person bear me
Like a true friar. More reasons for this action,
At our more leisure shall I render you;
Only, this one—Lord Angelo is precise;
Stands at a guard* with envy, scarce confesses
That his blood flows, or that his appetite
Is more to bread than stone. Hence shall we see,
If power change purpose, what our seemers be.
[Exit.

SCENE V.—A Nunnery.

Enter ISABELLA and FRANCISCA.

Isab. And have you nuns no further privileges?

Franc. Are not these large enough?

Isab. Yes, truly. I speak not as desiring more;
But rather wishing a more strict restraint
Upon the sisterhood, the votarists of saint Clare.

Lucio. Ho! Peace be in this place! [Within.]

Isab. Who's that which calls?

Franc. It is a man's voice. Gentle Isabella,
Turn you the key, and know his business of him;
You may, I may not, you are yet unsworn:
When you have vow'd, you must not speak with
But in the presence of the prioress: [men,
Then, if you speak, you must not show your
face;

Or, if you show your face, you must not speak.
He calls again; I pray you, answer him.

[Exit FRANCISCA.

Isab. Peace and prosperity! Who is't that calls?

Enter LUCIO.

Lucio. Hail, virgin, if you be; as those cheek-
roses

Proclaim you are no less! Can you so stead me,
As bring me to the sight of Isabella,
A novice of this place, and the fair sister
To her unhappy brother, Claudio?

Isab. Why her unhappy brother? let me ask;
The rather, for I now must make you know
I am that Isabella, and his sister.

Lucio. Gentle and fair, your brother kindly greet's you:

Not to be weary with you, he's in prison.

Isab. Woe me! For what?

Lucio. For that, which, if myself might be his judge,

He should receive his punishment in thanks:

He hath got his friend with child.

Isab. Sir, make me not your story.†

Lucio. It is true.

I would not—though 'tis my familiar sin
With maids to seem the lapwing, and to jest,
Tongue far from heart,—play with all virgins so.
I hold you as a thing enskied, and sainted;
By your renouncement, an immortal spirit;
And to be talk'd with in sincerity,
As with a saint.

Isab. You do blaspheme the good, in mocking me.

Lucio. Do not believe it. Fewness and truth,†
'tis thus:

Your brother and his lover have embrac'd
As those that feed grow full; as blossoming time,
That from the seedness the bare fallow brings

To teeming foison;* even so her plenteous womb
Expresseth his full tilth and husbandry.

Isab. Some one with child by him?—My cousin Juliet?

Lucio. Is she your cousin?

Isab. Adoptedly, as school-maids change their names,

By vain though apt affection.

Lucio. She it is.

Isab. O, let him marry her!

Lucio. This is the point.

The duke is very strangely gone from hence;
Bore many gentlemen, myself being one,
In hand, and hope of action, but we do learn
By those that know the very nerves of state,
His givings out were of an infinite distance
From his true-meant design. Upon his place,
And with full line; of his authority,
Governs lord Angelo; a man, whose blood
Is very snow-broth, one who never feels
The wanton stings and motions of the sense;
But doth rebate and blunt his natural edge
With profits of the mind, study and fast.

He (to give fear to use and liberty,
Which have, for long, run by the hideous law,
As nice by lions,) hath pick'd out an act,
Under whose heavy sense your brother's life
Falls into forfeit: he arrests him on it;
And follows close the rigour of the statute,
To make him an example: all hope is gone,
Unless you have the graces by your fair prayer
To soften Angelo. And that's my pith
Of business 'twixt you and your poor brother.

Isab. Doth he so seek his life?

Lucio. Has censur'd|| him

Already; and, as I hear, the provost hath
A warrant for his execution.

Isab. Alas! what poor ability's in me
To do him good?

Lucio. Assay the power you have.

Isab. My power! Alas! I doubt,—

Lucio. Our doubts are traitors,
And make us lose the good we oft might win,
By fearing to attempt. Go to lord Angelo,
And let him learn to know, when maidens sue,
Men give like gods; but when they weep and
All their petitions are as freely theirs [kneel,
As they themselves would owe|| them.

Isab. I'll see what I can do.

Lucio. But speedily.

Isab. I will about it straight;

No longer staying but to give the mother

Notice of my affair. I humbly thank you.

Commend me to my brother. soon at night

I'll send him certain word of my success.

Lucio. I take my leave of you.

Isab. Good Sir, adieu. [Exit.

ACT II.

SCENE I.—A Hall in ANGELO'S House.

Enter ANGELO, ESCALUS, a JUSTICE, PROVOST,
Officers, and other Attendants.

Ang. We must not make a scare-crow of the Setting it up to fear†† the birds of prey, [law,
And let it keep one shape, the custom make it
Their perch, and not their terror.

Escal. Ay, but yet

Let us be keen, and rather cut a little,
Than fall, and bruise to death. Alas! this gentleman,

Whom I would save, had a most noble father.
Let but your honour know,††

* Breeding plenty.

† Power of gaining favour

 Abban.

† To || Betwixt

†† Scare.

‡ Extent

¶ Have.

|| Examine.

* On his defence. † Do not make a jest of me.
† In few and true words.

out in virtue,) in affections, or place with our blood of your own in your life you censure him, apted, Escalus, ny, er's life, a thief or two at's open made w the laws, es? 'Tis very p and take it, do not see, of it. fference, rather tell me, so offend, out my death, r, he must die. ill. mour. morning: be prepared; ritage. First Provost. m; and forgive virtue fall: e, and answer ut alone. Officers, &c. if these be  that do no- common houses, ny. s your name? I am the poor in Elbow; I do bring in here notorious bene- at benefactors ors? r, I know not r villains they ut all profana- christians ought here's a wise re they of? El- ou not speak, at elbow. parcelt-bawd; whose house, own in the su- e; a hot-house, se too. Plain. sentence. Wealth. keeps a bagnio.

Escal. How know you that?
Elb. My wife, Sir, whom I detest* before heaven and your honour,— Escal. How! thy wife?
Elb. Ay, Sir; whom, I thank heaven, is an honest woman,— Escal. Dost thou detest her therefore?
Elb. I say, Sir, I will detest myself also, as well as she, that this house, if it be not a bawd's house, it is pity of her life, for it is a naughty house.
Escal. How dost thou know that, constable?
Elb. Marry, Sir, by my wife; who, if she had been a woman cardinally given, might have been accused in fornication, adultery, and all uncleanness there.
Escal. By the woman's means?
Elb. Ay, Sir, by mistress Overdone's means: but as she spit in his face, so she defied him.
Clo. Sir, if it please your honour, this is not so.
Elb. Prove it before these varlets here, thou honourable man, prove it.
Escal. Do you hear how he misplaces?
[To Angelo.
Clo. Sir, she came in great with child; and longing (saving your honour's reverence,) for stew'd prunes; Sir, we had but two in the house, which at that very distant time stood, as it were, in a fruit dish, a dish of some three-pence; your honours have seen such dishes; they are not China dishes, but very good dishes.
Escal. Go to, go to: no matter for the dish, Sir.
Clo. No, indeed, Sir, not of a pin; you are therein in the right: but, to the point; As I say, this mistress Elbow, being, as I say, with child, and being great belly'd, and longing, as I said, for prunes; and having but two in the dish, as I said, master Froth here, this very man, having eaten the rest, as I said, and, as I say, paying for them very honestly;—for, as you know, master Froth, I cou'd not give you three-pence again.
Froth. No, indeed.
Clo. Very well; you being then, if you be remember'd, cracking the stones of the forecud prunes.
Froth. Ay, so I did, indeed.
Clo. Why, very well: I telling you then, if you be remember'd, that such a one, and such a one, were past cure of the thing you wot of, unless they kept very good diet, as I told you.
Froth. All this is true.
Clo. Why, very well then.
Escal. Come, you are a tedious fool: to the purpose.—What was done to Elbow's wife, that he hath cause to complain of? Come me to what was done to her.
Clo. Sir, your honour cannot come to that yet.
Escal. No, Sir, nor I mean it not.
Clo. Sir, but you shall come to it, by your honour's leave: And, I beseech you, look into master Froth here, Sir; a man of fourscore pound a year; whose father died at Hallowmas:—Was't not at Hallowmas, master Froth?
Froth. All-hollandt eve.
Clo. Why, very well; I hope here be truths: He, Sir, sitting, as I say, in a lower† chair, Sir;—'twas in the Beach of Grapes, where, indeed, you have a delight to sit: Have you not?
Froth. I have so, because it is an open room, and good for winter.
Clo. Why, very well then;—I hope here be truths.

* For predest. † Eve of All Saints day. ‡ Easy.

Ang. This will last out a night in Rutina,
When nights are longest there: I'll take my
leave,

And leave you to the hearing of the cause;
Hoping, you'll find good cause to whip them all.

Escal. I think no less: Good morrow to your lordship. [Exit ANGLO.

Now, Sir, come on: What was done to Elbow's wife, once more?

Clo. Once, Sir? there was nothing done to her once.

Elb. I beseech you, Sir, ask him what this man did to my wife.

Clo. I beseech your honour, ask me.

Escal. Well, Sir: What did this gentleman do to her?

Clo. I beseech you, Sir, look in this gentleman's face:—Good master Froth, look upon his honour; 'tis for a good purpose: Doth your honour mark his face?

Escal. Ay, Sir, very well.

Clo. Nay, I beseech you, mark it well.

Escal. Well, I do so.

Clo. Doth your honour see any harm in his face?

Escal. Why, no.

Clo. I'll be supposed* upon a book, his face is the worst thing about him: Good then; if his face be the worst thing about him, how could master Froth do the constable's wife any harm?
I would know that of your honour.

Escal. He's in the right: Constable, what say you to it?

Elb. First, am it like you, the house is a respected house; next, this is a respected fellow;
and his mistress is a respected woman.

Clo. By this hand, Sir, his wife is a more respected person than any of us all.

Elb. Varlet, thou liest; thou liest, wicked varlet: the time is yet to come, that she was ever respected with man, woman, or child.

Clo. Sir, she was respected with him before he married with her.

Escal. Which is the wiser here? Justice, or Iniquity? Is this true?

Elb. O thou caitiff! O thou varlet! O thou wicked Hannibal!† I respected with her, before I was married to her? If ever I was respected with her, or she with me, let not your worship think me the poor duke's officer:— Prove this, thou wicked Hannibal, or I'll have mine action of battery on thee.

Escal. If he took you a box o' ear, you might have your action of slander too.

Elb. Marry, I thank your good worship for it: What is't your worship's pleasure I should do with this wicked caitiff?

Escal. Truly, officer, because he hath some offences in him, that thou wouldst discover if thou couldst, let him continue in his courses,
till thou know'st what they are.

Elb. Marry, I thank your worship for it:— Thou seest, thou wicked varlet now, what's come upon thee; thou art to continue now, thou varlet; thou art to continue.

Escal. Where were you born, friend?

[To FROTH.

Froth. Here in Vienna, Sir.

Escal. Are you of fourscore pounds a year?

Froth. Yes, and't please you, Sir.

Escal. So.—What trade are you of, Sir?

[To the CLOWN.

Clo. A tapster; a poor widow's tapster.

Escal. Your mistress's name?

Clo. Mistress Over-done.

Escal. Hath she had any more than one husband.

Clo. Nine, Sir; Over-done by the last.

Escal. Nine!—Come hither to me, master Froth. Master Froth, I would not have you acquainted with tapsters; they will draw you master Froth, and you will hang them: Go
you gone, and let me hear no more of you.

Froth. I thank your worship: For mine own part, I never come into any room in a taphouse,
but I am drawn in.

Escal. Well; no more of it, master Froth:
farewell. [Exit FROTH.]—Come you hither to me, master tapster; what's your name, master
tapster?

Clo. Pompey.

Escal. What else?

Clo. Bum, Sir.

Escal. Troth, and your bum is the greatest thing about you; so that, in the beastliest sense, you are Pompey the great. Pompey, you are partly a bawd, Pompey, howsoever you colour
it in being a tapster. Are you not? come, tell me true; it shall be the better for you.

Clo. Truly, Sir, I am a poor fellow, that would live.

Escal. How would you live Pompey? by being a bawd? What do you think of the trade, Pompey? is it a lawful trade?

Clo. If the law would allow it, Sir.

Escal. But the law will not allow it, Pompey;
nor it shall not be allowed in Vienna.

Clo. Does your worship mean to geld and spay all the youth in the city?

Escal. No, Pompey.

Clo. Truly, Sir, in my poor opinion, they will to't then: If your worship will take order* for the drabs and the knaves, you need not to fear
the bawds.

Escal. There are pretty orders beginning, I can tell you: It is but heading and hanging.

Clo. If you head and hang all that offend that way but for ten year together, you'll be glad to give out a commission for more heads.
If this law hold in Vienna ten year, I'll rent
the fairest house in it, after threepence a bay:
If you live to see this come to pass, say, Pompey told you so.

Escal. Thank you, good Pompey: and, in requital of your prophecy, hark you,—I advise you, let me not find you before me again upon any complaint whatsoever, no, not for dwelling where you do; if I do, Pompey, I shall beat you to your tent, and prove a shrewd Caesar to you; in plain dealing, Pompey, I shall have you whipt: so for this time, Pompey, fare you
well.

Clo. I thank your worship for your good counsel; but I shall follow it, as the flesh and fortune shall better determine.

Whip me? No, no; let carman whip his jade;
The valiant heart's not whipt out of his trade.

[Exit.

Escal. Come hither to me, master Elbow;
come hither, master Constable. How long have you been in this place of constable?

Elb. Seven year and a half, Sir.

Escal. I thought, by your readiness in the office, you had continued in it some time: You say, seven years together?

Elb. And a half, Sir.

Escal. Alas! it hath been great pains to you!
They do you wrong to put you so oft upon't:
Are there not men in your ward sufficient to serve it?

* Deposed, sworn.

† Constable or clown.

; For cannibal.

* Measure.

MEASURE FOR MEASURE.

[ACT II.]

by wit in such they are glad to some piece of
in the names of efficient of your
Sir?
you well. [Exit
you?

ner with me.
death of Claudio;

as so;
and woe:
no remedy.
[Exit.

in the same.
ERVANT.
he will come [straight.
RV.] I'll know
relent: Alas,
ream!
s vice; and he

provost?
no shall die to-hadst thou not [order?
sh:
ave seen,
ent hath

our place,
ardon.—
the groaning [Juliet?

that with speed.
man condemn'd,
virtuous maid,
ed,

ed. [Exit SERV.
mov'd;
avish, means;

ELLA.
Firing to retire.
[To ISAB.] You
your will?
your honour,

st I do abhor,
blow of justice;
but that I must;
at that I am
ot.

Isab. I have a brother is condemn'd to die:
I do beseech you, let it be his fault,
And not my brother.

Prov. Heaven give thee moving graces!
Ang. Condemn the fault, and not the actor
of it!

Why, every fault's condemn'd, ere it be done:
Mine were the very cipher of a function,
To find the faults, whose fine stands in record,
And let go by the actor.

Isab. O just, but severe law!
I had a brother then.—Heaven keep your honour!

Lucio. [To ISAB.] Give't not o'er so: to him
again, entreat him;
Kneel down before him, hang upon his gown;
You are too cold: if you should need a pin,
You could not with more tame a tongue desire
To him, I say. [H:

Isab. Must he needs die?
Ang. Maiden, no remedy.

Isab. Yes; I do think that you might pardon him, [mercy.
And neither heaven, nor man, grieve at the

Ang. I will not do it.
Isab. But can you, if you would?

Ang. Look, what I will not, that I cannot do.
Isab. But might you do't, and do the world
no wrong,

If so your heart were touch'd with that remorse*
As mine is to him?

Ang. He's sentenc'd; 'tis too late.
Lucio. You are too cold. [To ISABELLA.

Isab. Too late? why, no; I, that do speak a
word,

May call it back again: Well believe't this,
No ceremony that to great ones 'longs,
Not the king's crown, nor the deputed sword,
The marshal's truncheon, nor the judge's robe,
Become them with one half so good a grace,
As mercy does. If he had been as you,
And you as he, you would have slipt like him;
But he, like you, would not have been so stern.

Ang. Pray you, begone.
Isab. I would to heaven I had your potency,

And you were Isabel! should it then be thus?
No; I would tell what 'twere to be a judge,
And what a prisoner.

Lucio. Ay, touch him: there's the vein.
[Aside.

Ang. Your brother is a forfeit of the law,
And you but waste your words.

Isab. Alas! alas!
Why, all the souls that were, were forfeit once;
And He that might the vantage best have took,
Found out the remedy: How would you be,
If He, which is the top of judgement, should
But judge you as you are? O, think on that;
And mercy then will breathe within your lips,
Like man new made.

Ang. Be you content, fair maid;
It is the law, not I, condemns your brother:
Were he my kinsman, brother, or my son,
It should be thus with him;—he must die tomorrow.

Isab. To-morrow? O, that's sudden! Spare him, spare him:

He's not prepar'd for death! Even for our kitchens [heaven

We kill the fowl of season; shall we serve
With less respect than we do minister To our gross selves? Good, good my lord, be-think you:

Who is it that hath died for this offence?
There's many have committed it.

* Prov. † Be assured. ‡ When it is done.

Lucio. Ay, well said.

Ang. The law hath not been dead, though it hath slept:

Those many had not dar'd to do that evil,
If the first man that did the edict infringe,
Had answer'd for his deed: now, 'tis awake;
Takes note of what is done; and, like a prophet,
Looks in a glass, that shows what future evils, (Either now, or by remissness new-conceiv'd,
And so in progress to be hatch'd and born,)
Are now to have no successive degrees,
But, where they live, to end.

Isab. Yet show some pity.

Ang. I show it most of all, when I show justice,

For then I pity those I do not know,
Which a dismiss'd offence would after gail;
And do him right, that, answering one foul wrong,

Gives not to act another. Be satisfied;
Your brother dies to-morrow; be content.

Isab. So you must be the first, that gives this sentence;
And he, that suffers: O, it is excellent
To have a giant's strength; but it is tyrannous
To use it like a giant.

Lucio. That's well said.

Isab. Could great men thunder
As Jove himself does, Jove would ne'er be quiet,
For every pelting,* petty officer,
Would use his heaven for thunder; nothing but Merciful heaven! [thunder.—
Thou rather, with thy sharp and sulphurous

bolt,
Split'st the unwedgeable and gnarled oak,
Than the soft myrtle:—O, but man, proud man!
Drest in a little brief authority;
Most ignorant of what he's most assur'd,
His glassy essence,—like an angry ape,
Plays such fantastic tricks before high heaven,
As make the angels weep; who, with our spleens,
Would all themselves laugh mortal.

Lucio. O, to him, to him, wench: he will re-
He's coming, I perceive't. [lent;

Prov. Pray heaven, she win him!

Isab. We cannot weigh our brother with ourselves: [them;
Great men may jest with saints: 'tis wit in
But, in the less, foul profanation.

Lucio. Thou'rt in the right, girl; more o' that.

Isab. That in the captain's but a cholerick word,
Which in the soldier is flat blasphemy.

Lucio. Art advis'd o' that? more on't.

Ang. Why do you put these sayings upon me?

Isab. Because authority, though it err like
others,

Hath yet a kind of medicine in itself,
That skins the vice o' the top: Go to your bosom; [know

Knock there; and ask your heart, what it doth
That's like my brother's fault: if it confess
A natural guiltiness, such as is his,
Let it not sound a thought upon your tongue
Against my brother's life.

Ang. She speaks, and 'tis
Such sense, that my sense breeds with it.—
Fare you well.

Isab. Gentle my lord, turn back.

Ang. I will bethink me:—Come again tomorrow.

Isab. Hark, how I'll bribe you: Good my lord, turn back.

Ang. How? bribe me?

Isab. Ay, with such gifts, that heaven shall share with you.

Lucio. You had marr'd all, else.

Isab. Not with fond shekels of the tested*
gold,

Or stones, whose rates are either rich, or poor,
As fancy values them: but with true prayers,
That shall be up at heaven, and enter there,
Ere sunrise, prayers from preserved souls,
From fasting maids, whose minds are dedicate
To nothing temporal.

Ang. Well come to me
To-morrow.

Lucio. Go to; it is well; away.

[Aside to ISABELLA.

Isab. Heaven keep your honour safe!

Ang. Amen: for I

Am that way going to temptation, [Aside.

Where prayers cross

Isab. At what hour to-morrow

Shall I attend your lordship?

Ang. At any time 'fore noon.

Isab. Save your honour!

[Exit LUCIO, ISABELLA, and PROVOST.

Ang. From thee; even from thy virtue!— What's this? what's this? Is this her fault, or mine? [tis!

The tempter, or the tempted, who sins most?

Not she; nor doth she tempt: but it is I,
That lying by the violet, in the sun,

Do, as the carrion does, not as the flower,
Corrupt with virtuous season. Can it be,

That modesty may more betray our sense
Than woman's lightness? Having waste ground

enough,
Shall we desire to raze the sanctuary,

And pitch our evils there? O, fie, fie, fie!
What dost thou? or what art thou, Angelo?

Dost thou desire her foully, for those things
That make her good? O, let her brother live:

Thieves for their robbery have authority,
When judges steal themselves. What? do I love her,

That I desire to hear her speak again,

And feast upon her eyes? What is't I dream on?
O cunning enemy, that, to catch a saint,

With saints dost bait thy hook! Most dangerous
Is that temptation, that doth goad us on [pet,

To sin in loving virtue: never could the strum-
With all her double vigour, art, and nature,

Once stir my temper; but this virtuous maid
Subdues me quite;—Ever, till now,

When men were fond, I smil'd, and wonder'd
how. [Exit.

SCENE III.—A Room in a Prison.

Enter DUKE, habited like a Friar, and PROVOST.

Duke. Hail to you, provost! so, I think you are.

Prov. I am the provost: What's your will,
good friar?

Duke. Bound by my charity, and my bless'd
I come to visit the afflicted spirits [order,

Here in the prison: do me the common right
To let me see them; and to make me know

The nature of their crimes, that I may minister
To them accordingly.

Prov. I would do more than that, if more were needful.

Enter JULIET.

Look, here comes one; a gentlewoman of mine,
Who falling in the flames of her own youth,
Hath blister'd her report: She is with child—
And he that got it, sentenc'd: a young man

* Palsy.

† Knotted.

* Attested, stamped.

† Preserved from the corruption of the world
; See 2 Kings x. 37

MEASURE FOR MEASURE.

[ACT II

ence,

row.—

while,

[To JULIET.

of the sin you

hame most pa-

u shall arraign

sound,

wrong'd you?

an that wrong'd

most offenceful

[act

of heavier kind

pent it, father.

But lest you

to this shame,—

ourselves, not en, as we love

[it,

an evil;

he to-morrow,

on to him.—

[Exit.

O, injurious

very comfort

[Exeunt.

celo's House.

u think, I think

[words;

with my empty

ot my tongue,

my mouth,

une;

and swelling evil

reun I studied,

n read,

my gravity,

I take pride,

an idle plume,

place! O form!

ase,† thy habit,

the wiser souls

thou still art

evil's horn,

[Exit Szav.

to my heart;

f,

And dispossessing all the other parts

Of necessary fitness?

So play the foolish throngs with one that swoons,

Come all to help him, and so stop the air

By which he should revive: and even so

The general,* subject to a well-wish'd king,

Quit their own part, and in obsequious fondness

Crowd to his presence, where their untaught

Must needs appear offence. [Love

Enter ISABELLA.

How now, fair maid?

Isab. I am come to know your pleasure.

Ang. That you might know it, would much better please me, [Live.

Than to demand what 'tis. Your brother cannot

Isab. Even so?—Heaven keep your honour! [Retiring.

Ang. Yet may he live a while; and, it may be,

As long as you, or I: Yet he must die.

Isab. Under your sentence?

Ang. Yea.

Isab. When, I beseech you? that in his reprieve,

Longer, or shorter, he may so be fitted,

That his soul sicken not.

Ang. Ha! Fie, these filthy vices! It were as

good

To pardon him, that hath from nature stolen

A man already made, as to remit [Image

Their saucy sweetness, that do coin heaven's

In stamps that are forbid: 'tis all as easy

Falsely to take away a life true made,

As to put mettle in restrained means,

To make a false one.

Isab. 'Tis set down so in heaven, but not in

earth.

Ang. Say you so? then I shall pose you quickly.

Which had you rather, That the most just law

Now took your brother's life; or, to redeem him,

Give up your body to such sweet uncleanness,

As she that he hath stain'd?

Isab. Sir, believe this,

I had rather give my body than my soul.

Ang. I talk not of your soul: Our compell'd

Stand more for number than account. [sins

Isab. How say you?

Ang. Nay, I'll not warrant that; for I can

speak

Against the thing I say. Answer to this;—

I, now the voice of the recorded law,

Pronounce a sentence on your brother's life:

Might there not be charity in sin,

To save this brother's life?

Isab. Please you to do't,

I'll take it as a peril to my soul,

It is no sin at all, but charity.

Ang. Pleas'd you to do't, at peril of your soul,

Were equal poise of sin and charity.

Isab. That I do beg his life, if it be sin,

Heaven, let me bear it! you granting of my

suit,

If that be sin, I'll make it my morn prayer

To have it added to the faults of mine,

And nothing of your answer.

Ang. Nay, but hear me: [Ignorant,

Your sense pursues not mine: either you are

Or seem so, craftily; and that's not good.

Isab. Let me be ignorant, and in nothing

But graciously to know I am no better. [good,

Ang. Thus wisdom wishes to appear most bright,

When it doth tax itself: as these black masks

Proclaim an ensheild† beauty ten times louder

* Outside.

† Face.

‡ Enshielded, covered.

my could displayed.—But mark me; I've said plain, I'll speak more gross: her is to die.

And his offence is so, as it appears at to the law upon that pain.⁹

And I admit no other way to save his life, scribes not that, nor any other, (less of question,) that you, his sister, yourself dear'd of such a person, edit with the judge, or own great loss, shun your brother from the manacles-binding law; and that there were y mean to save him, but that either lay down the treasures of your body passed, or else let him suffer; did you do?

As much for my poor brother, as myself: Were I under the terms of death, cusion of keen whips I'd wear as myself to death, as to a bad rubric, ing I have been sick for, ere I'd yield up to shame.

How must your brother die, and 'twere the cheaper way: were, a brother died at once, a sister, by redeeming him, as for ever.

Are not you then as cruel as the sea-hare slander'd so? [tence penny] Is ransom, and free pardon, to houses: lawful mercy is skin to soul redemption.

'ou seem'd of late to make the law a yam; or prov'd the sliding of your brother and then a vice.

, pardon me, my lord; it oft falls out, what we'd have, we speak not what we mean:

ing do excuse the thing I hate, advantage that I dearly love.

We are all frail.

Let me let my brother die, sedary, but only he, and succed by weakness.

say, women are frail too.

ly, as the glasses where they view themselves;

as easy broke as they make forms.

—Help heaven! men their creation mar [frail;]

ing by them. Nay, call us ten times re soft as our complexions are, belows to false prints.¹⁰ think it well:

as this testimony of your own sex, suppose, we are made to be no stronger (its may shake our frames,) let me be said;—

at your words; Be that you are, women; if you be more, you're none; one, (as you are well express'd Jarnal warrants,) show it now, ing on the destin'd livery.

have no tongue but one, gentlemy lord, atreat you speak the former language. Mainly conceive, I love you.

ly brother did love Juliet; and you tell shall die for it. [me,

He shall not, Isabel, if you give me love.

know, your virtue hath a licence is't,

9. † Agree to. ‡ Conversation. my. § Anecdote. ¶ Own.  Impression.

Which seems a little sadder than it is, To pluck on others.

Ang. Believe me, on mine honour, My words express my purpose.

Isab. Ha! little honour to be much believ'd, And most pernicious purpose!—Seeming, seeming!

I will proclaim thee, Angelo; look for't: Sign me a present pardon for my brother, Or, with an outstretch'd throat, I'll tell the Aloud, what man thou art. [world

Ang. Who will believe thee, Isabel?

My unsoil'd name, the austerousness of my life, My voucht against you, and my place i'the Will so your accusation overweigh, [state, That you shall stife in your own report, And swell of calumny. I have begun;

And now I give my sensual race the reins: Fit thy consent to my sharp appetite;

Lay by all nicety, and profusest blushes, That banish what they sue for; redeem thy

By yielding up thy body to my will; [brother Or else he must not only die the death,

But thy unkindness shall his death draw out To lingering sufferance: answer me to-morrow,

Or, by the affection that now guides me most, I'll prove a tyrant to him: As for you,

Say what you can, my false o'erweighs your true. [Exit.

Isab. To whom shall I complain? Did I tell this,

Who would believe me? O pernicious mouths, That bear in them one and the self-same tongue,

Either of condemnation or approval! Bidding the law make court sy to their will;

Hooking both right and wrong to the appetite, To follow as it draws! I'll to my brother:

Though he hath fallen by prompture of the blood,

Yet hath he in him such a mind of honour, That had he twenty heads to tender down

On twenty bloody blocks, he'd yield them up, Before his sister should her body stoop

To such abhorrd pollution. Then, Isabel, live chaste, and, brother, die:

More than our brother is our chastity. I'll tell him yet of Angelo's request,

And fit his mind to death, for his soul's rest. [Exit.

ACT III.

SCENE I.—A Room in the Prison.

Enter DUKE, CLAUDIO, and PROVOST.

Duke. So, then you hope of pardon from lord Angelo?

Claud. The miserable have no other medicine, But only hope:

I have hope to live, and am prepar'd to die.

Duke. Be absolute for death; either death, or life, [life,—

Shall thereby be the sweeter. Reason thus with If I do lose thee, I do lose a thing

That none but fools would keep: a breath thou (Servile to all the skiey influences,) [art,

That dost this habitation, where thou keep'st, Hourly afflict: merely, thou art death's fool;

For him thou labour'st by thy flight to shun, And yet run'st toward him still: Thou art not noble; For all the accommodations that thou bear'st, Are nurs'd by baseness: Thou art by no means valiant; For thou dost fear the soft and tender fork Of a poor worm: Thy best of rest is sleep, 9. Hypocrisy.

‡ Substant.

† Amusement.

‡ Determined.

et grossly fear'st Thou art not

housand grains
v thou art not;
ou striv'st to get;
t Thou are not

range effects,*
h, thou art poor;
with ingots bows,
but a journey,
d hast thou none;
ill thee airt,
er lions,
ad the rheum,
u hast noryouth,

r's sleep,
blessed youth
g the alma
ou art old, and

ction, limb, nor
[this,
What's yet in et in this life
s yet death we [fear,

o die:
Let it come on.

, grace and good

n. the wish de-

t visit you again.
nk you.

ord or two with

Look, signior,

you.

se.

where I may be

ke and Provost.

the comfort?

are; most good

heaven,

sador,

ting leiger:‡

gent make with [speed;

ly, as to save a [head,

live;

e judge,

ree your life,

ance; a restraint,

ty? you had,

consenting to?)

that trunk you

[bear,

nt.

aprous eruptions.

preparation.

Isab. O, I do fear thee, Claudio; and I quake
Lest thou a feverous life should'st entertain,
And six or seven winters more respect
Than a perpetual honour. Dar'st thou die?
The sense of death is most in apprehension;
And the poor beetle, that we tread upon,
In corporal sufferance finds a pang as great
As when a giant dies.

Claud. Why give you me this shame?
Think you I can a resolution fetch
From flowery tenderness? If I must die,
I will encounter darkness as a bride,
And hug it in mine arms.

Isab. There spake my brother; there my father's grave
Did utter forth a voice! Yes, thou must die:
Thou art too noble to conserve a life
In base appliances. This outward-sainted deputy,—

Whose settled visage and deliberate word
Nips youth i'the head, and follies doth enmew,*
As falcon doth the fowl,—is yet a devil;
His filth within being cast, he would appear
A pond as deep as hell.

Claud. The princely Angelo?

Isab. O, 'tis the cunning livery of hell,
The damned'st body to invest and cover
In princely guards! Dost thou think, Claudio,
If I would yield him my virginity,
Thou might'st be freed.

Claud. O, heavens! it cannot be.

Isab. Yes, he would give it thee, from this rank offence,

So to offend him still: This night's the time
That I should do what I abhor to name,
Or else thou diest to-morrow.

Claud. Thou shalt not do't.

Isab. O, were it but my life,
I'd throw it down for your deliverance
As frankly† as a pin.

Claud. Thanks, dear Isabel.

Isab. Be ready, Claudio, for your death tomorrow.

Claud. Yes.—Has he affections in him,
That thus can make him bite the law by the nose,
When he would force it? Sure it is no sin;
Or of the deadly seven it is the least.

Isab. Which is the least?

Claud. If it were damnable, he, being so wise,
Why, would he for the momentary trick
Be perdurably‡ fin'd?—O Isabel!

Isab. What says my brother?

Claud. Death is a fearful thing.

Isab. And shamed life a hateful.

Claud. Ay, but to die, and go we know not where;

To lie in cold obstruction, and to rot:
This sensible warm motion to become
A kneaded clod; and the delighted spirit
To bathe in fiery floods, or to reside
In thrilling regions of thick-ribbed ice;
To be imprison'd in the viewless‡ winds,
And blown with restless violence round about
The pendent world; or to be worse than worst
Of those, that lawless and incertain thoughts
Imagine howling!—'tis too horrible!
The weariest and most loathed worldly life,
That age, ache, penury, and imprisonment
Can lay on nature, is a paradise
To what we fear of death.

Isab. Alas! alas!

Claud. Sweet sister let me live:
What sin you do to save a brother's life,
Nature dispenses with the deed so far,
That it becomes a virtue.

* Shut up.
† Lastingly.

‡ Laced robes.

§ Freely.
|| Inwards.

Isab. O, you beast!
O, foolish coward! O, dishonest wretch!
Wilt thou be made a man out of my vice?
Is't not a kind of incest, to take life
From thine own sister's shame? What should I think? [Fair!

Heaven shield, my mother play'd my father
For such a warped slip of wilderness
Mistris'd from his blood. Take my defence:
No; perish! might but my bending down
Relieve thee from thy fate, it should proceed:
I pray a thousand prayers for thy death,
No word to save thee.

Claud. Nay, Hear me, Isabel.

Isab. O, he, he, he!
Thy sin's not accidental, but a trade;
Nay, to thee would prove itself a brew:
Thou hast that thou diest quickly. [Going.
Claud. O hear me, Isabella.

Re-enter Duke.

Duke. Vouchsafe a word, young sister, but no word.

Isab. What is your will?

Duke. Might you dispense with your leisure,
I would by and by have some speech with you:
The satisfaction I would require, is likewise your own benefit.

Isab. I have no superfluous leisure; my stay must be stolen out of other affairs; but I will attend you a while.

Duke. [To Claudio, aside.] Son, I have overheard what hath past between you and your sister. Angelo had never the purpose to corrupt her; only he hath made an assay of her virtue, to practise his judgement with the disposition of natures: she, having the truth of honour in her, hath made him that gracious denial which he is most glad to receive: I am confessor to Angelo, and I know this to be true;
therefore prepare yourself to death: Do not satisfy your resolution with hopes that are falsible: to-morrow you must die; go to your knees, and make ready.

Claud. Let me ask my sister pardon. I am wout of love with life, that I will sue to be rid of it.

Duke. Hold; you there: Farewell.

[Exit. CLAUDIO.]

Re-enter Provost.

Provost. a word with you.

Prov. What's your will, father?

Duke. That now you are come, you will be gone: Leave me a while with the maid; my sins promises with my habit, no loss shall touch her by my company.

Prov. In good time. [Exit Provost.]

Duke. The hand that hath made you fair, hath made you good: the goodness, that is cheap in beauty, makes beauty brief in goodness; but grace, being the soul of your complexion, should keep the body of it ever fair.
The assault, that Angelo hath made to you,
fortune hath convey'd to my understanding;
and, but that frailty hath examples for his falling, I should wonder at Angelo. How would you do to content this substitute, and to save your brother?

Isab. I am now going to resolve him: I had rather my brother die by the law, than my son should be unlawfully burn. But O, how much is the good duke deceived in Angelo! If ever he return, and I can speak to him, I will open my lips in vain, or discover his government.

* Withness. † Refusal. ‡ An established habit.
§ Continues to that resolution.

Duke. That shall not be much amiss: Yet, as the matter now stands, he will avoid your accusation; he made trial of you only.—Therefore, fasten your ear on my advisiage; to the love I have in doing good, a remedy presents itself. I do make myself believe, that you may most uprightously do a poor wronged lady a merited benefit, redeem your brother from the angry law; do no stain to your own gracious person; and much please the absent duke, if,
peradventure, he shall ever return to have hearing of this business.

Isab. Let me hear you speak further; I have spirit to do any thing that appears not foul in the truth of my spirit.

Duke. Virtue is bold, and goodness never fearful. Have you not heard speak of Mariana, the sister of Frederick, the great soldier, who miscarried at sea?

Isab. I have heard of the lady, and good words went with her name.

Duke. Her should this Angelo have married was affianced to her by oath, and the nuptials
appointed: between which time of the contract,
and limit of the solemnity, her brother Frederick was wrecked at sea, having in that peris'd vessel the dowry of his sister. But mark, how heavily this befall to the poor gentlewoman:
there she lost a noble and renowned brother,
in his love toward her ever most kind and natural; with him the portion and sinew of her fortune, her marriage-dowry; with both, her combinate husband, this well-seeming Angelo.

Isab. Can this be so? Did Angelo so leave
her?

Duke. Left her in her tears, and dry'd not one of them with his comfort; swallowed his vows whole, pretending, in her, discoveries of dishonour: in few, bestowed her on her own lamentation, which she yet wears for his sake; and he, a marble to her tears, is washed with them, but relents not.

Isab. What a merit were it in death, to take this poor maid from the world! What corruption in this life, that it will let this man live!—
But how out of this can she avail?

Duke. It is a rupture that you may easily heal: and the cure of it not only saves your brother, but keeps you from dishonour in doing
it.

Isab. Show me how, good father.

Duke. This fore-named maid hath yet in her the continuance of her first affection; his unjust unkindness, that in all reason should have quenched her love, hath, like an impediment
in the current, made it more violent and unruly.
Go you to Angelo, answer his requiring with a plausible obedience; agree with his demands to the point: only refer yourself to this advantage,—first, that your stay with him may not be long; that the time may have all shadow and silence in it; and the place answer to convenience: this being granted in course, now follows all. We shall advise this wronged maid to stand up your appointment, go in your place; if the encounter acknowledge itself
hereafter, it may compel him to her recompense:
and here, by this, is your brother saved, your honour untainted, the poor Mariana advantaged, and the corrupt deputy scaled. The maid will I frame, and make fit for his attempt.
If you think well to carry this as you may, the doubleness of the benefit defends the deed
from reproof. What think you of it?

Isab. The image of it gives me content

* Betrothed. † Gave her up to her sorrows.
‡ Have recourse to. § Over-reached.

row to a most holding up:
for this night
on promise of St. Luke's;
besides this de-
all upon me;
at it may be fort: Fare you
erant severely.
the Prison.
bow, Clown,
ody for it, but men and wo-
all the world
is here?
since, of two
own, and the
a furr'd gown
with fox and it, being richer
ing.
less you, good father: What
Sir?
nded the law;
thief too, Sir;
Sir, a strange
to the deputy.
wicked bawd!
done,
hou but think
the a back,
thlyself,— sily touches
live.
a life,
end, go, mend.
some sort, Sir;
even thee proofs [cer;
to prison, off-
both work,
uty, Sir; he has cannot abide remonger, and good go a mile
me would seem [free!
s from seeming,
your waist, a bail: Here's a pey? What, at ied in triumph?
alion's images,
now, for putting
ting it clutch'd?
st thou to this
s I not drown'd st thou, trot? Is uch is the way?
sweet wine.
our waist with a rope.

Is it sad, and few words? Or how? The trick of it?

Duke. Still thus, and thus! still worse!

Lucio. How doth my dear morsel, thy mistress? Procures she still? Ha?

Clo. Truth, Sir, she hath eaten up all her beef, and she is herself in the tub.*

Lucio. Why, 'tis good; it is the right of it; it must be so: Ever your fresh whore, and your powder'd bawd: An unshunn'd consequence; it must be so: Art going to prison, Pompey?

Clo. Yes, faith, Sir.

Lucio. Why 'tis not amiss, Pompey: Farewell: Go; say, I sent thee thither. For debt, Pompey! Or how?

Elb. For being a bawd, for being a bawd.

Lucio. Well, then imprison him: If imprisonment be the due of a bawd, why, 'tis his right: Bawd is he, doubtless, and of antiquity too; bawd-born. Farewell, good Pompey: Commend me to the prison, Pompey: You will turn good husband now, Pompey; you will keep the house.†

Clo. I hope, Sir, your good worship will be my bail.

Lucio. No, indeed, will I not, Pompey; it is not the wear:‡ I will pray, Pompey, to increase your bondage: if you take it not patiently, why, your mettle is the more: Adieu, trusty Pompey.—Bless you, friar.

Duke. And you.

Lucio. Does Bridget paint still, Pompey? Ha?

Elb. Come your ways, Sir; come.

Clo. You will not bail me, then, Sir?

Lucio. Then, Pompey? nor now.—What news abroad, friar? What news?

Elb. Come your ways, Sir; come.

Lucio. Go,—to kennel, Pompey, go:

[Exit Elbow, Clown, and Officers.]
What news, friar, of the duke?

Duke. I know none: Can you tell me of any?

Lucio. Some say, he is with the emperor of Russia; other some, he is in Rome: But where is he, think you?

Duke. I know not where: But wheresoever, I wish him well.

Lucio. It was a mad fantastical trick of him, to steal from the state, and usurp the beggary he was never born to. Lord Angelo dukes it well in his absence, he puts transgression to L.

Duke. He does well in't.

Lucio. A little more lenity to lechery would do no harm in him: something too crabbed that way, friar.

Duke. It is too general a vice, and severity must cure it.

Lucio. Yes, in good sooth, the vice is of a great kindred; it is well allied: but it is impossible to extirp it quite, friar, till eating and drinking be put down. They say, this Angelo was not made by man and woman, after the downright way of creation: Is it true, think you?

Duke. How should he be made then?

Lucio. Some report, a sea-maid spawn'd him:—Some, that he was begot between two stock-fishes:—But it is certain, that when he wakes water, his urine is congeal'd ice; that I know to be true: and he is a motion's ungenerative, that's infallible.

Duke. You are pleasant, Sir; and speak apoco-

Lucio. Why, what a ruthless thing is this in him, for the rebellion of a cod-piece, to take away the life of a man? Would the duke, that is absent, have done this? Ere he would have

* Powdering tub.
† Fashion.

‡ Stay at home.
§ Puppet.

under the getting a hundred bastards, he paid for the nursing a thousand: no feeling of the sport, he knew the duke that instructed him to mercy. never heard the absent duke much of women; he was not inclined that

Sir, you are deceived.

Is not possible.

Is not the duke? yes, your beggar—and his use was, to put a ducat in his dish: the duke had crotchets in would be drunk too; that let me in-

do him wrong, surely.

Is, I was an inward of his: A shy the duke: and, I believe, I know of his withdrawing.

But, I prythee, might be the cause? Is, pardon,—'tis a secret must be in the teeth and the lips: but this I understand,—The greater fillet of I hold the duke to be wise.

How? why, no question but he was. very superficial, ignorant, unweigh-

After this is envy in you, folly, or the very stream of his life, and the hath helmed, must, upon a war-st, give him a better proclamation. but testified in his own bringings. he shall appear to the envious, a statesman, and a soldier: Therefore, unaskingly, or, if your knowledge is much darken'd in your malice.

Or, I know him, and I love him.

One talks with better knowledge, edge with dearer love.

One, Sir, I know what I know. can hardly believe that, since you what you speak. But, if ever the ra, (as our prayers are he may,) let you to make your answer before him: sent you have spoke, you have cou- istain it. I am bound to call upon I pray you, your name?

Is, my name is Lucio; well known

He shall know you better, Sir, if I report you.

Fear you not.

Do you hope the duke will return no on imagine me too unharmed an op- ut, indeed, I can do you little harm: wear this again

It be hang'd first: thou art deceived r. But no more of this: Canst thou udio die to-morrow, or no?

Why should he die, Sir?

Why? for filling a bottle with a tun- would, the duke, we talk of, were gain: this ungentur'd agent will be province with continency, spar- not build in his house-eaves, because cherous. The duke yet would have a darkly answer'd, he would never to light. would he were return'd Claudio is condemn'd for untrust- well, good friar, I prythee, pray he duke, I say to thee again, would I on Fridays. He's now past it? say to thee, he would mouth with a ough she smelt brown bread and, that I said so. Farewell. [Exit.

Duke. No might nor greatness in mortality Can censure 'scape; back-wounding calumny The whitest virtue strikes: What king so strong, Can tie the gall up in the slanderous tongue? But who comes here?

Enter ESCALUS, PROVOST, BAWD, and Officers.

Escal. Go, away with her to prison.

Bawd. Good my lord, be good to me; your honour is accounted a merciful man. good my lord.

Escal. Double and treble admonition, and still forfeit* in the same kind? This would make mercy swear, and play the tyrant.

Prov. A bawd of eleven years continuance, may it please your honour.

Bawd. My lord, this is one Lucio's informa- tion against me. mistress Kate keep-down was with child by him in the duke's time, he promised her marriage; his child is a year and a quarter old, come Philip and Jacob: I have kept it myself; and see how he goes about to abuse me.

Escal. That fellow is a fellow of much li- cence:—let him be called before us.—Away with her to prison: Go to; no more words. [Exit Bawd and Officers.] Provost, my brother Angelo will not be alter'd, Claudio must die to-morrow: let him be furnished with di- vines, and have all charitable preparation: if my brother wrought by my pity, it should not be so with him.

Prov. So please you, this friar hath been with him, and advised him for the entertainment of death.

Escal. Good even, good father.

Duke. Bless and goodness on you!

Escal. Of whence are you?

Duke. Not of this country, though my chance is now

To use it for my time: I am a brother Of gracious order, late come from the sea, In special business from his holiness.

Escal. What news abroad i' the world?

Duke. None, but that there is so great a fever on goodness, that the dissolution of it must cure it: novelty is only in request, and it is as dangerous to be aged in any kind of course, as it is virtuous to be constant in any undertaking. There is scarce truth enough alive, to make societies secure; but security enough, to make fellowships accur'd. much upon this riddle runs the wisdom of the world. This news is old enough, yet it is every day's news. I pray you, Sir, of what disposition was the duke?

Escal. One, that, above all other strifes, con- tended especially to know himself.

Duke. What pleasure was he given to?

Escal. Rather rejoicing to see another merry, than merry at any thing which profess'd to make him rejoice. a gentleman of all temperance. But leave we him to his events, with a prayer they may prove prosperous, and let me desire to know how you find Claudio prepared. I am made to understand, that you have lent him visitation.

Duke. He professes to have received no sinister measure from his judge, but most wil- lingly humbles himself to the determination of justice. yet had he framed to himself, by the instruction of his frailty, many deceiving pro- mises of life; which I, by my good leisure, have discredited to him, and now he is resolv'd to die.

Escal. You have paid the heavens your fun-

* Transgression.

† Entreated.

1. The majority of his subjects.
2. Guided. 3. Opponent.

MEASURE FOR MEASURE.

My debt of your
the poor gentle-
of my modesty;
ound so severe,
him, he is indeed

er the straitness
come him well;
hath sentenced

prisoner: Fare

s and Provost.
will bear,

king

grow!

hide,

side!

crimes,

al things!

y:

el;

us'd,

ting,

g.

[Exit.

RIANA's House.

u Boy singing.

y,

worn;

day,

morn:

ng again,

urn,

d in vain.

and haste thee

whose advice

discontent,—

[Exit Boy.

could wish musical:

me no,—

but pleas'd my

ic oft hath such rove to harm.

dy inquired for this time have I quired after: I

.

ve you :—The

shall crave your † Trained.

forbearance a little; may be,

you anon, for some advantage

Mari. I am always bound to Duke. Very well met, and

What is the news from this

Isab. He hath a garden cu

brick,

Whose western side is with a

And to that vineyard is a plai

That makes his opening with

This other doth command a li

Which from the vineyard to t

There have I made my promis

Upon the heavy niddle of the Duke. But shall you on you this way?

Isab. I have ta'en a due and

With whispering and most gu

In action all of precept, he d

The way twice o'er.

Duke. Are there no other t

Between you 'greed, concern

ance?

Isab. No, none, but only a r

And that I have possess'd; hi

Can be but brief: for I have

I have a servant comes with

That stays upon me; whose

I come about my brother.

Duke. 'Tis well borne up.

I have not yet made known t

A word of this :—What, he forth!

Re-enter MARIA

I pray you, be acquainted wi

She comes to do you good.

Isab. I do desire the like.

Duke. Do you persuade yo spect you?

Mari. Good friar, I know y

found it.

Duke. Take then this your

hand,

Who hath a story ready for y

I shall attend your leisure; b

The vaporous night approach

Mari. Will't please you wa

[Exit MARIA

Duke. O place and great false eyes

Are struck upon thee! volum

Run with these false and quests!

Upon thy doings! thousand

Make thee the father of their

And rack thee in their fam

How agreed?

Re-enter MARIANA and

Isab. She'll take the ente

If you advise it.

Duke. It is not my consent,

But my entreaty too.

Isab. Little have you to say

When you depart from him, b

Remember now my brother.

Mari. Fear me not.

Duke. Nor, gentle daughte

He is your husband on a pre-

To bring you thus together, 't

Sith^{as} that the justice of your

* Walked round.

† Informed.

‡ Inquisitive, inquiring.

†

‡

§

Both *Scold the decessit. Come, let us go;
Our own's to reap, for yet our tiller's to sow.
[Exeunt.]

SCENE II.—A Room in the Prison.

Enter Provost and Clown.

Prov. Come hither, sirrah: Can you cut off a man's head?

Cl. If the man be a bachelor, Sir, I can; but if he be a married man, he is his wife's head, and I can never cut off a woman's head.

Prov. Come, Sir, leave me your snatches, and yield me a direct answer. To-morrow morning are to die Claudio and Barnardine: Here is in our prison a common executioner, who in his office lacks a helper: if you will take it on you to assist him, it shall redeem you from your gyles: if not, you shall have your full time of imprisonment, and your deliverance with an untaped whipping, for you have been a notorious bawd.

Cl. Sir, I have been an unlawful bawd, time out of mind, but yet I will be content to be a lawful hangman. I would be glad to receive some instruction from my fellow-partner.

Prov. What ho, Abhorson! Where's Abhorson, there!

Enter Abhorson.

Abhor. Do you call, Sir?

Prov. Sirrah, here's a fellow will help you to-morrow in your execution: If you think it meet, compound with him by the year, and let him abide here with you; if not, use him for the present, and dismiss him: He cannot plead his estimation with you; he hath been a bawd.

Abhor. A bawd, Sir? Pile upon him, he will discredit our mystery.†

Prov. Go to, Sir; you weigh equally; a father will turn the scale. [Exit.

Cl. Pray, Sir, by your good favour, (for, truly, Sir, a good favour‡ you have, but that you have a hanging look,) do you call, Sir, your occupation a mystery?

Abhor. Ay, Sir; a mystery.

Cl. Painting, Sir, I have heard say, is a mystery; and your whores, Sir, being members of my occupation, using painting, do prove my occupation a mystery: but what mystery there should be in hanging, if I should be hang'd, I cannot imagine.

Abhor. Sir, it is a mystery.

Cl. Proof.

Abhor. Every true man's apparel fits your thief: If it be too little for your thief, your true man thinks it big enough; if it be too big for your thief, your thief thinks it little enough: so every true man's apparel fits your thief.

Re-enter Provost.

Prov. Are you agreed?

Cl. Sir, I will serve him; for I do find, your hangman is a more penitent trade than your bawd; he doth oftener ask forgiveness.

Prov. You, sirrah, provide your block and your axe, to-morrow four o'clock.

Abhor. Come on, bawd; I will instruct thee in my trade; follow.

Cl. I do desire to learn, Sir; and, I hope, if we have occasion to use me for your own turn, you shall find me yare:†† for, truly Sir, for your kindness, I owe you a good turn.

Prov. Call hither Barnardine and Claudio:

[Enter Clown and Abhorson.
One has my pity; not a jot the other,
Being a murderer, though he were my brother.

Enter CLAUDIO.

Look, here's the warrant, Claudio, for thy death: 'Tis now dead midnight, and by eight to-morrow Thou must be made immortal. Where's Barnardine?

Claud. As fast lock'd up in sleep, as guiltless labour

When it lies starkly* in the traveller's bones: He will not wake.

Prov. Who can do good on him?

Well, go, prepare yourself. But hark, what noise? [Knocking within.

Heaven give your spirits comfort!

[Exit CLAUDIO.

By and by:—

I hope it is some pardon, or reprieve,
For the most gentle Claudio.—Welcome, father.

Enter DUKE.

Duke. The best and wholesomest spirits of the night

Envelope you, good Provost! Who call'd here of late?

Prov. None, since the curfew rung.

Duke. Not Isabel?

Prov. No.

Duke. They will then, ere't be long.

Prov. What comfort is for Claudio?

Duke. There's some in hope.

Prov. It is a bitter deputy.

Duke. Not so, not so; his life is parallel'd Even with the stroke and line of his great justice;

He doth with holy abstinence subdue That in himself, which he spurs on his power To qualify† in others: were he meal'd‡ With that which he corrects, then were he tyrannous; [come.—

But this being so, he's just.—Now are they [Knocking within.—Provost goes out.

This is a gentle provost: Seldom, when The steed'd gaoler is the friend of men.—

How now? What noise? That spirit's possess'd with haste,

That wounds the unsating postern with these strokes.

Provost returns, speaking to one at the door.

Prov. There he must stay, until the officer Arise to let him in; he is call'd up.

Duke. Have you no countermand for Claudio But he must die to-morrow? [yet, Prov. None, Sir, none.

Duke. As near the dawning, Provost, as it is, You shall hear more ere morning.

Prov. Happily,§

[comes You something know; yet, I believe, there No countermand, no such example have we:

Besides, upon the very siegell of justice, Lord Angelo hath to the public ear Profess'd the contrary.

Enter a MESSENGER.

Duke. This is his lordship's man.

Prov. And here comes Claudio's pardon.

Mess. My lord hath sent you this note; and by me this further charge, that you answer not from the smallest article of it, neither in time, matter, or other circumstance. Good morrow; for, as I take it, it is almost day.

* Gilt, or varnish over.

† Thick, hard prepared for coming.

‡ Trade & countenance.

 Honest.

§ Fettered.

†† Ready.

* Stiffly.

† Perhaps.

‡ Moderate.

§ Deftly.

|| Seal.

First MESSENGER.
Purchas'd by such [Aside.

as in:
clerity,
ly.
so extended,
offender friend(ed.—
Angelo, be-like,
e, awakens me
ou * methinks,
it before.

om may hear to uted by four of Barnardine: for Claudio's head performed; with it than we must
our office, as you

ne, who is to be here nursed up
nine years old.
absent duke
his liberty, or
it was ever his ht reprieves for ll now in the
ame not to an

not denied by f penitently in ch'd?
leath no more leep; careless,
past, present,
salty, and des-

hath evermore
ave him leave drunk many ntirely drunk.
as it to carry him a seeming
him at all.
ere is written
nd constancy:
skill beguiles
unning, I will whom here you greater forfeit
hath sentenced
this in a madays respite, for a present and

at? having the command, under
w of Angelo?
no's, to cross
order, I warrant our guide. Let g executed, and

years in prison.

Proc. Angelo hath seen them both, and will discover the favour.*

Duke. O, death's a great disguiser: and you may add to it. Shave the head, and tie the beard; and say, it was the desire of the penitent to be so bared before his death: You know, the course is common. If any thing fall to you upon this, more than thanks and good fortune, by the saint whom I profess, I will plead against it with my life.

Proc. Pardon me, good father; it is against my oath.

Duke. Were you sworn to the duke, or to the deputy?

Proc. To him, and to his substitutes.

Duke. You will think you have made no offence, if the duke avouch the justice of your dealing?

Proc. But what likelihood is in that?

Duke. Not a resemblance, but a certainty. Yet since I see you fearful, that neither my coat, integrity, nor my persuasion, can with ease attempt you, I will go further than I meant, to pluck all fears out of you. Look you, Sir, here is the hand and seal of the duke. You know the character, I doubt not; and the signet is not strange to you.

Proc. I know them both.

Duke. The contents of this is the return of the duke; you shall anon over-read it at your pleasure; where you shall find, within these two days he will be here. This is a thing, that Angelo knows not: for he this very day receives letters of strange tenor; perchance, of the duke's death, perchance, entering into some monastery; but, by chance, nothing of what is writ. Look, the unfolding star calls up the shepherd: Put not yourself into amazement, how these things should be: all difficulties are but easy when they are known. Call your executioner, and off with Barnardine's head: I will give him a present shrift, and advise him for a better place. Yet you are amazed; but this shall absolutely resolve you. Come away; it is almost clear dawn. [Exeunt.]

SCENE III.—Another Room in the same.

Enter Clown.

Cl. I am as well acquainted here, as I was in our house of profession: one would think, it were mistress Over-done's own house, for here be many of her old customers. First, here's young master Rash; he's in for a commodity of brown paper and old ginger, nine-score and seventeen pounds, of which he made five marks ready money: marry, then, ginger was not much in request, for the old wuzen were all dead. Then is there here one master Caper, at the suit of master Three-pile the mercer, for some four suits of peach-colour'd satin, which now peaches him a beggar. Then have we here young Dixy, and young master Deep-vow, and master Copper-spur, and master Starvelackey the rapier and dagger-man, and young Drop-heir that kill'd lusty Pudding, and master Forthright the tilter, and brave master Shoe-the the great traveller, and wild Half-can that stab'd Pote, and, I think, forty more; all great doers in our trade, and are now for the Lord's sake.

Enter ANTHONY.

Abber. Sirrah, bring Barnardine hither.

Cl. Master Barnardine! you must rise and be hang'd, master Barnardine!

* Countenance.

Abhor. What, ho, Bernardine!

Barnar. [Within.] A pox o' your throats! Who makes that noise there? What are you?

Cla. Your friends, Sir; the hangman: You must be so good, Sir, to rise and be put to death.

Barnar. [Within.] Away, you rogue, away; I am sleepy.

Abhor. Tell him, he must awake, and that quickly too.

Cla. Pray, master Bernardine, awake till you are executed, and sleep afterwards.

Abhor. Go in to him, and fetch him out.

Cla. He is coming, Sir, he is coming; I hear his straw rustle.

Enter BARNARDINE.

Abhor. Is the axe upon the block, sirrah?

Cla. Very ready, Sir.

Barnar. How now, Abhorson? what's the news with you?

Abhor. Truly, Sir, I would desire you to clap into your prayers; for, look you, the warrant's come.

Barnar. You rogue, I have been drinking all night, I am not fitted for't.

Cla. O, the better, Sir; for he that drinks all night, and is hang'd betimes in the morning, may sleep the sounder all the next day.

Enter DUKE.

Abhor. Look you, Sir, here comes your ghostly father; Do we jest now, think you?

Duke. Sir, induced by my charity, and hearing how hastily you are to depart, I am come to advise you, comfort you, and pray with you.

Barnar. Friar, not I; I have been drinking hard all night, and I will have more time to prepare me, or they shall beat out my brains with billets: I will not consent to die this day, that's certain.

Duke. O, Sir, you must: and therefore, I beseech you,

Look forward on the journey you shall go.

Barnar. I swear, I will not die to-day for any man's persuasion.

Duke. But hear you,——

Barnar. Not a word; if you have any thing to say to me, come to my ward; for thence will not I to-day. [Exit.]

Enter PROVOST.

Duke. Unfit to live, or die: O, gravel heart!—After him fellows; bring him to the block.

[Enter ABHORSON and CLOWN.]

Prov. Now, Sir, how do you find the prisoner?

Duke. A creature unprepar'd, unmeet for death;

And, to transport him in the mind he is, Were damnable.

Prov. Here in the prison, father, There died this morning of a cruel fever One Ragozine, a most notorious pirate, A man of Claudio's years; his beard, and head, Just of his colour; What if we do omit This reprobate, till he were well inclined; And satisfy the deputy with the visage Of Ragozine, more like to Claudio?

Duke. O, 'tis an accident that heaven provides;

Despatch it presently; the hour draws on Prefix'd by Angelo: See, this be done, And sent according to command; while I Persuade this rude wretch willingly to die.

Prov. This shall be done, good father, presently.

But Bernardine must die this afternoon: And how shall we continue Claudio,

To save him from the danger that might come, If he were known alive?

Duke. Let this be done;—Put them in secret holds,

Both Bernardine and Claudio: Ere twice The sun hath made his journal greeting to The under generation,* you shall find Your safety manifested.

Prov. I am your free dependant.

Duke. Quick, despatch,

And send the head to Angelo. [Exit PROVOST.] Now will I write letters to Angelo,— [tents

The provost, he shall bear them,—whose con- Shall witness to him, I am near at home;

And that, by great injunctions, I am bound To enter publicly: him I'll desire

To meet me at the consecrated fount,

A league below the city; and from thence,

By cold gradation and weal-balanced form,

We shall proceed with Angelo.

Re-enter PROVOST.

Prov. Here is the head; I'll carry it myself.

Duke. Convenient is it: Make a swift return; For I would commune with you of such things, That want no ear but yours.

Prov. I'll make all speed. [Exit

Isab. [Within.] Peace, ho, be here!

Duke. The tongue of Isabel:—She's come to know,

If yet her brother's pardon he come hither: But I will keep her ignorant of her good,

To make her heavenly comforts of despair,

When it is least expected.

Enter ISABELLA.

Isab. Ho, by your leave.

Duke. Good morning to you, fair and gracious daughter.

Isab. The better, given me by so holy a man. Hath yet the deputy sent my brother's pardon?

Duke. He hath releas'd him, Isabel, from the His head is off, and sent to Angelo. [world;

Isab. Nay, but it is not so.

Duke. It is no other: [patience.

Show your wisdom, daughter, in your close

Isab. O, I will to him, and pluck out his eyes.

Duke. You shall not be admitted to his sight.

Isab. Unhappy Claudio! Wretched Isabel! Injurious world! Most damned Angelo!

Duke. This nor hurts him, nor profits you a jot:

Forbear it therefore; give your cause to heaven. Mark what I say; which you shall find

By every syllable, a faithful verity:

The duke comes home to morrow;—nay, dry your eyes;

One of our convent, and his confessor, Gives me this instance: Already he hath carried

Notice to Escalus and Angelo;

Who do prepare to meet him at the gates, There to give up their power. If you can, pace your wisdom In that good path that I would wish it go;

And you shall have your bosom on this wretch, Grace of the duke, revenges to your heart,

And general honour.

Isab. I am directed by you.

Duke. This letter then to friar Peter give;

'Tis that he sent me of the duke's return: Say, by this token, I desire his company

At Mariana's house to night. Her cause, and yours,

I'll perfect him withal; and he shall bring you Before the duke; and to the head of Angelo

* The antipodes.

† Your heart's desire.

MEASURE FOR MEASURE

home. For my poor self,
sacred vow, [ter:
Wend* you with this let-ing waters from your eyes
must not mine holy order,
— Who's here?

Lucio.

Provost?

Sir,

Isabella, I am pale at mine eyes so red: thou must be dine and sup with water
for my head fill my belly;
and set me to't: But they here to-morrow. By my thy brother: if the old dark corners had been at [Exit ISABELLA.

Isabella is marvellous little be-
s, but the best is, he lives

knowest not the duke so better woodman than thou

answer this one day.

I'll go along with thee; I ales of the duke.

old me too many of him
be true; if not true, none

before him for getting a h a thing?

did I: but was fain to ld else have married me

company is fairer than ho-

I'll go with thee to the talk offend you, we'll

Nay, friar, I am a kind
[Exeunt.

room in ANGELO'S House.

IO and ESCALUS.

he hath writ hath dis-

n and distracted manner.

h like to madness: pray

e not tainted! And why

s, and re-deliver our auld we proclaim it in an ring, that, if any crave

they should exhibit their

s reason for that: to have

nts; and to deliver us

t, which shall then have ust us.

you, let it be proclaim'd:

l call you at your house:

n of sort and suit,†

are you well. [Exit.

c quite, makes me un-

ngs. A deflower'd maid!

dy, that enforc'd

But that her tender shame

ed. † Figure and rank.

Will not proclaim against h
How might she tongue me?
her!—no:

For my authority bears a cr
That no particular scandal
But it confounds the breathe
liv'd.

Save that his riotous youth
Might, in the times to come,
By so receiving a dishonour
With ransom of such sham
had liv'd!

Alack, when once our grace
Nothing goes right; we wo
not.

SCENE V.—Fields wit

Enter DUKE in his own habit.

Duke. These letters at ft

The provost knows our purp
The matter being afoot, kee
And hold you ever to our sp
Though sometimes you do b
that,

As cause doth minister. G
And tell him where I stay: g
To Valentinus, Rowland, a
And bid them bring the tru
But send me Flavius first.

F. Peter. It shall be spee

Enter VARRI

Duke. I thank thee, Varrh

good haste:

Come, we will walk: There's

Will greet us here anon, my

SCENE VI.—Street nee

Enter ISABELLA and

Isab. To speak so indirec
I would say the truth; but t
That is your part: yet I'm a
He says, to veil full|| purpos

Mari. Be rul'd by him.

Isab. Besides, he tells me,

ture

He speak against me on the
I should not think it strange
That's bitter to sweet end.

Mari. I would, friar Pete

Isab. O, peace; the friar i

Enter Friar P

F. Peter. Come, I have fou

most fit,

Where you may have such

He shall not pass you; Twi

pets sounded;

The generous and gravest

Have hent† the gates, and

The duke is ent'ring; theref

ACT V.

SCENE I.—A public Place

MARIANA, (veiled,) ISABEL

a distance. Enter at opp

VARRIUS, Lords; ANGELO.

PROVOST, Officers, and Cit

* Calls, challenges her to do it.

† Credit unquestionable. ‡ Un

|| Availful ¶ Advantage.  M

My very worthy cousin, fairly met:—
 And faithful friend, we are glad to see
 you.
Escal. Happy return be to your royal grace!
 Many and hearty thankings to you for this.
 I made inquiry of you; and we hear of your justice, that our soul
 yield you forth to public thanks,
 and more requital.
 You make my bonds still greater.
 But, your desert speaks loud; and I could wrong it,
 in the wards of covert bosom,
 deserves with characters of brass/
 resistance, 'gainst the tooth of time,
 and of oblivion: Give me your hand,
 and subject see, to make them know
 and courtesies would fain proclaim that keep within.—Come, Escalus;
 walk by us on our other hand;—
 your supporters are you.

Isab. and Isabella come forward.
 Now is your time; speak loud, and feel before him.
 Justice, O royal duke! Vail* your guard
 wrong'd, I'd fain have said, a maid!
 prince, dishonour not your eye
 hanging it on any other object, have heard me in my true complaint,
 me justice, justice, justice, justice!
 relate your wrongs: In what? By whom? Be brief:
 and Angelo shall give you justice;
 himself to him.
 worthy duke,
 we seek redemption of the devil:
 yourself; for that which I must speak
 or punish me, not being believ'd, redress from you: hear me, O, hear me, here.
 My lord, her wits, I fear me, are not
 sound:
 I seen a suitor to me for her brother,
 in course of justice.
 in course of justice!
 and she will speak most bitterly, and
 in range.
 most strange, but yet most truly, will
 speak:
 Angelo's forsworn; is it not strange?
 Angelo's a murderer; is't not strange?
 Angelo is an adulterous thief,
 a rite, a virgin-violator;
 in range, and strange?
 I say, ten times strange.
 is not truer he is Angelo,
 is all as true as it is strange:
 ten times true; for truth is truth
 and of reckoning.
 away with her:—Poor soul,
 is this in the infirmity of sense.
 prince, I conjure thee, as thou believ'st
 no other comfort than this world,
 neglect me not, with that opinion
 and touch'd with madness: make not impossible [ble,
 but but seems unlike: 'tis not impossible wicked'st caitiff on the ground,
 as shy, as grave, as just, as absolute,
 as; even so may Angelo,

In all his dressings,* characts, titles, forms,
 Be an arch-villain: believe it, royal prince,
 If he be less, he's nothing; but he's more,
 Had I more name for badness.
Duke. By mine honesty,
 If she be mad, (as I believe no other,)
 Her madness hath the oddest frame of sense,
 Such a dependency of thing on thing,
 As e'er I heard in madness.
Isab. O, gracious duke,
 Harp not on that; nor do not banish reason
 For inequality: but let your reason serve
 To make the truth appear, where it seems hid;
 And hide the false, seems true.
Duke. Many that are not mad,
 Have, sure, more lack of reason.—What would you say?
Isab. I am the sister of one Claudio,
 Condemn'd upon the act of fornication
 To lose his head: condemn'd by Angelo:
 I, in probation of a sisterhood,
 Was sent to by my brother: One Lucio
 As then the messenger;—
Lucio. That's I, an't like your grace:
 I come to her from Claudio, and desir'd her
 To try her gracious fortune with lord Angelo,
 For her poor brother's pardon.
Isab. That's he, indeed.
Duke. You were not bid to speak.
Lucio. No, my good lord;
 Nor wish'd to hold my peace.
Duke. I wish you now then;
 Pray you, take note of it: and when you have
 A business for yourself, pray heaven, you then Be perfect.
Lucio. I warrant your honour.
Duke. The warrant's for yourself; take heed
 to it.
Isab. This gentleman told somewhat of my tale.
Lucio. Right.
Duke. It may be right; but you are in the
 To speak before your time.—Proceed. [wrong
Isab. I went
 To this pernicious caitiff deputy.
Duke. That's somewhat madly spoken.
Isab. Pardon it;
 The phrase is to the matter.
Duke. Mended again: the matter;—Proceed.
Isab. In brief,—to set the needless process by,
 How I persuaded, how I pray'd, and kneel'd,
 How he refus'd† me, and how I reply'd;
 (For this was of much length,) the vile conclusion
 I now begin with grief and shame to utter:
 He would not, but by gift of my chaste body
 To his concupiscible intemperate lust, [ment,
 Release my brother; and, after much debate-
 My sisterly remorse‡ confutes mine honour,
 And I did yield to him: But the next morn-betimes,
 His purpose surfeiting, he sends a warrant
 For my poor brother's head.
Duke. This is most likely!
Isab. O, that it were as like, as it is true!
Duke. By heaven, fond§ wretch, thou know'st
 not what thou speak'st;
 Or else thou art suborn'd against his honour,
 In hateful practice:¶ First, his integrity Stands without blemish:—next it imports no
 reason,
 That with such vehemency he should pursue
 Faults proper to himself: if he had so offended,
 He would have weigh'd thy brother by himself,

* Habits and characters of office.

† Refuted.

‡ Feels.

()

§ Pity.

¶ Conspiracy.

* Lower.

MEASURE FOR MEASURE.

[ACT I.]

one hath set

whose advice

above,

in ripen'd time,

trapt up

old your grace

believed go!

be gone:—An

thus permit

death to fall

beds must be a coming hither?

here, friar Lo-

:—Who knows

'tis a meddling

(lord,

been lay, my

ust your grace

him soundly.

's a good friar,

oman here

s friar be found.

rd, she and that cy friar,

yal grace!

have heard

both this woman

substitute;

ou with her,

[of ?

that she speaks

man divine and

edler, [holy;

man;

ever yet

our grace.

usy; believe it.

ty come to clear

y lord,

erest request,

there was com-

came I hither,

what he doth

with his oath,

up full clear,

I rat, for this

an, [woman;

us'd,)

her eyes,

st.

y, guarded; and forward.

ngelo!—

ed fools!—

in Angelo;

o judge

witneas, friar?

ed, after speak.

+ Simple.

+ Publicly.

Mari. Pardon, my lord; I will not show my Until my husband bid me. [face,

Duke. What, are you married?

Mari. No, my lord.

Duke. Are you a maid?

Mari. No, my lord.

Duke. A widow, then?

Mari. Neither, my lord.

Duke. Why, you [wife]

Are nothing then:—Neither maid, widow, nor Lucio. My lord, she may be a punk; for many of them are neither maid, widow, nor wife.

Duke. Silence that fellow: I would, he had some cause

To prattle for himself.

Lucio. Well, my lord.

Mari. My lord, I do confess, I ne'er was married;

And, I confess, besides, I am no maid:

I have known my husband; yet my husband

knows not,

That ever he knew me.

Lucio. He was drunk then, my lord; it can be no better.

Duke. For the benefit of silence, 'would thou wert so too.

Lucio. Well, my lord.

Duke. This is no witness for lord Angelo.

Mari. Now I come to't, my lord:

She, that accuses him of fornication,

In self-same manner doth accuse my husband;

And charges him, my lord, with such a time,

When I'll depose I had him in mine arms,

With all the effect of love.

Ang. Charges she more than me?

Mari. Not that I know.

Duke. No? you say, your husband.

Mari. Why, just, my lord, and that is Angelo,

Who thinks, he knows, that he ne'er knew my body,

But knows he thinks, that he knows Isabel's.

Ang. This is a strange abuse:—Let's see

thy face.

Mari. My husband bids me; now I will wa-mask. [Unceasing.

This is that face, thou cruel Angelo, [on]

Which once thou swor'st, was worth the looking

This is the hand, which, with a vow'd contract,

Was fast belock'd in thine: this is the body

That took away the match from Isabel,

And did supply thee at thy garden-house,

In her imagin'd person.

Duke. Know you this woman?

Lucio. Carnally, she says.

Duke. Sirrah, no more.

Lucio. Enough, my lord.

Ang. My lord, I must confess, I know this woman; [marriage]

And, five years since, there was some speech of

Between myself and her; which was broke off,

Partly, for that her promised proportions

Came short of composition; but, in chief,

For that her reputation was disvalued

In levity. since which time of five years,

I never spake with her, saw her, nor heard from

Upon my faith and honour. [her,

Mari. Noble prince,

As there comes light from heaven, and words

from breath,

As there is sense in truth, and truth in virtue,

I am affianc'd this man's wife, as strongly

As words could make up vows: and, my good-

lord, [house,

But Tuesday night last gone, in his garden-

He knew me as a wife: As this is true

a Deception.

† Her fortune fell short.

Let me in safety raise me from my knees;
Or else for ever be confix'd here,
A marble monument!

Ang. I did but smile till now; [tice;
Now, good my lord, give me the scope of justice.
My patience here is touch'd. I do perceive,
These poor informal* women are no more
But instruments of some more mighty member,
That sets them on. Let me have way, my lord,
To find this practicer out.

Duke. Ay, with my heart; [sure.—
And punish them unto your height of pleasure.
Thou foolish friar; and thou pernicious woman,
Compact with her that's gone! think'st thou,
thy oaths,
Though they would swear down each particular saint,

Were testimonies against his worth and credit,
That's seal'd in approbation?—You, lord Escalus,

Go with my cousin; lend him your kind pains
To find out this abuse, whence 'tis deriv'd.—
There is another friar that set them on;
Let him be sent for.

F. Peter. Would he were here, my lord; for he, indeed,

Hath set the women on to this complaint:
Your provost knows the place where he abides,
And he may fetch him.

Duke. Go, do it instantly.—[Exit Provost.
And you, my noble and well-warranted cousin,
When it comes to hear this matter forth,†
Be with your injuries as seems you best,
In any chastisement: I for a while
Will leave you; but stir not you, till you have Determined upon these slanderers. [well

Escal. My lord, we'll do it thoroughly.—[Exit Duke.] Signior Lucio, did not you say, you knew that friar Lodowick to be a dishonest person?

Lucio. Cucullus non facit monachum: honest is nothing, but in his clothes; and one that hath spoke most villainous speeches of the duke.

Escal. We shall entreat you to abide here till he come, and enforce them against him: we shall find this friar a notable fellow.

Lucio. As any in Vienna, on my word.

Escal. Call that same Isabel here once again;
[To an Attendant.] I would speak with her:
Pray you, my lord, give me leave to question,
you shall see how I'll handle her.

Lucio. Not better than he, by her own report.

Escal. Say you?

Lucio. Marry, Sir, I think, if you handled her privately, she would sooner confess; perchance, publicly she'll be ashamed.

Re-enter Officers, with ISABELLA, the DUKE, in the Friar's habit, and PROVOST.

Escal. I will go darkly to work with her.

Lucio. That's the way; for women are light at midnight.

Escal. Come on, mistress: [To ISABELLA.] here's a gentlewoman denies all that you have said.

Lucio. My lord, here comes the rascal I spoke of; here with the provost.

Escal. In very good time: speak not you to him, till we call upon you.

Lucio. Mum.

Escal. Come, Sir: Did you set these women on to slander lord Angelo? they have confess'd
you did.

Duke. 'Tis false.

Escal. How! know you where you are?

Duke. Respect to your great place! and let the devil

Be sometime honour'd for his burning throne:—
Where is the duke? 'tis he should hear me
speak:

Escal. The duke's in us; and we will hear you Look, you speak justly.

Duke. Boldly, at least:—But, O, poor souls,
Come you to seek the lamb here of the fox?
Good night to your redress. Is the duke gone?
Then is your cause gone too. The duke's un-Thus to retort* your manifest appeal, [just,
And put your trial in the villain's mouth,
Which here you come to accuse.

Lucio. This is the rascal; this is he I spoke of.

Escal. Why, thou unreverend and unhallow'd friar!

Is't not enough, thou hast suborn'd these women
To accuse this worthy man; but, in foul mouth,
And in the witness of his proper ear,
To call him villain?

And then to glance from him to the duke him-
To tax him with injustice?—Take him hence;
To the rack with him:—We'll twine you joint by joint, [just?

But we will know this purpose:—What! un-

Duke. Be not so hot; the duke Dare no more stretch this finger of mine, than he Dare rack his own; his subject am I not,
Nor here provincial.† My business in this state
Made me a looker-on here in Vienna,
Where I have seen corruption boil and bubble,
Till it o'er-run the stew: laws, for all faults;
But faults so countenanc'd, and the strong statutes

Stand like the forfeits in a barber's shop,

As much in mock as mark.

Escal. Slander to the state! Away with him to prison.

Ang. What can you vouch against him, sig-nior Lucio?

Is this the man that you did tell us of?

Lucio. 'Tis he, my lord. Come hither, goodman bald-pate: Do you know me?

Duke. I remember you, Sir, by the sound of your voice: I met you at the prison, in the absence of the duke.

Lucio. O, did you so? And do you remember what you said of the duke?

Duke. Most notably, Sir.

Lucio. Do you so, Sir? And was the duke a flesh-monger, a fool, and a coward, as you then reported him to be?

Duke. You must, Sir, change persons with me, ere you make that my report: you, indeed,
spoke so of him; and much more, much worse.

Lucio. O thou damnable fellow! Did not I pluck thee by the nose, for thy speeches?

Duke. I protest, I love the duke, as I love myself.

Ang. Hark! how the villain would close now,
after his treasonable abuses.

Escal. Such a fellow is not to be talk'd withal:—Away with him to prison:—Where is the provost?—Away with him to prison; lay bolts enough upon him: let him speak no more:— Away with those giglots too, and with the other confederate companion

[The Provost lays hands on the Duke.]

Duke. Stay, Sir, stay a while.

Ang. What! resists he? Help him, Lucio.

Lucio. Come, Sir; come, Sir; come, Sir;
foh, Sir: Why, you bald-pated, lying rascal!
you must be hooded, must you? Show your knave's visage, with a pox to you! show your

* Crazy. † Conspiracy. ‡ To the end.

* Refer back. † Accountable. ‡ Wasteful.

MEASURE FOR MEASURE.

ang'd an hour!

ood, and discovers

e, that e'er made

se gentle three:—

(to.) for the friar

hold on him.

se than hanging.

ke, I pardon; sit

[To ESCALON.

Sir, by your leave:

[To ANGELO.

impudence,

If thou hast,

heard,

guiltiness,

like power divine,

Then, good

my shame,

confession;

sequent death,

on —

ed to this woman?

and marry her in-

h consummate,

with him, Provost.

MAHIANA, PETER,

amas'd at his dis-

[honour,

As I was then

ar business,

it, I am still

employ'd and pain'd

Isabel.

as free to us.

sits at your heart;

abacur'd myself,

and would not

ay hidden power,

ost kind maid,

is death,

er foot came on,

it, peace be with

aring death,

ar make it your [comfort,

MA, PETER, and

el man, approach-

ath wrong'd

you must pardon

he adjudg'd your

ation [brother,

mise-breach,

Thereon dependent, for your
The very mercy of the law or Most audible, even from his
An Angelo for Claudio, death, Haste still pays haste, and

leisure;
Like doth quit like, and Men
Then, Angelo, thy fault's the Which though thou would'st

vantage:
We do condemn thee to the
Where Claudio stoop'd to death
Away with him.

Mari. O, my most gracious

I hope you will not mock me

Duke. It is your husband's husband:

Consenting to the safeguard

I thought your marriage fit;

For that he knew you, might

And choke your good to come

Although by confiscation they

We do instate and widow you

To buy you a better husband

Mari. O, my dear lord,

I crave no other, nor no better

Duke. Never crave him; v

Mari. Gentle, my liege,—

Duke. You do but lose you

Away with him to death.—D

Mari. O, my good lord!—S

my part:

Lend me your knees, and all

I'll lend you, all my life to d

Duke. Against all senses

her:

Should she kneel down, in m

Her brother's ghost his paved

And take her hence in horro

Mari. Isabel,

Sweet Isabel, do yet but kne

Hold up your hands, say noth

They say, best men are mou

And, for the most, become

better

For being a little bad: so mu

O, Isabel! will you not lend

Duke. He dies for Claudio

Isab. Most bounteous Sir,

Look, if it please you, on thi

As if my brother liv'd: I par

A due sincerity govern'd his

Till he did look on me; sinc

Let him not die: My brother

In that he did the thing for

For Angelo,

His act did not o'ertake his

And must be buried hut as

That perish'd by the way: th

Intents but merely thoughts

Mari. Merely, my lord.

Duke. Your suit's unprof

any.—

I have bethought me of anot

Provost, how came it, Claud

At an unusual hour?

Prov. It was commanded

Duke. Had you a special w

Prov. No, my good lord;

message.

Duke. For which I do disc

Give up your keys.

Prov. Pardon me, noble l

I thought it was a fault, but

Angelo's own tongue.

+ 1

sent me, after more advice :^{*}
my whereof, one in the prison
I by private order also have died,
rev'd alive.

What's he?

His name is Barnardine.

would thou had'st done so by Claudio.
him hither; let me look upon him.

[Exit Provost.]

Am sorry, one so learned and so wise
as Angelo, have still appear'd,
so grossly, both in the heat of blood,
and temper'd judgement afterward.

Am sorry, that such sorrow I procure:
it sticks it in my penitent heart,
I'd death more willingly than mercy;
serving, and I do entreat it.

PROVOST, BARNARDINE, CLAUDIO, and JULIET.

Which is that Barnardine?

Is he, my lord.

There was a friar told me of this man :—
you art said to have a stubborn soul,
heeds no further than this world,
'at thy life according. Thou'rt consum'd;

one earthly fault, I quit them all;
there, take this mercy to provide times to come:—Friar, advise him;
as to your hand.—What wou'dst fellow's that?

As is another prisoner, that I sav'd, he'd have died when Claudio lost his neck to Claudio, as himself. [head;

[Unmasks CLAUDIO.]

Be he like your brother, for his sake

[To ISABELLA.]

on'd; And, for your lovely sake,
my hand, and say you will be mine,
another too: But fitter time for that.

As Angelo perceives he's safe;

I see a quick'ning in his eye:—

Alas, your evil quits you well:

You love your wife; her worth, worth repent remission in myself: [yours.—

There's one in place I cannot pardon;—

Isabella.

† Requires.

You, sirrah, [To LUCIO.] that knew me for a fool, a coward,

One all of luxury,* an ass, a madman;

Wherein have I so deserved of you,

That you extol me thus?

LUCIO. Faith, my lord, I spoke it but according to the trick:† If you will hang me for it, you may, but I had rather it would please
you, I might be whipp'd.

DUKE. Whipp'd first, Sir, and hang'd after.— Proclaim it, Provost, round about the city;

If any woman's wrong'd by this lewd fellow,
(As I have heard him swear himself, there's one Whom he begot with child,) let her appear,

And he shall marry her: the nuptial finish'd,
Let him be whipp'd and hang'd.

LUCIO. I beseech your highness, do not marry me to a whore! Your highness said even now,
I made you a duke; good my lord, do not recompense me, in making me a cuckold.

DUKE. Upon mine honour, thou shalt marry
her.

Thy slanders I forgive; and therewithal
Remit thy other forfeits:—Take him to prison:
And see our pleasure herein executed.

LUCIO. Marrying a punk, my lord, is pressing to death, whipping, and hanging.

DUKE. Sland'ring a prince deserves it.—

She, Claudio, that you wrong'd, look you restore.—

Joy to you, Mariana!—love her, Angelo;
I have confess'd her, and I know her virtue.—

Thanks, good friend Escalus, for thy much goodness:

There's more behind, that is more grateful.‡

Thanks, Provost, for thy care, and secrecy;

We shall employ thee in a worthier place:—

Forgive him, Angelo, that brought you home

The head of Ragozine for Claudio's;

The offence pardons itself.—Dear Isabel,

I have a motion much imports your good;

Whereto if you'll a willing ear incline,

What's mine is your's, and what is your's is
mine:—

So, bring us to our palace; where we'll show

What's yet behind, that's meet you all should know.

[Exeunt.]

* Incontinence.

† Punishment.

† Thoughtless practice.

‡ To reward.

DO ABOUT NOTHING.

PERSONS REPRESENTED.

ence, favourite	A SEXTON.
dua, favourite	A FRIAR.
ro.	A BOY.
dro.	HERO, Daughter to Leonato.
ohn.	BEATRICE, Niece to Leonato.
rs.	MARGARET, } Gentlewomen attending on Hero.
	URSULA, }
	Messengers, Watch, and Attendants.
	SCENE, Messina.

ro's House.

ce, and others,

hat Don Pedro Messina.

s; he was not u.

ave you lost in

" and none of self, when the

ers. I find here,

much honour
audio.

art, and equally
he hath borne

s age; doing,
ts of a lion: he pectation, than ou how.

in Messina will

ed him letters,
him; even so

itself modest ternness,

tears?

ndness: There
at are so wash-

leep at joy, than

Montanto re-

me, lady; there
ay sort.

ok for, niece?

or Benedick of

d as pleasant as

Abundance.

Beat. He set up his bills here in Messina, and challenged Cupid at the flight;* and my uncle's fool, reading the challenge, subscribed for Cupid, and challenged him at the bird-bolt.—I pray you, how many hath he killed and eaten in these wars? But how many hath he killed? for, indeed, I promised to eat all of his killing.

Leon. Faith, niece, you tax signior Benedick too much; but he'll be meet with you, I doubt it not.

Mess. He hath done good service, lady, in these wars.

Beat. You had musty victual, and he hath help to eat it: he is a very valiant trencher-man, he hath an excellent stomach.

Mess. And a good soldier too, lady.

Beat. And a good soldier to a lady;—But what is he to a lord?

Mess. A lord to a lord, a man to a man; stuffed with all honourable virtues.

Beat. It is so, indeed; he is no less than a stuffed man; but for the stuffing,—Well, we are all mortal.

Leon. You must not, Sir, mistake my niece: there is a kind of merry war betwixt signior Benedick and her: they never meet, but there is a skirmish of wit between them.

Beat. Alas, he gets nothing by that. In our last conflict, four of his five wits went halting off, and now is the whole man governed with one: so that if he have wit enough to keep himself warm, let him bear it for a difference between himself and his horse: for it is all the wealth that he hath left, to be known a reasonable creature.—Who is his companion now? He hath every month a new sworn brother.

Mess. Is it possible?

Beat. Very easily possible: he wears his faith but as the fashion of his hat, it ever changes with the next block.†

Mess. I see, lady, the gentleman is not in your books.

Beat. No: an he were, I would burn my study. But, I pray you, who is his companion?‡

* At long lengths.

† A Cuckold.

‡ Even.

§ Would for a hat.

Is there no young squire^r now, that will make a voyage with him to the devil?

Mess. He is most in the company of the right noble Claudio.

Bent. O Lord! he will hang upon him like a disease: he is sooner caught than the pestilence, and the taker runs presently mad. God help the noble Claudio! if he have caught the Benedick, it will cost him a thousand pound ere he be cured.

Mess. I will hold friends with you, lady.

Bent. Do, good friend.

Leon. You will never run mad, niece.

Bent. No, not till a hot January.

Mess. Don Pedro is approached.

Enter Don PEDRO, attended by BALTHAZAR, and others, Don JOHN, CLAUDIO, and BENEDICK.

D. Pedro. Good signior Leonato, you are come to meet your trouble: the fashion of the world is to avoid cost, and you encounter it.

Leon. Never came trouble to my house in the likeness of your grace: for trouble being gone, comfort should remain; but, when you depart from me, sorrow abides, and happiness takes his leave.

D. Pedro. You embrace your charge too willingly.—I think, this is your daughter.

Leon. Her mother hath many times told me so.

Bent. Were you in doubt, Sir, that you asked her?

Leon. Signior Benedick, no; for then were you a child.

D. Pedro. You have it full, Benedick: we may guess by this what you are, being a man. Truly, the lady fathers herself:—Be happy, lady! for you are like an honourable father.

Bent. If signior Leonato be her father, she would not have his head on her shoulders, for all Messina, as like him as she is.

Bent. I wonder, that you will still be talking, signior Benedick; nobody marks you.

Bent. What, my dear lady Disdain! are you yet living?

Bent. Is it possible, disdain should die, while she hath such meet food to feed it, as signior Benedick? Courtesy itself must convert to disdain, if you come in her presence.

Bent. Then is courtesy a turn-coat:—But it is certain, I am loved of all ladies, only you excepted: and I would I could find in my heart that I had not a hard heart; for, truly, I love none.

Bent. A dear happiness to women; they would else have been troubled with a pernicious suitor. I thank God, and my cold blood, I am of your humour for that; I had rather hear my dog bark at a crow, than a man swear he loves me.

Bent. God keep your ladyship still in that mind! so some gentleman or other shall 'scape a predestinate scratched face.

Bent. Scratching could not make it worse, as 'twere such a face as yours were.

Bent. Well, you are a rare parrot-teacher.

Bent. A bird of my tongue, is better than a beast of yours.

Bent. I would my horse had the speed of your tongue; and so good a continuer: But keep your way o' God's name; I have done.

Bent. You always end with a jade's trick; I knew you of old.

D. Pedro. This is the sum of all: Leonato,—signior Claudio, and signior Benedick,—my dear friend Leonato, hath invited you all. I tell him, we shall stay here at least a month; and he heartily prays, some occasion may detain us longer: I dare swear he is no hypocrite, but prays from his heart.

Leon. If you swear, my lord, you shall not be forsworn.—Let me bid you welcome, my lord: being reconciled to the prince your brother, I owe you all duty.

D. John. I thank you: I am not of many words, but I thank you.

Leon. Please it your grace lead on?

D. Pedro. Your hand, Leonato; we will go together.

[Exeunt all but BENEDICK and CLAUDIO.]

Claud. Benedick, didst thou note the daughter of signior Leonato?

Bent. I noted her not; but I looked on her.

Claud. Is she not a modest young lady?

Bent. Do you question me, as an honest man should do, for my simple true judgement; or would you have me speak after my custom, as being a professed tyrant to their sex?

Claud. No, I pray thee, speak in sober judgement.

Bent. Why, i'faith, methinks she is too low for a high praise, too brown for a fair praise, and too little for a great praise: only this commendation I can afford her; that were she other than she is, she were unhandsome; and being no other but as she is, I do not like her.

Claud. Thou thinkest, I am in sport; I pray thee, tell me truly how thou likest her.

Bent. Would you buy her, that you inquire after her.

Claud. Can the world buy such a jewel?

Bent. Yea, and a case to put it into. But speak you this with a sad brow? or do you play the flouting Jack; to tell us Cupid is a good hare-finder, and Vulcan a rare carpenter? Come, in what key shall a man take you, to go in the song?

Claud. In mine eye, she is the sweetest lady that ever I looked on.

Bent. I can see yet without spectacles, and I see no such matter: there's her cousin, an she were not possessed with a fury, exceeds her as much in beauty, as the first of May doth the last of December. But I hope, you have no intent to turn husband; have you?

Claud. I would scarce trust myself, though I had sworn the contrary, if Hero would be my wife.

Bent. Is it come to this, i'faith? Hath not the world one man, but he will wear his cap with suspicion? Shall I never see a bachelor of three-score again? Go to, i'faith; an thou wilt needs thrust thy neck into a yoke, wear the print of it, and sigh away Sundays. Look, Don Pedro is returned to seek you.

Re-enter Don PEDRO.

D. Pedro. What secret hath held you here, that you followed not to Leonato's?

Bent. I would, your grace would constrain me to tell.

D. Pedro. I charge thee on thy allegiance.

Bent. You hear, count Claudio: I can be secret as a dumb man, I would have you think so; but on my allegiance,—mark you this, on my allegiance:—He is in love. With who?—now that is your grace's part.—Mark, how short his answer is:—With Hero, Leonato's short daughter.

Claud. If this were so, so were it uttered.

Bent. Like the old tale, my lord: it is not so, nor 'twas not so; but, indeed, God forbid it should be so.

MUCH ADO ABOUT NOTHING.

passion change not shortly,
could be otherwise.

n, if you love her; for the lady
thy.

ask this to fetch me in, my

my troth, I speak my thought.

n faith, my lord, I spoke mine.

my two faiths and troths, my

ne

love her, I feel.

at she is worthy, I know.

either feel how she should be

how she should be worthy, is re cannot melt out of me; I ne stake.

u want ever an obstinate hers-

of beauty.

ever could maintain his part,

at his will.

oman conceived me, I thank ught me up, I likewise give her

ks. but that I will have a re-

n my forehead, or hang my ole baldrick, tall women shall ause I will not do them the

any, I will do myself the right

nd the fine is, (for the which I

I will live a bachelor.

all see thee, ere I die, look nger, with sickness, or with

not with love: prove, that ever

with love, than I will get again

ok out mine eyes with a ballad-

hang me up at the door of a r the sign of blind Cupid.

n, if ever thou dost fall from ut prove a notable argument.

hang me in a bottle like a cat,

and he that hits me, let him

shoulder, and called Adam.†

as time shall try:

bull doth bear the yoke.

ge bull may; but if ever the k bear it, pluck off the bull's

m in my forehead: and let me

, and in such great letters as is good heres to here, let them

sign,—Here you may see Bene-

man.

should ever happen, thou

mad.

, if Cupid have not spent all

ce, thou wilt quake for this

r an earthquake too then.

n, you will temporize with the

an time, good signior Bene-

onato's; commend me to him,

not fail him at supper; for,

ade great preparation.

most matter enough in me

sage; and so I commit you—

ation of God: From my house,

sixth of July: Your loving ock not, mock not: The body is sometimes guarded‡ with guards are but slightly bas-

re you flout old ends any fur-conscience; and so I leave

[Exit BENEDICK.]

to call off the dogs.

‡ Girdle.

mous archer.

‡ Trimmed.

Claud. My liege, your highness good.

D. Pedro. My love is thine
but how,

And thou shalt see how apt

Any hard lesson that may de

Claud. Hath Leonato any

D. Pedro. No child but H

Dost thou affect her, Claudio

Claud. O my lord,

When you went onward on i

I look'd upon her with a soul

That lik'd, but had a rougher

Than to drive liking to the n

But now I am return'd, and

Have left their places vacan

Come thronging soft and del

All prompting me how fair y

Saying, I lik'd her ere I we

D. Pedro. Thou wilt be like

And tire the hearer with a b

If thou dost love fair Hero,

And I will break with her, a

And thou shalt have her: We

That thou began'st to twist

Claud. How sweetly do yo

That know love's grief by hi

But lest my liking might too

I would have salv'd it with a

D. Pedro. What need the b er than the flood?

The fairest grant is the neces

Look, what will serve, is fit

lov'st;

And I will fit thee with the r

I know, we shall have reve

I will assume thy part in so

And tell fair Hero I am Cla

And in her bosom I'll unclas

And take her hearing prison

And strong encounter of my

Then, after, to her father wil

And, the conclusion is, she s

In practice let us put it prest

SCENE II.—A Room in L

Enter LEONATO and I

Leon. How now, brother?

Ant. How now, brother? Hath he prov

Ant. He is very busy about

I can tell you strange news th

ed not of.

Leon. Are they good?

Ant. As the event stamps

have a good cover, they sho

The prince and count Claus

thick-pleached; alley in my o

much overheard by a man of discovered to Claudio, that h

your daughter, and meant t

this night in a dance; and, if

cordant, he meant to take th

the top, and instantly break

Leon. Hath the fellow any

this?

Ant. A good sharp fellow

him, and question him ym

Leon. No, no; we will hol till it appears itself:—but I daughter withal, that she m prepared for an answer, if

be true. Go you, and tell h

persons cross the stage. Con

what you have to do.—O, I friend; you go with me, and

o Once for all.

† Take

John.—Good counsels have a care this busy time.
[Exeunt.]

SCENE III.—Another Room in LEONATO'S House.

Enter DON JOHN and CONRADE.

Con. What the gougere,* my lord! why are you thus out of measure sad?

D. John. There is no measure in the occasion that breeds it, therefore the sadness is without limit.

Con. You should hear reason.

D. John. And when I have heard it, what blessing bringeth it?

Con. If not a present remedy, yet a patient tolerance.

D. John. I wonder, that thou being (as thou say'st thou art, born under Saturn, goest about to apply a moral medicine to a mortifying mischief. I cannot hide what I am. I must be sad when I have cause, and smile at no man's jests, eat when I have stomach, and wait for no man's leisure; sleep when I am drowsy, and heed to no man's business, laugh when I am merry, and claw† no man in his humour.

Con. Yea, but you must not make the full show of this, till you may do it without contentment. You have of late stood out against your brother, and he hath ta'en you newly into his grace, where it is impossible you should take true root, but by the fair weather that you make yourself. it is needful that you frame the reason for your own harvest.

D. John. I had rather be a canker in a hedge, than a rose in his grace; and it better fits my blood to be disdained of all than to fashion a carriage to rob love from any: in this, though I cannot be said to be a flattering honest man, it must not be denied that I am a plain-dealing villain. I am trusted with a muzzle, and enfranchised with a clog, therefore I have decreed not to sing in my cage. If I had my mouth, I would bite; if I had my liberty, I would do my liking. in the mean time, let me be that I am, and seek not to alter me.

Con. Can you make no use of your discontent?

D. John. I make all use of it, for I use it only. Who comes here? What news Borachio?

Enter BORACHIO.

Bora. I came yonder from a great supper; the prince, your brother, is royally entertained by Leonato; and I can give you intelligence of an intended marriage.

D. John. Will it serve for any model to build mischief on? What is he for a fool, that betroths himself to unquietness?

Bora. Marry, it is your brother's right hand.

D. John. Who? the most exquisite Claudio?

Bora. Even he.

D. John. A proper squire! And who, and who? which way looks he?

Bora. Marry, on Hero, the daughter and heir of Leonato.

D. John. A very forward March chick! How came you to this?

Bora. Being entertained for a perfumer, as I was smoking a musty room, comes me the prince and Claudio, hand in hand, in sad conference. I whipt me behind the arras, and there heard it agreed upon, that the prince should woo Hero for himself, and having obtained her, give her to count Claudio.

* The venereal disease.
† Dog-rout.

† Flatter.
‡ Scurious.

D. John. Come, come, let us thither; this may prove food to my displeasure: that young start-up hath all the glory of my overthrow; if I can cross him any way, I bless myself every way: You are both sure, and will assist me?

Con. To the death, my lord.

D. John. Let us to the great supper; their cheer is the greater that I am subdued: 'Would the cook were of my mind!—Shall we go prove what's to be done?

Bora. We'll wait upon your lordship.

[Exeunt.]

ACT II.

SCENE I.—A Hall in LEONATO'S House.

Enter LEONATO, ANTONIO, HERO, BEATRICE, and others.

Leon. Was not count John here at supper?

Ant. I saw him not.

Beat. How tartly that gentleman looks! I never can see him, but I am heart-burned an hour after.

Hero. He is of a very melancholy disposition.

Beat. He were an excellent man, that were made just in the mid-way between him and Benedick: the one is too like an image, and says nothing; and the other, too like my lady's eldest son, overmore tattling.

Leon. Then half signior Benedick's tongue in count John's mouth, and half count John's melancholy in signior Benedick's face,—

Beat. With a good leg, and a good foot, uncle, and money enough in his purse, such a man would win any woman in the world,—if he could get her good will.

Leon. By my troth, niece, thou wilt never get thee a husband, if thou be so shrewd of thy tongue.

Ant. In faith, she is too curst.

Beat. Too curst is more than curst: I shall lessen God's sending that way: for it is said, God sends a curst cow short home; but to a cow too curst he sends none.

Leon. So, by being too curst, God will send you no horns.

Beat. Just, if he send me no husband; for the which blessing, I am at him upon my knees every morning and evening: Lord! I could not endure a husband with a beard on his face, I had rather lie in the woollen.

Leon. You may light upon a husband, that hath no beard.

Beat. What should I do with him? dress him in my apparel, and make him my waiting-gentlewoman? He that hath a beard, is more than a youth; and he that hath no beard is less than a man: and he that is more than a youth, is not for me; and he that is less than a man, I am not for him. Therefore I will even take sixpence in earnest of the bear-herd, and lead his apes into hell.

Leon. Well then, go you into hell?

Beat. No; but to the gate; and there will the devil meet me, like an old cuckold, with horns on his head, and say, Get you to heaven, Beatrice, get you to heaven; here's no place for you maids: so deliver I up my apes, and away to Saint Peter for the heavens; he shows me where the bachelors sit, and there live we as merry as the day is long.

Ant. Well, niece, [To HERO.] I trust, you will be ruled by your father.

Beat. Yes, faith; it is my cousin's duty to make courtesy, and say, Father, as it please you:—but yet for all that, cousin, let him be a another course me.

see you one day

of some other grieve a woman
ce of valiant
er life to a chod
none: Adam's
I hold it a sin

hat I told you:
that kind, you

music, cousin,
if the prince
is measure in answer. For g, and repent-
and a cinque-hasty, like a cal, the wedmeasure full of comes repent-
falls into the
he stak into passing abrew d-

; I can see a

ring; brother,

BENEDICE, BAL-
to, MARGARET,

alk about with

I look sweetly,
for the walk;
ay.

company?

ease.

on to say so?

er, for God de-

he case!

n's roof; within

ould be thatch'd.

weak love.

Takes her aside.

like me.

our own sake;

he hearers may

good dancer!

at of my sight,

ver, clerk.

clerk is an-

you are signior

gling of your

erfeit him.

so ill-well, un-

s his dry hand

are he.

Urs. Come, come; do you think I do not know you by your excellent wit? Can virtue hide itself? Go to, mum, you are he: graces will appear, and there's an end.

Beat. Will you not tell me who told you so?

Bene. No, you shall pardon me.

Beat. Nor will you not tell me who you are?

Bene. Not now.

Beat. That I was disdainful,—and that I had my good wit out of the Hundred merry Tales;

Well, thus was signior Benedick that said so.

Bene. What's he?

Beat. I am sure, you know him well enough.

Bene. Not I, believe me.

Beat. Did he never make you laugh?

Bene. I pray you, what is he?

Beat. Why, he is the prince's jester: a very dull fool; only his gift is in devising impossible
slanders; none but libertines delight in him;
and the commendation is not in his wit, but in his villany; for he both pleases men, and angers them, and then they laugh at him, and beat him: I am sure, he is in the fleet; I would
he had boarded me.

Bene. When I know the gentleman, I'll tell him what you say.

Beat. Do, do: he'll but break a comparison or two on me, which, peradventure, not marked, or not laughed at, strikes him into melancholy; and then there's a partridge wing saved,
for the fool will eat no supper that night. *[Music
within.]* We must follow the leaders.

Bene. In every good thing.

Beat. Nay, if they lead to any ill, I will leave them at the next turning.

[Dance. Then Enter all but Don John,

BORACHIO, and CLAUDIO.

D. John. Sure, my brother is amorous on Hero, and hath withdrawn her father to break with him about it: The ladies follow her, and but one visor remains.

Bora. And that is Claudio. I know him by his bearing.

D. John. Are you not signior Benedick?

Claud. You know me well; I am he.

D. John. Signior, you are very near my brother in his love: he is enamoured on Hero; I pray you, dissuade him from her, she is no equal for his birth: you may do the part of an honest man in it.

Claud. How know you he loves her?

D. John. I heard him swear his affection.

Bora. So did I too; and he swore he would marry her to night.

D. John. Come, let us to the banquet.

[Exit Don John and Borachio.

Claud. Thus answer I in name of Benedick,
But hear these ill news with the ears of Claudio.—

'Tis certain so;—the prince wooes for himself.
Friendship is constant in all other things,

Save in the office and affairs of love:

Therefore, all hearts in love use their own

Let every eye negotiate for itself, [tongues;

And trust no agent: for beauty is a witch,

Against whom charms faith melteth into blood.

This is an accident of hourly proof, [Hero!

Which I mistrusted not: Farewell therefore,

Re-enter BENEDICK.

Bene. Count Claudio?

Claud. Yea, the same.

Bene. Come, will you go with me?

Claud. Whither?

Bene. Even to the next willow, about your • Incredible.

† Accosted.

‡ Carriage, demeanour.

§ Paston.

‡ Entail.

own business, count. What fashion will you wear the garland of? About your neck, like an usurer's chain? or under your arm, like a lieutenant's scarf? You must wear it one way, for the prince hath got your Hero.

Claud. I wish him joy of her.

Bene. Why, that's spoken like an honest dower; so they sell ballocks. But did you think, the prince would have served you thus?

Claud. I pray you, leave me.

Bene. Ho! now you strike like the blind man; 'twas the boy that stole your meat, and you'll beat the post.

Claud. If it will not be, I'll leave you. [Exit.

Bene. Alas, poor hurt fowl! Now will he creep into sedges.—But, that my lady Beatrice should know me, and not know me! The prince's fool!—Ha! it may be, I go under that title, because I am merry.—Yea; but so; I am apt to do myself wrong: I am not so reputed: it is the base, the bitter disposition of Beatrice, that puts the world into her person, and so gives me out. Well, I'll be revenged as I may.

Re-enter Don PEDRO, HERO, and LEONATO.

D. Pedro. Now, signior, where's the count; Did you see him?

Bene. Troth, my lord, I have played the part of lady Fame. I found him here as melancholy as a lodge in a warren; I told him, and, I think, I told him true, that your grace had got the good will of this young lady; and I offered him my company to a willow tree, either to make him a garland, as being forsaken, or to bind him up a rod, as being worthy to be whipped.

D. Pedro. To be whipped! What's his fault?

Bene. The flat transgression of a school-boy; who, being overjoy'd with finding a bird's nest, shows it his companion, and he steals it.

D. Pedro. Wilt thou make a trust a transgression? The transgression is in the stealer.

Bene. Yet it had not been amiss, the rod had been made, and the garland too; for the garland he might have worn himself; and the rod he might have bestowed on you, who, as I take it, have stol'n his bird's nest.

D. Pedro. I will but teach them to sing, and restore them to the owner.

Bene. If their singing answer your saying, by my faith, you say honestly.

D. Pedro. The lady Beatrice hath a quarrel to you; the gentleman, that danced with her, told her, that she is much wronged by you.

Bene. O, she misused me past the endurance of a block; an oak, but with one green leaf on it, would have answered her; my very visor began to assume life, and scold with her: She told me, not thinking I had been myself, that I was the prince's jester; that I was duller than a great thaw; huddling jest upon jest, with such impossible conveyance, upon me, that I stood like a man at a mark, with a whole army shooting at me: She speaks poniards, and every word stabs: if her breath were as terrible as her terminations, there were no living near her, she would infect to the north star. I would not marry her, though she were endowed with all that Adam had left him before he transgressed: she would have made Hercules have turned spit; yea, and have cleft his club to make the fire too. Come, talk not of her; you shall find her the infernal Atê† in good apparel. I would to God, some scholar would conjure her; for, certainly, while she is here, a man may live as quiet in hell, as in a sanctuary; and people sin upon purpose, because they would go thither; so, indeed, all disquiet, horror, and perturbation follow her.

Re-enter CLAUDIO and BEATRICE.

D. Pedro. Look, here she comes.

Bene. Will your grace command me any service to the world's end? I will go on the slightest errand now to the Antipodes, that you can devise to send me on; I will fetch you a tooth-picker now from the farthest inch of Asia; bring you the length of Prester John's foot; fetch you a hair off the great Cham's beard; do you any embassy to the Pigmies, rather than hold three words' conference with this harpy: You have no employment for me?

D. Pedro. None, but to desire your good company.

Bene. O God, Sir, here's a dish I love not; I cannot endure my lady tongue. [Exit.

D. Pedro. Come, lady, come; you have lost the heart of signior Benedick.

Beat. Indeed, my lord, he lent it me a while; and I give him use* for it, a double heart for his single one: marry, once before, he won it of me with false dice, therefore your grace may well say, I have lost it.

D. Pedro. You have put him down, lady, you have put him down.

Beat. So I would not he should do me, my lord, lest I should prove the mother of fools. I have brought count Claudio, whom you sent me to seek.

D. Pedro. Why, how now, count? wherefore are you sad?

Claud. Not sad, my lord.

D. Pedro. How then? Sick?

Claud. Neither my lord.

Beat. The count is neither sad, nor sick, nor merry, nor well: but civil, count; civil as an orange, and something of that jealous complexion.

D. Pedro. I'faith, lady, I think your blazon to be true; though, I'll be sworn, if he be so, his conceit is false. Here, Claudio, I have wooed in thy name, and fair Hero is won; I have broke with her father, and his good will obtained: name the day of marriage, and God give you joy!

Leon. Count, take of me my daughter, and with her my fortunes: his grace hath made the match, and all grace say Amen to it!

Beat. Speak, count, 'tis your cue.†

Claud. Silence is the perfectest herald of joy: I were but little happy, if I could say how much.—Lady, as you are mine, I am yours: I give away myself for you, and dote upon the exchange.

Beat. Speak, cousin; or, if you cannot, stop his mouth with a kiss, and let him not speak, neither.

D. Pedro. In faith, lady, you have a merry heart.

Beat. Yes, my lord; I thank it, poor fool, it keeps on the windy side of care:—My cousin tells him in his ear, that he is in her heart.

Claud. And so she doth, cousin.

Beat. Good lord, for alliance!—Thus goes every one to the world but I, and I am sunburned; I may sit in a corner, and cry, heigh ho! for a husband.

D. Pedro. Lady Beatrice, I will get you one.

Beat. I would rather have one of your father's getting: Hath your grace ne'er a brother like

* Terrible.

† The Goddess of Discord.

* Interest.

† Turn: a phrase among the players.

husbands, if a

lady?

might have an-

grace is too

at, I beseech

born to speak

ffends me, and

, for, out of

ry hour.

mother cry'd,

el, and under

give you joy!

those things I re.—By your

of BEATRICE.

casant-spirited

melancholy ele-

never sad, but ad then, for I

she hath often

wuked herself

to hear tell of

mocks all her

llent wife for

ey were but a

emselves mad.

en mean you to

Time goes on tea.

ear son, which

and a time too

er my mind.

he head at so

thee, Claudio,

I will, in the

ules' labours;

dark, and the affection, the

own have it a fashion it, if assistance as though it cost

Hero?

office, my lord,

and.

at the unhope-

hus far can I

of approved

I will teach

that she shall

I, with your

nedick, that,

his queasy;

with Beatrice.

er an archer;

are the only

I will tell you

[Exit.

LEONATO'S

ACHIO.

(Claudio shall

Partida 10-

Bora. Yes, my lord; but I can cross it.

D. John. Any bar, any cross, any impediment will be medicinable to me: I am sick in displeasure to him; and whatsoever comes athwart his affection, ranges evenly with mine. How canst thou cross this marriage?

Bora. Not honestly, my lord; but so covertly that no dishonesty shall appear in me.

D. John. Show me briefly how.

Bora. I think, I told your lordship, a year since, how much I am in the favour of Margaret, the waiting-gentlewoman to Hero.

D. John. I remember.

Bora. I can, at any unreasonable instant of the night, appoint her to look out at her lady's chamber-window.

D. John. What life is in that, to be the death of this marriage?

Bora. The poison of that lies in you to temper. Go you to the prince your brother; spare not to tell him, that he hath wronged his honour in marrying the renowned Claudio (whose estimation do you mightily hold up) to a contaminated stale, such a one as Hero.

D. John. What proof shall I make of that?

Bora. Proof enough to misuse the prince, to vex Claudio, to undo Hero, and kill Leonato: Look you for any other issue?

D. John. Only to despise them, I will endeavour any thing.

Bora. Go then, find me a meet hour to draw Don Pedro and the count Claudio, alone: tell them, that you know that Hero loves me; intend* a kind of zeal both to the prince and Claudio, as—in love of your brother's honour who hath made this match; and his friend's reputation, who is thus like to be cosened with the semblance of a maid,—that you have discovered thus. They will scarcely believe this without trial: offer them instances; which shall bear no less likelihood, than to see me at her chamber-window; hear me call Margaret, Hero; here Margaret term me Horachio; and bring them to see this, the very night before the intended wedding: for, in the mean time, I will so fashion the matter, that Hero shall be absent; and there shall appear such seeming truth of Hero's disloyalty, that jealousy shall be call'd assurance, and all the preparation overthrowed.

D. John. Grow this to what adverse issue it can, I will put it in practice: He cunning in the working this, and thy foe is a thousand ducats.

Bora. Be you constant in the accusation, and my cunning shall not shame me.

D. John. I will presently go learn their day of marriage. [Exit.

SCENE III.—LEONATO'S Garden.

Enter BENEDICK and a Boy.

Bene. Boy,—

Boy. Signior.

Bene. In my chamber-window lies a book; bring it hither to me in the orchard.

Boy. I am here already, Sir.

Bene. I know that;—but I would have thee hence, and here again. [Exit Boy.]—I do much wonder, that one man, seeing how much another man is a fool when he dedicates his behaviours to love, will, after he hath laughed at such shallow follies in others, become the argument of his own scorn, by falling in love: And such a man is Claudio. I have known, when there was no music with him but the drum and fife; and now he would rather hear the tabor and the pipe: I have known, when a friend.

walked ten mile afoot, to see
; and now will he lie ten nights
the fashion of a new doublet.
o speak plain, and to the pur-onest man, and a soldier; and d orthographer; his words are al banquet, just so many strange be so converted, and see with annot tell; I think not: I will ut love may transform me to an take my oath on it, till he have
of me, he shall never make me
One woman is fair; yet I am
is wise; yet I am well: another am well: but till all graces be one woman shall not come in ch she shall be, that's certain;
ne; virtuous, or I'll never cheap-
r I'll never look on her; mild, ear me; noble, or not I for an
I discourse, an excellent musi-hair shall be of what colour it Ha! the prince and monsieur
ide me in the harbour.

[Withdraws.]

PEDRO, LEONATO, and CLAUDIO.
ome, shall we hear this music?
my good lord:—How still the g is,
urpose to grace harmony!
ee you where Benedick hath hid
f?

very well, my lord: the music
d-fox* with a penny-worth.

BALTHAZAR, with music.

ome, Balthazar, we'll hear that gain.

od my lord, tax not so bad a sic any more than once.

is the witness still of excellency,
ge face on his own perfection:—
ng, and let me woo no more.

use you talk of wooing, I will

wooner doth commence his suit
ks not worthy; yet he woos;
ear, he loves.

ay, pray thee, come:

lt hold longer argument,

this before my notes,

note of mine that's worth the

Why these are very crotchets that aks

orsooth, and noting! [Music.]

Dirine air! now is his soul rat-
t not strange, that sheep's guts
uls out of men's bodies!—Well,
money, when all's done.

BALTHAZAR sings.

no more, ladies, sigh no more,

ten were deceivers ever;

foot in sea, and one on shore;

o one thing constant never:

Then sigh not so,

But let them go,

and be you blith and bonny;

verting all your sounds of woe

into, Hey nonny, nonny.

*Sing no more ditties, sing no mo^e
Of dumps so dull and heavy;
The fraud of men was ever so,
Since summer first was leary.
Then sigh not so, &c.*

D. Pedro. By my troth, a good song.

Balth. And an ill singer, my lord.

D. Pedro. Ha? no; no, faith; thou singest
well enough for a shift.

Bene. [Aside.] An he had been a dog, that should have howled thus, they would have hanged him: and, I pray God, his bad voice bode no mischief! I had as lief have heard the night-raven, come what plague could have come after it.

D. Pedro. Yea, marry; [To CLAUDIO.]—Dost thou hear, Balthazar! I pray thee, get us some excellent music; for to-morrow night we would have it at the lady Hero's chamber-
window.

Balth. The best I can, my lord.

D. Pedro. Do so: farewell. [Exit BALTHA-ZAR and music.] Come hither, Leonato: What was it you told me of to-day? that your niece
Beatrice was in love with signior Benedick?

Claud. O, ay:—Stalk on, stalk on; the fowl sits. [Aside to PEDRO.] I did never think that lady would have loved any man.

Leon. No, nor I neither; but most wonderful,
that she should so dote on signior Benedick,
whom she hath in all outward behaviours seemed ever to abhor.

Bene. Is't possible? Sits the wind in that corner? [Aside.]

Leon. By my troth, my lord, I cannot tell what to think of it; but that she loves him with an enraged affection,—it is past the infinite of thought.*

D. Pedro. May be, she doth but counterfeit.

Claud. 'Faith, like enough.

Leon. O God! counterfeit! There never was counterfeit of passion came so near the life of passion, as she discovers it.

D. Pedro. Why, what effects of passion shows
she?

Claud. Bait the hook well; this fish will bite.

[Aside.]

Leon. What effects, my lord! She will sit
you,—

You heard my daughter tell you how.

Claud. She did, indeed.

D. Pedro. How, how, I pray you? You amaze me: I would have thought her spirit had been invincible against all assaults of affection.

Leon. I would have sworn it had, my lord;
especially against Benedick.

Bene. [Aside.] I should think this a gull, but that the white-bearded fellow speaks it: knav-ery cannot, sure, hide itself in such reverence.

Claud. He hath ta'en the infection; hold it up. [Aside.]

D. Pedro. Hath she made her affection known to Benedick?

Leon. No; and swears she never will: that's her torment.

Claud. 'Tis true, indeed; so your daughter says: Shall I, says she, that have so oft encoun-ter'd him with scorn, write to him that I love him?

Leon. This says she now when she is beginning to write to him: for she'll be up twenty times
a night: and there will she sit in her smock,
till she have writ a sheet of paper:—my daughter tells us all.

Claud. Now you talk of a sheet of paper, I remember a pretty jest your daughter told us of.

* Young or cub-fox.

* Longer. † Beyond the power of thought to conceive.

WHAT DO ABOUT NOTHING.

[ACT III]

it, and was Benedick and Beat-

to a thousand
at she should at she knew says she, by my
if he writ to old.

ees she falls,
ars her hair,
ck! God give laughter says

uch overborne
me afraid she herself; It is Benedick knew

t discover it.

I but make a lady worse.

ere an aim to et lady, and,

us.

wise.
a loving Bene-

blood combat-

ten proofs to

I am sorry

ing her uncle

owed this do-

all other re-

I pray you,

at he will say.

will die: for her not; and

love known;

either than she

ustomed cross-

should make

ble he'll scorn

, hath a con-

uan.

good outward

nd, very wise.

w some sparks

mant.

you; and in

ay say he is

with great dia-

a most Chris-

ost necessarily acc, he ought

and trembling.

for the man

ns not in him.

Well, I am

see Benedick,

, let her wear

she may wear

urther of it by

while. I love

Thrown off
Handsome.

Benedick well; and I could wish he would modestly examine himself, to see how much he is unworthy so good a lady.

Leon. My lord, will you walk? dinner is ready.

Claud. If he do not dote on her upon this, I will never trust my expectation. [Aside.]

D. Pedro. Let there be the same net spread for her; and that must your daughter and her gentlewoman carry. The sport will be, when they hold one an opinion of another's dotage, and no such matter; that's the scene that I would see, which will be merely a dumb show. Let us send her to call him in to dinner. [Aside.]

Exeunt DON PEDRO, CLAUDIO, and LEONATO.

BENEDICK advances from the arbour.

Bene. This can be no trick; The conference was sadly borne.*—They have the truth of this from Hero. They seem to pity the lady; it seems, her affections have their full bent. Love me! why, it must be requited. I hear how I am censured: they say, I will bear myself proudly, if I perceive the love come from her; they say too, that she will rather die than give any sign of affection.—I did never think to marry:—I must not seem proud:—Happy are they that hear their detractions, and can put them to mending. They say, the lady is fair; 'tis a truth, I can bear them witness: and virtuous,—'tis so, I cannot reprove it; and wise, but for loving me:—By my troth, it is an addition to her wit;—nor no great argument of her folly, for I will be horribly in love with her.—I may chance have some odd quirks and remnants of wit broken on me, because I have railed so long against marriage:—But doth not the appetite alter? A man loves the meat in his youth, that he cannot endure in his age: Shall quips, and sentences, and these paper bullets of the brain, awe a man from the career of his humour? No: The world must be peopled. When I said, I would die a bachelor, I did not think I should live till I were married.—Here comes Beatrice: By this day, she's a fair lady. I do spy some marks of love in her.

Enter BEATRICE.

Beat. Against my will, I am sent to bid you come in to dinner.

Bene. Fair Beatrice, I thank you for your pains.

Beat. I took no more pains for those thanks, than you take pains to thank me; if it had been painful, I would not have come.

Bene. You take pleasure in the message.

Beat. Yea, just so much as you may take upon a knife's point, and choke a daw withal:—You have no stomach, signior; fare you well. [Exit.]

Bene. Ha! Against my will I am sent to bid you come to dinner—there's a double meaning in that. I took no more pains for those thanks, than you took pains to thank me—that's as much as to say, Any pains that I take for you is as easy as thanks:—If I do not take pity of her, I am a villain; if I do not love her, I am a Jew: I will go get her picture. [Exit.]

ACT III.

SCENE I.—LEONATO'S Garden.

Enter HERO, MARGARET, and URSULA.

Hero. Good Margaret, run thee into the parlour;

* Seriously carried on.

half, then find my cousin Beatrice
ing with the Prince and Claudio:
her ear, and tell her, I and Ursula
the orchard, and our whole discourse
her; say, that thou overheard'st us;
I lay steal into the pleached bower,
honey-suckles ripen'd by the sun,
the sun to enter;—like favourites,
proud by princes, that advance their pride

that power that bred it:—there will
she hide her,
our purpose: This is thy office,
as well in it, and leave us alone.

I'll make her come, I warrant you,
presently. [Exit.

Now, Ursula, when Beatrice doth
come,

to trace this alley up and down,
it must only be of Benedick:

do name him, let it be thy part
to him more than ever man did merit:

so there must be, how Benedick
in love with Beatrice: Of this matter

Capitol's crafty arrow made,
by wounds by hearsay. Now begin;

Enter BEATRICE, behind.

Where Beatrice, like a lapwing, runs
the ground, to hear our conference.

The pleasant'st angling is to see the fish
in her golden ears the silver stream,

and devour the treacherous bait:
is we for Beatrice; who even now

had in the woodbine coverture:

is not my part of the dialogue.

Then go we near her, that her ear lose nothing

false sweet bait that we lay for it.— [They advance to the bower.

Ursula, she is too disdainful;

her spirits are as coy and wild
as harts of the rock.†

But are you sure,
Benedick loves Beatrice so entirely?

So says the prince, and my new-trothed
lord.

And did they bid you tell her of it,
madam?

They did intreat me to acquaint her of it:
persuaded them, if they lov'd Benedick,
to him wrestle with affection,
never to let Beatrice know of it.

Why did you so? Doth not the gentle-
man

be as full, as fortunate a bed,

as Beatrice shall couch upon?

O God of love! I know, he doth deserve

as may be yielded to a man:

sure never fram'd a woman's heart

under stuff than that of Beatrice:

is and scorn ride sparkling in her eyes,

meeting what they look on; and her wit

is itself so highly, that to her

nothing else seems weak: she cannot love,

in no shape nor project of affection,

so self-endear'd.

Sure, I think so;

therefore, certainly, it were not good
new his love, lest she make sport at it.

Why, you speak truth: I never yet
saw man, [tur'd,

wise, how noble, young, how rarely fearless would spell him backward: if fair-faced,

morning. † A species of hawk. ‡ Undervaluing.

She'd swear; the gentleman should be her sister

If black, why, nature, drawing of an antick,

Made a foul blot; if tall, a lance ill-headed;

If low, an agate very vilely cut;

If speaking, why, a vane blown with all winds;

If silent, why a block moved with none.

So turns she every man the wrong side out;

And never gives to truth and virtue, that

Which simpleness and merit purchaseth.

Urs. Sure, sure, such carping is not commendable.

Here. No: not to be so odd, and from all fashions,

As Beatrice is, cannot be commendable:

But who dare tell her so? If I should speak,

She'd mock me into air; O, she would laugh me

Out of myself, press me to death with wit.

Therefore let Benedick, like cover'd fire,

Consume away in sighs, waste inwardly:

It were a better death than die with mocks;

Which is as bad as die with tickling.

Urs. Yet tell her of it; hear what she will say.

Here. No; rather I will go to Benedick,
And counsel him to fight against his passion:

And, truly, I'll devise some honest slanders

To stain my cousin with: One doth not know,

How much an ill word may empoison liking.

Urs. O, do not do your cousin such a wrong.

She cannot be so much without true judgement,

(Having so swift* and excellent a wit,

As she is priz'd to have,) as to refuse

So rare a gentleman as signior Benedick.

Here. He is the only man of Italy,

Always excepted my dear Claudio.

Urs. I pray you, be not angry with me, ma-

Speaking my fancy; signior Benedick, [dam,

For shape, for bearing, argument,† and valour,

Goes foremost in report through Italy.

Here. Indeed, he hath an excellent good name.

Urs. His excellence did earn it, ere he had
When are you married, madam? [it.—

Here. Why, every day;—to-morrow: Come,
go in; [counsel,

I'll show thee some attires; and have thy
Which is the best to furnish me to-morrow.

Urs. She's lim'd‡ I warrant you; we have caught her, madam.

Here. If it prove so, then loving goes by haps:
Some Cupid kills with arrows, some with traps.

[Exeunt HERO and URSULA.

BEATRICE advances.

Beat. What fire is in mine ears? Can this be true? [much?

Stand I condemn'd for pride and scorn so
Contempt, farewell! and maiden pride, adieu!

No glory lives behind the back of such.

And, Benedick, love on, I will requite thee;

Taming my wild heart to thy loving hand;

If thou dost love, my kindness shall incite thee

To bind our loves up in a holy band:

For others say, thou dost deserve; and I Believe it better than reportingly. [Exit.

SCENE II.—A room in LEONATO's House.

Enter Don PEDRO, CLAUDIO, BENEDICK, and LEONATO.

D. Pedro. I do but stay till your marriage be consummate, and then I go toward Arragon.

Claud. I'll bring you thither, my lord, if you'll vouchsafe me.

D. Pedro. Nay, that would be as great a soil

* Ready. † Conversation. ‡ Ensnared with birdlime.

THOUGHTS ABOUT NOTHING.

[ACT III]

ge, as to show
him to wear
nedick for his
of his head to ch; he hath ring, and the
him. he hath his tongue is t thinks, his

have been.
are sadder.

there's no true
y touch'd with
ney.

t, and draw it

tooth-ach?
or a worm?
master a grief,

ance of fancy
ut he hath to Dutchman to-or in the shape German from
and a Spaniard Unless he at appears he
as you would

some woman,
he brushes his
that bode?
en him at the man hath been nament of his s balls.

er than he did,
elf with civet.

ay, The sweet

of it is his ment to wash his

himself? for the
him.

urit; which is now governed

heavy tale for
in love.

loves him.

y too; I war-

ons; and, in

with her face

for the tooth-

th me: I have
s to speak to

ust not hear,

and LEONATO.

peak with him

Claud. 'Tis even so: Hero and Margaret have by this played their parts with Beatrice; and then the two bears will not bite one another,
when they meet.

Enter Don JOHN.

D. John. My lord and brother, God save you.

D. Pedro. Good den, brother.

D. John. If your leisure served, I would speak with you.

D. Pedro. In private?

D. John. If it please you;—yet count Claudio may hear; for what I would speak of, concerns him.

D. Pedro. What's the matter?

D. John. Means your lordship to be married to-morrow? [To CLAUDIO.]

D. Pedro. You know, he does.

D. John. I know not that, when he knows what I know.

Claud. If there be any impediment, I pray
you, discover it.

D. John. You may think, I love you not; let that appear hereafter, and aim better at me by that I now will manifest: For my brother, I think, he holds you well; and in dearthness of heart hath help to effect your ensuing marriage: surely suit ill spent, and labour ill bestowed!

D. Pedro. Why, what's the matter?

D. John. I came hither to tell you; and, circumstances shortened, (for she hath been too long a talking of,) the lady is disloyal.

Claud. Who? Hero?

D. John. Even she; Leonato's Hero, your Hero, every man's Hero.

Claud. Disloyal?

D. John. The word is too good to paint out her wickedness; I could say, she were worse;
think you of a worse title, and I will fit her to
it. Wonder not till further warrant: go but with me to-night, you shall see her chamber-window entered, even the night before her wedding-day: if you love her then, to-morrow
wed her; but it would better fit your honour to change your mind.

Claud. May this be so?

D. Pedro. I will not think it.

D. John. If you dare not trust that you see,
confess not that you know: if you will follow
me, I will show you enough; and when you have seen more, and heard more, proceed accordingly.

Claud. If I see any thing to night why I should not marry her to-morrow; in the congregation, where I should wed, there will I shame her.

D. Pedro. And, as I wooed for thee to obtain her, I will join with thee to disgrace her.

D. John. I will disparage her no farther, till you are my witnesses: bear it coldly but till midnight, and let the issue show itself.

D. Pedro. O day untowardly turned!

Claud. O mischief strangely thwarting!

D. John. O plague right well prevented!

So will you say, when you have seen the sequel.

[Exit.]

SCENE III.—A Street.

Enter DOGBERRY and VERGES, with the Watchmen.

Dogb. Are you good men and true?

Verg. Yea, or else it were pity but that should suffer salvation, body and soul.

Dogb. Nay, that were a punishment too good for them, if they should have any allegiance
them, being chosen for the prince's watch.

Verg. Well, I will then take charge, neighbour Dogberry.

Dogb. First, who think you the most deserting man to be constable?

2 Watch. Hugh Oatcake, Sir, or George Buncle; for they can write and read.

Dogb. Come hither, neighbour Seacoal. God hath blessed you with a good name: to be a well-favoured man is the gift of fortune; but to write and read comes by nature.

2 Watch. Both which, master constable,—

Dogb. You have; I knew it would be your answer. Well, for your favour, Sir, why, give God thanks, and make no boast of it; and for your writing and reading, let that appear when there is no need of such vanity. You are thought here to be the most senseless and fit man for the constable of the watch; therefore let you the lantern. This is your charge; you shall comprehend all vagrom men: you are to bid any man stand, in the prince's name.

2 Watch. How if he will not stand?

Dogb. Why then, take no note of him, but let him go; and presently call the rest of the watch together, and thank God you are rid of a knave.

Verg. If he will not stand when he is hidden, he is none of the prince's subjects.

Dogb. True, and they are to meddle with none but the prince's subjects:—You shall also make no noise in the streets; for, for the watch to babble and talk, is most tolerable and not to be endured.

2 Watch. We will rather sleep than talk; we know what belongs to a watch.

Dogb. Why, you speak like an ancient and most quiet watchman; for I cannot see how sleeping should offend: only, have a care that your bills* be not stolen:—Well, you are to call at all the ale-houses, and bid those that are drunk get them to bed.

2 Watch. How if they will not?

Dogb. Why then, let them alone till they are sober; if they make you not then the better answer, you may say, they are not the men you look for.

2 Watch. Well, Sir.

Dogb. If you meet a thief, you may suspect him, by virtue of your office, to be no true man: and, for such kind of men, the less you meddle or make with them, why, the more is for your honesty.

2 Watch. If we know him to be a thief, shall we not lay hands on him?

Dogb. Truly, by your office you may; but, I think, they that touch pitch will be defiled: the most peaceable way for you, if you take a thief, is, to let him show himself what he is, and steal out of your company.

Verg. You have been always called a merciful man, partner.

Dogb. Truly, I would not hang a dog by my will; much more a man who hath any honesty in him.

Verg. If you hear a child cry in the night, you must call to the nurse, and bid her still it.

2 Watch. How if the nurse be asleep, and will not hear us?

Dogb. Why then, depart in peace, and let the child wake her with crying: for the ewe that will not hear her lamb when it baes, will never answer a calf when it bleats.

Verg. 'Tis very true.

Dogb. This is the end of the charge. You, constable, are to present the prince's own vergon; if you meet the prince in the night, you may stay him.

Verg. Nay by'r lady, that, I think, he cannot.

Dogb. Five shillings to one on't, with any man that knows the statutes, he may stay him: marry, not without the prince be willing: for, indeed, the watch ought to offend no man; and it is an offence to stay a man against his will.

Verg. By'r lady, I think, it be so.

Dogb. Ha, ha, ha! Well, masters, good night: as there be any matter of weight chances, call up me. Keep your fellows' counsels and your own, and good night.—Come, neighbour.

2 Watch. Well, masters, we hear our charge: let us go sit here upon the church-bench till two, and then all to bed.

Dogb. One word more, honest neighbours: I pray you, watch about signior Leonato's door; for the wedding being there to-morrow, there is a great coil to-night: Adieu, be vigilant, I beseech you. [Exit Dogberry and Verges.]

Enter BORACHIO and CONRADE.

Bora. What! Conrade,—

Watch. Peace, stir not.

[Aside.]

Bora. Conrade, I say!

Con. Here, man, I am at thy elbow.

Bora. Mass, and my elbow itched; I thought, there would a scab follow.

Con. I will owe thee an answer for that; and now forward with thy tale.

Bora. Stand thee close then under this pent-house, for it drizzles rain; and I will, like a true drunkard, utter all to thee.

Watch. [Aside.] Some treason, masters; yet stand close.

Bora. Therefore know, I have earned of Don John a thousand ducats.

Con. Is it possible that any villany should be so dear?

Bora. Thou should'st rather ask, if it were possible any villany should be so rich; for when rich villains have need of poor ones, poor ones may make what price they will.

Con. I wonder at it.

Bora. That shows, thou art unconfirmed.* Thou knowest, that the fashion of a doublet, or a hat, or a cloak, is nothing to a man.

Con. Yes, it is apparel.

Bora. I mean, the fashion.

Con. Yes, the fashion is the fashion.

Bora. Tush! I may as well say, the fool's the fool. But see'st thou not what a deformed thief this fashion is?

Watch. I know that Deformed; he has been a vile thief this seven year; he goes up and down like a gentleman. I remember his name.

Bora. Didst thou not hear somebody?

Con. No; 'twas the vane on the house.

Bora. Seest thou not, I say, what a deformed thief this fashion is? how giddily he turns about all the hot bloods, between fourteen and five and thirty? sometimes fashioning them like Pharaoh's soldiers in the reechy painting; sometime, like god Bel's priests in the old church window; sometime, like the shaven Hercules in the smurched† worm-eaten tapestry, where the cod-piece seems as massy as his club!

Con. All this I see; and see that the fashion wears out more apparel than the man: But art not thou thyself giddy with the fashion too, that thou hast shifted out of thy tale into telling me of the fashion?

* Unpractised in the ways of the world.

† Smoked.

; S. shed.

* Weapons of the watchmen.

now, that I have
e lady Hero's
hero: she leans
window, bids
nt,—I tell this thee, how the r, planted, and
ster Don John,
as amiable en-

aret was Hero?
ince and Clauknew she was
this, which first rk night, which
by my villany,
that Don John
uraged; swore ppointed, next re, before the
with what he me again with-

n the prince's
ster constable:
most dangerous known in the

as one of them;

ing Deformed

harge you, let

a goodly com-
men's bills.

n, I warrant
[Exeunt.]

NATO's House.

ed URSULA.

y cousin Bea-

[Exit URSULA.
other rabato*

leg, I'll wear

o good; and I

l thou art an-

than excellent-

browner: and

, I faith. I saw

at they praise

ay

night-gown in

and cuts, and own sleeves,

, underborne

a fine, quaint,

yours is worth

ear it, for my

by the weight

ashamed?

i Long-sleeves.

Marg. Of what lady? of speaking honourably? Is not marriage honourable in a beggar?
Is not your lord honourable without marriage?
I think, you would have me say, saving your reverence,—a husband: an bad thinking do not wrest true speaking, I'll offend nobody: Is there any harm in—the heavier for a husband?
None, I think, an it be the right husband, and the right wife; otherwise 'tis light, and not heavy: Ask my lady Beatrice else, here she comes.

Enter BEATRICE.

Hero. Good morrow, coz.

Beat. Good morrow, sweet Hero.

Hero. Why, how now! do you speak in the sick tune?

Beat. I am out of all other tune, methinks.

Marg. Clap us into—Light o' love; that goes without burden; do you sing it, and I'll dance
it.

Beat. Yea, Light o' love, with your heels!—
then if your husband have stables enough,
you'll see he shall lack no barns.

Marg. O illegitimate construction! I scorn that with my heels.

Beat. 'Tis almost five o'clock cousin; 'tis time you were ready. By my troth I am exceeding ill:—hey ho!

Marg. For a hawk, a horse, or a husband?

Beat. For the letter that begins them all, H.*

Marg. Well, an you be not turned Turk,
no more sailing by the star.

Beat. What means the fool, trow?

Marg. Nothing I; but God send every one their heart's desire!

Hero. These gloves the count sent me, they are an excellent perfume.

Beat. I am stuffed, cousin, I cannot smell.

Marg. A maid, and stuffed! there's goodly catching of cold.

Beat. O, God help me! God help me! how long have you profess'd apprehension?

Marg. Ever since you left it: doth not my wit become me rarely?

Beat. It is not seen enough, you should wear
it in your cap.—By my troth, I am sick.

Marg. Get you some of this distilled Carduus Benedictus, and lay it to your heart; it is the only thing for a qualm.

Hero. There thou prick'st her with a thistle.

Beat. Benedictus! why Benedictus? you have some morals in this Benedictus.

Marg. Moral? no, by my troth, I have no moral meaning; I meant, plain holy-thistle.
You may think, perchance, that I think you are in love: nay, by'r lady, I am not such a fool to think what I list; nor I list not to think what I can, nor, indeed, I cannot think, if I would think my heart out of thinking, that you are in love, or that you will be in love, or that you can be in love: yet Benedick was such another, and now is he become a man: he swore he would never marry; and yet now, in despite of his heart, he eats his meat without grudging; and how you may be converted, I know not, but methinks, you look with your eyes as other women do.

Beat. What pace is this that thy tongue keeps?

Marg. Not a false gallop.

Re-enter URSULA.

Urs. Madam, withdraw; the prince, the count, signior Benedick, Don John, and all the gallants of the town, are come to fetch you to church.

* I. e. for an ache or pain.

† I. e. don meaning.

Here. Help to dress me, good con, good Meg,
good Urtula. [Exeunt.]

SCENE V.—Another Room in LEONATO'S
House.

Enter LEONATO, with DOGBERRY and VERGES.

Leon. What would you with me, honest neighbour?

Dogb. Marry, Sir, I would have some confidence with you, that decerns you nearly.

Leon. Brief, I pray you; for you see, 'tis a busy time with me.

Dogb. Marry, this it is, Sir.

Verg. Yes, in truth it is, Sir.

Leon. What is it, my good friends?

Dogb. Goodman Verges, Sir, speaks a little off the matter: an old man, Sir, and his wits
are not so blunt, as, God help, I would desire they were; but, in faith, honest, as the skin between his brows.

Verg. Yes, I thank God, I am as honest as my man living, that is an old man, and no
honester than I.

Dogb. Comparisons are odorous: palebras, neighbour Verges.

Leon. Neighbours, you are tedious.

Dogb. It pleases your worship to say so, but we are the poor duke's officers: but, truly, for mine own part, if I were as tedious as a king,
I could find in my heart to bestow it all of
your worship.

Leon. All thy tediousness on me! ha!

Dogb. Yea, and 'twere a thousand times more than 'tis: for I hear as good exclamation
on your worship, as of any man in the city;
and though I be but a poor man, I am glad to hear it.

Verg. And so am I.

Leon. I would fain know what you have to say.

Verg. Marry, Sir, our watch to-night, excepting your worship's presence, have ta'en a couple of as arrant knaves as any in Messina.

Dogb. A good old man, Sir; he will be talking; as they say, When the age is in, the wit is out; God help us! it is a world to see!—
Well said, i'faith, neighbour Verges:—well,
God's a good man; an two men ride of a horse,
one must ride behind:—An honest soul, i'faith,
Sir; by my troth he is, as ever broke bread:
but, God is to be worshipped: All men are not alike; alas good neighbour!

Leon. Indeed, neighbour, he comes too short
of you.

Dogb. Gifts that God gives.

Leon. I must leave you.

Dogb. One word, Sir: our watch, Sir, have,
indeed, comprehended two aspicuous persons,
and we would have them this morning examined before your worship.

Leon. Take their examination yourself, and bring it me; I am now in great haste, as it may appear unto you.

Dogb. It shall be suffigance.

Leon. Drink some wine ere you go: fare you
well.

Enter a MESSENGER.

Mes. My lord, they stay for you to give your daughter to her husband.

Leon. I will wait upon them; I am ready.

[Exeunt LEONATO and MESSENGER.]

Dogb. Go, good partner, go, get you to Francis Seacoal, bid him bring his pen and inkhorn
to the gaol; we are now to examination these men.

* It is worth seeing.

Verg. And we must do it wisely.

Dogb. We will spare for no wit, I warrant you; here's that [Touching his forehead.] shall drive some of them to a new com: only get the learned writer to set down our excommunication, and meet me at the gaol. [Exeunt.]

ACT IV.

SCENE I.—The inside of a Church.

Enter Don PEDRO, Don JOHN, LEONATO, FRIAR, CLAUDIO, BENEDICK, HERO, and BEATRICE, &c.

Leon. Come, friar Francis, be brief; only to the plain form of marriage, and you shall recount their particular duties afterwards.

Friar. You come hither, my lord, to marry
this lady?

Claud. No.

Leon. To be married to her, friar; you come to marry her.

Friar. Lady, you come hither to be married to this count?

Hero. I do.

Friar. If either of you know any inward impediment why you should not be conjoined,
I charge you, on your souls, to utter it.

Claud. Know you any, Hero?

Hero. None, my lord.

Friar. Know you any, count?

Leon. I dare make his answer, none.

Claud. O, what men dare do! what men may do! what men daily do! not knowing what they do!

Bene. How now! Interjections? Why, then some be of laughing, as, ha! ha! he?

Claud. Stand thee by, friar:—Father, by your leave!

Will you with free and unconstrained soul
Give me this maid, your daughter?

Leon. As freely, son, as God did give her me.

Claud. And what have I to give you back, whose worth

May counterpoise this rich and precious gift.

D. Pedro. Nothing, unless you render her
again.

Claud. Sweet prince, you learn me noble thankfulness.—

There, Leonato, take her back again;
Give not this rotten orange to your friend;
She's but the sign and semblance of her honour:—

Behold, how like a maid she blushes here:
O, what authority and show of truth
Can cunning sin cover itself withal!
Comes not that blood, as modest evidence,
To witness simple virtue? Would you not swear,
All you that see her, that she were a maid,
By these exterior shows? But she is none:
She knows the heat of a luxurious* bed:
Her blush is guiltiness, not modesty.

Leon. What do you mean, my lord?

Claud. Not to be married,

Not knit my soul to an approved wanton.

Leon. Dear my lord, if you, in your own proof
Have vanquish'd the resistance of her youth,
And made defeat of her virginity,——

Claud. I know what you would say; If I have known her,

You'll say, she did embrace me as a husband,
And so extenuate the 'forehand sin:

No, Leonato,
I never tempted her with word too large;†
But, as a brother to his sister, show'd
Bashful sincerity, and comely love.

Hero. And seem'd I ever otherwise to you?

* Lascivious.

† Licentious.

I will write

orb;
blown;
your blood animals

he doth speak

not you?

one about
non stale,
or do I bot

en, and these uptial.

nce's brother?
us our own?
I thus, mylord?
ne question to

power
power truly.
art my child.
ain I beset!—

to your name.
can blot that [name

virtue.
you yesternight
selve and one?
to this.
that hour, my

no maiden.—

mine honour,
eaved count,
ar last night,
er window;
eralt villain,
ey have had

he spoke of;
language,
Thus, pretty

onment.
ndst thou been,
been placed
ts of thy heart?
most fair! fare-

is purity!
tes of love,
ature hang,
s of harm,
ious.†

here a point [HERO SINGS.
in? wherefore

these things,

Don John, and

tractive.

Bene. How doth the lady?

Beat. Dead, I think;—help, uncle;— Hero! why, Hero!—Uncle!—Signior Benedick!—friar!

Leon. O fate, take not away thy heavy hand!
Death is the fairest cover for her shame,
That may be wish'd for.

Beat. How now, cousin Hero?

Friar. Have comfort, lady.

Leon. Dost thou look up?

Friar. Yea; Wherefore should she not?

Leon. Wherefore? Why, doth not every earthly thing

Cry shame upon her? Could she here deny
The story that is printed in her blood?—
Do not live, Hero; do not open thine eyes:
For did I think thou would'st not quickly
die,

Thought I thy spirits were stronger than thy shames,

Myself would, on the rearward of reproaches,
Strike at thy life. Griev'd I, I had but one?
Chid I for that at frugal nature's frame?*

O, one too much by thee! Why had I one?
Why ever wast thou lovely in my eyes?

Why had I not, with charitable hand,
Took up a beggar's issue at my gates;
Who smarch'd; thus, and mired with infamy,

I might have said, No part of it is mine,
This shame derives itself from unknown veins?

But mine, and mine I lov'd, and mine I prais'd,
And mine that I was proud on; mine so much,
That I myself was to myself not mine,

Valuing of her; why, she—O, she is fallen
Into a pit of ink! that the wide sea
Hath drops too few to wash her clean again;

And salt too little, which may season give
To her foul tainted flesh!

Bene. Sir, Sir, be patient:
For my part, I am so stir'd in wonder,
I know not what to say.

Beat. O, on my soul, my cousin is belied!
Bene. Lady, were you her bedfellow last
night?

Beat. No, truly, not; although, until last
I have this twelvemonth been her bedfellow.

Leon. Confirm'd, confirm'd! O, that is stronger made,
Which was before barr'd up with ribs of iron!

Would the two princes lie? and Claudio lie?
Who lov'd her so, that, speaking of her foul-
ness,

Wash'd it with tears? Hence from her; let her Friar. Hear me a little;

For I have only been silent so long,
And given way unto this course of fortune,
By noting of the lady: I have mark'd

A thousand blushing apparitions start
Into her face; a thousand innocent shames
In angel whiteness bear away those blushes;

And in her eye there hath appear'd a fire,
To burn the errors that these princes hold
Against her maiden truth:—Call me a fool;

Trust not my reading, nor my observations,
Which with experimental seal doth warrant
The tenour of my book; trust not my age,
My reverence, calling, nor divinity,

If this sweet lady lie not guiltless here
Under some biting error.

Leon. Friar, it cannot be:
Thou seest, that all the grace that she hath left,
Is, that she will not add to her damnation
A sin of perjury; she not denies it:
Why seek'st thou then to cover with excuse
That which appears in proper nakedness?

* Disposition of things.

† Sallied.

what man is he you are accus'd
know, that do accuse me; I know of any man alive,
his maiden modesty doth warrant,
a lack mercy!—O my father,
if any man with me convers'd
set, or that I yesternight [ture,
a change of words with any create me, torture me to death.
is some strange misprison* in places.
of them have the very beat of ho-
redness be raised in this,
if it lives in John the bastard,
toll in frame of villanies.
w not; If they speak but truth
hall tear her; if they wrong her if them shall well hear of it.
yet so dried this blood of mine,
t up my invention,
ade such havoc of my means,
so rest me so much of friends,
And, awak'd in such a kind,
of limb, and policy of mind,
me, and choice of friends,
them thoroughly.
a while,
equal away you in this case.
t hate the princes left for dead;
be secretly kept in,
t, that she is dead indeed:
erring ostentation;
family's old monument
t epitaphs, and do all rites unto a burial.
hall become of this? What will
it?
y, this, well carried, shall on half
to remorse; that is some good:
t, dream I on this strange course,
avail look for greater birth.
it must be so maintain'd,
unt that she was accus'd,
nted, pitied, and excus'd,
r: For it so falls out,
have we prize not to the worth,
joy it; but being lack'd and lost,
rack† the value; then we find
at possession would not show us ours:—So will it fare with Clau-

hear she died upon his words,
r life shall sweetly creep
of imagination;
ely organ of her life
parell'd in more precious habit,
delicate, and full of life,
ad prospect of his soul,
se liv'd indeed:—then shall he ad interest in his liver,)
ad not so accused her;
thought his accusation true.
and doubt not but success
as event in better shape
it down in likelihood.
but this be levell'd false,
n of the lady's death
se wonder of her infamy:

And, if it sort not well, you may conceal her
(As best befits her wounded reputation,)
In some reclusive and religious life,
Out of all eyes, tongues, minds, and injuries.
Bene. Signior Leonato, let the friar advise
you:
And though you know, my inwardness, and
Is very much unto the prince and Claudio,
Yet, by mine honour, I will deal in this
As secretly, and partly, as your soul
Should with your body.
Leon. Being that I flow in grief,
The smallest twine may lead me.
Friar. 'Tis well consented, presently away;
For to strange sores strangely they strain
the cure.
Come, lady, die to live on this wedding day;
Perhaps, is but prolong'd; have patience,
and endure.
[Exit FRIAR, HERO, and LEONATO.
Bene. Lady Beatrice, have you wept all this
while?
Beat. Yea, and I will weep a while longer.
Bene. I will not desire that.
Beat. You have no reason, I do it freely.
Bene. Surely, I do believe your fair cousin is wrong'd.
Beat. Ah, how much might the man deserve
of me, that would right her!
Bene. Is there any way to show such friendship?
Beat. A very even way, but no such friend.
Bene. May a man do it?
Beat. It is a man's office, but not yours.
Bene. I do love nothing in the world so well as you; Is not that strange?
Beat. As strange as the thing I know not:
It were as possible for me to say, I loved nothing so well as you: but believe me not; and yet I lie not; I confess nothing, nor I deny nothing:—I am sorry for my cousin.
Bene. By my sword, Beatrice, thou lovest me.
Beat. Do not swear by it, and eat it.
Bene. I will swear by it, that you love me;
and I will make him eat it, that says, I love
not you.
Beat. Will you not eat your word?
Bene. With no sauce that can be devised to it: I protest, I love thee.
Beat. Why then, God forgive me!
Bene. What offence, sweet Beatrice?
Beat. You have staid me in a happy hour,
I was about to protest, I loved you.
Bene. And do it with all thy heart.
Beat. I love you with so much of my heart,
that none is left to protest.
Bene. Come, bid me do any thing for thee.
Beat. Kill Claudio.
Bene. Ha! not for the wide world.
Beat. You kill me to deny it: Farewell.
Bene. Tarry, sweet Beatrice.
Beat. I am gone, though I am here;—There is no love in you:—Nay, I pray you, let me go.
Bene. Beatrice,—
Beat. In faith, I will go.
Bene. We'll be friends first.
Beat. You dare easier be friends with me,
than fight with mine enemy.
Bene. Is Claudio thine enemy?
Beat. Is he not approved in the height a villain, that hath slandered, scorned, dishon-oured my kinswoman?—O, that I were a man!
—What! bear her in hand; until they come to take hands; and then with public accusation, uncovered slander, unmitigated rancour,—(

a. † White. ; Over-rate. † By.

* Intimacy

† Delude her with hopes.

MUCH ADO ABOUT NOTHING.

a man! I would eat his heart out.

Beatrice;—
a man out at a window!—a

Beatrice;—
pro!—she is wronged, she is undone.

and counties! Surely, a goodly count-ess;†
O that I were a man
that I had any friend would like! But manhood is melted into compliment, and into tongue, and trim ones
as Hercules, that only ears it:—I cannot be a man before I will die a woman

ood Beatrice: By this hand,

my love some other way than

in your soul the count Clau-Hero?

ure as I have a thought, or a

I am engaged, I will chal-
kiss your hand, and so leave it, Claudio shall render me a you hear of me, so think of your cousin: I must say, she farewell. [Exeunt.

E II—A Prison.

, VEROES, and SEXTON, in WATCH, with CONRADE and

hole disassembly appeared?
and a cushion for the sexton!
be the malefactors?

that am I and my partner.
it's certain, we have the ex-

ch are the offenders that are let them come before master

ry, let them come before me.—
ne, friend?

edown—Borachio.—Yours,

ttleman, Sir, and my name is own—master gentleman Condo you serve God?

a, Sir, we hope.

down—that they hope they write God first; for God de-

and go before such villains!—
ed already that you are little aves; and it will go near shortly. How answer you r, we say we are none.

lious witty fellow, I assure
o about with him.—Come you ord in your ear, Sir; I say to you are false knaves.

y to you, we are none.

and aside.—Fore God, they Have you writ down—that

r constable, you go not the

† A nobleman made out of sugar.

† Ceremony

way to examine; you must
that are their accusers.

Dogb. Yea, marry, that's Let the watch come forth:—
you, in the prince's name, a

1 Watch. This man said, the prince's brother, was a

Dogb. Write down—prince Why this is flat perjury, to ther—villain.

Horn. Master constable,—

Dogb. Pray thee, fellow like thy look, I promise the

Sexton. What heard you

2 Watch. Marry, that he h said ducats of Don John, fo Hero wrongfully.

Dogb. Flat burglary, as e

Verg. Yea, by the mass,

Sexton. What else, fellow

1 Watch. And that count upon his words, to disgra

whole assembly, and not m Dogb. O villain! thou into everlasting redemption

Sexton. What else?

2 Watch. This is all.

Sexton. And this is more,
can deny. Prince John is th stolen away; Hero was in th in this very manner refused of this, suddenly died.—M
these men be bound, and br
I will go before, and show
tion.

Dogb. Come, let them be

Verg. Let them be in bas

Con. Off, coxcomb!

Dogb. God's my life! w let him write down—the p comb.—Come, bind them
varlet!

Con. Away! you are an

Dogb. Dost thou not

Dost thou not suspect my were here to write me do masters, remember, that I
it be not written down, yet
an ass:—No, thou villain, t
as shall be proved upon th
I am a wise fellow; and, w
ficer; and, which is more,
which is more, as pretty a
is in Messina; and one, th
go to; and a rich fellow en fellow that hath had losses
two gowns, and every thin him:—Bring him away.
writ down—an ass.

ACT. V

SCENE. I.—Before L

Enter LEONATO and

Ant. If you go on thus, ye
And 'tis not wisdom, thus Against yourself.

Leon. I pray thee, cease
Which falls into mine ears
As water in a sieve: give Nor let no comforter delight
But such a one whose wrong
Bring me a father, that so
Whose joy of her is overw
And bid him speak of path

the length and breadth of every strain for strain;

And such a grief for such,
In branch, shape, and form:
Smile, and stroke his beard;
I and hem, when he should

[drunk]
Proverbs; make misfortune
His; bring him yet to me, gather patience.

A man: For, brother, men
Speak comfort to that grief
They not feel; but, tasting it,
As to passion, which before
Stial medicine to rage,
Sees in a silken thread,
And agony with words;
It's office to speak patience
Under the load of sorrow;
He, nor sufficiency,
Can he shall endure
Herefore give me no counsel
Or than advertisement.*
Men from children nothing

Peace: I will be flesh and
Or yet philosopher, [blood;
The tooth-ach patiently;
I writ the style of gods,
At chance and sufferance.
Still the harm upon yourself;
To offend you, suffer too.
I speak at reason: nay, I

See, Hero is belied, [prince,
Claudio know, so shall the
Not thus dishonour her.

PEDRO and CLAUDIO.
As the prince, and Claudio,

Den, good den.
To both of you.
My lords,—
Have some haste, Leonato.
To, my lord!—well, fare you
Lord:—
Now?—well, all is one.
Do not quarrel with us, good

Right himself with quarreling,
He low.
Kings him?

Wrong me, thou dissembler,
Hand upon thy sword,

Shrew my hand,
Our age such cause of fear:
Meant nothing to my sword.
H, man, never flee and jest
Dotard, nor a fool, [at me-
Of age, to brag {do,
Being young, or what would Know, Claudio, to thy head,
I'd mine innocent child and Lay my reverence by, [me,
Irs, and bruise of many days,
To trial of a man.
Ilied mine innocent child;
Gone through and through her
D with her ancestors: [heart,
Are never scandal slept,

* Admonition.

Save this of her's tram'd by thy villany.

Claud. My villany!

Leon. Thine, Claudio; thine I say.

D. Pedro. You say not right, old man.

Leon. My lord, my lord,

I'll prove it on his body, if he dare?

Despite his nice fence, and his active practice,*

His May of youth, and bloom of lustyhood.

Claud. A way, I will not have to do with you.

Leon. Canst thou so daff me? Thou hast

kill'd my child;

If thou kill'st me, boy, thou shalt kill a man.

Ant. He shall kill two of us, and men indeed:

But that's no matter; let him kill one first;—

Win me and wear me,—let him answer me,—

Come, follow me, boy; come, boy, follow me;

Sir boy, I'll whip you from your foaming fence;

Nay, as I am a gentleman, I will.

Leon. Brother,—

Ant. Content yourself: God knows, I lov'd

my niece;

And she is dead, slander'd to death by villains;

That dare as well answer a man, indeed,

As I dare take a serpent by the tongue:

Boys, apes, braggarts, Jacks, milksops!—

Leon. Brother Antony,—

Ant. Hold you content; What, man! I know them, yea,

And what they weigh, even to the utmost

scruple:

Scambling, out-facing, fashion-mong'ring boys,

That lie, and cog, and flout, deprave, and slander,

Go antickly, and show outward hideousness,

And speak off half a dozen dangerous words,

How they might hurt their enemies if they

And thus is all. [durst,

Leon. But, brother Antony,—

Ant. Come, 'tis no matter;

Do not you meddle, let me deal in this.

D. Pedro. Gentlemen both, we will not wake your patience.

My heart is sorry for your daughter's death;

But, on my honour, she was charg'd with nothing

But what was true, and very full of proof.

Leon. My lord, my lord,—

D. Pedro. I will not hear you.

Leon. No?

Brother, away:—I will be heard;—

Ant. And shall,

Or some of us will smart for it.

[Exit LEONATO and ANTONIO.

Enter BENEDICK.

D. Pedro. See, see; here comes the man we went to seek.

Claud. Now, signior! what news!

Bene. Good day, my lord.

D. Pedro. Welcome, signior. You are almost come to part almost a fray.

Claud. We had like to have had our two noses snapped off with two old men without teeth.

D. Pedro. Leonato and his brother: What think'st thou? Had we fought, I doubt, we should have been too young for them.

Bene. In a false quarrel there is no true valour. I came to seek you both.

Claud. We have been up and down to seek thee; for we are high-proof melancholy, and would fain have it beaten away: Wilt thou use thy wit?

Bene. It is in my scabbard, Shall I draw it?

D. Pedro. Dost thou wear thy wit by thy side?

* Skill in fencing.

† Throwing.

ugh very many will bid thee
draw, to plea-
man, he looks

What though enough in thee

t in the career,
—I pray you,

another staff;

changes more
indeed.

ow to turn his

your ear!

challenge!

st not:—I will

with what you

me right, or I

ou have killed

fall heavy on

so I may have

st?

hath bidt me

he which if I

y, my knife's

clock too?

well; it goes

atrice praised

ou hadst a fine

ne. No, said I,

reat gross one;

d she, it hurts

eman is wise;

on Nay, said

ere, said she,

Monday night,

ning; there's

en. Thus did

thy particular

d with a sigh,

Italy.

t heartily, and

but yet, for all

on deadly, she

an's daughter

, God saw him

set the savage

edick's head?

rneath, Here

you know my

our gossip-like

garts do their

s, hurt not.—

esies I thank company: your

Messina: you

and innocent

there, he and I

be with him.

rit BENEDECK.

eat; and, I'll

trice.

† Invited.

D. Pedro. And hath challenged thee?

Claud. Most sincerely.

D. Pedro. What a pretty thing man is, when he goes in his doublet and hose, and leaves off his wit!

Enter DOGBERRY, VERGES, and the Watch, with CONRADE and BORACHIO.

Claud. He is then a giant to an ape: but then is an ape a dootor to such a man.

D. Pedro. But, soft you, let be; pluck up, my heart, and be sad! Did he not say my brother was fled?

Dogb. Come, you, Sir; if justice cannot tame you, she shall ne'er weigh more reasons in her balance: nay, an you be a cursing hypocrite once, you must be looked to.

D. Pedro. How now, 'two of my brother's men bound! Borachio, one!

Claud. Hearken after their offence, my lord!

D. Pedro. Officers, what offence have these men done?

Dogb. Marry, Sir, they have committed false report; moreover, they have spoken untruths; secondarily, they are slanders; sixth and lastly, they have belied a lady; thirdly, they have verified unjust things: and, to conclude, they are lying knaves.

D. Pedro. First, I ask thee what they have done; thirdly, I ask thee what's their offence; sixth and lastly, why they are committed; and, to conclude, what you lay to their charge.

Claud. Rightly reasoned, and in his own division; and, by my truth, there's one meaning well suited.

D. Pedro. Whom have you offended, masters, that you are thus bound to your answer? this learned constable is too cunning to be understood: What's your offence?

Bora. Sweet prince, let me go no further to mine answer; do you hear me, and let this count kill me. I have deceived even your very eyes: what your wisdoms could not discover, these shallow fools have brought to light; who, in the night, overheard me confessing to this man, how Don John your brother incensed me to slander the lady Hero: how you were brought into the orchard, and saw me court Margaret in Hero's garment; how you disgraced her, when you should marry her: my villany they have upon record; which I had rather seal with my death, than repeat over to my shame: the lady is dead upon mine and my master's false accusation; and, briefly, I desire nothing but the reward of a villain.

D. Pedro. Runs not this speech like iron through your blood?

Claud. I have drunk poison, whilst he utter'd it.

D. Pedro. But did my brother set thee on to this?

Bora. Yea, and paid me richly for the practice of it.

D. Pedro. He is compos'd and fram'd of And fled he is upon his villany. [trachery:—

Claud. Sweet Hero! now thy image doth appear

In the rare semblance that I loved it first.

Dogb. Come, bring away the plaintiffs; by this time our Sexton hath reformed against Leonato of the matter: And masters, do not forget to specify, when time and place shall serve, that I am an ass.

Verg. Here, here comes master signior Leonato, and the Sexton too.

• Serious.

† Invited.

Re-enter LEONATO and ANTONIO, with the Sexton.

Leon. Which is the villain? Let me see his
That when I note another man like him, [eyes;
I may avoid him: Which of these is he?

Bona. If you would know your wronger look on me.

Leon. Art thou the slave, that with thy breath hast kill'd
Mine innocent child?

Bona. Yea, even I alone.

Leon. No, not so, villain; thou bell'st thyself;
Here stand a pair of honourable men,
A third is fled, that had a hand in it:—
I thank you, princes, for my daughter's death;
Record it with your high and worthy deeds;
'Twas bravely done, if you bethink you of it.

Claud. I know not how to pray your patience, Yet I must speak: Choose your revenge yourself;

Impose* me to what penance your invention
Can lay upon my sin: yet sinn'd I not,
But in mistaking.

D. Pedro. By my soul, nor I;
And yet, to satisfy this good old man,
I would bend under any heavy weight
That he'll enjoin me to.

Leon. I cannot bid you bid my daughter live,
That were impossible; but, I pray you both,
Punish the people in Messina here
How innocent she died: and, if your love
Can labour aught in sad invention,
Hang her an epitaph upon her tomb,
And sing it to her bones; sing it to-night:—
To-morrow morning come you to my house;
And since you could not be my son-in-law,
Be yet my nephew: my brother hath a daugh-
Almost the copy of my child that's dead, [ter,
And she alone is heir to both of us;
Give her the right you should have given her
And so dies my revenge. [cousin,

Claud. O, noble Sir,
Your over-kindness doth wring tears from me!
I do embrace your offer; and dispose
For henceforth of poor Claudio.

Leon. To-morrow then I will expect your coming;

To-night I take my leave.—This naughty man
Shall face to face be brought to Margaret,
Who, I believe, was pack'd† in all this wrong,
Hir'd to it by your brother.

Bona. No, by my soul, she was not; [me;
Nor knew not what she did, when she spoke to
But always hath been just and virtuous,
Is any thing that I do know by her.

Degr. Moreover, Sir, (which, indeed, is not under white and black,) this plaintiff here, the offender, did call me ass: I beseech you, let it be remembered in his punishment. And also, the watch heard them talk of one Deformed
they say, he wears a key in his ear, and a lock hanging by it; and borrows money in God's name, the which he hath used so long, and never paid, that now men grow hard-hearted,
and will lend nothing for God's sake: Pray
you, examine him upon that point.

Leon. I thank thee for thy care and honest
pains.

Degr. Your worship speaks like a most thankful and reverend youth; and I praise God
for you.

Leon. There's for thy pains.

Degr. God save the foundation!

Leon. Go, I discharge thee of thy prisoner,
and I thank thee.

Degr. I leave an artful knave with your worship; which, I beseech your worship, to correct yourself, for the example of others.
God keep your worship; I wish your worship
well; God restore you to health: I humbly give you leave to depart; and if a merry meeting may be wished, God prohibit it.—Come, neighbour.

[Exeunt DOGBERRY, VERGES, and WATCH.

Leon. Until to-morrow morning, lords, fare-
well.

Ant. Farewell, my lords; we look for you
to-morrow.

D. Pedro. We will not fail.

Claud. To-night I'll mourn with Hero.

[Exeunt DON PEDRO and CLAUDIO.

Leon. Bring you these fellows on; we'll talk with Margaret,

How her acquaintance grew with this lewd*
fellow. [Exeunt.

SCENE II.—LEONATO'S Garden.

Enter BENEDICK and MARGARET, meeting.

Bona. Pray thee, sweet mistress Margaret, deserve well at my hands, by helping me to the speech of Beatrice.

Marg. Will you then write me a sonnet in praise of my beauty?

Bona. In so high a style, Margaret, that no man living shall come over it; for, in most comely truth, thou deservest it.

Marg. To have no man come over me? why,
shall I always keep below stairs?

Bona. Thy wit is as quick as the greyhound's mouth, it catches.

Marg. And your's as blunt as the fencer's foils, which hit, but hurt not.

Bona. A most manly wit, Margaret, it will not hurt a woman; and so, I pray thee, call Beatrice: I give thee the bucklers.

Marg. Give us the swords, we have bucklers of our own.

Bona. If you use them, Margaret, you must put in the pikes with a vice; and they are dangerous weapons for maids.

Marg. Well, I will call Beatrice to you, who,
I think, hath legs. [Exit MARGARET.

Bona. And therefore will come.

*The god of love, [Singing.]
That sits above,
And knows me, and knows me,
How pitiful I deserve,—*

I mean, in singing; but in loving,—Leander
the good swimmer, Troilus the first employer of pandars, and a whole book full of these quondam carpet-mongers, whose names yet
run smoothly in the even road of a blank verse, why, they were never so truly turned over and over as my poor self, in love: Marry, I cannot show it in rhyme; I have tried; I can find out
no rhyme to lady but baby, an innocent rhyme;
for scorn, horn, a hard rhyme; for school, fool,
a babbling rhyme; very ominous endings: No,
I was not born under a rhyming planet, nor I cannot woo in festival terms.†

Enter BEATRICE.

Sweet Beatrice, would'st thou come when I called thee?

Beat. Yea, signior, and depart when you bid
me.

Bona. O, stay but till then!

* Continued. † Acquaint. ‡ Combined.

* Ignorant.

† Holiday phrases.

u well now:—
th that I came at hath passed

ereupon I will

ind, and foul breath is poikissed.

word out of his
But, I must goes* my chal-
hear from him,
And, I pray
my bad parts
me?

which main-
that they will ermingle with good parts did

net! I do suffer
inst my will.
I think, alas!
y sake, I will ever love that to woo peace-

cession: there's that will praise

Beatrice, that onrs: if a man
n tomb ere he monument, than reeps.

ink you?

ur in clamour,
fore it is most Worm his con-
the contrary,)
tues, as I am myself, (who,
praise-worthy,)
r cousin?

d mend: there
es one in haste.

to your uncle;
s proved, my ased, the prince and Don John
and gone: will

ewa, signior?
die in thy lap,
t moreover, I [Exeunt.

y a Church.

ATTENDANTS,
rs,

f Leonato?

angues

ongs

r dies:

; Howard.

So the life, that died with shame,
Lives in death with glorious fame.

Hang thou there upon the tomb, [Affixing it.
Praising her when I am dumb.—

Now, music, sound, and sing your solemn hymn.

SONG.

Pardon, goddess of the night,
Those that slew thy virgin knight,
For the which, with songs of woe,
Round about her tomb they go.
Midnight, assist our moan;
Help us to sigh and groan,
Heavily, heavily:
Graces, yawn, and yield your dead,
Till death be uttered,
Heavily, heavily.

Claud. Now, unto thy bones good night!
Yearly will I do this rite.

D. Pedro. Good morrow, masters; put your torches out:

The wolves have pray'd; and look, the gentle day,

Before the wheels of Phoebus, round about
Dapples the drowsy east with spots of gray:
Thanks to you all, and leave us; fare you well.

Claud. Good morrow, masters; each his several way.

D. Pedro. Come, let us hence, and put on other weeds;

And then to Leonato's we will go.

Claud. And, Hymen, now with luckier haste speed's,

Than this, for whom we render'd up this woe!
[Exeunt.

SCENE IV.—A Room in LEONATO'S House.

Enter LEONATO, ANTONIO, BENEDICK, BEA-TRICE, URSULA, FRIAR, and HERO.

Friar. Did I not tell you she was innocent?

Leon. So are the prince and Claudio, who accus'd her,

Upon the error that you heard debated:
But Margaret was in some fault for this;
Although against her will, as it appears
In the true course of all the question.

Ant. Well, I am glad that all things sort so
well.

Bene. And so am I, being else by faith enforc'd
To call young Claudio to a reckoning for it.

Leon. Well, daughter, and you gentlewomen Withdraw into a chamber by yourselves; [all,
And, when I send for you, come hither mask'd:
The prince and Claudio promis'd by this hour
To visit me:—You know your office, brother;
You must be father to your brother's daughter,
And give her to young Claudio.

[Exeunt Ladies.

Ant. Which I will do with confirm'd countenance.

Bene. Friar, I must entreat your pains, I think.

Friar. To do what, signior?

Bene. To bind me, or undo me, one of them.—
Signior Leonato, truth it is, good signior,
Your niece regards me with an eye of favour.

Leon. That eye my daughter lent her; 'Tis most true.

Bene. And I do with an eye of love requite
her.

Leon. The sight whereof, I think, you had
from me, [will!

From Claudio, and the prince; But what's your Bene. Your answer, Sir, is enigmatical:

But, for my will, my will is, your good will
May stand with ours, this day to be conjoin'd

In the estate of honourable marriage;—
In which, good friar, I shall desire your help.

Leon. My heart is with your liking.

Friar. And my help.

Here comes the prince, and Claudio.

Enter Don PEDRO and CLAUDIO, with Attendants.

D. Pedro. Good morrow to this fair assembly.

Leon. Good morrow, prince; good morrow, Claudio;

We here attend you; are you yet determin'd
To-day to marry with my brother's daughter?

Claud. I'll hold my mind, were she an Ethiop.

Leon. Call her forth, brother, here's the friar ready. [Exit ANTONIO.]

D. Pedro. Good morrow, Benedick: Why, what's the matter,

That you have such a February face,
So full of frost, of storm and cloudiness?

Claud. I think, he thinks upon the savage bull:— [gold,

Tush, fear not, man, we'll tip thy horns with
And all Europa shall rejoice at thee;

As once Europa did at lusty Jove,
When he would play the noble beast in love.

Bene. Bull Jove, Sir, had an amiable low;
And some such strange bull leap'd your father's
And got a calf in that same noble feat, [cow,
Much like to you, for you have just his bleat.

Re-enter ANTONIO, with the Ladies masked.

Claud. For this I owe you: here comes other reckonings.

Which is the lady I must seize upon?

Ant. This same is she, and I do give you her.

Claud. Why, then she's mine: Sweet, let me see your face.

Leon. No, that you shall not, till you take her hand

Before this friar, and swear to marry her.

Claud. Give me your hand before this holy
I am your husband, if you like of me. [friar;

Hero. And when I lived, I was your other wife: [Unmasking.]

And when you loved, you were my other husband.

Claud. Another Hero?

Hero. Nothing certainer:

One Hero died defil'd; but I do live,
And, surely as I live, I am a maid.

D. Pedro. The former Hero! Hero that is dead!

Leon. She died, my lord, but whiles her slander lived.

Friar. All this amazement can I qualify;
When, after that the holy rites are ended,
I'll tell you largely of fair Hero's death:
Mean time, let wonder seem familiar,
And to the chapel let us presently.

Bene. Soft and fair, friar.—Which is Beatrice?

Beat. I answer to that name; [Unmasking.]
What is your will?

Bene. Do not you love me?

Beat. No, no more than reason.

Bene. Why, then your uncle, and the prince,
and Claudio,

Have been deceived; for they swore you did.

Beat. Do not you love me?

Bene. No, no more than reason.

Beat. Why, then my cousin, Margaret, and Ursula,

Are much deceiv'd; for they did swear you did.

Bene. They swore that you were almost sick for me.

Beat. They swore that you were well-nigh dead for me.

Bene. 'Tis no such matter:—Then, you do not love me?

Beat. No, truly, but in friendly recompense.

Leon. Come, cousin, I am sure you love the gentleman.

Claud. And I'll be sworn upon't, that he loves
For here's a paper, written in his hand, [her;
A halting sonnet of his own pure brain,
Fashion'd to Beatrice.

Hero. And here's another, [pocket,
Writ in my cousin's hand, stolen from her Containing her affection unto Benedick.

Bene. A miracle! here's our own hands against our hearts!—Come, I will have thee;
but, by this light, I take thee for pity.

Beat. I would not deny you; but, by this good day, I yield upon great persuasion; and,
partly, to save your life, for I was told you were in a consumption.

Bene. Peace, I will stop your mouth.—

[Kissing her.]

D. Pedro. How dost thou, Benedick the married man?

Bene. I'll tell thee what, prince; a college of wit-crackers cannot flout me out of my humour:
Dost thou think, I care for a satire, or an epigram? No: if a man will be beaten with brains,
he shall wear nothing handsome about him:
In brief, since I do propose to marry, I will think nothing to any purpose that the world can say against it; and therefore never flout at me for what I have said against it; for man is a giddy thing, and this is my conclusion.—For thy part, Claudio, I did think to have beaten thee; but in that* thou art like to be my kinsman, live unbruised, and love my cousin.

Claud. I had well hoped, thou wouldst have denied Beatrice, that I might have cudgelled thee out of thy single life, to make thee a double dealer; which, out of question, thou wilt be, if my cousin do not look exceeding narrowly to
thee.

Bene. Come, come, we are friends:—let's have a dance ere we are married, that we may lighten our own hearts, and our wives' heels.

Leon. We'll have dancing afterwards.

Bene. First, o' my word; therefore, play,
music.—

Prince, thou art sad; get thee a wife, get thee
a wife: there is no staff more reverend than one tipped with horn.

Enter a MESSENGER.

Mess. My lord, your brother John is ta'en in flight,

And brought with armed men back to Messina.

Bene. Think not on him till to-morrow, I'll devise thee brave punishments for him.—Strike up, pipers. [Dance.]

[Exeunt.]

A MIDSUMMER-NIGHT'S DREAM.

PERSONS REPRESENTED.

OBBERON, King of the Fairies.
TITANIA, Queen of the Fairies.
PUCK, or Robin-goodfellow, a Fairy.
PEASBLOSSOM, COBWEB,
MOTH,
MUSTARDSEED, } Fairies.
PYRAMUS, THISBE,
WALL,
MOONSHINE, } Characters in the Interlude per-
LEON, } formed by the Clowns.
Other Fairies attending their King and Queen.
Attendants on Theseus and Hippolyta.
SCENE, Athens, and a Wood not far from it.

Thou, thou, Lysander, thou hast given her rhymes,
 And interchang'd love-tokens with my child:
 Thou hast by moon-light at her window sung,
 With feigning voice, verses of feigning love;
 And stol'n the impression of her fantasy
 With bracelets of thy hair, rings, gawds,* con-ceits, [gave
 Knacks, trifles, nosegays, sweetmeats; messen-
 Of strong prevailment in unhardn'd youth:
 With cunning hast thou filch'd my daughter's
 heart;
 Turn'd her obedience, which is due to me,
 To stubborn harshness:—And, my gracious
 duke,
 Be it so she will not here before your grace
 Consent to marry with Demetrius,
 I beg the ancient privilege of Athens;
 As she is mine, I may dispose of her:
 Which shall be either to this gentleman,
 Or to her death; according to our law,
 Immediately provided in that case.
 The. What say you, Hermia? be advis'd, fair
 maid:
 To you your father should be as a god;
 One that compos'd your beauties; yea, and one
 To whom you are but as a form in wax,
 By him imprinted, and within his power
 To leave the figure, or disfigure it.
 Demetrius is a worthy gentleman.
 Her. So is Lysander.
 The. In himself he is:
 But, in this kind, wanting your father's voice,
 The other must be held the worthier.
 Her. I would, my father look'd but with my
 eyes.
 The. Rather your eyes must with his judgment look.
 Her. I do entreat your grace to pardon me.
 I know not by what power I am made bold;
 Nor how it may concern my modesty.

* Jewels.

In such a presence here, to plead my thoughts :
But I beseech your grace that I may know
The worst that may befall me in this case,
If I refuse to wed Demetrius.

The. Either to die the death, or to abjure
For ever the society of men.
Therefore, fair Hermia, question your desires,
Know of your youth, examine well your blood,
Whether, if you yield not to your father's
You can endure the livery of a nun ; [choice,
For aye* to be in shady cloister mew'd,
To live a barren sister all your life,
Chanting faint hymns to the cold fruitless moon.
Thrice blessed they, that master so their blood,
To undergo such maiden pilgrimage :
But earthlier happy is the rose distill'd,
Than that, which, withering on the virgin thorn,
Grows, lives, and dies, in single blessedness.

Her. So will I grow, so live, so die, my lord,
Ere I will yield my virgin patent up
Unto his lordship, whose unwished yoke
My soul consents not to give sovereignty.

The. Take time to pause : and by the next new moon,
(The sealing-day betwixt my love and me,
For everlasting bond of fellowship,)
Upon that day either prepare to die,
For disobedience to your father's will ;
Or else, to wed Demetrius, as he would :
Or on Diana's altar to protest,
For aye, austerity and single life.

Dem. Relent, sweet Hermia ;—And, Lysander, yield
Thy crossed title to my certain right.

Lys. You have her father's love, Demetrius ;
Let me have Hermia's : do you marry him.

Ege. Scornful Lysander ! true, he hath my
love ;

And what is mine my love shall render him ;
And she is mine ; and all my right of her
I do estate unto Demetrius.

Lys. I am, my lord, as well deriv'd as he,
As well possess'd ; my love is more than his ;
My fortunes every way as fairly rank'd,
If not with vantage, as Demetrius' ;
And, which is more than all these boasts can be,
I am belov'd of beauteous Hermia :
Why should not I then prosecute my right ?
Demetrius, I'll avouch it to his head,
Made love to Nedar's daughter, Helena,
And won her soul ; and she, sweet lady, dotes,
Devoutly dotes, dotes in idolatry,
Upon this spotted† and inconstant man.

The. I must confess, that I have heard so much, [thereof ;
And with Demetrius thought to have spoke
But, being over-full of self-affairs,
My mind did lose it.—But, Demetrius, come ;
And come, Egeus ; you shall go with me.
I have some private schooling for you both.—
For you fair Hermia, look you arm yourself
To fit your fancies to your father's will ;
Or else the law of Athens yield you up
(Which by no means we may extenuate,)
To death, or to a vow of single life.—

Come, my Hippolyta ; What cheer, my love ?—
Demetrius, and Egeus, go along :
I must employ you in some business
Against our nuptial ; and confer with you
Of something nearly that concerns yourselves.

Ege. With duty, and desire we follow you.
[Exeunt THEA. HIP. EGE. DEM. and train.

Lys. How now, my love ? Why is your cheek
so pale ?

How chance the roses there do fade so fast ?

Her. Belike for want of rain ; which I could
well

Beteech them* from the tempest of mine eyes.

Lys. Ah me ! for aught that ever I could read,
Could ever hear by tale or history,
The course of true love never did run smooth :
But, either it was different in blood ;

Her. O cross ! too high to be enthrall'd to low !

Lys. Or else misgraffed, in respect of years ;

Her. O spite ! too old to be engag'd to young !

Lys. Or else it stood upon the choice of
friends :

Her. O hell ! to choose love by another's eye ?

Lys. Or, if there were a sympathy in choice,
War, death, or sickness did lay siege to it ;
Making it momentary† as a sound,
Swift as a shadow, short as any dream ;
Brief as the lightning in the collied‡ night,
That, in a spleen, unfolds both heaven and
earth,

And ere a man hath power to say,—Behold !
The jaws of darkness do devour it up :
So quick bright things come to confusion.

Her. If then true lovers have been ever cross'd,
It stands as an edict in destiny :
Then let us teach our trial patience,
Because it is a customary cross ; [sighs,
As due to love, as thoughts, and dreams, and Wishes, and tears, poor fancy's§ followers.

Lys. A good persuasion ; therefore, hear me, Hermia.

I have a widow aunt, a dowager
Of great revenue, and she hath no child :
From Athens is her house remote seven
leagues ;

And she respects me as her only son.
There, gentle Hermia, may I marry thee ;
And to that place the sharp Athenian law
Cannot pursue us : If thou lov'st me then,
Steal forth thy father's house to-morrow night ;
And in the wood, a league without the town,
Where I did meet thee once with Helena,
To do observance to a morn of May,
There will I stay for thee.

Her. My good Lysander !
I swear to thee, by Cupid's strongest bow ;
By his best arrow with the golden head ;
By the simplicity of Venus' doves ; [loves ;
By that which knitteth souls, and prospers
And by that fire which burn'd the Carthage
queen,

When the false Trojan under sail was seen ;
By all the vows that ever men have broke,
In number more than ever woman spoke ;—
In that same place thou hast appointed me,
To-morrow truly will I meet with thee.

Lys. Keep promise, love : Look, here comes Helena.

Enter HELENA.

Her. God speed fair Helena ! Whither away ?

Hel. Call you me fair ? that fair again unsay.
Demetrius loves your fair : O happy fair !
Your eyes are lode-stars ;|| and your tongue's
sweet air.

More tuneable than lark to shepherd's ear,
When wheat is green, when hawthorn buds
appear.

Sickness is catching ; O, were favour¶ so !
Yours would I catch, fair Hermia, ere I go ;
My ear should catch your voice, my eye your eye, [melody.

My tongue should catch your tongue's sweet
Were the world mine, Demetrius being bated,

* Ever.

† Wicked.

* Give, bestow.

† Momentary.

‡ Black.

§ Loves.

|| Pole-stars.

¶ Countenance.

translated.
 with what art
 us' heart.
 loves me still.
 ould teach my
 gives me love.
 such affection
 he follows me.
 he hateth me.
 fault of mine.
 Would that more shall see is place,—
 see,
 me:
 do dwell,
 to hell I
 we will unfold:
 with behold
 lass,
 dedil grass,
 still conceal,
 devis'd to steal.
 ere often you
 went to lie,
 ounsel sweet:
 shall meet
 way our eyes,
 er companies.
 y thou for us,
 metrius!
 starve our sight
 deep midnight.
 I rit HERMIA.
 ena adieu:
 en you!
 rit LYSANDER.
 other some can
 is fair as she.
 nks not so;
 he do know.
 na's eyes,
 e quantity,
 dignity.
 but with the
 painted blind:
 gement taste;
 heedly haste:
 a child,
 gail'd.
 elves forswear,
 where:
 erma's cyne,
 was only mine;
 m Hermia felt,
 eaths did melt.
 a's flight:
 arrow night,
 gence
 pense.
 pain.
 k again. [Exit.
 m in a Cottage.
 NOUT, QUINCE,
 e?

Bot. You were best to call them generally,
 man by man, according to the scrip.
 Quin. Here is the scroll of every man's name, which is thought fit, through all Athens, to play in our interlude before the duke and duchess, on his wedding-day at night.
 Bot. First, good Peter Quince, say what the play treats on; then read the names of the actors, and so grow to a point.
 Quin. Marry, our play is—The most lamentable comedy, and most cruel death of Pyra-mus and Thisby.
 Bot. A very good piece of work, I assure you, and a merry.—Now, good Peter Quince,
 call forth your actors by the scrull: Masters,
 spread yourselves.
 Quin. Answer as I call you.—Nick Bottom,
 the weaver.
 Bot. Rendy: Name what part I am for, and proceed.
 Quin. You, Nick Bottom, are set down for Pyramus.
 Bot. What is Pyramus? a lover, or a tyrant?
 Quin. A lover, that kills himself most gallantly for love.
 Bot. That will ask some tears in the true performing of it: If I do it, let the audience look to their eyes; I will move storms, I will condole in some measure. To the rest:—Yet my chief humour is for a tyrant: I could play Hercules rarely, or a part to tear a cat in, to make all split.
 "The raging rocks,
 "With shivering shocks,
 "Shall break the locks
 "Of prison-gates:
 "And Phibbus' ear
 "Shall shine from far,
 "And make and mar
 "The foolish fates."
 This was lofty!—Now name the rest of the players.—This is Hercules' vein, a tyrant's vein;
 a lover is more condoling.
 Quin. Francis Flute, the bellows-mender.
 Flu. Here, Peter Quince.
 Quin. You must take Thisby on you.
 Flu. What is Thisby? a wandering knight?
 Quin. It is the lady that Pyramus must love.
 Flu. Nay, faith, let me not play a woman;
 I have a beard coming.
 Quin. That's all one; you shall play it in a mask, and you may speak as small as you
 will.
 Bot. An I may hide my face, let me play Thisby too: I'll speak in a monstrous little voice,—Thune, Thune,—Ah, Pyramus, my lover dear; thy Thisby dear! and lady dear!
 Quin. No, no; you must play Pyramus, and,
 Flute, you Thisby.
 Bot. Well, proceed.
 Quin. Robin Starveling, the tailor.
 Star. Here, Peter Quince.
 Quin. Robin Starveling, you must play
 Thisby's mother.—Tom Snout, the tinker.
 Snout. Here, Peter Quince.
 Quin. You, Pyramus' father; myself, Thisby's father;—Snug, the joiner, you, the lion's part—and, I hope, here is a play fitted.
 Snug. Have you the lion's part written?
 pray you, if it be, give it me, for I am slow of study.
 Quin. You may do it extempore, for it is nothing but roaring.
 Bot. Let me play the lion too: I will roar, that I will do any man's heart good to hear me, I will roar, that I will make the duke say,
Let him roar again, Let him roar again.

Quin. As you should do it too terribly, you would fright the duchess and the ladies, that they would shriek. and that were enough to hang us all.

All. That would hang us every mother's son.

But I grant you, friends, if that you should fright the ladies out of their wits, they would have no more discretion but to hang us: but I will aggravate my voice so, that I will roar you as gently as any sucking dove; I will roar you an' 'twere any nightingale.

Quin. You can play no part but Pyramus: for Pyramus is a sweet-faced man; a proper man, as one shall see in a summer's day; a most lovely, gentleman-like man; therefore you must needs play Pyramus.

But. Well, I will undertake it. What beard were I best to play it in?

Quin. Why, what you will.

But. I will discharge it in either your straw-coloured beard, your orange-tawny beard, your purple-in-grain beard, or your French-crown-colour beard, your perfect yellow.

Quin. Some of your French crowns have no hair at all, and then you will play bare-faced. — But, masters, here are your parts: and I am to entreat you, request you, and desire you, to use them by to-morrow night, and meet me in the palace wood, a mile without the town, by moon-light, there will we rehearse: for if we meet in the city, we shall be dog'd with company, and our devices known. In the mean time I will draw a bill of properties,† such as our play wants. I pray you, fail me not.

But. We will meet; and there we may rehearse more obscenely, and courageously. Take pains; be perfect; adieu.

Quin. At the duke's oak we meet.

But. Enough; Hold, or cut bow-strings.‡

[Exeunt.

ACT II.

SCENE I.—A Wood near Athens.

Enter a FAIRY at one door, and PUCK at another

Puck. How now, spirit! whither wander you?

Fai. Over hill, over dale,

Thorough bush, thorough brier,

Over park, over pale,

Thorough flood, thorough fire,

I do wander every where,

Swifter than the moon's sphere;

And I serve the fairy queen,

To dew her orbs upon the green:

The cowslips tall her pensioners be;

In their gold coats spots you see;

Those be rubbies, fairy favours,

In those freckles live their savours:

I must go seek some dew-drops here,

And hang a pearl in every cowslip's ear.

Farewell, thou lovest of spirits, I'll be gone;

Our queen and all our elves come here anon.

Puck. The king doth keep his revels here

to-night;

Take heed, the queen come not within his sight.

For Oberon is passing fell and wrath,

Because that she, as her attendant, hath

A lovely boy, stol'n from an Indian king;

She never had so sweet a changeling:

And jealous Oberon would have the child

Knight of his train, to trace the forests wild:

But she, perforce, withholds the loved boy,

Crowns him with flowers, and makes him all

her joy:

And now they never meet in grove, or green,

* As if † Articles required in performing a play.

‡ At all events. § Curious. || A term of contempt.

By fountain clear, or spangled star-light sheen,*
But they do square;† that all their elves, for
fear,

Creep into acorn cups, and hide them there.

Fai. Either I mistake your shape and making
quite,

Or else you are that shrewd and knavish sprite, Call'd Robin Good-fellow: are you not he,

That fright the maidens of the villagery;

Skim milk; and sometimes labour in the quern;‡

And bootless make the breathless housewife

churn;§

And sometime make the drink to bear no

Mislead night-wanderers, laughing at their harm?¶

Those that Hobgoblin call you, and sweet Puck,

You do their work, and they shall have good luck:

Are not you he?

Puck. Thou speak'st aright;

I am that merry wanderer of the night.

I jest to Oberon, and make him smile,

When I a fat and bean-fed horse beguile,

Neighing in likeness of a filly foal;

And sometime lurk I in a gossip's bowl,

In very likeness of a roasted crab,||

And, when she drinks, against her lips I bob,

And on her wither'd dew-lap pour the ale.

The wisest aunt, telling the saddest tale,

Sometime for three-foot stool mistaketh me;

Then slip I from her bum, down topples she,

And tumbles cries, and falls into a cough;

And then the whole quire hold their hips, and

loffe;

And waxen in their mirth, and neeze, and swear

A merrier hour was never wasted there.—

But room, Fairy, here comes Oberon.

Fai. And here my mistress:—'Would that he were gone!

SCENE II.

Enter OBERON, at one door, with his train, and TITANIA, at another, with hers.

Obe. I'll meet by moon-light, proud Titania.
Tita. What, jealous Oberon? Fairy, skip
hence;

I have forsworn his bed and company.

Obe. Tarry, rash wanton; Am not I thy lord?

Tita. Then I must be thy lady: But I know

When thou hast stol'n away from fairy land,

And in the shape of Corin sat all day,

Playing on pipes of corn, and versing love

To amorous Phillida. Why art thou here,

Come from the farthest steep of India?

But that, forsooth, the bouncing Amazon,

Your buskin'd mistress, and your warrior love,

To Theseus must be wedded; and you come

To give their bed joy and prosperity.

Obe. How canst thou thus, for shame, Tita-

Glance at my credit with Hippolyta, ¶

Knowing I know thy love to Theseus?

Didst thou not lead him through the glimmer-

ing night

From Perigenia, whom he ravished?

And make him with fair Egle break his faith,

With Ariadne, and Antiopa?

Tita. These are the forgeries of jealousy:

And never, since the middle summer's spring,

Met we on hill, in dale, forest, or mead,

By paved fountain, or by rushy brook,

Or on the beached margin of the sea,

To dance our ringlets to the whistling wind,

But with thy brawls thou hast disturb'd our sport.

Therefore the winds, piping to us in vain,

As in revenge, have suck'd up from the sea

* Shining. † Quarrel. ‡ Mill. § Yeast. || Wild apple

THE SUMMER-NIGHT'S DREAM.

[ACT II

in the land,
so proud,
continents :
his yoke in vain,
and the green

in'd a beard :
owned field,
merrain flock ;
up with mud ;
anton green,
ruishable :
winter here ;
parot blest :—
ess of floods,
he air,
ound :
ire, we see
ed frosts
son rose ;
y crown,
ummer buds
ng, the summer,
inter, change
'mazed world,
s not which is

comes ention ;
al.
t lies in you :
Oberon ?
boy,

ld of me.
y order :
by night,
my side ;
yellow sands,
on the flood ;
e sails conceive,
e wanton wind :
swimming gait,
with my young

the land,
again,
rchandise.
oy did die ;
her boy :
rt with him.
ood intend you

seus' wedding-

our round,
go with us ;
are your haunts.
I will go with Fairies, away :

longer stay.
a, and her train.
n shalt not from

ry—

ou remember'st
tory,
lphin's back,
onious breath,
her song ;
m their spheres,
contain them.

onably.

To hear the sea-maid's music.

Puck. I remember.

Obe. That very time I saw, (but thou could'st not,)

Flying between the cold moon and the earth,
Cupid all arm'd : a certain aim he took
At a fair vestal, throned by the west ;
And loos'd his love-shaft smartly from his bow,
As it should pierce a hundred thousand hearts :
But I might see young Cupid's fiery shaft
Quench'd in the chaste beams of the wat'ry

moon ;
And the imperial vot'reas passed on,
In maiden meditation, fancy-free.*
Yet mark'd I where the bolt of Cupid fell :
It fell upon a little western flower.—
Before, milk-white ; now purple with love's

wound,—
And maidens call it, love-in-idleness.
Fetch me that flower ; the herb I show'd thee
once :

The juice of it on sleeping eye-lids laid,
Will make or man or woman madly dote
Upon the next live creature that it sees.
Fetch me this herb : and be thou here again,
Ere the leviathan can swim a league.

Puck. I'll put a girdle round about the earth
In forty minutes. [Exit Puck.]

Obe. Having once this juice,
I'll watch Titania when she is asleep,
And drop the liquor of it in her eyes :
The next thing then she waking looks upon,
(Be it on lion, bear, or wolf, or bull,
On meddling monkey, or on busy ape,)
She shall pursue it with the soul of love.
And ere I take this charm off from her sight,
(As I can take it, with another herb,)
I'll make her render up her page to me.
But who comes here ? I am invisible ;
And I will over-hear their conference.

Enter DEMETRIUS, HELENA following him.

Dem. I love thee not, therefore pursue me not.
Where is Lysander, and fair Hermia ?
The one I'll slay, the other slayeth me.
Thou told'st me, they were stol'n into this wood,
And here am I, and wood'd within this wood,
Because I cannot meet with Hermia.

Hence, get thee gone, and follow me no more.

Hel. You draw me, you hard-hearted ad-
mant ;

But yet you draw not iron, for my heart
Is true as steel : Leave you your power to draw,
And I shall have no power to follow you.

Dem. Do I entice you ? Do I speak you fair ?
Or, rather, do I not in plainest truth
Tell you—I do not, nor I cannot love you ?

Hel. And even for that do I love you the
I am your spaniel ; and, Demetrius, {more.
The more you beat me, I will fawn on you :
Use me but as your spaniel, spurn me, strike

me,
Neglect me, lose me ; only give me leave,
Unworthy as I am, to follow you.

What worse place can I beg in your love,
(And yet a place of high respect with me,)
Than to be used as you use your dog ?

Dem. Tempt not too much the hatred of my
spirit ;

For I am sick, when I do look on thee.
Hel. And I am sick, when I look not on you.

Dem. You do impeach your modesty too much,
To leave the city, and commit yourself
Into the hands of one that loves you not ;
To trust the opportunity of night,

* Exempt from love. † Mad, saying.

‡ Bring in question.

And the ill counsel of a desert place,
With the rich worth of your virginity.

Hel. Your virtue is my privilege for that.
It is not night, when I do see your face,
Therefore I think I am not in the night:
Nor doth this wood lack worlds of company;
For you, in my respect, are all the world:
Then how can it be said, I am alone,
When all the world is here to look on me?

Dem. I'll run from thee, and hide me in the brakes,
And leave thee to the mercy of wild beasts.

Hel. The wildest hath not such a heart as
you.

Run when you will, the story shall be chang'd;
Apollo flies, and Daphne holds the chase;
The dove pursues the griffin; the mild hind
Makes speed to catch the tiger: Bootless speed!
When cowardice pursues, and valour flies.

Dem. I will not stay thy questions; let me
Or, if thou follow me, do not believe [go:
But I shall do thee mischief in the wood.

Hel. Ay, in the temple, in the town, the field,
You do me mischief. Pis. Demetrius!
Your wrongs do set a scandal on my sex:
We cannot fight for love, as men may do;
We should he woo'd, and were not made to woo.
I'll follow thee, and make a heaven of hell,
To die upon* the hand I love so well.

[Exeunt DEM. and HEL.

Ob. Fare thee well, nymph: ere he do leave this grove,
Thou shalt fly him, and he shall seek thy love.—

Re-enter PUCK.

Hast thou the flower there? Welcome, wanderer.

Puck. Ay, there it is.

Ob. I pray thee, give it me.

I know a bank whereon the wild thyme blows,
Where ox-lip† and the nodding violet grows;
Quite over-canopied with lush‡ woodbine,
With sweet musk-roses, and with eglantine:
There sleeps Titania, some time of the night,
Lull'd in these flowers with dances and delight;
And there the snake throws her enamell'd skin,
Weed wide enough to wrap a fairy in:
And with the juice of this I'll streak her eyes,
And make her full of hateful fantasies.
Take thou some of it, and seek through this
A sweet Athenian lady is in love [grove:
With a disdainful youth: anoint his eyes;
But do it, when the next thing he espies.
May be the lady: Thou shalt know the man
By the Athenian garments he hath on.
Effect it with some care; that he may prove
More fond on her, than she upon her love:
And look thou meet me ere the first cock crow.

Puck. Fear not, my lord, your servant shall do so. [Exeunt.

SCENE III.

Another part of the Wood.

Enter TITANIA, with her train.

Tita. Come, now a roundel,§ and a fairy song;
Then, for the third part of a minute, hence;
Some, to kill cankers in the musk-rose buds;
Some, war with rear-mice¶ for their leathern
wings,
To make my small elves coats; and some, keep
back
The clamorous owl, that nightly hoots, and wonders
At our quaint spirits:¶ Sing me now asleep;
Then to your offices, and let me rest.

* By. † The greater cowslip. ‡ Vigorous.
§ A kind of dance. ¶ Bats. ¶ Sports.

SONG.

1 Fai. You spotted snakes, with double tongue,
Thorny hedge-hogs, be not seen;
Newts,* and blind-worms,† do no wrong;
Come not near our fairy queen:

CHORUS.

*Philomel, with melody,
Sing in our sweet lullaby;
Lulla, lulla, lullaby; lulla, lulla, lullaby:
Never harm, nor spell nor charm,
Come our lovely lady nigh:
So, good night, with lullaby.*

II.

2 Fai. Weaving spiders, come not here;
Hence, you long-legg'd spinners hence:
Cottles black, approach not near;
Worm, nor snail, do no offence.

CHORUS.

Philomel, with melody, &c.

1 Fai. Hence, away; now all is well:
One, aloof, stand sentinel.

[Exeunt Fairies.—TITANIA sleeps

Enter OBERON.

Ob. What thou seest, when thou dost wake,
[Squeezes the flower on TITANIA's eye-lids.
Do it for thy true love's sake;
Love, and languish for his sake:
Be it ounce,‡ or cat, or bear,
Pard, or boar with bristled hair,
In thy eye that shall appear
When thou wak'st, it is thy dear;
Wake, when some vile thing is near. } Exit.

Enter LYSANDER and HERMIA.

Lys. Fair love, you faint with wandering in the wood;
And to speak troth, I have forgot our way;
We'll rest us, Hermia, if you think it good,
And tarry for the comfort of the day.
Her. Be it so, Lysander: find you out a bed,
For I upon this bank will rest my head.
Lys. One turf shall serve as pillow for us
both;
One heart, one bed, two bosoms, and one troth.
Her. Nay, good Lysander; for my sake, my
dear,
Lie further off yet, do not lie so near.

Lys. O, take the sense, sweet, of my innocence;
Love take the meaning, in love's conference.
I mean, that my heart unto yours is knit;
So that but one heart we can make of it:
Two bosoms interchained with an oath;
So then, two bosoms, and a single troth.
Then, by your side no bed-room me deny;
For, lying so, Hermia, I do not lie.

Her. Lysander riddles very prettily:—
Now much beshrew my manners and my pride,
If Hermia meant to say, Lysander lied.
But, gentle friend, for love and courtesy
Lie further off; in human modesty
Such separation, as, may well be said,
Becomes a virtuous bachelor and a maid:
So far be distant; and good night, sweet friend:
Thy love ne'er alter, till thy sweet life end!

Lys. Amen, amen, to that fair prayer, say I;
And then end life, when I end loyalty!
Here is my bed: Sleep give thee all his rest!

Her. With half that wish the wisher's eyes be press'd! [They sleep.

* Efts. † Slow-worms. ‡ The small tiger

I gone,
gone,
approve riring love.
is here?
wear:
and,
maid:
sleeping sound,
ground.
not lie
courtesy.
throw doth owe:
love forbid
did.
one;
ron. [Exit,
a, running.
me, sweet De-
d do not haunt leave me? do
one will go.
at DEMETRIUS.
his fond chase!
is my grace.
she lies,
live eyes.
Not with salt
d than hers.
ay for fear:
metrius
thus.
lass of mine
rma's sphery
n the ground!
no wound.—
awake.
I will, for thy [Waking.
ere shows art,
a see thy heart.
t a word
ny sword!
say not so:
hermia? Lord,
en be content.
No: I do repeat
have spent.
or a dove?
away'd;
rtner maid.
n their season:
not to reason;
human skill,
my will,
ere I o'ertook;
chest book.
een mockery
erve this scorn?
young man,
can,
ectrius' eye,
ncy?

† In the dark.

Good troth, you do me wrong, good sooth, you
In such disdainful manner me to woo. [da.
But fare you well: perforce I must confess,
I thought you lord of more true gentleness.
O, that a lady, of one man refus'd,
Should, of another, therefore be abus'd! [Exit.

Lys. She sees not Hermia:—Hermia, sleep
thou there;

And never may'st thou come Lysander near!
For, as a surfeit of the sweetest things
The deepest loathing to the stomach brings;
Or, as the heresies, that men do leave,
Are hated most of those they did deceive;
So thou, my surfeit, and my heresy,
Of all be hated; but the most of me!
And all my powers, address your love and might,

To honour Helen, and to be her knight! [Exit.

Her. [starting.] Help me, Lysander, help me! do thy best,

To pluck this crawling serpent from my breast!
Ah me, for pity!—what a dream was here?
Lysander, look, how I do quake with fear:
Methought a serpent eat my heart away,
And you sat smiling at his cruel prey:—
Lysander! what, remov'd? Lysander! lord!
What, out of hearing? gone? no sound, no
word?

Alack, where are you? speak, as if you hear;
Speak, of all loves;* I swoon almost with fear.
No!—then I well perceive you are not nigh:
Either death, or you, I'll find immediately. [Exit.

ACT. III.

SCENE I.—The same.—The Queen of Fairies
lying asleep.

Enter QUINCE, SNUG, BOTTOM, FLUTE, SNOUT,
and STARVELLING.

Bot. Are we all met?

Quin. Pat, pat; and here's a marvellous convenient place for our rehearsal: This green plot shall be our stage, this hawthorn brake
our tying-house; and we will do it in action,
as we will do it before the duke.

Bot. Peter Quince.—

Quin. What say'st thou, bully Bottom?

Bot. There are things in this comedy of Pyramus and Thisby, that will never please.
First, Pyramus must draw his sword to kill himself; which the ladies cannot abide. How answer you that?

Snout. By'rlinkin,† a parlous† fear.

Star. I believe, we must leave the killing out, when all is done.

Bot. Not a whit: I have a device to make all well. Write me a prologue: and let the prologue seem to say, we will do no harm with our swords; and that Pyramus is not killed
indeed: and, for the more better assurance,
tell them, that I Pyramus am not Pyramus,
but Bottom the weaver: This will put them out of fear.

Quin. Well, we will have such a prologue;
and it shall be written in eight and six.—

Bot. No, make it two more; let it be written in eight and eight.

Snout. Will not the ladies be afeard of the lion?

Star. I fear it, I promise you.

Bot. Masters, you ought to consider with yourselves: to bring in, God shield us! a lion among ladies, is a most dreadful thing; for there is not a more fearful wild-fowl than

* By all that is dear.
† Dangerous.

† By our ladykin.
‡ Terrible.

your lion, singing; and we ought to look to it.
Snout. Therefore, another prologue must tell, he is not a lion.

Bot. Nay, you must name his name, and half his face must be seen through the lion's neck; and he himself must speak through, saying thus, or to the same defect,—Ladies, or fair ladies, I would wish you, or, I would request you, or, I would entreat you, not to fear, not to tremble, my life for yours. If you think I come hither as a lion, it were pity of my life: No, I am no such thing; I am a man as other men are:—and there, indeed, let him name his name; and tell them plainly, he is Snug the joiner.

Quin. Well, it shall be so. But there is two hard things; that is, to bring the moon-light into a chamber: for you know, Pyramus and Thisby meet by moon-light.

Song. Doth the moon shine, that night we play our play?

Bot. A calendar, a calendar! look in the shewcase; find out moon-shine, find out moon-shine.

Quin. Yes, it doth shine that night.

Bot. Why, then you may leave a casement of the great chamber window, where we play, open; and the moon may shine in at the casement.

Quin. Ay; or else one must come in with a bush of thorns and a lantern, and say, he comes to disfigure, or to present, the person of moon-shine. Then, there is another thing: we must have a wall in the great chamber; for Pyramus and Thisby, says the story, did talk through the chinks of a wall.

Song. You never can bring in a wall.—What say you, Bottom?

Bot. Some man or other must present wall: and let him have some plaster, or some lome, or some rough-cast about him, to signify wall, or let him hold his fingers thus, and through that cranny shall Pyramus and Thisby whisper.

Quin. If that may be, then all is well. Come, sit down, every mother's son, and rehearse your parts. Pyramus, you begin: when you have spoken your speech, enter into that brake* and so every one according to his cue.

Enter Puck behind.

Puck. What hempen home-spuns have we swaggering here,

So near the cradle of the fairy queen?

What, a play toward? I'll be an auditor;

An actor too, perhaps, if I see cause.

Quin. Speak, Pyramus:—Thisby, stand forth.

Pyr. Thisby, the flowers of odious savours sweet,—

Quin. Odours, odours.

Pyr. — odours savours sweet:

So doth thy breath, my dearest Thisby dear.—

Bot. hark, a voice! stay thou but here a while,

And by and by I will to thee appear. [Exit.

Puck. A stranger Pyramus than e'er play'd here! [Aside.—Exit.

This. Must I speak now?

Quin. Ay, marry, must you: for you must understand, he goes but to see a noise that he heard, and is to come again.

This. Most radiant Pyramus, most lily-white of hue,

Of colour like the red rose on triumphant brier,
 Most briny jewel,† and the most lovely Jew,

* Thicket

† Young man.

As true as trust hares, that yet would never I'll meet thee, Pyramus, at Ninus' tomb. [Sire,
Quin. Ninus' tomb, man: Why you must not speak that yet; that you answer to Pyramus: you speak all your part at once, once* and all.—Pyramus enter; your one is past; it is, never fire.

Re-enter Puck, and Bottom with an ass' head.

This. O,—As true as trust hares, that yet would never fire.

Pyr. If I were fair, Thisby, I were only thine:—

Quin. O monstrous! O strange! we are Pray, masters! Sy, masters! help! [haunted.

[Exeunt Clowns]

Puck. I'll follow you, I'll lead you about a round,

Through bog, through bush, through brake,

Sometime a horse I'll be, sometimes a hound,

A hog, a headless bear, sometime a fire;

And neigh, and bark, and grunt, and roar

and burn,

Like horse, hound, hog, bear, fire, at ever

turn. [Exit]

Bot. Why do they run away? this is a knavery of them, to make me afraid.†

Re-enter SNOOT.

Snout. O Bottom, thou art changed! what do I see on thee?

Bot. What do you see? you see an ass' head of your own; Do you?

Re-enter QUINCE.

Quin. Bless thee, Bottom! bless thee! thou art translated [Exit.

Bot. I see their knavery: this is to make an ass of me; to fright me, if they could. But I will not stir from this place, do what they can: I will walk up and down here, and I will sing, that they shall hear I am not afraid. [Sings.

The ouzel-cock, so black of hue,

With orange-tawny bill,

The thrortle with his note so true,

The wren with little quill;

Tita. What angel wakes me from my flowery bed? [Waking]

Bot. The finch, the sparrow, and the lark,
 The plain-song cuckoo† gray,
 Whose note full many a man doth mark,
 And dures not answer, nay;—

for, indeed, who would set his wit to so foolish a bird? who would give a bird the lie, though he cry, cuckoo, never so?

Tita. I pray thee, gentle mortal, sing again. Mine ear is much enamour'd of thy note, So is mine eye enthralled to thy shape; [me, And thy fair virtue's force perforce doth move On the first view, to say, to swear, I love thee.

Bot. Methinks, mistress, you should have little reason for that: And yet, to say the truth, reason and love keep little company together now-a-days: The more the pity, that some honest neighbours will not make them friends. Nay, I can gleeke upon occasion.

Tita. Thou art as wise as thou art beautiful.

Bot. Not so, neither: but if I had wit enough to get out of this wood, I have enough to serve mine own turn.

Tita. Out of this wood do not desire to go,

* The last words of the preceding speech, which serve as a hint to him who is to speak next.

† Afraid.

‡ The Cuckoo with his uniform note.

§ Joke.

er thou wilt or
ate; [no.
n my state,
go with me;
u thee;
s from the deep:
ed flowers dost
asness so,
rit go.—
and Mustard-

to this gentle-
in his eyes;
ewberries,
nd mulberries;
humble-bees,
waxen thighs,
worm's eyes,
arise,
ted butterflies,
s sleeping eyes:
courtesies.

oy, heartily.—

re acquaintance ut my finger, I er name, honest

me to mistress
aster Peasood, eas-blossom, I aintance too.—

ed, I know your rdly, giant-like a gentleman of r kindred hath
I desire you
Mustard-seed.
lead him to my [eye;
with a watery
ry little flower,
stity.
ng him silently.
[Exeunt.

of the Wood.

awak'd;
ne in her eye,
emity.

ow now, mad

this haunted

ster is in love.

Near to her close and consecrated bower,
While she was in her dull and sleeping hour,
A crew of patches* rude mechanicals,
That work for bread upon Athenian stalls,
Were met together to rehearse a play,
Intended for great Theseus' nuptial day.
The shallowest thick-skin of that barren sort,
Who Pyramus presented, in their sport
Forsook his scene, and enter'd in a brake:
When I did him at this advantage take,
An ass' now! I fixed on his head;
Anon, his Thisbe must be answered,
And forth my mimick comes: When they him
spy,

As wild geese that the creeping fowler eye,
Or russet-pated choughs, many in sort,
Rising and cawing at the gun's report
Sever themselves, and madly sweep the sky;
So, at his sight, away his fellows fly:
And, at our stamp, here o'er and o'er one falls;
He murder cries, and help from Athens calls.
Their sense, thus weak, lost with their fears,
thus strong,

Made senseless things begin to do them wrong:
For briars and thorns at their apparel snatch;
Some, sleeves; some, hats: from yielders all things catch.

I led them on in this distracted fear,
And left sweet Pyramus translated there:
When in that moment (so it came to pass,)
Titania wak'd, and straightway lov'd an ass.

Obe. This falls out better than I could devise.
But hast thou yet latch'd the Athenian's eyes
With the love-juice, as I did bid thee do?

Puck. I took him sleeping,—that is finish'd too.—

And the Athenian woman by his side; [ey'd.
That, when he wak'd, of force she must be

Enter DEMETRIUS and HERMIA.

Obe. Stand close; this is the same Athenian.

Puck. This is the woman, but not this the
man.

Dem. O, why rebuke you him that loves you
Lay breath so bitter on your bitter foe. [sof

Her. Now I but chide, but I should use thee
worse;

For thou, I fear, hast given me cause to curse.
If thou hast slain Lysander in his sleep,
Being o'er shoes in blood, plunge in the deep,
And kill me too.

The sun was not so true unto the day,
As he to me: Would he have stol'n away
From sleeping Hermia? I'll believe as soon,
This whole earth may be bor'd; and that the moon

May through the center creep, and so displease
Her brother's noon-tide with the Antipodes.
It cannot be, but thou hast murder'd him;
So should a murderer look; so dead, so grim.

Dem. So should the murder'd look; and so should I, [cruelty:

Pierc'd through the heart with your stern
Yet you, the murderer, look as bright, as clear,
As yonder Venus in her glimmering sphere.

Her. What's this to my Lysander? where is
he?

Ah, good Demetrius, wilt thou give him me?

Dem. I had rather give his carcass to my hounds.

Her. Out, dog! out, cur! thou driv'st me past the bounds [then?

Of maiden's patience. Hast thou slain him
Henceforth be never number'd among men!

* Simple fellows.
† Ass.

‡ Fluid company.
§ Infected.

Thou wilt tell true, tell true, even for my sake;
Durst thou have look'd upon him, being awake,
And hast thou kill'd him sleeping? O brave touch!

Should not a worm, an adder, do so much?
An adder did it; for with doubler tongue
Than thine, thou serpent, never adder stung.

Dem. You spend your passion on a mispris'd
I am not guilty of Lysander's blood, (mood:
He is be dead, for aught that I can tell.

Her. I pray thee, tell me then that he is well.

Dem. And if I could, what should I get therefore?

Her. A privilege, never to see me more,—
And from thy hated presence part I so:
Be me no more, whether he be dead or no.

Dem. There is no following her in this fierce vile:

him, therefore, for a while I will remain.
Lysander's heaviness doth heavier grow
For that that bankrupt sleep doth sorrow owe;
Which now, in some slight measure it will pay,
For his tender here I make some stay.

Obt. What hast thou done? thou hast mistaken quite, (sight:
And laid the love-juice on some true-love's

If thy misprision must perforce ensue (true-
Love true-love turn'd, and not a false turn'd

Puck. Then fate o'er-rules; that, one man holding truth,
A million fold, commanding oath on oath.

Obt. About the wood go swifter than the last Helena of Athens look thou see: (wind,
All fancy-sick; she is, and pale of cheek,
With signs of love, that cost the fresh blood
dear:

By some illusion see thou bring her here;
I'll charm his eyes, against she do appear.

Puck. I go, I go; look, how I go;
Swifter than arrow from the Tartar's bow.

Obt. Flower of this purple die,
Hit with Cupid's archery,
Sink in apple of his eye!
When his love he doth espy,
Let her shine as gloriously
As the Venus of the sky,—
When thou wak'st, if she be by,
Beg of her for remedy.

Re-enter Puck.

Puck. Captain of our fairy band,
Helena is here at hand;
And the youth, mistook by me,
Pleading for a lover's fee;
Shall we their fond pageant see?
Lord, what fools these mortals be!

Obt. Stand aside: the noise they make,
Will cause Demetrius to awake.

Puck. Then will two at once, woo one;
That must needs be sport alone;
And those things do best please me,
That best please preposterously.

Enter LYSANDER and HELENA.

Lys. Why should you think, that I should woo in scorn?

Scorn and derision never come in tears:
Look, when I vow, I weep; and vows so born,
In their nativity all truth appears.
How can these things in me seem scorn to you,
Bearing the badge of faith, to prove them true?

* Vexat.
; Love-sick.

† Mistaken.
‡ Countenance.

Hel. You do advance your cunning more and
more.

When truth kills truth, O devilish holy day.
These vows are Hermia's; Will you give her o'er?

Weigh oath with oath, and you will nothing
Your vows, to her and me, put in two scales,
Will even weigh; and both as light as tales.

Lys. I had no judgment, when to her I swore.

Hel. Nor none, in my mind, now you give her o'er.

Lys. Demetrius loves her, and he loves not
you.

Dem. (Asking.) O Helen, goddess, nymph, perfect, divine!

To what, my love, shall I compare thine eyes?
Crystal is madd'ry. O, how ripe in show
Thy lips, those kissing cherries, tempting grow!
That pure congested white, high Taurus' snow,
Fus'd with the eastern wind, turns to a crow,
When thou hold'st up thy hand: O let me kiss
This princess of pure white, this seal of bliss!

Hel. O spite! O hell! I see you all are bent
To set against me, for your marriage.

If you were civil, and knew courtesy,
You would not do me thus much injury.
Can you not hate me, as I know you do,
But you must join in souls, to mock me too?

If you were men, as men you are in show,
You would not use a gentle lady so;
To vow, and swear, and superstrate my parts,
When, I am sure, you hate me with your hearts.

You both are rivals, and love Hermia;
And now both rivals, to mock Helena:
A trim exploit, a manly enterprise,
To conjure tears up in a poor maid's eyes,
With your derision! none, of noble sort,
Would so offend a virgin; and extort
A poor soul's patience, all to make you sport.

Lys. You are unkind, Demetrius; be not so;
For you love Hermia; this, you know, I know;
And here, with all good will, with all my heart,
In Hermia's love I yield you up my part;

And yours of Helena to me bequeath,
Whom I do love, and will do to my death.

Hel. Never did mockers waste more idle breath.

Dem. Lysander, keep thy Hermia; I will
If e'er I lov'd her, all that love is gone. (none:
My heart with her but, as guest-wise, sojourn'd;

And now to Helen is it home return'd,
There to remain.

Lys. Helen, it is not so.
Dem. Disparage not the faith thou dost not Lest, to thy peril, thou aby it dear. (know, Look where thy love comes; yonder is thy
dear.

Enter HERMIA.

Her. Dark night, that from the eye his function takes,

The ear more quick of apprehension makes;
Wherein it doth impair the seeing sense,
It pays the hearing double recompense:—
Thou art not by mine eye, Lysander, found;
Mine ear, I thank it, brought me to thy sound.

But why unkindly didst thou leave me so?
Lys. Why should he stay, whom love doth press to go?

Her. What love could press Lysander from
my side?

Lys. Lysander's love, that would not let him
bide,
Fair Helena, who more engilds the night

* Heartily. † Degree. ‡ Pay dearly for it.

of light.
not this make

leave thee so?
k, it cannot be.
confederacy!
n'd, all three,
te of me.
teful maid!
with these con-
on? [triv'd
have shar'd,
we have spent,
ooted time
ergot?
uldhood inno-
gods, [cencel
both one flower,
n one cushion,
n in one key;
es, and minds,
grew together,
ug parted,

one stem:
st one heart;
eraldry,
with one crest.
love asunder,
at poor friend?
nly:
e you for it;
ry
ionate words:
ou scorn me.
der as in scorn,
es and face?
metrius,
n me with his

vine, and rare,
e speaks he this with Lysander
his soul,
uch,
r consent?
as you,
unate;
h'd?
an despise.
t you mean by rfect sad looks,
turn my back,
sweet jest up:
be chronicled.
manners,
an argument.
me own fault;
shall remedy.
r my excuse;
Helena!

so.
can compel.
more than she ngth, than her

I do;
se for thee,
love thee not.
than he can do.
, and prove it

Her. Lysander, whereto tends all this?

Lys. Away, you Ethiop!

Dem. No, no, Sir—he will [low;

Seem to break loose; take on, as you would fol-
But yet come not: You are a tame man, go!

Lys. Hang off, thou cat, thou burr: vile thing let loose;

Or I will shake thee from me, like a serpent.

Her. Why are you grown so rude? what change is this,

Sweet love?

Lys. Thy love? out, tawny Tartar, out!

Out, loathed medicine! hated potion, hence

Her. Do you not jest?

Hel. Yes, 'sooth; and so do you.

Lys. Demetrius, I will keep my word with
thee.

Dem. I would, I had your bond; for, I perceive, [word.

A weak bond holds you; I'll not trust your

Lys. What should I hurt her, strike her, kill her dead?

Although I hate her, I'll not harm her so.

Her. What, can you do me greater harm than hate? [love?

Hate me! wherefore? O me! what news, my Am not I Hermia? Are not you Lysander?

I am as fair now, as I was erewhile.

Since night, you lov'd me; yet, since night you left me:

Why, then you left me,—O, the gods forbid!—
In earnest shall I say!

Lys. Ay, by my life;

And never did desire to see thee more.

Therefore, be out of hope, of question, doubt,
He certain, nothing truer; 'tis no jest,

That I do hate thee, and love Helena.

Her. O me! you juggler! you canker-blossom! [night

You thief of love! what, have you come by
And stol'n my love's heart from him?

Hel. Fine, i'faith!

Have you no modesty, no maiden shame,
No touch of bashfulness? What, will you tear

Impatient answers from my gentle tongue?

Fie, fie! you counterfeit, you puppet you!

Her. Puppet! why so? Ay, that way goes the game.

Now I perceive that she hath made compare
Between our statures, she hath urg'd her height;

And with her personage, her tall personage,
Her height forsooth, she hath prevail'd with

him.—

And are you grown so high in his esteem,

Because I am so dwarfish and so low?

How low am I, thou painted maypole? speak;

How low am I? I am not yet so low,

But that my nails can reach unto thine eyes.

Hel. I pray you, though you mock me, gentlemen,

Let her not hurt me: I was never curst;

I have no gift at all in shrewishness;

I am a right maid for my cowardice; [think,

Let her not strike me: You, perhaps, may

Because she's something lower than myself,

That I can match her.

Her. Lower! hark, again.

Hel. Good Hermia, do not be so bitter with
I evermore did love you, Hermia, [me.

Did ever keep your counsels, never wrong'd

Save, that, in love unto Demetrius, [you;

I told him of your stealth unto this wood:

He follow'd you; for love I follow'd him.

But he hath chid me hence; and threaten'd me

To strike me, spurn me, nay, to kill me too:

* A worm that preys on buds of flowers

† Shrewish or mischievous.

Wry Lys.

Will let me quiet go,
I bear my folly back,
no farther: Let me go:
uple and how fond* I am.
et you gone: Who is't that
you?
heart, that I leave here behind?
ith Lysander?
metrius.

ould she shall not harm thee,
; she shall not, though you take
t.
e she's angry, she is keen and
;
t, when she went to school;
e be but little, she is fierce.
again? nothing but low and ffer her to flout me thus?
her.

gone, you dwarf;
hind'ring knot grass[†] made;
horn.
e too officious,
st scorns your services.
speak not of Helena;
st: for if thou dost intend
how of love to her,
it.

holds me not;
thou dar'st, to try whose right,
e, is most in Helena.

I say, I'll go with thee, cheek [Exit Lys. and Dem.
istress, all this coil is 'long of
th.

st trust you, I;
in your curst company,
th mine, are quicker for a fray;
get though, to run away. [Exit.
max'd, and know not what to [Exit, pursuing HELENA.
thy negligence still thou mis-

'st thy knaveries wilfully.
e me, king of shadows, I mis-

I me, I should know the man in garments he had on?
eless proves my enterprise,
inted an Athenian's eyes:
I glad it so did sort,
ngling I esteem a sport.
est, these lovers seek a place to

Robin, overcast the night;
sin cover thou anon
fog, as black as Acheron;
teasty rivals so astray,
st within another's way.
for sometime frame thy tongue,
stir up with bitter wrong;
rall thou like Demetrius;
other look thou lead them thus,
crows death-counterfeiting sleep;
gs and batty wings doth creep;
e herb into Lysander's eye;
ath this virtuous property,
ence all error, with his might,
eye-balls roll with wonted sight.
A wake, all this diction
ream, and fruitless vision;
thens shall the lovers wend,[‡]

† Anciently knot-grass was believed to be of children. § Pretend. † Happen.
any ¶ Go

With league, whose date till death shall never
end.

While I in this affair do thee employ,
I'll to my queen, and beg her Indian boy;
And then I will her charmed eye release
From monster's view, and all things shall be
peace.

Puck. My fairy lord, this must be done with haste; [fast,
For night's swift dragons cut the clouds full
And yonder shines Aurora's harbinger;
At whose approach, ghosts, wandering here
and there, [all,
Troop home to church-yards: damned spirits
That in cross-ways and floods have burial,
Already to their wormy beds are gone,
For fear lest day should look their shames upon,
They wilfully themselves exile from light,
And must for aye consort with black-brow'd
night.

Obe. But we are spirits of another sort:
I with the Morning's Love* have oft made sport;
And, like a forester, the groves may tread,
Even till the eastern gate, all fiery red,
Opening on Neptune with fair blessed beams,
Turns into yellow gold his salt-green streams.
But, notwithstanding, haste; make no delay:
We may effect this business yet ere day.

[Exit OBERON.
Puck. Up and down, up and down;
I will lead them up and down:
I am fear'd in field and town;
Goblin, lead them up and down.

Here comes one.

Enter LYSANDER.

Lys. Where art thou, proud Demetrius? speak
thou now.

Puck. Here villain; drawn and ready. Where art thou?

Lys. I will be with thee straight.

Puck. Follow me then
To plainer ground.

[Exit Lys. as following the voice.

Enter DEMETRIUS.

Dem. Lysander! speak again.

Thou runaway, thou coward, art thou fled?
Speak. In some bush? Where dost thou hide thy head?

Puck. Thou coward, art thou bragging to the stars,

Telling the bushes that thou looks for wars,
And wilt not come? Come, recreant; come,
thou child;

I'll whip thee with a rod: He is defil'd,
That draws a sword on thee.

Dem. Yea; art thou there?

Puck. Follow my voice; we'll try no manhood here. [Exit.

Re-enter LYSANDER.

Lys. He goes before me, and still dares me
on;

When I come where he calls, then he is gone.
The villain is much lighter heel'd than I:
I follow'd fast, but faster he did fly;
That fallen am I in dark uneven way,
And here will rest me. Come, thou gentle day!

[Lies down.
For if but once thou show me thy gray light,
I'll find Demetrius, and revenge this spite.

[Sleeps.

Re-enter PUCK and DEMETRIUS.

Puck. Ho, ho! ho, ho! Coward, why com'st
thou not?

* Cephalus, the paramour of Aurora.

st; for well I

g every place;
me in the face.

st me. Thou

ustraineth me
is cold bed.—
sited.

down and sleeps.

g and tedious

[east;

turts, from the day-light,

pany detest:—

ts up sorrow's

company.

[Sleeps.

come one more;

up four.

ad sad:—

es mad.

o in woe;

nd torn with

er go;

th my desires.

ak of day.

y mean a fray!

[Lies down.

YSANDER's eye.

st,

eye:

erb known,

u take his own,

be shown:

all;

all;

again, and all

HIL. &c. sleep.

ne.

RIES attending;

en.

en this flowery

to boy,* [bed,

k smooth head,

my gentle joy.

ae-blossom.—

monsieur, get

kill me a red-

hipped humble-bee on the top of a thistle; and, good monsieur, bring me the honey-bag. Do not fret yourself too much in the action, monsieur; and, good monsieur, have a care the honey-bag break not; I would be loath to have you overflown with a honey-bag, signior.—Where's monsieur Mustard-seed?

Must. Ready.

Bot. Give me your neif,* monsieur Mustard-seed. Pray you, leave your courtesy, good monsieur.

Must. What's your will?

Bot. Nothing, good monsieur, but to help cavalero Cobweb to scratch. I must to the barber's, monsieur; for, methinks, I am marvellous hairy about the face: and I am such a tender ass, if my hair do but tickle me, I must scratch.

Tita. What, wilt thou hear some music, my sweet love?

Bot. I have a reasonable good ear in music: let us have the tongs and the bones.

Tita. Or, say, sweet love, what thou desire'st to eat.

Bot. Truly, a peck of provender; I could munch your good dry oats. Methinks, I have a great desire to a bottle of hay: good hay, sweet hay, hath no fellow.

Tita. I have a venturous fairy that shall seek the squirrel's hoard, and fetch thee new nuts.

Bot. I had rather have a handful, or two, of dried peas. But, I pray you, let none of your people stir me; I have an exposition of sleep come upon me.

Tita. Sleep thou, and I will wind thee in my arms.

Fairies, be gone, and be all ways away. So doth the woodbine, the sweet honeysuckle, Gently entwist,—the female ivy so Enrings the barked fingers of the elm. O, how I love thee! how I dote on thee!

[They sleep.

OSSEON advances. Enter PUCK.

Obs. Welcome, good Robin. See'st thou this sweet sight?

Her dotage now I do begin to pity. For meeting her of late, behind the wood, Seeking sweet savours for this hateful fool, I did upbraid her, and fall out with her: For she his hairy temples then had rounded With coronet of fresh and fragrant flowers; And that same dew, which sometime on the buds

Was wont to swell, like round and orient pearls,

Stood now within the pretty flourers' eyes, Like tears, that did their own disgrace bewail. When I had, at my pleasure, taunted her, And she, in mild terms, begg'd my patience, I then did ask of her her changeling child; Which straight she gave me, and her fairy sent To bear him to my bower in fairy land.

And now I have the boy, I will undo This hateful imperfection of her eyes. And, gentle Puck, take this transformed soul From off the head of this Athenian swain; That he awaking when the other do, May all to Athens back again repair; And think no more of this night's accidents, But as the fierce vexation of a dream. But first I will release the fairy queen.

Be, as thou wast wont to be;

See, as thou wast wont to see:

Tit. His bed o'er Cupid's flower
Hath such force and blessed power.
Now, my Titania; wake you, my sweet queen.
Tit. My Oberon! what visions have I seen?
Methought, I was enamour'd of an ass.
Ob. There lies your love.
Tit. How came these things to pass?
O, how mine eyes do loath his visage now!

Ob. Silence, a while.—Robin, take off this hood.—
Titania, music call; and strike more dead
Than common sleep, of all those here the senses.
Tit. Music, ho! music; such as charmeth sleep.

Ob. Now, when thou wak'st, with thine own self's eyes peer.

Ob. Sound, music. [Still Music.] Come, my queen, take hands with me, [be.
And rock the ground whereon these sleepers
Now thou and I are now in amity;
And will, to-morrow midnight, solemnly,
Dance in Duke Theseus' house triumphantly,
And turn it to all fair prosperity:
There shall the pairs of faithful lovers be Wedded, with Theseus, all in jollity.

Ob. Fairy king, attend, and mark;
I do hear the morning lark.

Ob. Then, my queen, in silence and,
Till we see the night's shade;
We the globe can compass soon,
Swifter than the wand'ring moon.

Tit. Come, my lord; and in our flight,
Tell me how it came this night,
That I sleeping here was found,
With these mortals, on the ground. [Sound.
[Horns sound within.

Enter THESEUS, HIPPOLYTA, EGEOUS, and train.

Th. Go, one of you, find out the forester;—
For now our observation is perform'd:
And since we have the vaward* of the day,
My love shall hear the music of my hounds.—
Uncouple in the western valley; go:
Despatch, I say, and find the forester.—
We will, fair queen, up to the mountain's top,
And mark the musical confusion
Of hounds and echo in conjunction.

Hip. I was with Hercules and Cadmus,
Once,
When in a wood of Crete they bay'd the bear
With hounds of Sparta: never did I hear
Such gallant chiding; for, besides the groves,
The skies, the fountains, every region near Seem'd all one mutual cry: I never heard
So musical a discord, such sweet thunder.

Th. My hounds are bred out of the Spartan kind, [hang
So low'd, so sanded; and their heads are
With ears that sweep away the morning dew, Cock-knee'd, and dew-lap'd like Thracian
bulls; [bells,
Slow in pursuit, but match'd in mouth like Bells under each. A cry more tunable
Was never heard to, nor cheer'd with horn,
In Crete, in Sparta, nor in Thessaly:
Judge, when you hear.—But, soft; what symphony are these?

Ege. My lord, this is my daughter here
And this, Lysander; this Demetrius is; [asleep:
This Helena, old Nedar's Helena:
I wonder of their being here together.

Th. No doubt, they rose up early to observe
The rite of May; and, hearing our intent,
Came here in grace of our solemnity.—

* Forepart.

† Sound.

‡ The horns are the huge shape of a horned.

But, speak, Egeus; is not this the day
That Helena should give answer of her choice?

Ege. It is, my lord.
Th. Go, bid the hushmen wake them with their horns.

Horns, and about with. DEMETRIUS, LYSAN-DER, HELENA, and HERMIA, wake and stir
up.

Th. Good-morrow friends. Saint Valentine
is past;

Begin these wood-birds but to couple now?
Ege. Pardon, my lord.

[He and the rest kneel to THESEUS.
Th. I pray you all, stand up.

I know, you are two rival suitors;
How comes this gentle concord in the world,
That hatred is so far from jealousy,
To sleep by hate, and fear no enmity?

Ege. My lord, I shall reply amazingly,
Half 'sleep, half waking: But as yet, I swear,
I cannot truly say how I came here:
But, as I think, (for truly would I speak,—
And now I do bethink me, so it is;)—
I came with Helena hither: our intent [he Was, to be gone from Athens, where we might Without the peril of the Athenian law.

Ege. Enough, enough, my lord; you have enough:

I beg the law, the law upon his head.—
They would have stol'n away, they would,
Demetrius,

Thereby to have defaced you and me:
You, of your wife; and me, of my consent;
Of my consent that she should be your wife.

Dem. My lord, fair Helena told me of their stealth,

Of this their purpose hither to this wood;
And I in fury hither follow'd them;
Fair Helena in fancy* following me.
But, my good lord, I wot not by what power,
(But by some power it is,) my love to Hermia
Melted as doth the snow, seems to me now
As the remembrance of an idle gawd,†
Which in my childhood I did dote upon:
And all the faith, the virtue of my heart,
The object, and the pleasure of mine eye,
Is only Helena. To her, my lord,
Was I betroth'd ere I saw Hermia:
But, like in sickness, did I loath this food:
But, as in health, come to my natural taste,
Now do I wish it, love it, long for it,
And will for evermore be true to it.

Th. Fair lovers, you are fortunately met:
(Of this discourse we more will hear anon.—
Egeus, I will overbear your will;
For in the temple, by and by with us,
These couples shall eternally be knit.
And, for the morning now is something worn,
Our purpos'd hunting shall be set aside.—
Away, with us, to Athens: Three and three,
We'll hold a feast in great solemnity.—
Come, Hippolyta.

[Exit THESEUS, HIPPOLYTA, EGEOUS, and train.
Dem. These things seem small, and undistinguishable,

Like far-off mountains turned into clouds.
Her. Methinks, I see these things with parted eye,

When every thing seems double.
Her. So methinks.

And I have found Demetrius like a jewel,
Mine own, and not mine own.

Dem. It seems to me, [think,
That yet we sleep, we dream.—Do not you

* Love.

† Toy.

SUMMER-NIGHT'S DREAM.

[ACT A

follow him?

to the temple.
e. let's follow

our dreams.

[Exeunt.

makes.

call me, and I

Pyramus.—

the bellowsveling! God's me asleep! I

I have had a

ay what dream

go about to

at I was—there

thought I was,

man is but a

say what me-

hath not heard,

man's hand is conceive, nor dream was. I ballad of this

om's Dream,

I will sing it

ore the duke:

ore gracious,

[Exit.

in QUINCE'S

and STAR-

om's house? is

Out of doubt,

play is mar-

at?

ave not a man

Pyramus, but best wit of any

erson too: and

cl voice.

a paramour

ght.

oming from the

ree lords and

port had gone

men.

Thus hath he life; he could

an the duke

oy for playing

ould have de-

Pyramus, or no-

here are these

irageous day!

ourse wonders:

tell you, I am

ou every thing,

tom.

that I will tell

ned: Get your

apparel together; good strings to your beards,
new ribbons to your pumps; meet presently
at the palace; every man look o'er his part;
for, the short and the long is, our play is preferred. In any case, let Thisby have clean linen; and let not him, that plays the lion, pare his nails, for they shall hang out for the lion's claws. And, most dear actors, eat no onions, nor garlick, for we are to utter sweet breath; and I do not doubt, but to hear them say, it is a sweet comedy. No more words:
away; go, away. [Exeunt.

ACT V.

SCENE I.—The same.—An Apartment in the Palace of THESEUS.

Enter THESEUS, HIPPOLYTA, PHILOSTRATE,
Lords, and Attendants.

Hip. 'Tis strange, my Theseus, that these lovers speak of.

The. More strange than true. I never may believe

These antique fables, nor these fairy toys.
Lovers, and madmen, have such seething
brains,

Such shaping fantasies, that apprehend
More than cool reason ever comprehends.

The lunatic, the lover, and the poet,
Are of imagination all compact:^{*}

One sees more devils than vast hell can hold;
That in, the madman: the lover, all as frantic,
Sees Helen's beauty in a brow of Egypt:

The poet's eye, in a fine frenzy rolling,
Doth glance from heaven to earth, from earth
to heaven;

And, as imagination bodies forth
The forms of things unknown, the poet's pen
Turns them to shapes, and gives to airy no-
A local habitation, and a name. [thing

Such tricks hath strong imagination;
That, if it would but apprehend some joy,

It comprehends some bringer of that joy;
Or, in the night, imagining some fear,

How easy is a bush suppos'd a bear!

Hip. But all the story of the night told over,
And all their minds transfigur'd so together,
More witnesseth than fancy's images,
And grows to something of great constancy;
But, howsoever, strange, and admirable.

Enter LYSANDER, DEMETRIUS, HERMIA, and HELENA.

The. Here come the lovers, full of joy and mirth.—

Joy, gentle friends! joy, and fresh days of love
Accompany your hearts!

Lys. More than to us [bed!

Wait on your royal walks, your board, your
The. Come now; what masks, what dances shall we have,

To wear away this long age of three hours,
Between our after-supper, and bed time?
Where is our usual manager of mirth?

What revels are in hand? Is there no play,
To ease the anguish of a torturing hour?

Call Philostrate.

Philost. Here, mighty Theseus.

The. Say, what abridgment have you for this evening? [gulls!

What mask? what music? How shall we be-
The lazy time, if not with some delight?

Philost. There is a brief,[†] how many sports are ripe;

* Are made of mere imagination. † Briefly.
† Faintly. ‡ Short enough.

Make choice of which your highness will see first.

[Giving a paper.]

Tha. [Reads.] The battle with the Centaurs, to be sung.

By an Athenian runach to the harp.

We'll none of that—that have I told my love, In glory of my kinsman Hercules.

The riot of the tipsy Bacchanals,

Tearing the Thracian singer in their rage.

That is an old device, and it was play'd When I from Thebes came last a conqueror.

The three three Muses mourning for the death

Of learning, late deceas'd in beggary.

That is some satire, keen, and critical,

Not sorting with a nuptial ceremony.

A tedious brief scene of young Pyramus,

And his love Thisbe, very tragical mirth.

Merry and tragical? Tedious and brief?

That is, hot ice, and wondrous strange snow.

How shall we find the concord of this discord?

Philost. A play there is, my lord, some ten words long;

Which is as brief as I have known a play;

But by ten words, my lord, it is too long;

Which makes it tedious: for in all the play

There is not one word apt, one player fitted.

And tragical, my noble lord, it is;

For Pyramus therein doth kill himself.

Which, when I saw rehears'd, I must confess,

Made mine eyes water; but more merry tears

The passion of loud laughter never shed.

Tha. What are they, that do play it?

Philost. Hard-handed men, that work in Athens here,

Which never laboured in their minds till now;

And now have toll'd their unbreath'd memories

With this same play, against your nuptial.

Tha. And we will hear it.

Philost. No, my noble lord,

It is not for you: I have heard it over,

And it is nothing, nothing in the world;

Unless you can find sport in their intents,

Extremely stretch'd, and conn'd with cruel

To do you service. [pain,

Tha. I will hear that play;

For never any thing can be amiss,

When simpleness and duty tender it.

Go, bring them in;—and take your places,

ladies.

[Exit PHILOSTRATE.]

Hip. I love not to see wretchedness o'er-

And duty in his service perishing. [charg'd,

Tha. Why, gentle sweet, you shall see no such thing.

Hip. He says, they can do nothing in this kind.

Tha. The kinder we, to give them thanks for nothing.

Our sport shall be, to take what they mistake;

And what poor duty cannot do,

Noble respect takes it in might, not merit.

Where I have come, great clerks have purposed

To greet me with premeditated welcomes;

Where I have seen them shiver and look pale,

Make periods in the midst of sentences,

Twist their practis'd accent in their fears,

And, in conclusion, dumbly have broke off,

Not paying me a welcome: Trust me, sweet,

Out of this silence, yet, I pick'd a welcome;

And in the modesty of fearful duty

I read as much, as from the rattling tongue

Of saucy and audacious eloquence.

Love, therefore, and tongue-tied simplicity,

In least, speak most, to my capacity.

Enter PHILOSTRATE.

Philost. So please your grace the prologue is address'd.

• Unmistaken.

† Ready.

Tha. Let him approach.

[Flourish of trumpet.]

Enter PROLOGUE.

ProL. If we offend, it is with our good will,

That you should think, we come not to offend,

But with good will. To show our simple skill,

That is the true beginning of our end.

Consider then, we come but in despite,

We do not come as minding to content you,

Our true intent is. All for your delight, [you,

We are not here. That you should here repent

The actors are at hand; and, by their show,

You shall know all, that you are like to know.

Tha. This fellow doth not stand upon points

Lye. He hath rid his prologue, like a rough colt, he knows not the stop. A good moral, my lord: It is not enough to speak, but to speak

true.

Hip. Indeed he hath played on this prologue,

like a child on a recorder; a sound, but not in government.

Tha. His speech was like a tangled chain;

nothing impaired, but all disorder'd. Who is next?

Enter PYRAMUS and THISBE, WALL, MOONSHINE,

and LION, as in dumb show.

ProL. "Gentles, perchance, you wonder at this show; [plain.

"But wonder on, till truth make all things

"This man is Pyramus, if you would know;

"This beauteous lady Thisbe is, certain.

"This man, with lime and rough-cast, doth

present

"Wall, that vile wall which did these lovers

sunder:

"And through wall's chink, poor souls they are content

"To whisper; at the which let no man

wonder. [thorn,

"This man, with lantern, dog, and bush of

"Presenteth moonshine: for, if you will

know,

"By moonshine did these lovers think no scorn

"To meet at Ninus' tomb, there, there to woo.

"This grisly beast, which by name lion hight,

"The trusty Thisbe, coming first by night,

"Did scare away, or rather did affright;

"And, as she fled, her mantle she did fall;

"Which lion vile with bloody mouth did stain:

"Amos comes Pyramus, sweet youth, and tall,

"And finds his trusty Thisbe's mantle slain.

"Whereat with blade, with bloody blameful

blade, [breast;

"He bravely broach'd his boiling bloody

"And, Thisbe tarrying in mulberry shade,

"His dagger drew, and died. For all the rest,

"Let lion, moonshine, wall, and lovers twain,

"At large discourse, while here they do remain."

[Exit PROLOGUE, THISBE, LION, and

MOONSHINE.

Tha. I wonder, if the lion be to speak.

Dem. No wonder, my lord: one lion may,

when many asses do.

Wall. "In this same interlude, it doth befall,

"That I, one Snout by name, present a wall:

"And such a wall, as I would have you think,

"That had in it a cranny'd hole, or chink,

"Through which the lovers, Pyramus and

"Did whisper often very secretly. [Thisbe,

"This loam, this rough-cast, and this stone

doth show;

• A musical instrument.

† Call.

A MIDSUMMER-NIGHT'S DREAM.

create,
 P. s three e's hand
 e stand;
 nor scar,
 such as are en be.— associate,
 ut;†
 r ber bless,
 th sweet peace:
 rest,
 est.

† Way.

Meet me all by break of day (Exeunt OBERON, TIT.
 Puck. If we shadows have offend'd
Think but this, (and all is mended)
That you have but slumber'd
While these visions did ascend
And thus weak and idle times
No more yielding but a dream
Gentles, do not reprehend
If you pardon, we will mend
And, as I'm an honest Puck,
If we have unearn'd luck
Now to 'scape the serpent's tongue
We will make amends ere long Else the Puck a liar call.
So, good night unto you!
Give me your hands, if w
And Robin shall restore a

LOVE'S LABOUR'S LOST.

PERSONS REPRESENTED.

THE KING, King of Navarre.

LORDS, } Lords, attending on the King.

LADIES, } Lords, attending on the Princess
of France,

BERNARDO DE ARMADO, a fantastical Spaniard.

DANIEL, a Curate.

WILKS, a Schoolmaster.

CONSTABLE.

A CLOWN.

MOTH, Page to Armado.
A Forester.

PRINCESS OF FRANCE.

ROSALINE,

MARIA,

KATHARINE,

JAQUENETTA, a Country Wench.

OFFICERS, and Others, Attendants on the King and Princess.

Scene, Navarre.

ACT I.

I.—Navarre.—A Park, with a Palace in it.

THE KING, BERNARD, LONGAVILLE, and DUMAIN.

Let fame, that all hunt after in their lives,
Interd upon our brazen tombs,
And grace us in the disgrace of death;
Pile of cormorant devouring time,
Savour of this present breath may buy
Sour, which shall bate his scythe's keen edge,
And we heirs of all eternity.

O, brave conquerors!—for so you are,
Against your own affections,
A huge army of the world's desires,
Which do strongly stand in force:
Which shall be the wonder of the world;
Which shall be a little Academe,
Contemplative in living art.
O, Biron, Dumain, and Longaville,
For three years' term to live with me,

As scholars, and to keep those statutes,
Recorded in this schedule here:
Which are past, and now subscribe your names;

Whose own hand may strike his honour down,
Whose latest the smallest branch herein:
Which am'd to do, as sworn to do,
Which to your deep oath, and keep it too.
I am resolv'd: 'tis but a three years' fast;

Which shall banquet, though the body pine:
Which have lean pates, and dainty bites
Which ch the ribs, but bank'rout quite the wits.

My loving lord, Dumain is mortified;
Whose manner of these world's delights
Which upon the gross world's baser slaves:
Which to wealth, to pomp, I pine and die;
Which these living in philosophy.

I can but say their protestation over,
O, dear liege, I have already sworn,
To live and study here three years.

But there are other strict observances:

As, not to see a woman in that term;
Which, I hope well, is not enrolled there;
And, one day in a week to touch no food;
And but one meal on every day beside;
The which, I hope, is not enrolled there:
And then, to sleep but three hours in the night,
And not be seen to wink of all the day;
(When I was wont to think no harm all night,
And make a dark night too of half the day;)
Which, I hope well, is not enrolled there:
O, these are barren tasks, too hard to keep;
Not to see ladies, study, fast, not sleep.

King. Your oath is pass'd to pass away from these.

Biron. Let me say no, my liege, as if you
Which only swore, to study with your grace, [please;
And stay here in your court for three years' space.

Long. You swore to that, Biron, and to the rest.

Biron. By yea and nay, Sir, then I swore in jest.

What is the end of study? let me know.

King. Why, that to know, which else we should not know.

Biron. Things hid and barr'd, you mean, from common sense?

King. Ay, that is study's god-like recompense.

Biron. Come on then, I will swear to study
To know the thing I am forbid to know: [so
As thus—To study where I well may dine,

When I to feast expressly am forbid;
Or, study where to meet some mistress fine,
When mistresses from common sense are hid:

Or, having sworn too hard-a-keeping oath,
Study to break it, and not break my troth.

If study's gain be thus, and this be so,
Study knows that, which yet it doth not know:

Swear me to this, and I will ne'er say, no.

King. These be the stops that hinder study quite,

And train our intellects to vain delight.

Biron. Why, all delights are vain; but that most vain,

Which, with pain purchas'd, doth inherit pain:

ook, (while
while truth the
at of his look :
ght of light be-

darkness lies,
g of your eyes.
indeed,
be his heed,
it blinded by.
us sun,
h'd with saucy

ever won,
rs' books.
ven's lights,
el star,
ning nights,
wot not what [same ;
w nought but
name.
reason against

p all good prod still lets grow
hen green geese

me.
me.
ous sneeping†

ts of the spring.
should proud

cause to sing ?
e birth ?
ose [shows ; †
new fangled }
ason grows. }
ate,
the little gate.
home, Biron ;

have sworn to
am spokemore,
ge you can say,
ive swore,
ree years' day.
the same ;
rite my name. }
rescues thee }

no woman shall ague.—

with that dread

ost gentility.
be seen to talk
three years, he
the rest of the

ames, sports,

This article, my liege, yourself must break ;
For, well you know, here comes an embassy
The French king's daughter, with yourself to
speak,—

A maid of grace, and complete majesty,—
About surrender-up of Aquitain
To her decrepit, sick, and bed-ridden father :
Therefore this article is made in vain,
Or vainly comes the admired princess hither.
King. What say you, lords ? why, this was quite forgot.

Biron. So study evermore is overshoot ;
While it doth study to have what it would,
It doth forget to do the thing it should :
And when it hath the thing it hunteth most,
'Tis won, as towns with fire ; so won, so lost.

King. We must, of force, dispense with this decree ;
She must lie* here on mere necessity.

Biron. Necessity will make us all forsworn Three thousand times within this three years' space :

For every man with his affects is born ;
Not by might master'd, but by special grace :
If I break faith, this word shall speak for me,
I am forsworn on mere necessity.—
So to the laws at large I write my name :

[Subscribes.
And he, that breaks them in the least degree,
Stands in attainder of eternal shame :

Suggestions† are to others, as to me ;
But, I believe, although I seem so loath,
I am the last that will last keep his oath.
But is there no quick recreation granted ?

King. Ay, that there is : our court, you know, is haunted

With a refined traveller of Spain ;
A man in all the world's new fashion planted,
That hath a mint of phrases in his brain :
One, whom the music of his own vain tongue
Doth ravish, like enchanting harmony ;
A man of complements, whom right and wrong
Have chose as umpire of their mutiny :
This child of fancy, that Armado hight, §
For interim to our studies, shall relate,
In high-born words, the worth of many a knight
From tawny Spain, lost in the world's debate.

How you delight, my lords, I know not, † ;
But, I protest, I love to hear him lie,
And I will use him for my minstrelsy.

Biron. Armado is a most illustrious wight,
A man of fire-new words, fashion's own knight.
Long. Costard the swain, and he, shall be our sport ;

And, so to study, three years is but short.

Enter DULL, with a letter, and COSTARD.

Dull. Which is the duke's own person ?

Biron. This, fellow ; What would'st ?

Dull. I myself reprehend his own person, for I am his grace's thurberough : † but I would see his own person in flesh and blood.

Biron. This is he.

Dull. Signior Arme—Arme—commands you.
There's villany abroad ; this letter will tell
you more.

Cost. Sir, the contempts thereof are as touching me.

King. A letter from the magnificent Armado.

Biron. How low soever the matter, I hope in God for high words.

Long. A high hope for a low having : God grant us patience !

* Reside. † Temptations. ‡ Lively, sprightly.
§ Called. ¶ i. e. Third-borough, a peace-officer.

Biron. To hear? or forbear hearing?

Long. To hear meekly, Sir, and to laugh moderately; or to forbear both.

Biron. Well, Sir, be it as the style shall give us cause to climb to the marriage.

Cost. The matter is to me, Sir, as concerning Jaquenetta. The manner of it is, I was taken with the manner.*

Biron. In what manner?

Cost. In manner and form following, Sir; all these three: I was seen with her in the manner house, sitting with her upon the form, and taken following her into the park; which, put together, is, in manner and form following. Now, Sir, for the manner,—it is the manner of a man to speak to a woman: for the form,—in some form.

Biron. For the following, Sir?

Cost. As it shall follow in my correction; And God defend the right!

King. Will you hear this letter with attention?

Biron. As we would hear an oracle.

Cost. Such is the simplicity of man to hearken after the flesh.

King. [Reads.] Great deity, the world's disposer, and our dominator of Nature, my own earth's God, and body's fostering patron,—

Cost. Not a word of Costard yet.

King. So it is,—

Cost. It may be so: but if he say it is so, he is, in telling true, but so, so.

King. Peace.

Cost.—be to me, and every man that dares not fight!

King. No words.

Cost.—of other men's secrets, I beseech you.

King. So it is, besieged with sable-coloured melancholy, I did command the black-oppressing humour to the most wholesome physic of thy health-giving air; and, as I am a gentleman, be-[Reads.] The time when? About the sixth hour; when beasts most graze, birds best peck, and men sit down to that nourishment which be called supper. So much for the time when: Now for the ground which; which, I mean, I talked upon: it is ycleped thy park. Then for the place where; where, I mean, I did encounter that chacious and most preposterous event, that drencht from my snow white pen the ebony-coloured ink, which here thou viewest, beholdest, surveyest, &c. and: But to the place, where,—It standeth north-north-east and by east from the west corner of thy curious-knotted garden: There did I see that low-spirited cousin, that base minnow of thy birth,

Cost. Me.

King.—that unletter'd small-knowing soul,

Cost. Me.

King.—that shallow vessel,

Cost. Still me.

King.—which, as I remember, kight Costard,

Cost. O me!

King.—certain and concerted, contrary to thy established proclaimed edict and continent canon, with—with,—O with—but with this I passion to my wherewith.

Cost. With a wench.

King.—with a child of our grandmother Eve, a female; or, for thy more sweet understanding, a woman. Him I (as my ever-esteemed duty pricks me on) have sent to thee, to receive the word of punishment, by thy sweet grace's officer, Antony Dull; a man of good repute, carriage, bearing, and estimation.

* In the fact.

Dull. Me, an't shall please you; I am Antony Dull.

King. For Jaquenetta, (as is the tender vessel called, which I apprehended with the oft-renew'd swim,) I keep her as a vessel of thy law's fury; and shall, at the least of thy sweet notice, bring her to trial. Thine, in all compliments of devoted and heart-burning heat of duty,

DON ADRIANO DE ARMADO.

Biron. This is not so well as I looked for, but the best that ever I heard.

King. Ay, the best for the worst. But, sirrah, what say you to this?

Cost. Sir, I confess the wench.

King. Did you hear the proclamation?

Cost. I do confess much of the hearing it, but little of the marking of it.

King. It was proclaimed a year's imprisonment, to be taken with a wench.

Cost. I was taken with none, Sir, I was taken with a damsel.

King. Well, it was proclaimed damsel.

Cost. This was no damsel neither, Sir; she was a virgin.

King. It is so varied too; for it was proclaimed virgin.

Cost. If it were, I deny her virginity; I was taken with a maid.

King. This maid will not serve your turn, Sir.

Cost. This maid will serve my turn, Sir.

King. Sir, I will pronounce your sentence; You shall fast a week with bran and water.

Cost. I had rather pray a month with nutten and porridge.

King. And Don Armado shall be your keeper.

—My lord Biron see him deliver'd o'er.—

And go we, lords, to put in practice that which each to other hath so strongly sworn.—

[Exeunt KING, LONGAVILLE, and DUMAIN.]

Biron. I'll lay my head to any good man's hat, [scorn.—

These oaths and laws will prove an idle sirrah, come on.

Cost. I suffer for the truth, Sir: for true it is, I was taken with Jaquenetta, and Jaquenetta is a true girl; and therefore, Welcome the sour cup of prosperity! Affliction may one day smile again, and till then, Sit thee down, sorrow!

[Exeunt.]

SCENE II.—Another part of the same.—ARMADO'S HOUSE.

Enter ARMADO and MOTH.

Arm. Boy, what sign is it, when a man of great spirit grows melancholy?

Moth. A great sign, Sir, that he will look sad.

Arm. Why, sadness is one and the self-same thing, dear imp.

Moth. No, no; O lord, Sir, no.

Arm. How canst thou part sadness and melancholy, my tender juvenal?

Moth. By a familiar demonstration of the working, my tough senior.

Arm. Why tough senior? why tough senior?

Moth. Why tender juvenal? why tender juvenal?

Arm. I spoke it, tender juvenal, as a congruent epitheton, appertaining to thy young days, which we may nominate tender.

Moth. And I, tough senior, as an appertinent title to your old time, which we may name tough.

Arm. Pretty, and apt.

* Young man.

LOVE'S LABOUR'S LOST.

[ACT 2

pretty, and my ying pretty?
ttle.

little: Where-

use quick.

braise, master?

with the same

genious?

ck in answers:

trary, crosses*

[Aside.

dy three years

our, Sir.

he told?

itteth the spirit

and a gamester,

re both the var-

now how much

ounts to.

more than two.

do call, three.

piece of study?

ce you'll thrice

ut years to the

rs in two words,

[Aside.

k, I am in love:

to love, so am I ll drawing my

fection would thought of it, I ransom him to

devised cour-thinks, I should

e, boy: What

More authori-

sweet my child,

and carriage.

was a man of

for he carried

e a porter. and strong-jointed

my rapier, as

ing gates. I am on's love, my

ree, or the two;

at complexion?

p, Sir.

omplexions?

and the best of

slour of lovers:

our, methinks,

current.

Samson had small reason for it. He, surely, affected her for her wit.

Moth. It was so, Sir; for she had a green wit.

Arm. My love is most immaculate white and red.

Moth. Most maculate thoughts, master, are masked under such colours.

Arm. Define, define, well-educated infant.

Moth. My father's wit, and my mother's tongue, assist me!

Arm. Sweet invocation of a child; most pretty and pathetic!

Moth. If she be made of white and red,

Her faults will ne'er be known;

For blushing cheeks by faults are bred,

And fears by pale-white shown:

Then, if she fear, or be to blame,

By this you shall not know;

For still her cheeks possess the same,

Which native she doth owe.*

A dangerous rhyme, master, against the reason of white and red.

Arm. Is there not a ballad, boy, of the King and the Heggar?

Moth. The world was very guilty of such a ballad some three ages since: but, I think, now 'tis not to be found; or, if it were, it would neither serve for the writing, nor the tune.

Arm. I will have the subject newly writ o'er, that I may example my digression by some mighty precedent. Boy, I do love that country girl, that I took in the park with the rational hind Costard; she deserves well.

Moth. To be whipped; and yet a better love than my master. [Aside.

Arm. Sing, boy; my spirit grows heavy in love.

Moth. And that's great marvel, loving a light wench.

Arm. I say, sing.

Moth. Forbear till this company be past.

Enter DULL, COSTARD, and JAQUENETTA.

Dull. Sir, the duke's pleasure is, that you keep Costard safe: and you must let him take no delight, nor no penance; but a' must fast three days a week: for this damsel, I must keep her at the park; she is allowed for the day-woman.† Fare you well.

Arm. I do betray myself with blushing.— Moth.

Jaqu. Man.

Arm. I will visit thee at the lodge.

Jaqu. That's hereby.

Arm. I know where it is situate.

Jaqu. Lord, how wise you are!

Arm. I will tell thee wonders.

Jaqu. With that face?

Arm. I love thee.

Jaqu. So I heard you say.

Arm. And so farewell.

Jaqu. Fair weather after you!

Dull. Come, Jaquenetta, away.

[Exit DULL and JAQUENETTA.

Arm. Villain, thou shalt fast for thy offences, ere thou be pardoned.

Cost. Well, Sir, I hope, when I do it, I shall do it on a full stomach.

Arm. Thou shalt be heavily punished.

Cost. I am more bound to you, than your fellows, for they are but lightly rewarded.

Arm. Take away this villain; shut him up.

Moth. Come, you transgressing slave; away.

Cost. Let me not be pent up, Sir; I will fast, being loose.

* Of which she is naturally possessed.

† Transgression.

‡ Day-woman.

Moth. No, Sir; that were fast and loose: thou shalt be prison.

Cost. Well, if ever I do see the merry days of dissimulation that I have seen, some shall see—Moth. What shall some see?

Cost. Nay, nothing, master Moth, but what they look upon. It is not for prisoners to be too silent in their words; and, therefore, I will say nothing: I thank God, I have as little patience as another man; and, therefore, I can be quiet.

[Exeunt MOTH and COSTARD.]

Arm. I do affect the very ground, which is base, where her shoe, which is baser, guided by her foot, which is basest, doth tread. I shall be forsworn, (which is a great argument of falsehood,) if I love: And how can that be true love, which is falsely attempted? Love is a familiar: love is a devil; there is no evil angel but love. Yet Samson was so tempted: and he had an excellent strength: yet was Solomon so seduced: and he had a very good wit. Cupid's butt-shaft is too hard for Hercules' club, and therefore too much odds for a Spaniard's rapier. The first and second cause will not serve my turn; the passado he respects not, the duello he regards not: his disgrace is to be called boy; but his glory is, to subdue men. Adieu, valour! rust, rapier! be still, dumb! for your manager is in love; yea, he hath. Assist me some extemporal god of rhyme, for, I am sure, I shall turn sonneteer. Devise wit; write pen; for I am for whole volumes in folio. [Exit.]

ACT II.

SCENE I.—Another part of the same.—A Pavilion and Tents at a distance.

Enter the PRINCESS OF FRANCE, ROSALINE, MARIA, KATHARINE, BOYET, Lords, and other Attendants.

Boyet. Now, madam, summon up your dearest spirits:

Consider who the king your father sends;
To whom he sends; and what's his embassy:
Yourself, held precious in the world's esteem;
To parley with the sole inheritor
Of all perfections that a man may owe,
Matchless Navarre; the plea of no less weight
Than Aquitain; a dowry for a queen.
Be now as prodigal of all dear grace,
As nature was in making graces dear,
When she did starve the general world beside,
And prodigally gave them all to you.

Prin. Good lord Boyet, my beauty, though but mean,
Needs not the painted flourish of your praise;
Beauty is bought by judgement of the eye,
Not utter'd by base sale of chapmen's tongues:
I am less proud to hear you tell my worth,
Than you much willing to be counted wise
In spending your wit in the praise of mine.
But now to task the tasker,—Good Boyet,
You are not ignorant, all-telling fame
Doth noise abroad, Navarre hath made a vow,
Till painful study shall out-wear three years,
No woman may approach his silent court:
Therefore to us seemeth it a needful course,
Before we enter his forbidden gates,
To know his pleasure; and in that behalf,
Bold of your worthiness, we single you
As our best-moving fair solicitor:
Tell him, the daughter of the king of France,
On serious business, craving quick despatch,
Imports a personal conference with his grace.

* Love. † Arrow to shoot at butts with. ‡ Best.

Haste, signify so much; while we attend,
Like humbly-visag'd suitors, his high will.

Boyet. Proud of employment, willingly I go. [Exit.]

Prin. All pride is willing pride, and yours is so.—

Who are the votaries, my loving lords,
That are vow-fellows with this virtuous duke?
1 Lord. Longaville is one.

Prin. Know you the man?

Mar. I know him, madam; at a marriage feast,
Between lord Perigot and the beauteous heir
Of Jaques Falconbridge solemnized,
In Normandy saw I this Longaville:
A man of sovereign parts he is esteem'd;
Well fitted in the arts, glorious in arms:
Nothing becomes him ill, that he would well.
The only soil of his fair virtue's gloss,
(If virtue's gloss will stain with any soil,)
Is a sharp wit match'd with too blunt a will;
Whose edge hath power to cut, whose will still wills [power.]

It should none spare that come within his

Prin. Some merry mocking lord, belike; is't so?

Mar. They say so most, that most his humours know.

Prin. Such short-liv'd wits do wither as they grow.

Who are the rest?

Kath. The young Dumain, a well-accomplish'd youth,

Of all that virtue love for virtue lov'd: [ill;
Most power to do most harm, least knowing
For he hath wit to make an ill shape good,
And shape to win grace though he had no wit.
I saw him at the duke Alençon's once;
And much too little of that good I saw,
Is my report, to his great worthiness.

Ros. Another of these students at that time,
Was there with him: if I have heard a truth,
Biron they call him; but a merrier man,
Within the limit of becoming mirth,
I never spent an hour's talk withal:
His eye begets occasion for his wit;
For every object that the one doth catch,
The other turns to a mirth-moving jest;
Which his fair tongue (conceit's expositor),
Delivers in such apt and gracious words,
That aged ears play truant at his tales,
And younger hearings are quite ravished;
So sweet and voluble is his discourse.

Prin. God bless my ladies! are they all in love;
That every one her own hath garnished
With such bedecking ornaments of praise?

Mar. Here comes Boyet.

Re-enter BOYET.

Prin. Now, what admittance, lord?

Boyet. Navarre had notice of your fair approach;

And he, and his competitors* in oath,
Were all address'd† to meet you, gentle lady
Before I came. Marry, thus much I have learnt,

He rather means to lodge you in the field,
(Like one that comes here to besiege his court,)
Than seek a dispensation for his oath,
To let you enter his unpeopled house.

Here comes Navarre, [The Ladies musk.]

Enter KING, LONGAVILLE, DUMAIN, BIRON,
and Attendants.

King. Fair princess, welcome to the court of Navarre.

* Confederates.

† Prepared.

LOVE'S LABOUR'S LOST.

you back again; and,
the roof of this court
, and welcome to the
mine.

Welcome, madam, to my

come then; conduct me

your lady; I have sworn

my lord! he'll be for-world, fair madam, by my will break it; will, and is ignorant what it is.

so, his ignorance were

[rance.
edge must prove igno-

sworn out house-keep-

that oath, my lord,

so sudden-bold;

seemeth me.

purpose of my coming,

me in my suit.

[Gives a paper.
l, if suddenly I may.

paper, that I were away;

d, if you make me stay.

ance with you in Bra-

with you in Brabant

did.

was it then

be so quick.

that spur me with such

hot, it speeds too fast,

the rider in the mire.

day?

ools should ask.

all your mask!

it covers!

many lovers!

be none.

ill I be gone.

father here doth intimate

red thousand crowns;

of an entire sum,

r in his wars.

, (as neither have,) t there remains unpaid

more, in surety of the

s bound to us, (which,

the money's worth.

father will restore

is unsatisfied,

ent in Aquitaine,

p with his majesty.

little purposeth,

nd to have repaid

crowns; and not de-

red thousand crowns,

n Aquitaine;

had departs withal,

y our father lent,

ed as it is.

at his requests so far

From reason's yielding, you make

A yielding, 'gainst some reas
And go well satisfied to Fra

Prin. You do the king my
wrong,

And wrong the reputation of
In so unseemly to confess
Of that which hath so faithf

King. I do protest, I never
And, if you prove it, I'll rep
Or yield up Aquitaine.

Prin. We arrest your word
Boyet, you can produce acqu
For such a sum, from special
Of Charles his father.

King. Satisfy me so.

Boyet. So please your gra
not come,

Where that and other specia
To-morrow you shall have a

King. It shall suffice me

All liberal reason I will yiel

Mean time, receive such wel

As honour, without breach o

Make tender of to thy true v

You may not come, fair prin

But here without you shall t

As you shall deem yourself l

Though so denied fair harb

Your own good thoughts ex

well:

To-morrow shall we visit yo

Prin. Sweet health and fa

your grace!

King. Thy own wish wi place! [Exeunt H

Biron. Lady, I will comm

heart.

Ros. 'Pray you, do my

would be glad to see it.

Biron. I would, you hear

Ros. Is the fool sick?

Biron. Sick at heart.

Ros. Alack, let it blood.

Biron. Would that do it g

Ros. My physic says, I.

Biron. Will you prick't w

Ros. No poynt,† with my

Biron. Now, God save th

Ros. And yours from long

Biron. I cannot stay thank

Dum. Sir, I pray you, a

is that same?

Boyet. The heir of Alen

name.

Dum. A gallant lady! A

well.

Long. I beseech you a wo

the white?

Boyet. A woman sometime

in the light.

Long. Perchance, light i sire her name.

Boyet. She hath but one sire that, were a sh

Long. Pray you, Sir, wh

Boyet. Her mother's, I h

Long. God's blessing on

Boyet. Good Sir, be not

She is an heir of Falconbr

Long. Nay, my choler is

She is a most sweet lady.

Boyet. Not unlike, Sir;

† Fall.

* Aye, yes.

† A French

ACT III.

SCENE I.—Another part of the same.

Enter ARMANDO and MOTH.

Arm. Warble, child; make passionate my sense of hearing.

Moth. Conscience!— [Singing.

Arm. Sweet air!—Go, tenderness of years; take this key, give enlargement to the swain, bring him fastidiously^e hither; I must employ him in a letter to my love.

Moth. Master, will you win your love with a French brawl?

Arm. How mean'st thou? bawling in French?

Moth. No, my complete master; but to jig off a tune at the tongue's end, canary[†] to it with your feet, humour it with turning up your eye-lids; sigh a note, and sing a note; sometimes through the throat, as if you swallowed love with singing love; sometimes through the nose, as if you snuffed up love by smelling love; with your hat penthouse-like, o'er the shop of your eyes; with your arms crossed on your thin belly-doublet, like a rabbit on a spit; or your hands in your pocket, like a man after the old painting; and keep not too long in one tune, but a snip and away: These are complements, these are humours; these betray nice wenchas—that would be betrayed without these; and make them see of note, (do you note, men?) that most are affected to these.

Arm. How hast thou purchased this experience?

Moth. By my penny of observation.

Arm. But O,—but O,—

Moth. —the hobby-horse is forgot.

Arm. Callest thou my love, hobby-horse?

Moth. No, master; the hobby-horse is but a colt, and your love, perhaps, a hackney. But have you forgot your love?

Arm. Almost I had.

Moth. Negligent student! learn her by heart.

Arm. By heart, and in heart, boy.

Moth. And out of heart, master: all thou three I will prove.

Arm. What wilt thou prove?

Moth. A man, if I live; and this, by, in, and without, upon the instant: By heart you love her, because your heart cannot come by her; in heart you love her, because your heart is in love with her; and out of heart you love her, being out of heart that you cannot enjoy her.

Arm. I am all these three.

Moth. And three times as much more, and yet nothing at all.

Arm. Fetch hither the swain; he must carry me a letter.

Moth. A message well sympathised; a horse to be ambassador for an ass!

Arm. Ha, ha! what sayest thou?

Moth. Marry, Sir, you must send the ass upon the horse, for he is very slow-gaited: But I go.

Arm. The way is but short; away.

Moth. As swift as lead, Sir.

Arm. Thy meaning, pretty ingenious?

Is not lead a metal heavy, dull, and slow?

Moth. Munia[‡], honest master; or rather, master, no.

Arm. I say, lead is slow.

Moth. You are too swift, Sir, to say so.

Is that lead slow which is str'd from a gun?

Arm. Sweet smoke of rhetoric!

^e Hastily.

[†] A kind of dance.

[‡] Canary was the name of a sprightly dance.

[§] Dutch, ready.

Arm. What's her name, in the cup?
Boyet. Katherine, by good hap.
Arm. Is she wedded, or no?
Boyet. To her will, Sir, or no.
Arm. You are welcome, Sir; adieu!
Boyet. Farewell to me, Sir, and welcome to you. [Exit Boyet.—Ladies unmask.
Mr. That last is Biron, the merry mad-cap.
Not a word with him but a jest. [Loud;
Boyet. And every jest but a word.
Arm. It was well done of you to take him at his word.

Boyet. I was as willing to grapple, as he was to board.

Mr. Two hot sheeps, marry!

Boyet. And wherefore not sheeps? [Lips.
No sheep, sweet lamb, unless we feed on your

Mr. You sheep, and I pasture; shall that finish the jest?

Boyet. So you great pasture for me.

Mr. Not so, gentle beast; [Offering to kiss her.
My lips are no common, though several[§] they Boyet. Belonging to whom?

Mr. To my fortunes and me.

Arm. Good wits will be jangling: but, gentlemen, agree:

The civil war of wits were much better used
On Navarre and his back-men; for here 'tis shamed.

Boyet. If my observation, (which very seldom lies,) [eyes,
By the heart's still rhetoric, disclosed with

Desire me not now, Navarre is infected.

Arm. With what?

Boyet. With that which we lovers entitle,
affected.

Arm. Your reason?

Boyet. Why, all his behaviours did make their retire [sire:
To the court of his eye, peeping thorough de-

His heart, like an agate, with your print impressed,

Proud with his form, in his eye pride expressed:

His tongue, all impatient to speak and not see,
Did stumble with haste in his eye-sight to be.

All senses to that sense did make their repair,
To feel only looking on fairest of fair: [eye,
Methought, all his senses were lock'd in his

As jewels in crystal for some prince to buy;
Who, tawdring their own worth, from where they were glass'd,

Did point you to buy them, along as you pass'd.

His face's own margin did quote such amazes,
That all eyes saw his eyes enchanted with gazes:

I'll give you Aquitain, and all that is his,
As you give him for my sake but one loving kiss.

Arm. Come, to our pavilion: Boyet is dis-pos'd—Boyet. But to speak that in words, which his eye hath disclos'd:

I only have made a mouth of his eye,
By adding a tongue which I know will not lie.

Arm. Thou art an old love-monger, and speak'st skilfully.

Mr. He is Cupid's grandfather, and learns news of him.

Arm. Then was Venus like her mother; for her father is but grim.

Boyet. Do you hear my mad wenchas?

Mr. No.

Boyet. What then, do you see?

Arm. Ay, our way to be gone.

Boyet. You are too hard for me. [Exeunt.

[§] A quibble, several signified untried heads.

the bullet, that's

[he:—

[Exit.

soluble and free

I must sigh in

gives thee place.

STAND.

ere's a Costard*

le. come,—thy

no l'envoy; no

tain, a plain

no salve, Sir,

t laughter; thy heaving of my

s smiling: O, inconsiderate

word, l'envoy,

other? is not

or discourse,

uth tofore been [sain.

umble-bee,

at three.

ncoy.

Say the moral

le humble-bee,

at three:

ut of door,

ling four.

and do you fol-

umble-bee,

at three:

t of door,

four.

in the goose;

a bargain, a [fat.—

o your goose be

unning as fast

at's a fat goose.

er: How did

rd was broken

in; Thus came

goose that you

[bought;

here a Costard

, Moth; I will safely within,

ke my shin.

r in the shin.

anchise thee.

ng verses, which

address the poem

Cost. O, marry me to one Frances:—I mean some l'envoy, some goose, is this.

Arm. By my sweet soul, I mean, setting thee at liberty, enfranchising thy person; thou wert immured, restrained, captivated, bound.

Cost. True, true; and now you will be my purgation, and let me loose.

Arm. I give thee thy liberty, set thee from durance; and, in lieu thereof, impose on thee nothing but this: Bear this significant to the country maid Jaquenetta: there is remuneration; [Giving him money.] for the best ward of mine honour, is, rewarding my dependents. Moth, follow. [Exit.

Moth. Like the sequel, I,—Signior Costard, adieu.

Cost. My sweet ounce of man's flesh! my incony* Jew!— [Exit Moth.

Now will I look to his remuneration. Remuneration! O, that's the Latin word for three farthings: three farthings—remuneration.—What's the price of this inkle? a penny.—No, I'll give you a remuneration: why, it carries it.—Remuneration!—why, it is a fairer name than French crown. I will never buy and sell out of this word.

Enter BIRON.

Biron. O, my good knave Costard! exceedingly well met.

Cost. Pray you, Sir, how much carnation ribbon may a man buy for a remuneration?

Biron. What is a remuneration?

Cost. Marry, Sir, halfpenny farthing.

Biron. O, why then, three-farthings-worth of silk.

Cost. I thank your worship: God be with you!

Biron. O, stay, slave; I must employ thee: As thou wilt win my favour, good my knave, Do one thing for me that I shall entreat.

Cost. When would you have it done, Sir?

Biron. O, this afternoon.

Cost. Well, I will do it, Sir: Fare you well.

Biron. O, thou knowest not what it is.

Cost. I shall know, Sir, when I have done it.

Biron. Why, villain, thou must know first.

Cost. I will come to your worship to-morrow morning.

Biron. It must be done this afternoon. Hark, slave, it is but this;—

The princess comes to hunt here in the park, And in her train there is a gentle lady; When tongues speak sweetly, then they name her name,

And Rosaline they call her: ask for her; And to her white hand see thou do commend This seal'd-up counsel. There's thy guardon;† go. [Gives him money.

Cost. Guardon,—O sweet guardon! better than remuneration; elevenpence farthing better: Most sweet guardon!—I will do it, Sir, in print;—Guardon—remuneration. [Exit.

Biron. O!—And I, forsooth, in love! I, that have been love's whip;

A very beadle to a humorous sigh;

A critic; nay, a night-watch constable;

A domineering pedant o'er the boy,

Than whom no mortal so magnificent!

This wimpy, wining, purblind, wayward boy;

This senior-junior, giant-dwarf, Dan Cupid;

Regent of love-rhymes, lord of folded arms,

The appointed sovereign of sighs and groans,

Liege of all loiterers and malcontents,

* Delightful.

† With the utmost exactness.

‡ Reward.

§ Hooded, veiled.

Dread prince of plackets,* king of codpieces,
Sole imperator, and great general
Of trotting peritors,†—O my little heart!—
And I to be a corporal of his field,
And wear his colours like a tumbler's hoop!
What? I! I love! I sue! I seek a wife!
A woman, that is like a German clock,
Still a repairing; ever out of frame;
And never going aright, being a watch,
But being watch'd that it may still go right?
Nay, to be perjur'd, which is worst of all;
And, among three, to love the worst of all;
A whitely wanton with a velvet brow,
With two pitch balls stuck in her face for eyes;
Ay, and, by heaven, one that will do the deed,
Though Argus were her cunnich and her guard:
And I to sigh for her! to watch for her!
To pray for her! Go to; it is a plague
That Cupid will impose for my neglect
Of his mighty dreadful little might.
Well, I will love, write, sigh, pray, sue, and
green;
Some man must love my lady, and some Joan.
[Exit.]

ACT IV.

SCENE I.—Another part of the same.

Enter the PRINCESS, ROSALINE, MARIA, KATHARINE, BOYET, Lords, Attendants, and a FORESTER.

Prin. Was that the king, that spurr'd his horse so hard

Against the steep uprising of the hill?

Boyet. I know not; but, I think, it was not he.

Prin. Whoe'er he was, he show'd a mounting mind.

Well, lords, to-day we shall have our despatch;
On Saturday we will return to France.—

Then, forester, my friend, where is the bush,
That we must stand and play the murderer in?

For. Here by, upon the edge of yonder coppice;

A stand, where you may make the fairest shoot.

Prin. I thank my beauty, I am fair that shoot,
And thereupon thou speak'st, the fairest shoot.

For. Pardon me, madam, for I meant not so.

Prin. What, what? first praise me, and again say, no?

O short-liv'd pride! Not fair? alack for woe!

For. Yes, madam, fair.

Prin. Nay, never paint me now; [brow.
Where fair is not, praise cannot mend the

Here, good my glass, take this for telling true;
[Giving him money.]

Fair payment for foul words is more than due.

For. Nothing but fair is that which you inherit.

Prin. See, see, my beauty will be sav'd by O heresy in fair, fit for these days! [merit.]

A giving hand, though foul, shall have fair praise.—

But come, the bow:—Now mercy goes to kill,
And shooting well is then accounted ill.

Thus will I save my credit in the shoot:
Not wounding, pity would not let me do't;

If wounding, then it was to show my skill,
That more for praise, than purpose, meant to kill.

And, out of question, so it is sometimes;
Glory grows guilty of detested crimes; [part,

When, for fame's sake, for praise, an outward
We bend to that the working of the heart:

As I, for praise alone, now seek to spill. [ill.
The poor deer's blood, that my heart means no
Boyet. Do not curst wives hold that self-sovereignty

Only for praise's sake, when they strive to be Lords o'er their lords?

Prin. Only for praise: and praise we may
To any lady that subdues a lord. [afford

Enter COSTARD.

Prin. Here comes a member of the common-wealth.

Cost. God dig-you-dea* all! Pray you, which is the head lady?

Prin. Thou shalt know her, fellow, by the rest that have no heads.

Cost. Which is the greatest lady, the highest?

Prin. The thickest, and the tallest.

Cost. The thickest, and the tallest! it is so;
truth is truth. [wit,

An your waist, mistress, were as slender as my
One of these maids' girdles for your waist should be fit.

Are not you the chief woman? you are the thickest here.

Prin. What's your will, Sir? what's your will?

Cost. I have a letter from monsieur Biron, to one lady Rosaline.

Prin. O, thy letter, thy letter; he's a good friend of mine; [carve;

Stand aside, good bearer.—Boyet, you can break up this capon.†

Boyet. I am bound to serve.—

This letter is mistook, it importeth none here;
It is writ to Jaquenetta.

Prin. We will read it, I swear: [ear.

Break the neck of the wax, and every one give

Boyet. [Reads.] By heaven, that thou art fair, is most infallible; true, that thou art beauteous; truth itself, that thou art lovely: More fairer than fair, beautiful than beauteous; truer than truth itself, have commiseration on thy heroical vassal! The magnanimous and most illustrious king Cophetua set eye upon the pernicious and indubitate beggar Zenelophon; and he it was that might rightly say, veni, vidi, vici; which to anatomize in the vulgar, (O base and obscure vulgar!) videlicet, he came, saw, and overcame: he came, one; saw, two; overcame, three. Who came? the king; Why did he come? to see; Why did he see? to overcome: To whom came he? to the beggar; What saw he? the beggar; Who overcame he? the beggar: The conclusion is victory; On whose side? the king's: the captive is enrich'd; On whose side? the beggar's; The catastrophe is a nuptial; On whose side? the king's?—no, on both in one, or one in both. I am the king; for so stands the comparison: thou the beggar; for so witnesseth thy lowliness. Shall I command thy love? I may: Shall I enforce thy love? I could: Shall I entreat thy love? I will. What shalt thou exchange for rugs? robes; For tittles, titles; For thyself, me. Thus, expecting thy reply, I profane my lips on thy foot, my eyes on thy picture, and my heart on thy every part.

Thine, in the dearest design of industry,

DON ADRIANO DE ARMADO.

Thus dost thou hear the Nemean lion roar

'Gainst thee, thou lamb, that standest as his prey;

Submissive fall his princely feet before,

And he from forage will incline to play:

But if thou strive, poor soul, what art thou then?
Food for his rage, repasture for his den.

* Petticoats.

† The officers of the spiritual courts who serve citations.

* God give you good even.

† Illustrious.

† Open this letter.

LOVE'S LABOUR'S LOST.

[ACT IV.]

is he, that is—k? did you ever
but I remember bad, going o'er hard, that keeps [sport
one that makes tes.

give it?
y ich lady?
good master of
d Rosaline.
letter. Come,

be thine anoth-
ess and Truce.
is the suitor?
w?
eauty.
bow.

horns; but, if [carry.
that year mis-

oter.
?
orns, yourself:

er, Boyet, and ower: Have I

e with an old king Pepin of
ning the hit it!
e with one as aren Guinever
s touching the

ut it, [Singing.
good man.
not,

os and KATH.
ant! how both shot; for they

at that mark;
to mete at, if

I faith your earer, or he'll

then, belike
shot by cleav-

greasily, your pricks, Sir;

Boyet. I fear too much rubbing; Good night,
my good owl.

[Exit BOYET and MARIA.]

Cost. By my soul, a swain! a most simple clown!

Lord, lord! how the ladies and I have put him down!

O' my troth, most sweet jests! most incony
vulgar wit!

When it comes so smoothly off, so chacefully,
as it were, so fit.

Armato o' the one side,—O, a most dainty
To see him walk before a lady, and to bear her fan!

To see him kiss his hand! and how most sweetly a' will swear!—

And his page o' t' other side, that handful of Ah, heavens, it is a most pathological hit!

Sola, sola! [Shouting within.
[Exit CUSTARD, running.

SCENE II.—The same.

Enter HOLOFERNES, SIR NATHANIEL, and DULL.

Nath. Very reverent sport, truly; and done in the testimony of a good conscience.

Hol. The deer was, as you know, in sanguis,—blood; ripe as a pomewater,* who now hangeth like a jewel in the ear of cælo,—the sky, the welkin, the heaven; and anon falleth like a crab, on the face of terra,—the soil, the land, the earth.

Nath. Truly, master Holofernes, the epithets are sweetly varied, like a scholar at the least: But, Sir, I assure ye, it was a buck of the first head.

Hol. Sir Nathaniel, hand credo.

Dull. 'Twas not a hand credo, 'twas a pricket.

Hol. Most barbarous intimation! yet a kind of insinuation, as it were, in vis, in way, of explication; facere, as it were, replication, or rather, ostentare, to show, as it were, his inclination,—after his undressed, unpolished, uneducated, unpruned, untrained, or rather unlettered, or, ratherest, unconfirmed fashion,—
to insert again my hand credo for a deer.

Dull. I said, the deer was not a hand credo;
'twas a pricket.

Hol. Twice sod simplicity, his cactus!— O thou monster ignorance, how deformed dost thou look!

Nath. Sir, he hath never fed of the dainties that are bred in a book; he hath not eat paper,
as it were; he hath not drunk ink: his intellect is not replenished; he is only an animal,
only sensible in the duller parts;

And such barren plants are set before us, that we thankful should be

(Which we of taste and feeling are) for those parts that do fructify in us more than he.

For as it would ill become me to be vain, indiscreet, or a fool,

So, were there a patch set on learning, to see him in a school:

But, omne bene, say I; being of an old father's Many can brook the weather, that love not the wind.

Dull. You two are book-men: Can you tell
by your wit,

What was a month old at Cain's birth, that's not five weeks old as yet?

Hol. Dictynna, good man Dull; Dictynna, good man Dull.

* A species of apple

† A low fellow.

Dan. What is Dictynna?

Nath. A-Side to Phoebe, to Luna, to the moon.

Hol. The moon was a month old, when Adam was no more;

And mightst not to five weeks, when he came to five score.

The allusion holds in the exchange.

Dan. 'Tis true indeed; the collusion holds in the exchange.

Hol. God comfort thy capacity! I say, the allusion holds in the exchange.

Dan. And I say the pollution holds in the exchange; for the moon is never but a month old: and I say beside, that 'twas a prickot that the princess kill'd.

Hol. Sir Nathaniel, will you hear an extemporal epitaph on the death of the deer? and, to humour the ignorant, I have call'd the deer the princess kill'd, a prickot.

Nath. Pardon, good master Holofernes, pardon; as it shall please you to abrogate scurrility.

Hol. I will something affect the letter; for it argues facility.

The princely princess pierc'd and prick'd a pretty pleasing prickot;

Some say, a sore; but not a sore, till now made sore with shooting.

The dogs did yell; put I to sore, then sorel jumps from thicket;

Or prickot, sore, or else sorel; the people fall a laughing.

If sore be sore, then L to sore makes fifty sores; O sore L!

Of one sore I am hundred made, by adding but one more L.

Nath. A rare talent!

Dan. If a talent be a claw, look how he claws him with a talent.

Hol. This is a gift that I have, simple, simple; a foolish extravagant spirit, full of forms, figures, shapes, objects, ideas, apprehensions, notions, revolutions: these are begot in the ventricle of memory, nourished in the womb of the matter; and deliver'd upon the mellowing of occasion: But the gift is good in those in whom it is acute, and I am thankful for it.

Nath. Sir, I praise the Lord for you; and so may my parishioners; for their sons are well tutor'd by you, and their daughters profit very greatly under you: you are a good member of the commonwealth.

Hol. Mehercle, if their sons be ingenious, they shall want no instruction: if their daughters be capable, I will put it to them: But, vir sapit, qui parca loquitur: a soul feminine saileth us.

Enter JAQUENETTA and COSTARD.

Jaq. God give you good morrow, master person.

Hol. Master person,—quasi pers-on. And if one should be pierced, which is the one?

Cost. Marry, master schoolmaster, he that is likeliest to a hogshead.

Hol. Of piercing a hogshead! a good lustre of conceit in a turf of earth; fire enough for a flint, pearl enough for a swine: 'tis pretty; it is well.

Jaq. Good master parson, be so good as read me this letter; it was given me by Costard, and sent me from Don Armato: I beseech you, read it.

Hol. Fenestre, precor gelidâ quando pecus omne sub umbrâ

Ruminat,—and so forth. Ah, good old Mantuan! I may speak of thee as the traveller doth of Venice:

—Vinegia, Vinegia,

Chi non te vede, ei non te piglia.

Old Mantuan! old Mantuan! Who understandeth thee not, loves thee not.—Ut, re, sol, la, mi, fa.—Under pardon, Sir, what are the contents? or, rather, as Horace says in his—What, my soul, verses?

Nath. Ay, Sir, and very learned.

Hol. Let me hear a staff, a stanza, a verse; Lage, domine.

Nath. If love make me forsworn, how shall I swear to love?

Ah, never faith could hold, if not to beauty vowed!

Though to myself forsworn, to thee I'll faithful prove;

Those thoughts to me were oaks, to thee like osiers bowed.

Study his bias leaves, and makes his book thine eyes;

Where all those pleasures live, that art would comprehend:

If knowledge be the mark, to know thee shall suffice;

Well learned is that tongue, that well can thee commend:

All ignorant that soul, that sees thee without wonder;

(Which is to me some praise, that I thy parts admire;)

Thy eye Jove's lightning bears, thy voice his dreadful thunder,

Which, not to anger bent, is music, and sweet fire.

[wrong, Celestial, as thou art, oh pardon, love, this That sings heaven's praise with such an earthly tongue!

Hol. You find not the apostrophes, and so miss the accent: let me supervise the canzonet. Here are only numbers ratified; but, for the elegancy, facility, and golden cadence of poesy, caret. Ovidius Naso was the man: and why, indeed, Naso; but for smelling out the odoriferous flowers of fancy, the jerks of invention? Imitari, is nothing: so doth the hound his master, the ape his keeper, the tired horse^{*} his rider. But damosella virgin, was this directed to you?

Jaq. Ay, Sir, from one Monsieur Biron, one of the strange queen's lords.

Hol. I will overglance the superscript. To the snow-white hand of the most beauteous Lady Rosaline. I will look again on the intellect of the letter, for the nomination of the party writing to the person written unto:

Your Ladyship's in all desired employment, BIRON. Sir Nathaniel, this Biron is one of the votaries with the king; and here he hath framed a letter to a sequent of the stranger queen's, which, accidentally, or by the way of progression, hath miscarried.—Trip and go, my sweet; deliver this paper into the royal hand of the king; it may concern much: Stay not thy compliment; I forgive thy duty; adieu.

Jaq. Good Costard go with me.—Sir, God save your life!

Cost. Have with thee, my girl.

[Exit Cost. and Jaq.]

Nath. Sir, you have done this in the fear of God, very religiously; and, as a certain father saith—

* Reached.

* Horse adorned with ribands.

father, I do fear
turn to the ver-Nathaniel?

pen.
father's of a
before repast,
table with a
have with the pupil, under-will prove those either savouring
beseech your society, (saudi

most infallibly
I do invite you
panca verba.
game, and we [Exeunt.

of the same.

per.

ng the deer; I
pitch'd a toil;
at defiles; de-
down, wor-
and, and so say wit! By the Ajax: it kills
Well proved
love: if I do,
O, but her eye,
I would not Well, I do
and lie in my
and it hath melancholy;
and here my
one o' my son-
the fool sent down, sweeter
world, I would were in: Here
give him grace
up into a tree.

paper.

en!—Proceed,
him with thy taith secrets.—

the golden sun

on the rose,

rays have smole

down flows:

so bright

of the deep,

mine give light;

I do weep:

thee,

arose;

in me,

rief will show:

wilt keep me weep.

ou excel!

of mortal tell.—

I'll drop the

no is he comes

[Steps aside.

Enter LONGAVILLE, with a paper.

What, Longaville! and reading! listen, ear.

Hiron. Now, in thy likeness, one more fool, appear! [Aside.

Long. Ah me! I am forsworn.

Biron. Why, he comes in like a perjure, wearing papers. [Aside.

King. In love, I hope; Sweet fellowship in shame! [Aside.

Biron. One drunkard loves another of the name. [Aside.

Long. Am I the first that have been perjur'd

so?

Biron. [Aside] I could put thee in comfort;

not by two, that I know:

Thou mak'st the triumviry, the corner-cap of society, [plicity.

The shape of love's Tyburn that hangs up sin-

Long. I fear, these stubborn lines lack power to move:

O sweet Maria, empress of my love!

These numbers will I tear, and write in prose.

Biron. [Aside.] O, rhymes are guards on wanton Cupid's hose:

Disfigure not his slop.

Long. This same shall go.—

[He reads the sonnet.

Did not the heavenly rhetoric of thine eye

(Gainst whom the world cannot hold argument,)

Persuade my heart to this false perjury?

Vows, for thee broke, deserves not punishment.

A woman I forswore; but, I will prove,

Thou being a goddess, I forswore not thee:

My row was earthly, thou a heavenly love;

Thy grace being gain'd, cures all disgrace in me.

Vows are but breath, and breath a vapour is:

Then thou, fair sun, which on my earth dost

shine,

Exhalest this vapour row: in thee it is:

If broken then, it is no fault of mine;

If by me broke, What fool is not to wiser,

To lose an oath to win a paradise?

Biron. [Aside.] This is the liver vein, which makes flesh a delity;

A green goose, a goddess: pure, pure idolatry.

God amend us, God amend! we are much out

o' the way.

Enter DUMAIN, with a paper.

Long. By whom shall I send this?—Company I stay. [Stepping aside.

Biron. [Aside.] All hid, all hid, an old infant play:

Like a demi-god here sit I in the sky,

And wretched fools' secrets heedfully o'er-eyes.

More sacks to the mill! O heavens, I have my wish; [dish!

Dumain transform'd: four woodcocks in a

Dum. O most divine Kate!

Hiron. O most profane coxcomb! [Aside.

Dum. By heaven, the wonder of a mortal

eye!

Biron. By earth, she is but corporal; there you lie. [Aside.

Dum. Her amber hairs for soul have amber coted.*

Biron. An amber-colour'd raven was well noted. [Aside.

Dum. As upright as the cedar.

Biron. Stoop, I say;

Her shoulder is with child. [Aside.

Dum. As fair as day.

Biron. Ay, as some days; but then no sun must shine. [Aside.

Dum. O that I had my wish!

* Outstripped, surpassed.

Long. And I had mine!

King. And I mine too, good Lord! [Aside.

Biron. Ah, as I had mine: Is not that a good word? [Aside.

Dum. I would forget her; but a fever she brings in my blood, and will remember'd be.

Biron. A fever in your blood, why, then incline

Would let her out in snickers; Sweet misprision!

Dum. Once more I'll read the ode that I have writ.

Biron. Once more I'll mark how love can very wit. [Aside.

Dum. On a day, (alack the day!) Love, whose month is ever May,

Spied a blossom, passing fair,

Playing in the wanton air:

Through the velvet leaves the wind,

All unseen, 'gan passage find;

That the lover, sick to death,

Wish'd himself the heaven's breath.

Air, quoth he, thy cheeks may blow;

Air, would I might triumph so!

But alack, my hand is sworn,

Ne'er to pluck thee from thy thorn:

Vow, alack, for youth unmet;

Youth so apt to pluck a sweet.

Do not call it sin in me,

That I am forsworn for thee:

Then for whom even Jove would swear,

Juno but an Ethiop were;

And deny himself for Jove,

Turning mortal for thy love.

This will I send; and something else more plain,

That shall express my true love's fasting pain.

O, would the King, Biron, and Longaville,

Were lovers too! Ill, to example ill,

Would from my forehead wipe a perjur'd note;

For none offend, where all alike do dote.

Long. Dumain, [Advancing.] thy love is far from charity,

That in love's grief desir'st society:

You may look pale, but I should blush I know,

To be o'erheard, and taken napping so.

King. Come, Sir, [Advancing.] you blush;

as his your case is such;

You chide at him, offending twice as much:

You do not love Maria; Longaville

Did never sonnet for her sake compile;

Nor never lay his wreathed arms athwart

His loving bosom, to keep down his heart.

I have been closely shrouded in this bush,

And mark'd you both, and for you both did blush.

I heard your guilty rhymes, observ'd your

low sighs reek from you, noted well your passion:

Ah me! says one; O Jove! the other cries;

One, her hairs were gold, crystal the other's eyes:

You would for paradise break faith and troth;

And Jove, for your love, would infringe an oath.

What will Biron say, when that he shall hear

A faith infrag'd, which such a zeal did swear?

How will he scorn? how will he spend his wit?

How will he triumph, leap, and laugh at it?

For all the wealth that ever I did see,

I would not have him know so much by me.

Biron. Now step I forth to whip hypocrisy.—

Ah, good my liege, I pray thee pardon me:

[Descends from the tree.

Good heart, what grace hast thou, thus to re-

prove

These worms for loving, that art most in love?

Your eyes do make no coaches; in your tears,

There is no certain princess that appears:

You'll not be perjur'd, 'tis a hateful thing;

Tush, none but minstrels like of sonneting.

But are you not ashamed? nay, are you not,

All three of you, to be thus much o'ershot?

You found his mote; the king your mote did

But I a beam do find in each of three. [See;

O, what a scene of foolery I have seen,

Of sighs, of groans, of sorrow, and of teen!

O me, with what strict patience have I sat,

To see a king transformed to a gnat!

To see great Hercules whipping a gig,

And profound Solomon to tune a jig,

And Nestor play at push-pin with the boys,

And critic Timon laugh at idle toys!

Where lies thy grief, O tell me, good Dumain?

And, gentle Longaville, where lies thy pain?

And where my liege's? all about the breast—

A candle, ho!

King. Too bitter is thy jest.

Are we betray'd thus to thy over-view?

Biron. Not you by me, but I betray'd to you,

I, that am honest; I, that hold it sin

To break the vow I am engaged in;

I am betray'd, by keeping company

With moon-like men, of strange inconstancy.

When shall you see me write a thing in rhyme?

Or groan for Joan? or spend a minute's time

In pruningg me? When shall you hear that I

Will praise a hand, a foot, a face, an eye,

A gait, a state, a brow, a breast, a waist,

A leg, a limb?

King. Soft; Whither away so fast?

A true man, or a thief, that gallops so?

Biron. I post from love; good lover, let me go.

Enter JAQUENETTA and COSTARD.

Jag. God bless the king!

King. What present hast thou there?

Cost. Some certain treason.

King. What makes treason here?

Cost. Nay, it makes nothing, Sir.

King. If it mar nothing neither, [geth

The treason, and you, go in peace away to—

Jag. I beseech your grace, let this letter be read;

Our parson misdoubts it; 'twas reason, he said.

King. Biron, read it over.

[Giving him the letter.

Where hadst thou it?

Jag. Of Costard.

King. Where hadst thou it?

Cost. Of Dun Adramadio, Dun Adramadio.

King. How now! what is in you? why dost thou tear it?

Biron. A toy, my liege, a toy; your grace needs not fear it.

Long. It did move him to passion, and therefore let's hear it.

Dum. It is Biron's writing, and here is his name. [Picks up the pieces.

Biron. Ah, you whorson loggerhead, [To

COSTARD.] you were born to do me

shame.—

Guilty, my lord, guilty; I confess, I confess.

King. What?

Biron. That you three fools lack'd me fool to make up the mess:

He, he, and you, my liege, and I,

Are pick-purses in love, and we deserve to die.

O, dismiss this audience, and I shall tell you

more.

Dum. Now the number is even.

* Grief. † Cynic. ‡ In trimming myself.

LOVE'S LABOUR'S LOST.

true; we are four :—
 Let us be gone?
 — Sirs; away.
 — Beside the true folk, and let the stay. [Exit COST. and JAC.
 lords, sweet lovers, O let us
 be!
 — are, as flesh and blood can be:
 and flow, heaven show his face;
 and will not obey an old decree:
 is the cause why we were born;
 — hands must we be forsworn.
 — did these rent lines show some thine?
 — hey, quoth you? Who sees the only Rosaline,
 — le and savage man of Inde,
 — t opening of the gorgeous east,
 — assal head; and, stricken blind,
 — base ground with obedient
 — y eagle sighted eye [breast?
 — upon the heaven of her brow,
 — ded by her majesty?
 — zeal, what fury hath inspir'd
 w?
 — mistress, is a gracious moon;
 — nding star, scarce seen a light.
 — us are then no eyes, nor I Birón:
 — y love, day would turn to night!
 — ions the cull'd sovereignty
 — as at a fair, in her fair cheek;
 — worthies make one dignity;
 — thing wants, that want itself doth
 — ourish of all gentle tongues,—
 — ed rhetoric! O, she needs it not:
 — le a seller's praise belongs;
 — s praise; then praise too short ul.
 — mit, five-score winters worn,
 — ke off fifty, looking in her eye:
 — arnish age, as if new-born,
 — the crutch the cradle's infancy.
 — that maketh all things shine!
 — ven, thy love is black as ebony.
 — ny like her! O wood divine!
 — uch wood were felicity.
 — ve an oath? where is a book?
 — swear, beauty doth beauty lack,
 — n not of her eye to look:
 — fair, that is not full so black.
 — adox! Black is the badge of hell,
 — of dungeons, and the scowl of
 — rest becomes the heavens well.
 — is soonest tempt, resembling
 of lights.
 — ny lady's brows be deckt,
 — that painting, and usurping hair,
 — deters with a false aspect;
 — fore is she born to make black
 — ne the fashion of the days;
 — blood is counted painting now;
 — red, that would avoid dispraise,
 — elf black, to imitate her brow.
 — k like her, are chimney-sweepers
 — since her time, are colliers count-
 — ight.
 — thops of their sweet complexion
 — needs no candles now, for dark
 — t
 — mistresses dare never come in
 — away.
 — heir colours should be wash'd

King. 'Twere good, your grace
 tell you plain,
 I'll find a fairer face not w Birón. I'll prove her fair, or day here.
 King. No devil will fright th
 as she.
 Dum. I never knew man h
 dear.
 Long. Look, here's thy lov
 her face see. [J
 Birón. O, if the streets w thine eyes,
 Her feet were much too
 Dum. O vile! then as she go
 lies
 The street should see as King. But what of this? A
 love?
 Birón. O, nothing so sure;
 forsworn.
 King. Then leave this chat;
 now prove
 Our loving lawful, and o
 Dum. Ay, marry, there;—
 this evil.
 Long. O, some authority be Some tricks, some quillots,
 devil.
 Dum. Some saive for perjur Birón. O, 'tis more than me
 Have at you then, affection's
 Consider, what you first did s
 To fast,—to study,—and to m
 Flat treason 'gainst the king!
 Say, can you fast? your stomach
 And abstinence engenders me
 And where that you have vow'
 In that each of you hath forsw
 Can you still dream, and p look?
 For when would you, my lord
 Have found the ground of stu
 Without the beauty of a woman
 From women's eyes this doct
 They are the ground, the bool
 From whence doth spring the Why, universal plodding pris
 The nimble spirits in the arts
 As motion, and long during s
 The sinewy vigour of the tra
 Now, for not looking on a w
 You have in that forsworn th
 And study too, the causer of
 For where is any author in th
 Teaches such beauty as a wo
 Learning is but an adjunct to
 And where we are, our learn
 Then, when ourselves we see
 Do we not likewise see our h
 O, we have made a vow to st
 And in that vow we have for
 For when would you, my lieg
 In leaden contemplation, hav
 Such sery numbers, as the pr
 Of beauteous tutors have ear
 Other slow arts entirely keep
 And therefore finding barren Scarce show a harvest of thei
 But love, first learned in a la
 Lives not alone immured in th
 But with the motion of all ele
 Courses as swift as thought u
 And gives to every power a d
 Above their functions and the

It adds a precious seeing to the eye;
A lover's eyes will gaze an eagle blind;
A lover's ear will hear the lowest sound,
When the suspicious head of theft is stopp'd;
Love's feeling is more soft, and sensible,
Than are the tender horns of cockled snails;
Love's tongue proves dainty Bacchus' groes in
For valour, is not love a Hercules, [taste:
Still climbing trees in the Hesperides?
Subtle as spunk; as sweet and musical,
As bright Apollo's lute, strung with his hair;
And, when love speaks, the voice of all the gods

Makes heaven drowsy with the harmony.
Never durst poet touch a pen to write,
Until his ink were temper'd with love's sighs;
O, then his lines would ravish savage ears,
And plant in tyrants mild humility.
From women's eyes this doctrine I derive:
They sparkle still the right Promethean fire;
They are the books, the arts, the academes,
That show, contain, and nourish all the world;
Else, none at all in aught proves excellent:
Then fools you were these women to forswear;
Or, keeping what is sworn, you will prove fools.

For wisdom's sake, a word that all men love;
Or for love's sake, a word that loves all men;
Or for men's sake, the authors of these women;
Or women's sake, by whom we men are men;
Let us once lose our oaths, to find ourselves,
Or else we lose ourselves to keep our oaths:
It is religion to be thus forsworn;
For charity itself fulfils the law;
And who can sever love from charity?

King. Saint Cupid, then! and, soldiers, to [Enter Soldiers]

Biron. Advance your standards, and upon them lords;

Pell-mell, down with them! but be first advis'd,
Is conflict that you get the sun of them.

Long. Now to plain-dealing; lay these gloves
by.

Shall we resolve to woo these girls of France?

King. And win them too: therefore let us devise

Some entertainment for them in their tents.

Biron. First, from the park let us conduct them thither;

Then, homeward, every man attach the hand
Of his fair mistress: in the afternoon
We will with some strange pastime solace them,
Such as the shortness of the time can shape;
For revels, dances, masks, and merry hours,
We run fair Love, strewing her way with flowers.

King. Away, away! no time shall be omitted,
That will be time, and may by us be fitted.

Biron. Allons! Allons!—Sow'd cockle reap'd
no corn; [sure:

And justice always whirls in equal measure; light wenches may prove plagues to men for-sworn;

If so, our copper buys no better treasure.

[Exeunt.

ACT V.

SCENE I.—Another part of the same.

Enter HOLOFERNES Sir NATHANIEL, and DULL.

Hol. Satis quod sufficit.

Nath. I praise God for you, Sir: your reasons* at dinner have been sharp and sententious; pleasant without scurrility, witty without affectation,† audacious without impudency,

* Discourses.

† Affectation.

learned without opinion, and strange without heresy. I did converse this quondam day with a companion of the king's, who is intituled,
nominated, or called, Don Adriano de Armado.

Hol. Novi hominem tanquam te: His humour is lofty, his discourse peremptory, his tongue
fiend, his eye ambitious, his gait majestical,
and his general behaviour vain, ridiculous, and theatrical.* He is too picked,† too spruce, too affected, too odd, as it were, too perigrinate
as I may call it.

Nath. A most singular and choice epithet.

[Takes out his table-book.

Hol. He draweth out the thread of his verbosity finer than the staple of his argument. I abhor such fanatical phantasies, such unsoothable and point-devise; companions; such rackers of orthography, as to speak, doubt, fine, when he should say, doubt; det, when he should pronounce, debt; d, e, b, t; not d, e, t: he clepeth a calf, cauf; half, hauf; neighbour, vocatur, nebour, neigh, abbreviated, ne: This is abominable, (which he would call abominable,) it insinuateth me of insanie; *Ne intelligit
domine?* to make frantic, lunatic.

Nath. Laud deo, bone intelligo.

Hol. Bone?—bone, for bend: Priscian a little scratch'd; 'twill serve.

Enter ARMADO, MOTH, and COSTARD.

Nath. Videamus quis venit?

Hol. Vide, et gaudes.

Arm. Chirra!

[To Moth.

Hol. Quare Chirra, not sirrah?

Arm. Men of peace, well encounter'd.

Hol. Most military Sir, salutation.

Moth. They have been at a great feast of languages, and stolen the scraps.

[To COSTARD aside.

Cost. O, they have lived long in the alms-basket of words! I marvel, thy master hath not eaten thee for a word; for thou art not so long
by the head as honorificabilitudinitatibus: thou art easier swallowed than a flap-dragon.‡

Moth. Peace; the peal begins.

Arm. Monsieur, [To Hol.] are you not let-
ter'd?

Moth. Yes, yee; he teaches boys the horn-book:—

What is a, b, spelt backward with a horn on his head?

Hol. Ba, pueritia, with a horn added.

Moth. Ba, most silly sheep, with a horn:—
You hear his learning.

Hol. Quis, quis, thou consonant?

Moth. The third of the five vowels, if you repeat them; or the fifth, if I.

Hol. I will repeat them, a, e, i.—

Moth. The sheep: the other two concludes it;
o, u.

Arm. Now, by the salt wave of the Mediterranean, a sweet touch,|| a quick venew of wit: snip, snap, quick and home; it rejoiceth
my intellect; true wit.

Moth. Offer'd by a child to an old man;
which is wit-old.

Hol. What is the figure? what is the figure?

Moth. Horns.

Hol. Thou disputest like an infant: go,
whip thy gig.

Moth. Lend me your horn to make one, and I will whip about your infamy circum circa;
A gig of a cuckold's horn!

Cost. An I had but one penny in the world,

* Boastful. † Over-dressed. ‡ Fictitious exactness.

|| A small inflammable substance, swallowed in a glass of wine. ¶ A hit.

LOVE'S LABOUR'S LOST.

gingerbread:
ration I had of se of wit, thou
an the heavens
ert but my bas-ist thou make dunghill, at the dunghill for we will be
o you not edu-
on the top of

for the moun-
at sweet pleas-
ate the princess
ers of this day;
the afternoon.
ay, most gene-
and measurable
is well cull'd,
ure you, Sir, I

ble gentleman;
ou, very good etween us, let remember thy
parel thy head;
e and most ac-
import indeed,
I must tell thee,
the world) someoulder; and with
with my excre-
t sweet heart,
I recount no fa-
ours it pleaseth
ado, a soldier,
een the world:
of all is,—but,
ecrecy,—that the
at the princess,
ightful ostenta-
antick, or fire-
that the curate
at such crup-
out of mirth, as u withal, to the

t before her the
as concerning
me show in the
ndered by our ask, and this most ed gentleman,—
one so fit as to nd men worthy self, or this gal-

arus; thuswain,
point, shall pass
Hercules.

is not quantify
nb he is not so

he shall present
er and exit shall
I will have an

so, if any of the † Confidential.

‡ Cluck.

audience hiss, you may cry:
cules! now thou crushest the one way to make an offence gracious
have the grace to do it.

Arm. For the rest of the wor

Hol. I will play three myself!

Moth. Thrice-worthy gentles

Arm. Shall I tell you a thing?

Hol. We attend.

Arm. We will have, if this antick. I beseech you, follow

Hol. Viz.† goodman Dull!

ken no word all this while.

Dull. Nor understood none!

Hol. Alas! we will employ

Dull. I'll make one in a dan will play on the tabor to the w them dance the hay.

Hol. Most dull, honest Dul

away.

SCENE II.—Another part of t
the PRINCESS' Pavi

Enter the PRINCESS, KATHAR and MARIA.

Prin. Sweet hearts, we shal
depart,

If fairings come thus plentiful

A lady wall'd about with diam

Look you, what I have from th

Ros. Madam, came nothing

that?

Prin. Nothing but this? ye

in rhyme,

As would be cramm'd up in a

Writ on both sides the leaf, m

That he was fain to seal on C

Ros. That was the way to m wax;‡

For he hath been five thousand

Kath. Ay, and ashrewd unph

Ros. You'll ne'er be frien kill'd your sister.

Kath. He made her melas

heavy;

And so she died: had she bee

Of such a merry, nimble, stin

She might have been a grand

And so may you: for a light

Ros. What's your dark m

of this light word?

Kath. A light condition in

Ros. We need more light t ing out.

Kath. You'll mar the light,

snuff;||

Therefore, I'll darkly end the

Ros. Look, what you do,

i'the dark.

Kath. So do not you; for wench.

Ros. Indeed, I weigh not fore light.

Kath. You weigh me no care not for me.

Ros. Great reason; for, I past care.

Prin. Well bandied both;

play'd.

But Rosaline, you have a fav

Who sent it? and what is it?

Ros. I would, you knew:

An if my face were but as fa

My favour were as great; be

* Suit. † Courage.
‡ Formerly a term of endearment

me too, I thank thee: [two me; such were the stumbling
in golden on the ground:
a twenty thousand firs.
in my picture in his letter!
ing like?

a the letters; nothing in the

as as left; a good conclusion.

a text B in a copy-book.

small! How! let me not die
here,

oh, my golden letter:

o were not as full of O's!

of that jest! and bestow all

! not was sent to you from this

it

, this glove.

not send you turn?

advice; and moreover,

rumor of a faithful lover:

inn of hypocrisy.

profound simplicity.

I these pearls, to me sent Lon-

long by half a mile.

no less: Dost thou not wish in langer, and the letter short?

would these hands might never rise girls, to mock our lovers so.

were fools to purchase mock-

: I'll torture ere I go.

he were but in by the week!

like him slain, and bag, and

soon, and observe the times,

edical wits in bootless rhymes;

service wholly to my behests;

would to make me proud that would I o'erway his state,

as my fool, and I his fate.

as so surely caught, when they

h'd.

id: folly, in wisdom hatch'd,

arrant, and the help of school;

race to grace a learned fool.

I of youth burns not with such

it to wantonness.

sole bears not so strong a note,

: wise, when wit doth dote;

var thereof it doth apply,

, worth in simplicity.

Enter BOYET.

me Boyet, and mirth is in

am stabb'd with laughter!

her grace?

va, Boyet?

e, madam, prepare!—

um! encounters mounted are

are: Love doth approach dis-

ants; you'll be surpris'd:

s; stand in your own defence;

as like cowards, and fly hence.

temis to saint Cupid! What breath against us! say, scout,

the cool shade of a sycamore,

I thought to close mine eyes some half an hour

When, lo! to interrupt my purpos'd rest,

Toward that shade I might behold address'd

The king and his companions warily

I stole into a neighbour thicket by.

And overheard what you shall overhear;

That, by and by, disguis'd they will be here.

Their herald is a pretty knavish page,

That well by heart hath conn'd his embassage:

Action, and accent, did they teach him there;

Thus must thou speak, and thus thy body bear;

And ever and anon they made a doubt,

Presence majestic would put him out:

For, quoth the king, an angel shalt thou see;

Yet fear not thou, but speak audaciously.

The boy replied, An angel is not erid:

I should have fear'd her, had she been a devil.

With that all laugh'd, and clapp'd him on the shoulder;

Making the bold wag by their praises holder.

One rubb'd his elbow, thus; and fear'd, and swore.

A better speech was never spoke before:

Another, with his finger and his thumb,

Cried, Vin! we will do't, come what will come:

The third he caper'd, and cried, All goes well;

The fourth turn'd on the toe, and down he fell.

With that, they all did tumble on the ground,

With such a zealous laughter, so profound,

That in this spleen ridiculous appears,

To check their folly, passion's solemn tears.

Prim. But what, but what, come they to visit

us?

Boyet. They do, they do; and are apparel'd

thus.—

Like Muscovites, or Russians: as I guess,

Their purpose is, to parle, to court, and dance:

And every one his love-feat will advance

Unto his several mistress; which they'll know

By favours several, which they did bestow.

Prim. And will they so? the gallants shall be task'd:—

For, ladies, we will every one be mask'd;

And not a man of them shall have the grace

Despite of suit, to see a lady's face.—

Hold, Rosaline, this favour thou shalt wear;

And then the king will court thee for his dear;

Hold, take thou this, my sweet, and give me

thine;

So shall Birón take me for Rosaline.—

And change you favours too; so shall your loves

Woo contrary, deceiv'd by these remove.

Ros. Come on then; wear the favours meet in sight.

Kath. But, in this changing, what is your intent?

Prim. The effect of my intent is, to cross theirs:

They do it but in mocking merriment;

And mock for mock is only my intent.

Their several counsels they unbosom shall

To loves mistook; and so be mock'd withal,

Upon the next occasion that we meet,

With visages display'd, to talk, and greet.

Ros. But shall we dance, if they desire us to't?

Prim. No; to the death, we will not move a foot:

Nor to their pleas'd speech render we no grace;

But, while 'tis spoke, each turn away her face.

Boyet. Why, that contempt will kill the speaker's heart,

And quite divorce his memory from his part.

Prim. Therefore I do it; and, I make no doubt,

The rest will ne'er come in, if he be out.

There's no such sport, as sport by sport e'er

thrown;

To make theirs ours, and ours none but ours own!

LOVE'S LABOUR'S LOST.

working intended game;
 3, depart away with shame.
[Trumpets sound within.
at sounds; be mask'd, the
oe. [The ladies mask.

ON, LONGVILLE, and DUbnts, and masked; MOTH,
 ndants.

richest beauties on the earth!
 e richer than rich taffata.
 of the fairest dames,
 turn their backs to him.
 backs—to mortal views!
 villain, their eyes.
 urned their eyes to mortal

indeed.
 favours, heavenly spirits, [vouchsafe id, rogue.
 old your sun-beamed eyes,
 named eyes—
 ot answer to that epithet;
 e, daughter beamed eyes.
 mark me, and that brings perfectness? be gone, you ese strangers? know their language, 'tis our will recount their purposes:

 ld.
 d you with the princess?
 peace, and gentle visita-

hey, say they?
 peace, and gentle visita-

ey have; and bid them so ou have it, and you may we have measur'd many ith her on this grass.
 hat they have measur'd

ith you on this grass.
 ask them, how many inches
 y have measur'd many,
 one is easily told.
 ither you have measur'd

e princess bids you tell,
 fill up one mile.
 e measure them by weary

erself.
 eary steps,
 ou have o'ergone,
 ravel of one mile?
 nothing that we spend for e, infinite, [you;
 all without accmpt.
 e sunshine of your face,
 a, may worship it.
 a moon, and clouded too.
 e clouds, to do as such

oon, and these thy stars,
 d,) upon our wat'ry eyne.
 ner! beg a greater matter;
 ut moonshine in the water.

King. Then, in our mean safe one change:
 Thou bid'st me beg; this beg
 Ros. Play, music, then:
 soon.

Not yet;—no dance:—thou
 moon.

King. Will you not dance
 thus estrang'd?

Ros. You took the moon
 she's chang'd.

King. Yet still she is the m
 The music plays; vouchsafe

Ros. Our ears vouchsafe
 King. But your legs show

Ros. Since you are strang
 by chance,

We'll not be nice: take ha
 dance.

King. Why take we hanc
 Ros. Only to part friends

Court'ay, sweet hearts; a King. More measure of not nice.

Ros. We can afford no m
 King. Prize you yourself
 company?

Ros. Your absence only.
 King. That can never be.

Ros. Then cannot we be be Twice to your visor, and ha

King. If you deny to dar chat.

Ros. In private then.
 King. I am best pleas'd

[
 Biron. White handed w
 word with thee.

Prin. Honey, and milk, a three.

Biron. Nay then, two trey
 so nice,)

Metheglin, wort, and malma
 There's half a dozen sweets

Prin. Seventh sweet, ad
 Since you can cog, I'll play

Biron. One word in secr
 Prin. Let it not be sweet.

Biron. Thou griev'st my Prin. Gall? bitter.

Biron. Therefore most.

[
 Dam. Will you vouchsafe
 a word?

Mar. Name it.
 Dam. Fair lady,—

Mar. Say you so? Fair l
 Take that for your fair lady

Dam. Please it you,
 As much in private, and I'll

[
 Kath. What, was your vi
 tongue?

Long. I know the reason,
 Kath. O, for your reason!

Long. You have a double mask,

And would afford my speec
 Kath. Veal, quoth the D

Long. A calf, fair lady?
 Kath. No, a fair lord calf

Long. Let's part the word
 Kath. No, I'll not be you

Take all, and wean it; it m

Long. Look, how you hurt yourself in these sheep necks!

Will you give better, chaste lady? do not so.

Kath. Take this a calf, before your hands do grow.

Long. I had need to private with you, ere I die.

Kath. What softly then, the butcher hears you cry. [They converse apart.

Boyet. The tongues of mocking wenchas are as keen

As is the year's edge invisible,
Cutting a smaller hair than may be seen;

Above the sun of sense: so something
Janneth their countenance; their comcoils have wings,

Faster than arrows, bullets, wind, thought,
quicker things.

do. Not one word more, my maids; break off, break off.

Biron. My heaven, all dry-beaten with pure wit!

King. Farewell, mad wenchas; you have simple wits.

[Exeunt KING, LORDS, MORN, MUSIC and ATTENDANTS.

Prin. Twenty fellows my father Muscovites—
Are these the breed of wits as wonder'd at?

Boyet. Tapers they are, with your sweet burning puff'd out.

Bo. Well-fitting wits they have; green, green; fat, fat.

Prin. O poverty in wit, kingly-poor first!
Will they not, thank you, hang themselves to-night?

Or over, hat in vices, show their faces?
His put Biron was out of countenance quite.

Bo. O! they were all in lamentable cases!
The king was weeping-tips for a good word.

Prin. Biron did swear himself out of all suit.

Mr. Dumaiz was at my service, and his sword:

Boyet, "quoth I; and my servant straight was mute.

Kath. Lord Longaville said, I came o'er his
And drew you, what he call'd me? [heart;

Prin. Oaths, perhaps.

Kath. Yes, in good faith.

Prin. Go, sickness as thou art!

Bo. Well, better wits have worn plain state-caps.

But will you hear? the king is my love sworn.

Prin. And quick Biron hath plighted faith to me.

Kath. And Longaville was for my service born.

Mr. Dumaiz is mine, as sure as bark on tree.

Boyet. Madam, and pretty mistresses, give Immediately they will again be here [ear:

In their own shapes; for it can never be,
They will digest this harsh indignity.

Prin. Will they return?

Boyet. They will, they will, God knows;
And leap for joy, though they are lame with blows:

Readers, change favours; and, when they repair,
How like sweet roses in the summer air.

Prin. How blow? how blow? speak to be understood.

Boyet. Fair ladies, mark'd, are roses in their bud:

Mark'd, their damask sweet commixture
Are angels veiling clouds, or roses blown.

Prin. Aye, aye, perplexity! What shall we do,
If they return in their own shapes to woo?

* A quibble on the French adverb of negation.
† Their wits may be found among children.
‡ Between, countenance.

Rea. Good madam, if by me you'll be advis'd,
Let's mock them still, as well known, as disguis'd:

Let us complain to them what fools were here,
Disguis'd like Muscovites, in shapeless gear;
And wonder, what they were; and to what end
Their shallow shows, and prologue vilely penn'd,
And their rough carriage so ridiculous,
Should be presented at our tent to us.

Boyet. Ladies, withdraw; the gallants are at hand.

Prin. Whip to our tents, as soon run over land.
[Exeunt PRIN, ROS, KATH, and MARIA.

Enter the KING, BIRON, LONGAVILLE, and DUMAIZ, in their proper habits.

King. Fair Sir, God save you! Where is the princess?

Boyet. Gone to her tent, Please it your majesty—
Command me any service to her father? [ty,

King. That she vouchsafe me audience for one word.

Boyet. I will; and so will she; I know, my lord.

Biron. This fellow peeks up wit, as pigeons pease;

And utters it again when God doth please:
He is wit's pedlar; and retails his wares

At wakes, and wassels, meetings, markets, fairs,
And we that sell by gross, the Lord doth know,

Have not the grace to grace it with such show.
This gallant pins the wenchas on his sleeve;

Had he been Adam, he had tempted Eve:
He can carve too, and lip: Why, this is he,

That kiss'd away his hand in courtesy;
This is the ape of form, monsieur the nice,

That, when he plays at tables, chides the dice
In honourable terms; nay, he can sing

A mean; most meanly; and, in ushering,
Mend him who can: the ladies call him, sweet;

The stairs, as he treads on them, kiss his feet:
This is the flower that smiles on every one,

To show his teeth as white as whales' bone; †
And consciences, that will not die in debt,

Pay him the due of honey-tongued Boyet.

King. A blister on his sweet tongue, with my heart,

That put Armado's page out of his part!

Enter the PRINCESS, ushered by BOYET; ROSALINE, MARIA, KATHARINE, and ATTENDANTS.

Biron. See where it comes!—Behaviour, what wert thou, [now?

Till this man show'd thee? and what art thou

King. All hail, sweet madam, and fair time of day!

Prin. Fair, in all hail, is foul, as I conceive.

King. Construe my speeches better, if you may.

Prin. Then wish me better, I will give you leave.

King. We came to visit you; and purpose now [then,

To lead you to our court; vouchsafe it

Prin. This field shall hold me; and so hold your vow:

Nor God, nor I, delight in perjur'd men.

King. Rebuke me not for that which you provoke;

The virtue of your eye must break my oath.

Prin. You nick-name virtue; vice you should have spoke;

For virtue's office never breaks men's troth.

* Unsmooth. † Rustic merry-meetings.
‡ The tender in music. § The tooth of the horse-whale.

as pure
test,
ould endure,
house's guest:
e to be tegrity.
olation here,
our shame.
at so, I swear;
e, and pleasant
of late.
as?

and of state.
It is not so, my days," [lord;
praise.
re with four
d an hour.
our, my lord,
happy word
this I think,
ould fain have

—Fair, gentle [greet ish; when we fiery eye, capacity
uge store
rich things but ed rich; for in poverty.
cloth to you be-
rom my tongue.
that I possess.

as it, that you nsort why de-hat superfluous
the better face.
ll mock us now
n it to a jest.
hy looks your he'll swoon!

Muscovy.
own plagues for onger out?—
ll at me;
ound me with [rance;
ough my igno-
een conceit;
to dance,
habit wait.
pen'd,
boy's tongue;
end, t
nd harper's
rise, [song:
nce affectation,
n r-dies
got ostentation:

I do forswear them: and I here protest,
By this white glove, (how white the hand, God knows!)
Henceforth my wooing mind shall be express'd
In russet yeas, and honest kersey noes:
And, to begin wench,—so God help me, la!—
My love to thee is sound, sans crack or flaw.
Ros. Sans sans, I pray you.

Biron. Yet I have a trick
(Of the old rage:—bear with me, I am sick;
I'll leave it by degrees. Soft, let us see;—
Write, Lord have mercy on us, on those three;
They are infected, in their hearts it lies;
They have the plague, and caught it of your
eyes:

These lords are visited; you are not free,
For the Lord's tokens on you do I see.
Prin. No, they are free, that gave these tokens to us.

Biron. Our states are forfeit, seek not to undo us.

Ros. It is not so; For how can this be true,
That you stand forfeit, being those that sue?

Biron. Peace; for I will not have to do with
you.

Ros. Nor shall not, if I do as I intend.
Biron. Speak for yourselves, my wit is at an end.

King. Teach us, sweet madam, for our rude transgression
Some fair excuse.

Prin. The fairest is confession.
Were you not here, but even now disguis'd?

King. Madam, I was.
Prin. And were you well advis'd?

King. I was, fair madam.
Prin. When you then were here,

What did you whisper in your lady's ear?
King. That more than all the world I did respect her.

Prin. When she shall challenge this, you will reject her.

King. Upon mine honour, no.
Prin. Peace, peace, forbear; [swear.

Your oath once broke, you force* not to for-King. Despise me, when I break this oath of mine.

Prin. I will; and therefore keep it:—Hous-line.

What did the Russian whisper in your ear?
Ros. Madam, he swore, that he did hold me
dear

As precious eye-sight; and did value me
Above this world: adding thereto, moreover,
That he would wed me, or else die my lover.

Prin. God give thee joy of him! the noble lord
Must honourably doth uphold his word.

King. What mean you, madam? by my life,
my troth,

I never swore this lady such an oath.
Ros. By heaven, you did; and to confirm it plain,

You gave me this: but take it, Sir, again.
King. My faith, and this, the princess I did give;

I knew her by this jewel on her sleeve.
Prin. Pardon me, Sir, this jewel did she
wear;

And lord Biron, I thank him, is my dear:—
What; will you have me, or your pearl again?

Biron. Neither of either; I remit both twain.
I see the trick on't;—Here was a consent,†
(Knowing beforehand of our merriment,)

To dash it like a Christmas comedy: (sany,‡ some carry-tale, some please-man, some slight

* Misnomer.

* Make no difficulty. † Conspiracy. ‡ Buffoon.

Some humble-pate, some trencher-knight,
Some Dick,— [Strick
That smiles his cheek in years; and knows the
To make my lady laugh, when she's dispos'd,—
Told our intents before which once disclos'd,
The ladies did change favours; and then we,
Following the signs, woo'd but the sign of she.
Now, to our perjury to add more terror,
We are again forsworn; in will, and error.
Mach upon this it is:—And might not you,

[To HOYET.
Furnish our sport, to make us thus untrue?
Do not you know my lady's foot by the squire,*
And laugh upon the apple of her eye?
And stand between her back, Sir, and the fire,
Holding a trencher, jesting merrily?
You put our page out: Go, you are allow'd;
No when you will, a smock shall be your shroud.

You look upon me, do you? there's an eye,
Wounds like a loaden sword.

Boyet. Full merrily
Hark this brave manage, this career, been run.
Biron. Lo, he is tilting straight! Peace; I have done.

Enter COSTARD.

Whereas, pure wit! them partest a fair fray.
Cost. O Lord, Sir, they would know, [No.
Whether the three worthies shall come in, or Biron. What, are there but three?
Cost. No, Sir; but it is vain fine,
For every one purports three.

Biron. And three times three is nine.

Cost. Not so, Sir; under correction, Sir; I hope, it is not so:

You cannot beg us, Sir, I can assure you, Sir;
we know what we know:

I hope, Sir, three times thrice, Sir,—

Biron. Is not nine.

Cost. Under correction, Sir, we know where-until it doth amount.

Biron. By Jove, I always took three threes
for nine.

Cost. O Lord, Sir, it were pity you should get your living by reckoning, Sir.

Biron. How much is it?

Cost. O Lord, Sir, the parties themselves,
the actors, Sir, will show whereuntil it doth amount: for my own part, I am, as they say,
but to perfect one man,—e'en one poor man;
Pompey the great, Sir.

Biron. Art thou one of the worthies?

Cost. It pleased them, to think me worthy of Pompey the great: for mine own part, I know not the degree of the worthy; but I am to stand for him.

Biron. Go, bid them prepare.

Cost. We will turn it finely off, Sir; we will take some care. [Exit COSTARD.

King. Biron, they will shame us, let them not approach.

Biron. We are shame-proof, my lord: and
'tis some policy

To have one show worse than the king's and his company.

King. I say they shall not come.

Prim. Nay, my good lord, let me o'er-rule
you now; [how:

That sport best pleases, that doth least know
Where real strives to content, and the contents
Die in the seal of them which it presents,
Their form confounded makes most form in mirth; [birth.

When great things labouring perish in their Biron. A right description of our sport, my

lord.

Enter ARMADO.

Arm. Anointed, I implore so much expense of thy royal sweet breath, as will utter a brace of words.

[ARMADO converses with the KING, and delivers him a paper.]

Prim. Doth this mean serve God?

Biron. Why ask you?

Prim. He speaks not like a man of God's making.

Arm. That's all one, my fair, sweet, honey monarch. For, I protest, the schoolmaster is exceeding fantastical, too, too vain, too, too vain: But we will put it, as they say, to fortuna della guerra. I wish you the peace of mind, most royal complement! [Exit ARMADO.

King. Here is like to be a good presence of worthies: He presents Hector of Troy; the swain, Pompey the great, the parish curate, Alexander; Armado a page, Hercules, the pe-dant, Judas Machabees.

And if these four worthies in their first show
thrive,

These four will change habits, and present the other five.

Biron. There is five in the first show.

King. You are deceiv'd, 'tis not so.

Biron. The pedant, the braggart, the hedge-priest, the fool, and the boy:—

Abate a throw at novam;† and the whole world
again,

Cannot prick out five such, take each one in his vein.

King. The ship is under sail, and here she comes again.

[Seals brought for the KING, PRINCESS, &c.

Pageant of the Nine Worthies.

Enter COSTARD arm'd, for Pompey.

Cost. I Pompey am,—

Boyet. You lie, you are not he.

Cost. I Pompey am,—

Boyet. With libbard's head on knee.

Biron. Well said, old mocker; I must needs be friends with thee.

Cost. I Pompey am, Pompey surnam'd the big,—

Dum. The great.

Cost. It is great, Sir;—Pompey surnam'd the great;

That oft in field, with targe and shield, did make my foe to sweat:

And, travelling along this coast, I here am come
by chance;

And lay my arms before the legs of this sweet lass
of France.

If your ladyship would say, Thanks, Pompey, I had done.

Prim. Great thanks, great Pompey.

Cost. 'Tis not so much worth; but, I hope, I was perfect: I made a little fault in, great.

Biron. My hat to a halfpenny, Pompey proves the best worthy.

Enter NATHANIEL arm'd, for Alexander.

Nath. When in the world I liv'd, I was the world's commander;

By east, west, north, and south, I spread my conquering might:

My scutcheon plain declares, that I am Alexander.

Boyet. Your nose says, no, you are not; for it stands too right.

* Rule.

† A game with dice.

† Pick out.

VE'S LABOUR'S LOST.

[ACT 7.]

in this, most
d: Proceed,
d, I was the
you were so,
ard.
or, take away

ou have over-
You will be loth for this:
x sitting on a na: he will be
, and afraid to
ander. {NATH.
e you; a fool-
look you, and s good neighbowler: but,
ow 'tis;—a lit-
orthies a come other sort.
ey.

r Judas, and
ules.

ted by this imp,
that three-head-

a shrimp,
in his manus:

vanish.
[Exit MOTH.]

isplain Judas.
How art thou

u, Judas.

himself.
elder.
was hang'd on

countenance.
face.

ng.
an coin, scarce

r's faulchion.
on a flask.*
ek in a brooch.†
lead.
cap of a tooth-

have put thee in countenances.

thee faces.
them all.

we would do so.
ass, let him go.
y, why dost thou

horn.
ng hat-lands, &c.

Dum. For the latter end of his name.

Biron. For the ass to the Jude; give it him:—
Jud-as, away.

Ifel. This is not generous, not gentle, not humble.

Boyet. A light for Monsieur Judas: it grows dark, he may stumble.

Prim. Alas, poor Machabæus, how hath he been baited!

Enter ARMADO armed, for Hector.

Biron. Hide thy head, Achilles; here comes Hector in arms.

Dum. Though my mocks come home by me,
I will now be merry.

King. Hector was but a Trojan in respect of
this.

Boyet. But is this Hector?

Dum. I think, Hector was not so cleantimber'd.

Long. His leg is too big for Hector.

Dum. More calf, certain.

Boyet. No; he is best indued in the small.

Biron. This cannot be Hector.

Dum. He's a god or a painter: for he makes faces.

Arm. The omnipotent Mars, of lances* the almighty,

Gave Hector a gift,—

Dum. A gilt nutmeg.

Biron. A lemon.

Long. Stuck with cloves.

Dum. No, cloven.

Arm. Peace.

The omnipotent Mars, of lances the almighty,

Gave Hector a gift, the hair of Ilium;

A man so breath'd, that certain he would fight, you
From morn till night, out of his pavilion.

I am that flower,—

Dum. That mint.

Long. That columbine.

Arm. Sweet lord Longaville, rein thy tongue.

Long. I must rather give it the rein; for it runs against Hector.

Dum. Ay, and Hector's a greyhound.

Arm. The sweet war-man is dead and rotten; sweet chucks, beat not the bones of the buried: when he breath'd, he was a man—But I will forward with my device: Sweet royalty, [to the PRINCESS.] bestow on me the sense of hearing. [BIRON whispers COSTARD.]

Prim. Speak, brave Hector; we are much delighted.

Arm. I do adore thy sweet grace's slipper.

Boyet. Loves her by the foot.

Dum. He may not by the yard.

Arm. This Hector far surmounted Hannibal,—

Cost. The party is gone, fellow Hector, she is gone; she is two months on her way.

Arm. What meanest thou?

Cost. Faith, unless you play the honest Trojan, the poor wench is cast away: she's quick;
the child brags in her belly already; 'tis yours.

Arm. Dost thou infamize me among potentates? thou shalt die.

Cost. Then shall Hector be whipp'd, for Jaquenetta that is quick by him; and hang'd,
for Pompey that is dead by him.

Dum. Most rare Pompey!

Boyet. Renowned Pompey!

Biron. Greater than great, great, great, great Pompey, Pompey the huge!

Dum. Hector trembles.

Biron. Pompey is mov'd:—More Ates,* more Ates; stir them on! stir them on!

* Lance-men.

† Atë was the goddess of discord.

Dum. Hester will challenge him.

Biron. Ay, if he have no more man's blood
In's belly than will sup a flea.

Arm. By the north pole, I do challenge thee.

Cost. I will not fight with a pole, like a northern man;^a I'll slash; I'll do it by the sword:—
I pray you let me borrow my arms again.

Dum. Room for the incensed worthies.

Cost. I'll do it in my shirt.

Dum. Most resolute Pompey!

Moth. Master, let me take you a button-hole lower. Do you not see, Pompey is uncasing for the combat? What mean you? you will lose your reputation.

Arm. Gentlemen, and soldiers, pardon me; I will not combat in my shirt.

Dum. You may not deny it; Pompey hath made the challenge.

Arm. Sweet bloods, I both may and will.

Biron. What reason have you for't?

Arm. The naked truth of it is, I have no shirt; I go woolward† for penance.

Boyet. True, and it was enjoin'd him in Rome for want of linen: since when, I'll be sworn, he wore none, but a dish-clout of Jaquenetta's; and that 'a wears next his heart, for a favour.

Enter MERCADÉ.

Mer. God save you, madam!

Prin. Welcome, Mercade;

But that thou interrupt'st our merriment.

Mer. I am sorry, madam; for the news I bring,

Is heavy in my tongue. The king your father—

Prin. Dead, for my life.

Mer. Even so; my tale is told.

Biron. Worthies, away; the scene begins to cloud.

Arm. For mine own part, I breathe free breath: I have seen the day of wrong through the little hole of discretion, and I will right myself like a soldier. [Exeunt Worthies.]

King. How fares your majesty?

Prin. Boyet, prepare; I will away to-night.

King. Madam, not so; I do beseech you, stay.

Prin. Prepare, I say.—I thank you, gracious lords,

For all your fair endeavours; and entreat,
Out of a new-sad soul, that you vouchsafe
In your rich wisdom, to excuse, or hide,
The liberal† opposition of our spirits:
If over-boldly we have borne ourselves
In the converse of breath, your gentleness
Was guilty of it.—Farewell, worthy lord!
A heavy heart bears not an humble tongue:
Excuse me so, coming so short of thanks
For my great suit so easily obtain'd.

King. The extreme parts of time extremely
All causes to the purpose of his speed; [form
And often, at his very loose, decides
That which long process could not arbitrate:
And though the mourning brow of progeny
Forbidden the smiling courtesy of love,
The holy suit which fain it would convince;
Yet, since love's argument was first on foot,
Let not the cloud of sorrow jostle it [lost,
From what it purpos'd; since, to wail friends
Is not by much so wholesome, profitable,
As to rejoice at friends but newly found.

Prin. I understand you not; my griefs are double.

Biron. Honest plain words best pierce the ear of grief;—

And by these badges understand the king.
For your fair sakes have we neglected time,

^a A clown.

† Clothed in wool, without linen.
‡ Free to excess.

Play'd foul play with our oaths; your beauty,
ladies,

Hath much deform'd us, fashioning our humours
Even to the opposed end of our intents:

And what in us hath seem'd ridiculous,—

As love is full of unbefitting strains;

All wanton as a child, skipping, and vain;

Form'd by the eye, and, therefore, like the eye

Full of strange shapes, of habits, and of forms,

Varying in subjects as the eye doth roll

To every varied object in his glance:

Which party-coated presence of loose love

Put on by us, if, in your heavenly eyes,

Have misbecom'd our oaths and gravities,

Those heavenly eyes, that look into these faults,

Suggested* us to make: Therefore, ladies,

Our love being yours, the error that love makes
Is likewise yours: we to ourselves prove false.

By being once false for ever to be true

To those that make us both,—fair ladies, you:

And even that falsehood, in itself a sin

Thus purifies itself, and turns to grace.

Prin. We have receiv'd your letters, full of love;

Your favours, the ambassadors of love;

And, in our maiden council, rated them

At courtship, pleasant jest, and courtesy,

As bombast, and as lining to the time:

But more devout than this, in our respects,

Have we not been; and therefore met your

In their own fashion, like a merriment. [loves

Dum. Our letters, madam, show'd much more than jest.

Long. So did our looks.

Ros. We did not quote† them so.

King. Now, at the latest minute of the hour,
Grant us your loves.

Prin. A time, methinks, too short
To make a world-without-end bargain in:
No, no, my lord, your grace is perjur'd much,
Full of dear guiltiness; and, therefore this,—
If for my love (as there is no such cause)

You will do aught, this shall you do for me:

Your oath I will not trust; but go with speed

To some forlorn and naked hermitage,

Remote from all the pleasures of the world;

There stay, until the twelve celestial signs

Have brought about their annual reckoning:

If this austere insociable life

Change not your offer made in heat of blood:

If frosts, and fasts, hard lodging, and thin weeds,‡

Nip not the gaudy blossoms of our love,

But that it bear this trial, and last love;

Then, at the expiration of the year,

Come challenge, challenge me by these deserts,

And, by this virgin palm, now kissing thine,

I will be thine; and, till that instant, shut

My woeful self up in a mourning house;

Raining the tears of lamentation,

For the remembrance of my father's death.

If this thou do deny, let our hands part;

Neither entitled in the other's heart.

King. If this, or more than this, I would deny,

To flatter up these powers of mine with rest,

The sudden hand of death close up mine eye!

Hence ever then my heart is in thy breast.

Biron. And what to me, my love? and what to me?

Ros. You must be purged too, your sins are rank;

You are attaint with faults and perjury;

Therefore if you my favour mean to get,

A twelvemonth shall you spend, and never rest,

But seek the weary beds of people sick.

* Tempted.

† Regard.

‡ Clothing.

LOVE'S LABOUR'S LOST.

me, my love? but what

board, fair health, and wish you all these three.

ay, I thank you, gentle

rd;—a twelvemonth and

[say :
that smooth-fac'd wooers

both to my lady come,

love, I'll give you some.

be true and faithfully till

ot, lest you be forsworn

month's end,

own for a faithful friend.

patience; but the time is

few taller are so young.

ly? mistress look on me,

nds thy answer there;

on me for thy love.

rd of you, my lord Birón,

the world's large tongue

can replete with mocks;

nd wounding flouts;

ates will execute,

vey of your wit: [brain;

and from your fruitful

in me, if you please,

am not to be won,)

month term from day to day

rk, and still converse es; and your task shall deavour of your wit, [be, impotent to smile.

laughter in the throat of ossible: [death?

soul in agony.

the way to choke a gibling

got of that loose grace,

ing hearers give to fools:

in the ear

never in the tongue

then, if sickly ears,

mour of their own dear

orns, continue then,

and that fault withal;

throw away that spirit,

empty of that fault,

reformation.

nts? well, befall what will

h in an hospital. [befal,

y lord; and so I take my

[To the KING.

we will bring you on

doth not end like an old

ese ladies' courtesy

e our sport a comedy.

wants a twelvemonth and

[a day,

ong for a play.

† Immediate.

Enter ARMADO

Arm. Sweet majesty, vouch

Prin. Was not that Hector?

Dum. The worthy knight of Arm. I will kiss thy royal leave: I am a votary; I have netta to hold the plough for he

years. But, most esteemed g hear the dialogue that the two

compiled, in praise of the owl

it should have followed in the King. Call them forth quick.

Arm. Holla! approach.

Enter HOLOFERNES, NATH

COSTARD, and others

This side is Hiems, winter

spring; the one maintained

other by the cuckoo. Ver, b

SONO.

Spring. When daisies pied, an

And lady-smocks at

And cuckoo-buds of y

Do paint the meads

The cuckoo then, on e

Mocks married men,)

Cuckoo;

Cuckoo, cuckoo,—O u

Unpleasing to a marri

II.

When shepherds pipe

And merry larks are

When turtles tread, an

And maidens bleach th

The cuckoo then, on e

Mocks married men,)

Cuckoo;

Cuckoo, cuckoo,—O u

Unpleasing to a marri

III.

Winter. When icicles hang by

And Dick the shep

And Tom bears logs

And milk comes fro

When blood is nipp'd

Then nightly sings ti

To-who

To-whit, to-who, a m

While greasy Joan a

IV.

When all about the n

And roughing druc

And birds sits broodi

And Marian's nos

When roasted crabs

Then nightly sings ti

To-who

To-whit, to-who, a m

While greasy Joan a

Arm. The words of Mercu

the songs of Apollo. You,

way.

* Cool.

THE MERCHANT OF VENICE

PERSONS REPRESENTED.

Duke of Venice.
 Prince of Morocco, } Suitors to Portia.
 Prince of Arragon, }
 Antonio, the Merchant of Venice.
 Bassanio, his Friend.
 Salanio, } Friends to Antonio and Bassanio.
 Salerio, }
 Gratiano, }
 Lorenzo, in love with Jessica.
 Shylock, a Jew.
 Tubal, a Jew, his Friend.
 Launcelot Gobbo, a Clown, Servant to Shylock.
 Old Gobbo, Father to Launcelot.

Salerio, a Messenger from Venice.
 Leonardo, Servant to Bassanio.
 Balthazar, } Servants to Portia.
 Stephano, }
 Portia, a rich Hebrew.
 Nerissa, her Waiting-maid.
 Jessica, Daughter to Shylock.
 Magnificoes of Venice, Officers of the Court of Justice, Jailor, Servants, and other Attendants.
 Scene, partly at Venice, and partly at Belmont, the Seat of Portia, on the Continent.

ACT I.

SCENE I.—Venice.—A Street.

Enter ANTONIO, SALARINO, and SALANIO.

Ant. In sooth, I know not why I am so sad;
 It wearies me; you say, it wearies you;
 But how I caught it, found it, or came by it,
 What stuff 'tis made of, whereof it is born,
 I am to learn;
 And such a want-wit sadness makes of me,
 That I have much ado to know myself.
 Salar. Your mind is tossing on the ocean;
 There, where your argosies* with portly sail,—
 Like signiors and rich burghers of the flood,
 Or, as it were, the pageants of the sea,—
 Do overpeer the petty traffickers,
 That curtsey to them reverence,
 As they fly by them with their woven wings.
 Salan. Believe me, Sir, had I such venture
 The better part of my affections would {forth,
 Be with my hopes abroad. I should be still Plucking the grass, to know where sits the wind; {roads;
 Peering in maps, for ports, and piers, and
 And every object, that might make me fear
 Misfortune to my ventures, out of doubt,
 Would make me sad.
 Salar. My wind, cooling my broth,
 Would blow me to an ague, when I thought
 What harm a wind too great might do at sea.
 I should not see the sandy hour-glass run,
 But I should think of shallows and of flats;
 And see my wealthy Andrew dock'd in sand,
 Vailingt her high-top lower than her ribs,
 To kiss her burial. Should I go to church,
 And see the holy edifice of stone, {rocks?
 And not bethink me straight of dangerous
 Which touching but my gentle vessel's side,
 Would scatter all her spices on the stream;
 Enrobe the roaring waters with my silks;
 And, in a word, but even now worth this,
 And now worth nothing? Shall I have the
 thought
 To think on this; and shall I lack the thought,

That such a thing, bechanc'd, would make me
 But, tell not me; I know, Antonio {sad?
 Is sad to think upon his merchandise.
 Ant. Believe me, no: I thank my fortune for My ventures are not in one bottom trusted, {it,
 Nor to one place; nor is my whole estate
 Upon the fortune of this present year:
 Therefore, my merchandise makes me not sad.
 Salar. Why then you are in love.
 Ant. Fie, fie!
 Salar. Not in love neither? Then let's say,
 you are sad,
 Because you are not merry: and, 'twere as easy
 For you, to laugh, and leap, and say, you are merry, {Janus,
 Because you are not sad. Now, by two-headed Nature hath fram'd strange fellows in her time:
 Some that will evermore peep through their
 eyes,
 And laugh, like parrots, at a bagpiper;
 And other of such vinegar aspect, {smile,
 That they'll not show their teeth in way of Though Nestor swear the jest be laughable.

Enter BASSANIO, LORENZO, and GRATIANO.

Salar. Here comes Bassanio, your most noble
 kinsman,
 Gratiano, and Lorenzo: Fare you well;
 We leave you now with better company.
 Salar. I would have staid till I had made you merry,
 If worthier friends had not prevented me.
 Ant. Your worth is very dear in my regard.
 I take it, your own business calls on you,
 And you embrace the occasion to depart.
 Salar. Good morrow, my good lords.
 Bass. Good signiors both, when shall we laugh? Say, when?
 You grow exceeding strange: Must it be so?
 Salar. We'll make our leisures to attend on yours.
 {Exit SALARINO and SALANIO.
 Lor. My Lord Bassanio, since you have found
 Antonio,
 We two will leave you: but, at dinner time,
 I pray you, have in mind where we must meet.

* Ships of large burthen.

† Lowering.

For Antonio,
on the world:
much care.
ly chang'd.
the world, Gra-
t play a part,

wrinkles come;
th wine,
ving groans.
warm within,
haster? [dice
into the janant, Antonio,— at speaks;—
visages
ending pond;
ain,
u opinion
conceit;
acle,
og bark!
ese,
wise,
very sure,
ost damn those [fools.
l their brothers,
er time:
ly bait,
nion.—
e well, a while;
iner.
u then till dis-

ub wise men,
ak.
y but two years [tongue.
el of thine own er for this gear.
ce only is com-
[ble.
naid not vendi-
and LORENZO.

ute deal of no-
th Venice: His eat hid in two ek all day ere ave them, they

ndy is this same grimage
me off?
on, Antonio,
e estate,
welling port
t continuance:
abridg'd
y chief care
reat debts,
o prodigal,
Antonio,
n love;
arranty
urposes,
s I owe.
oo, let me know
t still do, [it;
sur'd,
uest means,

Lie all unlock'd to your occasions.

Bass. In my school days, when I had lost one shaft,

I shot his fellow of the self-same flight
The self-same way, with more advised watch,
To find the other forth; and by advent'ring both,
I oft found both: I urge this childhood proof,
Because what follows is pure innocence.
I owe you much; and, like a wilful youth,
That which I owe is lost: but if you please
To shoot another arrow that self way
Which you did shoot the first, I do not doubt,
As I will watch the aim, or to find both,
Or bring your latter hazard back again,
And thankfully rest debtor for the first.

Ant. You know me well; and herein spend but time,

To wind about my love with circumstance;
And, out of doubt, you do me now more wrong,
In making question of my uttermost,
Than if you had made waste of all I have:
Then do but say to me what I should do,
That in your knowledge may by me be done,
And I am press'd* unto it: therefore, speak.

Bass. In Belmont is a lady richly left,
And she is fair, and, fairer than that word,
Of wondrous virtues; sometimes from her eyes
I did receive fair speechless messages:
Her name is Portia; nothing undervalued
To Cato's daughter, Brutus' Portia.
Nor is the wide world ignorant of her worth;
For the four winds blow in from every coast
Renowned suitors: and her sunny locks
Hang on her temples like a golden fleece;
Which makes her seat of Belmont, Colchus' strand,

And many Jasons come in quest of her.

O my Antonio, had I but the means
To hold a rival place with one of them,
I have a mind presages me such thrift,
That I should questionless be fortunate.

Ant. Thou know'st, that all my fortunes are at sea;

Nor have I money, nor commodity
To raise a present sum: therefore go forth,
Try what my credit can in Venice do;
That shall be rack'd, even to the uttermost,
To furnish thee to Belmont, to fair Portia.
Go, presently inquire, and so will I,
Where money is; and I no question make,
To have it of my trust, or for my sake.

[Exeunt.]

SCENE II.—Belmont.—A Room in Portia's House.

Enter PORTIA and NERISSA.

Por. By my troth, Nerissa, my little body is a-weary of this great world.

Ner. You would be, sweet madam, if your miseries were in the same abundance as your good fortunes are: And, yet, for aught I see, they are as sick, that surfeit with too much, as they that starve with nothing: It is no more happiness therefore, to be seated in the moon; superfluity comes sooner by white hairs, but competency lives longer.

Por. Good sentences, and well pronounced.

Ner. They would be better, if well followed.

Por. If to do were as easy as to know what were good to do, chapels had been churches, and poor men's cottages, princes' palaces. It is a good divine, that follows his own instructions: I can easier teach twenty what were good to be done, than be one of the twenty to follow mine own teaching. The brain may devise laws for the blood; but a hot temper leaps over a cold decree: such a hare is madness the youth, to skip o'er the meshes of good counsel the cripple. But this reasoning is not in the fashion to choose me a husband:—O me, the word choose! I may neither choose whom I would, nor refuse whom I dislike; so is the will of a living daughter carb'd by the will of a dead father.—Is it not hard, Nerissa, that I cannot choose one, nor refuse none?

* Hoody.

† Formerly.

Ner. Your father was ever virtuous; and holy men, at their death, have good inspirations, therefore, the lottery, that he hath devised in these three chests, of gold, silver, and lead, (whereof who chooses his meaning, chooses you,) will, no doubt, never be chosen by any rightly, but one who you shall rightly love. But what warmth is there in your affection towards any of these princely suitors that are already come?

Por. I pray thee, overname them; and as thou nam'st them, I will describe them: and, according to my description, level at my affection.

Ner. First, there is the Neapolitan prince.

Por. Ay, that's a colt,* indeed, for he doth nothing but talk of his horse; and he makes it a great appropriation to his good parts, that he can shoe him himself. I am much afraid, my lady his mother played false with a smith.

Ner. Then, is there the count Palatine.

Por. He doth nothing but frown; as who should say, An if you will not have me, choose: he hears merry tales, and smiles not. I fear, he will prove the weeping philosopher when he grows old, being so full of unmannerly sadness in his youth. I had rather he married to a death's head with a bone in his mouth, than to either of these. God defend me from these two!

Ner. How say you by the French lord, Monsieur Le Bon?

Por. God made him, and therefore let him pass for a man. In truth, I know it is a sin to be a mocker; but, he! why, he hath a horse better than the Neapolitan's; a better bad habit of frowning than the count Palatine: he is every man in no man: if a throstle sing, he falls straight a capering; he will fence with his own shadow: if I should marry him, I should marry twenty husbands: if he would despise me, I would forgive him; for if he love me to madness, I shall never requite him.

Ner. What say you then to Faulconbridge, the young baron of England?

Por. You know, I say nothing to him, for he understands not me, nor I him: he hath neither Latin, French, nor Italian; and you will come into the court and swear, that I have a poor penny-worth in the English. He is a proper man's picture; but, alas! who can converse with a dumb show? How oddly he is suited! I think, he bought his doublet in Italy, his round hose in France, his bonnet in Germany, and his behaviour every where.

Ner. What think you of the Scottish lord, his neighbour?

Por. That he hath a neighbourly charity in him, for he borrowed a box of the ear of the Englishman, and swore he would pay him again, when he was able: I think, the Frenchman became his surety, and sealed under for another.

Ner. How like you the young German, the duke of Saxony's nephew?

Por. Very vilely in the morning, when he is sober; and most vilely in the afternoon, when he is drunk: when he is best, he is little worse than a man; and when he is worst, he is little better than a beast: an the worst fall that ever fell, I hope I shall make shift to go without him.

Ner. If he should offer to choose, and choose the right casket, you should refuse to perform your father's will, if you should refuse to accept him.

Por. Therefore, for fear of the worst, I pray thee, set a deep glass of Rhenish wine on the contrary casket: for, if the devil be within, and that temptation without, I know he will choose it. I will do any thing, Nerissa, ere I will be married to a sponge.

Ner. You need not fear, lady, the having any of these lords, they have acquainted me with their determination: which is indeed, to return to their home, and to trouble you with no more suit, unless you may be won by some other sort than your father's imposition, depending on the caskets.

Por. If I live to be as old as Sibylla, I will die as chaste as Diana, unless I be obtained by the manner of my father's will: I am glad this parcel of wooers are so reasonable; for there is not one among them but I dote on his very absence, and I pray God grant them a fair departure.

Ner. Do you not remember, lady, in your father's time, a Venetian, a scholar, and a soldier, that came hither in company of the marquis of Montferrat?

Por. Yes, yes, it was Bassanio; as I think so was he called.

Ner. True, madam; he, of all the men that ever my foolish eyes looked upon, was the best deserving a fair lady.

Por. I remember him well; and I remember him worthy of thy praise.—How now? what news?

Enter a SERVANT.

Serv. The four strangers seek for you, madam, to take their leave: and there is a fore-runner come from a fifth, the prince of Morocco, who brings word, the prince, his master, will be here to-night.

Por. If I could bid the fifth welcome with so good a heart as I can bid the other four farewell, I should be glad of his approach: if he have the condition* of a saint, and the complexion of a devil, I had rather he should shrive me than wive me. Come, Nerissa—Sirrah, go before.—While we shut the gate upon one wooer, another knocks at the door. [Exeunt.

SCENE III.—Venice.—A public place.

Enter BASSANIO and SHYLOCK.

Shy. Three thousand ducats,—well.

Bass. Ay, Sir, for three months.

Shy. For three months,—well.

Bass. For the which, as I told you, Antonio shall be bound.

Shy. Antonio shall become bound,—well.

Bass. May you stead me? Will you pleasure me? Shall I know your answer?

Shy. Three thousand ducats, for three months, and Antonio bound.

Bass. Your answer to that.

* A handy, gay youngster

† Count

* Temper, qualities.

THE MERCHANT OF VENICE.

putation to the

my meaning, in have you under-yet his means an argosy bound dies; I under-alto, he hath a England,—and
ander'd abroad:
sailors but men:
ater-rats, water-
mean, pirates,
waters, winds,
withstanding, suf-rats;—I think, I

may; and, that I think me: May I

he with us.
eat of the habi-Nazarite, con-
ay with you, sell
k with you, and
t with you, drink
What news on
here?

awning, publican

uplicity,
and brings down
us in Venice.
the hip,
dge I bear him.
and he rails,
most do congre-

well-won thrift,
ed be my tribe,

resent store;
memory,
e grows
What of that?
y tribe,
ow many months
r, good signior;
[To ANTONIO.
en in our mouths.
er lend nor bor-
eas, [row,
of my friend,
t possess'd,t d ducats.

months, you told
t me see,—But [row,
her lend, nor bor-

is uncle Laban's

raham was his behalf,)
as the third.

may t informed

Ant. And what of him? did Shy. No, not take interest; I

say,
Directly interest: mark what
When Laban and himself were
That all the earlings which were pied,
Should fall as Jacob's hire;
In the end of autumn turned
And when the work of general
Between these woolly breeders
The skilful shepherd peel'd me
And, in the doing of the deed
He stuck them up before the
Who, then conceiving, did in Fall party-colour'd lambs, Jacob's.

This was a way to thrive, and
And thrift is blessing, if men

Ant. This was a venture, serv'd for;

A thing not in his power to be
But sway'd, and fashion'd,
heaven.

Was this inserted to make int
Or is your gold and silver, ew

Shy. I cannot tell; I make I
But note me, signior.

Ant. Mark you this, Bassanio
The devil can cite scripture for An evil soul, producing holy
Is like a villain with a smiling
A goodly apple rotten at the O, what a goodly outside falls

Shy. Three thousand ducats round sum.

Three months from twelve, th

Ant. Well, Shylock, shall we
you?

Shy. Signior Antonio, many
In the Rialto you have rated
About my monies, and my us
Still have I borne it with a patience
For sufferance is the badge of love
You call me—misbeliever, cut-throat
And spit upon my Jewish gaberdine
And all for use of that which I
Well then, it now appears, you Go to then; you come to me,
Shylock, we would have monies
You, that did void your rheum
And foot me, as you spurn a dog
Over your threshold; monies
What should I say to you? Shall I Hath a dog money? is it possible
A cur can lend three thousand ducats
Shall I bend low, and in a bow
With bated breath, and whispering Say this,—

Fair Sir, you spit on me on Wednesday
You spurn'd me such a day; as you
You call'd me—dog; and for that I'll lend you thus much monies.

Ant. I am as like to call thee
To spit on thee again, to spurn thee
If thou wilt lend this money,
As to thy friends; (for where
A breed for barren metal of his house
But lend it rather to thine enemy
Who, if he break, thou may'st exact
The penalty.)

Shy. Why, look you, how you
I would be friends with you
love.

Forget the shames that you Supply your present wants, and

• Nature.

Of course for my service, and you'll not hear
This is kind I offer.

Ant. This were kindness.

Sly. This kindness will I show :—
Go with me to a notary, seal me there
Your single bond ; and, in a merry sport,
If you employ me not on such a day,
In such a place, such sum, or sum, as we Express'd in the condition, let the forfeit
Be substituted for an equal pound
Of your fair flesh, to be cut off and taken
In what part of your body pleaseth me.

Ant. Content, in faith ; I'll seal to such a bond.

And say, there is much kindness in the Jew.

Sly. You shall not seal to such a bond for I'll rather dwell^a in my necessity.

Ant. Why, fear not, man ; I will not forfeit it ;
Within three months, that's a month before
His bond expires, I do expect return
Of three three times the value of this bond.

Sly. O father Abraham, what these Christians are :

When our hard dealings teaches them suspect
The thoughts of others ! Pray you, tell me this ;
If he should break his day, what should I gain
By the exaction of the forfeiture ?

A pound of man's flesh, taken from a man,
Is not so estimable, profitable neither,
As flesh of muttons, goats, or goats. I say,

To bet his favour, I extend this friendship :
If he will take it, so ; if not, adieu ;

Ant. For my love, I pay you, wrong me not.

Ant. Yes, Shylock, I will seal unto this bond.

Sly. Then meet me forthwith at the notary's ;
Give him direction for this merry bond,
And I will go and purge the ducats straight ;
He to my house, left in the fearful guard
Of an unscrupulous knave ; and presently
I will be with you.

Ant. His thee, gentle Jew.

This Hebrew will turn Christian ; he grows
Sly. I like not fair terms, and a villain's mind.

Ant. Come on : in this there can be no dismay,
My ships come home a month before the day.

ACT II.

SCENE I.—Belmont.—A Room in PORTIA'S
House.

Arrival of Cornets. Enter the PRINCE OF MO-DENA, and his Train ; PORTIA, NESSA, and other of her Attendants.

Mar. Unlike me not for my complexion,
The shadow'd livery of the burnish'd sun,
To whom I am a neighbour, and near bred,
Bring me the fairest creature northward born,
Where Phœbus' fire scarce thaws the icicles,
And let us make incisions for your love,
To prove whose blood is reddest, his, or mine.
I tell thee, lady, this aspect of mine
Hath fear'd ; the valiant ; by my love, I swear,
The best-regarded virgins of our climate
Have lov'd it too : I would not change this hue,
Except to steal your thoughts, my gentle queen.

Por. In terms of choice I am not solely led
By nice direction of a maiden's eyes :
Besides the lottery of my destiny
Consent the lottery of my destiny
But me the right of voluntary choosing.
But, if my father had not scantied me,
And hadg'd me by his wit, to yield myself

^a Abide.

^b Allusion to the custom custom for lovers to satisfy their passions by cutting themselves in their own breast sides.

^c Terrified.

His wife, who wins me by that means I told
you,

Yourselves, renowned prince, then stood as fair,
As any comer I have look'd on yet,
For my affection.

Mer. Even for that I thank you :
Therefore, I pray you, lend me to the markets,
To try my fortune. By this scimitar,—
That slew the Sophy, and a Persian prince,
That won three fields of Sultan Solyman,—
I would out-stare the sternest eyes that look,
Out-brave the heart most daring on the earth,
Pluck the young suckling cub from the she-
bear.

Yes, mock the lion when he roars for prey,
To win thee, lady : But, alas the while !
If Hercules, and Lichas, play at dice

Which is the better man, the greater throw
May turn by fortune from the weaker hand :
So is Alcides beaten by his page ;
And so may I, blind fortune leading me,
Miss that which one unworthier may attain,
And die with grieving.

Por. You must take your chance ;
And either not attempt to choose at all,
Or swear, before you choose,—if you choose
Never to speak to lady afterward

In way of marriage ; therefore be advis'd.^b

Mer. Nor will not ; come, bring me unto my chance.

Por. First, forward to the temple ; after din-
Your hazard shall be made.

Mer. Good fortune then !

To make me bless'd, or curs'd 't among men.

SCENE II.—Venice.—A Street.

Enter LAUNCELOT GOBBO.

Laun. Certainly my conscience will serve me to run from this Jew, my master : The fiend is at mine elbow, and tempts me, saying to me, Gobbo, Launcelot Gobbo, good Launcelot, or good Gobbo, or good Launcelot Gobbo, use your legs,
take the start, run away : My conscience says,—
no ; take heed honest Launcelot, take heed, honest Gobbo ; or, as aforesaid, honest Launcelot Gobbo ; do not run ; scorn running with thy heels :
Well, the most courageous fiend bids me pack ;
ris' says the fiend ; away ! says the fiend, for the heavens ; rouse up a brave mind, says the fiend, and run. Well, my conscience, hanging about the neck of my heart, says very wisely to me,—my honest friend Launcelot, being an honest man's son,—or rather an honest woman's son,—for, indeed, my father did something smack, something grow to, he had a kind of taste ; well, my conscience says, Launcelot, budge not ; budge, says the fiend ; budge not,
says my conscience. Conscience, says I, you counsel well ; fiend, says I, you counsel well :
to be ruled by my conscience, I should stay with the Jew my master, who, (God bless the mark^c) is a kind of devil ; and, to run away from the Jew, I should be ruled by the fiend, who,
saying your reverence, is the devil himself :
Certainly, the Jew is the very devil incarnation ; and, in my conscience, my conscience is but a kind of hard conscience, to offer to counsel me to stay with the Jew. The fiend gives the more friendly counsel : I will run, fiend ; my heels are at your commandment, I will run.

Enter old GOBBO, with a Basket.

Gob. Master, young man, you, I pray you ;
which is the way to master Jew's ?

^a Not precipitate.

THE MERCHANT OF VENICE.

this is my true
more than sand-
we me not:—I

man, I pray you,
w's?

right hand, at the
t turning of all,
ery next turning,
own indirectly to

it be a hard way
ther one Launce-ed with him, or master Launce-

now will I raise
g master Launce-

poor man's son;
n honest exceed-thanked, well to be what he will,

celot.

and Launcelot,

old man, ergo, I young master

ase your master-

elot, talk not of the young gen-
al destinies, and three, and such leed, deceased;
terms, gone to the boy was the

rop.

gel, or a hovel-
you know me,

you not, young
me, is my boy,

ad?
father?

blind, I know

had your eyes,
me: it is a wise
ild. Well, old your son: Give
come to light;
man's son may;

up; I am sure,

no more fooling
blessing; I am
your son that is,

my son.

think of that:
man, and, I am

by mother.

indeed: I'll be ou art mine own

happ'd might be ou hast got

Dobbin my thill-

, that Dobbin's
ure he had more shaft horse.

hair on his tail, than I have
I last saw him.

Gob. Lord, how art thou dost thou and thy master agree him a present; How 'gree yo Laun. Well, well; but, for as I have set up my rest to ru not rest till I have run some ter's a very Jew: Give him

him a halter: I am famish'
you may tell every finger I h Father, I am glad you are your present to one master B deed, gives rare new liverie
him, I will run as far as God
—O rare fortune! here com
him, father; for I am a Jew, i any longer.

*Enter BASSANIO, with LEON.
Followers.*

Bass. You may do so;—but ed, that supper be ready at th
of the clock: See these lette
the liveries to making; and to come anon to my lodging.

Leon. To him, father.

Gob. God bless your worsh
Bass. Gramercy; Would'st

me?

Gob. Here's my son, Sir, a Laun. Not a poor boy, Sir, I man; that would, Sir, as my elfy,—

Gob. He hath a great info would say, to serve—

Laun. Indeed, the short a serve the Jew, and I have a ther shall specify,—

Gob. His master and he, (a ship's reverence,) are scarce

Laun. To be brief, the very Jew, having done me wrong
as my father, being I hope a frutify unto you,—

Gob. I have here a dish would bestow upon your w suit is,—

Laun. In very brief, the su to myself, as your worship a honest old man; and, though

old man, yet, poor man, my fi Bass. One speak for both

you?

Laun. Serve you, Sir.

Gob. This is the very defect

Bass. I know thee well, th thy suit:

Shylock, thy master, spoke v
And hath preferr'd thee, if it
To leave a rich Jew's service,

The follower of so poor a gen Laun. The old proverb is between my master Shylock a have the grace of God, Sir, an Bass. Thou speak'st it well thy son:—

Take leave of thy old master,
My lodging out:—Give him a

More guarded* than his fellow

Laun. Father, in:—I cann
no;—I have ne'er a tongue in [Looking on his palm.] if any a fairer table,† which doth of

* Ornamented. † The palm of a book.—I shall have good fortune; Go to, here's a simple line of life! here's a small trifle of wives.* Alas, fifteen wives is nothing; eleven widows, and nine maids, is a simple coming-in for one man: and then, to 'scape drowning thrice; and to be in peril of my life with the edge of a feather-bed;—here are simple 'scapes! Well, if fortune be a woman, she's a good wench for this gear.—Father, come; I'll take my leave of the Jew in the twinkling of an eye.

[Exeunt LAUNCELOT and old GOBBO.]

Bass. I pray thee, good Leonardo, think on this:

These things being bought, and orderly be-
Return in haste, for I do feast to-night [stow'd,
My best-esteem'd acquaintance; bid thee, go.

Lor. My best endeavours shall be done herein.

Enter GRATIANO.

Gra. Where is your master?

Lor. Yonder, Sir, he walks.

[Exit LEONARDO.]

Gra. Signior Bassanio,—

Bass. Gratiano!

Gra. I have a suit to you.

Bass. You have obtain'd it.

Gra. You must not deny me; I must go with you to Belmont.

Bass. Why, then you must;—But hear thee,
Gratiano;

Thou art too wild, too rude, and bold of voice;—
Parts, that become thee happily enough,
And in such eyes as ours appears not faults;
But where thou art not known, why, there they show

Something too liberal:—pray thee, take pain
To allay with some cold drops of modesty Thy skipping spirit; lest, through thy wild belie misconstrued in the place I go to, [haviour,
And lose my hopes.

Gra. Signior Bassanio, hear me:

If I do not put on a sober habit,
Talk with respect, and swear but now and then,
Wear prayer-books in my pocket, look de-murely; [eyes

Nay more, while grace is saying, hood mine
Thus with my hat, and sigh, and say, amen;
Use all the observance of civility,
Like one well studied in a sad ostent
To please his grandam, never trust me more.

Bass. Well, we shall see your bearing.†

Gra. Nay, but I bar to-night; you shall not gaze me
By what we do to-night.

Bass. No, that were pity;
I would entreat you rather to put on
Your boldest suit of mirth, for we have friends
That purpose merriment: But fare you well,
I have some business.

Gra. And I must to Lorenzo, and the rest;
But we will visit you at supper-time. [Exeunt.]

SCENE III.—The same.—A Room in SHY-LOCK'S House.

Enter JESSICA and LAUNCELOT.

Jes. I am sorry, thou wilt leave my father so;
Our house is hell, and thou, a merry devil,
Didst rob it of some taste of tediousness:
But fare thee well; there is a ducat for thee.
And, Launcelot, soon at supper shalt thou see Lorenzo, who is thy new master's guest:
Give him this letter; do it secretly,

* Green, contentious.

† Show of staid and serious demeanour.

; Carriage, deportment.

And so farewell; I would not have my father
See me talk with thee.

Lor. Adieu!—tears exhibit my tongue.—
Most beautiful pagan,—most sweet Jew! If a Christian do not play the knave, and get thee,
I am much deceived: But, adieu! these foolish drops do somewhat drown my manly spirit;
adieu! [Exit.]

Jes. Farewell, good Launcelot.—

Alack, what heinous sin it is in me,
To be ashamed to be my father's child!
But though I am a daughter to his blood,
I am not to his manners: O Lorenzo,
If thou keep promise, I shall end this strife;
Become a Christian, and thy loving wife. [Exit.]

SCENE IV.—The same.—A Street.

Enter GRATIANO, LORENZO, SALARINO, and SALANIO.

Lor. Nay, we will slink away in supper-time;
Disguise us at my lodging, and return
All in an hour.

Gra. We have not made good preparation.

Salar. We have not spoke us yet of torch-bearers.

Salan. 'Tis vile, unless it may be quaintly
order'd;

And better, in my mind, not undertook.

Lor. 'Tis now but four a-clock; we have two
To furnish us:— [hours

Enter LAUNCELOT, with a letter.

Friend Launcelot, what's the news?

Lor. An it shall please you to break up this,
it shall seem to signify.

Lor. I know the hand: in faith, 'tis a fair
And whiter than the paper it writ on, [hand;
Is the fair hand that writ.

Gra. Love-news, in faith.

Lor. By your leave, Sir.

Lor. Whither goest thou?

Lor. Marry, Sir, to bid my old master the Jew to sup to-night with my new master the Christian.

Lor. Hold here, take this:—tell gentle Jessica,
I will not fail her;—speak it privately; go.—
Gentlemen, [Exit LAUNCELOT.]

Will you prepare you for this masque to-night?
I am provided of a torch-bearer.

Salar. Ay, marry, I'll be gone about it straight.

Salan. And so will I.

Lor. Meet me, and Gratiano,
At Gratiano's lodging some hour hence.

Salar. 'Tis good we do so.

[Exeunt SALAR. and SALAN.]

Gra. Was not that letter from fair Jessica?

Lor. I must needs tell thee all: She hath directed,
How I shall take her from her father's house;
What gold, and jewels, she is furnish'd with;
What page's suit she hath in readiness.
If e'er the Jew her father come to heaven,
It will be for his gentle daughter's sake:
And never dare misfortune cross her foot,
Unless she do it under this excuse,—
That she is issue to a faithless Jew.
Come, go with me; peruse this, as thou goest:
Fair Jessica shall be my torch-bearer. [Exeunt.]

SCENE V.—The same.—Before SHYLOCK'S
House.

Enter SHYLOCK and LAUNCELOT.

Shy. Well, thou shalt see, thy eyes shall be thy judge,

MERCHANT OF VENICE.

[ACT II.]

and Bassanio:—
gormandise,
at, Jessica!— apparel out;—

do not bid thee
nt to tell me, I ug.

will?
r, Jessica;
fore should I
r me: [go?
pon
a, my girl,
loath to go;
ards my rest,
to night.
my young mas-

d together,—I esque; but if hing that my nday last, at out that year
r in the after-

s? Hear you [drum, n you hear the
ry-neck'd fife,
rents then,
blic street,
arnish'd faces:
mean my case-

perly enter
ad, I swear,
to-night:
ne, sirrah;

er all this;
by,
[Exit LAUN.
Hagar's off-

well, mistress;
gh, but a huge

ps by day
tive not with part with him

elp to waste
ssica, go in;
tely;

, fast find;
mind. [Exit.
fortune be not

, lost. [Exit.

me.
to, masked.

under which [Lorenzo

Salar. His hour is almost past.
Gra. And it is marvel he out-dwells his hour,
For lovers ever run before the clock.
Salar. O, ten times faster Venus' pigeons fly
To seal love's bonds new made, than they are
To keep obliged faith unforfeited! [wont, Gra. That ever holds: Who rises from a feast,
With that keen appetite that he sits down?
Where is the horse that doth untread again
His tedious measures with the unbated fire
That he did pace them first? All things that are,
Are with more spirit chased than enjoy'd.
How like a younker, or a prodigal,
The scarfed* bark puts from her native bay,
Hugg'd and embraced by the strumpet wind!
How like the prodigal doth she return;
With over-weather'd ribs, and ragged sails,
Lean, rent, and beggar'd by the strumpet wind!

Enter LORENZO.

Salar. Here comes Lorenzo;—more of this hereafter.
Lor. Sweet friends, your patience for my long abode;
Not I, but my affairs, have made you wait;
When you shall please to play the thieves for wives,
I'll watch as long for you then.—Approach;
Here dwells my father Jew:—Ho! who's within.

Enter JESSICA above, in boy's clothes.

Jes. Who are you? Tell me, for more certainty,
Albeit I'll swear that I do know your tongue
Lor. Lorenzo, and thy love.
Jes. Lorenzo, certain; and my love, indeed;
For who love I so much? And now who knows,
But you, Lorenzo, whether I am yours?
Lor. Heaven, and thy thoughts, are witness that thou art.
Jes. Here, catch this casket; it is worth the pains.

I am glad 'tis night, you do not look on me,
For I am much asham'd of my exchange:
But love is blind, and lovers cannot see
The pretty follies that themselves commit;
For if they could, Cupid himself would blush
To see me thus transformed to a boy.

Lor. Descend, for you must be my torch-bearer.

Jes. What, must I hold a candle to my shames? [light.

They in themselves, good sooth, are too too
Why, 'tis an office of discovery, love;
And I should be obscur'd.

Lor. So are you, sweet,
Even in the lovely garnish of a boy.
But come at once;
For the close night doth play the run-away,
And we are staid for at Bassanio's feast.

Jes. I will make fast the doors, and gild myself
With some more ducats, and be with you straight. [Exit, from above.

Gra. Now, by my hood, a Gentle, and no
Jew.

Lor. Besbrow me, but I love her heartily:
For she is wise, if I can judge of her;
And fair she is, if that mine eyes be true;
And true she is, as she hath proved herself;
And therefore, like herself, wise, fair, and true;
Shall she be placed in my constant soul.

* Decorated with flags.

Enter JESSICA, below.

What, art thou come?—On, gentlemen, away;
Our masking meets by this time for us stay.

[Exit with JESSICA and SALARINO.]

Enter ANTONIO.

Ant. Who's there?

Gra. Signior Antonio?

Ant. Ha, ha, Gratiano! where are all the rest?
To nine o'clock; our friends all stay for you:—
No masque to-night; the wind is come about,
Bassanio presently will go aboard:
I have sent twenty out to seek for you.

Gra. I am glad on't; I desire no more de-
light,
Than to be under sail, and gone to-night.

[Exeunt.]

SCENE VII.—Belmont.—A Room in PORTIA'S House.

Flourish of Cornets. Enter PORTIA with the PRINCE OF MOROCCO, and both their Trains.

Por. Go, draw aside the curtains, and discover
The several caskets to this noble prince:— Now make your choice.

Mer. The first, of gold, who this inscription bears;—

[sire.]
Who chooseth me, shall gain what many men de-
The second; silver, which this promise carries;—

Who chooseth me, shall get as much as he deserves.
This third, dull lead, with warning all as blunt;—

Who chooseth me, must give and hazard all he hath.
How shall I know if I do choose the right?

Por. The one of them contains my picture,
prince;

If you choose that, then I am yours withal.

Mer. Some god direct my judgement! Let me see,

I will survey the inscriptions back again:

What says this leaden casket?

Who chooseth me, must give and hazard all he hath.
Must give—For what? for lead? hazard for
lead?

This casket threatens: Men, that hazard all,
Do it in hope of fair advantages:

A golden mind stoops not to shows of dross;
I'll then nor give, nor hazard, aught for lead.

What says the silver, with her virgin hue?

Who chooseth me, shall get as much as he deserves.
As much as he deserves? Pause there, Morocco,

And weigh thy value with an even hand:

If thou be'st rated by thy estimation,

Thou dost deserve enough; and yet enough

May not extend so far as to the lady;

And yet to be afraid of my deserving,

Were but a weak disabling of myself.

As much as I deserve!—Why, that's the lady:

I do in birth deserve her, and in fortunes,

In graces, and in qualities of breeding;

But more than these, in love I do deserve.

What if I stray'd no further, but chose here?—

Let's see once more this saying grav'd in gold:

Who chooseth me, shall gain what many men desire.

Why, that's the lady; all the world desires her:

From the four corners of the earth they come,

To kiss this shrine, this mortal breathing saint.

The Hyrcanian deserts, and the vasty wilds

Of wide Arabia, are as through-fares now,

For princes to come view fair Portia:

The watery kingdom, whose ambitious head

Spits in the face of heaven, is no bar

To stop the foreign spirits; but they come,

As o'er a brook, to see fair Portia. [ture.]

One of these three contains her heavenly pic-

Is't like, that lead contains her? 'Twere dam-
nation,

To think so base a thought; it were too gross
To rib^e her oercloth in the obscure grave.

Or shall I think, in silver she's immur'd,

Being ten times undervalued to try'd gold?

O sinful thought! Never so rich a gem

Was set in worse than gold. They have in England

A coin, that bears the figure of an angel

Stamped in gold; but that's insculp'd† upon;

But here an angel in a golden bed

Lies all within.—Deliver me the key;

Here do I choose, and thrive I as I may!

Per. There, take it, prince, and if my form lie there,

Then I am yours. [He unlocks the golden casket.]

Mer. O hell! what have we here?

A carrion death, within whose empty eye

There is a written scroll? I'll read the writing.

All that glisters is not gold,

Often have you heard that told:

Many a man his life hath sold,

But my outside to behold:

Gilded tombs do worms infold.

Had you been as wise as bold,

Young in limbs, in judgement old,

Your answer had not been inscrōl'd:

Fare you well; your suit is cold.

Cold, indeed; and labour lost;

Then, farewell, heat; and, welcome, frost.

Portia, adieu! I have too griev'd a heart

To take a tedious leave: thus losers part.

[Exit.]

Por. A gentle riddance:—Draw the curtains, go;—

Let all of his complexion choose me so.

[Exeunt.]

SCENE VIII.—Venice.—A Street.

Enter SALARINO and SALANIO.

Salar. Why man, I saw Bassanio under sail;
With him is Gratiano gone along;

And in their ship, I am sure, Lorenzo is not.

Salan. The villain Jew with outcries rais'd
the duke;

Who went with him to search Bassanio's ship.

Salar. He came too late, the ship was under sail:

But there the duke was given to understand,

That in a gondola were seen together

Lorenzo and his amorous Jessica:

Besides, Antonio certified the duke,

They were not with Bassanio in his ship.

Salan. I never heard a passion so confus'd,

So strange, outrageous, and so variable,

As the dog Jew did utter in the streets:

My daughter!—O my ducats!—O my daughter!

Fled with a Christian!—O my Christian ducats!—

Justice! the law! my ducats, and my daughter!

A sealed bag, two sealed bags of ducats,

Of double ducats, stol'n from me by my daughter!

And jewels; two stones, two rich and precious stones,

Stol'n by my daughter!—Justice! find the girl!

She hath the stones upon her, and the ducats!

Salar. Why, all the boys in Venice follow him, [ducats.]

Crying,—his stones, his daughter, and his Salan. Let good Antonio look he keep his

Or he shall pay for this. [day,]

Salar. Marry, well remember'd:

I reason'd† with a Frenchman yesterday;

Who told me,—in the narrow seas, that part

* Enckne.

† Engraven.

‡ Converted.

miscarried
draught:
he told me;
were not his.
Antonio what grieve him.
treads not the [earth.
ake some speed
to not so,
Bassanio,
ine;
hath of me,
ore:
test thoughts
st of love
there:
ing with tears,
nd behind him,
isible,
so they parted.
the world for
tim out, [him.
viness?

[Exit.]

Room in PORTIA'S

Servant.

thee, draw the
on his oath,
ently.

PRINCE OF ARRAGON
Trains.

askets, noble

on contain'd,
he solemniz'd;
peech, my lord,
n mediately.

o observe three
e [things:
xt, if I fail
life

age; lastly,
ice,

be gone.

every one doth

orthless self.

me: Fortune

[lead.

lver, and base

azard all he hath:

e, or hazard.

let me see:—

at many men de-

[meant

many may be

ise by show,

eye doth teach;

, but, like the

atward wall,

usualty.

in desire,

common spirits,

as multitudes.

y

he is fond of

Agree with.

Why, then to thee, thou silver treasure-house?
Tell me once more what title thou dost bear:
Who chooseth me, shall get as much as he deserves
And well said too: For who shall go about
To cozen fortune, and be honourable Without the stamp of merit! Let none resume
To wear an undeserved dignity.
O, that estates, degrees, and offices, [honour
Were not deriv'd corruptly! and that clear
Were purchas'd by the merit of the wearer!
How many then, should cover that stand bare
How many be commanded, that command?
How much low peasantry would then be glean'd
From the true seed of honour? and how much
honour

Pick'd from the chaff and ruin of the times,
To be new varnish'd? Well, but to my choice:
Who chooseth me, shall get as much as he deserves.
I will assume desert;—Give me a key for this,
And instantly unlock my fortunes here.

Por. Too long a pause for that which you find there.

Ar. What's here? the portrait of a blinking idiot,

Presenting me a schedule? I will read it.
How much unlike art thou to Portia? [ings?
How much unlike my hopes, and my desert.
Who chooseth me, shall have as much as he deserves.
Did I deserve no more than a fool's head!

Is that my prize? are my deserts no better?
Por. To offend, and judge, are distinct offices,
And of opposed natures.

Ar. What is here?

*The five seven times tried this;
Seven times tried that judgement is,
That did never choose amiss:
Some there be, that shadows kiss;
Such have but a shadow's bliss:
There be fools alive, I wis,
Sitter'd o'er; and so was this.
Take what wife you will to bed,
I will ever be your head:
So begone, Sir, you are sped.
Still more fool I shall appear
By the time I linger here:
With one fool's head I came to woo,
But I go away with two.—
Sweet, adieu! I'll keep my oath, Patiently to bear my wroth.*

[Exit ARRAGON, and Train.

Por. Thus hath the candle sing'd the moth.
O these deliberate fools! when they do choose,
They have the wisdom by their wit to lose.

Ner. The ancient saying is no heresy;—
Hanging and wiving goes by destiny.

Por. Come, draw the curtains, Nerissa.

Enter a SERVANT.

Serv. Where is my lady?

Por. Here; what would my lord?

Serv. Madam, there is alighted at your gate

A young Venetian, one that comes before

To signify the approaching of his lord:

From whom he bringeth sensible regrets:†

To wit, besides commends, and courteous

breath,

Gifts of rich value; yet I have not seen

So likely an ambassador of love:

A day in April never came so sweet,

To show how costly summer was at hand,

As this fore-spurrer comes before his lord.

Por. No more, I pray thee; I am half-afraid,

Thou wilt say anon, he is some kin to thee,

Thou spend'st such high-day wit in praising

him.—

• Know.

† Salutations.

Come, come, Shylock; for I long to see
Quick Cupid's post, that comes so sweetly.
Nay, Antonio, lend love, if thy will it be!

[Exeunt.]

ACT III.

SCENE I.—Venice.—A Street.

Enter SALARIO and SALARINO.

Salar. Now, what news on the Rialto?

Salar. Why, yet it lives there necked'd,
That Antonio hath a ship of rich lading wreck'd on the narrow seas, the Goodwins, I think they call the place; a very dangerous flat, and fatal,
where the carcasses of many a tall ship lie buried, as they say, if my gossip report be an honest woman of her word.

Salar. I would she were as lying a gossip in that, as ever knapp'd ginger, or made her neighbours believe she wept for the death of a third husband. But it is true,—without any stip of prolixity, or crossing the plain highway of talk,—that the good Antonio, the honest Antonio,—O that I had a title good enough to keep his name company!—

Salar. Come, the full stop.

Salar. Ha,—what say'st thou?—Why the end is, he hath lost a ship.

Salar. I would it might prove the end of his losses!

Salar. Let me say amen betimes, lest the devil cross my prayer; for here he comes in the livery of a Jew.—

Enter SHYLOCK.

How now, Shylock? what news among the merchants?

Sly. You know, none so well, none so well as you, of my daughter's flight.

Salar. That's certain; I, for my part, knew the tailor that made the wings she flew withal.

Salar. And Shylock, for his own part, knew the bird was fledg'd; and then it is the complexion of these all to leave the dam.

Sly. She is dam'd for it.

Salar. That's certain, if the devil may be her judge.

Sly. My own flesh and blood to rebel.

Salar. Out upon it, old carrion! rebels it at three years?

Sly. I say, my daughter is my flesh and blood.

Salar. There is more difference between thy flesh and hers, than between jet and ivory;
more between your bloods, than there is between red wine and rhenish:—But tell us, do you hear whether Antonio have had any loss
at sea or no?

Sly. There I have another bad match: a bankrupt, a prodigal, who dare scarce show his head on the Rialto;—a beggar, that used to come so snug upon the mart;—let him look to his bond: he was wont to call me usurer;—
let him look to his bond: he was wont to lend money for a Christian courtesy;—let him look to his bond.

Salar. Why, I am sure, if he forfeit, thou wilt not take his flesh; What's that good for?

Sly. To bait fish withal: if it will feed nothing else, it will feed my revenge. He hath degraded me, and hindered me of half a million; laughed at my losses, mocked at my gains, scorned my nation, thwarted my bargains, cooled my friends, heated mine enemies;
and what's his reason? I am a Jew: Hath not a Jew eyes? hath not a Jew hands, organs, dimensions, senses, affections, passions? fed

with the same food, hurt with the same weapons, subject to the same diseases, healed by the same means, warmed and cooled by the same winter and summer, as a Christian is? If you prick us, do we not bleed? If you tickle us, do we not laugh? If you poison us, do we not die? and if you wrong us, shall we not revenge? If we are like you in the rest, we will resemble you in that. If a Jew wrong a Christian, what is his humility? revenge; If a Christian wrong a Jew, what should his sufferance be by Christian example? why, revenge. The villainy, you teach me, I will execute; and it shall go hard, but I will better
the instruction.

Enter a SERVANT.

Serv. Gentlemen, my master Antonio is at his house, and desires to speak with you both.

Salar. We have been up and down to seek
him.

Enter TUBAL.

Salar. Here comes another of the tribe; a third cannot be matched, unless the devil himself turn Jew.

[Exeunt SALAR. SALAR. and SERVANT.]

Sly. How now, Tubal, what news from Genova? hast thou found my daughter?

Tub. I often came where I did hear of her,
but cannot find her.

Sly. Why there, there, there! a diamond gone, cost me two thousand ducats in Frankfort! The curse never fall upon our nation till now; I never felt it till now;—two thousand ducats in that; and other precious, precious jewels.—I would, my daughter were dead at my foot, and the jewels in her ear!
'would she were hears'd at my foot, and the ducats in her coffin! No news of them?—Why, so:—and I know not what's spent in the search: Why, thou loss upon loss! the thief gone with so much, and so much to find the thief; and no satisfaction, no revenge: nor no ill luck stirring, but what lights o' my shoulders; no sighs, but o' my breathing; no tears,
but o' my shedding.

Tub. Yes, other men have ill luck too; Antonio, as I heard in Genoa,—

Sly. What, what, what? ill luck, ill luck?

Tub.—bath an argosy cast away, coming from Tripolis.

Sly. I thank God, I thank God:—Is it true?
is it true?

Tub. I spoke with some of the sailors that escaped the wreck.

Sly. I thank thee, good Tubal;—Good news,
good news: ha! ha!—Where? in Genoa?

Tub. Your daughter spent in Genoa, as I heard, one night, fourscore ducats.

Sly. Thou stick'st a dagger in me:—I shall never see my gold again: Fourscore
ducats at a sitting! fourscore ducats!

Tub. There came divers of Antonio's creditors in my company to Venice, that swear he cannot choose but break.

Sly. I am very glad of it: I'll plague him;
I'll torture him; I am glad of it.

Tub. One of them showed me a ring, that he had of your daughter for a monkey.

Sly. Out upon her! Thou torturest me,
Tubal: it was my turquoise; I had it of Leah, when I was a bachelor: I would not have given it for a wilderness of monkeys.

Tub. But Antonio is certainly undone.

Sly. Nay, that's true, that's very true: Go,

• A precious stone.

Take him a fortnight's heart of him, if Venice, I can go, go, Tubal, go, good Tubal. [Exeunt.]

Now in PORTIA'S

SHRINE, NERISSA, are set out.

For a day or two, being wrong, forbear a while. (It is not love,) know yourself, quality:

Stand me well, (but thought,) month or two, could teach you, I am forsworn; I miss me; wish a sin, threw your eyes, divided me; half yours,— if mine, then mighty times and their rights; Prove it so, not I. size* the time; in length, rack. in? then confess with your love. reason of mistrust, wing of my love: out life en and my love. upon the rack, any thing. I'll confess the d live.

confession: rurer overance! the caskets. ck'd in one of nd me out.— all aloof.— make his choice; wantlike end, mparison eye shall be the

He may win; n music is subjects low such it is, break of day, bridegroom's ear. Now he goes, with much more

did redeem wling Troy

gnity of mien.

To the sea-monster: I stand for sacrifice, The rest aloof are the Dardanian wives, With bleared visages, come forth to view The issue of the exploit. Go, Hercules! [may Live thou, I live:—With much much more dis- I view the fight, than thou that mak'st the fray.]

Music, whilst BASSANIO comments on the caskets to himself.

SONG.

1. Tell me, where is fancy bred,
Or in the heart, or in the head?
How begot, how nourished?
Reply. 2. It is engender'd in the eyes,
With gazing fed; and fancy dies
In the cradle where it lies:
Let us all ring fancy's knell:
I'll begin it,—Ding dong, bell.

All. Ding, dong, bell.
Bass.—So may the outward shows be least themselves;

The world is still deceiv'd with ornament. In law, what plea so tainted and corrupt, But, being season'd with a gracious voice, Obscures the show of evil? In religion, What damned error, but some sober brow Will bless it, and approve it with a text, Hiding the grossness with fair ornament? There is no vice so simple, but assumes Some mark of virtue on his outward parts. How many cowards, whose hearts are all as false

As stairs of sand, wear yet upon their chins The beards of Hercules, and frowning Mars; Who, inward search'd, have livers white as milk?

And these assume but valour's excrement, To render them redoubted. Look on beauty, And you shall see 'tis purchas'd by the weight; Which therein works a miracle in nature, Making them lightest that wear most of it: So are those crisped, snaky golden locks, Which make such wanton gambols with the Upon supposed fairness, often known (wind, To be the dowry of a second head, The skull that bred them, in the sepulchre. Thus ornament is but the guiled shore To a most dangerous sea; the beauteous scarf Veiling an Indian beauty; in a word, The seeming truth which cunning times put on To entrap the wisest. Therefore, thou gaudy gold,

Hard food for Midas, I will none of thee: Nor none of thee, thou pale and common drudge 'Tween man and man: but thou, thou meager lead, Which rather threat'nest, than dost promise Thy plainness moves me more than eloquence, And here choose I; Joy be the consequence! For. How all the other passions fleet to air, As doubtful thoughts, and rash-embrac'd despair,

And shudd'ring fear, and green-ey'd jealousy. O love, be moderate, allay thy ecstasy, In measure rain thy joy, scant this excess; I feel too much thy blessing, make it less, For fear I surfeit!

Bass. What find I here?

[Opening the leaden casket.] Fair Portia's counterfeit! What demi-god Hath come so near creation? Move these eyes? Or whether, riding on the balls of mine, Seem they in motion? Here are sever'd lips, Parted with sugar breath; so sweet a bar

* Love. † Winning favour. ‡ Curled.
§ Treacherous. || Likeness, portrait.

Should sunder such sweet friends: Here in her hairs

The painter plays the spider; and hath woven
A golden mesh to entrap the hearts of men,
Faster than gnats in cobwebs: But her eyes,—
How could he see to do them? having made
one,

[his,
Methinks, it should have power to steal both
And leave itself unfurnish'd: Yet look, how far

The substance of my praise doth wrong this
In underprizing it, so far this shadow [shadow, Doth limp behind the substance.—Here's the scroll,

The continent and summary of my fortune.

*You that choose not by the ricke,
Chance as fair, and choose as true!*

Since this fortune falls to you,

Be content and seek no new.

If you be well pleas'd with this,

And hold your fortune for your bliss,

Turn you where your lady is,

And claim her with a loving kiss.

A gentle scroll;—Fair lady, by your leave;

[Kissing her.

I come by note, to give, and to receive.

Like one of two contending in a prize,

That thinks he hath done well in people's eyes,

Hearing applause, and universal shout,

Giddy in spirit, still gazing, in a doubt

Whether those peals of praise be his or no;

So, thrice fair lady, stand I, even so;

As doubtful whether what I see be true,

Until confirm'd, sign'd, ratified by you.

Por. You see me, lord Bassanio, where I
stand,

Such as I am: though, for my self alone,

I would not be ambitious in my wish,

To wish myself much better; yet, for you,

I would be trebled twenty times myself;

A thousand times more fair, ten thousand times
More rich;

But it only to stand high on your account,

I might in virtues, beauties, livings, friends,

Exceed account: but the full sum of me

Is sum of something; which, to term in gross,

Is an unlesson'd girl, unschoold, unpractis'd:

Happy in this, she is not yet so old

But she may learn; and happier than this,

She is not bred so dull but she can learn;

Happiest of all, is, that her gentle spirit

Commits itself to yours to be directed,

As from her lord, her governor, her king.

Myself, and what is mine, to you, and yours

Is now converted: but now I was the lord

Of this fair mansion, master of my servants,

Queen o'er myself; and even now, but now,

This house, these servants, and this same myself,

Are yours, my lord; I give them with this ring,

Which, when you part from, lose, or give away,

Let it presage the ruin of your love.

And be my vantage to exclaim on you.

Bass. Madam, you have bereft me of all
words,

Only my blood speaks to you in my veins:

And there is such confusion in my powers,

As, after some oration fairly spoke

By a beloved prince, there doth appear

Among the buzzing pleased multitude;

Where every something, being blent * together,

Turns to a wild of nothing, save of joy,

Express'd, and not express'd: But when this

ring

Parts from this finger, then parts life from hence;

O, then be bold to say, Bassanio's dead.

Ner. My lord and lady, it is now our time,
That have stood by, and seen our wishes prosper,

To cry, good joy; Good joy, my lord, and lady!

Gra. My lord Bassanio, and my gentle lady,

I wish you all the joy that you can wish;

For, I am sure, you can wish none from me:

And, when your honours mean to solemnize

The bargain of your faith, I do beseech you,

Even at that time I may be married too.

Bass. With all my heart, so thou canst get a wife.

Gra. I thank your lordship; you have got me one.

My eyes, my lord, can look as swift as yours:

You saw the mistress, I beheld the maid;

You lov'd, I lov'd; for intermission *

No more pertains to me, my lord, than you.

Your fortune stood upon the caskets there;

And so did mine too, as the matter falls:

For wooing here, until I sweat again;

And swearing, till my very roof was dry

With oaths of love: at last,—if promise last,—

I got a promise of this fair one here,

To have her love, provided that your fortune:

Achiev'd her mistress.

Por. Is this true, Nerissa?

Ner. Madam, it is, so you stand pleas'd
withal.

Bass. And do you, Gratiano, mean good faith?

Gra. Yes, faith, my lord.

Bass. Our feast shall be much honour'd in your marriage.

Gra. We'll play with them, the first boy for a thousand ducats.

Ner. What, and stake down?

Gra. No; we shall ne'er win at that sport,
and stake down.—

But who comes here? Lorenzo, and his infidel?
What, my old Venetian friend, Salerio?

Enter LORENZO, JESSICA, and SALERIO.

Bass. Lorenzo, and Salerio, welcome hither;
If that the youth of my new interest here
Have power to bid you welcome:—By your
leave.

I bid my very friends and countrymen,
Sweet Portia, welcome.

Por. So do I, my lord;

They are entirely welcome.

Lor. I thank your honour:—For my part,
my lord,

My purpose was not to have seen you here;

But meeting with Salerio by the way,

He did entreat me, past all saying nay,

To come with him along.

Saler. I did, my lord,

And I have reason for it. Signior Antonio

Commends him to you.

[Gives BASSANIO a letter.

Bass. Ere I ope his letter,

I pray you, tell me how my good friend doth.

Saler. Not sick, my lord, unless it be in mind;

Nor well, unless in mind: his letter there

Will show you his estate.

Gra. Nerissa, cheer you' stranger: bid her welcome. [Venice?

Your hand, Salerio; What's the news from

How doth that royal merchant, good Antonio?

I know, he will be glad of our success;

We are the Jasons, we have won the fleece.

Saler. Would you had won the fleece that he hath lost!

Por. There are some shrewd contents in you'
same paper,

Bassanio's cheek :
 nothing in the situation [world
 worse and worse ?
 half yourself,
 half of any thing
 you.

Want'st words,
 gentle lady,
 give to you,
 with I had
 gentleman;
 and yet, dear lady,
 shall see
 When I told you
 and then have told

ing; for, indeed,
 dear friend,
 enemy,
 letter, lady;
 friend,
 wound,
 true, Salerio?
 What, not one
 and England, [hit?
 India?
 dreadful touch

at if he had ge the Jew,
 did I know
 shape of man,
 and a man:
 and at night;
 of the state,
 nty merchants,
 gnificoes*
 aded with him;
 the envious plea
 is bond.
 m, I have heard

countrymen,
 Antonio's flesh,
 of the sum
 now, my lord,
 deny not,
 onio.
 l, that is thus in me, the kindest

carried spirit
 in whom ore appears,
 n Italy.
 Jew?
 and ducats.

face the bond;
 n treble that,
 tion
 anio's fault.
 ed call me wife:
 our friend;
 tia's side
 hall have gold times over;
 ue friend along:
 mean time,
 s Come, away;
 wedding-day;

Bid your friends welcome, show a merry cheer;
 Since you are dear bought, I will love you dear.—
 But let me hear the letter of your friend.

Bass. [Reads.] Sweet Bassanio, my ships have all miscarried, my creditors grow cruel, my estate is very low, my bond to the Jew is forfeit;
 and since, in paying it, it is impossible I should live, all debts are cleared between you and I, if I might but see you at my death: notwithstanding, use your pleasure: if your love do not persuade
 you to come, let not my letter.

Por. O love, despatch all business, and be gone.

Bass. Since I have your good leave to go
 away,

I will make haste: but till I come again,
 No bed shall e'er be guilty of my stay,
 No rest be interposer 'twixt us twain.

[Exeunt.]

SCENE III.—Venice.—A Street.

Enter SHYLOCK, SALARIO, ANTONIO, and Jailer.

Shy. Jailer, look to him;—Tell not me of mercy;—

This is the fool that lent out money gratis;—

Jailer, look to him.

Ant. Hear me yet, good Shylock.

Shy. I'll have my bond; speak not against my bond;

I have sworn an oath that I will have my bond:
 Thou call'st me dog, before thou had'st a
 cause:

But, since I am a dog, beware my fangs:
 The duke shall grant me justice.—I do wonder,
 Thou naughty jailer, that thou art so fond †
 To come abroad with him at his request.

Ant. I pray thee, hear me speak.

Shy. I'll have my bond; I will not hear thee
 speak: [more.]

I'll have my bond; and therefore speak no
 I'll not be made a soft and dull-ey'd fool,
 To shake the head, relent, and sigh, and yield
 To Christian intercessors. Follow not;
 I'll have no speaking; I will have my bond.

[Exit SHYLOCK.]

Salario. It is the most impenetrable cur,
 That ever kept with men.

Ant. Let him alone;

I'll follow him no more with bootless prayers.
 He seeks my life; his reason well I know;
 I oft deliver'd from his forfeitures
 Many that have at times made moan to me;
 Therefore he hates me.

Salario. I am sure, the duke
 Will never grant this forfeiture to hold.

Ant. The duke cannot deny the course of
 For the commodity that strangers have [law;
 With us in Venice, if it be denied,
 Will much impeach the justice of the state;
 Since that the trade and profit of the city
 Consisteth of all nations. Therefore, go:
 These griefs and losses have so 'bated me,
 That I shall hardly spare a pound of flesh
 To-morrow to my bloody creditor.—

Well, jailer, on;—Pray God, Bassanio come
 To see me pay his debt, and then I care not!

[Exeunt.]

SCENE IV.—Belmont.—A Room in PORTIA'S
 House.

Enter PORTIA, NERISSA, LORENZO, JESSICA,
 and BALTHAZAR.

Lor. Madam, although I speak it in your
 You have a noble and a true conceit [presence,

* Yare.

† Foolish.

Of god-like pity; which appears most strongly
In bearing thus the absence of your lord.
But, if you knew to whom you show this
honour,

How true a gentleman you send relief,
How dear a lover of my lord your husband,
I know, you would be prouder of the work,
Than customary bounty can enforce you.

Per. I never did repent for doing good,
Nor shall not now: for in companions
That do converse and waste the time together,
Whose souls do bear an equal yoke of love,
There must be needs a like proportion
Of lineaments, of manners, and of spirit;
Which makes me think, that this Antonio,
Being the bosom lover of my lord,
Must needs be like my lord: If it be so,
How little is the cost I have bestow'd,
In purchasing the semblance of my soul
From out the state of hellish cruelty?

This comes too near the praising of myself;
Therefore, no more of it: hear other things.—
Lorenzo, I commit into your hands

The husbandry and manage of my house,
Until my lord's return: for mine own part,
I have toward heaven breath'd a secret vow,
To live in prayer and contemplation,
Only attended by Nerissa here,
Until her husband and my lord's return:
There is a monastery two miles off,
And there we will abide. I do desire you,
Not to deny this imposition;
The which my love, and some necessity,
Now lays upon you.

Lor. Madam, with all my heart;
I shall obey you in all fair commands.

Per. My people do already know my mind,
And will acknowledge you and Jessica
In place of lord Bassanio and myself.
So fare you well, till we shall meet again.

Lor. Fair thoughts, and happy hours attend on you.

Jes. I wish your ladyship all heart's content.
Per. I thank you for your wish, and am well
pleas'd

To wish it back on you: fare you well, Jessica.—[Exeunt JESSICA and LORENZO.]
Now, Bellario,

As I have ever found thee honest, true,
So let me find thee still: Take this same letter,
And see thou all the endeavour of a man,
Is speed to Padua; see thou render this
Into my cousin's hand, doctor Bellario;
And, look, what notes and garments he doth
give thee,

Bring them, I pray thee, with imagin'd speed Unto the transept, to the common ferry Which trades to Venice:—waste no time in
words,

But get thee gone; I shall be there before thee.
Bell. Madam, I go with all convenient speed. [Exit.]

Per. Come on, Nerissa; I have work in hand, [bands,
That you yet know not of: we'll see our husband before they think of us.

Ner. Shall they see us?
Per. They shall, Nerissa; but in such a habit,
That they shall think we are accomplished
With what we lack. I'll hold thee any wager,
When we are both accoutred like young men,
I'll prove the prettier fellow of the two,
And wear my dagger with the braver grace;
And speak, between the change of man and
boy,

With a good voice; and turn two mising steps
Into a manly stride; and speak of frays,

Like a fine bragging youth: and tell quaint lies,
How honourable ladies sought my love,
Which I denying, they fell sick and died;
I could not do with all:—then I'll repent,
And wish, for all that, that I had not kill'd
them:

And twenty of these puny lies I'll tell,
That men shall swear, I have discontinued
school

Above a twelvemonth:—I have within my mind
A thousand new tricks of these bragging Jacks,
Which I will practise.

Ner. Why, shall we turn to men?

Per. Plo! what a question's that,
If thou wert near a lewd interpreter?
But come, I'll tell thee all my whole device
When I am in my coach, which stays for us
At the park gate; and therefore haste away,
For we must measure twenty miles to-day.

[Exeunt.]

SCENE V.—The same.—A Garden.

Enter LAUNCELOT and JESSICA.

Lam. Yes, truly:—for, look you, the sins of the father are to be laid upon the children;
therefore, I promise you, I fear you. I was always plain with you, and so now I speak my agitation of the matter: Therefore, be of good cheer; for, truly, I think, you are damn'd.
There is but one hope in it that can do you any good; and that is but a kind of bastard hope neither.

Jes. And what hope is that, I pray thee?

Lam. Marry, you may partly hope that your father got you not, that you are not the Jew's daughter.

Jes. That were a kind of bastard hope, indeed; so the sins of my mother should be visited
upon me.

Lam. Truly then I fear you are damn'd both
by father and mother: thus when I shun Scylla,
your father, I fall into Charybdis, your mother: well, you are gone both ways.

Jes. I shall be saved by my husband; he hath made me a Christian.

Lam. Truly the more to blame he: we were Christians enough before; e'en as many as could well live, one by another: This making of Christians will raise the price of hogs; if we grow all to be pork-eaters, we shall not shortly have a rasher on the coals for money.

Enter LORENZO.

Jes. I'll tell my husband, Launcelot, what you say; here he comes.

Lor. I shall grow jealous of you shortly,
Launcelot, if you thus get my wife into corners.

Jes. Nay, you need not fear us, Lorenzo;
Launcelot and I are out: he tells me flatly,
there is no mercy for me in heaven, because I am a Jew's daughter: and he says you are no good member of the commonwealth; for, in converting Jews to Christians, you raise the price of pork.

Lor. I shall answer that better to the commonwealth, than you can the getting up of the negro's belly: the Moor is with child by you, Launcelot.

Lam. It is much, that the Moor should be more than reason: but if she be less than an honest woman, she is, indeed, more than I took her for.

Lor. How every fool can play upon the word!
I think, the best grace of wit will shortly turn into silence; and discourse grow commendable
in none only but parrots.—Go in, sirrah; bid them prepare for dinner.

MERCHANT OF VENICE.

[ACT IV.]

they have all sto-

out-snapper are inner.

only, cover is know my duty.

with occasion!

th of thy wit in stand a plan

to thy fellows;

in the meat,

shall be served

be covered, for

why, let it be as

vern.

LAUNCELOT.

his words are memory {suited!

I do know

ter place,

ucky word

st thou, Jessica?

opinion,

assano's wife?

is very meet,

ght life;

us lady,

re on earth;

in it, it

to heaven.

some heavenly

tly women.

something else

poor rude world

a wife.

an too of that.

is go to dinner.

a, while I have a

serve for table-

[things

st, 'mong other

[Exeunt.

court of Justice.

fices; ANTONIO,

ARINO, SALANIO,

re?

grace.

thou art come to an wretch

empty

pains to qualify

ce he stands ob-

n carry me

oppose

am arm'd

spirit,

his.

he Jew into the

Solen. He's ready at the door: he comes, my lord.

Enter SHYLOCK.

Duke. Make room, and let him stand before our face.

Shylock, the world thinks, and I think so too, That thou but lead'st this fashion of thy malice To the last hour of act; and then, 'tis thought, Thou'll show thy mercy, and remorse,* more Than is thy strange apparent cruelty: (strange And where? thou now exact'st the penalty, (Which is a pound of this poor merchant's flesh,) Thou wilt not only loose the forfeiture, But touch'd with human gentleness and love, Forgive a moiety of the principal; Glancing an eye of pity on his losses, That have of late so huddled on his back; Enough to press a royal merchant down, And pluck commiseration of his state From brassy bosoms, and rough hearts of flint, From stubborn Turka, and Tartara, never To offices of tender courtesy. [trai'd We all expect a gentle answer, Jew.

Shy. I have possess'd your grace of what I purpose;

And by our holy Sabbath have I sworn, To have the due and forfeit of my bond: If you deny it, let the danger light Upon your charter, and your city's freedom. You'll ask me, why I rather choose to have A weight of carrion flesh, than to receive Three thousand ducats: I'll not answer that: But, say, it is my humour; † Is it answer'd? What if my house be troubled with a rat, And I be pleas'd to give ten thousand ducats To have it baned? What, are you answer'd yet? Some men there are, love not a gaping pig; Some, that are mad, if they behold a cat; And others, when the bagpipe sings i' the nose, Cannot contain their urine; For affection, ‡ Mistress of passion, sways it to the mood Of what it likes, or loaths. Now, for your answer:

As there is no firm reason to be render'd, Why he cannot abide a gaping pig; Why he, a harmless necessary cat; Why he, a swollen bagpipe; but of force Must yield to such inevitable shame, As to offend, himself being offended; So can I give no reason, nor I will not, More than a lodg'd hate, and a certain loath- I hear Antonio, that I follow thus [ing, A losing suit against him. Are you answer'd?

Bass. This is no answer, thou unfeeling man, To excuse the current of thy cruelty.

Shy. I am not bound to please thee with my answer.

Bass. Do all men kill the things they do not love?

Shy. Hates any man the thing he would not kill?

Bass. Every offence is not a hate at first.

Shy. What, would'st thou have a serpent sting thee twice?

Ant. I pray you, think you question with the Jew:

You may as well go stand upon the beach, And bid the main flood bate his usual height; You may as well use question with the wolf, Why he hath made the ewe bleat for the lamb; † You may as well forbid the mountain pines To wag their high tops, and to make no noise, When they are fretted with the gusts of heaven; You may as well do any thing most hard,

* Pay. † Scorning. ‡ Whereas. † Particular fancy.
‡ Prejudice. † Craving.  Conversation.

As seek to soften that (than which what's harder?)

His Jewish heart:—Therefore, I do beseech you,

Make no more offers, use no further means,
But, with all brief and plain conveniency,
Let me have judgement, and the Jew his will.

Bass. For thy three thousand ducats here is six.

Shy. If every ducat in six thousand ducats,
Were in six parts, and every part a ducat,
I would not draw them, I would have my bond.

Duke. How shalt thou hope for mercy, rendering none?

Shy. What judgement shall I dread, doing no wrong?

You have among you many a purchas'd slave,
Which, like your asses, and your dogs, and
You use in abject and in slavish parts, [mules,
Because you bought them:—Shall I say to you,
Let them be free, marry them to your heirs?
Why sweat they under burdens? let their beds
Be made as soft as yours, and let their palates
Be season'd with such viands? You will answer,

The slaves are ours:—So do I answer you:
The pound of flesh, which I demand of him,
Is dearly bought, is mine, and I will have it:
If you deny me, lie upon your law!

There is no force in the decrees of Venice:
I stand for judgement: answer; shall I have it?

Duke. Upon my power, I may dismiss this Unless Bellario, a learned doctor, [court,
Whom I have sent for to determine this,
Come here to-day.

Salari. My lord, here stays without
A messenger with letters from the doctor,
New come from Padua.

Duke. Bring us the letters; Call the messenger.

Bass. Good cheer, Antonio! What, man? courage yet!

The Jew shall have my flesh, blood, bones, and Ere thou shalt lose for me one drop of blood.

Ant. I am a tainted wether of the flock,
Meetest for death; the weakest kind of fruit
Drops earliest to the ground, and so let me:
You cannot better be employ'd, Bassanio,
Than to live still, and write mine epitaph.

Enter NEARSSA, dressed like a lawyer's clerk.

Duke. Came you from Padua, from Bellario?

Ner. From both, my lord: Bellario greets your grace. [Presents a letter.

Bass. Why dost thou whet thy knife so earnestly?

Shy. To cut the forfeiture from that bankrupt there.

Gra. Not on thy sole, but on thy soul, harsh Jew.

Thou mak'st thy knife keen: but no metal can,
No, not the hangman's ax, bear half the keenness

Of thy sharp envy.* Can no prayers pierce thee?

Shy. No, none that thou hast wit enough to make.

Gra. O, be thou damn'd, inexorable dog!

And for thy life let justice be accus'd.
Thou almost mak'st me waver in my faith,
To hold opinion with Pythagoras,
That souls of animals infuse themselves
Into the trunks of men: thy currish spirit, Govern'd a wolf; who, hang'd for human slaughter,

Even from the gallows did his fell soul fleet,
And, while thou lay'st in thy unhallow'd dam,
Infus'd itself in thee; for thy desires
Are wolfish, bloody, starv'd, and ravenous.

Shy. Till thou can'st rail the seal from off my bond,

Thou but offend'st thy lungs to speak so loud:
Repair thy wit, good youth, or it will fall
To cureless ruin.—I stand here for law.

Duke. This letter from Bellario doth commend
A young and learned doctor to our court:—
Where is he?

Ner. He attendeth here hard by,
To know your answer, whether you'll admit him.

Duke. With all my heart:—some three or four
of you,

Go give him courteous conduct to this place.—
Mean time, the court shall hear Bellario's letter.

[Clerk reads.] Your grace shall understand,
that, at the receipt of your letter, I am very sick:
but in the instant that your messenger came, in loving visitation was with me a young doctor of Rome, his name is Balthazar: I acquainted him with the cause in controversy between the Jew and Antonio the merchant: we turned o'er many books together: he is furnish'd with my opinion; which,
better'd with his own learning, (the greatness whereof I cannot enough commend,) comes with him, at my importunity, to fill up your grace's request in my stead. I beseech you, let his lack of years be no impediment to let him lack a reverend estimation; for I never knew so young a body with so old a head. I leave him to your gracious acceptance, whose trial shall better publish his commendation.

Duke. You hear the learn'd Bellario, what he writes:

And here, I take it, is the doctor come.—

Enter PORTIA, dressed like a doctor of laws.

Give me your hand: Came you from old Bel-lario?

Por. I did, my lord.

Duke. You are welcome: take your place.
Are you acquainted with the difference

That holds this present question in the court?

Por. I am informed thoroughly of the cause,
Which is the merchant here, and which the Jew?

Duke. Antonio and old Shylock, both stand
forth.

Por. Is your name Shylock?

Shy. Shylock is my name.

Por. Of a strange nature is the suit you follow: Yet in such rule, that the Venetian law [low;
Cannot impugn* you, as you do proceed.—
You stand within his danger,† do you not?

[To ANTONIO.

Ant. Ay, so he says.

Por. Do you confess the bond?

Ant. I do.

Por. Then must the Jew be merciful.

Shy. On what compulsion must I? tell me
that.

Por. The quality of mercy is not strain'd;
It droppeth, as the gentle rain from heaven
Upon the place beneath: it is twice bless'd;
It blesseth him that gives, and him that takes:
'Tis mightiest in the mightiest; it becomes
The throned monarch better than his crown:
His sceptre shows the force of temporal power,
The attribute to awe and majesty,
Wherein doth sit the dread and fear of kings
But mercy is above this sceptred sway,
It is enthroned in the hearts of kings,
It is an attribute to God himself;

THE MERCHANT OF VENICE.

then show likest God's,
 Justice. Therefore, Jew,
 I pray thee, consider this,— Justice, none of us
 Can do pray for mercy;
 But teach us all to render
 As we have spoke thus much,
 For thy plea;
 In a strict court of Venice
 To plead against the merchant

my head! I crave the
 Of my bond. [law,
 To discharge the money?
 For it for him in the court;
 That will not suffice,
 At ten times o'er,
 My head, my heart:
 I must appear
 In truth. And I beseech
 Your authority: [you,
 A little wrong;
 In of his will.

there is no power in Washed: [Venice
 Precedent;
 The same example,
 It cannot be.
 To judgement! yea, a

How do I honour thee!
 He look upon the bond.
 Reverend doctor, here it is.
 Thrice thy money of-

th, I have an oath in
 Of my soul?

Is forfeit;
 The Jew may claim
 By him cut off
 Heart:—Be merciful;
 He bid me tear the bond.
 According to the tenor.—
 A worthy judge;
 For exposition

I charge you by the Observing pillar, [law,
 By my soul I swear,
 The tongue of man
 On my bond.
 Do beseech the court

It is.
 Bosom for his knife:
 O excellent young man!
 The purpose of the law
 The penalty,
 Due upon the bond.

O wise and upright
 Art thou than thy looks!
 Are your bosom.

h it not, noble judge!—
 Are the very words.
 Here balance here, to [weigh dy.

 surgeon, Shylock, on

he do bleed to death.
 In the bond?
 Press'd; But what of Much for charity. [that?
 'tis not in the bond.

Por. Come, merchant, have
 say?

Ant. But little; I am arr
 par'd.—

Give me your hand, Bassan
 Grieve not that I am fallen
 For herein fortune shows be
 Than is her custom: it is sti
 To let the wretched man on
 To view with hollow eye, an
 An age of poverty; from wh
 Of such a misery doth she c
 Commend me to your honou
 Tell her the process of Anto
 Say, how I lov'd you, speak
 And, when the tale is told,
 Whether Bassanio had not o
 Repent not you that you sh
 And he repents not that he
 For, if the Jew do but cut
 I'll pay it instantly with all

Bass. Antonio, I am marr
 Which is as dear to me as li
 But life itself, my wife, and
 Are not with me esteem'd a
 I would lose all, ay, sacrific
 Here to this devil, to deliver

Por. Your wife would giv for that,

If she were by, to hear you

Gra. I have a wife, whom
 I would she were in heaven.

Entreat some power to chang

Ner. 'Tis well you offer it
 The wish would make else

Shy. These be the Chris have a daughter;

'Would, any of the stock of
 Had been her husband, rather

We trifle time; I pray thee, Por. A pound of that san is thine;

 The court awards it, and th

Shy. Most rightful judge

Por. And you must cut his breast;

The law allows it, and the Shy. Most learned jud

come, prepare.

Por. Tarry a little;—there:
 This bond doth give thee he

The words expressly are, a Take then thy bond, take

But, in the cutting it, if tho
 One drop of Christian blo

Are, by the laws of Venice,
 Unto the state of Venice.

Gra. O upright judge!
 learned judge!

Shy. Is that the law?

Por. Thyself shalt see the
 For, as thou urgest justice,

Thou shalt have justice, mor

Gra. O learned judge!
 learned judge!

Shy. I take this offer th
 thrice,

And let the Christian go.
 Bass. Here is the money.

Por. Soft!

The Jew shall have all
 He shall have nothing but

Gra. O Jew! an upright judge!

Por. Therefore, prepare flesh.

Shed thou no blood; nor out thou lose, nor more,

But just a pound of flesh: if thou tak'st more,
Or less, than a just pound,—be it but so much
As makes it light, or heavy, in the substance,
Or the division of the twentieth part
Of one poor scruple; nay, if the scale do turn
But in the estimation of a hair,—

Thou diest, and all thy goods are confiscate.

Gre. A second Daniel, a Daniel, Jew!

Jew, infidel, I have thee on the hip.

Per. Why doth the Jew pause? take the forfeiture.

Shy. Give me my principal, and let me go.

Bass. I have it ready for thee, here it is.

Per. He hath refus'd it in the open court;

He shall have merely justice, and his bond.

Gre. A Daniel, still say I, a second Daniel!—

I thank thee, Jew, for teaching me that word.

Shy. Shall I not have barely my principal?

Per. Thou shalt have nothing but the forfeit—
To be so taken at thy peril, Jew. [ture

Shy. Why then the devil give him good of it!
I'll stay no longer question.

Per. Tarry, Jew;

The law hath yet another hold on you.

It is enacted in the laws of Venice,—

If it be prov'd against an alien,
That by direct, or indirect attempts,
He seek the life of any citizen,
The party 'gainst the which he doth contrive,
Shall seize one half his goods; the other half
Comes to the privy coffer of the state;
And the offender's life lies in the mercy
Of the duke only, 'gainst all other voice.
In which predicament, I say, thou stand'st:
For it appears by manifest proceeding,
That indirectly, and directly too,
Thou hast contriv'd against the very life
Of the defendant; and thou hast incur'd
The danger formerly by me rehears'd.
Down, therefore, and beg mercy of the duke.

Gre. Beg, that thou may'st have leave to hang
thyself:

And yet, thy wealth being forfeit to the state,
Thou hast not left the value of a cord;

Therefore, thou must be hang'd at the state's charge.

Duke. That thou shalt see the difference of our spirit,

I pardon thee thy life before thou ask it:

For half thy wealth, it is Antonio's;

The other half comes to the general state,
Which humbleness may drive unto a fine.

Per. Ay, for the state; not for Antonio.

Shy. Nay, take my life and all, pardon not
that:

You take my house, when you do take the prop
That doth sustain my house; you take my life,
When you do take the means whereby I live.

Per. What mercy can you render him, Antonio?

Gre. A halter gratis; nothing else; for God's sake.

Ant. So please my lord the duke, and all the court,

To quit the fine for one half of his goods;
I am content, so he will let me have
The other half in use,—to render it,
Upon his death, unto the gentleman
That lately stole his daughter:
Two things provided more,—That, for this favour,

He presently become a Christian;

The other, that he do record a gift,
Done in the court, of all he does possess'd,
Unto his son Lorenzo, and his daughter.

Duke. He shall do this; or else I do recant
The pardon, that I late pronounced here.

Per. Art thou contented, Jew, what dost thou say?

Shy. I am content.

Per. Clerk, draw a deed of gift.

Shy. I pray you, give me leave to go from
hence;

I am not well; send the deed after me,
And I will sign it.

Duke. Get thee gone, but do it.

Gre. In christening thou shalt have two godfathers; [more,

Had I been judge, thou should'st have had ten
To bring thee to the gallows, not the font.
[Exit SHYLOCK.

Duke. Sir, I entreat you home with me to dinner.

Per. I humbly do desire your grace of pardon;
I must away this night toward Padua,
And it is meet, I presently set forth.

Duke. I am sorry, that your leisure serves
you not.

Antonio, gratify this gentleman;

For, in my mind, you are much bound to him.

[Exit DUKE, MARGARET, and TRUTH.

Bass. Most worthy gentlemen, I and my
friend,

Have by your wisdom been this day acquitted
Of grievous penalties; in lieu whereof,
Three thousand ducats, due unto the Jew,
We freely cope your courteous pains withal.

Ant. And stand indebted, over and above,
In love and service to you evermore.

Per. He is well paid, that is well satisfied;
And I, delivering you, am satisfied,
And therein do account myself well paid;
My mind was never yet more mercenary.

I pray you, know me, when we meet again;
I wish you well, and so I take my leave.

Bass. Dear Sir, of force I must attempt you farther;

Take some remembrance of us, as a tribute,
Not as a fee: grant me two things, I pray you,
Not to deny me, and to pardon me.

Per. You press me far, and therefore I will yield. [sake;

Give me your gloves, I'll wear them for your
And, for your love, I'll take this ring from
you:— [more;

Do not draw back your hand; I'll take no
And you in love shall not deny me this.

Bass. This ring, good Sir,—alas, it is a trifle,
I will not shame myself to give you this.

Per. I will have nothing else but only this;
And now, methinks, I have a mind to it.

Bass. There's more depends on this, than on the value.

The dearest ring in Venice will I give you,
And find it out by proclamation;
Only for this, I pray you, pardon me.

Per. I see, Sir, you are liberal in offers:
You taught me first to beg; and now, methinks,
You teach me how a beggar should be answer'd.

Bass. Good Sir, this ring was given me by my wife;

And, when she put it on, she made me vow,
That I should neither sell, nor give, nor lose it.

Per. That 'scuse serves many men to save their gifts.

And if your wife be not a mad woman,
And know how well I have deserv'd this ring,
She would not hold out enemy for ever,
For giving it to me. Well, peace be with you!

[Exit PORTIA and NERISSA.

Ant. My lord Bassanio, let him have the ring;

B b

THE MERCHANT OF VENICE.

love withal,
s commandment.
and overtake him,
ring him, if thou

ay, make haste.
[Exit GRATIANO.
r presently;
all we both
Antonio.

[Exeunt.

—A Street.

NERISSA.
ouse out, give him

way to-night,
shands home:
ome to Lorenzo.

no.
ill overtaken:
re advice,*
, and doth entreat

hankfully, Furthermore,
d Shylock's house.

ith you:—
and's ring,
[To PORTIA.

ar to keep for ever.
ant: We shall have

away to men;
outswear them too.
ow't where I will

you show me to [Exeunt.

ence to PORTIA'S

JESSICA.

right:—In such a

ntly kiss the trees,
, in such a night,
the Trojan walls,
the Grecian tents,
nt.

p the dew;
ere himself,

n her hand
nd wav'd her love

ed herbs

wealthy Jew:
d run from Venice,

ne lov'd her well;
y vows of faith,

Lor. And in such a night,
Did pretty Jessica, like a littl
Slander her love, and ho forgi
Jes. I would out-night yo
come:

But, hark, I hear the footing
Enter STEPHANO

Lor. Who comes so fast in silk Steph. A friend.

Lor. A friend? what friend
pray you, friend?

Steph. Stephano is my na
word,

My mistress will before the b
He here at Holmont: she doth
By holy crosses, where she ki
For happy wedlock hours.

Lor. Who comes with her?

Steph. None, but a holy her
I pray you, is my master yet?

Lor. He is not, nor we hav
But go we in, I pray thee, Je
And ceremoniously let us pre
Some welcome for the mistrea

Enter LAUNCELO

Laun. Sola, sola, wo ha, ho
Lor. Who calls?

Laun. Sola! did you see and mistress Lorenzo! sola,!

Lor. Leave hollaing, man;

Laun. Sola! where! where

Lor. Here.

Laun. Tell him, there's a pe master, with his horn full of master will be here ere morni

Lor. Sweet soul, let's in, their coming.

And yet no matter;—Why sh
My friend Stephano, signify,
Within the house, your mistr
And bring your music forth i

How sweet the moonlight bank!

Here will we sit, and let the Creep in our ears; soft stillne
Become the touches of sweet Sit, Jessica: Look, how the
Is thick inlaid with patines*
There's not the smallest orb
hold 'st,

But in his motion like an ang
Still quiring to the young-ey
Such harmony is in immortal
But, whilst this muddy vesture
Doth grossly close it in, we c

Enter Musicians

Come, ho, and wake Diana v
With sweetest touches pier
And draw her home with mu

Jes. I am never merry, w
music.

Lor. The reason is, your spi
For do but note a wild and w
Or race of youthful and unbu Fetching mad bounds, bellow
loud,

Which is the hot condition of
If they but hear perchance a
Or any air of music touch th
You shall perceive them mak
Their savage eyes turn'd to a

* A small flat dish, used in the Eucharist.

By the sweet power of music : Therefore, the past [Sings ;
Did signs that Orpheus drew trees, stones, and flow'rs ; might we stonish, hard, and full of rage,
But music for the time doth change his nature :
The man that hath no music in himself,
Nor is not mov'd with concord of sweet sounds,
Is fit for treason, stratagems, and spoils ;
The motions of his spirit are dull as night,
And his afflictions dumb as death :
Let no such man be trusted.—Mark the music.

Enter PORTIA and NERISSA, at a distance.

Por. That light we see, is burning in my hall.
How far that little candle throws his beams!
How shines a good deed in a naughty world.

Ner. When the moon shone, we did not see the candle.

Por. So doth the greater glory dim the less :
A substitute shines brightly as a king,
Until a king be by, and then his state
Buries itself, as doth an island brook
Into the main of waters. Music 'hark !

Ner. It is your music, madam, of the house.

Por. Nothing is good, I see, without respect ;
Methinks, it sounds much sweeter than by day.

Ner. Silence bestows that virtue on it, madam.

Por. The crow doth sing as sweetly as the lark,
When neither is attended, and, I think, [hark,
The nightingale, if she should sing by day,
When every goose is cackling, would be thought
No better a musician than the wren.

How many things by season season'd are
To their right praise and true perfection !—
Hence, hark ! the moon sleeps with Endymion,
And would not be awak'd ! [Music ceases.

Ner. That is the voice,

Or I am much deceiv'd, of Portia.

Por. He knows me, as the blind man knows the cuckoo,

By the loud voice.

Ner. Dear lady, welcome home.

Por. We have been praying for our husbands'
welfare,

Which speed, we hope, the better for our words.

Are they return'd ?

Ner. Madam, they are not yet ;

But there is come a messenger before,

To signify their coming.

Por. Go in, Nerissa,

Give order to my servants, that they take
No note at all of our being absent hence ;—

Ner. You, Lorenzo ;—Jessica, nor you.

[A trumpet sounds.

Ner. Your husband is at hand, I hear his trumpet :

We are no tell-tales, madam ; fear you not.

Por. This night, methinks, is but the daylight sick,

It looks a little paler ; 'tis a day,
Such as the day is when the sun is hid.

Enter BASSANIO, ANTONIO, GRATIANO, and their Followers.

Bas. We should hold day with the Antipodes,

If you would walk in absence of the sun.

Por. Let me give light, but let me not be
light ;

For a light wife doth make a heavy husband,
And ever be Bassanio so for me ;

And God sort all !—You are welcome home,
my lord.

Ner. I thank you, madam : give welcome to my friend.—

• A flourish on a trumpet.

This is the man, this is Antonio,

To whom I am so infinitely bound.

Por. You should in all senses be much bound
to him,

For, as I hear, he was much bound for you.

Ant. No more than I am well acquitted of.

Por. Sir, you are very welcome to our house :

It must appear in other ways than words,
Therefore, I scant this breathing courtesy.*

[GRATIANO and NERISSA seem to talk apart.

Gre. By yonder moon, I swear, you do me
wrong ;

In faith, I gave it to the judge's clerk :

Would he were gelt that had it, for my part,
Since you do take it, love, so much at heart.

Por. A quarrel, ho, already? what's the matter?

Gre. About a hoop of gold, a paitry ring
That she did give me ; whose poetry was
For all the world, like cutler's poetry
Upon a knife, Love me, and leave me not.

Ner. What talk you of the poetry, or the value?

You swore to me, when I did give it you,
That you would wear it till your hour of death ;
And that it should lie with you in your grave :

Though not for me, yet for your vehement oaths,
You should have been respective,† and have kept it.

Gave it a judge's clerk !—but well I knew,
The clerk will ne'er wear hair on his face, that had it.

Gre. He will, as if he live to be a man.

Ner. Ay, if a woman live to be a man.

Gre. Now, by this hand, I gave it to a youth,—
A kind of boy ; a little scrubbed boy,
No higher than thyself, the judge's clerk ;
A prating boy, that begg'd it as a fee ;
I could not for my heart deny it him.

Por. You were to blame, I must be plain
with you,

To part so slightly with your wife's first gift ;
A thing stuck on with oaths upon your finger,
And riveted so with faith unto your flesh.

I gave my love a ring, and made him swear
Never to part with it ; and here he stands ;
I dare be sworn for him, he would not leave it,
Nor pluck it from his finger, for the wealth
That the world masters. Now, in faith, Gratiano,
You give your wife too unkind a cause of grief ;
As 'twere to me, I would be mad at it.

Bass. Why, I were best to cut my left hand
off,

And swear, I lost the ring defending it. [Aside.

Gre. My lord Bassanio gave his ring away
Unto the judge that begg'd it, and, indeed,
Deserv'd it too ; and then the boy, his clerk,
That took some pains in writing, he begg'd
mine : [sought

And neither man, nor master, would take
But the two rings.

Por. What ring gave you, my lord ?

Not that, I hope, which you receiv'd of me.

Bass. If I could add a lie unto a fault,
I would deny it ; but you see, my finger
Hath not the ring upon it, it is gone.

Por. Even so void is your false heart of truth.

By heaven, I will ne'er come in your bed
Until I see the ring.

Ner. Nor I in yours,

Till I again see mine.

Bass. Sweet Portia,

If you did know to whom I gave the ring,
If you did know for whom I gave the ring,
And would conceive for what I gave the ring
And how unwillingly I left the ring,

ted but the ring,
of your displea-

rtue of the ring,
ve the ring,
a the ring,
ed with the ring.

reasonable,
ended it
d the modesty
emony?

lieve;
had the ring.

madam, by my doctor, (soul,
d ducats of me,
ch I did deny
d away; (him,
ery life

uld I say, sweet um; [lady?

ourtesy;
titude

ne, good lady;
of the night,

ou would have

thv doctor.
r come near my

at I lov'd,
to keep for me,

ave,
and's bed:

are of it:
watch me, like

[Argus:
s yet my own,

liellow.
ore be well ad-

own protection.
e not take him

g clerk's pen-subject of these

ou are welcome

enforced wrong;
ny friends,

own fair eyes,

s himself:
our double self,

oul I swear,
h with thee.

for his wealth;
your husband's

[To PORTIA.
e bound again,

our lord

visedly.

Per. Then you shall be his surety: Give him
this;

And bid him keep it better than the other.

Ant. Here lord Bassanio; swear to keep this
ring.

Bass. By heaven, it is the same I gave the doctor!

Per. I had it of him: pardon me, Bassanio;
For by this ring the doctor lay with me.

Ner. And pardon me, my gentle Gratiano;
For that same scrubbed boy, the doctor's clerk,
In lieu of this, last night did lie with me.

Gra. Why, this is like the mending of highways

In summer, where the ways are fair enough:
What! are we cuckolds, ere we have deserv'd
it?

Per. Speak not so grossly.—You are all
amaz'd:

Here is a letter, read it at your leisure;
It comes from Padua, from Bellario:

There you shall find, that Portia was the doctor;
Nerissa there, her clerk: Lorenzo here

Shall witness, I set forth as soon as you,
And but even now return'd; I have not yet
Enter'd my house.—Antonio, you are welcome;

And I have better news in store for you,
Than you expect: unseal this letter soon;

There you shall find, three of your argosies
Are richly come to harbour suddenly:

You shall not know by what strange accident
I chanced on this letter.

Ant. I am dumb.

Bass. Were you the doctor, and I knew you
not?

Gra. Were you the clerk, that is to make me
cuckold?

Ner. Ay; but the clerk that never means to do it,

Unless he live until he be a man.

Bass. Sweet doctor, you shall be my bedfellow;

When I am absent, then lie with my wife.

Ant. Sweet lady, you have given me life,
and living;

For here I read for certain, that my ships
Are safely come to road.

Per. How now, Lorenzo?

My clerk hath some good comforts too for you.

Ner. Ay, and I'll give them him without a
There do I give to you, and Jessica, [See—

From the rich Jew, a special deed of gift,
After his death, of all he dies possess'd of.

Lor. Fair ladies, you drop manna in the way
Of starved people.

Per. It is almost morning,
And yet, I am sure, you are not satisfied
(Of these events at full): Let us go in;
And charge us there upon intergatories,
And we will answer all things faithfully.

Gra. Let it be so: The first intergatory,
That my Nerissa shall be sworn on, is,
Whether till the next night she had rather stay;
Or go to bed now, being two hours to day:
But were the day come, I should wish it dark,
That I were couching with the doctor's clerk.
Well, while I live, I'll fear no other thing
So sore, as keeping safe Nerissa's ring.

[Exeunt.]

AS YOU LIKE IT.

PERSONS REPRESENTED.

g in exile.
Brother to the Duke, and Usurper
of his Dominions.
Lords attending upon the Duke in his banishment.
Courtier attending upon Frederick.
is Wrestler.
Sons of Sir Rowland de Bois. servants to Oliver.
a Clown.
MARTEXT, a Vicar.
Shepherds.

WILLIAM, a country Fellow, in love with Audrey.
A Person representing Hymen.
ROSALIND, Daughter to the banished Duke.
CELIA, Daughter to Frederick.
PHEBE, a Shepherdess.
AUDREY, a country Wench.
Lords belonging to the two Dukes; Pages,
Foresters, and other Attendants.
The SCENE lies, first, near Oliver's House;
afterwards, partly in the Usurper's Court,
and partly in the Forest of Arden.

ACT I.

—An Orchard, near OLIVER's House.
Enter ORLANDO and ADAM.

remember, Adam, it was upon this meathed me: By will, but a poor owns; and, as thou say'st, charged on his blessing, to breed me well:
begins my sadness. My brother keeps at school, and report speaks his profit: for my part, he keeps ly at home, or, to speak more pro-me here at home unkept: For calleping for a gentleman of my birth, not from the stalling of an ox? His bred better; for, besides that they th their feeding, they are taught ge, and to that end riders dearly
I, his brother, gain nothing under with; for the which his animals on lls are as much bound to him as I.
is nothing that he so plentifully
be something that nature gave me,
nance seems to take from me: he
d with his binds, bars me the place
, and, as much as in him lies, mines
y with my education. That is it,
t grieves me; and the spirit of my ich I think is within me, begins to just this servitude: I will no longer though yet I know no wise remedy
id it.

Enter OLIVER.

under comes my master, your bro-
apart, Adam, and thou shalt hear
I shake me up.
, Sir! what make you here? *
hing: I am not taught to make any
it mar you then, Sir?

* What do you here?

Orl. Marry, Sir, I am helping you to mar that which God made, a poor unworthy brother of yours, with idleness.

Oli. Marry, Sir, be better employed, and be naught awhile.

Orl. Shall I keep your hogs, and eat husks with them? What prodigal portion have I spent, that I should come to such penury?

Oli. Know you where you are, Sir?

Orl. O, Sir, very well: here in your orchard.

Oli. Know you before whom, Sir?

Orl. Ay, better than he I am before knows me. I know, you are my eldest brother; and, in the gentle condition of blood, you should so know me: The courtesy of nations allows you my better, in that you are the first-born; but the same tradition takes not away my blood, were there twenty brothers betwixt us: I have as much of my father in me, as you; albeit, I confess, your coming before me is nearer to his reverence.

Oli. What, boy!

Orl. Come, come, elder brother, you are too young in this.

Oli. Wilt thou lay hands on me, villain?

Orl. I am no villain: * I am the youngest son of Sir Rowland de Bois; he was my father;
and he is thrice a villain, that says, such a father begot villains: Wert thou not my brother, I would not take this hand from thy throat, till this other had pulled out thy tongue
for saying so; thou hast railed on thyself,

Adam. Sweet masters be patient; for your father's remembrance, be at accord.

Oli. Let me go, I say.

Orl. I will not, till I please: you shall hear me. My father charged you in his will to give me good education: you have trained me like a peasant, obscuring and hiding from me all gentleman-like qualities: the spirit of my father grows strong in me, and I will no longer

* Villain is used in a double sense; by Oliver for a worthless fellow, and by Orlando for a man of base extraction.

such exercises
or give me the
by testament;
ones.
beg, when that in: I will not shall have some leave me.

you than be-dog.

Most true, I vice.—God be not have spoke
no and ADAM.
to grow upon ss, and yet give dola, Dennis!

uke's wrestler,
ere at the door,
ts]—Twill be e wrestling is.

orship.
—what's the court, Sir, but he is banished

w duke; and put themselves
hose lands and therefore be
k.

nd, the duke's
father.

daughter, her ver from their
he would have to stay behind
no less loved
ster; and never ive?

in the forest of
with him; and Robin Hood of
g gentlemen
at the time care-
n world.

orrow before the

I came to ac-
given, Sir, so-
ounger brother,
me in disguis'd
morrow, Sir, I that escapes me
and acquit him
ng, and tender;
both to foil him,
if he come in:
I came hither
ther you might or brook such
to; in that it is end altogether

thy love to me,
kindly requite.

I had myself notice of my brother's purpose
herein, and have by underhand means laboured
to dissuade him from it; but he is resolute.
I'll tell thee, Charles,—it is the stubbornest young fellow of France; full of ambition, an envious emulator of every man's good parts, a secret and villanous contriver against me his natural brother; therefore use thy discretion;
I had as lief thou didst break his neck as his finger: And thou wert best look to't! for if thou dost him any slight disgrace, or if he do not mightily grace himself on thee, he will practise against thee by poison, entrap thee by some treacherous device, and never leave thee
till he hath ta'en thy life by some indirect means or other: for, I assure thee, and almost with tears I speak it, there is not one so young and so villanous this day living. I speak but brotherly of him; but should I anatomise him to thee as he is, I must blush and weep, and thou must look pale and wonder.

Alas, I am heartily glad I came hither to you:
If he come to-morrow, I'll give him his payment: If ever he go alone again, I'll never wrestle for prize more: And so, God keep
your worship!

Old. Farewell good Charles.—Now will I stir this gamester:* I hope, I shall see an end of him; for my soul, yet I know not why, hates nothing more than he. Yet he's gentle; never schooled, and yet learned; full of noble device; of all sorts † enchantingly beloved; and indeed, so much in the heart of the world, and especially of my own people, who best know him, that I am altogether misprised: but it shall not be so long; this wrestler shall clear
all: nothing remains, but that I kindle the boy thither, which now I'll go about.

SCENE II.—A Lawn before the Duke's Palace.

Enter ROSALIND and CELIA.

Cel. I pray thee, Rosalind, sweet my coz, be merry.

Ros. Dear Celia, I show more mirth than I am mistress of; and would you yet I were merrier? Unless you could teach me to forget a banished father, you must not learn me how to remember any extraordinary pleasure.

Cel. Herein, I see, thou lovest me not with the full weight that I love thee: if my uncle,
thy banished father, had banished thy uncle,
the duke my father, so thou hadst been still with me, I could have taught my love to take thy father for mine; so would'st thou, if the truth of thy love to me were so righteously tempered as mine is to thee.

Ros. Well, I will forget the condition of my estate, to rejoice in yours.

Cel. You know, my father hath no child but I, nor none is like to have; and, truly, when he dies, thou shalt be his heir: for what he hath taken away from thy father perforce, I will render thee again in affection: by mine honour, I will; and when I break that oath,
let me turn monster; therefore, my sweet Rose,
my dear Rose, be merry.

Ros. From henceforth I will, coz, and devise sports. let me see; What think you of falling
in love?

Cel. Marry, I pr'ythee, do, to make sport withal: but love no man in good earnest: not no further in sport neither, than with safety of a pure blush thou may'st in honour come off
again.

* Frolicsome fellow.

† Of all ranks.

shall be our sport then?
we sit and mock the good houses, from her wheel, that her gifts
th be bestowed equally.
Id, we could do so; for her bene-ly misplaced: and the beautiful dash most mistake in her gifts to

we: for these, that she makes a makes honest; and these, that not, she makes very ill-favour-

now then great great fortune's s's: Fortune reigns in gifts of the
the fragments of nature.

Enter TUCCHURON.

When nature hath made a fair
she not by fortune fall into the nature hath given us wit to a, hath not fortune sent in this the argument?

I, there is fortune too hard for fortune makes nature's natural of nature's wit.

nature, this is not fortune's work nature's; who perceiving our too dull to reason of such god-
of this natural for our whetstone:
dullness of the fool is the whetstone.—How now, wit? whither hast, you must come away to

we made the messenger?
by mine honour; but I was bid

learned you that oath, fool!
certain knight, that swore by bay were good pancakes, and scour the mustard was naught.
I to it, the pancakes were naught,
and was good; and yet was not
sworn.

rove you that, in the great heap
edge?

ry; now unmuzzle your wisdom.
d you both forth now: stroke
ed swear by your beards that I beards, if we had them, thou art.

my knavery, if I had it, then I
you swear by that that is not,
sworn: no more was the knight,
is honour, for he never had any;
e had sworn it away, before ever pancakes or that mustard.
in, who is't thou mean'st?

that old Frederick, your father,

her's love is enough to honour
! speak no more of him; you'll taxation,* one of these days.

more pity, that fools may not
what wise men do foolishly.
truth, thou say'st true: for since that fools have, was silenced, ry, that wise men have, makes a

there comes Monsieur Le Beau.

Enter LE BEAU.

de mouth full of news.

he will put on us, as pigeons
eg.
shall we be news-cramm'd.

* Satire.

Col. All the better; we shall be the more marketable. Bon jour, Monsieur Le Beau:
What's the news?

Le Beau. Fair princess, you have lost much good sport.

Col. Sport? of what colour?

Le Beau. What colour, madam? How shall I answer you?

Res. As wit and fortune will.

Tench. Or the destinies decree.

Col. Well said; that was laid on with a surral.

Tench. Nay, if I keep not my rank,—

Res. Thou lovest thy old smell.

Le Beau. You amaze* me, ladies: I would have told you of good wrestling, which you have lost the sight of.

Res. Yet tell us the manner of the wrestling.

Le Beau. I will tell you the beginning, and, if it please your ladyships, you may see the end; for the best is yet to do; and here, where you are, they are coming to perform it.

Col. Well,—the beginning, that is dead and baried.

Le Beau. There comes an old man, and his three sons,—

Col. I could match this beginning with an old tale.

Le Beau. Three proper young men, of excellent growth and presence;—

Res. With bills on their necks,—Be it known unto all men by these presents,—

Le Beau. The eldest of the three wrestled with Charles, the duke's wrestler; which Charles in a moment threw him, and broke three of his ribs, that there is little hope of life in him; so he served the second, and so the third: Yonder they lie; the poor old man,
their father, making such pitiful dole over them, that all the beholders take his part with weeping.

Res. Alas!

Tench. But what is the sport, monsieur, that the ladies have lost?

Le Beau. Why, this that I speak of.

Tench. Thus men may grow wiser every day!
it is the first time that ever I heard, breaking of ribs was sport for ladies.

Col. Or I, I promise thee.

Res. But is there any else longs to see this broken music in his sides? Is there yet another dotes upon rib-breaking?—Shall we see this wrestling, cousin?

Le Beau. You must, if you stay here: for here is the place appointed for the wrestling,
and they are ready to perform it.

Col. Yonder, sure, they are coming: Let us
now stay and see it.

Flourish. Enter DUKE FREDERICK, Lords, OR-LANDO, CHARLES, and Attendants.

Duke F. Come on; since the youth will not be entreated, his own peril on his forwardness.

Res. Is yonder the man?

Le Beau. Even he, madam.

Col. Alas, he is too young: yet he looks successfully.

Duke F. How now, daughter, and cousin?
are you crept hither to see the wrestling?

Res. Ay, my liege? so please you give us
leave.

Duke F. You will take little delight in it, I can tell you, there is such odds in the man: In pity of the challenger's youth, I would fain dissuade him, but he will not be entreated.

* Puzles, confuses.

AS YOU LIKE IT.

see if you can move
ed Monsieur Le Beau.
t be by.

[Duke goes apart.
challenger, the prin-

all respect and duty.
ve you challenged

is the general chal-
others do, to try with ith.

your spirits are too
have seen cruel proof
if you saw yourself yourself with your your adventure would ual enterprise. We ke, to embrace your
this attempt.

our reputation shall
: we will make it
the wrestling might

sh me not with your confess me much excellent ladies any eyes, and gentle trial: wherein if I be amed that was never dead that is willing ends no wrong, for e, the world no ing, only in the world
be better supplied
that I have, I would ut here.

ay heaven, I be de-

be with you.
young gallant, that is mother earth?
is will hath in it a

ut one fall.
ur grace; you shall
rond, that have so
um a first.
ne after; you should ore: but come your

e thy speed, young visible, to catch the

nd ORLANDO wrestle.
man!

rbolt in mine eye, I

is is thrown. Shout.
ore.

ur grace; I am not

Charles?
ik, my lord.

[CHARLES is borne
young man!

, the youngest son

hadst been son to

ther honourable,
ne enemy: [deed.
pleas'd me with this

Hadst thou descended from
But fare thee well; thou art
I would, thou hadst told me

[Exeunt DUKE FRED. Ty
Cel. Were I my father, coz

Orl. I am more proud to son,

His youngest son;—and wou
To be adopted heir to Frede

Ros. My father loved Sir B
And all the world was of my

Had I before known this yo
I should have given him tear

Ere he should thus have ven
Cel. Gentle cousin,

Let us go thank him, and en
My father's rough and envio

Sticks me at heart.—Sir, you
If you do keep your promise

But justly, as you have exce
Your mistress shall be happi

Ros. Gentleman,
[Giving him a el

Wear this for me; one out
tune;†

That could give more, but th
Shall we go, coz?

Cel. Ay:—Fare you well,
Orl. Can I not say, I than parts

Are all thrown down; and stands up,

Is but a quintain;‡ a mere li

Ros. He calls us back: I
my fortunes:

I'll ask him what he would
Sir, you have wrestled well,

More than your enemies.
Cel. Will you go, coz?

Ros. Have with you:—Fai
[Exeunt Ros

Orl. What passion hangs th
my tongue?

I cannot speak to her, yet she

Re-enter LE BEAU

O poor Orlando! thou art ov
Or Charles, or something wea

Le Beau. Good Sir, I do in sel you

To leave this place: Albeit,
High commendation, true ap

Yet such is now the duke's c
That he misconstrues all that

The duke is humorous; wha
More suits you to conceive,

of.
Orl. I thank you, Sir; an me this;

Which of the two was daugh

That here was at the wrestlin Le Beau. Neither his daug

by manners;
But yet, indeed, the shorter

The other is daughter to the
And here detain'd by her us

To keep his daughter compa
Are dearer than the natural

But I can tell you, that of lat
Hath ta'en displeasure 'gainst

Grounded upon no other argu
But that the people praise her

And pity her for her good fat
And, on my life, his malice

† Appellation. ‡ Turned out
§ The object to dart at in martial

¶ Temper, disposition.

ask forth.—Sir, fare you well;
better world than this,
e love and knowledge of you.
a bounden to you: fare you [Exit LE BEAU.

the smoke unto the smother;
e, unto a tyrant brother:—
called! [Exit.

[—A Room in the Palace.

ELIA and ROSALIND.

sin; why, Rosalind;—Cupid
at a word?

e throw at a dog.
words are too precious to be ours, throw some of them at me with reasons.

e were two cousins laid up;
ould be lamed with reasons,
d without any.

this for your father?

of it for my child's father: O,
is this working-day world!

at burs, cousin, thrown upon olery; if we walk not in the ur very petticoats will catch ake them off my coat; these

art.

away.
ry; if I could cry hem, and

e, wrestle with thy affections.
ke the part of a better wrestler

wish upon you! you will try ite of a fall.—But, turning service, let us talk in good ssible, on such a sudden, you
o strong a liking with old Sir
gest son.

e my father loved his father

efore ensue, that you should rly? By this kind of chase, I for my father hated his father
ite not Orlando.

hate him not, for my sake.
ld I not? doth he not deserve

ve him for that; and do you
e I do:—Look, here comes the

yes full of anger.

FREDERICK, with Lords.

ess, despatch you with your aste,
n our court.

cousin;
days if that thou be'st found
ic court as twenty miles,

ch your grace,
ledge of my fault bear with hold intelligence, [me:
tance with mine own desires;
ream, or be not frantic,
um not,) then, dear uncle,
as in a thought unborn,
r highness.

do all traitors;
a did consist in words,

* Inveterately.

They are as innocent as grace itself:—

Let it suffice thee, that I trust thee not.

Ros. Yet your mistrust cannot make me a traitor:

Tell me, whereon the likelihood depends.

Duke F. Thou art thy father's daughter,
there's enough.

Ros. So was I, when your highness took his dukedom;

So was I, when your highness banish'd him:

Treason is not inherited, my lord;

Or, if we did derive it from our friends,

What's that to me? my father was no traitor:

Then, good my liege, mistake me not so much,

To think my poverty is treacherous.

Cel. Dear sovereign, hear me speak.

Duke F. Ay, Celia; we stay'd her for your
sake,

Else had she with her father rang'd along.

Cel. I did not then entreat to have her stay,

It was your pleasure, and your own remorse;

I was too young that time to value her,

But now I know her: if she be a traitor,

Why so am I; we still have slept together,

Rose at an instant, learn'd, play'd, eat together;

And wheresoe'er we went, like Juno's swans,

Still we went coupled, and inseparable.

Duke F. She is too subtle for thee; and her smoothness,

Her very silence, and her patience,

Speak to the people, and they pity her.

Thou art a fool: she robs thee of thy name;

And thou wilt show more bright, and seem more virtuous,

When she is gone: then open not thy lips;

Firm and irrevocable is my doom

Which I have pass'd upon her; she is banish'd.

Cel. Pronounce that sentence then on me, my
I cannot live out of her company. [liege;

Duke F. You are a fool:—You, niece, provide yourself;

If you out-stay the time, upon mine honour,

And in the greatness of my word, you die.

[Exeunt Duke FREDERICK and Lords.

Cel. O, my poor Rosalind! whither wilt thou
go?

Wilt thou change fathers? I will give thee mine.
I charge thee, be not thou more griev'd than I am.

Ros. I have more cause.

Cel. Thou hast not, cousin;

Pr'ythee, be cheerful: know'st thou not, the Hath banish'd me his daughter? [duke

Ros. That he hath not.

Cel. No? hath not? Rosalind lacks then the
love

Which teacheth thee that thou and I am one:

Shall we be sunder'd? shall we part, sweet girl?

No; let my father seek another heir.

Therefore devise with me, how we may fly,

Whither to go, and what to bear with us:

And do not seek to take your change upon you,

To bear your griefs yourself, and leave me out;

For, by this heaven, now at our sorrows pale,

Say what thou canst, I'll go along with thee.

Ros. Why, whither shall we go?

Cel. To seek my uncle.

Ros. Alas, what danger will it be to us,

Maids as we are, to travel forth so far?

Beauty provoketh thieves sooner than gold.

Cel. I'll put myself in poor and mean attire,

And with a kind of umbert smirch my face;

The like do you; so shall we pass along,

And never stir assailants.

Ros. Were it not better,

* Compassion.

† A dusky, yellow-coloured earth.

C c

AS YOU LIKE IT.

in common tall,
like a man?
my thigh,
and (in my heart
his fear there will,)
a martial outside;
wards have,
semblances.

when thou art a name than Jove's me, Ganymede.

a reference to my [state;
we assay'd to steal
our father's court?
our travel?
the wide world with

Let's away,
wealth together;
safest way
will be made
in content, ment. [Exeunt.

est of Arden.
and other Lords,
resters.

s, and brothers in his life more sweet
' Are not these

the envious court?
y of Adam,
the icy fang,
winter's wind;
ws upon my body,
I smile, and say,— counsellors
what I am.

sity;
and venomous,
in his head:
rom public haunt,
inks in the running

d in every thing.
at: Happy is your

ornness of fortune
a style.
and kill us veni-

dappled fools,—
is desert city,— tnes, with forked
gor'd. [heads;

ves at that;
ou do more usurp
hath banish'd you,
and myself,
ay along

ie root peeps out along this wood:
equester'd stag,
bad ta'en a hurt,
indeed, my lord,
d forth such groans,

; Barbed arrows.

That their discharge did st coat

Almost to bursting; and the Cour'd one another down hi
In piteous chuse: and thus t
Much marked of the melanch
Stood on the extreamest verge Augmenting it with tears.

Duke S. But what said Jau
Did he not moralize this spec

1 Lord. O, yes, into a thou First, for his weeping in the Poor deer, quoth he, thou mak
As worldings do, giving thy
To that which had too much: I Left and abandon'd of his vel
'Tis right, quoth he; this mis
The flux of company: Anon,
Full of the pasture, jumps al
And never stays to greet Sweep on, you fat and greasy c

'Tis just the fashion: Wherefo
Upon that poor and broken ban
Thus most invectively he pier
The body of the country, city
Yea, and of this our life: sw
Are mere usurpers, tyrants, a
To fright the animals, and to
In their assign'd and native c

Duke S. And did you leave temptation?

2 Lord. We did, my lord, w
Upon the sobbing deer.

Duke S. Show me the place
I love to cope* him in these
For then he's full of matter.

2 Lord. I'll bring you to |

SCENE II.—A Room in

Enter Duke FREDERICK, LORD

Duke F. Can it be possible,
It cannot be: some villains of
Are of consent and sufferance

1 Lord. I cannot bear of The ladies, her attendants of Saw her a-bed; and, in the m
They found the bed untreas
treas.

2 Lord. My lord, the roy whom so oft

Your grace was wont to laugh
Hesperia, the princess' gentle
Confesses, that she secretly o
Your daughter and her cousin
The parts and graces of the w
That did but lately foil the sin
And she believes, wherever t
That youth is surely in their c

Duke F. Send to his brothe
lant hither;

If he be absent, bring his brot
I'll make him find him: do th
And let not search and inquis
To bring again these foolish

SCENE III.—Before Or

Enter ORLANDO and AD

Orl. Who's there?

Adam. What! my young gentle master,

O, my sweet master, O you m

* Encounter.

† Sink into dejection.

Howland I why, what makes you here?
You virtuous? Why do people love you? (Lant?)

Where are you gentle, strong, and valiant you be so fond * to overcome
prizer of the humorous duke?
He is come too swiftly home before you.
Is not, master, to some kind of men
you serve them but as enemies?
do yours, your virtues, gentle master,
filled and holy traitors to you.
A world is this, when what is comely
is him that bears it?

Fig, what's the matter?

O unhappy youth,

Within these doors; within this roof
my of all your graces lives:

—(no, no brother; yet the son—
the son;—I will not call him son—
I was about to call his father.)—

and your praises, and this night he means

the lodging where you use to lie,
within it: if he fail of that,

have other means to cut you off:
and him, and his practices.

To place, † this house is but a butchery;
to fear it, do not enter it.

Why, whither, Adam, wouldst thou have me go?

The matter whither, so you come not
here.

That, wouldst thou have me go and beg my food?

Is a base and boisterous sword, enforce
us living on the common road?

Must do, or know not what to do:

I will not do, do how I can;

will subject me to the malice
of blood, ‡ and bloody brother.

But do not so: I have five hundred crowns,

My hire I sav'd under your father,
I did store, to be my foster-nurse,

service should in my old limbs lie lame,
regarded age in corners thrown;

and He that doth the ravens feed,
widely caters for the sparrow,

best to my age! Here is the gold;
I give you: Let me be your servant;

I look old, yet I am strong and lusty:
my youth I never did apply

I rebellious liquors in my blood;
not with unbashful forehead woo

me of weakness and debility;
re my age is as a lusty winter,

but kindly: let me go with you;
be service of a younger man

our business and necessities.
O good old man; how well in thee appears

stant service of the antique world,
service sweat for duty, not for meed!

It not for the fashion of these times,
some will sweat, but for promotion;

ring that, do choke their service up
like the having: it is not so with thee.

or old man, thou prun'st a rotten tree,
must so much as a blossom yield,

of all thy pains and husbandry:
we thy ways, we'll go along together;

we have thy youthful wages spent,
glit upon some settled low content.

Master, go on; and I will follow thee,

To the last gasp, with truth and loyalty.—
From seventeen years till now almost fourscore
Here lived I, but now live here no more.
At seventeen years many their fortunes seek;
But at fourscore, it is too late a week:
Yet fortune cannot recompense me better,
Than to die well, and not my master's debitor.
[Exit.]

SCENE IV.—The Forest of Arden.

Enter ROSALIND in Boy's clothes; CELIA dressed
like a Shepherdess, and TOUCHSTONE.

Ros. O Jupiter! how weary are my spirits!
Touch. I care not for my spirits, if my legs were not weary.

Ros. I could find in my heart to disgrace my man's apparel, and to cry like a woman: but I must comfort the weaker vessel, as doubtless and hose ought to show itself courageous to petticoat: therefore, courage, good Almond.

Cel. I pray you, bear with me; I cannot go no further.

Touch. For my part, I had rather bear with you, than bear you: yet I should bear no
cross, † if I did bear you; for, I think, you have no money in your purse.

Ros. Well, this is the forest of Arden.

Touch. Ay, now am I in Arden: the more fool I; when I was at home, I was in a better place; but travellers must be content.

Ros. Ay, be so, good Touchstone.—Look you, who comes here; a young man, and an old, in solemn talk.

Enter CORIN and SILVIUS.

Cor. That is the way to make her scorn you still.

Sil. O Corin, that thou knew'st how I do
love her!

Cor. I partly guess; for I have lov'd ere now.

Sil. No, Corin, being old, thou canst not guess;

Though in thy youth thou wast as true a lover
As ever sigh'd upon a midnight pillow:

But if thy love were ever like to mine,
(As sure I think did never man love as,)

How many actions most ridiculous
Hast thou been drawn to by thy fantasy?

Cor. Into a thousand that I have forgotten.

Sil. O, thou didst then ne'er love so heartily:
If thou remember'st not the slightest folly

That ever love did make thee run into,
Thou hast not lov'd:

Or if thou hast not sat as I do now,
Wearying thy hearer in thy mistress' praise,

Thou hast not lov'd:

Or if thou hast not broke from company,
Abruptly, as my passion now makes me,

Thou hast not lov'd: O Phoebe, Phebe, Phebe!
[Exit SILVIUS.]

Ros. Alas, poor shepherd! searching of thy wound,

I have by hard adventure found mine own.

Touch. And I mine: I remember, when I was in love, I broke my sword upon a stone,

and bid him take that for coming knight to Jane Smile: and I remember the kissing of her bettlet; and the cow's dugs that her pretty

chopp'd hands had milk'd: and I remember the wooing of a peascod instead of her; from whom I took two cods, and, giving her them again, said with weeping tears, Wear these for † Mangled, residence.

‡ Mangled from its natural course.

* A piece of money stamped with a cross.
† In the night.

‡ The instrument with which washmen beat clothes.

AS YOU LIKE IT.

out are true lovers, run into
 out as all is mortal in nature, love mortal in folly.

What wiser, than thou art

shall ne'er be 'ware of mine
 my shins against it.

this shepherd's passion
 on my fashion.

er, but it grows something
 me.

one of you question yond
 give us any food; [man,

ath.

ou, clown!

, he's not thy kinsman.

ters, Sir.

ev very wretched.

y:—

friend.

, gentle Sir, and to you all.

shepherd, if that love, or gold,

place buy entertainment,

we may rest ourselves, and {press'd,

maid with travel much op-

our.

py her,

ake, more than for mine own,

more able to relieve her:

to another man,

the fleeces that I graze;

ish disposition,

find the way to heaven

ospitality. {feed,

his flocks, and bounds of

and at our sheepcote now,

essence, there is nothing

on: but what is, come see,

most welcome shall you be.

that shall buy his flock and swain that you saw here but er buying any thing.

if it stand with honesty,

ze, pasture, and the flock,

to pay for it of us.

ll mend thy wages: I like

d waste my time in it.

the thing is to be sold:

like, upon report,

and this kind of life,

thful feeder be,

ar gold right suddenly.

{Exeunt.

V.—The same.

S. JACQUES, and others.

SONG.

Greenwood tree,

lie with me,

merry note

bird's throat,

ne hither, come hither;

ill he see

ay,

rough weather.

I pr'ythee more.

you melancholy, monsieur

• Come.

Jaq. I thank it. More, I can suck melancholy out of a sucks eggs: More, I pr'ythee

Ami. My voice is ragged;*

please you.

Jaq. I do not desire you desire you to sing: Come, m-

za; Call you them stanzas?

Ami. What you will, mons-

Jaq. Nay, I care not for owe me nothing: Will you?

Ami. More at your request

myself.

Jaq. Well then, if ever I th-

thank you: but that they ca-

like the encounter of two do-

a man thanks me heartily,

given him a penny, and he re-

garly thanks. Come, sing;

not, hold your tongues.

Ami. Well, I'll end the s-

the while; the duke will drir-

—he hath been all this day to

Jaq. And I have been all

him. He is too disputable†

I think of as many matters.

heaven thanks, and make a

Come, warble, come.

SONG.

Who doth ambition shun, [

And loves to live i'the sun.

Seeking the food he eats,

And pleas'd with what he

Come hither, come hither, co

Here shall he see

No enemy,

But winter and rough weath

Jaq. I'll give you a verse I made yesterday in despite o'

Ami. And I'll sing it.

Jaq. Thus it goes:

If it do come to pass,

That any man turn ass

Leaving his wealth and ea

A stubborn will to please,

Ducdame, ducdame, ducdame

Here shall he see,

Gross fools as he,

An if he will come to Ami.

Ami. What's that ducdame.

Jaq. 'Tis a Greek invocati into a circle. I'll go sleep if not, I'll rail against all the fir

Ami. And I'll go seek the c is prepar'd.

SCENE VI.—The

Enter ORLANDO and

Adam. Dear master, I can

I die for food! Here lie I do out my grave. Farewell, k

Orl. Why, bow now, Ad

heart in thee? Live a little;

cheer thyself a little: If th

yield any thing savage, I wi

for it, or bring it for food to t

is nearer death than thy powe

be comfortable; hold death a

end: I'll here be with thee

I bring thee not something to

* Ragged and rugged had formerly † Disputatious.

die: but if thou diest before I come,
a member of my labour. Well said!
k'nt cheerily: and I'll be with thee
—Yet thou liest in the bleak air: Come,
or thee to some shelter; and thou shalt lack of a dinner, if there live any his desert. Cheerily, good Adam!

[Exeunt.

SCENE VII.—The same.

Enter DUKE senior, AMIENS,
Lords, and others.

I think he be transform'd into a beast;
no where find him like a man.

My lord, he is but even now gone
hence;

he merry, hearing of a song.

If he, compact of jars,* grow musical,

have shortly discord in the spheres:—
him; tell him, I would speak with him.

Enter JACQUES.

He saves my labour by his own approach.

Why, how now, monsieur! what a life is this, [pany?

our peer friends must woo your company look merrily.

A fool, a fool!—I met a fool i'the
forest;—a miserable world!— [forest,

live by food, I met a fool;

I him down and bask'd him in the sun,

'd on lady Fortune in good terms,

set terms,—and yet a motley fool.

crowd fool, quoth I: No, Sir, quoth he,

not fool, till heaven hath sent me fortune:

he drew a dial from his poke;

king on it with lack-lustre eye,

ry wisely, It is ten o'clock:

we see, quoth he, how the world wags:

an hour ago, since it was nine;

an hour more, 'twill be eleven;

from hour to hour, we ripe and ripe,

and, from hour to hour, we rot, and rot,

why hangs a tale. When I did hear

they fool thus moral on the time,

he began to crow like chanticler,

he should be so deep-contemplative;

he laugh, sans intermission,

by his dial.—O noble fool!

my fool! Motley's the only wear.†

What fool is this?

A worthy fool!—One that hath been a courtier;

and, if ladies be but young, and fair,

he the gift to know it: and in his brain,—

as dry as the remainder biscuit

of a voyage,—he hath strange places

cramm'd

in observation, the which he vents

in led forms:—O, that I were a fool!

ambitious for a motley coat.

Thou shalt have one.

It is my only suit;

that you weed your better judgements

in union that grows rank in them,

in wise. I must have liberty

as large a charter as the wind,

on whom I please; for so fools have:

they that are most galled with my folly,

must laugh: And, why, Sir, must they so?

up of discords.

he was anciently dressed in a party-coloured coat.

The why is plain as way to parish church:

He, that a fool doth very wisely hit,

Doth very foolishly, although he smart,

Not to seem senseless of the bob: if not,

The wise man's folly is anatomis'd

Even by the squand'ring glances of the fool.

Invest me in my motley; give me leave

To speak my mind, and I will through and

through

Cleanse the foul body of the infected world,

If they will patiently receive my medicine.

Duke S. Fie on thee! I can tell what thou wouldst do.

Jaq. What, for a counter, would I do, but

good?

Duke S. Most mischievous soul sin, in child-

ing sin:

For thou thyself hast been a libertine,

As sensual as the brutish sting itself;

And all the embossed sores, and headed evils,

That thou with license of free foot hast caught,

Wouldst thou disgorge into the general world.

Jaq. Why, who cries out on pride,

That can therein tax any private party?

Doth it not flow as hugely as the sea,

Till that the very very means do ebb?

What woman in the city do I name,

When that I say, The city-woman bears

The cost of princes on unworthy shoulders?

Who can come in, and say, that I mean her,

When such a one as she, such is her neigh-

Or what is he of basest function, [bour?

That says, his bravery* is not on my cost,

(Thinking that I mean him,) but therein suits

His folly to the mettle of my speech?

There then; How, what then? Let me see wherein

My tongue hath wrong'd him: if it do him right,

Then he hath wrong'd himself; if he be free,

Why then, my taxing like a wild goose flies,

Unclaim'd of any man.—But who comes here?

Enter ORLANDO, with his sword drawn.

Orl. Forbear, and eat no more.

Jaq. Why, I have eat none yet.

Orl. Nor shalt not, till necessity be serv'd.

Jaq. Of what kind should this cock come of?

Duke S. Art thou thus bolden'd, man, by thy distress;

Or else a rude despiser of good manners,

That in civility thou seem'st so empty?

Orl. You touch'd my vein at first; the thorny

point

Of bare distress hath ta'en from me the show

Of smooth civility: yet am I inland bred,†

And know some nurture: ‡ But forbear, I say;

He dies, that touches any of this fruit,

Till I and my affairs are answered.

Jaq. An you will not be answered with rea-

I must die. [son,

Duke S. What would you have? Your gentleness shall force,

More than your force move us to gentleness.

Orl. I almost die for food, and let me have it.

Duke S. Sit down and feed, and welcome to our table.

Orl. Speak you so gently? Pardon me, I

pray you:

I thought, that all things had been savage here;

And therefore put I on the countenance

Of stern commandment: But whate'er you are,

That in this desert inaccessible,

Under the shade of melancholy boughs,

Lose and neglect the creeping hours of time

If ever you have look'd on better days;

* Flattery. † Well brought up. ‡ Good manners

AS YOU LIKE IT.

[ACT III.]

knoll'd to church;
a feast;
wip'd a tear,
and be pitied;
forcement be:
nd hide my sword.
e have seen better

knoll'd to church;
ts; and wip'd our

th engender'd:
in gentleness,
hat help we have,
e ministred.

our food a little
nd my fawn,
an old poor man,
every step
be first suffic'd,— its, age and hus[ger,—

ill you return.
e bless'd for your
[Exit.
e not all alone un-
stre [happy:
is than the scene

re,
merely players:
their entrances;
eys many parts,
At first, the infant,
nurse's arms;
ool-boy, with his

creeping like snail
then, the lover;
woful ballad

row: Then, a sol-[pard,
bearded like the
and quick in quar-
on [rel,
: And then, the

ed capon lin'd,
d of formal cut,
ent instances,
he sixth age shifts
pantaloons;
d pouch on side;
a world too wide
is big manly voice,
ish treble, pipes
Last scene of all,
ual history,
were oblivion;
taste, sans every

with ADAM.
vn your venerable [burden,
him.

you for myself.
I will not trouble

t your fortunes:—
od console, sing.

† Trite, common.

ANSIMS sings,
Song.

I.

Blow, blow, thou winter wind,
Thou art not so unkind*
As man's ingratitude;
Thy tooth is not so keen,
Because thou art not seen,
Although thy breath be rude.
Heigh, ho! sing, heigh, ho! unto the green holly:
Most friendship is feigning, most loving mere folly:
Then heigh, ho, the holly!
This life is most jolly.

II.

Freeze, freeze, thou bitter sky,
That dost not bite so nigh
As benefits forgot:
Though thou the waters warp,
Thy sting is not so sharp
As friend remember'd;† not.
Heigh, ho! sing, heigh, ho! &c.

Duke S. If that you were the good Sir Rowland's son,—
As you have whisper'd faithfully, you were;
And as mine eye doth his effigies witness
Most truly linn'd, and living in your face,—
Be truly welcome hither: I am the duke,
That lov'd your father: The residue of your fortune,
Go to my cave and tell me.—Good old man,
Thou art right welcome as thy master is:
Support him by the arm.—Give me your hand,
And let me all your fortunes understand.
[Exeunt.

ACT III.

SCENE I.—A Room in the Palace.

Enter Duke FREDERICK, OLIVER, Lords, and Attendants.

Duke F. Not see him since? Sir, Sir, that cannot be:
But were I not the better part made mercy,
I should not seek an absent argument
Of my revenge, thou present: But look to it;
Find out thy brother, wheresoe'er he is;
Seek him with candle; bring him dead or living,
Within this twelvemonth, or turn thou no more
To seek a living in our territory, [thine
Thy lands, and all things that thou dost call
Worth seizure, do we seize into our hands;
Till thou canst quit thee by thy brother's mouth,
Of what we think against thee.

Ol. O, that your highness knew my heart in
I never lov'd my brother in my life. [thine

Duke F. More villain thou.—Well, push him out of doors;
And let my officers of such a nature
Make an extent; upon his house and lands:
Do this expediently,‡ and turn him going.
[Exeunt.

SCENE II.—The Forest.

Enter ORLANDO, with a paper.

Orl. Hang there, my verse, in witness of my love: [surveys
And, thou, thrice-crowned queen of night,
With thy chaste eye, from thy pale sphere
above, [sees
Thy huntress' name, that my whole life doth
O Rosalind! these trees shall be my books,
And in these barks my thoughts I'll character;

* Unnatural.

† Seize by legal process.

‡ Remembering.

Expediently.

eye, which in this forest looks,
By virtue witness'd every where,
Lends; curv'd, on every tree,
A shade, and unexpensive^o shade.
[Exit.]

TOUCHSTONE AND TITHE.

How like you this shepherd's life,
Tithe?
Nay, shepherd, in respect of itself,
I like it; but in respect that it is a life, it is naught. In respect that I like it very well; but in respect it is in the fields, it pleaseth
it in respect it is not in the court, it
As it is a spare life, look you, it suits well; but as there is no more
it goes much against my stomach.
Philosophy in thee, shepherd?

None, but that I know, the more the worse at ease he is; and that in money, means, and content, is a good friend:—That the property
'tis not, and fire to burn: That good his fat sheep: and that a great light, is lack of the sun: That is learned no wit by nature nor art, is of good breeding, or comes of fathers.

Is a cow is a natural philosopher.
In court, shepherd?

Truly.

Are thou art damned.

I hope,—

Nay, thou art damned; like an ill-

all on one side.

Not being at court? Your reason.

By, if thou never wast at court,

ne'er of good manners; if thou never manners, then thy manners must

and wickedness is sin, and sin is

Thou art in a perilous state, shep-

a whit, Touchstone: those, that mares at the court, are as ridicu-

country, as the behaviour of the most mockable at the court. You in a minute not at the court, but you and; that courtesy would be un-

courtiers were shepherds.

Alas, briefly; come, instance.

I, we are still handling our ewes;

for, you know, are greasy.

By, do not your courtier's hands

is not the grease of a mutton as

as the sweat of a man? Shallow, better instance, I say; come.

For, our hands are hard.

For lips will feel them the sooner.

Alas: A more sounder instance,

they are often tarr'd over with the

or sheep; And would you have us

be courtier's hands are perfumed

not shallow man! Thou worms-spect of a good piece of flesh: In-ra of the wise, and prepend: Civet

birth than tar; the very uncleanly

Mend the instance, shepherd.

Have too courtly a wit for me; I'll

It thou rest damn'd? God help

^o Inexpensive

thee, shallow man! God make hidden in thee!
thou art raw."

Cor. Sir, I am a true labourer; I wear that I eat, get that I wear; owe no man hate, envy
no man's happiness; glad of other men's good,
content with my harm: and the greatest of my pride is, to see my ewes graze, and my lambs
suck.

Touch. That is another simple sin in you; to bring the ewes and the lambs together, and to offer to get your living by the copulation of cattle: to be bawd to a bell-wether; and to betray a she-lamb of a twelvemonth, to a crooked-pated, old ewekindly ram, out of all reasonable match. If thou be'st not damn'd for this, the devil himself will have no shepherds; I cannot see else how thou should'st escape.

Cor. Here comes young master Ganymede,
my new mistress' brother.

Enter ROSALIND, reading a paper.

Ros. From the east to western Ind,
No jewel is like Rosalind.
Her worth, being mounted on the wind,
Through all the world bears Rosalind.
All the pictures faint in't
Are but black to Rosalind.
Let no face be kept in mind,
But the fair of Rosalind.

Touch. I'll rhyme you so, eight years together; dinners, and suppers, and sleeping hours
excepted: it is the right butter-woman's rank
to market.

Ros. Out, fool!

Touch. For a taste:—

If a hart do lack a hind,
Let him seek out Rosalind.
If the cat will after kind,
So, be sure, will Rosalind.
Winter-garments must be lin'd,
So must slender Rosalind.
They that reap, must sleep and bind;
Then to cart with Rosalind.
Sweetest nut hath sourest rind,
Such a nut is Rosalind.
He that sweetest rose will find,
Must find love's prick, and Rosalind.

This is the very false gallop of verses; Why do you infect yourself with them.

Ros. Peace, you dull fool; I found them on a tree.

Touch. Truly the tree yields bad fruit.

Ros. I'll graft it with you, and then I shall graft it with a medlar: then it will be the earliest fruit in the country: for you'll be rotten e'er you be half ripe, and that's the right virtue of the medlar.

Touch. You have said; but whether wisely or no, let the forest judge.

Enter CELIA, reading a paper.

Ros. Peace!

Here comes my sister, reading; stand aside.

Cel. Why should this desert silent be?

For it is unpeopled? No;
Tongues I'll hang on every tree,
That shall creek, crying aloud,
Hence, how brief the life of man
Runs his erring pilgrimage;
That the stretching of a span
Doubles in his sun of age.

^o Unpeopled.

¹ Complexion, beauty.

[†] Delimited.

[‡] Grave, solemn.

AS YOU LIKE IT.

I roses
 of friend and friend:
 rest boughs,
 silence' end,
 a write;
 hat read, to know
 of every sprite
 in little show.
 nature chang'd
 should be fill'd
 wide enlarg'd:
 thy distill'd
 at not her heart;
 gently;
 part;
 modesty.
 many parts
 quod was deris'd;
 mes, and hearts,
 ouches' dearest priz'd.
 hat she these gifts should
 and die her state. [Here, Jupiter!—what tedious
 wearied your parishion-
 r cried, Have patience,
 ack friends;—Shepherd,
 ith him, sirrah.
 herd, let us make an hoough not with bag and ip and scrippage.
 CORIN and TOUCHSTONE.
 r these verses?
 I them all, and more too;
 in them more feet than er; the feet might bear
 t were lame, and could without the verse, and in the verse.
 ear, without wondering
 be hanged and carved
 the nine days out of the ame; for look here what e: I was never so beras' time, that I was an hardly remember.
 hath done this?
 at you once wore, about colour?
 it is a hard matter for ountains may be removed
 so encounter.
 is it?
 e now, with most peti-
 l me who it is.
 nderful, and most won-
 yet again wonderful,
 it whooping!†
 exion! dost thou think,
 d like a man, I have a y disposition? One inch th sea off discovery. I it? quickly, and speak
 couldst stammer, that a concealed man out of comes out of narrow-r too much at once, or ee take the cork out of drink thy tidings.

† Out of all measure.

Cel. So you may put a man
 Ros. Is he of God's making of man? Is his head worth a worth a beard?
 Cel. Nay, he hath but a lit
 Ros. Why, God will send will be thankful: let me stay beard, if thou delay me not his chin.
 Cel. It is young Orlando; t wrestler's heels, and your l instant.
 Ros. Nay, but the devil take sad brow, and true maid.*
 Cel. I faith, coz, 'tis he.
 Ros. Orlando?
 Cel. Orlando.
 Ros. Alas the day! what sh doublet and hose?—What di saw'st him? What said he?
 Wherein went he? What ma
 he ask for me? Where remai ed he with thee? and when s
 again? Answer me in one w Cel. You must borrow m mouth first: 'tis a word too gr
 of this age's size: To say, ay particulars, is more than to chism.
 Ros. But doth he know t
 forest, and in man's appar
 freshly as he did the day he Cel. It is as easy to count a solve the propositions of a lo taste of my finding him, and good observance. I found l like a dropp'd acorn.
 Ros. It may well be called,
 it drops forth such fruit.
 Cel. Give me audience, goo
 Ros. Proceed.
 Cel. There lay he, stretch wounded knight.
 Ros. Though it be pity to s well becomes the ground.
 Cel. Cry, holla! to thy tong curvets very unseasonably. I like a hunter.
 Ros. O ominous! he comes Cel. I would sing my song w thou bring'st me out of tune.
 Ros. Do you not know I am
 I think, I must speak. Sweet
 Enter ORLANDO and
 Cel. You bring me out:—Se
 here?
 Ros. 'Tis he; slink by, and [CELIA and
 Jaq. I thank you for your good faith, I had as lief be alone.
 Orl. And so had I; but yet,
 I thank you too for your socie Jaq. God be with you; let's we can.
 Orl. I do desire we may be Jaq. I pray you, mar no writing love-songs in their ba Orl. I pray you, mar no m with reading them ill-favour Jaq. Rosalind is your love's Orl. Yes, just.
 Jaq. I do not like her name

* Speak seriously and honestly. †
 ‡ The giant of Habbellain.

can we no thought of pleasing you,
was disclaimed.
his stature is she off?
it is high as my heart.
he are full of pretty answers: Have been acquainted with goldsmiths?
I should them out of rings?
t me; but I answer you right painted as whomever you have studied your

as have a nimble wit; I think it was Jalisco's heels. Will you sit down and we two will rail against our
to world, and all our misery.
still chide no breather in the world,
; against whom I know most faults.
s worst fault you have, is to be in s a fault I will not change for your

I am weary of you.

my truth, I was seeking for a fool,
and you.

is drowned in the brook; look but I shall see him.

you shall I see mine own figure.
with I take to be either a fool, or a

I say no longer with you: farewell,
thou.

you glad of your departure; adieu,
after melancholy.

[Exit JACQUEL. — CELIA and ROSALIND
come forward.

will speak to him like a saucy lacquey,
that habit play the knave with him.
hear, forester?

ry well; What would you?
pray you, what is't a clock?

as should ask me, what time o'day;
clock in the forest.

as there is no true lover in the fo-
rnighting every minute, and groaning
r, would detect the lazy foot of time,
is a clock.

ad why not the swift foot of time?
has been as proper?

ry me means, Sir: Time travels in dias with divers persons: I'll tell you ambles withal, who time trots withal,
; gallops withal, and who he stands
at.

pr'ythee, who doth he trot withal?
arry, he trots hard with a young maid,
he contract of her marriage, and the solemnized: if the interim be but a

, time's pace is so hard that it seems of seven years.

he ambles time withal?

with a priest that lacks Latin, and a
that hath not the gout: for the one silly, because he cannot study; and lives merrily, because he feels no

one lacking the burden of lean and learning; the other knowing no bur-denous tedious penury. These time it has.

he doth he gallop withal?

with a thief to the gallows: for though softly as foot can fall, he thinks himself there.

he stays it still withal?

with lawyers in the vacation: for they wear term and term, and then they sot how time moves.

here dwell you, pretty youth?

as to the moral sentences of old Aspidochelone

Ros. With this shepherdess, my sister; here in the skirts of the forest, like fringe upon a petticoat.

Orl. Are you native of this place?

Ros. As the coney, that you see dwell where she is kindled.

Orl. Your accent is something finer than you could purchase in so removed a dwelling.

Ros. I have been told so of many: but, indeed, an old religious uncle of mine taught me
to speak, who was in his youth an inland man;
one that knew courtship too well, for there he fell in love. I have heard him read many lectures against it; and I thank God, I am not a woman, to be touched with so many giddy offences as he hath generally taxed their whole sex withal.

Orl. Can you remember any of the principal evils, that he laid to the charge of women?

Ros. There were none principal; they were all like one another, as halpence are: every one fault seeming monstrous, till his fellow fault came to match it.

Orl. I pr'ythee, recount some of them.

Ros. No; I will not cast away my physic,
but on those that are sick. There is a man haunts the forest, that abuses our young plants with carving Rosalind on their barks; hangs odes upon hawthorns, and elegies on brambles;
all, forsooth, deifying the name of Rosalind:
if I could meet that fancy-monger, I would give him some good counsel, for he seems to have the quotidian of love upon him.

Orl. I am he that is so love-shaked; I pray
you, tell me your remedy.

Ros. There is none of my uncle's marks upon you: he taught me how to know a man in love;
in which cage of rushes, I am sure, you are not prisoner.

Orl. What were his marks?

Ros. A lean cheek; which you have not: a blue eye, and sunken; which you have not:
an unquestionable spirit; which you have not:
a beard neglected; which you have not:
—but I pardon you for that, for, simply, your having in beard is a younger brother's revenue:
—Then your hose should be ungartered, your bonnet unbanded, your sleeve unbuttoned,
your shoe untied, and every thing about you demonstrating a careless desolation. But you are no such man; you are rather point-device
in your accoutrements; as loving yourself, than seeming the lover of any other.

Orl. Fair youth, I would I could make thee believe I love.

Ros. Me believe it? you may as soon make her that you love believe it; which, I warrant,
she is apter to do, than to confess she does:
that is one of the points in the which women still give the lie to their consciences. But, in good sooth, are you he that hangs the verses
on the trees, wherein Rosalind is so admired?

Orl. I swear to thee, youth, by the white hand of Rosalind, I am that he, that unfortunate he.

Ros. But are you so much in love as your rhymes speak?

Orl. Neither rhyme nor reason can express how much.

Ros. Love is merely a madness; and, I tell you, deserves as well a dark house and a whip, as madmen do: and the reason why they are not so punished and cured, is, that the lunacy is so ordinary, that the whippers

* Sequestered.

† Civilized.

‡ A spirit avenue to conversation.

§ Kiosk.

¶ Over-acted.

AS YOU LIKE IT.

profess curing it by any so?

in this manner. He e, his mistress: and woo me; At which
t a moonish* youth,
ungeable, longing, and
l, apish, shallow, in-l of smiles, for every
for no passion truly omen are for the most would now like him,
ertain him, then for-
or him, then spit at tor from his mad humour of madness;
the full stream of the
ok merely monastic:
and this way will I ur liver as clean as a t there shall not be red, youth.

h, if you would but come every day to my

of my love, I will;

and I'll show it you:
and tell me where in
you go?

good youth.

call me Rosalind:—

[Exeunt.

III.

DREY; JACQUES at a ng them.

ood Audrey; I will ey: And how, Aud-
th my simple feature

rd warrant us! what

ee and thy goats, as t, honest Ovid, was

-inhabited!; worse
use! [Aside.

orses cannot be unl wit seconded with tanding, it strikes a reat reckoning in a ould the gods had

at poetical is: Is it Is it a true thing?

the truest poetry is the
are given to poetry;
poetry, may be said,

, that the gods had

thou swear'at to me,
thou wert a poet, I

o didst feign.
ve me honest?

s thou wert hard fa-
ied to beauty, is to ar.

[Aside.

ur; and therefore I nest!

; ill-lodged.

Touch. Truly, and to cast on a foul slut, were to put unclean dish.

Aud. I am not a slut, th gods I am foul.*

Touch. Well, praised be th
ness! sluttishness may com
be it as it may be, I will m
that end, I have been with S
the vicar of the next villag
mised to meet me in this p
and to couple us.

Jaq. I would fain see this Aud. Well, the gods give

Touch. Amen. A man ma fearful heart, stagger in this we have no temple but the w but horn-beasts. But what As horns are odious, they ar said,—Many a man knows n right: many a man has good no end of them. Well, tha
his wife, 'tis none of his own Even so:—Poor men al
the noblest deer hath them a cal.† Is the single man t
No: as a wall'd town is mor
village, so is the forehead:
more honourable than the ba clur: and by how much defe
no skill, by so much is a b than to want.

Enter Sir OLIVER &

Here comes Sir Oliver:—Sh
you are well met: Will you under this tree, or shall we g chapel?

Sir Oli. Is there none her
man?

Touch. I will not take her o Sir Oli. Truly, she must marriage is not lawful.

Jaq. [Discovering himself.
ceed; I'll give her.

Touch. Good even, good cell't: How do you, Sir? Y met: God'ild you; for your am very glad to see you:—E here, Sir:—Nay; pray, be co

Jaq. Will you be married, Touch. As the ox hath hi horse his curb, and the falcon
bath his desires; and as pig lock would be nibbling.

Jaq. And will you, being breeding, be married under a gar? Get you to church, a priest that can tell you what fellow will but join you tog wainscoat; then one of you w
pannel, and, like green timbe

Touch. I am not in the min ter to be married of him tha
he is not like to marry me we well married, it will be a go hereafter to leave my wife.

Jaq. Go thou with me, an
thee.

Touch. Come, sweet Audre
We must be married, or we mu
Farewell, good master Oliver

Not—O sweet Oliver,
O brave Oliver,

* Homely. † Less deer are cal
‡ The art of fencing. \ God ven

Do not behi' thee;
Wind away,
me, I say,
to wedding wi' thee.
JAG. TOUCH. and AUDREY.
matter: ne'er a fantastical
I shall flout me out of my
[Exit.]

In same.—Before a Cottage.

MALIND and CELIA.
To me, I will weep.
me; but yet have the grace
ears do not become a man.
not cause to weep?
than as one would desire;
for is of the dissembling col-

browner than Judas': mar-Judas' own children.
hair is of a good colour.
of colour: your chesnut was
g-
thing is as full of sanctity as read.

right a pair of cast lips of inter's sisterhood kisses not the very ice of chastity is in

id he swear he would come comes not?

ly, there is no truth in him.
nk so?

nk he is not a pick-purse,
r; but for his verity in love,
concave as a cover'd goblet,
it.

love?
he is in; but, I think, he is heard him swear downright

l is: besides, the oath of a r than the word of a tapster;
confessors of false reckon-
are in the forest on the duke

duke yesterday, and had ith him. He asked me, of was: I told him, of as good ph'd, and let me go. But thers, when there is such a brave man! he writes brave

e words, swears brave oaths, bravely, quite traverse, a-
his lover,† as a puny tilter,
se but on one side, breaks
ble goose; but all's brave,
t, and folly guides:—Who star CORIN.

nd master, you have oft in-

l that complain'd of love;
ng by me on the turf,
l disdainful shepherdess
ees.

what of him?
see a pageant truly play'd,
complexion of true love
of scorn and proud disdain,

Go hence a little, and I shall conduct you,
If you will mark it.

Ros. O, come, let us remove;
The sight of lovers feedeth those in love:—
Bring us unto this sight, and you shall say
I'll prove a busy actor in their play. [Exeunt.]

SCENE V.—Another part of the Forest.

Enter SILVIUS and PHEBE.

Sil. Sweet Phebe, do not scorn me; do not,
Phebe:

Say, that you love me not, but say not so
In bitterness: The common executioner, Whose heart the accustom'd sight of death
makes hard,

Falls not the axe upon the humbled neck,
But first begs pardon: Will you sterner be
Than he that dies and lives by bloody drops?

Enter ROSALIND, CELIA, and CORIN, at a distance.

Phe. I would not be thy executioner;
I fly thee, for I would not injure thee.
Thou tell'st me, there is murder in mine eye:
'Tis pretty, sure, and very probable,
That eyes,—that are the frail'st and softest
things,

Who shut their coward gates on atomies,—
Should be call'd tyrants, butchers, murderers!
Now I do frown on thee with all my heart;
And, if mine eyes can wound, now let them
kill thee; [down;]

Now counterfeit to swoon; why now fall
Or, if thou canst not, O, for shame, for shame,
Lie not, to say mine eyes are murderers.
Now show the wound mine eye hath made in
thee:

Scratch thee but with a pin, and there remains
Some scar of it; lean but upon a rush
The cicatrice and capable impressure
Thy palm some moment keeps: but now mine
eyes,

Which I have darted at thee, hurt thee not;
Nor, I am sure, there is no force in eyes
That can do hurt.

Sil. O dear Phebe,
If ever, (as that ever may be near,)
You meet in some fresh cheek the power of fancy,*

Then shall you know the wounds invisible
That love's keen arrows make.

Phe. But, till that time,
Come not thou near me: and, when that time
comes,

Afflict me with thy mocks, pity me not;
As, till that time, I shall not pity thee.

Ros. And why, I pray you? [Advancing.] Who might be your mother,
That you insult, exult, and all at once,
Over the wretched? What though you have more beauty,

(As, by my faith, I see no more in you Than without candle may go dark to bed,)
Must you be therefore proud and pitiless? [me?]
Why, what means this? Why do you look on I see no more in you, than in the ordinary
Of nature's sale-work:—O!s my little life!
I think, she means to tangle my eyes too:—
No, 'faith, proud mistress, hope not after it
'Tis not your inky brows, your black-silk hair,
Your bugle eye-balls, nor your cheek of cream,
That can entame my spirits to your worship.—
You foolish shepherd, wherefore do you follow
her,

AS YOU LIKE IT.

with wind and rain?

a properer man,

looks as you, [dren:

all-favour'd chil-

that flatters her;

herself more proper,

can show her,— self; down on your

[love:

g, for a good man's

in your ear,—

not for all markets:

um; take his offer;

ul to be a scoffer.

rd;—fare you well.

y you chide a year

than this man woo.

with her foulness, and nger. If it be so, as with frowning looks,

ards,—Why look you

at you.

all in love with me,

made in wine:

f you will know my ere hard by:—

ard, ply her hard:—

s, look on him better,

all the world could

n sight as he. [see,

. CELIA, and CORIN.

ow I find thy saw of

ot at first sight?

ou, Silvius?

me.

thee, gentle Silvius.

, relief would be;

of in love,

w and my grief

; Is not that neighetousness.

t I hated thee;

ar thee love:

alk of love so well,

was irksome to me,

mploy thee too:

r recompense,

at thou art employ'd.

ect is my love,

l grace,

st plentiful crop

atter the man

apa. loose now and

t I'll live upon. [then

uth that spoke to me

I have met him oft;

age, and the bounds,

was master of.

um, though I ask for

—yet he talks well;—

—yet words do well,

n pleases those that very pretty:—

† Silly.

But, sure, he's proud; and
comes him:

He'll make a proper man: †

Is his complexion; and faster

Did make offence, his eye did

He is not tall; yet for his yet

His leg is but so so: and yet

There was a pretty redness in

A little riper and more lusty

Than that mix'd in his cheek

difference

Betwixt the constant red, and

There be some women, Silvius

him

In parcels as I did, would he

To fall in love with him: but

I love him not, nor hate him

I have more cause to hate him

For what had he to do to chide

He said, mine eyes were bla

black;

And, now I am remember'd,

I marvel, why I answer'd no

But that's all one; omitance

I'll write to him a very taunt

And thou shalt bear it; Wilt

Sil. Phebe, with all my he

Phe. I'll write it straight;

The matter's in my head, and

I will be bitter with him, and

Go with me, Silvius.

ACT IV.

SCENE I.—The

Enter ROSALIND, CELIA,

Jaq. I pr'ythee, pretty you ter acquainted with thee.

Ros. They say, you are a n

Jaq. I am so; I do love it l

ing.

Ros. Those, that are in ex are abominable fellows; and to every modern censure, w ards.

Jaq. Why, 'tis good to be sa

Ros. Why then, 'tis good t

Jaq. I have neither the sch

which is emulation; nor the

is fantastical; nor the co

proud; nor the soldier's, w

nor the lawyer's, which is p

dy's, which is nice;† nor the

all these: but it is a melanc

compounded of many simple

many objects: and, indeed temptation of my travels, I rumination wraps me, is a m

ness.

Ros. A traveller! By my great reason to be sad: I fe

your own lands, to see othe

have seen much, and to h

have rich eyes and poor hat

Jaq. Yes, I have gained n

Enter ORLAN

Ros. And your experience

had rather have a fool to ma

experience to make me sad

it too.

Orl. Good day, and happ find!

Jaq. Nay then, God be w in blank verse.

• Trilling.

g. Forestell, "miserable traveller: Look, here, and wear strange suits; disable^d all benefits of your own country; be out of with your nativity, and almost chide God taking you that countenance you are; or I scarce think you have swam in a pond.—Why, how now, Orlando! where have been all this while? You a lover?—An even me such another trick, never come sight more.

h. My fair Rosalind, I come within an of my promise.

i. Break an hour's promise in love? He will divide a minute into a thousand parts, break but a part of the thousandth part of time in the affairs of love, it may be said so, that Cupid hath clapped him o' the hip, but I warrant him heart-whole.

j. Pardon me, dear Rosalind.

k. Nay, an you be so tardy, come no more tonight, I had as lief be wooed of a snail.

l. Of a snail?

m. Ay, of a snail; for though he comes late, he carries his house on his head; a foreshorture, I think, than you can make of him: Besides, he brings his destiny with him.

n. What's that?

o. Why, horns; which such as you are fair whetstones to your wives for, but he comes in his fortune, and prevents the slander to wife.

p. Virtue is no horn-maker; and my Rosalind is virtuous.

q. And I am your Rosalind.

r. It pleases him to call you so; but he is a Rosalind of a better leery than you.

s. Come, woo me, woo me; for now I am holiday humour, and like enough to consent: What would you say to me now, an I were very very Rosalind?

t. I would kiss, before I spoke.

u. Nay, you were better speak first; and as you were gravelled for lack of matter, might take occasion to kiss. Very good now, when they are out, they will spit; and lovers, lacking (God woe us!) matter, the wildest shift is to kiss.

v. How if the kiss be denied?

w. Then she puts you to entreaty, and we begin new matter.

x. Who could be out, being before his bed-mistress?

y. Marry, that should you, if I were your dress; or I should think my honesty ranker to my wit.

z. What, of my suit?

aa. Not out of your apparel, and yet out your suit. Am not I your Rosalind?

ab. I take some joy to say you are, because could be talking of her.

ac. Well, in her person, I say—I will not be you.

ad. Then, in mine own person, I die.

ae. No, faith, die by attorney. The poor old is almost six thousand years old, and in this time there was not any man died in his person, wedded, in a love-cause. Troilus's brains dashed out with a Grecian club; his did what he could to die before; and he one of the patterns of love. Leander, he could have lived many a fair year, though we had turned nun, if it had not been for a tumbler's summer night: for, good youth, he went forth to wash him in the Hellespont, and,

being taken with the cramp, was drowned; and the foolish chroniclers of that age found it was—Here of Bostoa. But these are all lies; men have died from time to time, and worms have eaten them, but not for love.

af. I would not have my right Rosalind of this mind; for, I protest, her frown might kill me.

ag. By this hand, it will not kill a fly: But come, now I will be your Rosalind in a more coming-on disposition; and ask me what you will, I will grant it.

ah. Then love me, Rosalind.

ai. Yea, faith will I, Fridays, and Saturdays, and all.

aj. And wilt thou love me?

ak. Ay, and twenty such.

al. What say'st thou?

am. Are you not good?

an. I hope so.

ao. Why then, can one desire too much of a good thing?—Come, sister, you shall be the priest, and marry us.—Give me your hand, Orlando:—What do you say, sister?

ap. Pray thee, marry us.

aq. I cannot say the words.

ar. You must begin,——Will you, Orlando,——

as. Go to:——Will you, Orlando, have to wife this Rosalind?

at. I will.

au. Ay, but when?

av. Why now; as fast as she can marry us.

aw. Then you must say,——I take thee, Rosalind, for wife.

ax. I take thee, Rosalind, for wife.

ay. I might ask you for your commission; but,—I do take thee, Orlando, for my husband: There a girl goes before the priest; and, certainly, a woman's thought runs before her actions.

az. So do all thoughts; they are winged.

ba. Now tell me, how long you would have her, after you have possessed her.

bb. For ever, and a day.

bc. Say a day, without the ever: No, no, Orlando; men are April when they woo, December when they wed: maids are May when they are maids, but the sky changes when they are wives. I will be more jealous of thee than a Barbary cock-pigeon over his hen; more clamorous than a parrot against rain; more new-fangled than an ape; more giddy in my desires than a monkey: I will weep for nothing, like Diana in the fountain, and I will do that when you are disposed to be merry; I will laugh like a hyacinth, and that when thou art inclined to sleep.

bd. But will my Rosalind do so?

be. By my life, she will do as I do.

bf. O, but she is wise.

bg. Or else she could not have the wit to do this: the wiser, the waywarder: Make the doors upon a woman's wit, and it will out at the casement; shut that, and 'twill out at the key-hole: stop that, 'twill fly with the smoke out at the chimney.

bh. A man that had a wife with such a wit, he might say,——Wit, whither wilt?

bi. Nay, you might keep that check for it, till you met your wife's wit going to your neighbour's bed.

bj. And what wit could wit have to excuse that?

bk. Marry, to say,—she came to seek you there. You shall never take her without her

AS YOU LIKE IT.

her without her that cannot make ion, let her never
she will breed it

Rosalind, I will not lack thee two

ke at dinner; by e again.

to your ways;—I my friends told
o less:—that flat-
me.—'tis but one
th.—Two o'clock

ood earnest, and pretty oaths that ik one jot of your hind your hour,
athetical break-
w lover, and the ll Rosalind, that
s band of the un-
y censure, and

than if thou wert
eu.

justice that exand let time try:

[Exit ORLANDO.
used our sex in ve your doublet
head, and show
done to her own

pretty little cor,
any fathom deep
be sounded; my ttom, like the bay

that as fast as you bastard of Venus,

t,* conceived of
s, that blind ras-
y one's eyes, beta be judge, how l thee, Aliena, I Orlando: I'll go
e come.

[Exeunt.

rt of the Forest.

in the habit of

d the deer?

the duke, like a ould do well to set ead, for a branch
ong, forester, for

how it be in tune,

kill'd the deer?

na to wear.

he;

Take thou no scorn, to wear
It was a crest ere thou wast

1. Thy father's father is

2. And thy father bore it

All. The horn, the horn, the horn

Is not a thing to laugh to

SCENE III.—The

Enter ROSALIND and

Ros. How say you now? .
o'clock? and here much Oris

Cel. I warrant you, with troubled brain, he hath ta'en rows, and is gone forth—to si
comes here.

Enter SILVIUS

Sil. My errand is to you, for My gentle Phebe bid me give

I know not the contents; but
By the stern brow, and wasp
Which she did use as she was
It bears an angry tenor: part
I am but as a guiltless messenger

Ros. Patience herself wou
letter,

And play the swaggerer; bes
She says, I am not fair; that She calls me proud; and, th
love me

Were man as rare as phoenix
Her love is not the hare that Why writes she so to me?—
This is a letter of your own &

Sil. No, I protest, I know s
Phebe did write it.

Ros. Come, come, you are s
And turn'd into the extremity
I saw her hand: she has a lei
A freestone-colour'd hand; I That her old gloves were on hands;

She has a huswife's hand: but
I say, she never did invent th
This is a man's invention, and

Sil. Sure, it is hers.

Ros. Why, 'tis a boisterous
A style for challengers; why,
Like Turk to Christian: wom
Could not drop forth such gian
Such Ethiop words, blacker in Than in their countenance:—
letter?

Sil. So please you, for I nev
Yet heard too much of Phebe's

Ros. She Phebes me: Mar
writes.

Art thou god to shepherd to
That a maiden's heart hath

Can a woman rail thus?

Sil. Call you this railing?

Ros. Why, thy godhead laid Warrat thou with a wo

Did you ever hear such railing

Whiles the eye of man a
That could do no wrong

Meaning me a beast.—

If the scorn of your brig
Have power to raise such Alack, in me what stum
Would they work in mil

* Mischief.

While you shall live, I do love;
How then might your prayers move?
He, that brings this love to thee,
Little knows this love in me:
And by him seal up thy mind;
Whether that thy youth and kind^a
Will the faithful offer take
Of me, and all that I can make;
Or else by him my love deny,
And then I'll study how to die.

Sil. Call you this chiding?

Cel. Alas, poor shepherd!

Ros. Do not pity him! no, he deserves no pity.—Wilt thou love such a woman?—What, to make thee an instrument, and play false strains upon thee! not to be endured!—Well, go your way to her, (for I see, love hath made her a tame snake,) and say this to her:—That if she love me, I charge her to love thee: if she will not, I will never have her, unless thou sweat for her.—If you be a true lover, hence, and not a word; for here comes more company.

[Exit Silvius.]

Enter OLIVER.

Ol. Good-morrow, fair ones: Pray you, if you know

Where, in the purlieu of this forest, stands
A sheep-cote, fence'd about with olive-trees?

Cel. West of this place, down in the neighbour bottom,

The rank of osiers by the murmuring stream,
Just on your right hand, brings you to the place:

But at this hour the house doth keep itself,
There's none within.

Ol. If that an eye may profit by a tongue,
Then I should know you by description;
Such garments, and such years: The boy is fair,
Of female favour, and bestows himself

Like a ripe sister: but the woman low,
And browner than her brother. Are not you
The owner of the house I did inquire for?

Cel. It is no boast, being ask'd, to say, we are.

Ol. Orlando doth commend him to you both;
And to that youth, he calls his Rosalind,
He sends this bloody napkin;† Are you he?

Ros. I am: What must we understand by this?

Ol. Some of my shame; if you will know of me [where What was I am, and how, and why, and
This handkerchief was stain'd.

Cel. I pray you, tell it.

Ol. When last the young Orlando parted
from you,

He left a promise to return again
Within an hour; and, pacing through the forest,
Chewing the food of sweet and bitter fancy,
Lo, what befel! he threw his eye aside,
And, mark, what object did present itself!
Under an oak, whose boughs were moss'd with
And high top bald with dry antiquity, [age,
A wretched ragged man, o'ergrown with hair,
Lay sleeping on his back: about his neck
A green and gilded snake had wreath'd itself,
Who with her head, nimbly in threats, approach'd

The opening of his mouth; but suddenly
Seeing Orlando, it unlink'd itself,
And with indentèd glides did slip away
Into a bush: under which bush's shade
A lioness, with cubs all drawn dry,
Lay couching, head on ground, with catlike
watch, [tis

When that the sleeping man should stir; for

The royal disposition of that beast,
To prey on nothing that doth seem as dead:
This seen, Orlando did approach the man,
And found it was his brother, his elder brother.

Cel. O, I have heard him speak of that same
brother;

And he did render^a him the most unnatural
That liv'd amongst men.

Ol. And well he might so do,
For well I know he was unnatural.

Ros. But, to Orlando;—Did he leave him
there,

Food to the sick'd and hungry lioness?

Ol. Twice did he turn his back, and purpose'd so:

But kindness, nobler ever than revenge,
And nature, stronger than his just occasion,
Made him give battle to the lioness,
Who quickly fell before him; in which hurt-
From miserable slumber I awak'd. [lingt

Cel. Are you his brother?

Ros. Was it you he rescu'd?

Cel. Was't you that did so oft contrive to kill
him?

Ol. 'Twas I; but 'tis not I: I do not shame
To tell you what I was, since my conversion
So sweetly tastes, being the thing I am.

Ros. But, for the bloody napkin?—

Ol. By, and by.

When from the first to last, betwixt us two,
Tears our recountments had most kindly bath'd,
As, how I came into that desert place;—
In brief, he led me to the gentle duke,
Who gave me fresh array, and entertainment,
Committing me unto my brother's love;
Who led me instantly unto his cave,
There stripp'd himself, and here upon his arm
The lioness had torn some flesh away,
Which all this while had bled; and now he faint-
And cry'd, in fainting, upon Rosalind. [ed,
Brief, I recover'd him; bound up his wound;
And, after some small space, being strung at
He sent me hither, stranger as I am, [heart,
To tell this story, that you might excuse
His broken promise, and to give this napkin,
Dy'd in this blood, unto the shepherd youth
That he in sport doth call his Rosalind.

Cel. Why, how now, Ganymede? sweet Ganymede?

[ROSALIND faints.

Ol. Many will swoon when they do look on
blood

Cel. There is more in it:—Cousin—Ganymede

Ol. Look, he recovers.

Ros. I would, I were at home.

Cel. We'll lead you thither:—

I pray you, will you take him by the arm?

Ol. Be of good cheer; youth:—You a
You lack a man's heart. [man?—

Ros. I do so, I confess it. Ah, Sir, a body would think this was well counterfeited: I pray
you, tell your brother how well I counterfeit-ed.—Heigh ho!—

Ol. This was not counterfeit; there is too great testimony in your complexion, that it was a passion of earnest.

Ros. Counterfeit, I assure you.

Ol. Well then, take a good heart, and counterfeit to be a man.

Ros. So I do: but, I faith I should have been a woman by right.

Cel. Come, you look paler and paler; pray
you, draw homewards:—Good Sir, go with us.

Ol. That will I, for I must bear answer
How you excuse my brother, Rosalind. [back

^a Nature. † Revivings of a Secret. ‡ Handkerchief.

^a Describe.

† Scold.

AS YOU LIKE IT.

advise something: But, I pray
my counterfeiting to him:—
[Exit.]

ACT V.

SCENE I.—The same.

CHISTONE and AUDREY.

I find a time, Audrey; pa-
strey.

The priest was good enough, for man's saying.

Wicked Sir Oliver, Audrey, a

But, Audrey, there is a forest lays claim to you.

Who 'tis, he that hath no
the world: here comes the Enter WILLIAM.

at and drink to me to see a
both, we that have good wits,
power for; we shall be flouting;

on, Audrey.

Good even, William.

Good even to you, Sir.

Good, gentle friend: Cover thy head; nay, prythee, be cover-
you, friend?

Twenty, Sir.

Age: Is thy name, William?

Sir.

Name: Wast born i'the forest

I thank God.

God;—a good answer: Art

er, so, so.

is good, very good, very ex-
yet it is not; it is but so so.

I have a pretty wit.

non say'st well. I do now re-

The fool doth think he is wise, knows himself to be a fool. The er, when he had a desire to

d open his lips when he put meaning thereby, that grapes

, and lips to open. You do your hand: Art thou learned?

arn this of me; To have, is to figure in rhetoric, that drink.

f a cup into a glass, by fill-empty the other: For all your nt, that ipse is he; now you am he.

er, Sir?

that must marry this woman:

own, abandon,—which is in the society,—which in the ny, of this female,—which in woman,—which together is,

ty of this female; or, clown,

to thy better understanding,

thee, make thee away, trans-

death, thy liberty into bond-

poison with thee, or in ha-

, I will bandy with thee in er-run thee with policy; I will

ed and fifty ways; therefore

art.

William.

ou merry, Sir.

[Exit.]

Enter CORIN.

Cor. Our master and mis-come, away, away.

Touch. Trip, Audrey, trip, tend, I attend.

SCENE II.—The

Enter ORLANDO and

Orl. Is't possible, that on a ance you should like her? t
you should love her? and, h wooing, she should grant? a severe to enjoy her?

Orl. Neither call the giddin-tion, the poverty of her, the sm
my sudden wooing, nor her su-but say with me, I love Ali-that she loves me; consent w-
may enjoy each other: it shal-
for my father's house, and all was old Sir Rowland's, will I and here live and die a sheph

Enter ROSALIN

Orl. You have my consent ding be to-morrow: thither
duke, and all his contented fa-and prepare Aliens; for, look my Rosalind.

Ros. God save you, brother

Orl. And you, fair sister.

Ros. O, my dear Orlando

me to see thee wear thy heart

Orl. It is my arm.

Ros. I thought, thy heart ha-with the claws of a lion.

Orl. Wounded it is, but w-
lady.

Ros. Did your brother tell terfeited to swoon, when he handkerchief?

Orl. Ay, and greater woad

Ros. O, I know where you

true: there was never any t

but the fight of two rams, a sonical brag of—I came, an

For your brother and my siste

but they looked; no sooner

loved; no sooner loved, but sooner sighed, but they asked reason; no sooner knew the sought the remedy: and in th

they made a pair of stairs to

they will climb incontinent, c

nent before marriage: they are

of love, and they will togeth

part them.

Orl. They shall be married

I will bid the duke to the n

how bitter a thing it is to loo

through another man's eyes!

more shall I to-morrow be heart-heaviness, by how mu

my brother happy, in having

for.

Ros. Why then, to-morrow
your turn for Rosalind?

Orl. I can live no longer by

Ros. I will weary you no idle talking. Know of me speak to some purpose,) that gentleman of good conceit:

that you should bear a goo

knowledge, insomuch, I say,

neither do I labour for a gre

may in some little measure di

Self good, and not to grace me.
If you please, that I can do
I have, since I was three years with a magician, most profound yet not damnable. If you do hear the heart as your gesture
on your brother marries Aliena,
Phebe: I know into what straits
I am driven; and it is not impossible to appear not inconvenient to you,
to your eyes to-morrow, human without any danger.
If thou in sober meanings?
Life, I do; which I tender dearly I am a magician: Therefore,
best array, bid* your friends:
I married to-morrow, you shall;
I, if you will.

* SILVIUS and PHEBE.

was a lover of mine, and a lover

you have done me much unkindness,

that I writ to you.

not, if I have. It is my study,

kind and ungentle to you:

Follow'd by a faithful shepherd;
I love him; he worships you.

Shepherd, tell this youth what
love.

Is all made of sighs and tears;—

* Phebe.

for Ganymede.

or Rosalind.

or no woman.

Is all made of faith and service;—

* Phebe.

for Ganymede.

for Rosalind

for no woman.

Is all made of fantasy,

reason, and all made of wishes;

duty, and observance,

Is all patience, and impatience,

trial, all observance;—

* Phebe.

am I for Ganymede.

am I for Rosalind.

am I for no woman,

Is so, why blame you me to love

Is so, why blame you me to love

Is so, why blame you me to love

Is so, why blame you me to love

Is so, why blame you me to love

Is so, why blame you me to love

Is so, why blame you me to love

Is so, why blame you me to love

Is so, why blame you me to love

Is so, why blame you me to love

Is so, why blame you me to love

Is so, why blame you me to love

Is so, why blame you me to love

Is so, why blame you me to love

Is so, why blame you me to love

Is so, why blame you me to love

Is so, why blame you me to love

Is so, why blame you me to love

Is so, why blame you me to love

Is so, why blame you me to love

Is so, why blame you me to love

Is so, why blame you me to love

Is so, why blame you me to love

Is so, why blame you me to love

Is so, why blame you me to love

Is so, why blame you me to love

Is so, why blame you me to love

Is so, why blame you me to love

Is so, why blame you me to love

Is so, why blame you me to love

Is so, why blame you me to love

Is so, why blame you me to love

Is so, why blame you me to love

Is so, why blame you me to love

Sil. I'll not fail, if I live.

Phe. Nor I.

Orl. Nor I.

{Exeunt.}

SCENE III.—The same.

Enter TOUCHSTONE and AUDREY.

Touch. To-morrow is the joyful day, Audrey; to-morrow will we be married.

Aud. I do desire it with all my heart: and I hope it is no dishonest desire, to desire to be a woman of the world.* Here comes two of the banished duke's pages.

Enter two PAGES.

1 Page. Well met, honest gentleman.

Touch. By my troth, well met: Come, sit,
sit, and a song.

2 Page. We are for you: sit i'the middle.

1 Page. Shall we clap into't roundly, without hawking, or spitting, or saying we are hoarse;
which are the only prologues to a bad voice?

2 Page. I'faith, i'faith; and both in a tune, like two gipsies on a horse.

Song.

I.

It was a lover, and his lass,
With a hey, and a ho, and a hey nonino,
That o'er the green corn-field did pass
In the spring time, the only pretty rank time,
When birds do sing, hey ding a ding, ding;
Sweet lovers love the spring.

II.

Between the acres of the rye,
With a hey, and a ho, and a hey nonino,
These pretty country folks would lie,
In spring time, &c.

III.

This carol they began that hour,
With a hey, and a ho, and a hey nonino,
How that a life was but a flower
In spring time, &c.

IV.

And therefore take the present time,
With a hey, and a ho, and a hey nonino;
For love is crowned with the prime
In spring time, &c.

Touch. Truly, young gentlemen, though there was no greater matter in the ditty, yet
the note was very untunable.

1 Page. You are deceived, Sir; we kept time, we lost not our time.

Touch. By my troth, yes; I count it but time lost to hear such a foolish song. God be with you; and God mend your voices! Come, Audrey. {Exeunt.}

SCENE IV.—Another part of the Forest.

Enter DUKE, senior, AMIENS, JACQUES, ORLAN-DO, OLIVER, and CELIA.

Duke S. Dost thou believe, Orlando, that the
Can do all this that he hath promised? {Boy

Orl. I sometimes do believe, and sometimes do not, {fear.}

As those that fear they hope, and know they

Enter ROSALIND, SILVIUS, and PHEBE.

Ros. Patience once more, whilst our compact is urg'd:—

You say, if I bring in your Rosalind,
{To the Duke.}

You will bestow her on Orlando here?

* Justice.

* A married woman.

AS YOU LIKE IT.

ed I kingdoms to

I have her, when

[To ORLANDO.

of all kingdoms

me, if I be will-

[To PHOEBE.

the the hour after.

marry me, [herd?

ost faithful shep-

ive Phebe, if she

[To SILVIUS.

death were both

ke all this matter

ke, to give your

his daughter:—

you'll marry me;

this shepherd:—

you'll marry her,

hence I go,

en.

AND CELIA.

us shepherd-boy

ghter's favour.

that I ever saw

o your daughter:

forest-born;

adiments

his uncle,

st magician,

forest.

AUDREY.

ood toward, and the ark! Here

asts, which in all

ing to you all!

welcome; This en, that I have so

h been a cour-

hat, let him put

nd a measure;*

ve been politic

enemy; I have

ad four quarrels,

up?

ound the quarrel

Good my lord,

I

desire you of the

ngst the rest of

ear, and to for-

inds, and blood

an ill-favoured

poor humour of

else will: Rich

in a poor-house;

ter.

very swift and

's bolt, Sir, and use; how did

enth cause?

ce.

Touch. Upon a lie seven th Bear your body more seeming thus, sir. I did dislike the courtier's beard; he sent me w beard was not cut well, he w was: This is called the Retort
sent him word again, it was n
would send me word, he cut I self: This is called the Quip
it was not well cut, he disabled
This is called the Reply churlish
was not well cut, he would n
not true: This is called the Rej
again, it was not well cut, he
This is called the Countercheck
so to the Lie circumstantial, an Jay. And how oft did you was not well cut?

Touch. I durst go no further circumstantial, nor he durst not direct; and so we measured swe

Jay. Can you nominate in o grees of the lie?

Touch. O Sir, we quarrel i book; as you have books for g will name you the degrees. I fort courteous; the second, the
the third, the Reply churlish; Reproof valiant; the fifth, the quarrelsome; the sixth, the L
stance; the seventh, the Lie di
you may avoid, but the lie dire avoid that too, with an If. I ven justices could not take up when the parties were met the them thought but of an If, as then I said so; and they shook h brothers. Your If is the onl much virtue in If.

Jay. Is not this a rare fellow as good at any thing, and yet

Duke S. He uses his folly horse, and under the presents
shoots his wit.

Enter HYMEN, leading ROSAL clothes; and CELIA.
Still Music.

Hym. Then is there mirth in When earthly things m
Atone together.

Good duke, receive thy Hymen from heaven br
Yea, brought her h
That thou might'st join Whose heart within he

Ros. To you I give myself,
To you I give myself, for I am

Duke S. If there be truth in my daughter.

Orl. If there be truth in sig
Rosalind.

Pho. If sight and shape be t
Why then.—my love adieu!

Ros. I'll have no father, if

I'll have no husband, if you b

Nor ne'er wed woman, if you

Hym. Peace ho! I bar conf
Tis I must make com
Of these most stran

night that must take hands,
in Hymen's bands,
th holds true contents.
you no cross shall part:
[To ORLANDO and ROSALIND.
you are heart in heart:

[To OLIVER and CELIA.
PHEBE] to his love must accord,
a woman to your lord —
you are sure together, [To TOUCHSTONE and AUDREY.
inter to foul weather,
wedlock-hymn we sing,
selves with questioning;
own wonder may diminish,
e we met, and these things finish.

SONG.

In great Jove's crown;
at hand of board and bed;
in peoples every town;
wedlock then be honoured:
high honour and renown,
is god of every town!
O my dear niece, welcome thou art
here;
welcome in no less degree.
I'll not eat my word, now thou art
here;
thy fancy to thee doth combine.†
[To SILVUS.

Enter JACQUES DE BOIS.

I. Let me have audience for a word
two;
young son of old Sir Rowland,
these tidings to this fair assembly:—
errick, hearing how that every day
at worth resorted to this forest,
a mighty power! which were on foot,
conduct, purposely to take
there, and put him to the sword:
skirts of this wild wood he came;
young with an old religious man,
question with him, was converted
his enterprise, and from the world:
bequeathing to his banish'd brother,
his lands restor'd to them again
with him exil'd: This to be true,
my life.

Welcome, young man;
at fairly to thy brothers' wedding:
lands withheld; and to the other,
off at large, a potent dukedom.
in forest, let us do those ends
were well begun, and well begot:
every of this happy number,
endur'd shrewd days and nights
with us,
e the good of our returned fortune,
to the measure of their states.
forget this new-fall'n dignity,

no truth fails of veracity.

† Bind.

And fall into our rustic revelry:—

Play, music;—and you brides and bridegrooms all, {all.
With measure heap'd in joy, to the measures Jaques. Sir, by your patience; If I heard you rightly.

The duke hath put on a religious life,
And thrown into neglect the pompous court?
Jaques. de H. He hath.

Jaques. To him will I; out of these convertites
There is much matter to be heard and learn'd.—
You to your former honour I bequeath;

[To DUKE S.
Your patience, and your virtue well deserves
it:—

You [To ORLANDO] to a love, that your true faith doth merit.—

You [To OLIVER] to your land, and love, and great allies:—

You [To SILVUS] to a long and well deserved
bed,—

And you [To TOUCHSTONE] to wrangling; for thy loving voyage

Is but for two months victual'd:—So to your pleasures;

I am for other than for dancing measures.

Duke S. stay, Jaques, stay.

Jaques. To see no pastime, I.—what you would have

I'll stay to know at your abandon'd cave.

[Exit.
Duke S. Proceed, proceed: we will begin
these rites,

And we do trust they'll end in true delights.

[A dance.

EPILOGUE.

Ros. It is not the fashion to see the lady the epilogue: but it is no more unhandsome, than to see the lord the prologue. If it be true, that good wine needs no bush, 'tis true, that a good play needs no epilogue: Yet to good wine they do use good bushes, and good plays prove the better by the help of good epilogues. What a case am I in then, that am neither a good epilogue, nor cannot insinuate with you in the behalf of a good play? I am not furnished* like a beggar, therefore to beg will not become me: my way is, to conjure you; and I'll begin with the women. I charge you, O women, for the love you bear to men, to like as much of this play as please them: and so I charge you, O men, for the love you bear to women, (as I perceive by your simpering, none of you hate them,) that between you and the women, the play may please. If I were a woman, I would kiss as many of you as had beards that pleased me, complexions that liked me,† and breaths that I defied not: and, I am sure, as many as have good beards, or good faces, or sweet breaths, will, for my kind offer, when I make curt'sy, bid me farewell. [Exeunt.

* Dressed.

† That I liked.

ALL THAT ENDS W

PERSONS REPRESENTED.

HELENA, a Gentlewoman pro-
Countess.
An Old Widow of Florence.
DIANA, Daughter to the Widow.
VIOLENTA, } neighbours and f MARIANA, } Widow.
Lords, attending on the King;
diers, &c. French and Ph SCENE, partly in France, and par

room in the Coun-

of ROUSILLON,
mourning.

from me, I bury

an, weep o'er my must attend his
I am now in

king a husband,
He that so gene-
rest of necessity
worthiness would rather than lack it

of his majesty's physicians, ma-

he hath persecut-
no other advan-
the losing of hope

woman had a fa-
a passage 'tis!) eat as his bonescould have made
should have play
the king's sake,
ould be the death

an you speak of,

in his profession,
be so: Gerard de

ced, madam; the admiringly, and enough to have
be set up against

rd, the king lan-

guardian.
loss of a husband and ugh her mind.

Laf. A fatula, my lord.

Ber. I heard not of it before.

Laf. I would, it were not so this gentlewoman the daughter Narbon?

Count. His sole child, my queathed to my overlooking hopes of her good, that her educ
her dispositions she inherits, wi
gifts fairer; for where an uncle virtuous qualities,* there com
with pity, they are virtues and her they are the better for the
she derives her honesty, and
goodness.

Laf. Your commendations, in her tears.

Count. 'Tis the best brine a s son her praise in. The reme father never approaches her tyranny of her sorrows takes from her cheek. No more of t to, no more; lest it be rather t
fect a sorrow, than to have.

Hel. I do affect a sorrow, ind
it too.

Laf. Moderate lamentation
the dead, excessive grief the e
ing.

Count. If the living be enen
the excess makes it soon mort

Ber. Madam, I desire your l

Laf. How understand we the Count. Be thou bless'd, Ber

ceed thy father

In manners, as in shape! thy bl
Contend for empire in thee; a Share with thy birthright! L few,

Do wrong to none: be able for Rather in power, than use; and Under thy own life's key: be lence,

But never tax'd for speech. W

* Qualities of good breeding and er † Her excellences are the better b less.

‡ All appearance of life.

my furnish,* and my prayers pluck
 you, my head! Farewell.—My lord, season'd courtier; good my lord,
 I cannot want the best
 attend his love.

Heaven bless him!—Farewell, Bertram. [Exit COURTRESS.]

I best wishes, that can be forged in lights, [To HELENA] be servants to comfortable to my mother, your mis-
 make much of her.
 Well, pretty lady. You must hold of your father.

[Enter BERTRAM and LAPEU.]
 were that all!—I think not on my
 dear;

[more]
 great tears grace his remembrance
 I shed for him. What was he like?
 at him: my imagination
 favour in it, but Bertram's.
 as; there is no living, none,
 be away. It were all one,
 old love a bright particular star,
 he wed it, he is so above me:
 its radiance and collateral light
 comforted, not in his sphere.
 him in my love thus plagues itself:
 that would be mated by the lion,
 the love. 'Twas pretty, though a
 light.

I every hour; to sit and draw
 I brows, his hawking eye, his curls, at's table, & heart, too capable his and tricks of his sweet favour. It is gone, and my idolatrous fancy
 tify his relics. Who comes here?

Enter PAROLLES.

goes with him: I love him for his
 know him a notorious liar, [sake;
 a great way fool, solely a coward;
 his d evils sit to fit in him,
 like place, when virtue's steely bones
 sit in the cold wind: withal, full oft is he
 him waiting on superfluous folly.
 away you, fair queen.
 id you, monarch.

I
 id no.

o you meditating on virginity?
 c. You have some stain of soldier in ask you a question: Man is enemy
 y; how may we barricado it against up him out.

 the assails; and our virginity, though
 the defence, yet is weak: unfold to unlike resistance.

ere is none; man, sitting down bewill undermine you, and blow you see our poor virginity from under-ed blowers up!—Is there no military or virgins might blow up men?

 rginity, being blown down, man will be blown up: marry, in blowing him
 e, with the breach yourselves made,

at may help thee with more and better quali-

if you be mistress of your wishes, and have ag them to effect.

renders her heart as the tablet on which his
 was portrayed.
 By all means.

Countenance.

you lose your city. It is not politic in the commonwealth of nature, to preserve virginity.
 Loss of virginity is rational increase; and there was never virgin got, till virginity was first lost. That, you were made of, is metal to make virgins. Virginity by being once lost, may be ten times found: by being ever kept, it is ever lost: 'tis too cold a companion; away with it.

Hel. I will stand or't a little, though therefore I die a virgin.

Par. There's little can be said in't; 'tis against the rule of nature. To speak on the part of virginity, is to accuse your mothers, which is most infallible disobedience. He that hangs himself, is a virgin virginity murders itself;
 and should be buried in high way, out of all sanctified limit, as a desperate offender against nature. Virginity breeds mis-like a cheese; consumes itself to the very parting, and so dies with feeding his own stomach.
 Besides, virginity is peevish, proud, idle, made of self-love, which is the most inhibited sin
 in the canon. Keep it not, you cannot loose but lose by't: Out with't: within ten years it will make itself ten, which is a goodly increase;
 and the principal itself not much the worse:
 Away with't.

Hel. How might one do, Sir, to lose it to own liking?

Par. Let me see: Marry, ill, to like him that ne'er it likes. 'Tis a commodity will lose a gloss with lying; the longer kept, the less worth: off with't, while 'tis vendible, answer
 the time of request. Virginity, like an old courtier, wears her cap out of fashion, rich suited, but unsuitable: just like the brook and tooth-pick, which wear not now: You date is better in your pie and your porridge than in your cheek. And your virginity, you old virginity, is like one of our French withered pears; it looks ill, it eats dryly; marry, 'tis withered pear; it was formerly better; marry
 yet, 'tis a withered pear: Will you any thin,
 with it?

Hel. Not my virginity yet.

There shall your master have a thousand loves
 A mother, and a mistress, and a friend,
 A phoenix, captain, and an enemy,
 A guide, a goddess, and a sovereign,
 A counsellor, a traitress, and a dear;
 His humble ambition, proud humility,
 His jarring concord, and his discord dulcet,
 His faith, his sweet disaster, with a world
 Of pretty, fond, adoptious christendoms,
 That blinking Cupid gossips. Now shall he—
 I know not what he shall:—God send him
 well!

The court's a learning-place;—and he is one—

Par. What one, I faith?

Hel. That I wish well.—'Tis pity—

Par. What's pity?

Hel. That wishing well had not a body in't, which might be felt: that we, the poorer born
 Whose baser stars do shut us up in wishes,
 Might with effects of them follow our friends,
 And show what we alone must think; it which Returns us thanks.

[re-ve]

Enter a PAGE.

Page. Monsieur Parolles, my lord calls for
 you.

[Exit PAGE]

Par. Little Helen, farewell: if I can remember thee, I will think of thee at court.

* Forbidden.

† A quibble on date, which means age, and cancelled time.
 ‡ I.e. And show by realities what we now must consider.

ALLS WELL THAT ENDS WELL.

you were born un-

under Mars.

Keep you under, that under Mars.

from aught,
retrograde, I think,

backward, when you

when fear proposes

ship, that your va-

is a virtue of a wear well.

businesses, I cannot

will return perfect

y instruction shall

thou wilt be capa-

, and understand

on thee; else thou

ess, and thine ignorewell. When thou

ers, when thou hast

ds. get thee a good

e uses thee; so fare-

[Exit.

ourselves do lie,

en: the fated sky

both backward pull

ourselves are dull.

mounts my love so

cannot feed mine eye?

une nature brings

ake native things.†

tempts, to those

sense; and do sup-

Who ever strove

miss her love?

ject may deceive

and will not leave me.

[Exit.

Room in the King's

the King of France,

others attending.

and Senoys; are by fortune, and continue

Sir.

edible; we here re-

our cousin Austria,

ntine will move us

our dearest friend

and would seem

edom,

y, may plead

answer.

fore he comes;

at mean to see

each other.

public of which Siena is

The Tuscan service, freely he

To stand on either part.

2 Lord. It may well serve

A nursery to our gentry, who

For breathing and exploit.

King. What's he comes here

Enter BERTRAM, LAFEU, and

1 Lord. It is the count Ros

Young Bertram.

King. Youth, thou bear'st th'

Frank nature, rather curious th'

Hath well compos'd thee. Th'

parts

May'st thou inherit too! Well

Ber. My thanks and duty are

King. I would I had that soon

now,

As when thy father, and myself

First tried our soldiership! H

Into the service of the time, as

Disciplined of the bravest: he li

But on us both did haggish ag

And wore us out of act. It m

To talk of your good father:

He had the wit, which I can v

To-day in our young lords; bu

Till their own scorn return to

Ere they can hide their levity

So like a courtier, contempt n

Were in his pride or sharpness

His equal had awak'd them;

Clock to itself, knew the true

Exception bid him speak, and

His tongue obey'd his hand:

He used as creatures of another

And bow'd his eminent top to Making them proud of his hum

In their poor praise he humble

Might be a copy to these yours

Which, follow'd well, would d

But goes backward.

Ber. His good remembrance

Lies richer in your thoughts, t

So in approof; lives not his ep

As in your royal speech.

King. Would, I were with always say,

(Methinks, I hear him now; hi

He scatter'd not in cars, but g

To grow there, and to bear,)-

Thus his good melancholy oft

On the catastrophe and heal

When it was out,—Let me not

After my flame lacks oil, to be

Of younger spirits, whose app

All but new things disdain; wh

Mere fathers of their garments

stances

Expire before their fashions:—

I, after him, do after him wis

Since I nor wax, nor honey, †

I quickly were dissolved from

To give some labourers room.

2 Lord. You are lov'd, Sir;

They, that least lend it you, sh

King. I fill a place, I know

is't, count,

Since the physician at your fi

He was much fam'd.

Ber. Some six months since

King. If he were living,

yet;—

† To repair here signifies to renew

† His is put for his.

‡ Who have no other use of their vent new modes of dress.

the rest have worn me out applications :—nature and sick-

leisure. Welcome, count;
leaver.
your majesty.
[Exit. Flourish.

II.—Reusillon.—A Room in the Congress' Palace.

HERMES, STEWARD, and CLOWN.

Now hear : what say you of this the care I have had to even I wish might be found in the past endeavours, for then we society, and make foul the clear-mornings, when of ourselves we does this knave here? Get you

The complaints, I have heard of believe; 'tis my slowness, that I know, you lack not folly to and have ability enough to make
yours.

unknown to you, madam, I am a

Sir.

'tis not so well, that I am
many of the rich are damned: But,
your ladyship's good will to go to and the woman and I will do as thou needs be a beggar?

of your good-will in this case.

what case?

bel's case, and mine own. Seritage. and, I think, I shall never sing of God, till I have issue of they say, bearns; are blessings.
I me thy reason why thou wilt for body, madam, requires it: I

by the flesh; and he must needs evil drives.

his all your worship's reason?

madam, I have other holy reasons,
etc.

y the world know them?

been, madam, a wicked creature,
I flesh and blood are; and indeed,
but I may repent.

marriage, sooner than thy wicked-

of friends, madam; and I hope for my wife's sake.

friends are thine enemies, knave.
re shallow, madam; e'en great
he knaves come to do that for me,
a-weary of. He, that ears; my my team, and gives me leave to inn
be his cuckold, he's my drudge:
forts my wife, is the cherisher of blood; he, that cherishes my flesh
res my flesh and blood; he, that
b and blood, is my friend: ergo,
my wife, is my friend. If men tempted to be what they are, there in marriage; for young Charbon and old Poysam the papist, how-sarts are severed in religion, their th one, they may joll horns tony deer i' the herd.

thou ever be a foul-mouthed and nave?

Clo. A prophet I, madam; and I speak the truth the next way:*

*For I the ballad will repeat,
Which men full true shall find;
Your marriage comes by destiny,
Your cuckoo sings by kind.*

Count. Get you gone, Sir; I'll talk with you more anon.

Stew. May it please you, madam, that he bid
Helen come to you; of her I am to speak.

Count. Sirrah, tell my gentlewoman, I would speak with her; Helen I mean.

Clo. Was this fair face the cause, quoth she,
[Singing.

*Why the Grecians sacked Troy?
Fond done, & done found,
Was this king Priam's joy?
With that she sighed as she stood,
With that she sighed as she stood,
And gave this sentence then;
Among nine bad if one be good,
Among nine bad if one be good,
There's yet one good in ten.*

Count. What, one good in ten? you corrupt the song, sirrah.

Clo. One good woman in ten, madam; which is a purifying o' the song: 'Would God would serve the world so all the year! we'd find no fault with the tythe-woman, if I were the parson. One in ten, quoth a'! an we might have a good woman born but every blazing star, or at an earthquake, 'twould mend the lottery well; a man may draw his heart out, ere he pluck one.

Count. You'll be gone, Sir knave, and do as I command you?

Clo. That man should be at woman's command, and yet no hurt done!—Though honesty be no puritan, yet it will do no hurt; it will wear the surplice of humility over the black gown of a big heart.—I am going, forsooth: the business is for Helen to come hither.

[Exit CLOWN.

Count. Well, now.

Stew. I know, madam, you love your gentlewoman entirely.

Count. Faith, I do: her father bequeathed her to me; and she herself, without other advantage, may lawfully make title to as much love as she finds: there is more owing her, than is paid; and more shall be paid her, than she'll demand.

Stew. Madam, I was very late more near her than, I think, she wished me: alone she was,
and did communicate to herself, her own words
to her own ears; she thought, I dare vow for her, they touched not any stranger sense. Her matter was, she loved your son: Fortune, she said, was no goddess, that had put such difference betwixt their two estates; Love, no
god, that would not extend his might, only where qualities were level; Diana, no queen of virgins, that would suffer her poor knight to be surpris'd, without rescue, in the first assault, or ransom afterward: Thus she delivered in the most bitter touch of sorrow, that e'er
I heard virgin exclaim in, which I held my duty, speedily to acquaint you withal; al-thence, & in the loss that may happen, it concerns you something to know it.

Count. You have discharged this honestly;
keep it to yourself: many likelihoods informed me of this before, which hung so tottering in the balance, that I could neither believe, nor

* To your desire. † To be married.
‡ Flout. § Therefore.

* The nearest way. † Foolishly done. ‡ Stun.

ALL'S WELL THAT ENDS WELL.

me: stall this in
 you for your honest
 further anon.

[Exit STEWARD.

ENA.

th me, when I was [thorn
 these are ours; this rightly belong;
 our blood is born;
 nature's truth,
 on is impress'd in

ays foregone,
 or then we thought

erve her now.

re, madam?

n.

istress.

I said a mother,
 erpent: What's in

, I am your mother;
 ue of those

"Tis often seen,
 nature; and choice

oreign seeds:

a mother's groan,
 er's care:—

at curd thy blood,
 What's the matter,

enger of wet,
 nds thine eye?

daughter?

mother.

be my brother:

honour'd name;

his all noble:

is; and I

his vassal die:

r?

, madam; 'Would

son, were not my [mothers,

were you both our

do for heaven,

an't no other,

ust be my brother?

ght be my daugh-

[mother,

ot! daughter, and

What, pale again?

ondness: Now I

ness, and find [see

ow to all sense 'tis

is asham'd,

f thy passion,

ere tell me true;

r. look, thy cheeks

and thine eyes

ay behaviours,

ak it: only sin

y tongue,

it equally.

grief.

That truth should be suspect
 If it be so, you have wound
 If it be not, forswear't: how
 As heaven shall work in me
 To tell me truly.

Hel. Good madam, pardon

Count. Do you love my son?

Hel. Your pardon, noble

Count. Love you my son?

Hel. Do not you love him,

Count. Go not about; my

bond,

Whereof the world takes
 The state of your affection;
 Have to the full approach'd.

Hel. Then, I confess,

Here on my knee, before him
 That before you, and next u

I love your son:—

My friends were poor, but he

He not offended; for it hurt

That he is lov'd of me: I fol

By any token of presumptu

Nor would I have him, till I

Yet never know how that de

I know I love in vain, strive

Yet, in this captious and int

I still pour in the waters of

And lack not to lose still: d

Religious in mine error, I ac

The sun, that looks upon his

But knows of him no more.

dam,

Let not your hate encounter

For loving where you do: b

Whose aged honour cites a

Did ever, in so true a flame

Wish chastely, and love dea

Was both herself and love; t

To her, whose state is such, t

But lend and give, where sh

That seeks not to find that b

But, riddle-like, lives sweet

Count. Had you not lately

To go to Paris?

Hel. Madam, I had.

Count. Wherefore? tell tru

Hel. I will tell truth; by gr

You know, my father left n

tions

Of rare and prov'd effects, s

And manifest experience, h

For general sovereignty; an

In heedfullest reservation to

As notes, whose faculties in

More than they were in no

There is a remedy, approv'd.

To cure the desperate langu

The king is render'd lost.

Count. This was your moti

For Paris, was it? speak.

Hel. My lord your son m

this;

Else Paris, and the medicin

Had, from the conversation

Haply, been absent then.

Count. But think you, Hel

If you should tender your su

He would receive it? He an

Are of a mind; he, that they

They, that they cannot help

credit

A poor unlearned virgin, wh

* I. e. Whose respectable condu

you were no less virtuous when you

; Accidents in which greater virtu appeared.

Embowed of their doctrine,* have left off
The danger to itself?

Hcl. There's something hints, [greatest More than my father's skill, which was the
Of his profession, that his good receipt
Shall, for my legacy, be sanctified
By the luckiest stars in heaven: and, would
your honour

But give me leave to try success, I'd venture
The well-lost life of mine on his grace's cure,
By such a day, and hour

Count. Dost thou believe't?

Hcl. Ay, madam, knowingly.

Count. Why, Helen, thou shalt have my leave, and love, [kiss
Helen, and attendants, and my loving greet-
To those of mine own court; I'll stay at home;
And pray God's blessing into thy attempt:
Be gone to-morrow; and be sure of this,
That I can help thee to, thou shalt not miss.
[Exeunt.

ACT II.

SCENE I.—Paris.—A Room in the King's Palace.

French. Enter KING, with young LOUPE asking leave for the Florentine war; BERTRAM, PAROLLES, and attendants.

King Farewell, young lord, these warlike principles

Do not throw from you:—And you, my lord,
farewell:—

Here the advice betwixt you; if both gain all,
The gift doth stretch itself as 'tis receiv'd,
And is enough for both.

1 Lord. It is our hope, Sir,
After well-enter'd soldiers, to return
And find your grace in health.

King. No, no, it cannot be; and yet my heart
Will not excuse he owes the malady
That doth my life besiege. Farewell, young Whether I live or die, be you the sons [lords;
Of worthy Frenchmen: let higher Italy
(Than 'tated, that inherit but the fall Of the last monarchy,†) see, that you come
Not to win honour, but to wed it; when The lowest questant‡ shrieks, and what you seek,

That fate may cry you loud: I say, farewell.

2 Lord. Health, at your bidding, serve your majesty!

King. Those girls of Italy, take heed of
them;

They say, our French lack language to deny,
If they demand: beware of being captives,
Before you serve.§

Both. Our hearts receive your warnings.

King. Farewell.—Come hither to me.
[The KING retires to a couch.

1 Lord. O my sweet lord, that you will stay behind us!

Par. 'Tis not his fault: the spark——

2 Lord. O, 'tis brave wars!

Par. Most admirable: I have seen those wars.

Ber. I am commanded here, and kept a coil||
with;

To young, and the next year, and 'tis too early.

Par. An thy mind stand to it, boy, steal away bravely.

Ber. I shall stay here the forehorse to a smock,

* Embowed of their skill.

† I. e. Those excepted who possess modern Italy, the remains of the Roman empire.

‡ Soldier, conqueror.

§ Be not captives before you are soldiers.

|| With a noisy scuffle.

Cracking my shoes on the plain masonry,
Till honour be bought up, and so sword worn,
But one to dance with! By heaven, I'll steal
away.

1 Lord. There's honour in the theft.

Par. Commit it, count.

2 Lord. I am your accessory; and so farewell.

Ber. I grow to you, and our parting is a tur-tured body.

1 Lord. Farewell, captain.

2 Lord. Sweet monsieur Parolles!

Par. Noble heroes, my sword and yours are kin. Good sparks and lustreous, a word, good metals:—You shall find in the regiment of the Spital, one captain Spurio, with his countess,
an emblem of war, here on his sinister cheek; it was this very sword entrench'd it: say to him,
I live; and observe his reports for me.

2 Lord. We shall, noble captain.

Par. Mars dote on you for his novices!
[Exeunt LOUPE.] What will you do?

Ber. Stay; the king—— [Seeing him rise.

Par. Use a more spacious ceremony to the noble lords; you have restrained yourself within the list of too cold an action: be more expressive to them; for they wear themselves in the cap of the time,† there, do master true gait,‡ eat, speak, and move under the influence of the most received star; and though the devil lead
the measure,§ such are to be followed: after them, and take a more dilated farewell.

Ber. And I will do so.

Par. Worthy fellows; and like to prove most sawey swordsmen.

[Exeunt BERTRAM and PAROLLES.

Enter LAPEU.

Las. Pardon, my lord, [Kneeling.] for me and for my tidings.

King. I'll see thee to stand up.

Las. Then here's a man [you Stands, that has brought his pardon. I would,
Had kneel'd, my lord, to ask me mercy; and
That, at my bidding, you could so stand up.

King. I would I had; so I had broke thy pate,
And ask'd thee mercy for't.

Las. Goodfaith, across. ||
But my good lord, 'tis thus; Will you be cur'd
Of your infirmity?

King. No.

Las. O, will you eat

No grapes, my royal fox? yes, but you will,
My noble grapes, an if my royal fox
Could reach them: I have seen a medicine,¶
That's able to breathe life into a stone;
Quickens a rock, and makes you dance canary,
With sprightly fire and motion; whose simple
Is powerful to arouse king Pepin, say, [touch
To give great Charlemain a pen in his hand,
And write to her a love-line.

King. What her is this?

Las. Why, doctor she: My lord, there's one arriv'd, [honour,

If you will see her,—now, by my faith and
If seriously I may convey my thoughts

In this my light deliverance, I have spoke With one, that, in her sex, her years, profession,††

Wisdom, and constancy, hath amazed me more

* In Shakespeare's time it was usual for gentlemen to dance with swords on.

† They are the foremost in the fashion.

‡ Have the true military step. § The dance.

|| Unskillfully; a phrase taken from the exercise of a quintain.

¶ A female physician.

 A kind of dance.

†† By profession is meant her declaration of the object of her coming.

LET'S WELL THAT ENDS WELL.

business: Will you [ness?
and know her busi-
e.

at we with thee
or take off thine,
at it.

[Exit LARRE.
nothing ever pro-

HELENA.

ings indeed.

mind to him:
but such traitors
Cressid's uncle,*
; fare you well.

[Exit.
your business fol-

Gerard de Narthon

profess, well found.†

pare my praises to-

On his bed of death
chiefly one,

of his practice,
he only darling,

the eye,‡
dear, I have so:

esty is touch'd
wherein the honour

ands chief in power,
appliance,

iden;

us of cure,—

tors leave us; and

ve concluded

r ransom nature

-I say we must not

corrupt our hope,

malady

to esteem

past sense we deem.

my me for my pains:

office on you;

our royal thoughts

back again.

le less, to be call'd

[give,

, and such thanks I

that wish him live:

on know'st no part,

ou no art.

do no hurt to try,

against remedy.

is finisher,

st minister:

judgement shown,

oes.§ Great floods

[dried,

nd great seas have

the greatest been

† A third eye.

by the two elders.

rock in Horub.

ern of Israel joining the denied by Pharaoh.

Of expectation fails, and mo
Where most it promises; and Where hope is coldest, and de King. I must not hear thee kind maid;

Thy pains, not us'd, must by t
Proffers, not took, reap thanks

Hel. Inspired merit so by b
It is not so with him that all t

As 'tis with us that square our
But most it is presumption in

The help of heaven we count.
Dear Sir, to my endeavours gi

Of heaven, not me, make an e
I am not an impostor, that pr

Myself against the level of m
But know I think, and think I

My art is not past power, nor King. Art thou so confident

Hop'st thou my cure?
Hel. The greatest grace lea

Ere twice the horses of the su
Their fiery torcher his diurnal

Ere twice in muck and oxide
Moist Hesperus hath quench'd

Or four and twenty times the Hath told the thievish minute

What is infirm from your coun
Health shall live free, and ale

King. Upon thy certainty a
What dar'st thou venture?

Hel. Tax of impudence,—
A steumpet's holiness, a divi

Transc'd by ominous ballads; m Scur'd otherwise; no worse of

With vilest torture let my life
King. Methinks, in thee so doth speak;

His powerful sound, within a
And what impossibility would

In common sense, sense saves
Thy life is dear; for all, that I

Worth name of life, in thee ha
Youth, beauty, wisdom, coura

That happiness and prizes ca
Thou this to hazard, needs me

Skill infinite, or monstrous de Sweet practitioner, thy physic I

That ministers thine own dent
Hel. If I break time, or flin

Of what I spoke, unpitied let
And well deserv'd: Not help

But, if I help, what do you pr
King. Make thy demand.

Hel. But will you make it e
King. Ay, by my sceptre, t

heaven.

Hel. Then shalt thou giv
kingly hand,

What husband in thy power I
Exempted be from me the arr

To choose from forth the royal
My low and humble name to j

With any branch or image of I
But such a one, thy vassal, w

Is free for me to ask, thee to b
King. Here is my hand; the p

Thy will by my performance a
So make the choice of thy own

Thy resolv'd patient, on thee
More should I question thee, a

Though, more to know, could trust;

* I. e. Pretend to greater things th
city of my condition. † I

† I. e. May be counted among the
The spring or morning of life.

ness thou can'st, how tended on,—
 And welcome, and undoubted blest.—
 Enter help here, Sir!—If thou proceed onward, my deed shall match thy deed.
 [Flourish. Exeunt.]

He. Rosaline.—A Room in the Countess's Palace.

Enter Countess and Clown.

Come on, Sir; I shall now put you out of your breeding.
 Will show myself highly fed, and glad; I know my business is but to be the court! why, what place make when you put off that with such

 But to the court!

My madam, if God have lent a man
 his, he may easily put it off at court:
 not make a leg, put off his cap, kiss his
 any nothing, has neither leg, hands,
 and, indeed, such a fellow, to say, were not for the court: but, for an answer will serve all men.

Happy, that's a bountiful answer,
 questions.

Like a barber's chair, that fits all
 the pin buttock, the quatch-buttock,
 buttock, or any buttock.

Will your answer serve fit to all

as ten groats is for the hand of an
 to your French crown for your taffata
 the rush for Tom's forefinger, as a a Shrove-Tuesday, a morris for Maya nail to his hole, the cuckold to his
 a scolding quean to a wrangling
 the nun's lip to the friar's mouth;
 a pudding to his skin.

Have you, I say, an answer of such
 all questions?

in below your duke, to beneath your
 it will fit any question.

It must be an answer of most mon-
 that must fit all demands.

It a trifle neither, in good faith, if the heald speak truth of it: here it is,
 but belongs to't: Ask me, if I am a
 it shall do you no harm to learn.

To be young again, if we could: I fool in question, hoping to be the your answer. I pray you, Sir, are tier?

Lord, Sir,—There's a simple putmore, more, a hundred of them.
 Sir, I am a poor friend of yours, that

Lord, Sir,—Thick, thick, spare not think, Sir, you can eat none of this

at.

Lord, Sir,—Nay, put me to't, I war-

you were lately whipped, Sir, as I

Lord, Sir,—Spare not me.
 Do you cry, O Lord, Sir, at your and spare not me? Indeed, your O is very sequent* to your whipping;
 answer very well to a whipping, if not bound to't.

For had worse luck in my life, in
 of, Sir: I see, things may serve long,
 to ever.

* Properly follows.

Count. I play the noble housewife with the time, to entertain it so merrily with a feast.

Clo. O Lord, Sir,—Why, there's serves well
 again.

Count. An end, Sir, to your business: Give Helen this,

And urge her to a present answer back:
 Commend me to my kinsmen, and my son;
 This is not much.

Clo. Not much commendation to them.

Count. Not much employment for you: You understand me!

Clo. Most fruitfully; I am there before my legs.

Count. Haste you again. [Exeunt severally.]

SCENE III.—Paris.—A Room in the King's Palace.

Enter BERTRAM, LAFEU, and PAROLLES.

Laf. They say, miracles are past; and we have our philosophical persons, to make modern* and familiar things, supernatural and causeless. Hence is it, that we make trifles of terrors; ensconcing ourselves into seeming knowledge, when we should submit ourselves to an unknown fear.†

Par. Why, 'tis the rarest argument of wonder, that hath shot out in our latter times.

Ber. And so 'tis.

Laf. To be relinquished of the artists,—

Par. So I say; both of Galen and Paracelsus.

Laf. Of all the learned and authentic fellows,—

Par. Right, so I say.

Laf. That gave him out incurable,—

Par. Why, there 'tis; so say I too.

Laf. Not to be helped,—

Par. Right: as 'twere a man assured of an—

Laf. Uncertain life, and sure death.

Par. Just, you say well, so would I have said.

Laf. I may truly say, it is a novelty to the world.

Par. It is, indeed: if you will have it in showing, you shall read it in,—What do you call that?

Laf. A showing of a heavenly effect in an earthly actor.

Par. That's it I would have said; the very
 same.

Laf. Why, your dolphin‡ is not lustier; 'fore me I speak in respect—

Par. Nay 'tis strange, 'tis very strange, that is the brief and the tedious of it; and he is of a most facinorous§ spirit, that will not acknowledge it to be the—

Laf. Very hand of heaven.

Par. Ay, so I say.

Laf. In a most weak—

Par. And debile minister, great power, great transcendence: which should, indeed, give us a further use to be made, than alone the recovery of the king, as to be—

Laf. Generally thankful.

Enter KING, HELENA, and Attendants.

Par. I would have said it; you say well:
 Here comes the king.

Laf. Lustic|| as the Dutchman says: I'll like a maid the better, whilst I have a tooth in my head: Why, he's able to lead her a coranto.

Par. Mort du Vinaigre! Is not this Helen?

Laf. 'Fore God, I think so.

King. Go, call before me all the lords in court.— [Exit an Attendant.]

* Ordinary. † Fear means here the object of fear.
 ‡ The dolphin. § Wicked.
 || Lustic is the Dutch word for lusty, cheerful.

IT'S WELL THAT ENDS WELL.

King's side;
 Hel. whose banish'd

time receive his'd gift,
 King.

ORDS.

eye: this youthful

my bestowing,
 power and father's

ction make;
 and they none to

fair and virtuous

happy, to each, but

and his furniture,
 than these boy's,

noble father.

restor'd the king to

and thank heaven for

and therein wealth-
 a maid:—(jest,

have done already
 thus whisper me,

choose; but, be re-
 check for ever;

see,
 all his love in me.

altar do I fly;
 god most high,

will you hear my suit?
 rest is mute.‡

choice, than throw
 flames in your fair

eningly replies:
 twenty times above

er humble love!
 please.

so I take my leave.
 An they were sons

hipped; or I would make eunuchs of.

LORD] that I your
 your own sake:

and in your bed
 ever wed!

s of ice, they'll none
 stards to the Eug-

them,
 too happy, and too

ot of my blood.
 not so.

et,—I am sure, thy
 thou be'st not an ass,

subjects.
 A docked horse.
 The lowest

I am a youth of fourteen; I have already.

Hel. I dare not say, I take;
 TRAM] but I give

Me, and my service, ever while into your guiding power.—This

King. Why then, young Bert she's thy wife.

Her. My wife, my liege? I shall highness,

In such a business give me leave
 The help of mine own eyes.

King. Know'st thou not, Bert
 What she has done for me?

Her. Yes, my good lord;
 But never hope to know why

King. Thou know'st, she has my sickly bed.

Her. But follows it, my lord, &
 Must answer for your raising? I

She had her breeding at my father's
 A poor physician's daughter my

Rather corrupt me ever!
 King. 'Tis only title* thou dost

the which
 I can build up. Strange is it,

Of colour, weight, and heat, poor
 Would quite confound distinct

In differences so mighty: If all
 All that is virtuous, (save what

A poor physician's daughter,)
 Of virtue for the name: but dost

From lowest place when virtue
 The place is dignified by the deed

Where great additions swell,
 It is a drop of honour: good

Is good, without a name: vile
 The property by what it is shall

Not by the title. She is young
 In these to nature she's immortal

And these breed honour: that
 Which challenges itself as ho-

And is not like the sire: Hor
 When rather from our acts we

Than our fore-goers; the mer
 Debauch'd on every tomb; or

A lying trophy, and as oft is Where dust, and daim'd obli-

Of honour'd bones indeed.
 said?

If thou canst like this creature
 I can create the rest: virtue,

Is her own dower; honour, &
 Ber. I cannot love her, nor

King. Thou wrong'st at thyself strive to choose.

Hel. That you are well reas am glad;

Let the rest go.
 King. My honour's at the defeat,

 I must produce my power: He

Proud scornful boy, unworth
 That dost in vile misprison a

My love, and her desert; that
 We, poisoning us in her defect

Shall weigh thee to the best
 It is in us to plant thine hon-

We please to have it grow: Ch
 Obey our will, which travail

Believe not thy disdain, but Do thine own fortunes that o-

Which both thy duty owes claims;

* I. e. The want of title. † ‡ Good is good independent of all

and so is vicious vile.

from my care for ever,
and the careless lapse [hate,
vengeance, both my revenge and in the name of justice, of pity. Speak; thine an-gracious lord; for I submit myself: When I consider,

and what dole of honour,
it, I find, that she, which thoughts most base, is now

king; who, so ennobled,
so.

by the hand,
a thine: to whom I promise
not to thy estate,
plots.

and.
me, and the favour of the

abstract; whose ceremony
lent on the new-born brief,
to-night: the solemn feast
upon the coming space, friends. As thou lov'st her,
religious; else, does err.
KING, BERTRAM, HELENA,
and Attendants.

er, monsieur? a word with me, Sir?

and master did well to make

—My lord? my master?
not a language, I speak?
th one; and not to be under-dysucceeding. My master?
panion to the count Rou-

ent; to all counts, to what

count's man; count's master

old, Sir; let it satisfy you,

thee, sirrah, I write man; to not bring thee.

ve too well do, I dare not do.

thee, for two ordinaries,* to allow; thou didst make toleravel: it might pass: yet the bannerets, about thee, did

de me from believing thee a

at a burden. I have now

I lose thee again, I care not:

for nothing but taking up;

scarce worth.

not the privilege of antiquity

inge thyself too far in anger,

g trial; which if—Lord have a hen! So, my good window

e well; thy casement I need ok through thee. Give me

ou give me most egregious

all my heart; and thou art

my lord, deserved it.

faith, every dram of it; and

e a scruple.

all be wiser.

as thou canst, for thou hast

one twice with them at dinner.

to pull at a smack o' the contrary. If ever thou be'st bound in thy scarf, and beaten, thou shalt find what it is to be proud of thy bondage. I have a desire to hold my acquaintance with thee, or rather my knowledge; that I may say,
in the default,* he is a man I know.

Par. My lord, you do me most insupportable vexation.

Laf. I would it were hell-pains for thy sake, and my poor doing eternal: for doing I am past; as I will by thee, in what motion age
will give me leave. [Exit.

Par. Well, thou hast a son shall take this disgrace off me; scurvy, old, filthy, scurvy
lord!—Well, I must be patient; there is no fettering of authority. I'll beat him, by my life, if I can meet him with any convenience, as he were double and double a lord. I'll have no more pity of his age, than I would have of—I'll beat him, as if I could but meet him again.

Re-enter LAFEU.

Laf. Sirrah, your lord and master's married,
there's news for you; you have a new mistress.

Par. I most unfeignedly beseech your lordship to make some reservation of your wrongs:
He is my good lord: whom I serve above, is
my master.

Laf. Who? God?

Par. Ay, Sir.

Laf. The devil it is, that's thy master. Why dost thou garter up thy arms o' this fashion?
dost make hose of thy sleeves? do other servants so? Thou wert best set thy lower part where thy nose stands. By mine honour, if I were but two hours younger, I'd beat thee:
methinks, thou art a general offence, and every man should beat thee. I think, thou wast created for men to breathe themselves upon thee.

Par. This is hard and undeserved measure,
my lord.

Laf. Go to, Sir; you were beaten in Italy for picking a kernel out of a pomegranate; you are a vagabond, and no true traveller: you are more saucy with lords, and honourable personages, than the heraldry of your birth and virtue gives you commission. You are not worth another word, else I'd call you knave.
I leave you. [Exit.

Enter BERTRAM.

Par. Good, very good; it is so then.—Good,
very good; let it be concealed a while.

Ber. Undone, and forfeited to cares for ever!

Par. What is the matter, sweet heart?

Ber. Although before the solemn priest I have sworn,

I will not bed her.

Par. What? what, sweet heart?

Ber. O my Parolles, they have married me:—
I'll to the Tuscan wars, and never bed her.

Par. France is a dog-hole, and it no more merits

The tread of a man's foot: to the wars!

Ber. There's letters from my mother; what the import is,
I know not yet.

Par. Ay, that would be known: To the wars,
my boy, to the wars!

He wears his honour in a box unseen,
That hugs his kicky-wicky; here at home:
Spending his manly marrow in her arms,
Which should sustain the bound and high curvet

* At a need. † Exercise. ‡ A cant term for a wife.

ALL'S WELL THAT ENDS WELL.

eed : To other regions !
 we that dwell in't, jades ;
 war !
 so, I'll send her to my house,
 other with my hate to her,
 am fled ; write to the king
 st not speak : His present gift
 to those Italian fields,
 lows strike : War is no strife
 and the detested wife,
 pricio hold in thee, art sure ?
 to my chamber, and advise ight away : To-morrow (me.
 she to her single sorrow.
 se balls bound ; there's noise
 is hard ;
 married, is a man that's marr'd :
 and leave her bravely ; go :
 ne you wrong ; but, hush ! 'tis
 [Exit.

he same.—Another Room in the
 same.

HELENA and CLOWN.

er greets me kindly : Is she t well ; but yet she has her y merry ; but yet she is not be given, she's very well,
 g the world ; but yet she is very well, what does she ail, y well ?
 's very well, indeed, but for

things ?
 she's not in heaven, whither kly ! the other, that she's in ce, God send her quickly !
 ter PAROLLES.

my fortunate lady !
 r, I have your good will to od fortunes.

my prayers to lead them on :
 on, have them still.—O, my
 s my old lady ?
 had her wrinkles, and I her
 she did as you say.
 ny nothing.

ou are the wiser man ; for gue shakes out his master's nothing, to do nothing, to d to have nothing, is to be a title ; which is within a very ou're a knave.

 id have said, Sir, before a knave ; that is, before me thou had been truth, Sir.
 ou art a witty fool, I have nd me in yourself, Sir ? or were me ? The search, Sir, was uch fool may you find in you,

 s pleasure, and the increase ave, I faith, and well fed.— will go away to-night ;

 usness calls on him.
 ative and rite of love,
 me, time claims, he does ac-

a compell'd restraint ;
 d whose delay, is strewed
 ts,

made gloomy by discontent.

Which they distil now in the
 To make the coming hour o'e
 And pleasure drown the bris

Hel. What's his will else ?
 Par. That you will take yo
 the king,

And make this haste as your Strengthen'd with what apok
 May make it probable need.

Hel. What more commands

Par. That, having this obtai Attend his further pleasure.

Hel. In every thing I wait

Par. I shall report it so.

Hel. I pray you.—Come, ai

SCENE V.—Another Room

Enter LAFEU and BERTRAM

Laf. But, I hope, your lo him a soldier.

Ber. Yes, my lord, and of proof.

Laf. You have it from his

Ber. And by other warrant

Laf. Then my dial goes not lark for a bunting.†

Ber. I do assure you, my great in knowledge, and acci

Laf. I have then sinned a ence, and transgressed again
 my state that way is danger
 yet find in my heart to repent
 I pray you, make us friends,
 amity.

Enter PAROLLES

Par. These things shall be

Laf. Pray you, Sir, who's I

Par. Sir ?

Laf. O, I know him well :

is a good workman, a very g

Ber. Is she gone to the kin

[A

Par. She is.

Ber. Will she away to-nig

Par. As you'll have her.

Ber. I have writ my lett
 treasure,

Given order for our horses ;
 When I should take possessi
 And, ere I do begin,—

Laf. A good traveller is latter end of a dinner ; but o
 thirds, and uses a known tra sand nothings with, should b thrice beaten.—God save yo

Ber. Is there any unkind lord and you, monsieur ?

Par. I know not how I hav into my lord's displeasure.

Laf. You have made shift t and spurs and all, like him
 the custard ; and out of it rather than suffer question fo

Ber. It may be, you have
 lord.

Laf. And shall do so ever,
 at his prayers. Fare you w believe this of me, There ca
 this light nut ; the soul of clothes : trust him not in mal sequence ; I have kept of the their natures.—Farewell, m

* A specious appearance of reason

† The bunting, nearly resembling white or no song, which gives cations

of you, than you have or will demand; but we must do good against [Exit.]

My lord, I swear.

Oh so.

Do you not know him?

I do know him well; and common each

worthy pass. Here comes my clog.

Enter HELENA.

My Sir, as I was commanded from [Leave]

the king, and have procured his parting; only, he desires
in speech with you.

Obey his will.

Oh marvel, Helen, at my course,
is not colour with the time, nor does upon and required office

regular: prepar'd I was not business; therefore am I found grieved: This drives me to entreat

By you take your way for home;
I am, than ask, why I entreat you:
This are better than they seem;
In them have in them a need,
Shows itself, at the first view,
Show them not. This to my mother:

[Giving a letter.]

Days ere I shall see you; so
to your wisdom.

Can nothing say,

My your most obedient servant.

Come, no more of that.

Ever shall

servance seek to eke out that,
and me my homely stars have fail'd great fortune.

But go.

Very great: Farewell; his home.

Sir, your pardon.

What would you say?

Not worthy of the wealth I owe;†

ay, 'tis mine; and yet it is;

morous thief, most fain would steal
as vouch mine own.

I would you have?

thing; and scarce so much:—so-
f indeed,—

tell you what I would: my lord—

ay, yes;—

ad foes, do sunder, and not kiss.

ay you, stay not, but in haste to
E.

ll not break your bidding, good
ord.

are my other men, monsieur?—
well.

[Exit HELENA.]

rd home; where I will never come,
a shake my sword, or hear the
or our flight.

Jy, coragio! [Exit.]

ACT III.

—Florence—A Room in the Duke's
Palace.

Enter the DUKE OF FLORENCE, attend French LORDS, and others.

hat, from point to point, now have heard

ntal reasons of this war, [forth,

derision hath much blood let rets after.

under.

† French.

1 Lord. Holy seems the quarrel
Upon your grace's part; black and fearful
On the opposer

Duke. Therefore we marvel much, our cousin
France

Would, in so just a business, shut his bosom
Against our borrowing prayers.

2 Lord. Good my lord,
The reasons of our state I cannot yield,*

But like a common and an outward man,†

That the great figure of a council frames

By self-unable motion: therefore dare not

Say what I think of it; since I have found Myself in my uncertain grounds to fail

As often as I guess'd.

Duke. Be it his pleasure.

2 Lord. But I am sure, the younger of burnature,‡

That surfeit on their ease, will, day by day,

Come here for physic.

Duke. Welcome shall they be;

And all the honours, that can fly from us,

Shall on them settle. You know your places
well;

When better fall, for your avails they fell:

To-morrow to the field. [Flourish. Exit.]

SCENE II.—Rousillon.—A Room in the Countess' Palace.

Enter COUNTESS and CLOWN.

Count. It hath happened all as I would have had it, save, that he comes not along with her.

Clo. By my troth, I take my young lord to be a very melancholy man.

Count. By what observance, I pray you?

Clo. Why, he will look upon his boot, and sing; mend the nail, and sing; ask questions, and sing; pick his teeth, and sing: I know a man that had this trick of melancholy, sold a goodly manor for a song.

Count. Let me see what he writes, and when he means to come. [Opening a letter.]

Clo. I have no mind to label, since I was at court: our old ling and our labels o' the country are nothing like your old ling and your labels o' the court: the brains of my Cupid's knocked out; and I begin to love, as an old man loves money, with no stomach.

Count. What have we here?

Clo. E'en that you have there. [Exit.]

Count. [Reads.] I have sent you a daughter-in-law: she hath recovered the king, and undone me. I have wedded her, not bedded her; and sworn to make the not eternal. You shall hear,
I am run away; know it, before the report come.
If there be breadth enough in the world, I will hold a long distance. My duty to you.

Your unfortunate son,

BERTRAM.

This is not well, rash and unbridled boy,

To fly the favours of so good a king;

To pluck his indignation on thy head,

By the misprizing of a maid too virtuous

For the contempt of empire.

Re-enter CLOWN.

Clo. O madam, yonder is heavy news within, between two soldiers and my young lady.

Count. What is the matter?

Clo. Nay, there is some comfort in the news,
some comfort; your son will not be killed so soon as I thought he would.

* I.e. I cannot inform you of the reasons.

† One not in the secret of affairs.

‡ As we say at present, our young fellows.

§ The folding at the top of the boot.

ALL'S WELL THAT ENDS WELL.

be killed?
if he run away, as I
is in standing to't;
ugh it be the getting come, will tell you hear, your son was [Exit CLOWN.

to GENTLEMEN.
madam.
gone, for ever gone.

ance.—'Pray you,
of joy, and grief,
er, on the start,
Where is my son, I

ne to serve the duke [came,
I, from thence we
in hand at court,

madam; here's my
not get the ring upon er shall come off, and n of thy body, that I me husband: but in
ever.

letter, gentlemen?
[pains.
are sorry for our
have a better cheer;
riels are thine,;
He was my son;
t of my blood,
—Towards Florence

er?
purpose: and, ben all the honour
this.
er?
n the swiftest wing

no wife, I have no-
ere?

iness of his hand,
ng to.
c, until he have no

is too good for him,
erves a lord,
s might tend upon,
ss. Who was with

nd a gentleman
own.
t?
be.

fellow, and full of ved nature

deeply, as our sex are
g which is on my finger to thyself.

1 Gen. Indeed, good lady
The fellow has a deal of this
Which holds him much to h
Count. You are welcome,
I will entreat you, when yo
To tell him, that his sword
The honour that he loses: m
Written to bear along.

2 Gen. We serve you, may
In that and all your worth Count. Not so, but as we Will you draw near?

[Exeunt CORNETT
Hel. Till I have no wife,
France.

Nothing in France, until he Thou shalt have none, H
France,

Then hast thou all again.
That chase thee from thy co
Those tender limbs of thine
Of the none-sparing war? a
That drive thee from the sp
Wast shot at with fair eyes,
Of smoky muskets? O you
That ride upon the violent
Fly with false aim; move th
That sings with piercing, du Whoever shoots at him, I se
Whoever charges on his sur
I am the catuff, that do hold
And, though I kill him not,
His death was so affected:
I met the ravine lion when I
With sharp constraint of hu
That all the miseries, which Were mine at once: No, Rousillon,

Whence honour but of dang
As oft it loses all; I will be My being here it is, that kee
Shall I stay here to do't? n
The air of paradise did fan
And angels offic'd all: I w
That pitiful rumour may rep
To console thine ear. Com
For, with the dark, poor thi

SCENE III.—Florence.— Palace.

Flourish. Enter the DUKE O
TRAM, LORDS, Officers, &c

Duke. The general of ou
and we,
Great in our hope, lay our Upon thy promising fortune
Ber. Sir, it is

A charge too heavy for my We'll strive to bear it for yo
To the extreme edge of haz

Duke. Then go thou forth
And fortune play upon thy
As thy auspicious mistress!

Ber. This very day, Great Mars, I put myself in Make me but like my thou
A lover of thy drum, hater o

SCENE IV.—Rousillon.— COUNTRESS' PALACE.

Enter CORNETT and

Count. Alas! and would of her?

* In reply to the gentlemen's de
her servants, the countess answers
she returns the same offers of civility

not know, she would do as she has sent me a letter? Read it again.

*I am Saint Jaques' pilgrim, thither gone;
 as love hath so in me offended,
 foot pined I the cold ground upon,
 sinned now my faults to have amended.
 Woe, that, from the bloody course of war,
 rest murder, your dear son may kiss;
 at home in peace, whilst I from far,
 or with zealous fervour sanctify:
 labours bid him me forgive;
 merciful Jane,* sent him forth
 my friends, with camping foes to live,
 death and danger dog the heels of woe:
 good and fair for death and me;
 myself embrace, to set him free.*

Ah, what sharp stings are in her mildest words!—

you did never lack advice; so much,
 her pass so; had I spoke with her,
 we well diverted her intents,
 as she hath prevented.

Pardon me, madam:

show you this at over-night,
 have been o'erta'en; and yet she would be in vain. [writes,

What angel shall unworthy husband? he cannot thrive, prayers, whom Heaven delights to hear,

to grant, reprove him from the wrath
 of justice.—Write, write, Rinaldo,
 unworthy husband of his wife;

your word weigh heavy of her worth,
 does weight too light: my greatest
 grief,

little he do feel it, set down sharply.
 the most convenient messenger:—
 reply, he shall hear that she is gone, return; and hope I may, that she,

so much, will speed her foot again,
 by pure love: which of them both at to me, I have no skill in sense or distinction:—Provide this messenger:—

it is heavy, and mine age is weak;
 could have tears, and sorrow bids me
 speak. [Exeunt.

E V.—Without the Walls of Florence.

Enter an old WIDOW of Florence, DIANA, VIOLENTA, MARIANA, and Citizens.

Nay, come; for if they do approach
 we shall lose all the sight.

They say, the French count has done honourable service.

It is reported that he has taken their commander; and that with his own slew the duke's brother. We have labour; they are gone a contrary way:
 you may know by their trumpets.

Come, let's return again, and suffice us with the report of it. Well, Diana, of this French earl: the honour of a
 her name; and no legacy is so rich as I have told my neighbour, how you are solicited by a gentleman his com-

I know that knave; hang him! one Pa-

ling to the story of Hercules.

ation or thought.

have means to value or esteem.

rolles: a filthy officer he is in those suggestions*
 for the young earl.—Beware of them, Diana;
 their promises, enticements, oaths, tokens, and all these engines of lust, are not the things they go under:† many a maid hath been seduced
 by them; and the misery is, example, that so terrible shows in the wreck of maidenhood, cannot for all that dissuade succession, but that they are lined with the twigs that threaten them. I hope, I need not to advise you further; but, I hope, your own grace will keep you where you are, though there were no further danger known, but the modesty which is so lost.

Dia. You shall not need to fear me.

Enter HELENA, in the dress of a Pilgrim.

Wid. I hope so.—Look, here comes a pilgrim: I know she will lie at my house: thither
 they send one another: I'll question her.— God save you, pilgrim! Whither are you bound?

Hel. To Saint Jaques le grand.

Were do the palmerst lodge, I do beseech you?

Wid. At the Saint Francis here, beside the port.

Hel. Is this the way?

Wid. Ay, marry, is it.—Hark you!

[A march afar off.

They come this way:—If you will tarry, holy pilgrim,

But till the troops come by,
 I will conduct you where you shall be lodg'd;
 The rather, for, I think, I know your hostess
 As ample as myself.

Hel. Is it yourself?

Wid. If you shall please so, pilgrim.

Hel. I thank you, and will stay upon your leisure.

Wid. You came, I think from France?

Hel. I did so.

Wid. Here you shall see a countryman of
 That has done worthy service. [yours,

Hel. His name, I pray you.

Dia. The count Rousillon; Know you such a one?

Hel. But by the ear, that hears most nobly
 His face I know not. [of him:

Dia. Whatso'er he is,
 He's bravely taken here. He stole from France,
 As 'tis reported, for the king had married him
 Against his liking: Think you it is so?

Hel. Ay, surely, mere the truth;|| I know
 his lady.

Dia. There is a gentleman, that serves the Reports but coarsely of her. [count,

Hel. What's his name?

Dia. Monsieur Parolles.

Hel. O, I believe with him,
 In argument of praise, or to the worth
 Of the great count himself, she is too mean
 To have her name repeated; all her deserving
 Is a reserved honesty, and that I have not heard examin'd.

Dia. Alas, poor lady!

'Tis a hard bondage, to become the wife
 Of a detesting lord.

Wid. A right good creature: wheresoe'er
 she is,
 Her heart weighs sadly: this young maid might
 A shrewd turn, if she pleas'd. [do her

* Temptations.

† They are not the things for which their names would make them pass.

‡ Pilgrims; so called from a staff or bough of palm
 they were wont to carry.

§ Because.

|| The exact, the entire truth.

G g

ALL'S WELL THAT ENDS WELL.

you mean?
 as count solicits her propose.
 indeed;
 ail that can in such a gut
 honour of a maid:
 r him, and keeps her guard
 ce

and colours, a party of the Flo-RTHAM, and PAROLLES.

orbid else!
 hey come:—
 he duke's eldest son;

e Frenchman?

ie: 'tis a most gallant fel-

[ter,
 his wife: if he were honesdher:—Is't not a handsome

well.

e is not honest: Yond's that

e,
 these places; were I his
 e rascal. [lady,

n apes with scarfs: Why is

he's hurt i'the battle.

am! well.

swdly vexed at something:

us

g you!

courtesy, for a ring-carrier!

RTHAM, PAROLLES, Officers,
 thers.

a past: Come, pilgrim, I
 you

st: of enjoin'd penitents

e, to great Saint Jaques

se [bound.

ank you:

on, and this gentle maid,

ght, the charge, and thank-

nd, to requite you further,

precepts on this virgin,

your offer kindly. [Exeunt.

—Camp before Florence.

nd the two French Lords.

d my lord, put him to't, let rdship find him not a child-

ore in your respect.

e, my lord, a bubble.

nk, I am so far deceiv'd in

, my lord, in mine own di-

thout any malice, but to y kinsman, he's a most no-

finite and endless liar, an aker, the owner of no one

y your lordship's entertain-

it you knew him; test, re-virtue, which he hath not,

reat and trusty business, in

you.

new in what particular ac-

† A paltry fellow, a coward.

2 Lord. None better than I his drum, which you hear he undertake to do.

1 Lord. I, with a troop of suddenly surprise him; such I I am sure, he knows not from will bind and hood-wink him suppose no other but that he leaguer* of the adversaries, v
 to our tents: Be but your lo
 his examination; if he do no
 of his life, and in the high base fear, offer to betray you
 the intelligence in his power that with the divine forfeit oath, never trust my judgeme

2 Lord. O, for the love of fetch his drum; he says, he fur't: when your lordship se
 his success in't, and to what forfeit lump of ore will be m him not John Drum's enterpr elining cannot be removed.

Enter PAROLLES

1 Lord. O, for the love of not the humour of his design
 his drum in any hand.

Her. How now, monsieur? sorely in your disposition.

2 Lord. A pox on't, let it go

Par. But a drum! Is't but so lost!—There was an exc
 to charge in with our horn
 wings, and to rend our own a

2 Lord. That was not to b command of the service; it war that Caesar himself convented, if he had been there

Her. Well, we cannot grea success: some dishonour we that drum; but it is not to be

Par. It might have been rec

Her. It might, but it is not

Par. It is to be recovered: I of service is seldom attribute exact performer, I would ha

 another, or hic jacet†

Her. Why, if you have a st sieur, if you think your mys
 can bring this instrument of h
 his native quarter, be mag enterprise, and go on; I will
 for a worthy exploit; if you
 the duke shall both speak of you what further becomes his
 to the utmost syllable of your

Par. By the hand of a sold
 take it.

Her. But you must not now

Par. I'll about it this even presently pen down my dilem myself in my certainty, put mortal preparation, and, by m hear further from me.

Her. May I be bold to acqu
 you are gone about it?

Par. I know not what the my lord; but the attempt I vow

Her. I know, thou art valia possibility of thy soldiiership, v thee. Farewell.

Par. I love not many words.

* The camp.

† I would recover the lost drum o

the attempt.

‡ I will pen down my plans and th deans.

than a fish loves water.—Is go fellow, my lord? that so
 to undertake this business,
 is not to be done; damns himself better be damned than to

I not know him, my lord, as I is, that he will steal himself for, and, for a week, escape a noveries; but when you find to him ever after.

you think, he will make no
 do, that so seriously he does unto?

In the world; but return with a slap upon you two or three at we have almost embossed on his fall to-night; for, in-your lordship's respect.

Make you some sport with the thing. He was first smoked when his disguise and I me what a sprat you shall
 you shall see this very night.
 I go look my twigs; he shall then, he shall go along with these your lordship: I'll leave

[Exit

I lead you to the house, and
 off. [show you

to say, she's honest.

I the fault I spoke with her

I, wondrous cold; but I sent to comb that we have i'the wind,

as which she did re-send;

have done. She's a fair creaber!

[ture;

All my heart, my lord.

[Exeunt.

—Florence.—A Room in the Count's House.

HELENA and Widow.

I doubt me that I am not she,

I shall assure you further,

the grounds I work upon.†

my estate be fallen, I was

in,

ted with these businesses;

put my reputation now

act.

Id I wish you.

rust, the count he is my hus-

[ken,

my sworn counsel I have spo-

I to word; and then you can-

that I of you shall borrow,

g it.

I believe you;

now'd me that, which well ap-

fortune. [proves

a purse of gold,

your friendly help thus far,

er-pay, and pay again,

and it. The count he woos

ughter,

anton siege before her beauty,

y her; let her, in fine, consent,

her how 'tis best to bear it,

men. † Before we strip him naked
 ring himself to the count.

Now his important* blood will sought deny
 That she'll demand: A ring the count† wears,
 That downward hath succeeded in his house,
 From son to son, some four or five descents
 Since the first father wore it—this ring he holds
 In most rich choice; yet, in his idle fire,
 To buy his will, it would not seem too dear,
 Howe'er repented after.

Wid. Now I see
 The bottom of your purpose.

Hel. You see it lawful then: It is no more,
 But that your daughter, ere she seems as won,
 Desires this ring; appoints him an encounter;
 In fine, delivers me to fill the time,
 Herself most chastely absent: after this,
 To marry her, I'll add three thousand crowns
 To what is past already.

Wid. I have yielded:
 Instruct my daughter how she shall persevere,
 That time and place, with this decent so lawful,
 May prove coherent. Every night he comes
 With musicks of all sorts, and songs compos'd
 To her unworthiness: It nothing steads us,
 To chide him from our eaves;‡ for he persists,
 As if his life lay on't.

Hel. Why then, to-night
 Let us assay our plot; which, if it speed,
 Is wicked meaning in a lawful deed,
 And lawful meaning in a lawful act;
 Where both not sin, and yet a sinful fact:
 But let's about it. [Exeunt.

ACT IV.

SCENE I.—Without the Florentine Camp.

Enter first Lord, with five or six Soldiers in ambush.

1 Lord. He can come no other way but by this hedge* corner. When you sally upon him, speak what terrible language you will, though
 you understand it not yourselves, no matter:
 for we must not seem to understand him; unless some one among us, whom we must produce for an interpreter.

1 Sold. Good captain, let me be the interpreter.

1 Lord. Art not acquainted with him? knows he not thy voice?

1 Sold. No, Sir, I warrant you.

1 Lord. But what linsy-woolsy hast thou to speak to us again?

1 Sold. Even such as you speak to me.

1 Lord. He must think us some band of strangers i'the adversary's entertainment.‡
 Now he hath a smack of all neighbouring languages; therefore we must every one be a man of his own fancy, not to know what we speak
 one to another, so we seem to know, is to know straight our purpose. chough's language, gabble enough, and good enough. As for you, interpreter, you must seem very politic.
 But couch, ho! here he comes; to beguile two hours in a sleep, and then to return and swear
 the lies he forges.

Enter PAROLLS.

Par. Ten o'clock within these three hours
 'twill be time enough to go home. What shall I say I have done? It must be a very plausible invention that carries it: They begin to smoke
 me; and disgraces have of late knocked too often at my door. I find, my tongue is too foolhardy, but my heart hath the fear of Mars be-

* Inopportune. † I. e. Count.
 ‡ From under our windows.
 § I. e. Foreign troops in the enemy's pay.
 ¶ A bird like a jack-daw.

WILL THAT ENDS WELL:

not daring the re-

h that e'er thine

[Aside.]

I move me to un-

drum; being not and knowing I give myself some

in exploit: Yet

They will say,

and great ones I

what's the in-

ut you into a but-

another of Haja-

into these perils.

should know what

[Aside.]

of my garments

the breaking of my

you so. [Aside.]

heard; and to say,

[Aside.]

nes, and say, I was

[Aside.]

aped from the win-

[Aside.]

would scarce make

[Aside.]

rum of the enemy's;

il.

ne anon. [Aside.]

enemy's!

[Alarum within.] cargo, cargo, cargo.

tu par corho, cargo.

-Do not hide mine

in and blindfold him.

boskos.

Muskos' regiment.

want of language:

r Dane, low Dutch,

shall undo

—

—

—

—

—

—

—

—

—

—

—

—

—

—

—

—

—

—

—

—

—

—

Till we do hear from them.

2 Sold. Captain I will.

1 Lord. He will betray us

Inform 'em that.

2 Sold. So I will, Sir.

1 Lord. Till then, I'll keep safely lock'd.

—

—

—

—

—

—

—

—

—

—

—

—

—

—

—

—

—

—

—

—

—

—

—

—

—

—

—

—

—

—

—

—

—

—

—

—

—

—

—

—

—

—

—

—

—

—

—

—

—

—

—

—

—

—

—

—

—

SCENE II.—Florence.—A Widow's House

Enter BERTRAM and DIA

Ber. They told me, that y Fontibell.

Dia. No, my good lord, Dia

Ber. Titled goddess;

And worth it, with addition?!

In your fine frame hath love no

If the quick fire of youth light

You are so maiden, but a mon

When you are dead, you shoul

As you are now, for you are c

And now you should be as you

When your sweet self was got

Dia. She then was honest.

Ber. So should you be.

Dia. No:

My mother did but duty; such

As you owe to your wife.

Ber. No more of that!

I pr'ythee, do not strive again:

I was compelled to her; but I

By love's own sweet constrai

Do thee all rights of service.

Dia. Ay, so you serve us,

Till we serve you: but wha

roses,

You barely leave our thorns to

And mock us with our barene

Ber. How have I sworn?

Dia. 'Tis not the many oath

truth;

But the plain single vow, the

What is not holy, that we sw

But take the Highest to witn

you, tell me,

If I should swear by Jove's g

I lov'd you dearly, would you

When I did love you ill? thi

To swear by him whom I pro

That I will work against him

oaths

Are words, and poor conditio

At least, in my opinion.

Ber. Change it, change it;

Be not so holy cruel: love is

And my integrity ne'er knev

That you do charge men wit

But give thyself unto my sic

Who then recover: say, thou

My love, as it begins, shall

Dia. I see, that men mal

affairs,

That we'll forsake ourselv

Ber. I'll lend it thee, my

To give it from me.

Dia. Will you not, my lor

Ber. It is an honour long

Bequeathed down from man

Which were the greatest oh

In me to lose.

Dia. Mine honour's such

o L.c. Against his determined habit with Helena.

† The sense is—we never saw

but take to witness the Highest, th

thy's the jewel of our house,
 led down from many ancestors;
 'tis the greatest obloquy i'the world
 done: Thus your own proper wisdom (the champion honour on my part,
 'gainst vain assault.

Give me, take my ring:

My mine honour, yea, my life be thine,
 be bid by thee.

When midnight comes, knock at my chamber window;

Take, my mother shall not hear.

I charge you in the band of truth,
 to have conquer'd my yet maiden bed,

here but an hour, nor speak to me:

We are most strong; and you shall know them,

For again this ring shall be deliver'd:

Our finger, in the night, I'll put

there; that, what in time proceeds,

is to the future our past deeds.

Then, then, fail not: You have won

mine, though there my hope be done.

Heaven on earth I have won, by winning thee. [Exit.]

For which live long to thank both heaven and me!

[Exit.] So in the end.—

He told me just how he would woo,

that in his heart; she says, all men

swear oaths: he had sworn to marry

me, [him,

his wife's dead; therefore I'll lie with him buried. Since Frenchmen are so bold,

at will, I'll live and die a maid:

this disguise, I think't no sin

in him, that would unjustly win. [Exit.]

ENE III.—The Florentine Camp.

Enter two French Lords, and two or three

Soldiers.

You have not given him his mother's

ring.

I have delivered it an hour since:

something in't that stings his nature;

for reading it, he changed almost into

stone.

He has much worthy blame laid on, for shaking off so good a wife, and his lady.

Especially he hath incurred the ever-displeasure of the king, who had even his bounty to sing happiness to him. I show you a thing, but you shall let it dwell

with you.

When you have spoken it, 'tis dead,

in the grave of it.

He hath perverted a young gentleman in Florence, of a most chaste reputation: this night he fleishes his will in the very honour: he hath given her his mother's ring, and thinks himself made in the composition.

Now, God delay our rebellion; as ourselves, what things are we!

Merely our own traitors. And as in your course of all treasons, we still see each themselves, till they attain to their ends; so he, that in this action condemns his own nobility, in his proper performs himself.

Is it not meant damnable; in us, to be so cruel.

He says his own secrets in his own talk.

in a whisper, and advertently.

be trumpeters of our unlawful intents? We shall not then have his company to-night!

2 Lord. Not till after midnight; for he is dictated to his hour.

1 Lord. That approaches apace: I would gladly have him see his company anatomized;
 that he might take a measure of his own judgements, wherein so curiously he had set this counterfeit.

2 Lord. We will not meddle with him till he come; for his presence must be the whip of the other.

1 Lord. In the mean time, what hear you of these wars?

2 Lord. I hear, there is an overture of peace.

1 Lord. Nay, I assure you, a peace concluded.

2 Lord. What will count Rousillon do then?
 will he travel higher, or return again into
 France?

1 Lord. I perceive, by this demand, you are not altogether of his council.

2 Lord. Let it be forbid, Sir! so should I be a great deal of his act.

1 Lord. Sir, his wife, some two months since, fled from his house, her pretence is a pilgrimage to Saint Jaques le grand; which holy undertaking, with most austere sanctimony,
 she accomplished: and, there residing, the tenderness of her nature became as a prey to her grief; in fine, made a groan of her last breath, and now she sings in heaven.

2 Lord. How is this justified?

1 Lord. The stronger part of it by her own letters, which makes her story true, even to the point of her death: her death itself, which could not be her office to say, is come, was faithfully confirmed by the rector of the place.

2 Lord. Hath the count all this intelligence?

1 Lord. Ay, and the particular confirmations, point from point, to the full arming of the verity.

2 Lord. I am heartily sorry, that he'll be glad of this.

1 Lord. How mightily, sometimes, we make us comforts of our losses!

2 Lord. And how mightily, some other times,
 we drown our gain in tears! The great dignity,
 that his valour hath here acquired for him,
 shall at home be encountered with a shame as ample.

1 Lord. The web of our life is of a mingled yarn, good and ill together: our virtues would be proud, if our faults whipped them not; and our crimes would despair, if they were not cherish'd by our virtues.—

Enter a SERVANT.

How now? where's your master?

Serv. He met the duke in the street, Sir, of whom he hath taken a solemn leave; his lordship will next morning for France. The duke hath offered him letters of commendations to
 the king.

2 Lord. They shall be no more than needful there, if they were more than they can commend.

Enter BERTRAM.

1 Lord. They cannot be too sweet for the king's tartness. Here's his lordship now. How now my lord, is't not after midnight?

Ber. I have to-night despatched sixteen businesses, a month's length a-piece, by an abstract

* For company.

with the duke, done
buried a wife,
my lady mother, I
my convoy; and,
of despatch, ef-
the last was the
ended yet.
of any difficulty,
ture hence, it re-

is not ended, as But shall we
the fool and the
with this counterfeit ne, like a double-

[Enter SOLDIERS.]
fight, poor gallant

have deserved it,
g. How does he lordship already;

answer you as you
ops, like a wench
hath confessed
supposes to be a embrance, to this
tting i' the stocks:
confessed?

taken, and it shall lordship be in't,
must have the pa-

PAROLLES.

muffled! he can ash!

Porto tartarossa.
tures; What will

I know without ke a pasty, I can urco.

ul general:—Our
what I shall ask

to live.

on how many horse
you to that?

but very weak
are all scattered,
poor rogues, upon
ed as I hope to our answer so?

ragment on't, how

hat a past-saving

my lord, this is nt militarist, (that d the whole theo-
s scarf, and the lagger.

a man again, for or believe he can wearing his ap-

d a knight by harking

nt of the escalbard.

I Sold. Well, that's set down.

Par. Five or six thousand horse, I said,—
I will say true,—or thereabouts, set down,—
for I'll speak truth.

I Lord. He's very near the truth in this.

Her. But I can him no thanks for't, in the nature he delivers it.

Par. Poor rogues, I pray you, say.

I Sold. Well, that's set down.

Par. I humbly thank you, Sir: a truth's a truth, the rogues are marvellous poor.

I Sold. Demand of him, of what strength they are a-foot. What say you to that?

Par. By my troth, Sir, if I were to live this present hour, I will tell true. Let me see:
Spurio a hundred and fifty, Sebastian so many,
Corambus so many, Jaques so many; Guiltan, Cosmo, Lodowick, and Gratii, two hundred fifty each. mine own company, Chitopher, Vanmond, Henau, two hundred and fifty each: as that the muster-file, rotten and sound, upon my life, amounts not to fifteen thousand poll; half of which dare not shake the snow from off their cassocks,* lest they shake themselves to pieces.

Her. What shall be done to him?

I Lord. Nothing, but let him have thanks.
Demand of him my conditions,† and what credit I have with the duke.

I Sold. Well, that's set down. You shall demand of him, whether one Captain Dumain be i' the camp, a Frenchman; what his reputation is with the duke, what his valour, honesty, and expertness in wars; or whether he thinks, it were not possible, with well-weighing sums of gold, to corrupt him to a revolt. What say you to this?
what do you know of it?

Par. I beseech you, let me answer to the particular of the interrogatories:‡ Demand them singly.

I Sold. Do you know this captain Dumain?

Par. I know him: he was a butcher's pretence in Paris, from whence he was whipped for getting the sheriff's fool§ with child; a dumb
innocent,|| that could not say him, nay.

[DUMAIN lifts up his hand in anger.]

Her. Nay, by your leave, hold your hands;
though I know, his brains are forfeit to the next tile that falls.

I Sold. Well, is this captain in the duke of Florence's camp?

Par. Upon my knowledge, he is, and long.

I Lord. Nay, look not so upon me; we shall hear of your lordship anon.

I Sold. What is his reputation with the duke?

Par. The duke knows him for no other but a poor officer of mine; and writ to me this other day, to turn him out o' the band: I think, I have his letter in my pocket.

I Sold. Marry, we'll search.

Par. In good sadness, I do not know; either it is there, or it is upon a file, with the duke's
other letters, in my tent.

I Sold. Here 'tis; here's a paper? Shall I read it to you?

Par. I do not know, if it be it, or no.

Her. Our interpreter does it well.

I Lord. Excellently.

I Sold. Dinn. The count's a fool, and full of gold,—

Par. That is not the duke's letter, Sir; that is an advertisement to a proper maid in Florence, one Dianu, to take heed of the affairs—

* Cassock then signified a horseman's loose coat.

† Disposition and character.

‡ An inter-rogation.

§ An idiot under the care of the sheriff.

|| A natural fool.

an honest fellow, a foolish little boy, all that very foolish: I pray you, Sir, Alas!

Par. I'll read it first, by your favour. By meaning it's, I protest, was very like the devil of the mind: for I know (count to be a dangerous and lascivious; who is a while to virginity, and up all the fry it finds.

Countess. Both sides regard!
When he secure within, bid him drop
cold, and take it;

Countess. He never pays the score:
It match well made; watch, and well
take it;

Par. After debts, take it before;
A soldier, Dian, told her this,
It will with boys are not to lose:

Countess. Of this, she count's a fool, I know it,
Before, but not when he does over it,
But, as he would to this in their ear,

Parolles. A shall be whipped through the army,
Shame to his forehead.

Countess. He is your devoted friend, Sir, the brave, and the omnipotent soldier.
I'll venture any thing before but a man's a cat to me.

Parolles. Sir, by the general's
I shall be slain to hang you.

Countess. Sir, in any case: not that I am afraid; but that, my offences being would repeat out the remainder of
of me live, Sir, in a dungeon, rather any where, so I may live.

We'll see what may be done, so you reely; therefore, once more to this Dumain: You have answered to his
a with the duke, and to his valour
his honesty?

Parolles. I will steal, Sir, an egg out of a cloister;
rapes and ravishments be parallels

He professes not keeping of oaths;
ing them, he is stronger than Hercules

will be, Sir, with such volubility,
would think truth were a fool: drunk

his best virtue; for he will be swine-
ged in his sleep he does little harm,

his bed-clothes about him; but they
is conditions, and lay him in straw

at little more to say, Sir, of his ho-ness every thing that an honest man it have, what an honest man should has nothing.

I begin to love him for this.
at this description of thine honesty?
see him for me, he is more and more

What say you to his expertness in stith, Sir, he has led the drum before ish tragedians,—to belie him, I will

I more of his soldiery I know not,
that country, he had the honour to be at a place there call'd Mile-end,

at for the doing of lies. I would do what honour I can, but of this I am
in.

He hath out-villained villany so far,
truly redeems him.

put on him! he's a cat still.
His qualities being at this poor price,
a match well made is half won; make your own, but make it well.

to with steel any thing however trifling. Some sawyer body.
countess killed by Hercules

I need not ask you, if gold will corrupt him to revel.

Par. Sir, for a quart d'or^o he will sell the too-staple of his salvation, the inheritance of it; and cut the entail from all reminders, and a perpetual succession for it perpetually.

I Sold. What's his brother, the other captain Dumain?

I Lord. Why does he ask him of me?

I Sold. What's he?

Par. E'en a crew of the same nest; not altogether so great as the first in goodness, but greater a great deal in evil. He excels his brother for a coward, yet his brother is reputed one of the best that is: In a retreat he out-runs any lackey; sorry, in coming on he has the cramp.

I Sold. If your life be moved, will you undertake to betray the Florentine?

Par. Ay, and the captain of his house, count Rouillon.

I Sold. I'll whisper with the general, and know his pleasure.

Par. I'll no more drumming: a plague of all drums! Only to seem to deserve well, and to beguile the opposition: of that insidious young boy the count, have I run into this danger: Yet, who would have suspected an ambush where I was taken? [Aside.]

I Sold. There is no remedy, Sir, but you must die: the general says, on, that have so traitorously discovered the secrets of your army, and made such pestiferous reports of men very nobly held, can serve the world for no honest use, therefore you must die. Come, headman, off with his head.

Par. O Lord, Sir; let me live, or let me see my death!

I Sold. That shall you, and take your leave of all your friends. [Unmuffling him.]
So look about you; Know you any here?

Ber. Good morrow, noble captain.

I Lord. God bless you, captain Parolles.

I Lord. God save you, noble captain.

I Lord. Captain, what greeting will you to my lord Lafew? I am for France.

I Lord. Good captain, will you give me a copy of the sonnet you writ to Diana in behalf of the count Rouillon? as I were not a very coward, I'd compel it of you; but fair you well. [Enter BASTARD, LORDE, &c.]

I Sold. You are undone, captain: all but your scarf, that has a knot on't yet.

Par. Who cannot be crushed with a plot?

I Sold. If you could find out a country where but women were that had received so much shame, you might begin an impudent nation.
Fare you well, Sir; I am for France too, we shall speak of you there. [Exit.]

Par. Yet am I thankful: if my heart were great,

'Twould burst at this: Captain, I'll be no more;
But I will eat and drink, and sleep as soft

As captains shall simply the thing I am Shall make me live. Who knows himself a braggart,

Let him fear this, for it will come to pass,
That every braggart shall be found an ass.
Rust, sword! cool, blades! and, Parolles,

live [thrive]
Safest is shame! being fool'd, by foolery
There's place, and means, for every man alive.

I'll after them. [Exit.]

^o The fourth part of the smaller French crown.
¹ To deceive the opponent.

SCENE IV.—Florence.—A Room in the Widow's House.

Enter HELENA, WIDOW, and DIANA.

Hel. That you may well perceive I have not wrong'd you,
One of the greatest in the Christian world
Shall be my surety; 'fore whose throne, 'tis needful,
Ere I can perfect mine intents, to kneel:
Time was, I did him a desired office,
Dear almost as his life; which gratitude
Through flinty Tartar's bosom would peep forth,
And answer, thanks: I duly am inform'd.
His grace is at Marseilles; to which place
We have convenient convoy. You must know,
I am supposed dead: the army breaking,
My husband hies him home; where, heaven aiding,
And by the leave of my good lord the king,
We'll be, before our welcome.

Wid. Gentle madam,
You never had a servant, to whose trust
Your business was more welcome.

Hel. Nor you, mistress, [bour
Ever a friend, whose thoughts more truly la-
To recompense your love; doubt not, but heaven
Hath brought me up to be your daughter's
As it hath fated her to be my motive*
And helper to a husband. But O strange men!
That can such sweet use make of what they hate,

When saucy† trusting of the cozen'd thoughts
Defiles the pitchy night! so lust doth play
With what it loaths, for that which is away:
But more of this hereafter:—You, Diana,
Under my poor instructions yet must suffer
Something in my behalf.

Dia. Let death and honesty‡
Go with your impositions,§ I am yours
Upon your will to suffer.

Hel. Yet, I pray you,—— [mer.
But with the word, the time will bring on sum-
When briers shall have leaves as well as thorns,
And be as sweet as sharp. We must away;
(Our waggon is prepar'd, and time revives us:
All's well that ends, well: still the fine's|| the crown;

Whate'er the course, the end is the renown.

[Exeunt.]

SCENE V.—Rousillon.—A Room in the Countess' Palace.

Enter COUNTESS, LAFEU, and CLOWN.

Laf. No, no, no, your son was misled with a snipt-taffata fellow there; whose villanous saffron¶ would have made all the unbaked and doughy youth of a nation in his colour: your daughter-in-law had been alive at this hour; and your son here at home, more advanced by the king, than by that red-tailed humble-bee I speak of.

Count. I would, I had not known him! it was the death of the 'most virtuous gentlewoman, that ever nature had praise for creating: if she had partaken of my flesh, and cost me the dearest groans of a mother, I could not have owed her a more rooted love.

Laf. 'Twas a good lady, 'twas a good lady:

* For mover. † Lascivious. ‡ I. e. An honest death.
§ Commanda. || End.

¶ There was a fashion of using yellow starch for bands and ruffles, to which Lafeu alludes.

we may pick a thousand salads, ere we light on such another herb.

Clo. Indeed, Sir, she was the sweet-majoram of the salad, or, rather the herb of grace.*

Laf. They are not salad-herbs, you knave, they are nose-herbs.

Clo. I am no great Nebuchadnezzar, Sir, I have not much skill in grass.

Laf. Whether dost thou profess thyself; a knave, or a fool?

Clo. A fool, Sir, at a woman's service, and a knave at a man's.

Laf. Your distinction?

Clo. I would cozen the man of his wife, and do his service.

Laf. So you were a knave at his service, indeed.

Clo. And I would give his wife my bauble, Sir, to do her service.

Laf. I will subscribe for thee; thou art both knave and fool.

Clo. At your service.

Laf. No, no, no.

Clo. Why, Sir, if I cannot serve you, I can serve as great a prince as you are.

Laf. Who's that? a Frenchman?

Clo. Faith, Sir, he has an English name; but his phisnomy is more botter in France, than there.

Laf. What prince is that?

Clo. The black prince, Sir; alias, the prince of darkness; alias, the devil.

Laf. Hold thee, there's my purse: I give thee not this to suggest† thee from thy master thou talkest of; serve him still.

Clo. I am a woodland fellow, Sir, that always loved a great fire; and the master I speak of, ever keeps a good fire. But, sure, he is the prince of the world, let his nobility remain in his court. I am for the house with the narrow gate, which I take to be too little for pomp to enter: some, that humble themselves, may; but the many will be too chill and tender; and they'll be for the flowery way, that leads to the broad gate, and the great fire.

Laf. Go thy ways, I begin to be a-weary of thee; and I tell thee so before, because I would not fall out with thee. Go thy ways; let my horses be well looked to, without any tricks.

Clo. If I put any tricks upon 'em, Sir, they shall be jades' tricks; which are their own right by the law of nature. [Exit.]

Laf. A shrewd knave, and an unhappy.‡

Count. So he is. My Lord, that's gone, made himself much sport out of him: by this authority he remains here, which he thinks is a patent for his sauciness; and, indeed, he has no pace, but runs where he will.

Laf. I like him well; 'tis not amiss: and I was about to tell you, Since I heard of the good lady's death, and that my lord your son was upon his return home, I moved the king my master, to speak in the behalf of my daughter; which, in the minority of them both, his majesty, out of a self-gracious remembrance, did first propose: his highness hath promised me to do it: and, to stop up the displeasure he hath conceived against your son, there is no fitter matter. How does your ladyship like it?

Count. With very much content, my lord, and I wish it happily effected.

Laf. His highness comes post from Marseilles,

* I. e. Rue.

† Seduce.

‡ Muchievously unhappy, waggish.

ready as when he numbered thirty ;
to-morrow, or I am deceived by [In such intelligence hath seldom rejoices me, that I hope I shall see [He. I have letters, that my son will night : I shall beseech your lordship,

with me till they meet together.
adam, I was thinking, with what [might safely be admitted.
You need but plead your honourable

my, of that I have made a bold char-
I thank my God, it holds yet.

Re-enter CLOWN.

madam, yonder's my lord your son patch of velvet on's face: whether a scar under it, or no, the velvet [us a goodly patch of velvet: his
[is a cheek of two pile and a half,
[his cheek is worn bare.

scar nobly got, or a noble scar, is a ry of honour ; so, belike, is that.
[It is your carbonadoed* face.
[Go see your son, I pray you ; I
[with the young noble soldier.
[He, there's a dozen of 'em, with de-
[pale, and most courteous feathers,
[on the head, and nod at every man.
[Exit.

ACT V.

SCENE I.—Marseilles.—A Street.

DIANA, WIDOW, and DIANA, with two Attendants.

at this exceeding posting, day and [night,
[or your spirits low : we cannot help
[you have made the days and nights
[to one,
[your gentle limbs in my affairs,
[you do so grow in my requital,
[I can unroot you. In happy time ;—

Enter a gentle ASTRINGER.

may help me to his majesty's ear,
[and spend his power.—God save you,
[Sir.

And you.
[Sir, I have seen you in the court of [France.

I have been sometimes there.
[do presume, Sir, that you are not [alien reports that goes upon your goodness ;

[more goaded with most sharp occa[sions.

ry nice manners by, I put you to
[of your own virtues, for the which [I am thankful.

What's your will ?
[that it will please you
[his poor petition to the king ;

me with that store of power you [into his presence. [have,
[The king's not here.

Not here, Sir ?
[Not, indeed : [haste
[I remov'd last night, and with more
[to use.

Lord, how we lose our pains !
[It's well that ends well ; yet ;
[time seems so adverse, and means [want,—

At the place of rest for the children, Marseilles.

I do beseech you, whither is he gone ?

Gent. Marry, as I take it, to Rouillon ; Whither I am going.

Hel. I do beseech you, Sir,
Since you are like to see the king before me,
Commend the paper to his gracious hand ;
Which, I presume, shall render you no blame,
But rather make you thank your pains for it :
I will come after you, with what good speed
Our means will make us means.

Gent. This I'll do for you.

Hel. And you shall find yourself to be well [thank'd, [again ;—
[Whate'er falls more.—We must to horse [Go, go, provide. [Exit.

SCENE II.—Rouillon.—The inner Court of the Countess' Palace.

Enter CLOWN and PAROLLES.

Par. Good monsieur Lavatch, give my lord Lafou this letter: I have ere now, Sir, been better known to you, when I have held familiarity with fresher clothes ; but I am now, Sir, muddled in fortune's moat, and smell somewhat strong of her strong displeasure.

Clo. Truly, fortune's displeasure is but sluttish, if it smell so strong as thou speakest of :
I will henceforth eat no fish of fortune's buttering. Pr'ythee, allow the wind.

Par. Nay, you need not stop your nose, Sir ;
I spake by a metaphor.

Clo. Indeed, Sir, if your metaphor stink, I will stop my nose ; or against any man's metaphor. Pr'ythee, get thee further.

Par. Pray you, Sir, deliver me this paper.

Clo. Foh, pr'ythee, stand away: A paper
from fortune's close-stool to give to a nobleman !
Look, here he comes himself.

Enter LAFOU.

Here is a pur of fortune's, Sir, or of fortune's cat, (but not a musk-cat,) that has fallen into the unclean fishpond of her displeasure, and,
as he says, is muddled withal : Pray you, Sir,
use the carp as you may ; for he looks like a poor, decayed, ingenious, foolish, rascally knave. I do pity his distress in my smiles of comfort, and leave him to your lordship.

[Exit CLOWN.

Par. My lord, I am a man whom fortune hath cruelly scratched.

Laf. And what would you have me to do ?
[us too late to pare her nails now. Wherein have you played the knave with fortune, that she should scratch you, who of herself is a good lady, and would not have knaves thrive long under her ? There's a quart d'ecu for you : Let the justices make you and fortune friends ; I am for other business.

Par. I beseech your honour, to hear me one single word.

Laf. You beg a single penny more : come,
you shall ha't : save your word.*

Par. My name, my good lord, is Parolles.

Laf. You beg more than one word then.— Cox my passion ! give me your hand :—How does your drum ?

Par. O my good lord, you were the first that found me.

Laf. Was I, in sooth ? and I was the first that lost thee.

Par. It lies in you, my lord, to bring me in some grace, for you did bring me out.

Laf. Out upon thee, knave ! dost thou put upon me at once both the office of God and the

* You need not ask ;—here it is.

H h

ALL'S WELL THAT ENDS WELL.

grace, and the other sounded.] The king's competes.—Sirrah, in-had talk of you last
and a knave, you

[Exit.]

—A Room in the
palace.

COUNTESS, LAFFEU,
Guards, &c.

of her; and our es-

oy it; but your son,
sense to know

ge:
y to make it
the blaze of youth;
ng for reason's force,

ten all;
high bent upon him,
hoot.

—The young lord
ther, and his lady,
out to himself
he lost a wife,
the survey
words all ears took

[serve,
hearts that scorn'd to

lost,
dear.—Well, call

first view shall kill
not ask our pardon;
ence is dead,
do we bury
let him approach,
and inform him,

[Exit GENTLEMAN.
your daughter? have

th reference to your ave a match. I have

GRAM.

season,||
shine and a hall
brightest beams
way; so stand thou [forth,

blames,||
me.

consumed time.
the forward top;
r quick't decrees
ess foot of time

ave "seen much and to es and poor hands."
I put an end to all reat-timost.

Steals ere we can effect the
The daughter of this lord?

Ber. Admirably, my lieg
I stuck my choice upon her
Durst make too bold a hera
Where the impression of mi
Contempt his scornful pors
Which warp'd the line of ei
Scorn'd a fair colour, or ex
Extended or contracted all
To a most hideous object:
That she, whom all men g
myself,

Since I have lost, have lov
The dust that did offend it.

King. Well excus'd:
That thou didst love her, at
From the great compt: Bu
too late,

Like a remorseful pardon a
To the great sender turns a Crying, That's good that Make trivial price of serious

Not knowing them, until w
Oft our displeasures to our Destroy our friends, and aff
Our own love waking cries
While shameful hate sleeps
Be this sweet Helen's kno

Send forth your amorous to
The main consents are had;
To see our widower's secun Count. Which better than heaven, bless!

Or, ere they meet, in me, C Laf. Come on, my son, in
name

Must be digested, give a fa
To sparkle in the spirits of
That she may quickly come.
And every hair that's on't,
Was a sweet creature; suc
The last that e'er I took he
I saw upon her finger.

Ber. Hers it was not.

King. Now, pray you, let
eye,

While I was speaking, oft
This ring was mine; and,
I bade her, if her fortunes Necessitated to help, that by I would relieve her: Had reave her

Of what should stand her

Ber. My gracious covere
How'er it pleases you to f
The ring was never hers.

Count. Son, on my life,
I have seen her wear it; a
At her life's rate.

Laf. I am sure, I saw ha

Ber. You are deceiv'd, saw it:

In Florence was it from a c Wrapp'd in a paper, which
Of her that threw it: a
thought

I stood engag'd:* but wh
To mine own fortune, and I could not answer in that
As she had made the overt
In heavy satisfaction, and Receive the ring again.

* In the sense of w

Shall himself, [cine] And that you fly them as you swear, then lord-ship, [that?] even the finest and multiplying medi-
 at in nature's mysterious more science,
 here in this ring: 'twas mine, 'twas Helen's,

gave it you: Then, if you know
 I am well acquainted with yourself,†
 'twas here, and by what rough enforcement [surety,

if from her: she call'd the quints to
 would never put it from her finger,
 he gave it to yourself in bed,
 you have never come,) or sent it us great disaster.

he never saw it.
 There speak't it falsely, as I love mine
 honour;

'st conjectural fears to come into me,
 would sail about out: If it should move [so;—

is not so inhuman,—'twill not prove
 I know not:—thou didst hate her hardly,

is dead, which nothing, but to close myself, could win me to believe,
 to see this ring.—Take him away.—

[Guards seize BERTRAM.
 Just proofs, how'er the matter fall,

any bars of little vanity, [him;—
 vainly fear'd too little.—Away with this matter further.

[You shall prove
 I was ever hers, you shall as easy
 as I husbanded her bed in Florence, she never was.

[Exit BERTRAM, guarded.

Enter a GENTLEMAN.

I am wrapp'd in dismal thinkings.

Jealous sovereign, [not;

[I have been to blame, or no, I know
 petition from a Florentine,

for four or five removes; come short
 it herself. I undertook it,

'd thereto by the fair grace and speech
 or suppliant, who by this, I know,

standing: her business looks in her
 imparting visage; and she told me,

A verbal brief, it did concern
 him with herself.

[Helen.] Upon his many protestations
 he, when his wife was dead, I blush to own me. Now is the count Rousillon his vows are forfeited to me, and my aid to him. He stole from Florence, lame, and I follow him to his country:

Grant it me, O king, in you it best wins a seducer flourish, and a poor

done. DIANA CAPULET.

will buy me a son-in-law in a fair, and
 for this, I'll come of him.

The heavens have thought well on me, Helen, [sniters:—

forth this discovery.—Seek these fly, and bring again the count.

and GENTLEMAN, and some Attendants.

and the life of Helen, lady,
 y match'd.

Now, justice on the doers!

Enter BERTRAM, guarded.

wonder, Sir, since wives are mon-um to you,

daughter's done.

is have the proper consciousness of your own

at-sings.

† Pay toll for him.

And that you fly them as you swear, then lordship, [that?]
 Yet you desire to marry.—What woman's

Re-enter GENTLEMAN, with WIDOW, and DIANA.

Dia. I am, my lord, a wretched Florentine,

Derived from the ancient Capulet;

My suit, as I do understand, you know,

And therefore know how far I may be pitted.

Wid. I am her mother, Sir, whose age and
 honour

Both suffer under this complaint we bring,

And both shall cease without your remedy.

King. Come hither, count; Do you know these women?

Ber. My lord, I neither can nor will deny

But that I know them: Do they charge me
 further?

Dia. Why do you look so strange upon your wife?

Ber. She's none of mine, my lord.

Dia. If you shall marry,

You give away this hand, and that is mine;

You give away heaven's vows, and those are
 mine;

You give away myself, which is known mine;

For I by vow am so embodied yours,

That she, which marries you, must marry me,

Either both, or none.

Laf. Your reputation [To BERTRAM.] comes too short for my daughter, you are no husband for her.

Ber. My lord, this is a sad, and desperate creature, [highness

Whom sometime I have laugh'd with: let your Lay a more noble thought upon mine honour,

Than for to think that I would sink it here.

King. Sir, for my thoughts, you have them ill to friend, [honour.

Till your deeds gain them: Fairer prove your
 Than in my thought it lies!

Dia. Good my lord,

Ask him upon his oath, if he does think

He had not my virginity.

King. What say'st thou to her?

Ber. She's impudent, my lord;

And was a common gamester to the camp.†

Dia. He does me wrong, my lord; if I were
 so,

He might have bought me at a common price

Do not believe him: O, behold this ring,

Whose high respect, and rich validity,†

Did lack a parallel; yet, for all that,

He gave it to a commoner o'the camp,

If I be one.

Count. He blushes, and 'tis it:

Of six preceding ancestors, that gem

Confer'd by testament to the sequent issue,

Hath it been ow'd and worn. This is his wife;

That ring's a thousand proofs.

King. Methought, you said,

You saw one here in court could witness it.

Dia. I did, my lord, but loath am to produce

So bad an instrument; his name's Parolles.

Laf. I saw the man to-day, if man he be.

King. Find him, and bring him hither.

Ber. What of him?

He's quoted‡ for a most perfidious slave,

With all the spots o'the world tax'd and debosh'd;§

Whose nature sickens, but to speak a truth:

• Decease, die.

† Gamester when applied to a female, then meant a common woman

‡ Value.

§ Noted.

¶ Debauched.

ALL'S WELL THAT ENDS WELL.

or this, for what he'll utter,
any thing?
with that ring of yours.
she has: certain it is, I lik'd

her i'the wanton way of youth:
distance, and did angle for me,
eagerness with her restraint,
ments in fancy's* course
more fancy; and, in fine,
ing with her modern grace,†
her rate: she got the ring;
t, which any inferior might
e have bought.

be patient;
d off a first so noble wife,
t me.‡ I pray you yet,
k virtue, I will lose a husband,)
ring, I will return it home,
one again.

it not.
ring was yours, I pray you?
ch like
your finger.

you this ring? this ring was his
s was it I gave him, being a-bed.
ory then goes false, you threw it ent. (him
spoke the truth.

Enter PAROLLES.

I do confess, the ring was hers.
boggle shrewdly, every feather
you.

you speak of?
lord.

ic, sirrah, but, tell me true, I t you,
e displeasure of your master,
ar just proceeding, I'll keep off,)
y this woman here, what know

ee your majesty, my master hath rable gentleman; tricks he hath uch gentlemen have.

come, to the purpose: Did he
in?

Sir, he did love her; But how?
I pray you?

love her, Sir, as a gentleman

s that?

ed her, Sir, and loved her not.
ou art a knave, and no knave:—

ocal companion§ is this?
poor man, and at your majesty's ood drum, my lord, but a naughty

know, he promised me mar-

I know more than I'll speak.
vilt thou not speak all thou

st?

please your majesty; I did go
as I said; but more than that,

for, indeed, he was mad for her,
satan, and of limbo, and of fu-

w not what: yet I was in that n at that time, that I knew of bed; and of other motions, as marriage, and things that would

on concurring with her appearance of e me fast. § Fellow.

derive me ill will to speak
not speak what I know.

King. Thou hast spoken thou canst say they are mas
too fine* in thy evidence

This ring, you say, was yo

Dia. Ay, my good lord.

King. Where did you buy
you?

Dia. It was not given
buy it.

King. Who lent it you?

Dia. It was not lent me

King. Where did you find

Dia. I found it not.

King. If it were yours b

How could you give it him

Dia. I never gave it him.

Laf. This woman's an ea

she goes off and on at pleas

King. This ring was mine

wife.

Dia. It might be yours, I

know.

King. Take her away, I c

To prison with her: and as

Unless thou tell'st me whe

Thou diest within this hou

Dia. I'll never tell you.

King. Take her away.

Dia. I'll put in bail, my

King. I thank thee now a mer,†

Dia. By Jove, if ever I

you.

King. Wherefore hast th

this while?

Dia. Because he's guilt guilty;

He knows, I am no maid, ‡

I'll swear, I am a maid, an

Great king, I am no strump

I am either maid, or else t

King. She does abuse c

with her.

Dia. Good mother, fet

royal Sir,

The jeweller, that owest th

And he shall surety me. I

Who hath abus'd me, as he

Though yet he never harm

him:

He knows himself, my bed

And at that time he got his Dead though she be, she f

kick;

So there's my riddle, One, t

And now behold the meani

Re-enter Witpow, and

King. Is there no exorcis

Beguiles the truer office of Is't real, that I see?

Hel. No, my good lord;

Tis but the shadow of a wi

The name and not the thing

Her. Both, both; O, part

Hel. O, my good lord, w

maid,

I found you wond'rous kin

And, look you, here's your

When from my finger you ca

And are by me with child, &c

Will you be mine, now you

* Too artful.

† O

‡ Ours.

§ Ez

Take, my liege, can make me know
 As clearly,

As dearly, ever, ever dearly.

It appear not plain, and prove un-

known,

A worse step between me and you!—

My mother, do I see you living?

Her eyes smell onions, I shall weep

Good Tom Drum, [To PAROLLES.] lend

My kerchief: So, I thank thee; wait on me, I'll make sport with thee: Let thy friends alone, they are scurvy ones.

Let us from point to point this story

know,

For the even truth is pleasure flow:—

It is yet a fresh uncropped flower,

[To DIANA]
 Show thy husband, and I'll pay thy
 dower:

For I can guess, that, by

Thou kept'st a wife heretofore

Of that, and all the progress

Resolvedly more leisure

All yet seems well; and,

The bitter past, more well

Adonai

The king's a beggar, now

All is well ended, if this

That you express content;

With strife to please you, I

Ours be your patience then,

Your gentle hands lend us,

NG OF THE SHRE

PRESENTED.

Persons in the Induction.

Persons in the Induction.

Persons in the Induction.

Persons in the Induction.

Persons in the Induction.

Persons in the Induction.

Persons in the Induction.

CHARACTERS IN THE

To the original Play of The T entered on the Stationers' be printed in quarto, in 1607.

A Lord, &c.
Sly.
A Tapster.
Page, Players, Huntsmen, &c

PERSONS REPRESENTED.

ALPHONSUS, a merchant of Athens.
JEROME, Duke of Cestus.
AURELIUS, his Son, } Suitors to FERANDO, } of Al
POLIDOR, }
VALERIA, Servant to Aurelius
SANDER, Servant to Ferando.
PHYLOTUS, a Merchant who
Duke.

KATE, } Daughters to Alp
EMELIA, }
PHYLEMA, }

Tailor, Haberdasher, and Serv
and Alphonsus

SCENE, Athens; and some Country House

Persons in the Induction.

Persons in the Induction.

Persons in the Induction.

Persons in the Induction.

Persons in the Induction.

Persons in the Induction.

Persons in the Induction.

Persons in the Induction.

Persons in the Induction.

Persons in the Induction.

Persons in the Induction.

Persons in the Induction.

Brach^a Merriman,—the poor c
And couple Clowder with th
brach.

Saw'st thou not, boy, how Sil
At the hedge corner, in the co
I would not lose the dog for t

1 Hen. Why, Belman is as He cried upon it at the merest
And twice to-day pick'd out t

Trust me, I take him for the b
Lord. Thou art a fool; if Ec
I would esteem him worth a d

But sup them well, and look e
To-morrow I intend to hunt a

1 Hen. I will, my lord.
Lord. What's here? one d
See, doth he breathe?

2 Hen. He breathes, my lor warm'd with ale,
This were a bed but cold to sh

Lord. O monstrous beast! h he lies!

Grim death, how foul and lo
Sirs, I will practise on this dr
What think you, if he were co

Wrapp'd in sweet clothes, rin fingers,
A most delicious banquet by h

a Bitch.

we attendants bear him when he wakes,
 at the beggar then forget himself?
 Believe me, lord, I think he cannot loose.

It would seem strange unto him when he wak'd.

Even as a flattering dream, or worthless dream.

him up, and manage well the jest:—

gently to my fairest chamber,
 g it round with all my wanton pictures:

scud head with warm distilled waters,
 a sweet wood to make the lodging sweet:

me music ready when he wakes,

a dulcet and a heavenly sound;

chance to speak, be ready straight,

h a low submissive reverence,

but is it your honour will command?

attend him with a silver bason,

se-water, and bestrew'd with flowers;

hear the ewer,* the third a diaper;†

—Will't please your lordship cool your hands?

be ready with a costly suit,

him what apparel he will wear;

tell him of his hounds and horse,

this lady mourns at his disease:

s him, that he hath been lunatic;

so he says he is—, say, that he dreams,

nothing but a mighty lord.

and do it kindly,‡ gentle Sirs;

pastime passing excellent,

unbanded with modesty.§

My lord, I warrant you, we'll play our part,

all think, by our true diligence,

less than what we say he is.

Take him up gently, and to bed with him;

one to his office, when he wakes.—

Some bear out SLY. A trumpet sounds.

o see what trumpet 'tis that sounds:—

[Exit SERVANT.

some noble gentleman; that means,

g some journey, to repose him here.—

Re-enter a SERVANT.

r? who is it?

In it please your honour,

hat offer service to your lordship.

Bid them come near:—

Enter PLAYERS.

lows, you are welcome.

We thank your honour.

Do you intend to stay with me to-night?

So please your lordship to accept our duty.

With all my heart.—This fellow I remember,

he play'd a farmer's eldest son;—

here you woo'd the gentlewoman so well:

rgot your name; but, sure, that part y fitted, and naturally perform'd.

I think, 'twas Soto that your honour means.

Tis very true;—thou didst it excellent.—

cher.
 naturally.

† Napkin.
 § Moderation.

Well, you are come to me in happy time;
 The rather for I have some sport in hand,
 Wherein your cunning can assist me much.
 There is a lord will hear you play to-night:
 But I am doubtful of your modesties:
 Lest, over-eying of his odd behaviour,
 (For yet his honour never heard a play,)
 You break into some merry passion,
 And so offend him: for I tell you, Sirs,
 If you should smile, he grows impatient.
 I Play. Fear not, my lord; we can contain ourselves,

Were he the veriest antick in the world.

Lord. Go, sirrah, take them to the buttery,
 And give them friendly welcome every one:
 Let them want nothing that my house affords.

[Exit SERVANT and PLAYERS.
 Sirrah, go you to Bartholomew my page,

[To a SERVANT.
 And see him dress'd in all suits like a lady:
 That done, conduct him to the drunkard's chamber,

And call him—madam, do him obeisance,—
 Tell him from me, (as he will win my love,)

He bear himself with honourable action,
 Such as he hath observ'd in noble ladies

Unto their lords, by them accomplished:
 Such duty to the drunkard let him do,

With soft low tongue, and lowly courtesy;
 And say,—What is't your honour will command,

 Wherein your lady, and your humble wife,

May show her duty, and make known her love?
 And then—with kind embracements, tempting

kisses,
 And with declining head into his bosom,

Bid him shed tears, as being overjoy'd
 To see her noble lord restor'd to health,

Who, for twice seven years, hath esteemed him
 No better than a poor and loathsome beggar:

And if the boy have not a woman's gift,
 To rain a shower of commanded tears,

An onion will do well for such a shift;
 Which in a napkin being close convey'd,

Shall in despite enforce a watery eye. [canst;
 See this despatch'd with all the haste thou

Anon I'll give thee more instructions.—
 [Exit SERVANT.

I know, the boy will well usurp the grace,
 Voice, gait, and action of a gentlewoman:

I long to hear him call the drunkard, husband;
 And how my men will stay themselves from laughter,

 When they do homage to this simple peasant.

I'll in to counsel them: haply* my presence
 May well abate the over-merry spleen,

Which otherwise would grow into extremes.
 [Exit.

SCENE II.

A Bedchamber in the LORD's House.

SLY is discovered in a rich night gown, with Attendants; some with apparel, others with bason, ewer, and other appurtenances. Enter LORD, dressed like a Servant.

Sly. For God's sake a pot of small ale.

1 Serv. Will't please your lordship drink a cup of sack?

2 Serv. Will't please your honour taste of these conserves?

3 Serv. What raiment will your honour wear to-day?

Sly. I am Christophero Sly; call not me—

* Fast.

Or drunk sack in my conserves, give ask me what rai-
 no more doublets
 ge than legs, nor sometimes, more
 as my toes look

the humour in your

in descent,
 high esteem,
 a spirit!

ke me mad? Am son of Burton-
 education a card-
 her-herd, and now
 er? Ask Marian aucot, if she know
 fourteen pence on ce me up for the
 om. What, I am

makes your lady

kes your servants

our kindred shun

ange lunacy.

thy birth; [ment,
 ights from banish-
 et lowly dreams:
 end on thee,
 s beck.

Apollo plays,
 [Music.

es do sing:

e thee to a couch,

stful bed

miramus, [ground:

will bestrew the

shall be trapp'd,

gold and pearl.

haast hawks will

wilt thou hunt?

welkin answer

the hollow earth.

, thy greyhounds

than the roc.

ictures! we will

g brook:

nd; [breath,

wanton with her

play with wind.

s she was a maid;

and surpris'd,

l was done.

g through a thorny

[bleeds:

r shall swear she

Apollo weep,

tears are drawn.

nd nothing but a

autiful [lord:

ing ago.

that she hath shed

her lovely face,

in the world;

ne.

Sly. Am I a lord? and have I such a lady?
 Or do I dream? or have I dream'd till now?
 I do not sleep: I see, I hear, I speak;
 I smell sweet savours, and I feel soft things:—
 Upon my life, I am a lord, indeed;
 And not a tinker, nor Christophero Sly.—
 Well, bring our lady hither to our sight;
 And once again, a pot o' the smallest ale.

* Serv. Will't please your mightiness to wash your hands?

[SERVANTS present an ewer, basin, and napkin.
 O, how we joy to see your wit restor'd!
 O, that once more you knew but what you are!
 These fifteen years you have been in a dream;
 Or, when you wak'd, so wak'd as if you slept.

Sly. These fifteen years, by my fay, a goodly nap.

But did I never speak of all that time?

I Serv. O, yes, my lord; but very idle words:—
 For, though you lay here in this goodly chamber,
 Yet would you say, ye were beaten out of door;
 And rail upon the hostess of the house;
 And say, you would present her at the foot;
 Because she brought stone jugs and no seal'd quarts: [Hacket.

Sometimes you would call out for Cicely

Sly. Ay, the woman's maid of the house.

3 Serv. Why, Sir, you know no house, nor no such maid;

Nor no such men, as you have reckon'd up,—
 As Stephen Sly, and old John Naps of Gress,
 And Peter Turf, and Henry Pimpernell;
 And twenty more such names and men as these,
 Which never were, nor no man ever saw.

Sly. Now, Lord be thanked for my good amends!

All. Amen.

Sly. I thank thee; thou shalt not lose by it.

Enter the PAGE, as a lady, with attendants.

Page. How fares my noble lord?

Sly. Marry, I fare well; for here is cheer
 enough.

Where is my wife?

Page. Here, noble lord; What is thy will
 with her?

Sly. Are you my wife, and will not call me—
 husband?

My men should call me—lord; I am your good-
 man.

Page. My husband and my lord, my lord and
 husband;

I am your wife in all obedience.

Sly. I know it well:—What must I call her?

Lord. Madam.

Sly. Al'ce madam, or Joan madam?

Lord. Madam, and nothing else; so look call ladies.

Sly. Madam wife, they say that I have dream'd, and slept

Above some fifteen year and more.

Page. Ay, and the time seems thirty unto me;
 Being all this time abandon'd from your bed.

Sly. 'Tis much;—Servants leave me and her alone.

Madam, undress you, and come now to bed.

Page. Thrice noble lord, let me entreat
 you,

To pardon me yet for a night or two;
 Or, if not so, until the sun be set:
 For your physicians have expressly charg'd,
 In peril to incur your former malady,
 That I should yet absent me from your bed:
 I hope, this reason stands for my excuse.

that I may hardly tarry
I would be loath to fall into my gale; I will therefore tarry, in despite of the blood.

Enter a SERVANT.

into honour's play, bearing your
unhappy.

to play a pleasant comedy,
or despair-hold it very meet;
a much sadness-hath cougeal'd your
blood.

mainly in the nurse of frenzy,
they thought it good you hear a play,
a year's mirth to mirth and merriment,
as a thousand harms, and lengthens
life.

my, I will; let them play it: Is not this a Christmas gambol, or a tumbler?

Is, my good lord; it is more pleasing than.

but, household stuff?

Is a kind of history.

Oh, we'll see't: Come, madam wife,
this, and let the world slip; we shall sneer. [They sit down.]

ACT I.

SCENE I.—Padua.—A public Place.

Enter LUCENTIO and TRANIO.

mine, since—for the great desire I had
of Padua, nursery of arts,—
'd for fruitful Lombardy,
out garden of great Italy;
my father's love and leave, an arm'd
good will, and thy good company,
thy servant, well approv'd in all;
we breathe, and happily institute
of learning, and ingenious studies.
owned for grave citizens,
my being, and my father first,
at of great traffic through the world,
come of the Bentivolis.

his son, brought up in Florence,
came, to serve all hopes conceiv'd,
in fortune with his virtuous deeds:
then, Tranio, for the time I study,
at that part of philosophy
thy, that treats of happiness
specially to be achiev'd.

my mind: for I have Pisa left,
of Padua come; as he that leaves
plash,† to plunge him in the deep,
satiety seeks to quench his thirst.
perdurable,‡ gentle master mine,
I affected as yourself;

you thus continue your resolve,
in sweets of sweet philosophy,
I master, while we do admire
it, and this moral discipline,
in stoics, nor no stocks, I pray;
do to Aristotle's checks,||

an outcast quite abjur'd:

with acquaintance that you have,
we rhetoric in your common talk:

poesy use to quicken¶ you:

metaphysics, and the metaphysica,
as, as you find your stomach serves
us:

rows, where is no pleasure ta'en;—
or, study what you most affect.

mercies, Tranio, well dost thou advise, thou wert come ashore, [vise.

thy. † Ingenious. ‡ Small piece of water.
in. § Most rules. ¶ Animals.

We could at once put us in reflection;

And take a lodging, fit to entertain

Such friends, as time in Padua shall begot.

But stay awhile: What company is this?

Two. Master, come show, to welcome us to town.

Enter BAPTISTA, KATHARINA, BIANCA, GREMIO,
and HORTENSIO. LUCENTIO and TRANIO stand
aside.

Bap. Gentlemen, importune me no further;
For how I firmly am resolv'd you know;

That is, —not to bestow my youngest daughter,

Before I have a husband for the elder.

If either of you both love Katharina,

Because I know you well, and love you well,

Leave shall you have to court her at your pleasure.

Gre. To court her rather: She's too rough for
me:—

There, there, Hortensio, will you any wife?

Kath. I pray you, Sir, [To Bap.] is it your
will

To make a stale* of me amongst these mates?

Her. Mates, maid! how mean you that! no
mates for you,

Unless you were of gentler, milder mould.

Kath. I think, Sir, you shall never need to
I wis; it is not half way to her heart: [Fear;

But, if it were, doubt not her care should be
To comb your noddle with a three-legg'd stool,

And paint your face, and use you like a fool.

Her. From all such devils, good Lord, deliver us!

Gre. And me too, good Lord!

Tru. Hush, master! here is some good pastime toward;

That wench is stark mad, or wonderful froward.

Luc. But in the other's silence I do see Maids' mild behaviour and sobriety.

Peace, Tranio.

Tru. Well said, master: mum! and gaze your fill.

Bap. Gentlemen, that I may soon make good
What I have said,—Bianca, get you in:

And let it not displease thee, good Bianca;

For I will love thee as'er the less, my girl.

Kath. A pretty peat!; 'tis best
Put finger in the eye,—as she knew why.

Bian. Sister, content you in my discontent.—

Sir, to your pleasure humbly I subscribe:

My books, and instruments, shall be my company;

On them to look, and practise by myself.

Luc. Hark, Tranio! thou may'st hear Min-
erva speak. [Aside.

Her. Signior Baptista, will you be so strange?

Sorry am I, that our good will effects
Bianca's grief.

Gre. Why, will you mew† her up,
Signior Baptista, for this fiend of hell,

And make her bear the penance of her tongue?

Bap. Gentlemen, content ye; I am resolv'd:—
Go in, Bianca. [Exit BIANCA.

And for I know, she taketh most delight
In music, instruments, and poetry,

Schoolmasters will I keep within my house,
Fit to instruct her youth.—If you, Hortensio,

Or signior Gremio, you,—know any such,
Prefer† them hither; for to cunning¶ men

I will be very kind, and liberal

To mine own children in good bringing up;

And so farewell. Katharina you may stay;

For I have more to commune with Bianca. [Exit,

Luc. Tranio, thou may'st hear Min-
erva speak. [Aside.

Her. Signior Baptista, will you be so strange?

Sorry am I, that our good will effects
Bianca's grief.

Gre. Why, will you mew† her up,
Signior Baptista, for this fiend of hell,

And make her bear the penance of her tongue?

Bap. Gentlemen, content ye; I am resolv'd:—
Go in, Bianca. [Exit BIANCA.

And for I know, she taketh most delight
In music, instruments, and poetry,

Schoolmasters will I keep within my house,
Fit to instruct her youth.—If you, Hortensio,

Or signior Gremio, you,—know any such,
Prefer† them hither; for to cunning¶ men

I will be very kind, and liberal

To mine own children in good bringing up;

And so farewell. Katharina you may stay;

For I have more to commune with Bianca. [Exit,

Luc. Tranio, thou may'st hear Min-
erva speak. [Aside.

Her. Signior Baptista, will you be so strange?

Sorry am I, that our good will effects
Bianca's grief.

Gre. Why, will you mew† her up,
Signior Baptista, for this fiend of hell,

And make her bear the penance of her tongue?

Bap. Gentlemen, content ye; I am resolv'd:—
Go in, Bianca. [Exit BIANCA.

And for I know, she taketh most delight
In music, instruments, and poetry,

Schoolmasters will I keep within my house,
Fit to instruct her youth.—If you, Hortensio,

Or signior Gremio, you,—know any such,
Prefer† them hither; for to cunning¶ men

I will be very kind, and liberal

To mine own children in good bringing up;

And so farewell. Katharina you may stay;

For I have more to commune with Bianca. [Exit,

Luc. Tranio, thou may'st hear Min-
erva speak. [Aside.

Her. Signior Baptista, will you be so strange?

RAMING OF THE SHREW.

may go too; May [belike,
hours; as though,
and what to leave?

[Exit. devil's dam; your
one will hold you.
Hortensio, but we
and fast it fairly both sides. Fare-bear my sweet
eans light on a fit
erein she delights,

Tranio: But a word,
of our quarrel yet
now, upon advice,
e may yet again
ess, and be happy
labour and effect

husband for her

st thou, Hortensio, ch, any man is so
hell?

gh it pass your pa-
her loud alarms,
ews in the world,
would take her ough.

ad as lief take her
to be whipped at

ere's small choice
e; since this bar
t shall be so far ill by helping Bapusband, we set his
d, and then have Happy man be est gets the ring.

ould I had given to begin his woo-woo her, wed her,
se of her. Come
o and Hortensio.
Sir, tell me,—Is it

take such hold?
it to be true,
or likely;
looking on,
silence:

ness to thee,—
as dear,
hage was,— h, Tranio,
adst girl:

ow thou canst;
w thou wilt,
chide you now;
he heart: [so,— ught remains but nnings.

go forward: this counsel's sound.
so longly on the

t's the pith of all.

on: I Gain or los.
Longingly.

Luc. O yes, I saw sweet be Such as the daughter^a of Age
That made great Jove to his
hand,

When with his knees he ki
Tra. Saw you no more? ma her sister

Began to scold; and raise up
That mortal ears might hardly

Luc. Tranio, I saw her cors
And with her breath she did Sacred, and sweet, was all I

Tra. Nay, then, 'tis time to trance.

I pray, awake, Sir; if you lo Bend thoughts and wits to an
it stands:—

Her elder sister is so curst an
That, till the father rid his ha
Master, your love must live a
And therefore has he closely Because she shall not be anno

Luc. Ah, Tranio, what a cr
But art thou not advis'd, be t
To get her cunning schoolma
her?

Tra. Ay, marry, am I, Sir
plotted.

Luc. I have it, Tranio.

Tra. Master, for my hand,

Both our inventions meet and

Luc. Tell me thine first.

Tra. You will be schoolmas
And undertake the teaching o
That's your device.

Luc. It is: May it be done?

Tra. Not possible; For wh
And be in Padua here Vincen
Keep house, and ply his box
friends;

Visit his countrymen, and ban

Luc. Basta;† content thee;

We have not yet been seen in

Nor can we be distinguished

For man or master: then it fo

Thou shalt be master, Tranio,

Keep house, and port,‡ and should;

I will some other be; some F

Some Neapolitan, or mean ma

'Tis hatch'd, and shall be so:—

Uncase thee; take my colour

When Brondello comes, he w

But I will charm him first to k

Tra. So had you need. [The

In brief then, Sir, sith[§] it your

And I am ti^d to be obedient,

(For so your father charg'd m

Be servicable to my son, quoth

Although, I think, 'twas in an

I am content to be Lucentio,

Because so well I love Lucen

Luc. Tranio, be so, because

And let me be a slave, to achi

Whose sudden sight hath thrall

eye.

Enter BRONDELLO

Here comes the rogue.—Sir

you been?

Bron. Where have I been?

where are you?

Master, has my fellow Trai

Or you stolen his? or both?

news?

Luc. Sirrah, come hither; 'ti

a Europa † 'Tis enough. ‡

§ Sine.

TAKING OF THE SHREW.

As a gentleman
 Thanks among
 sure,
 so beyond all mea-
 surer than it is,
 time of gold.
 thou know'st not

and 'tis enough;
 to the chide as loud
 in autumn crack.
 a Minola,
 gentleman:
 a scolding tongue.
 ough I know not

father well.
 till I see her;
 hold with you,
 encounter,
 me thither.

I am go while the
 an she knew him
 not think scolding
 in. She may, perhaves, or so: why.
 once, he'll rail in ou what, Sir,—an he will throw a figure her with it,
 eyes to see withal
 not, Sir.

must go with thee;
 treasure is:
 an hold,
 atful Bianca;
 and other more
 my love:
 ole,
 ore rehears'd,) woo'd,
 Baptista, ta'en;—
 unto Bianca,
 got a husband.

es the worst.
 Petruccio do me

her robes,
 master
 ruct Bianca:
 or, at least,
 take love to her,
 er by herself.

CENTIO disguised,
 his arm.

See; to beguile
 ng folks lay their master, look about

the rival of my [love:—
 and an amorous!

[They retire.
 perus'd the note.
 them very fairly

any hand; I lectures to her:
 and beside

[too,
 Take your papers

and. Custody.
 Kate.

And let me have them very we
 For she is sweeter than perfum
 To whom they go. What will Luc. What'er I read to be
 you.

As for my patron, stand you
 As firmly as yourself were stil
 Yea, and perhaps, with more:
 Than you, unless you were a Gre. (To the learning) what
 Gra. (To the woodcock) wh
 Pet. Peace, sirrah.

Her. Grump, mum!—God's Gremio!

Gre. And you're well met,
 so. Trow you.

Whither I am going?—To Bag
 I promis'd to enquire carefully
 About a schoolmaster for fair
 And, by good fortune, I have
 On this young man; for let haviour,

I'll for her turn; well read in
 And other books,—good ones,

Her. 'Tis well: and I have Hath promis'd me to help me
 A fine musician to instruct our
 So shall I no whit be behind
 To fair Bianca, so belov'd of Gre. Belov'd of me,—and shall prove.

Gra. And that his bags shall
 Her. Gremio, 'tis now no t

Listen to me, and if you speak
 I'll tell you news indifferent g
 Here is a gentleman, whom b
 Upon agreement from us to hi
 Will undertake to woo curst I Yea, and to marry her, if her

Gre. So said, so done, is we Hortensio, have you told him

Pet. I know, she is an ir
 scold;

If that be all, masters, I bes
 Gre. No, say'st me so, frier tryman!

Pet. Born in Verona, old A
 My father dead, my fortune li
 And I do hope good days, and

Gre. O, Sir, such a life, w
 were strange:

But, if you have a stomach, to
 You shall have me assisting y
 But will you woo this wild ca

Pet. Will I live?
 Gra. Will he woo her? ay,

Pet. Why came I hither, bi Think you, a little din can da
 Have I not in my time heard I Have I not heard the sea, puff
 Rage like an angry boar, chal
 Have I not heard great ordna
 And heaven's artillery thunde
 Have I not in a pitched battle
 Loud 'larums, neighing steeds clang!

And do you tell me of a wom
 That gives not half so great a
 As will a chestnut in a farmer's Tush! tush! fear boys with b
 Gre. For he fears none.

Gre. Hortensio, hark!
 This gentleman is happily arr
 My mind presumes, for his

• Trough boys with bag

might, we would be contributors,
in charge of weeping, whatsoever.
It is we will; provided, that he win
his, I were as sure of a good dinner. [Aside.]

me, I am deeply appalled; and Broxdelio.

Glenn, God save you! If I may be ld, [way
blessed you, which is the road that of signior Baptista Minola?
that has the two fair daughters:—
to TRANIO.] he you mean?

is he. Blondello!
I you, Sir; You mean not her to—haps, him and her, Sir; What have I to do?

her that childen, Sir, at any hand, I
ly.

is no childen, Sir:—Blondello, let's
ly.

It began, Tranio. [Aside.]

What word are you go;—

Refer to the maid you talk of, you,
and

Will he, Sir, to it any offence?

It, without more words, you will you hence.

I, Sir, I pray, are not the streets as for you? [free

so is not she.

What reason, I beseech you?

this reason, if you'll know,—
he choice love of signior Gremio.

Is she's the chosen of signior Hor-
tio.

Yes, my masters! if you be gentlemen,
right, hear me with patience.

A noble gentleman,

My father is not all unknown;

his daughter fairer than she is,

we suitors have, and me for one.

daughter had a thousand wooers;

no more may fair Bianca have:

shall; Lucentio shall make one,

he came, in hope to speed alone.

Is this gentleman will out-talk us give him head; I know, he'll prove

he.

ensio, to what end are all these

do?

let me be so bold as to ask you,

ever see Baptista's daughter?

Sir; but hear I do, that he hath amous for a scolding tongue,

er for beauteous modesty.

ir, the first's for me; let her go by.

leave that labour to great Her-

is;

more than Alcides' twelve.

understand you this of me, in-

b;—

daughter, whom you hearken for,

seeps from all access of suitors;

promise her to any man,

er sister first be wed:

then is free, and not before.

is so, Sir, then you are the man

is all, and me among the rest;

onk the ice, and do this feat,—

older, set the younger free

Put our scenes,—where hap shall be to have
Will not so graceless be, to be ingrate,* [her,

Her. Sir, you say well, and well you do conceive;

And since you do profess to be a suitor,
You must, as we do, gratify this gentleman,
To whom we all rest generally beholden.

Tru. Sir, I shall not be slack: in sign whereof,
Please ye we may contrive this afternoon,
And quaff carouses to our mistresses' health;

And so as adversaries do in law,—
Strive mightily, but eat and drink as friends.

Gra. Hen. O excellent motion! Follows,
let's begone.

Her. The motion's good indeed, and be it
so;—

Petruchio, I shall be your hen warden. [Exeunt.]

ACT II.

SCENE I.—The same.—A Room in BAPTISTA'S
House.

Enter KATHARINA and BIANCA.

Bian. Good sister, wrong me not, nor wrong
yourself,

To make a bondmaid and a slave of me;
That I did dare: but for these other gawds,
Untied my hands, I'll pull them off myself.

Yes, all my raiment to my petticoat;
Or, what you will command me will I do,
So well I know my duty to my elders.

Kath. Of all thy suitors, here I charge thee, tell

Whom thou lov'st best; see thou dissemble not.

Bian. Believe me, sister, of all the men alive,
I never yet beheld that special face

Which I could fancy more than any other.

Kath. Minion, thou liest; Is't not Hortensio?

Bian. If you affect him, sister, here I swear, I'll plead for you myself, but you shall have
him.

Kath. O then, belike, you fancy riches more;
You will have Gremio to keep you fair.

Bian. Is it for him you do envy me so?

Nay, then you jest; and now I well perceive,
You have but jested with me all this while:
I pry'thee, sister Kate, untie my hands.

Kath. If that be jest, then all the rest was so.
[Strikes her.]

Enter BAPTISTA.

Bap. Why, how now, dame! whence grows
this insolence?—

Bianca, stand aside,—poor girl! she weeps:—
Go ply thy needle; meddle not with her.—

For shame, thou hilding! of a devilish spirit,
Why dost thou wrong her that did ne'er wrong
thee?

When did she cross thee with a bitter word?

Kath. Her silence scolds me, and I'll be reveng'd. [Flies after BIANCA.]

Bap. What, in my sight?—Bianca, get thee
in. [Exit BIANCA.]

Kath. Will you not suffer me? Nay, now I see

She is your treasure, she must have a husband;
I must dance bare-foot on her wedding-day,
And, for your love to her, lead apes in hell.

Talk not to me; I will go sit and weep,
Till I can find occasion of revenge.

[Exit KATHARINA.]

Bap. Was ever gentleman thus griev'd as I?
But who comes here?

* Ungrateful. † Companions. ‡ Trifling ornaments.

§ Love. ¶ A worthless woman.

TAMING OF THE SHREW.

LUCENTIO is the habit of a
with HORTENSIO as io, with BIONDELLO

Neighbour Baptista.
Neighbour Gremio: God

Pray, have you not

and virtuous?
Sir, call'd Katha-

go to it orderly.
Signior Gremio; give

ona, Sir,
auty, and her wit,
modesty,
and mild behaviour,—
n forward guest
like mine eye the wit-

oft have heard.
my entertainment,
man of mine,
representing HORTENSIO.
be mathematics,
those sciences,
not ignorant:
do me wrong;
in Mantua.

Sir, and he, for your

charme,—this I know,
the more my grief.
mean to part with her;
my company.
I speak but as I find.
What may I call your ame; Antonio's son,

ghout all Italy.

you are welcome for

Petruchio, I pray,
tioners, speak too:
elous forward.
Signior Gremio; I would

; but you will curse

very grateful, I am the like kindness my-kindly beholden to unto you this young [LUCENTIO.] that hath been
as cunning in Greek,
ages, as the other in his name is Cambio;

ke, signior Gremio:

But, gentle Sir, [To walk like a stranger;
w the cause of your

the boldness is mine
this city here, [owna;
to your daughter,
artious.

unknown to me,
eldest sister:

request,—
my parentage,
ngst the rest that woo,
our as the rest.

ation then in use.

And, toward the education of;
I here bestow a simple instrum
And this small packet of Gr
If you accept them, then their

Bap. Lucentio is your name pray?

Tra. Of Pisa, Sir; son to Vir

Bap. A mighty man of Pisa;
I know him well: you are very

Take you [To Hor.] the lute
Luce.] the set of books,

You shall go see your pupils p Holla, within!

Enter a SERVANT

Sirrah, lead
These gentlemen to my daug
them both,

These are their tutors; bid them
[Exit SERVANT, with HORTEN

and BIONDELLO.

We will go walk a little in the
And then to dinner: You are pa
And so I pray you all to think:

Pet. Signior Baptista, my b
And every day I cannot come t
You knew my father well; and Left solely heir to all his lands
Which I have better'd rather th
Then tell me,—if I get your da
What dowry shall I have with

Bap. After my death, the lands:

And, in possession, twenty thu

Pet. And for that dowry, I'l
Her widowhood,—be it that sh
In all my lands and leases wh
Let specialties be therefore dra
That covenants may be kept on

Bap. Ay, when the special t
tain'd,

This is,—her love; for that is

Pet. Why, that is nothing;
father,

I am as peremptory as she pro
And where two raging fires me
They do consume the thing t fury:

Though little fire grows great
Yet extreme gusts will blow on
So I to her, and so she yields t
For I am rough, and woo not I

Bap. Well may'st thou woo thy speed!

But be thou arm'd for some un

Pet. Ay, to the proof; as m winds,

That shake not, though they bl

Re-enter HORTENSIO, with hi

Bap. How now, my friend?
look so pale?

Hor. For fear, I promise you

Bap. What, will my daughter musician?

Hor. I think, she'll sooner p
Iron may hold with her, but me

Bap. Why, then thou canst n
the lute?

Hor. Why, no; for she hath
to me.

I did but tell her, she mistook
And bow'd her hand to teach I
When, with a most impatient d

* A fret in music is the stop which the vibration of the string.

Kath. Well ta'en, and like a buzzard.
 Pet. O, slow-wing'd turtle! shall a buzzard take thee?
 Kath. Ay, for a turtle; as he takes a buzzard.
 Pet. Come, come, you wasp; i'faith, you are too angry.
 Kath. If I be waspish, best beware my sting.
 Pet. My remedy is then, to pluck it out.
 Kath. Ay, if the fool could find it where it lies.
 Pet. Who knows not where a wasp doth wear his sting?
 In his tail.
 Kath. In his tongue.
 Pet. Whose tongue?
 Kath. Yours, if you talk of tails; and so farewell.
 Pet. What, with my tongue in your tail?
 Nay, come again,
 Good Kate; I am a gentleman.
 Kath. That I'll try. [Striking him.
 Pet. I swear I'll cuff you, if you strike again.
 Kath. So may you lose your arms:
 If you strike me, you are no gentleman;
 And if no gentleman, why, then no arms:
 Pet. A herald, Kate? O, put me in thy books.
 Kath. What is your crest? a coxcomb?
 Pet. A combless cock, so Kate will be my hen.
 Kath. No cock of mine, you crow too like a craven.*
 Pet. Nay, come, Kate, come; you must not look so sour.
 Kath. It is my fashion, when I see a crab.
 Pet. Why, here's no crab; and therefore look not sour.
 Kath. There is, there is.
 Pet. Then show it me.
 Kath. Had I a glass, I would.
 Pet. What, you mean my face?
 Kath. Well aim'd of† such a young one.
 Pet. Now, by Saint George, I am too young
 for you.
 Kath. Yet you are wither'd.
 Pet. 'Tis with cares.
 Kath. I care not.
 Pet. Nay, hear you, Kate: in sooth, you
 'scape not so.
 Kath. I chafe you, if I tarry; let me go.
 Pet. No, not a whit; I find you passing gentle.
 'Twas told me, you were rough, and coy, and sullen,
 And now I find report a very liar;
 For thou art pleasant, gamesome, passing courteous;
 But slow in speech, yet sweet as spring-time
 flowers: [askance,
 Thou canst not frown, thou canst not look Nor bite the lip, as angry wenches will;
 Nor hast thou pleasure to be cross in talk;
 But thou with mildness entertain'st thy wooers,
 With gentle conference, soft and affable.
 Why does the world report, that Kate doth limp?
 O slanderous world! Kate, like the hazle-twig,
 Is straight, and slender; and as brown in hue
 As hazel nuts, and sweeter than the kernels.
 O, let me see thee walk: thou dost not halt.
 Kath. Go, fool, and whom thou keep'st command.
 Pet. Did ever Dian so become a grove,
 As Kate this chamber with her princely gait?
 O, be thou Dian, and let her be Kate;

Enter KATHARINA.

Now, Kate; for that's your name, I
 hear.
 I'll have you heard, but something
 out of hearing;
 I—Katharine, that do talk of me.
 He, in faith; for you are call'd
 in Kate,
 Kate, and sometimes Kate the curst;
 the prettiest Kate in Christendom,
 the Hall, my super-dainty Kate,
 as are all cates: and therefore, Kate,
 I love, Kate of my consolation;—
 your mildness prais'd in every town,
 spoke of, and thy beauty sounded,
 no less deeply as to thee belongs,
 mov'd to woo thee for my wife.
 I'd! in good time: let him that
 mov'd you hither,
 hence: I knew you at the first,
 moveable.
 I, what's a moveable?
 A joint stool.
 I have hit it: come, sit on me.
 As cushions are made to bear, and so are
 I.
 Men are made to bear and so are
 I.
 O such jade, Sir, as you, if me you mean.
 O, good Kate! I will not burden
 thee:
 I'll have thee to be but young and light,—
 no light for such a swain as you to chide;
 As heavy as my weight should be.
 O, should be? should buzz.

* Fairy musician.

* A degenerate cock.

† By.

TAKING OF THE SHREW.

ce, and Dian sport-

dy all this goodly

my mother-wit.

utless also her son.

rm.

sweet Katharine in his chat aside,

at father hath con-

[on;

your dowry 'greed

will marry you.

id for your turn;

I see thy beauty,

me like thee well.)

man but me:

me you, Kate;

eat to a Kate

ehold Kates.

ever make denial,

arine to my wife.

io, and TRANIO.

need you with

how but well?

d speed amiss.

ughter Katharine?

ughter? now I pro-

fatherly regard,

f lunatic;

earing Jack.

nce the matter out.

yourself and all the

d amiss of her;

y:

modest as the dove;

te as the mora;

a second Grissel;

er chastity:

'greed so well to-

dding-day.

d on Sunday first.

he says, she'll see

g? nay, then good

en; I choose her for

at's that to you?

n, being alone,

in company.

believe

the kindest Kate!—

and kiss on kiss

g oath on oath,

e to her love,

world to see,t

women are alone,

make the curtest

will unto Venice,

wedding-day:—

nd bid the guests;

he shall be free.

at cards now superseded

A dastardly creature.

Bap. I know not what to n

your hands;

God send you joy, Petruchio!

Gre. Tra. Amen, say wa;

neuses.

Pet. Father, and wife, and g

I will to Venice, Sunday com

We will have rings, and things

And kiss me, Kate, we will b

day.

[Exeunt PETRUCHIO &

severally.

Gre. Was ever match clapp'd

Bap. Faith, gentlemen, no

chant's part,

And venture madly on a deep

Tra. 'Twas a commodity lay

'Twill bring you gain, or per

Bap. The gain I seek is—qu

Gre. No doubt, but he hath;

But now, Baptista, to your you

Now is the day we long have

I am your neighbour, and wa

Tra. And I am one, that lov

Than words can witness, or y

guess.

Gre. Youngling! thou canst

as I.

Tra. Grey-beard! thy love

Gre. But thine doth fry.

Skipper, stand back; 'tis age,

Tra. But youth, in ladies'

risheth.

Bap. Content you, gentlemen

this strife:

'Tis deeds, must win the prize;

That can assure my daughter

Shall have Bianca's love.—

Say, signior Gremio, what can

Gre. First, as you know, I

the city

Is richly furnished with plate

Basins, and ewers, to lave her

My hangings all of Tyrian tay

In ivory coffers I have stuff'd

In cypress chests my arras, co

Costly apparel, tents, and can

Fine linen, Turkey cushions be

Valance of Venice gold in nee

Pewter and brass, and all this

To house, or housekeeping: t

I have a hundred milch-kine t

Sixscore fat oxen standing in

And all things answerable to Myself am struck in years, I n

And, if I die to-morrow, this i

If, whilst I live, she will be or

Tra. That, only, came well i

I am my father's heir, and onk

If I may have your daughter t

I'll leave her houses three or f

Within rich Pisa walls, as any

Old signior Gremio has in Pa

Besides two thousand ducats

Of fruitful land, all which al

ture.—

What, have I pinch'd you, sig

Gre. Two thousand ducats

land!

My land amounts not to so m

That she shall have; besides

That now is lying in Marseille

What, have I chok'd you with

Tra. Gremio, 'tis known, m

less

o Coverings for beds; now called o

† A large merchant ship.

Then three hundred; besides two gallies—
[her,

And twelve tight gallies: these I will assure
And twice as much, what'er thou offers next.

Gre. Nay, I have offer'd all, I have no more;
And she can have no more than all I have;—
If you like me, she shall have me and mine.

Fra. Why, then the maid is mine from all
the world,

By your firm promise; Gremio is out-vied.

Hap. I must confess, your offer is the best;
And, let your father make her the assurance,
This is your own, else, you must pardon me:
If you should die before him, where's her
dower?

Fra. That's but a devil; he is old, I young.

Gre. And may not young men die, as well as old?

Hap. Well, gentlemen, [know,
I am thus resolv'd—On Sunday next, you
my daughter Katharine is to be married:

Now, on the Sunday following, shall Bianca
be true to you, if you make this assurance;
I not, to signior Gremio:

And so I take my leave, and thank you both.

Gre. Adieu, good neighbour.—Now I fear
her not;

Strah, young gamester, your father were a fool
To give her all, and, in his waning age,
To sit under thy table: Tut! a toy!
Should ladies for is not so kind, my boy.

Fra. A vengeance on your crafty wither'd
side!

Yet I have faced it with a card of ten.†
To in my head to do my master good:—
I see no reason, but suppos'd Lucentio
Had got a father, call'd—suppos'd Vincentio;
And that's a wonder: fathers, commonly,
Do get their children; but, in this case of woo-
ing,
A child shall get a sire, if I fail not of my counseling.

ACT III.

SCENE I.—A Room in BAPTISTA'S House.

Enter LUCENTIO, HORTENSIO, and BIANCA.

Luc. Fiddler, forbear; you grow too forward,
Sir:

Have you so soon forgot the entertainment
Our sister Katharine welcom'd you withal?

Hor. But, wrangling pedant, this is
The patroness of heavenly harmony:
Then give me leave to have prerogative;
And when in music we have spent an hour,
Your lecture shall have leisure for as much.

Luc. Preposterous ass! that never read so far

To know the cause why music was ordain'd!
Was it not to refresh the mind of man,
After his studies, or his usual pain?

Then give me leave to read philosophy,
And, while I pause, serve in your harmony.

Hor. Strah, I will not bear these braves of thine.

Bian. Why, gentlemen, you do me double
wrong,

To strive for that which resteth in my choice:
I am no breaching scholar; in the schools;
I'll not be tied to hours, nor 'pointed times,

But learn my lessons as I please myself.

And, to cut off all strife, here sit we down:—
Take you your instrument, play you the while;
His lecture will be done, ere you have tun'd.

Hor. You'll leave his lecture when I am in tune?

[To BIANCA.—HORTENSIO retires.

Luc. That will be never;—tune your instrument.

Bian. Where left we last?

Luc. Here, madam:—

Hic ibat Simois; hic est Sigeia tellus;

Hic steterat Priami regis calce coele.

Bian. Construe them.

Luc. Hic ibat, as I told you before,—Simois,
I am Lucentio,—hic est, son unto Vincentio of Pisa,—Sigeia tellus, disguised thus to get your love;—Hic steterat, and that Lucentio
that comes a wooing,—Priami, is my man
Tranio,—regis, bearing my part,—calce coele,
that we might beguile the old pantaloon.*

Hor. Madam, my instrument's in tune.

[Returning.
Bian. Let's hear;— [HORTENSIO plays.

O fit! the treble jars.

Luc. Spilt in the hole, man, and tune again.

Bian. Now let me see if I can construe it:
Hic ibat Simois, I know you not; hic est Sigeia
tellus, I trust you not;—Hic steterat Priami, take heed he hear us not;—regis, presume not;
—calce coele, despair not.

Hor. Madam, 'tis now in tune.

Luc. All but the base.

Hor. The base is right; 'tis the base knave that jars.

How fiery and forward our pedant is!

Now, for my life, the knave doth court my love.
Pedanticus,† I'll watch you better yet.

Bian. In time I may believe, yet I mistrust.

Luc. Mistrust it not; for, sure, Æcides
Was Ajax,—call'd so from his grandfather.

Bian. I must believe my master; else, I promise you,

I should be arguing still upon that doubt:

But let it rest.—Now, Licio, to you:—

Good masters, take it not unkindly, pray,
That I have been thus pleasant with you both.

Hor. You may go walk. [To LUCENTIO] and give me leave awhile;

My lessons make no music in three parts.

Luc. Are you so formal, Sir? well, I must wait,

And watch withal; for, but I be deceiv'd,
Our fine musician groweth amorous. [Aside.

Hor. Madam, before you touch the instrument,

To learn the order of my fingering,
I must begin with rudiments of art;
To teach you gamut in a briefer sort,
More pleasant, pithy, and effectual,
Than hath been taught by any of my trade:
And there it is in writing, fairly drawn.

Bian. Why, I am past my gamut long ago.

Hor. Yet read the gamut of Hortensio.

Bian. [Reads.] Gamut I am, the ground of all accord.

A re, to plead Hortensio's passion;

B mi, Bianca, take him for thy lord;

C faut, that loves with all affection;

D sol re, one cliff, two notes have I;

E la mi, show pity, or I die.

Call you this—gamut? tut! I like it not:

Old fashions please me best; I am not so nice.‡
To change true rules for odd inventions.

* A vessel of burden worked both with sail and oar.

† The highest end.

‡ No subtlety, liable to be whipped.

* The old cully in Italian farces.

† Pedant.

‡ Fastidious.

TAMING OF THE SHREW.

ANT.
 her prays you leave;
 ter's chamber up;
 wedding-day.
 masters, both; I must
 ANNOA and SERVANT.
 I have no cause to [Exit.
 to pry into this pe-

gh he were in love:—
 a, be so humble,
 on every stale.*
 ce I find thee rang-
 thee by changing.
 [Exit.

Before BARTISTA'S

TRANIO, KATHARINE,
 and Attendants.

[To TRANIO.] this is [ried,
 chio should be mar-
 r son-in-law:
 mockery will it be,
 o, when the priest

ties of marriage?
 s shame of ours?
 e. I must, forsooth,

against my heart,
 full of spleen;
 means to wed at lei-

ntic fool,
 ant behaviour:
 ry man, [riage.
 nt the day of mar-
 , and proclaim the

where he hath woo'd.
 at poor Katharine,
 Petruchio's wife,
 and marry her.
 Katharine, and Bap-

icans but well,
 m from his word:
 w him passing wise;
 wthal he's honest.
 had never seen him

BIANCA, and others.
 blame thee now to vex a saint,

 impatient humour.

BELLO.
 news, old news, and
 ard of!
 o? how may that be?
 ws, to hear of Petru-

here?
 here I am, and sees

Caprice, inconstancy

Tra. But, say, what:—To th
 Dion. Why, Petruchio is co hat and an old jerkin; a pair o thrice turned; a pair of boots candlerases, one buckled, and old rusty sword ta'en out of th
 with a broken hilt, and chape broken points: His horse hipp
 mothly saddle, the stirrups of r sides, possessed with the gland nose in the clune; troubled w infected with the fashions,^a ful sped with spavins, rased with t
 cure of the lives,[†] stark spoile
 gers, begnawn with the hots;
 back, and shoulder-shotten; r
 fore, and with a half-checked l stall of sheep's leather; which ed to keep him from stumbling, burst, and now repaired with six times pieced, and a worn velure,[‡] which hath two letter fairly set down in studs, and pieced with packthread.

Bap. Who comes with him?
 Dion. O, Sir, his lackey, for parisoned like the horse; wil
 on one leg, and a kersey boot-h gartered with a red and blue l and The humour of forty fancies
 a feather: a monster, a very parel; and not like a Christu gentleman's lackey.

Tra. 'Tis some odd humou
 this fashion;—

Yet oftentimes he goes but me
 Bap. I am glad he is com
 comes.

Dion. Why, Sir, he comes a Bap. Didst thou not say, he Dion. Who? that Petruchio

Bap. Ay, that Petruchio ca Dion. No, Sir; I say, his lu him on his back.

Bap. Why, that's all one.
 Dion. Nay, by Saint Jam
 penny,

A horse and a man is more th
 not many.

Enter PETRUCHIO and Pet. Come, where to these
 at home!

Bap. You are welcome, Sir
 Pet. And yet I come not w

Bap. And yet you halt not.
 Tra. Not so well apparell'd

As I wish you were.

Pet. Were it better I shoul
 But where is Kate? where is m

How does my father?—Gentle frown:

And wherefore gaze this good
 As if they saw some wondrous

Some comet, or unusual prod
 Bap. Why, Sir, you know, 'd ding-day.

First were we sad, fearing you
 Now sadder, that you come a

Fie! doff this habit, shame to
 An eye-sore to our solemn fest

Tra. And tell us, what occ
 Hath all so long detain'd you

And sent you hither so unlike

^a Farcy.
[†] Lives, a distemper in horses, like strangling.
[‡] Velvet.

It were to tell, and harsh to come to keep my word,

as part enforced to digress;^a in leisure, I will so excuse
will be satisfied withal.

Kate! I stay too long from her;
wears, 'tis time we were at your bride in these unreverent

her, put on clothes of mine.
believe me; thus I'll visit her.
us, I trust, you will not marry oath, even thus; therefore have

with words;

said, not unto my clothes:
what she will wear in me,
ge these poor accoutrements,
s Kate, and better for myself.

I am I, to chat with you,
I bid good-morrow to my bride,
little with a lovely kiss?

Enter PETRUCHIO, GRUMIO, and BIONDELLO.

th some meaning in his mad
ade him, be it possible, [attire:
or ere he go to church.

or him, and see the event of this.
[Exit.

ir, to her love concerneth us to king: Which to bring to pass,

sparted to your worship,
nan,—whate'er he be,
uch; we'll fit him to our turn,—
e Vincentio of Pisa;
urance, here in Padua,
as than I have promised.
quietly enjoy your hope,
reet Bianca with consent.

it not that my fellow-school-
r ianca's steps so narrowly,
methinks, to steal our marriage;
perform'd, let all the world say—

own, despite of all the world.
y degrees we mean to look into,
r vantage in this business:
uch the greybeard, Gremio,
rying father, Minola;
usician, amorous Licio;
ster's sake, Lucentio.—

Re-enter GREMIO.

io! came you from the church?
lingly as e'er I came from school.
the bride and bridegroom comome?

degroom, say you? 'tis a groom,
d,
groom, and that the girl shall find.
r than she? why, 'tis impossible.
he's a devil, a devil, a very fiend.
she's a devil, a devil, the devil's

he's a lamb, a dove, a fool to him.
Sir Lucentio; When the priest
if Katharine should be his wife,
wears, quoth he; and swore so

x'd, the priest let fall the book:

me from my promise.
; Strange.

And, as he stoop'd again to take it up, [cuff,
The mad-brain'd bridegroom took him such a
That down fell priest and book, and book and
priest;

Now take them up, quoth he, if any list.

Tra. What said the wench, when he arose
again?

Gre. Trembled and shook; for why, he stamp'd, and swore,

As if the vicar meant to cosen him.

But after many ceremonies done,
He calls for wine:—A health, quoth he; as if He had been aboard carousing to his mates
After a storm:—Quaff'd off the muscadel,*
And throw the sops all in the sexton's face;
Having no other reason,—

But that his beard grew thin and hungerly,
And seem'd to ask him sops as he was drinking.

This done, he took the bride about the neck;
And kiss'd her lips with such a clamorous
smack,

That, at the parting, all the church did echo.

I, seeing this, came thence for very shame;

And after me, I know, the rout is coming:

Such a mad marriage never was before;

Hark, hark! I hear the minstrels play.

[Music.

Enter PETRUCHIO, KATHARINA, BIANCA, BAP-
TISTA, HORTENSIO, GRUMIO, and Trivia.

Pet. Gentlemen and friends, I thank you for your pains:

I know, you think to dine with me to-day,
And have prepar'd great store of wedding
cheer;

But so it is, my haste doth call me hence,
And therefore here I mean to take my leave.

Bap. Is't possible, you will away to-night?

Pet. I must away to-day, before night
come:—

Make it no wonder; if you knew my business,
You would entreat me rather go than stay.

And, honest company, I thank you all,
That have beheld me give away myself

To this most patient, sweet, and virtuous wife:

Dine with my father, drink a health to me;

For I must hence, and farewell to you all.

Tra. Let us entreat you stay till after dinner.

Pet. It may not be.

Gre. Let me entreat you.

Pet. It cannot be.

Kath. Let me entreat you.

Pet. I am content.

Kath. Are you content to stay?

Pet. I am content you shall entreat me stay;

But yet not stay, entreat me how you can.

Kath. Now, if you love me, stay.

Pet. Grumio, my horses.

Gre. Ay, Sir, they be ready; the oats have eaten the horses.

Kath. Nay, then,

Do what thou canst, I will not go to-day;
No, nor to-morrow, nor till I please myself.

The door is open, Sir, there lies your way,

You may be jogging, whiles your boots are
green;

For me, I'll not be gone, till I please myself:—

'Tis like, you'll prove a jolly surly groom,

That take it on you at the first so roundly.

Pet. O, Kate, content thee; pr'ythee, be not angry.

Kath. I will be angry; What hast thou to do?—

* It was the custom for the company present to drink
wine immediately after the marriage-ceremony.

my leisure.

begins to work.

the bridal dunt-

ool, [ner:-

l, Kate, at thy

ad on her:

neer,

ardenhead,

ng yourselves;

ust with me,

, nor stare, nor

own: [fret;

she is my house,

my barn,

any thing;

r whoever dare;

dest he

—Grumio, e're beset with a man:—

shall not touch

llion.

KATHARINE, and

couple of quiet

ly, I should die

never was the opinion of your self, she's madly

his is Kated.

ls, though bride

is

e table,

junks^a at the

the bridegroom's

er's room.

practise how to

—Come, Gentle-

[Exeunt.

Grumio's Country

.

l jades! on all ways! Was ever

n so rayed?† was sent before to

ng after to warm

the pot, and soon

to my teeth, my

ath, my heart is

hy a fire to thaw

e fire, shall warm

weather, a taller

l. Holla, ho!

.

coldly?

u doubt it, thou

prayed; dirty.

may'st slide from my shoulder to my heel, with no greater a run but my head and my neck. A fire, good Curtis.

Curt. Is my master and his wife coming, Grumio?

Gr. O, ay, Curtis, ay: and therefore fire, fire; cast up no water.

Curt. Is she so hot a shrew as she's reported?

Gr. She was, good Curtis, before this frost: but, thou know'st, winter tames man, woman, and beast; for it hath tamed my old master, and my new mistress, and myself, fellow Curtis.

Curt. Away, you three-inch fool! I am no beast.

Gr. Am I but three inches? why, thy horn is a foot; and so long am I, at the least. But wilt thou make a fire, or shall I complain on thee to our mistress, whose hand (she being now at hand,) thou shalt soon feel, to thy cold comfort, for being slow in thy hot office.

Curt. I pr'ythee, good Grumio, tell me, How goes the world?

Gr. A cold world, Curtis, in every office but thine, and, therefore, fire: Do thy duty, and have thy duty; for my master and mistress are almost frozen to death.

Curt. There's fire ready; And therefore, good Grumio, the news?

Gr. Why, Jack boy! no boy! and as much news as thou wilt.

Curt. Come, you are so full of cony-catching:—

Gr. Why therefore, fire; for I have caught extreme cold. Where's the cook? is supper ready, the house trimmed, rushes strowed, cobwebs swept; the serving-men in their new fustian, their white stockings, and every officer his wedding-garment on? Be the jacks knit within, the jills fair without, the carpets laid, and every thing in order?

Curt. All ready; And therefore, I pray thee, news!

Gr. First, know, my horse is tired; my master and mistress fallen out.

Curt. How?

Gr. Out of their saddles into the dirt; And thereby hangs a tale.

Curt. Let's ha't, Good Grumio.

Gr. Lend thine ear.

Curt. Here.

Gr. There. [Striking him.

Curt. This is to feel a tale, not to hear a tale.

Gr. And therefore 'tis called, a sensible tale: and this cuff was but to knock at your ear, and beseech listening. Now I begin: In primis, we came down a foul hill, my master riding behind my mistress:—

Curt. Both on one horse?

Gr. What's that to thee?

Curt. Why, a horse.

Gr. Tell thou the tale:—But hadst thou not crossed me, thou should'st have heard how her horse fell, and she under her horse; thou should'st have heard, in how miry a place; how she was bemoiled; how he left her with the horse upon her; how he beat me because her horse stumbled; how she waded through the dirt to pluck him off me; how he swam; how she prayed—that never prayed before; how I cried; how the horses ran away; how her bridle was burst;† how I lost my crupper;—with many things of worthy memory; which

^a Battered.

† Broken.

the oblivion, and then return unto thy grave.
His reasoning, he is more shrew

and that, then and the present
hall find, when he comes home.
I of this I—call forth Nathaniel,
Philip, Walter, Sugarson,
let their heads be sleekly combed,
their coats brushed, and their garters untied: let them curtsy with us; and not presume to touch a squire's horse-tail, till they kiss
Are they all ready?

Are they?
Then forth.
You hear, ho? you must meet my mistress my mistress.
She hath a face of her own.
Knows not that?
It seems; that call for commendation her.
I then forth to credit her.
She comes to borrow nothing of her several SERVANTS.

come home, Grumio.
Now, Grumio?
Grumio?
Now Grumio!
Now, old lad!
Come, you;—how now, you; what,
you;—and thus much for greeting spruce companions, is all ready,
is neat?
Things is ready: How near is our

at hand, alighted by this; and not,—Cock's passion, silence!
my master.

PETRUCHIO and KATHARINA.

Be these knaves? What, so man
our,
stirrup, nor to take my horse!
Nathaniel, Gregory, Philip?—
Here, here, Sir; here, Sir.
Sir! here, Sir! here, Sir, here,
—
headed and unpolished grooms!
attendance? no regard? no duty?—
foolish knave I sent before!
Sir; as foolish as I was before.
peasant swain! you whorson
horse-drudge!
d thee meet me in the park,
long these rascal knaves with thee?
Nathaniel's coat, Sir, was not fully le, [heel;
it's pumps were all unpink'd if the
so link to colour Peter's hat, r's dagger was not come from
nothing:
none else, but Adam, Ralph, and gory;
re ragged, old, and beggarly;
y are, here are they come to meet
le.
rascal, you, and fetch my supper in.— [Exit some of the SERVANTS.
A life that late I led— [Sings.
those—Sit down, Kate, and welcome, sound, sound! [come.

set one from the other.
I pluck.
observed by Shakespeare to express the noise
you heard and followed.

Re-enter SERVANTS, with supper.

Why, when, I say?—Nay, good sweet Kate,
be merry. [When?

Off with my boots, you rogues, you villains;
It was the friar of orders grey. [Sings.
As he forth walked on his way:—

Out, out, you rogues! you pluck my foot away:
Take that, and mend the plucking off the other.— [Strikes him.

Be merry, Kate:—Some water, here; what,
ho!— [hence,

Where's my spangled Trollop?—Sirrah, get you
And bid my cousin Ferdinand come hither:—
[Exit SERVANT.

One, Kate, that you must kiss, and be acquainted with.—

Where are my slippers?—Shall I have some water? [A basin is presented to him.

Come, Kate, and wash, and welcome heartily:— [SERVANT lets the water fall.

You whorson villain! will you let it fall?
[Strikes him.

Kate. Patience, I pray you; 'twas a fault unwilling.

Pet. A whorson, beetle-headed, nap-ear'd
knave!

Come, Kate, sit down; I know you have a stomach. [shall I?—

Will you give thanks, sweet Kate; or else
What is this? mutin?

1 Serv. Ay.

Pet. Who brought it?

1 Serv. I.

Pet. 'Tis burnt; and so is all the meat:

What dogs are these?—Where is the rascal
cook? [dresser,

How durst you, villains, bring it from the
And serve it thus to me that love it not?

There, take it to you, trenchers, cups, and all:
[Throws the meat, &c. about the stage.

You headless jolt-heads, and unmanner'd slaves!
What, do you grumble? I'll be with you straight.

Kate. I pray you, husband, be not so disquiet;
The meat was well, if you were so contented.

Pet. I tell thee, Kate, 'twas burnt and dried
away;

And I expressly am forbid to touch it.
For it engenders cholera, planteth anger;

And better 'twere, that both of us did fast,—
Since, of ourselves, ourselves are choleric,—

Than feed it with such over-roasted flesh.
Be patient; to-morrow it shall be mended,

And, for this night, we'll fast for company:—
Come, I will bring thee to thy bridal chamber.

[Exit PETRUCHIO, KATHARINA, and CURTIS.

Nath. [Admiring] Peter, didst ever see the
like?

Peter. He kills her in her own humour.

Re-enter CURTIS.

Cur. Where is he?

Cur. In her chamber,

Making a sermon of continency to her:
And rails, and swears, and rates; that she,

poor soul, [speak;
Knows not which way to stand, to look, to
And sits as one new-risen from a dream.

Away, away! for he is coming hither. [Exit.

Re-enter PETRUCHIO.

Pet. Thus have I politicly begun my reign,
And 'tis my hope to end successfully:

My falcon now is sharp, and passing empty;
And, till she stoop, she must not be full-gorg'd,

TRAINING OF THE SHREW.

on her lure."
 my haggard,
 her keeper's call,
 we watch these
 all not be obedient.
 none shall eat;
 or to-night she shall deserved fault
 of the bed;
 there the bolster,
 way the sheets—
 intend,
 care of her;
 all watch all night:
 I'll rail, and brawl,
 her still awake.
 with kindness;
 ad and headstrong
 to tame a shrew,
 party to show.

[Exit.

Before BARRISTA'S

HORTENSIO.

Licio, that Bianca
 Lucio?
 fair in hand.
 what I have said,
 owner of his teach-
 [They stand aside.

LUCENTIO.

fit you in what you

and you? first resolve

the art to love.

ve, Sir, master of

ear, prove mistress

[They retire.

marry! Now, tell

our mistress Bianca

well as Lucio.

unconstant woman-

nderful.

I am not Licio,

to be;

in this disguise,

gentleman,

a culion.]]

Hortensio.

I have often heard

Bianca;

itness of her light-

so contented,—

love for ever.

and court!—Signior

I firmly vow—

at do forswear her,

former favours

her withal.

the like unfringed

[treat:

ough she would en-

the game which the hawk

† Flatter.

able fellow.

Fie on her! see, how beastly
 him.

Her. 'Would, all the work
 quite forsworn!

For me,—that I may surely be
 I will be married to a wealthy Ere three days pass; which lov'd me.

As I have lov'd this proud disd
 And so farewell, signior Lucio Kindness in women, not their Shall win my love:—and so I
 In resolution as I swore before [Exit HORTENSIO.—LUCIO

advance.

Tra. Mistress Bianca, bless
 As 'longeth to a lover's blesse
 Nay, I have ta'en you napping
 And have forsworn you, with

Bian. Tranio, you jest; But forsworn me?

Tra. Mistress, we have.

Luc. Then we are rid of Lio

Tra. I'faith, he'll have a lus

That shall be woo'd and wedd

Bian. God give him joy!

Tra. Ay, and he'll tame her

Bian. He says so, Tranio.

Tra. 'Faith he is gone to school.

Bian. The taming-school!

such a place?

Tra. Ay, mistress, and Petr

ter;

That teacheth tricks eleven an

To tame a shrew, and charn

tongue.

Enter BIONDELLO, m

Bion. O master, master, I l

long

That I'm dog-weary; but at l

An ancient angel* coming do

Will serve the turn.

Tra. What is he, Biondello

Bion. Master, a mercatantè

I know not what; but formal

In gait and countenance surel

Luc. And what of him, Tra

Tra. If he be credulous and

I'll make him glad to seem Vi

And give assurance to Baptis

As if he were the right Vincen

Take in your love, and then lo

[Exeunt LUCIO

Enter a PEDAN

Ped. God save you, Sir!

Tra. And you, Sir, you are

Travel you far on, or are you

Ped. Sir, at the furthest for

But then up further; and as

And so to Tripoly, if God les

Tra. What countryman, I p

Ped. Of Mantua.

Tra. Of Mantua, Sir?—ma

And come to Padua, careless

Ped. My life, Sir! how, I goes hard.

Tra. 'Tis death for any one

To come to Padua; Know ye

Your ships are staid at Venice

(For private quarrel 'twixt

him.)

* Messenger.

† A merchant

Must publish'd and proclaim'd it openly:

'Tis marvel; but that you're but newly come,
You might have heard it else proclaim'd about.

Pet. Alas, Sir, it is worse for me than so;
For I have bills for money by exchange
From Florence, and must here deliver them.

Tra. Well, Sir, to do you courtesy,
This will I do, and this will I advise you;—
First, tell me, have you ever been at Pisa?

Pet. Ay, Sir, in Pisa have I often been;
Pisa, renowned for grave citizens.

Tra. Among them, know you one Vincentio?

Pet. I know him not, but I have heard of A merchant of incomparable wealth. [him;

Tra. He is my father, Sir, and, sooth to say,
In countenance somewhat doth resemble you.

Her. As much as an apple doth an oyster,
and all one. [Aside.

Tra. To save your life in this extremity,
This favour will I do you for his sake:

And think it not the worst of all your fortunes,
But you are like to Sir Vincentio.

His name and credit shall you undertake,
And in my house you shall be friendly
lodg'd:—

Look, that you take upon you as you should;
You understand me, Sir;—so shall you stay

Till you have done your business in the city:
If this be courtesy, Sir, accept of it.

Pet. O, Sir, I do, and will repute you ever
The patron of my life and liberty.

Tra. Then go with me, to make the matter
good.

This, by the way, I let you understand;—
My father is here look'd for every day,

To pass assurance of a dower in marriage
Twixt me and one Baptista's daughter here:

In all these circumstances I'll instruct you:
Go with me, Sir, to clothe you as becomes
you. [Exeunt.

SCENE III.—A Room in PETRUCHIO'S HOUSE.

Enter KATHARINA and GRUMIO.

Gr. No, no; forsooth; I dare not, for my life.

Kath. The more my wrong, the more his spite appears:

What did he marry me to furnish me?
Beggars, that come unto my father's door,

Upon entreaty have a present alms;
If not elsewhere they meet with charity:

But I—who never knew how to entreat,—
Am starv'd for meat, giddy for lack of sleep:

With oaths kept waking, and with brawling
fed: [wants,

And that which spites me more than all these
He does it under name of perfect love;

Who should say,—if I should sleep, or eat,
Were deadly sickness, or else present
death. —

Pr'ythee go, and get me some repast:
I care not what, so it be wholesome food.

Gr. What say you to a neat's foot?

Kath. 'Tis passing good; I pr'ythee let me
have it.

Gr. I fear, it is too choleric a meat:—
I say you to a fat tripe, finely broil'd?

Kath. I like it well; good Grumio, fetch it
me.

Gr. I cannot tell; I fear, 'tis choleric.
I say you to a piece of beef, and mustard?

Kath. A dish that I do love to feed upon.

Gr. Ay, but the mustard is too hot a little.

Kath. Why, then the beef, and let the mustard rest.

Gr. Nay, then I will eat; you shall have the mustard,

Or else you get no beef of Grumio.

Kath. Then both, or one, or any thing thou wilt.

Gr. Why, then the mustard without the beef.

Kath. Go, get thee gone, thou false deluding slave, [Beats him.

That feed'st me with the very same of meat:
Sorrow on thee, and all the pack of you,
That triumph thus upon my misery!

Go, get thee gone, I say.

Enter PETRUCHIO with a dish of meat; and HORTENSIO.

Pet. How fares my Kate? What, sweeting,
all amok'?

Her. Mistress, what cheer?

Kath. 'Faith, as cold as can be.

Pet. Pluck up thy spirits, look cheerfully
upon me.

Here, love; thou see'st how diligent I am,
To dress thy meat myself, and bring it thee:

[Sets the dish on a table.
I am sure, sweet Kate, this kindness merits
thanks. [not;

What, not a word? Nay, then, thou lov'st it
And all my pains is sorted to no proof:—
Here take away this dish.

Kath. Pray you, let it stand.

Pet. The poorest service is repaid with thanks;

And so shall mine, before you touch the meat.

Kath. I thank you, Sir.

Her. Signior Petruchio, fie! you are to blame!

Come, mistress Kate, I'll bear you company.

Pet. Eat it up all, Hortensio, if thou lov'st me. — [Aside.

Much good do it unto thy gentle heart!
Kate, eat a pace:—And now, my honey love,

Will we return unto thy father's house;

And revel it as bravely as the best,
With silken coats, and caps, and golden rings,

With ruffs, and cuffs, and farthingales, and things; [bravery,†

With scarfs, and fans, and double change of
With amber bracelets, beads, and all this knavery. [leisure,

What, hast thou din'd? The tailor stays thy
To deck thy body with his ruffling; treasure.

Enter TAILOR.

Come, tailor, let us see these ornaments;

Enter HABERDASHER.

Lay forth the gown.—What news with you,
Sir?

Hab. Here is the cap your worship did be-
speak.

Pet. Why, this was moulded on a porringer?
A velvet dish;—fie, fie! 'tis lewd and filthy:

Why, 'tis a cockle, or a walnutshell,
A knack, a toy, a trick, a baby's cap;

Away with it, come, let me have a bigger.

Kath. I'll have no bigger; this doth fit the
time,

And gentlewomen wear such caps as these.

Pet. When you are gentle, you shall have
And not till then. [one too,

Her. That will not be in haste. [Aside.

Kath. Why, Sir, I trust, I may have leave
to speak;

* Dispirited; a pallician.

† Finery. ‡ Rustling.

TAKING OF THE SHREW.

I am no child, no babe:
Endur'd me say my mind;
At best you stop your ears.
The anger of my heart;
Concealing it, will break:
At shall, I will be free
Most, as I please, in words.
Say'st true; it is a paltry

A bauble, a silken pie:
In that thou lik'st it not.
Or love me not, I like the
Or I will have none.
Why, ay:—Come tailor, let

What masking stuff is here?
Sleeve? 'tis like a demi-cannon:
Sewn, carv'd like an apple-tart?
Snip, and cut, and slash, and

In a barber's shop:—
Call'st thou

's like to have neither cap
[Aside.
I'll make it orderly and well,
Fashion, and the time.
I did; but if you be remem-

mar it to the time.
Every kennel home.
Without my custom, Sir:
Hence, make your best of it.
I'll have a better-fashion'd gown,
More pleasing, nor more com-

To make a puppet of me.
He means to make a puppet
Your worship means to make

ous arrogance! Thou liest,
And,

[nail, quarters, half-yard, quarter,
t, thou winter cricket thou.— own house with a skrin of hon quantity, thou remnant;

mete; thee with thy yard,
hink on prating whilst thou

thou hast marr'd her gown.
hip is deceiv'd; the gown is or had direction:

er how it should be done.
im no order, I gave him the

did you desire it should be er, with needle and thread.

ou not request to have it cut?
t faced many things.]]

me: thou hast braved many me; I will neither be faced unto thee,—I bid thy master
but I did not bid him cut it thou liest.

is the note of the fashion to culinary terms for raised crust.

sembled our brusters in shape.
† Re-measure.
garments with springs.

Pet. Read it.

Gru. The note lies in his th
said so.

Tai. Imprimis, a loose-bodied

Gru. Master, if ever I said lo sew me in the skirts of it, and with a bottom of brown thread

Pet. Proceed.

Tai. With a small compasses

Gru. I confess the cape.

Tai. With a trunk sleere;—

Gru. I confess two sleeves.

Tai. The sleeves curiously cut

Pet. Ay, there's the villany

Gru. Error i'the bill, Sir; e commanded the sleeves shoul sewed up again; and that I'll

Tai. This is true, that I say in place where thou should'st

Gru. I am for thee straigh bill, and give me thy mete-not me.

Hor. God-a-mercy, Grumble
have no odds.

Pet. Well, Sir, in brief, the
me.

Gru. You are i'the right,
mistress.

Pet. Go, take it up unto thy

Gru. Villain, not for thy li mistress' gown for thy master

Pet. Why, Sir, what's your

Gru. O, Sir, the conceit is think for:

Take up my mistress' gown to O, fie, fie, fie!

Pet. Hortensio, say thou w paid:—

Go take it hence; be gone, at

Hor. Tailor, I'll pay thee
morrow.

Take no unkindness of his ha Away, I say; commend me to

Pet. Well, come, my Kat
your father's,

Even in these honest mean ha
Our purses shall be proud, ou
For 'tis the mind that makes

And as the sun breaks thro clouds,

So honour peereth in the me
What, is the jay more preciou

Because his feathers are more
Or is the adder better than th

Because his painted skin con
O, no, good Kate; neither a

For this poor furniture, and n
If thou account'st it shame, l

And therefore, frolic; we will
To feast and sport us at thy f

Go, call my men, and let us s
And bring our horses unto La

There will we mount, and
foot.—

Let's see; I think, 'tis now so
And well we may come there

Kath. I dare assure you, Si
And 'twill be supper time, ere

Pet. It shall be seven, ere Look, what I speak, or do, or

You are still crossing it.—Si
I will not go to-day; and ere
It shall be what o'clock I say

‡ A round cape. † Measuring yd

TAMING OF THE SHREW.

273

[Enter] this gallant will command
[Exit.]

Padua.—Before BAPTISTA'S
house.

and the PEDANT dressed like
VINCENTIO.

is the house, Please it you, that not else? and, but I be deceived,

he may remember me.

ears ago, in Genoa, where was at the Pegasus.

own, in any case, with such togeth to a father.

Enter BIONDELLO.

not you: But, Sir, here comes my

I were school'd.

is not him. Surrah, Biondello,

my throughly, I advise you;

the right Vincentio.

far not me.

It thou done thy errand to Bap-

him, that your father was at look'd for him this day in Padua.

a tall fellow; hold thee that to

[Sir.—

Baptista:—set your countenance,

BAPTISTA and LUCENTIO.

is, you are happily met:—

[Exit.]

Uelman I told you of;

and good father to me now,

as far my patrimony.

is!

ive; having come to Padua

me debts, my son Lucentio

minted with a weighty cause

in your daughter and himself:

good report I hear of you;

he beareth to your daughter,

—to stay him not too long,

in a good father's care,

atched'd, and,—if you please to

I, Sir,—upon some agreement,

and most ready and most willing

not to have her so bestow'd;

cannot be with you,

as, of whom I hear so well.

don me in what I have to say;—

, and your shortness, please me

, your son Lucentio here

laughter, and she loveth him,

able deeply their affections:

, if you say no more than this,

er you will deal with him,

daughter a sufficient dower,

illy made, and all is done,

I have my daughter with con-

you, Sir. Where then do you

ent,

and such assurance ta'en,

other part's agreement stand?

my house, Lucentio, for, you

Scraps. 1. A word or convey

1. Detested.

Pitchers have ears, and I have many servants:

Besides, old Gremio is heark'ning still.

And, happily,* we might be interrupted.

Tru. Then at my lodging, an it like you,

Sir:

There doth my father lie; and there, this night,

We'll pass the business privately and well:

Send for your daughter by your servant here,

My boy shall fetch the scrivener presently.

The worst is this,—that, at so slender warning,

You're like to have a thin and slender pittance.

Bap. It likes me well:—Cambio, hie you

home,

And bid Bianca make her ready straight;

And, if you will, tell what hath happened:—

Lucentio's father is arriv'd in Padua,

And how she's like to be Lucentio's wife.

Luc. I pray the gods she may, with all my

heart!

Tru. Dally not with the gods, but get thee

gone.

Signior Baptista, shall I lend the way?

Welcome! one meas is like to be your cheer:

Come, Sir; we'll better it in Pisa.

Bap. I follow you.

[Exit TRANIO, PEDANT, and BAPTISTA.]

Bion. Cambio.—

Luc. What say'st thou, Biondello?

Bion. You saw my master wink and laugh

upon you?

Luc. Biondello, what of that?

Bion. 'Faith nothing; but he has left me here behind, to expound the meaning or moral† of his signs and tokens.

Luc. I pray thee, moralize them.

Bion. Then thus. Baptista is safe, talking with the deceiving father of a deceitful son.

Luc. And what of him?

Bion. His daughter is to be brought by you to the supper.

Luc. And then?—

Bion. The old priest at St. Luke's church is at your command at all hours.

Luc. And what of all this?

Bion. I cannot tell, except they are busied about a counterfeit assurance: Take you as assurance of her, cum privilegio ad imprimendum

solum† to the church;—take the priest, clerk,

and some sufficient honest witnesses:

If this be not that you look for, I have no more

to say,

But, bid Bianca farewell for ever and a day.

[Going.]

Luc. Hear'st thou, Biondello?

Bion. I cannot tarry. I knew a wench married in an afternoon as she went to the garden for parsley to stuff a rabbit, and so may you, Sir; and so adieu, Sir. My master hath appointed me to go to Saint Luke's, to bid the priest be ready to come against you come with your appendix. [Exit.]

Luc. I may, and will, if she be so contented:

She will be pleas'd, then wherefore should I

doubt?

Hap what may, I'll roundly go about her;

It shall go hard, if Cambio go without her.

[Exit.]

SCENE V.—A public Road.

Enter PETRUCHIO, KATHARINA, and HOR-

TENSIO.

Pet. Come on, o' God's name; once more toward our father's. [Moon†

Good Lord, how bright and goodly shines the

* Accidentally.

L!

† Secret purpose.

TAKING OF THE SHREW.

in; it is not moon-

oon that shines so

sun that shines so

er's son, and that's

or what I list,

ather's house:—

es back again.—

ross'd; nothing but we shall never go.

since we have come

er what you please:

t a rush candle,

be so for me.

It is the blessed sun.

s'd, it is the blessed

u say it is not,

en as your mind.

d, even that it is;

Katharine.

ways; the field is

ward: thus the bowl

the bias.—

s coming here?

travelling dress.

ess: Whereaway?—

[To VINCENTIO.

tell me truly too,

r gentlewoman?

within her cheeks!

n with such beauty,

that heavenly face?—

good day to thee:—

or her beauty's sake.

man mad, to make a

argin, fair, and fresh,

s thy abode?

ur a child;

avourable stars

d-fellow!

ate! I hope thou art

d, faded, wither'd;

say'st he is.

, my mistaking eyes,

d with the sun,

seemeth green:

a reverend father;

y mad mistaking.

asure; and, withal,

if along with us,

company.

my merry mistress,—

counter much amaz'd

ntio; my dwelling—

; there to visit

I have not seen.

ur.

happier for thy son.

his reverend age,

I may entitle thee—my loving

The sister to my wife, this get

Thy son by this hath married

Nor be not griev'd; she is of

Her dowry wealthy, and of w

Beside, so qualified as may be

The spouse of any noble gentl

Let me embrace with old Vin

And wander we to see thy ho

Who will of thy arrival be ful

Vin. But is this true? or is

sure,

Like pleasant travellers, to be

Upon the company you overta

Hor. I do assure, thee, fath

Pet. Come, go along, and m

of;

For our first merriment hath m

[Exeunt PETRUCHIO,

VINCENTIO

Hor. Well, Petruchio, this

heart.

Have to my widow; and if st

Then hast thou taught Hort

ward.

ACT V.

SCENE I.—PADUA.—Beg House.

Enter on one side BIONDELLO
BIANCA; GREENIO walking o

Bion. Softly and swiftly, & is ready.

Luc. I fly, Biondello: but to need thee at home, therefor

Bion. Nay, faith, I'll see th back, and then come back

soon as I can. [Exeunt Lu

and Bi

Gre. I marvel Cambio coo
while.

Enter PETRUCHIO, KATHAR
and Attendant

Pet. Sir, here's the door, th
house,

My father's bears more tow
Thither must I, and here I le

Vin. You shall not choose
you go;

I think, I shall command you
And, by all likelihood, some

Gre. They're busy within, knock louder.

Enter PEDANT above, at

Ped. What's he, that kno beat down the gate?

Vin. Is aignior Lucentio w Ped. He's within, Sir, but withal.

Vin. What if a man bring pound or two, to make merry

Ped. Keep your hundred po
he shall need none, so long as

Pet. Nay, I told you, your in Padua.—Do you hear, &

volous circumstances,—I pray Lucentio, that his father is

and is here at the door to spe
Ped. Thou liest; his father l and here looking out at the w

Vin. Art thou his father?

as his mother says, if I may now, gentleman! [To VINcentio] flat knavery, to take upon
his name.
is on the villain; I believe 'a somebody in this city under my

enter BIONDELLO.

men them in the church together good shipping!—But who is master, Vincentio? now we brought to nothing.
see, crack-hemp.

[Seeing BIONDELLO.
may choose, Sir.
her, you rogue; What, have me? no, Sir: I could not forget saw you before in all my

is notorious villain, didst thou ster's father, Vincentio?
y old, worshipful old master?
see where he looks out of the head? [Beats BIONDELLO.

slip, help! here's a madman
[Exit.

I help, signior Baptista!
[Exit from the window.
Hate, let's stand aside, and a controversy. [They retire.

below; BAPTISTA, TRANIO, and SERVANTS.

are you, that offer to beat my

. I, Sir? nay, what are you,
I gods! O fine villain! A silvelvet hose! a scarlet cloak!
at!—O, I am undone! I am slay the good husband at home,
servant spend all at the uni-

! what's the matter?
the man lunatic?

seem a sober ancient gentle-
it, but your words show you r, Sir, what concerns it you, and gold? I thank my good to maintain it.

er? O, villain! he is a sail-
to.

take, Sir; you mistake, Sir:
on think is his name?

? as if I knew not his name:
am up ever since he was three s name is—Tranio.

vay, mad ass! his name is Lu-
s mine only son, and heir to signior Vincentio.

! O, he hath murdered his old on him, I charge you, in
:—O, my son, my son!—tell where is my son Lucentio?

an officer: [Enter one with an his mad knave to the jail:—
, I charge you see, that he be to the jail!

see; he shall not go to prison.
t, signior Gremio; I say, he
n.

ed, signior Baptista, lest you

n with a coronal crown.

be money-catched* in this business; I dare
swear, this is the right Vincentio.

Ped. Swear, if thou darest.

Gre. Nay, I dare not swear it.

Tru. Then thou wert best say, that I am not Lucentio.

Gre. Yes, I know thee to be signior Lucen-
tio.

Bap. Away with the dotard; to the jail with
him.

Vin. Thus strangers may be haled and abus'd:—O monstrous villain!

Re-enter BIONDELLO, with LUCENTIO, and BIANCA.

Bian. O, we are spoiled, and—Yonder he is;
deny him, forswear him, or else we are all un-
done.

Luc. Pardon, sweet father. [Kneeling.

Vin. Loves my sweetest son?

[BIONDELLO, TRANIO, and PEDANT run out.

Bian. Pardon, dear father. [Kneeling.

Bap. How hast thou offended?—

Where is Lucentio?

Luc. Here's Lucentio,
Right son unto the right Vincentio; [mine,
That have by marriage made thy daughter
While counterfeit supposes blear'd thine eyes.†

Gre. Here's packing,† with a witness, to deceive us all!

Vin. Where is that damned villain, Tranio,
That fac'd and brav'd me in this matter so?

Bap. Why, tell me, is not this my Cambio?

Bian. Cambio is chang'd into Lucentio.

Luc. Love wrought these miracles. Bianca's
love

Made me exchange my state with Tranio,
While he did bear my countenance in the town;
And happily I have arriv'd at last
Unto the wished haven of my bliss:—

What Tranio did, myself enforc'd him to;
Then pardon him, sweet father, for my sake.

Vin. I'll slit the villain's nose, that would have sent me to the jail.

Bap. But do you hear, Sir? [To LUCENTIO.]
Have you married my daughter without asking my good-will?

Vin. Fear not, Baptista; we will content you, go to: But I will in, to be revenged for this villainy. [Exit.

Bap. And I, to sound the depth of this kna-very. [Exit.

Luc. Look not pale, Bianca; thy father will not frown. [Exit LUC. and BIAN.

Gre. My cake is dough:‡ But I'll in among
the rest;

Out of hope of all,—but my share of the feast.
[Exit.

PETRUCHIO and KATHARINA advance.

Kath. Husband, let's follow, to see the end of this ado.

Pet. First kiss me, Kate, and we will.

Kath. What, in the midst of the street?

Pet. What art thou ashamed of me?

Kath. No, Sir; God forbid.—but ashamed to kiss.

Pet. Why, then let's home again:—Come,
sirrah, let's away.

Kath. Nay, I will give thee a kiss: now pray thee, love, stay.

Pet. Is not this well?—Come, my sweet
Kate;

* Cheated. † Deceived thy eyes.

‡ Tricking, understand contrivances.

§ A proverbial expression, repeated after a disappointment.

TAMING OF THE SHREW.

for never too late.

[Exeunt.]

Lucentio's House.

BATTISTA, VINCENTIO, LUCENTIO, BIANCA, KATHARINA, HORTENSIO, and BIONDELLO, GRUMIO, and

ing, our jarring notes

ing war is done,
ornls overblown.—
rather welcome,
kindness welcome

r Katharina,— thy loving widow,—
welcome to my house;
our stomachs up,
dear: Pray you, sit

as well as eat.

[They sit at table.]

d sit, and eat and eat!
s kindness, son Pe-

hing but what is kind.
s, I would that word

Hortensio fears† his

me if I be afraid.

and yet you miss my ard of you. [sense;]
ly, thinks the world

mean you that?

by him.

How likes Horten-

s, thus she conceives

d: Kiss him for that,

dy, thinks the world

t you meant by that.

being troubled with a sorrow by his woe:

meaning.

eaning.

on.

ab, indeed, respecting

ks, my Kate does put

cer:—Ha' to thee, lad.

[Drinks to HORTENSIO.]

no these quick-witted

they butt together well.

an hasty-witted body

and butt were head and

de, hath that awaken'd

ighted me; therefore I'll

n consisting of fruit, cakes,

† Dreads.

Pet. Nay, that you shall not

Have at you for a bitter jest o

Bian. Am I your bird? I n

bush,

And then pursue me as you do

You are welcome all.

[Exeunt BIANCA, KATHARINA]

Pet. She hath prevented me.

Tranio,

This bird you aim'd at, though

Therefore, a health to all that

Tra. O, Sir, Lucentio slip

greyhound,

Which runs himself, and catch

Pet. A good swift^a simile currish.

Tra. 'Tis well, Sir, that you

self;

'Tis thought, your deer does b

Bap. O ho, Petruchio, Tran

Luc. I thank thee for that gi

Hor. Confess, confess, hat

here?

Pet. 'A has a little gall'd n

And, as the jest did glance a

'Tis ten to one it maim'd you

Bap. Now, in good sadness

I think thou hast the veriest

Pet. Well, I say—no: an assurance,

Let's each one send unto his

And he, whose wife is most

To come at first when he doth

Shall win the wager which w

Hor. Content.—What is

Luc. Twenty crowns.

Pet. Twenty crowns!

I'll venture so much on my h

But twenty times so much up

Luc. A hundred then.

Hor. Content.

Pet. A match; 'tis done.

Hor. Who shall begin?

Luc. That will I. Go,

Biondello, bid your mistress

Bion. I go.

Bap. Son, I will be your ha

Luc. I'll have no halves; I

self.

Re-enter BIONDELLO

How now! what news?

Bion. Sir, my mistress an

That she is busy, and she ca

Pet. How! she is busy,

Is that an answer?

Gre. Ay, and a kind one t

Pray God, Sir, your wife an

Pet. I hope, better.

Hor. Sirrah, Biondello, g

wife

To come to me forthwith.

Pet. O, ho! entreat her!

Nay, then she must needs c

Hor. I am afraid, Sir,

Do what you can, yours will

Re-enter BIONDELLO

Now where's my wife?

Bion. She says, you have

in hand;

She will not come; she bids

Pet. Worse and worse; i

Intolerable, not to be endur

^a Witty.

to your mistress;
 to come to me.

[Exit GAUMIO.]

Answer.

not come.

fortune mine, and there an

KATHARINA.

my holidame, here comes
 a!

your will, Sir, that you send your sister, and Hortensio's

confering by the parlour fire.

hither; if they deny to send forth unto their hus-

bring them hither straight.

[Exit KATHARINA.]
 wonder, if you talk of a wonder; I wonder what it bodes.

it bodes, and love, and right supremacy;

what not, that's sweet and befall thee, good Petruchio!

not won; and I will add

twenty thousand crowns;

another daughter,

as she had never been.

I win my wager better 't, 't,

gn of her obedience,

true and obedience.

ARINA, with BIANCA, and WIDOW.

times, and brings your fro-

er womanly persuasion.—

ap of yours becomes you not;

ble, throw it under foot.

A pulls off her cap, and throws

ne never have a cause to sigh,

to such a silly pass!

at a foolish duty call you

your duty were as foolish too.

er duty, fair Bianca,

hundred crowns since supper-

fool you, for laying on my

, I charge thee, tell these

ig women

to owe their lords and hus-

me, you're mocking; we will elling.

I say; and first begin with

not.

shall;—and first begin with

Kath. Fie, fie! unknit that threat'ning unkind brow;

And dart not scornful glances from those eyes,

To wound thy lord, thy king, thy governor:

It blots thy beauty, as frosts bite the meads;

Confounds thy fame, as whirlwinds shake fair

And in no sense is meet, or amiable. [buds;

A woman mov'd, is like a fountain troubled,

Muddy, ill-seeming, thick, bereft of beauty;

And, while it is so, none so dry or thirsty

Will deign to sip, or touch one drop of it.

Thy husband is thy lord, thy life, thy keeper,

Thy head, thy sovereign; one that cares for

thee,

And for thy maintenance: commits his body

To painful labour, both by sea and land,

To watch the night in storms, the day in cold,

While thou liest warm at home, secure and safe;

And craves no other tribute at thy hands,

But love, fair looks, and true obedience;—

Too little payment for so great a debt.

Such duty as the subject owes the prince,

Even such, a woman oweth to her husband:

And, when she's forward, peevish, sullen,

And, not obedient to his honest will, [sour,

What is she, but a foul contending rebel,

And graceless traitor to her loving lord?—

I am asham'd, that women are so simple

To offer war, where they should kneel for

peace;

Or seek for rule, supremacy, and sway,

When they are bound to serve, love, and obey.

Why are our bodies soft, and weak, and smooth,

Unapt to toil and trouble in the world;

But that our soft conditions^a and our hearts,

Should well agree with our external parts?

Come, come, you froward and unable worms!

My mind hath been as big as one of yours,

My heart as great; my reason, haply, more,

To bandy word for word, and frown for frown:

But now, I see our lances are but straws;

Our strength as weak, our weakness past compare,—

That seeming to be most, which we least are.

Then vail your stomachs,[†] for it is no boot;

And place your hands below your husband's

In token of which duty, if he please, [foot:

My hand is ready, may it do him ease!

Pet. Why, there's a wench!—Come on, and kiss me, Kate.

Luc. Well, go thy ways, old lad; for thou shalt ha't.

Vin. 'Tis a good hearing, when children are toward,

Luc. But a harsh bearing, when women are

froward.

Pet. Come, Kate, we'll to-bed:—

We three are married, but we two are sped.

'Twas I won the wager, though you hit the

white; [To LAURENCE.]

And, being a winner, God give you good night!

[Exit PETRUCHIO and KATH.]

Hor. Now go thy ways, thou hast tam'd a curst shrew.

Luc. 'Tis a wonder, by your leave, she will be tam'd so. [Exit.]

^a Gentle tempers.

[†] Abates your spirits.

WINTER'S TALE.

PERSONS REPRESENTED.

SICILIA.	AUTOLYCHUS, a Rogue.
Time.	TIME, as Chorus.
Bohemian Lords.	HERMIONE, Queen to Leontes.
Lord.	PERDITA, Daughter to Leontes.
Gentleman.	PAULINA, Wife to Antigonus.
The young Prince Mamillius.	EMILIA, a Lady, } Attendants
of Judicature.	Two other Ladies, }
of Bohemia.	MORSA, } Shepherdesses.
Bohemian Lord.	DORCAS, }
Reputed Father of Perdita.	Lords, Ladies, and Attendants
Shepherd.	a dance.
	Shepherds, Shepherdesses
	SCENE, sometimes in Sicily
	Bohemia.

ACT I.

—An Antechamber in LEONTES' Palace.

LEONTES and ARCHIDAMUS.

LEONTES. All chance, Camillo, to visit like occasion whereon my foot, you shall see, as I difference betwixt our Bohemia.

LEONTES. As coming summer, the king pay Bohemia the visitation
as him.

LEONTES. For entertainment shall shame
in our loves: for, in-

LEONTES.

LEONTES. I speak it in the freedom of my cannot with such magni-
—I know not what to say:
you sleepy drinks; that your
of our insufficiency, may,
praise us, as little accuse

LEONTES. A great deal too dear, for LEONTES. I speak as my under-me, and as mine honesty

LEONTES. Not show himself over-kind were trained together in and there rooted betwixt an affection, which cannot
now. Since their more ma-royal necessities, made sepa-
ly, their encounters, though
been royally attended,*
of gifts, letters, loving em-

stitution of embassies.

LEONTES. bassies; that they have seem'd
though absent; shook hands,
and embraced, as it were, in opposed winds. The heaven
loves!

ARCH. I think, there is not in malice, or matter, to alter unspeakable comfort of you Mamillius; it is a gentleman's promise, that ever came into

CAM. I very well agree with of him: it is a gallant child;
physica the subject,† makes
they, that went on crutches,
desire yet their life, to see him

ARCH. Would they else be c

CAM. Yes; if there were why they should desire to live

ARCH. If the king had no desire to live on crutches till

SCENE II.—The same.—A
the Palace.

Enter LEONTES, POLIXENES, MILLIUS, CAMILLO, and

POL. Nine changes of the been

LEONTES. The shepherd's note, since Without a burden: time as lo
Would be fill'd up, my bi
And yet we should, for perpe
Go hence in debt: And theref
Yet standing in rich place, I
With one we-thank-you, man
That go before it.

* Wide waste of country.

† Affords a cordial to the State.

by your thanks awhile;
 him when you part.
 that's to-morrow.
 fion'd by my fears, of what may
 know,
 your absence: That my blow
 ig* winds at home, to make us say,
 'forth too truly! Besides, I have r royalty. [stay'd
 are tougher, brother,
 am put us to't.
 nger stay.
 se seven-night longer.
 y sooth, to-morrow.
 I'll part the time between's then:
 I in that
 -saying.
 as me not, beseech you, so;
 to tongue that moves, none, none
 is world, [now,
 yours, could win me: so it should necessity in your request, although I denied it. My affairs
 ag me homeward: which to hinder,
 my love, a whip to me; my stay,
 surge, and trouble: to save both,
 my brother.
 late-tied, our queen! speak you.
 I thought, Sir, to have held my up, until
 own oaths from him, not to stay.
 I, Sir,
 too coldly: Tell him, you are sure,
 mda's well: this satisfaction
 day proclaim'd; say this to him, om his best ward.
 I said, Hermione.
 tell, he longs to see his son, were
 ag:
 my so then, and let him go;
 swear so, and he shall not stay,
 k him hence with distaffs.—
 royal presence [To POLIXENES,] adventure
 of a week. When at Bohemia
 y lord, I'll give him my commis-
 here a month, behind the guest his parting: yet, good deed,† Le-
 on,
 not a jar‡ o'the clock behind
 he her lord.—You'll stay?
 madam.
 but you will?
 not, verily.
 y!
 off with limber‡ vows: But I,
 would seek to unsphere the stars
 oaths,
 ay, Sir, no going. Verily,
 at go; a lady's verily is a lord's. Will you go yet?
 keep you as a prisoner,
 nest; so you shall pay your fees,
 depart, and save your thanks.
 say you? [verily,
 or my guest* by your dread
 you shall be.
 guest then, madam:
 prisoner, should import offending;
 me less easy to commit,
 putish.

Her. Not your jailer then, [you
 But your kind hostess. Come, I'll question
 Of my lord's tricks, and yours, when you
 You were pretty lordings* then. [were boys;
 Pol. We were, fair queen,
 Two lads, that thought there was no more be-
 But such a day to-morrow as to-day, [hind,
 And to be boy eternal.
 Her. Was not my lord the verier wag o'the
 two?
 Pol. We were as twinn'd lambs, that did
 frisk i'the sun, [chang'd,
 And bleat the one at the other: what we
 Was innocence for innocence; we knew not
 The doctrine of all-doing, no, nor dream'd
 That any did: Had we pursued that life,
 And our weak spirits ne'er been higher rear'd
 With stronger blood, we should have answer'd
 heaven
 Boldly, Not guilty; the imposition clear'd, Hereditary ours.
 Her. By this we gather,
 You have tripp'd since.
 Pol. O my most sacred lady, [for Temptations have since then been born to us:
 In those unledg'd days was my wife a girl;
 Your precious self had then not cross'd the eyes
 Of my young playfellow.
 Her. Grace to boot!
 Of this make no conclusion; lest you say,
 Your queen and I are devils: Yet, go on;
 The offences we have made you do, we'll answer;
 If you first sinn'd with us, and that with us
 You did continue fault, and that you slipp'd not
 With any but with us.
 Leon. Is he won yet?
 Her. He'll stay, my lord.
 Leon. At my request, he would not.
 Hermione, my dearest, thou never spok'st
 To better purpose.
 Her. Never!
 Leon. Never, but once.
 Her. What? have I twice said well? when was't before? [make us
 I pr'ythee, tell me: Cram us with praise, and As fat as tame things: One good deed, dying
 tongueless,
 Slaughters a thousand, waiting upon that.
 Our praises are our wages: You may ride us,
 With one soft kiss, a thousand furlongs, ere
 With spur we heat an acre. But to the jail:—
 My last good was, to entreat his stay;
 What was my first? it has an elder sister,
 Or I mistake you: O, would her name were
 Grace!
 But once before I spoke to the purpose: When?
 Nay, let me have't; I long.
 Leon. Why, that was when [to death,
 Three crabbed months had sour'd themselves
 Ere I could make thee open thy white hand,
 And clap thyself my love; then didst thou
 I am yours for ever. [utter,
 Her. It is Grace, indeed.— [twice:
 Why, lo you now, I have spok'd to the purpose
 The one for ever earn'd a royal husband;
 The other, for some while a friend.
 [Giving her hand to POLIXENES.
 Leon. Too hot, too hot: [Aside.
 To mangle friendship far, is mingling bloods.
 I have tremor cordis‡ on me.—my heart dances;
 But not for joy,—not joy.—This entertainment
 May a free face put on; derive a liberty

* The names of the stars where the King
 during a royal progress.
 † Tick. ‡ Flimsy

* A diminutive of lords.
 † Setting aside original sin.
 ‡ Trembling of the heart.

WINTER'S TALE

ounty, fertile bosom,
 nt: it may, I grant:
 and pinching fingers,
 long practis'd smiles,
 and then to sigh, as

that is entertainment
 my brows.—Mamil[lius.

What, hast snatch'd

of mine. Come, cap[tain:

at, but cleanly, cap-
 fer, and the calf,
 virginallings;
 EVES and HERMIONE.
 w, you wanton calf?

my lord,
 ough push, and the
 e.

they say, we are women say so,
 But were they false
 and, as waters; false ly one that fixes
 d mine; yet were it

me.—Come, Sir page,
 welkin' eye: Sweet

o'—Can thy dam?

stabs the centre:
 things not so held us;—(How can this active art, (be?—
 Then, 'tis very cre[dost;
 something; and thou ssion; and I find it,)
 of my brains,
 ws.
 a?
 his unsettled.

th you, best brother?

much distraction:

erst—
 ll betray its folly,
 itself a pastime
 ng on the lines
 ights, I did recoil
 d saw myself un-

my dagger muzzled,
 ster, and so prove,
 dangerous.

then was to this ker[friend,

eman:—Mine honest
 oney !!!
 ght.

happy man be his ther, I
 of the deer.

as if on a spinnet.
 and the budding horns Boundary
 Credible.
 With you be rejoiced.
 happy one

Are you so fond of your young
 Do seem to be of ours?

Pol. If at home, Sir,
 He's all my exercise, my mirth,
 Now my sworn friend, and the
 My parasite, my soldier, states
 He makes a July's day short as
 And, with his varying childnes Thoughts that would thicken my Leon. So stands this squire Offic'd with me: We two will

 And leave you to your grave
 moine,

How thou lov'st us, show in Let what is dear in Sicily, be c
 Next to thyself, and my young Apparent* to my heart.

Her. If you would seek us,
 We are yours i'the garden: Sh

Leon. To your own bents disp
 be found,

Be you beneath the sky:—I an Though you perceive me not he Go to, go to!

[Aside. Observing POLIXENES:
 How she holds up the neb,† the
 And arms her with the boldnes
 To her allowing; husband! Go Inch-thick, knee-deep; o'er he fork'd one.‡—

[Exit POLIXENES, I
 Attendants.

Go, play, boy, play;—thy moth
 Play too; but so disgrac'd a pe
 Will hiss me to my grave; con
 mour

Will be my knell.—Go, play
 There have been,

Or I am much deceiv'd, cuckold
 And many a man there is, even Now, while I speak this, holds arm,

 That little thinks she has been
 And his pond fish'd by his nex
 Sir Smile, his neighbour: nay,

in't,
 Whiles other men have gates;
 As mine, against their will: She
 That have revolted wives, the te Would hang themselves. Ph

is none;
 It is a bawdy planet, that will Where 'tis predominant; and think it,

From east, west, north, and so
 No barricado for a belly; know
 It will let in and out the enemy
 With bag and baggage: many s
 Have the disease, and feel't no
 boy?

Mam. I am like you, they sa
 Leon. Why that's some comfi

What! Camillo there?

Cam. Ay, my good lord.

Leon. Go play, Mamillius; th man.— [E

Camillo, this great Sir will yet
 Cam. You had much ado to n

hold:

When you cast out, it still cam

Leon. Didst note it?

Cam. He would not stay at His business more material.

Leon. Didst perceive it?—

* Their apparent, next claimant.
 † Approving. ‡ A horse

with me already; whispering, siding,"
to work: 'Tis far gone,
no gust it last.—How came't, Ca-
llo stay? [nillo,

the good queen's entreaty.
the queen's, be't: good, should be
thence;

It is not. Was this taken instructing pate but thine?
seem to soaking, will draw in (is't,
the common blocks.—Not noted,
their natures? by some severals,
the extraordinary! lower messes,†
sure to this business purblind; say.
shows, my lord? I think, most unhappy here longer. [derstand

at eye here longer.

but why?

satisfy your highness, and the end gracious mistress. [treaties

thy
thee of your mistress?—satisfy?— thee. I have trusted thee, Camillo, dearest things to my heart, as well
my councils: wherein, priest-like,
in

my bosom; I from thee departed
my reform'd: but we have been thy integrity, deceiv'd
in seems so.

th forbid, my lord!

hide upon't;—Thou art not honest:

isn't that way, thou art a coward;
thy honesty behind, restraining to requir'd: Or else thou must be noted

grafted in my serious trust,
a negligent; or else a fool,
a game play'd home, the rich stake
it all for jest. [drawn,

gracious lord,
egligent, foolish, and fearful;
se of these no man is free,
a negligence, his folly, fear,
the infinite doings of the world,
puts forth: In your affairs, my lord,
we wilful-negligent,
folly, if industriously
a fool, it was my negligence,
ing well the end; if ever fearful
ing, where I the issue doubted,
no execution did cry out
a non-performance, 'twas a fear
effects the wisest these, my lord, allow'd infirmities, that honesty
se of. But, beseech your grace, with me; let me know my trespass
visage if I then deny it,
of mine.

are not you seen, Camillo, [glass
past doubt. you have, or your eye-
than a cuckold's burn;) or heard, vision so apparent, rumour mute,) or thought, (for cogitation
in that man, that does not think

)
slippery! If thou wilt confess,
a impudently negative, [say,
or eyes, nor ears, nor thought,) then a hobbyhorse; deserves a name
any flax-wench, that puts to truth-plight: say it, and justify it.

I in the ear was to tell secretly. † Thine.
in rank. ‡ To have as to instructing.

Cam. I would not be a stander-by, to hear
My sovereign mistress clouded so, without
My present vengeance taken: 'Shrew my heart;
You never spoke what did become you less Than this, which to reiterate, were sin
As deep as that, though true.

Leon. Is whispering nothing?

Is leaning cheek to cheek? Is meeting noses?
Kissing with inside lip? stopping the career
Of laughter with a sigh? (a note intalible
Of breaking honesty:) horsing foot on foot?
Skulking in corners? wishing clocks were swift? [blind

Hours, minutes? noon, midnight? and all eyes
With the pin and web,* but theirs, theirs only,
That would unseen be wicked? is this nothing?
Why, then, the world, and all that's in't, is no-
thing;

The covering sky is nothing: Bohemia nothing.
My wife is nothing; nor nothing have these
If this be nothing. [nothings

Cam. Good my lord, be cur'd
Of this diseas'd opinion, and betimes;
For 'tis most dangerous.

Leon. Say, it be; 'tis true.

Cam. No, no, my lord.

Leon. It is; you lie, you lie:

I say, thou liest, Camillo, and I hate thee;
Pronounce thee a gross lout, a mindless slave;
Or else a hovering temporizer, that [evil,
Canst with thine eyes at once see good and Inclining to them both: Were my wife's liver
Infected as her life, she would not live
The running of one glass.†

Cam. Who does infect her?

Leon. Why he, that wears her like her medal, hanging

About his neck, Bohemia: Who—if I
Had servants true about me: that bare eyes
To see alike mine honour as their profits,
Their own particular thrifts,—they would do

Which should undo more doing: Ay, and thou,
His cup-bearer,—whom I from meaner form Have bench'd, and rear'd to worship; who may'st see [heaven,

Plainly, as heaven sees earth, and earth sees
How I am galled,—might'st bespice a cup,
To give mine enemy a lasting wink,
Which draught to me were cordial.

Cam. Sir, my lord,

I could do this; and that with no rash† potion,
But with a ling'ring dram, that should not work

Maliciously‡ like poison: But I cannot Believe this crack to be in my dread mistress
So sovereignly being honourable.

I have lov'd thee,——

Leon. Make't thy question, and go rot!

Dost think, I am so muddy, so unsettled,
To appoint myself in this vexation? sully
The purity and whiteness of my sheets,
Which to preserve, is sleep; which being spotted,

Is goads, thorns, nettles, tails of wasps?
Give scandal to the blood o'the prince my son,
Who, I do think is mine, and love as mine;
Without ripe moving to't? Would I do this?
Could man so blush?¶

Cam. I must believe you, Sir;

I do; and will fetch off Bohemia for't:
Provided, that when he's remov'd, your high-
ness

Will take again your queen, as yours at first;

* Disorders of the eye. † Hour-glass. ‡ Flaky.

† Maliciously, with effects openly harmful.

¶ I. e. Could any man so start off from propriety?

At m

that creature: as she's rare,
 silent; and, as his person's mighty,
 silent; and as he does conceive her'd by a man which ever him, why, his revenges must be more bitter. Fear o'ershades

tion be my friend, and comfort
 a queen, part of his theme, but no-
 in suspicion! Come, Camillo;
 it thee as a father, if my life off hence: Let us avoid.
 in mine authority, to command of all the posterns. Please your
 grace

urgent hour: come, Sir, away.

[Exit.]

ACT II.

SCENE I.—The same.

AMIONE, MARILLIUS, and LADIES.

the boy to you: he so troubles me,
 during.

Come, my gracious lord,
 your playfellow?

I'll none of you.

Why, my sweet lord?

He kisses me hard; and speak to me
 by still.—I love you better. [as if had why so, my good lord?

It for because [say,

rare blacker; yet black brows, they

no women best; so that there be not

hair there, but in a semi-circle,

on made with a pen.

Who taught you this?

Learn'd it out of women's faces.—

ay now

are your eye-brows?

Blue, my lord.

ay, that's a mock: I have seen a

ly's nose

can blue, but not her eye-brows.

Hark ye: [shall

, your mother, rounds apace: we

services to a fine new prince,

days; and then you'd wanton with

d have you. [us,

she is spread of late ly bulk: Good time encounter her'

at wisdom stirs amongst you? Come,

; now

us again: Pray you, sit by us, a tale.

erry, or sad, shall't be?

merry as you will.

sad tale's best for winter:

of sprites and goblins.

It's have that, Sir. [best sit down:—Come on, and do your

with your sprites: you're powerful

ill.

here was a man,—

y, come, sit down, then on.

welt by a church-yard,—I will tell softly;

as shall not hear it.

me on then,

me in mine ear.

eyes, ANTIQUES, LORDS, and others.

as he met there? his train? Camillo

th him?

1 Lord. Behind the tuft of pines I met them;
 never

Saw I men scout so on their way: I ey'd them
 Even to their ships.

Leon. How blest'd am I

In my just censure? in my true opinion?—

Alack, for lesser knowledge! How accur'd,

In being so blest!—There may be in the cup

A spider steep'd, and one may drink; depart,

And yet partake no venom, for his knowledge

Is not infected: but if one present

The abhor'd ingredient to his eye, make known

How he hath drunk, he cracks his gorge, his

sides,

With violent hefts.—I have drank, and seen

the spider.

Camillo was his help in this, his pander:—

There is a plot against my life, my crown,

Alas, true that is mistrusted:—that false villain,

Whom I employ'd, was pre-employ'd by him;

He has discover'd my design, and I

Remain a pinch'd thing; yea, a very trick

For them to play at will.—How came the pos-

So easily open? [turns

1 Lord. By his great authority;

Which often hath no less prevail'd than so,

On your command.

Leon. I know't too well—

Give me the boy; I am glad, you did not nurse

him: [you

Though he does bear some signs of me, yet

Have too much blood in him.

Her. What is this? sport?

Leon. Bear the boy hence, he shall not come about her,

Away with him:—and let her sport herself

With that she's big with, for 'tis Polixenes

Has made thee swell thus.

Her. But I'd say, he had not,

And, I'll be sworn, you would believe my say—

Howe'er you lean to the wayward. [ing,

Leon. You, my lords.

Look on her, mark her well; be but about

To say, she is a goodly lady, and

The justice of your hearts will thereto add,

'Tis pity she's not honest, honourable:

Praise her but for this her without-door form,

(Which, on my faith, deserves high speech,) and straight

The shrug, the hum, or ha, these pretty brands,

That calumny doth use:—O, I am out,

That mercy does; for calumny will sear

Virtue itself:—these shrugs, these hums, and

ha's, [tween,

When you have said she's goodly, come be-

Ere you can say she's honest. But be it known,

From him that has most cause to grieve it should be,

She's an adulteress.

Her. Should a villain say so,

The most replenish'd villain in the world,

He were as much more villain: you, my lord,

Do but mistake.

Leon. You have mistook, my lady,

Polixenes for Leontes: O thou thing,

Which I'll not call a creature of thy place,

Lest barbarism, making me the precedent,

Should a like language use to all degrees,

And manfully distinguishment leave out

Between the prince and beggar!—I have said,

She's an adulteress; I have said with whom

More, she's a traitor; and Camillo is

* Judgement. + O that my knowledge were less.

† Spiders were esteemed poisonous in our author's time.

‡ Heavings.

§ A thing pinched out of clouds, a puppet.

¶ Brand as infamous.

WINTER'S TALE.

and one that knows
to know herself,
principal, that she's bad as those titles; ay, and privy

How will this grieve
[that to clearer knowledge,
me? Gentle my lord, thoroughly then, to say stake

uch I build upon,
ough to bear
ay with her to prison:
et, as afar off guilty,†

planet reigns:
e heavens look avourable.—Good my
g, as our sex [lords,
it of which vain dew,
or pities: but I have lodg'd here, which [lords,

'Beseech you all, my
ed as your charities
measure me;—and so
rm'd!
[To the Guards.
ea with me?—Beseech

me; for, you see,
Do not weep, good [mistress
n you shall know, your en abound in tears,
on, I now go on,
Adieu, my lord:
u sorry; now,
women, come; you

ling; hence.
ant Queen and Ladies.
ur highness, call the

you do, Sir; lest your [suffer.
which three great ones
our son.

ord,—
and will do't, Sir,
that the queen is spot-

d to you; I mean,
e her.

ep my stables] where
o in couples with her;
see her, no further trust
n in the world, [her;
an's flesh, is false,

es.

e speak, not for our-

some putter-on,† r't; 'would I knew the [saw'd,— hun: Be she honour-

; the eldest is eleven;

ly; † Remotely guilty.
† Take my station.
gator,

The second, and the third, ain
If this prove true, they'll pe
honour,

I'll geld them all; fourteen th
To bring false generations: †
And I had rather glib myself,
Should not produce fair issue.

Leon. Cease; no more.
You smell this business with
As is a dead man's nose: I as
As you feel doing thus; and
The instruments that feel.

Ant. If it be so,
We need no grave to bury her There's not a grain of it, the
Of the whole dungy earth.

Leon. What! lack I credit!
1 Lord. I had rather you dis
lord,

Upon this ground: and more
To have her honour true, than
Be blam'd for't how you might

Leon. Why, what need we Commune with you of this? †
Our forceful instigation? Owe Calls not your counsels: but neers

Imparts this: which,—if you
Or seeming so in skill,) can Relish as truth, like us; info
We need no more of your adv
The loss, the gain, the order Properly ours.

Ant. And I wish, my liege,
You had only in your silent ju
Without more overture.

Leon. How could that be?
Either thou art most ignorant
Or thou wert born a fool. C
Added to their familiarity, (Which was as gross as ever fr
That lack'd sight only, now
tion,*

But only seeing, all other cir
Made up to the deed,) doth
Yet, for a greater confirmati
(For, in an act of this import Most piteous to be wild,) I h
post,

To sacred Delphos, to Apoll Cleomenes and Dion, whom (Of stuff'd sufficiency: † Now
They will bring all; whose had,

Shall stop, or spur me. Hav
1 Lord. Well done, my lord

Leon. Though I am satisfi
more

Than what I know, yet shall Give rest to the minds of oth
Whose ignorant credulity wi
Come up to the truth: So hu
From our free person she sh
Lest that the treachery of the
Be left her to perform. Com
We are to speak in public: †
Will raise us all.

Ant. [Aside.] To laughte
If the good truth were know

SCENE II.—The same.—Th Prison.

Enter PAULINA and
Paul. The keeper of the pri
[

* Troof. † Of children and knowledge who I am.—Good Europe is too good for thee, [Sir,

then in prison!—Now, good Attendant, with the Keeper.

do you not?
a worthy lady,
much I honour.
you, then,
to the queen.
my not, madam; to the contrary
my commandment.
it's ado,
honesty and honour from
if gentle visitors!—Is it lawful,
to see her women? any of them?

Please you, madam, to put your attendants, I shall bring my now, call her. [Exeunt Attend.

madam,
present at your conference.
be it so, pr'ythee.

[Exit KEEPER.
to make no stain a stain,
staining.

KEEPER, with EMILIA.

Woman, how fares our gracious

well as one so great, and so forgether: On her frights, and griefs,

a tender lady hath borne greater,
thing before her time, deliver'd.

ughter; and a goodly babe,
like to live: the queen receives
it in't: says, My poor prisoner,
it as you.

be sworn.—
gious unsafe lures* o'the king!
new them!

told on't, and he shall: the office
human best; I'll take't upon me:
they-mouth'd, let my tongue blis-

my red-look'd anger be [ter;
any more:—Pray you, Emilia,
y best obedience to the queen;

trust me with her little babe,
be king, and undertake to be
be to th' loudest: We do not know

soften at the sight o'the child;
often of pure innocence
when speaking fails.

it worthy madam,
f, and your goodness, is so evident,
we undertaking cannot miss

issue; there is no lady living,
r this great errand: Please your
ship

next room, I'll presently
e queen of your most noble offer;
-day, hammer'd of this design;

it tempt a minister of honour,
ould be denied.
I her, Emilia,

tongue I have: if wit flow from it,
e from my bosom, let it not be
red. [doubted

be you bless'd for it!
queen: Please you, come some-
g nearer.

Keep. Madam, if't please the queen to see the babe,

I know not what I shall incur, to pass it,
Having no warrant.

Paul. You need not fear it, Sir:
The child was prisoner to the womb; and is,
By law and process of great nature, thence Freed and enfranchis'd: not a party to The anger of the king; nor guilty of,
If any be, the trespass of the queen.

Keep. I do believe it.

Paul. Do not you fear: upon Mine honour, I will stand 'twixt you and danger. [Exeunt.

SCENE III.—The same.—A Room in the Palace.

Enter LEONTES, ANTIGONOS, LORDS, and other
ATTENDANTS.

Leon. Nor night, nor day, no rest: It is but weakness

To bear the matter thus; mere weakness, if
The cause were not in being;—part o'the
cause,

She, the adulteress;—for the harlot king
Is quite beyond mine arm, out of the blank
And level* of my brain, plot-proof: but she
I can hook to me: Say, that she were gone,
Given to the fire, a moiety of my rest
Might come to me again.—Who's there?

1 Atten. My lord? [Advancing.

Leon. How does the boy?

1 Atten. He took good rest to-night;

'Tis hop'd, his sickness is discharg'd.

Leon. To see,

His nobleness!

Conceiving the dishonour of his mother,
He straight declin'd, droop'd, took it deeply;
Fasten'd and fix'd the shame on't in himself;
Threw off his spirit, his appetite, his sleep,
And downright languish'd.—Leave me solely:—go,

See how he fares. [Exit Attend.]—Fie, fie! no thought of him;—

The very thought of my revenges that way
Recoil upon me: in himself too mighty;
And in his parties, his alliance,—Let him be,
Until a time may serve: for present vengeance,
Take it on her. Camillo and Polixenes [row:
Laugh at me, make their pastime at my sor-
They should not laugh, if I could reach them;
Shall she, within my power. [nor

Enter PAULINA, with a Child.

1 Lord. You must not enter.

Paul. Nay, rather, good my lords, be second
to me:

Fear you his tyrannous passion more, alas,
Than the queen's life! a gracious innocent
More free, than he is jealous. [soul;

Ant. That's enough.

1 Atten. Madam, he hath not slept to-night;
None should come at him. [commanded

Paul. Not so hot, good Sir;

I come to bring him sleep. 'Tis such as you,—
That creep like shadows by him, and do sigh
At each his needless heavings,—such as you Nourish the cause of his awaking: I
Do come with words as med'cinal as true;
Honest, as either; to purge him of that hu-
That presses him from sleep. [mour,

Leon. What noise there, ho!

Paul. No noise, my lord; but needful conference,

WINTER'S TALE.

your highness.

ous lady: Antigonus,
e should not come about [me;

y lord,
peril, and on mine,

ot rule her?
onesty, he can in this,
urse that you have done,
ting honour,) trust it,

ou hear!
rein, I let her run;

, I come,— ar me, who profess
ant, your physician,
unseller; yet that dare
starting your evils," seems yours:—I say, I [come ny lord, good queen: I

u;

ake her good, so were I
ut you.

akes but trifles of his

e own accord, I'll off;
rand.—The good queen
h brought you forth a t to your blessing.

Laying down the Child.

Hence with her, out o'
bawd! [door:

at, as you
u no less honest
uch is enough, I'll war-

pass for honest.
[tard:—

out? Give her the basrIGONUS.] thou art wo-roasted

here,—take up the bas-
t to thy crone.] [tard;

nds, if thou
by that forced baseness

wife.
you did; then, 'twere

en yours.
ors!

his good light.

ed that's himself: for he himself, his queen's,

be's, betrays to slander,

than the sword's; and

stands, it is a curse
d to't,) once remove

, which is rotten,
was sound.

† Lowest.
by a woman; hen-pecked.

with violence to truth.

Leon. A callat,*
Of boundless tongue; who la
And now beats me!—This brat
It is the issue of Polixenes:
Hence with it; and, together
Commit them to the fire.

Paul. It is yours;
And, might we lay the old
So like you, 'tis the worse.—H
Although the print be little, d
And copy of the father: eye,
The trick of his frown, his for valley,

The pretty dimples of his chin
The very mould and frame of h
And, thou, good goddess nat

made it
So like to him that got it, if d
The ordering of the mind i colours

No yellowt in't; lest she sus
Her children not her husband

Leon. A gross hag!—
And, lozel,† thou art worthy

That wilt not stay her tongue
Ant. Hang all the husbands

That cannot do that feat, you Hardly one subject.

Leon. Once more, take her Paul. A most unworthy and

Can do no more.

Leon. I'll have thee burn'd.
Paul. I care not:

It is a heretic, that makes the
Not she, which burns in't.

But this most cruel usage of y
(Not able to produce more ac

Than your own weak-hing'd fi
savours

Of tyranny, and will ignoble
Yea, scandalous to the world.

Leon. On your allegiance,
Out of the chamber with her.

Where were her life? she dur
If she did know me one. Av

Paul. I pray you, do not gone.

Look to your babe, my lord;
A better guiding spirit!—W

hands!—
You, that are thus so tender o

Will never do him good, not o
So, so:—Farewell; we are g

Leon. Thou, traitor, hast o
this.—

My child? away with't!—eve
A heart so tender o'er it, take

And see it instantly consum'd
Even thou, and none but th

straight:
Within this hour bring me wo

(And by good testimony,) or I With what thou else call'st th

fuse,
And wilt encounter with my

The bastard brains with th
hands

Shall I dash out. Go, take it
For thou sett'st on thy wife.

Ant. I did not, Sir:
These lords, my noble fellows

Can clear me in't.

I Lord. We can; my royal
He is not guilty of her coming † Trull.

† The coke

‡ Worthless fellow

are liars all.

Beseech your highness, give us
that credit:

Always truly serv'd you; and beseech
us of us: And on our knees we beg,
pardon of our dear services,
(to come,) that you do change this
issue;

ing so horrible, so bloody, must issue foul issue: We all kneel.
—a feather for each wind that sweeps:

you, to see this bastard kneel
in father? Better burn it now, let it live. But, be it; let it live:
not neither.—You, Sir, come you
hither; [To ANTIQONOS.

have been so tenderly officious
Margery, your midwife, there,
is bastard's life.—for 'tis a bastard,
(his beard's grey,—what will you venture
in heat's life?

g thing, my lord,
ibility may undergo,
issue impose: at least, thus much;
the little blood which I have left,
innocent: any thing possible.
shall be possible: Swear by this
word*

perform my bidding.

Alas, my lord.

hark, and perform it; (seest thou?)
the fail

at in't shall not only be myself, but to thy lewd-tongu'd wife;
at this time, we pardon. We enjoin
on,

a liegeman to us, that thou carry a bastard hence, and that thou bear

mote and desert place, quite out visions; and that there thou leave it,
ere mercy, to its own protection,
of the climate. As by strange fortune

us, I do in justice charge thee,— it's peril, and thy body's torture,— commend it strangely to some place, where may nurse, or end it. Take it wear to do this, though a present

with

more merciful.—Come on, poor babe
erful spirit instruct the kites and vultures, [say,

—wolves! Wolves, and bears, they eat savageness aside, have done
us of pity.—Sir, be prosperous [ing,
as this deed doth require! and bless-
is cruelty, fight on thy side, condemn'd to loss!

[Exit, with the Child.

o. I'll not rear
issue.

Please your highness, posts,
e you sent to the oracle, are come back: Cleomenes and Dion, li arriv'd from Delphos, are both in the court. [landed

So please you, Sir, their speed beyond account.

Twenty-three days [tels,
been absent. 'Tis good speed, fore-idently a practice to swear by the cross at the

of

omit it to some place as a stranger.

The great Apollo suddenly will have
The truth of this appear. Prepare you lords;
Summon a session, that we may arraign
Our most disloyal lady: for, as she hath Been publicly accus'd, so shall she have A just and open trial. While she lives,
My heart will be a burden to me. Leave me;
And think upon my bidding. [Exeunt.

ACT III.

SCENE I.—The same.—A Street in some Town.
Enter CLEOMENES and DION.

Cleo. The climate's delicate; the air most sweet;

Fertile the isle; the temple much surpassing
The common praise it bears.

Dion. I shall report,
For most it caught me, the celestial habits, (Methinks, I so should term them,) and the reverence

Of the grave wearers. O, the sacrifice!
How ceremonious, solemn, and unearthly
It was i'the offering!

Cleo. But, of all, the burst
And the ear-deafening voice o'the oracle,
Kin to Jove's thunder, so surpris'd my sense,
That I was nothing.

Dion. If the event o'the journey,
Prove as successful to the queen,—O, be't so!—
As it hath been to us, rare, pleasant, speedy,
The time is worth the use on't.*

Cleo. Great Apollo,
Turn all to the best! These proclamations,
So forcing faults upon Hermione,
I little like.

Dion. The violent carriage of it [oracle,
Will clear, or end, the business. When the (Thus by Apollo's great divine seal'd up,)
Shall the contents discover, something rare, Event then will rush to knowledge.—Go,— fresh horses,—

And gracious be the issue! [Exeunt.

SCENE II.—The same.—A Court of Justice.

LEONTES, LORDS, and OFFICERS, appear properly
seated.

Leon. This sessions (to our great grief, we pronounce,)

Even pushes 'gainst our heart. The party tried,
The daughter of a king; our wife; and one
Of us too much belov'd.—Let us be clear'd
Of being tyrannous, since we so openly Proceed in justice; which shall have due
course,

Event to the guilt, or the purgation.—
Produce the prisoner.

Off. It is his highness' pleasure, that the queen
Appear in person here in court.—Silence!

HERMIONE is brought in, guarded; PAULINA and LADIES, attending.

Leon. Read the indictment.

Off. Hermione, queen to the worthy Leontes, king of Sicilia, thou art here accus'd and arraigned of high treason, in committing adultery
with Polixenes, king of Bohemia; and conspiring with Camillo to take away the life of our sovereign lord the king, thy royal husband, the pretence wherof being by circumstances partly laid open, thou, Hermione, contrary to the faith and allegiance of a true subject, didst counsel and aid them, for their better safety, to fly away by
night.

* I.e. Our journey has recompens'd us the time we spent in it.

† Equal.

‡ Schenck 111d.

WINTER'S TALE

be long, before ste; and go not to be loud weather;
us for the creatures

[Exit

ev'd,) the spirits of

ning be, thy mother
for ne'er was dream
mes a creature,
side, some another;
sorrow.

in pure white robes,
approach

bow'd before me;
speech, her eyes

ry spent, anon
and Antigonus,

disposition,
thrower-out

thine oath,— Bohemian,

ing, and, for the babe

gentle business,
ne'er shall see

so, with shrieks,
ghted much,

and thought Dreams are toys:

stitutionally,
I do believe,

ath, and that deed the issue

d here be laid,
on the earth

in, speed thee well!
ing down the Child.

character,* there
ing down a Bundle.

so, both bread thee,

The storm begins:—

t, art thus expos'd
w!—Weep I can-

most occurs'd am I,
is—Farewell!

more; thou art like

er saw [moor?
ay. A savage cla-

This is the chase;
t, pursued by a Bear.

FFHERD.

ere no age between
or that youth would

ere is nothing in the
ches with child,

stealing, fighting.—
any but these boiled

o-and-twenty, hunt
scared away two of

fear, the wolf will ter: if any where I

a side, browsing on ored with Perdita.

ivy. Good luck, an't be thy v
we here? [Taking up the Child.
barne,* a very pretty barne! A
I wonder? A pretty one; a v
Sure, some scape: though I s
yet I can read waiting-gentl scape. Thus has been some st trunk-work, some behind-d
were warmer that got this, tha is here. I'll take it up for pit till my son come; he hallued Whoa, ho ho!

Enter CLOWN.

Clo. Hillos, loa!

Shep. What, art so near? I thing to talk on when thou art
come hither. What ailest thou

Clo. I have seen two such sig
by land;—but I am not to say, it is now the sky; betwixt thi
it, you cannot thrust a bodkin

Shep. Why, boy, how is it?

Clo. I would, you did but se
how it rages, how it takes up that's not to the point: O, the of the poor souls! sometimes not to see 'em. now the ship I with her main-mast; and anon yeast and troth, as you'd thru hoghead. And then for the la see how the bear tore out his how he cried to me for help, an was Antigonus, a nobleman:—
end of the ship:—to see ho dragoned; it:—but, first, how roared, and the sea mocked t
the poor gentleman roared,
mocked him, both roaring low or weather.

Shep. Name of mercy, whe

Clo. Now, now; I have not saw these sights; the men a under water, nor the bear bu
gentleman, he's at it now.

Shep. Would I had been by the old man!

Clo. I would you had been to have helped her, there you have lacked footing.

Shep. Heavy matters! hea look thee here, boy. Now bli net't with things dying, I v born. Here's a sight for the bearing-cloth; for a squire's c
here; take up, take up, boy;
see; It was told me, I should fairies: this is some claug
What's within boy?

Clo. You're a made old ma
your youth are forgiven you live. Gold! all gold!

Shep. This is fairy gold, boy
so up with it, keep it close;
next way. We are lucky, b still, requires nothing but st
sheep go.—Come, good boy
home.

Clo. Go you the next way wi
I'll go see if the bear be gone man, and how much he hath

* Child. † Female infant.

‡ The mantle in which a child was c

§ Some child left behind by the sh

one which they had stolen.

¶ Seated.

old but when they are hungry: if I have a good deed: if thou may'st find out what is left of him, what he is,
 'tis all I wish: and you shall help to find it. [Exit.]
 'Tis a lucky day, boy; and we'll do our best.

ACT IV.

Enter Time, as Chronos.

—That please come, try all; both
 good and evil.

I had; that make, and unfold error,
 you see, in the name of Time,
 wings. Impute it not a crime,
 or swift passage, that I slide
 'tween years, and leave the growth un-

tripped; since it is in my power to flow, and in one self-born hour
 I o'erwhelm custom: Let me pass o'er, ere ancient order was,
 now revived: I witness to what brought them in; so shall I be the first things now reigning; and I'll make

of this present, as my tale is fit. Your patience this allowing,
 go; and give my sense such grow-thrust between. Lament leaving of his fond jealousy; so grieving,

 a up himself; imagine me, I stors, that I now may be mia; and remember well,
 a son o' the king's, which Florizel
 to you; and with speed so pace Perdita, now grown in grace sound'ring. What of her ensues, phesy; but let Time's news
 then 'tis brought forth:—a shep-
 's daughter,
 her adheres, which follows after,
 rest of time: Of this allow, I ave spent time worse ere now;
 that Time himself doth say,
 mostly, you never may. [Exit.]

The same.—A Room in the Palace of POLIXENES.

POLIXENES and CAMILLO.

—Thee, good Camillo, be no more
 'tis a sickness, denying thee any b, to grant this.

fifteen years, since I saw my gh I have, for the most part, been
 I desire to lay my bones there.
 penitent king, my master, hath o whose feeling sorrows I might
 i, or I o'erween[†] to think so;
 ver spur to my departure.

u lovest me, Camillo, wipe not thy services, by leaving me now:
 'e of thee, thine own goodness ill[‡] not to have had thee, than thee; thou, having made me
 uch none, without thee, can suf-ge, must either stay to execute or take away with thee the very examined the progress of the internecine

 that up the gap in Perdita's story.

ma. † Subject. ‡ Approve.

† Think too highly

services thou hast done: which, if I have not enough considered, (as too much I cannot,) to be more thankful to thee, shall be my study;
 and my profit therein, the heaping friendships
 Of that fatal country Sicilia, pr'ythee speak no more, whose very naming punishes me with the remembrance of that penitent, as thou call'st him, and reconciled king, my brother, whose loss of his most precious queen, and children, are even now to be afresh lamented. Say to me, when saw'st thou the prince Florizel my son? Kings are no less unhappy, their issue not being gracious, than they are in losing them, when they have approved their virtues.

Cam. Sir, it is three days, since I saw the prince: What his happier affairs may be, are to me unknown: but I have, missingly, noted,
 he is of late much retired from court; and is less frequent to his princely exercises, than formerly he hath appeared.

Pol. I have considered so much, Camillo;
 and with some care; so far, that I have eyes
 under my service, which look upon his removedness: from whom I have this intelligence;
 That he is seldom from the house of a most homely shepherd; a man, they say, that from very nothing, and beyond the imagination of his neighbours, is grown into an unspeak-able estate.

Cam. I have heard, Sir, of such a man, who hath a daughter of most rare note: the report of her is extended more, than can be thought to begin from such a cottage.

Pol. That's likewise part of my intelligence.
 But, I fear the angle that plucks our son thither. Thou shalt accompany us to the place:
 where we will, not appearing what we are,
 have some question; with the shepherd; from whose simplicity, I think it not uneasy, to get the cause of my son's resort thither. Pr'ythee, be my present partner in this business, and lay aside the thoughts of Sicilia.

Cam. I willingly obey your command.

Pol. My best Camillo!—We must disguise ourselves. [Exit.]

SCENE II.—The same.—A Road near the Shepherd's Cottage.

Enter AUTOLYCOA, singing.

When daffodils begin to peer,—

With, heigh! the doxy over the dale,—

Why, then comes in the sweet o' the year;

For the red blood reigns in the winter's pale;[§]

The white sheet bleaching on the hedge,—

With, hey! the sweet birds, O, how they sing!

Doth set my pugging^{||} tooth on edge;

For a quart of ale is a dish for a king.

The lark, turra-lirra chants,—

With, hey! with, hey! the thrush and the jay:

Are summer songs for me and my cunts,[¶]

While we lie tumbling in the hay.

I have served prince Florizel, and, in my time,

wore three-pile;^{} but now I am out of service:

But shall I go mourn for that, my dear?

The pale moon shines by night:

And when I wander here and there,

I then do most go right.

If tinkers may have leave to live,

And bear the sour-skin budget;

§ Friendly offer. † Observed at intervals. ‡ Talk.
 § I. e. The spring blood reigns over the pale which was der the domination of winter.

|| Thievish.

¶ Denim.

 Rich velvet.

the kite builds,
 other named me,
 am, littered una snapper-up of me, and drab, I my revenue is knock, are too
 ating, and hung-life to come, I
 A prize! a prize!

Even weather—
 and odd shil-
 What comes the

the cock's mine.

[Aside
 counters.—Let our sheep-shear-
 ar; five pound of this sister of mine hath made her lays it on. She aty nose-gays for
 , men's all, and
 are most of them Puritan amongst to hornpipes. I he warden pies; I
 out of my note:
 , of ginger; but
 of prunes, and as

ing on the ground.

pluck but off
 death!
 you hast need of er than have these

ness of them of-
 s I have received;
 millions.

million of beating

and beaten; my
 in me, and these

, or a foot-man?

er, a foot-man.

a foot-man, by the tree; if this be a very hot service.

tree: come, lend

[Helping him up.

y, oh!

good Sir: I fear,

d?

[Picks his pocket.]

be me a charitable

I have a little

no, I beseech you,

a tag or 20 pounds of anciently used by the

A species of peas.

Sir: I have a kinsman not past three quarters of a mile hence, unto whom I was going; I shall there have money, or any thing I want:
 Offer me no money, I pray you; that kills my
 heart.

Clo. What manner of fellow was he that robbed you?

Aut. A fellow, Sir, that I have known to go about with trol-my-dames:^a I knew him once a servant of the prince; I cannot tell, good Sir, for which of his virtues it was, but he was certainly whipped out of the court.

Clo. His vices, you would say; there's no virtue whipped out of the court: they cherish
 it, to make it stay there; and yet it will no more but abide.[†]

Aut. Vices I would say, Sir. I know this man well. he hath been since an ape-bearer;
 then a process-server, a bailiff; then he com-
 passed a motion of the prodigal son, and married a tinker's wife within a mile where my land and living lies; and, having sown over many knavish professions, he settled only in rogue: some call him Autolycus.

Clo. Out upon him! Prig,[‡] for my life, prig:
 he haunts wakes, fairs, and bear-baitings.

Aut. Very true, Sir; he, Sir, he; that's the rogue, that put me into this apparel.

Clo. Not a more cowardly rogue in all Bohemia; if you had but looked big, and spied him, he'd have run.

Aut. I must confess to you, Sir, I am no fighter: I am false of heart that way; and that he knew, I warrant him.

Clo. How do you now?

Aut. Sweet Sir, much better than I was; I can stand and walk: I will even take my leave of you, and pace softly towards my kinman's.

Clo. Shall I bring thee on the way?

Aut. No, good-faced Sir; no, sweet Sir.

Clo. Then fare thee well; I must go buy spices for our sheep-shearing.

Aut. Prosper you, sweet Sir!—[Exit Clo.]
 Your purse is not hot enough to purchase your spice. I'll be with you at your sheep-shearing too: If I make not this cheat bring out another, and the shearers prove sheep, let me be unrolled, and my name put in the book of virtue!

*Jog on, jog on, the foot-path way,
 And merrily hent|| the stile-a:
 A merry heart goes all the day,
 Your sad tires in a mile-a.* [Exit.

SCENE III.—The same.—A Shepherd's Cottage.

Enter FLORIZEL and PERDITA.

Fl. These your unusual weeds to each part
 of you

Do give a life: no shepherdess; but Flora, Peering in April's front. This your sheep-
 Is as a meeting of the petty gods, [Admiring;
 And you the queen on't.

Per. Sir, my gracious lord,
 To chide at your extremes,† it not becomes me;
 O, pardon, that I name them: your high self,
 The gracious mark[‡] o'the laud, you have obacur'd

With a swain's wearing; and me, poor lowly
 maid,

^a The machine used in the game of pigeon-hole.

[†] Sojourn.

[‡] Third.

[§] Excesses.

[‡] Puppet-show.

[§] Take hold of.

[¶] Object of all men's vision.

WINTER'S TALE.

the lids of Juno's eyes,
 th, pale primroses,
 ere they can behold
 strength, a malady
 ds, bold oxlips, and
 l, lilies of all kinds, wing one! O, these I lack,
 ends of; and, my sweet
 and o'er. [friend,
 come?
 ck, for love to lie and play

if,—not to be buried, mine arms. Come, take I have seen them do ls sure, this robe of mine
 position.

done. When you speak, er: when you sing,
 d sell so; so give alms;
 ne ordering your affairs,
 hen you do dance, I wish

at you might ever do ve still, still so, and own
 Each your doing,
 particular, [deeds,
 are doing in the present
 e queens.

large: but that your youth,
 which fairly peeps through out an unstain'd shepherd;
 t fear, my Doricles,
 lse way.

ave
 , as I have purpose
 ut, come; our dance, I
 ita. so turtles pair,
 part.
 em.

ettest low-born lass, that ward:† nothing she does,
 ling greater than herself;
 ice.
 something.

od look out: Good sooth,
 nd cream. [she is
 ve up.
 be your mistress: marry,
 with.—
 d time!

a word; we stand upon [Music.
 ends and SHEPHERDESSES.
 epherd, what
 which dances with your

Doricles, and he boasts ling:‡ but I have it and I believe it;
 § He says, he loves my ver gaz'd the moon

 † Green turf.
 ‡ Truth.

Upon the water, as he'll stay
 As 'twere, my daughter's
 plain,
 I think, there is not half a kl
 Who loves another best.
 Pol. She dances feattly.*
 Shep. No she does any thi
 port it,
 That should be silent: if you Do light upon her, she shall
 Which he not dreams of.

Enter a SERVANT
 Serv. O master, if you did b at the door, you would never a taber and pipe; no, the bi move you: he sings several t
 you'll tell money; he utters eaten ballads, and all men's e
 tunes.

Clo. He could never come come in: I love a ballad but it be doleful matter, merrily
 very pleasant thing indeed, tably.

Serv. He hath songs, for m all sizes; no milliner can so with gloves: he has the pre
 for maids, so without bawdry,
 with such delicate burdens o
 sags; jump her and thump her;
 stretch-mouth'd rascal would,
 mischief, and break a foul gaj
 he makes the maid to answe
 no harm, good man; puts him
 with Whoop, do me no harm, g

Pol. This is a brave fellow.
 Clo. Believe me, thou talk able conceited fellow. Has h wares †

Serv. He hath ribands of all rainbow; points, more than a Bohemia can learnedly hand come to him by the gross; ink caubrics, lawns: why, he sin
 they were gods or goddesses; ‡
 a smock were a she-angel; he sleeve-hand,§ and the work u un't.¶

Clo. Pr'ythee, bring him in,
 prouch singing.
 Per. Forewarn him, that he t words in his tunes.
 Clo. You have of these poi more in 'em than you'd think,
 Per. Ay, good brother, or go

Enter AUTOLYCUS, sh
 Lawn, as white as driven sn Cypress, black as e'er was cr
 Flores, as sweet as damask
 Masks for faces, and for nos
 Bugle bracelet, necklace-and Perfume for a lady's chamber Golden quoifs, and stomache
 For my lads to give my dea
 Pins and poking-sticks of st
 What maids lack from head
 Come, buy of me, come; com
 Hay, lads, or elac your lasses
 Come, buy, &c.

Clo. If I were not in love wit
 * Neatly. † Plain goods. ‡ § A kind of tape. ¶
 § i he work about the bosom.
  Amber of which necklaces were a lady's chamber.

should't take no money of me; but being enthrall'd as I am, it will also be the bondage of certain ribands and gloves.

Hop. I was promised them against the feast; but they come not too late now.

Dor. He hath promised you more than that, or there be tears.

Hop. He hath paid you all he promised you; may be, he has paid you more; which will shame you to give him again.

Cl. Is there no manners left among maids? will they wear their plackets, where they should bear their faces? Is there not milking-time, when you are going to bed, or kiln-hole,* to whistle off these secrets; but you must be tittle-tattling before all our guests? 'Tis well they are whispering. Clamour your tongues,† and out a word more.

Hop. I have done. Come, you promised me a lady's lace;‡ and a pair of sweet gloves.

Cl. Have I told thee, how I was cozened by the way, and lost all my money?

Ant. And, indeed, Sir, there are cozeners abroad, therefore it behoves men to be wary.

Cl. Fear not thou, man, thou shalt lose nothing here.

Ant. I hope so, Sir; for I have about me many parcels of charge.

Cl. What hast here? ballads?

Hop. Pray now, buy some: I love a ballad to print, a life, for then we are sure they are true.

Ant. Here's one to a very doleful tune. How a sower's wife was brought to bed of twenty sorry bags at a burden, and how she loughed to rat adders' heads, and tords carbonadoed.

Hop. Is it true, thank you?

Ant. Very true, and but a month old.

Dor. Bless me from marrying a usurer!

Ant. Here's the midwife's name to't, one mistress Teleporter; and five or six honest wives that were present: Why should I carry lies abroad?

Hop. Pray you now, buy it.

Cl. Come on, lay it by: And let's first see more ballads, we'll buy the other things anon.

Ant. Here's another ballad, of a fish, that appeared upon the coast, on Wednesday the fourscore of April, forty thousand fathom above water, and sing this ballad against the hard hearts of maids. It was thought she was a woman, and was turned into a cold fish, for she would not exchange flesh with one that loved her. The ballad is very pitiful, and as true.

Dor. It is true too, thank you?

Ant. Five justices' hands at it; and witness more than my pack will hold.

Cl. Lay it by too: Another.

Ant. This is a merry ballad; but a very pretty one.

Hop. Let's have some merry ones.

Ant. Why this is a passing merry one; and goes to the tune of, Two maids wooing a man:

There's scarce a maid westward, but she sings

In request, I can tell you.

Hop. We can both sing it, if thou'lt bear a part, thou shalt hear; 'tis in three parts.

Dor. We had the tune on't a month ago.

Ant. I can bear my part, you must know, is my occupation. Have at it with you.

SONG.

A. Get you hence, for I must go;

Where, it fits not you to know.

Hop. Place the drying malt; still a noted gossiping

Dor. Bring a fourth part.

Ant. I have to write about the head of waste.

D. Whither? M. O. whither? D. Whither?

M. It because thy oath fell well,

Thou to the thy secrets tell:

D. Me too, let me go thither.

M. Or then go't to the grange, or mill:

D. If to either, then dost ill.

A. Neither. D. What, neither? A. Neither.

D. Then hast sworn my loss to be;

M. Then hast sworn it more to me;

Then, whither go't? say, whither?

Cl. We'll have this stung out anon by ourselves; My father and the gentleman are in and talk, and we'll not trouble them: Come, bring away thy pack after me. Wench, I'll buy for you both:—Pedler, let's have the first choice.—Follow me, girls.

Ant. And you shall pay well for 'em. [Exit.]

Will you buy any tape,

Or lace for your cape,

My dainty duck, my dear-a?

Any silk, any thread,

Any toys for your head,

Of the new-st, and fin-st, fin-st new-a?

Come to the pedler;

Money's a pedler,

That doth utter all men's ware-a.

[Enter Clown, Autolycus, Dorcas,

and Mopsa.]

Enter a SERVANT.

Serv. Master, there is three carters, three shepherds, three neat-herds, three swine-herds, that have made themselves all men of hair;‡ they call themselves saltiers;§ and they have a dance which the wenches say is gallimaufry|| of gambols, because they are not in't; but they themselves are o'the mind, (if it be not too rough for some, that know little but bowling,) it will please plentifully.

Shep. Away! we'll none on't; here has been too much humble foolery already:—I know, Sir, we weary you.

Pol. You weary those that refresh us: Pray, let's see these four threes of herdmen.

Serv. One three of them, by their own report, Sir, hath danced before the king; and not the worst of the three, but jumps twelve foot and a half by the squire.¶

Shep. Leave your prating; since these good men are pleased, let them come in; but quickly now.

Serv. Why, they stay at door, Sir. [Exit.]

Re-enter SERVANT, with twelve Rustics habited like Satyrs. They dance, and then exeunt.

Pol. O, father, you'll know more of that hereafter.— [them.—

Is it not too far gone?—'Tis time to part

He's simple, and tells much. [Aside.—How

now, fair shepherd?

Your heart is full of something, that does take

Your mind from feasting. South, when I was young,

And banded love, as you do, I was wont

To load my she with knacks: I would have

ransack'd [it

The pedler's silken treasury, and have pour'd

To her acceptance; you have let him go,

And nothing marted with him: if your lass

Interpretation should abuse; and call this

Your lack of love, or bounty; you were strait-

For a reply, at least, if you make a care [edp

Of happy holding her.

* Serious.

† Dreamed themselves in habits imitating hair.

‡ Satyr.

§ Mockery.

 Bought, trafficked.

+ Vend.

¶ Foot Rule.

†† Put to auction.

WINTER'S TALE.

I know
 Each trifle as these are:
 Books from me, are pack'd and which I have given already,
 —O, hear my breath my lie
 nt Sir, who, it should seem, w'd. I take thy hand, this down, and as white as it,
 th, or the fann'd snow,
 the northern blasts twice o'er.
 ws this?— young swain seems to wash
 fair before—I have put you station; let me hear [out.—
 witness to't.
 my neighbour too?
 and more
 gen, the earth, the heavens, [narch.
 own'd the most imperial mo-
 thy; were I the fairest youth eye swerve; had force, and
 [them,
 er man's,—I would not prize
 for her, employ them all;
 and condemn them, to her perdition. [service, PRO.
 s a sound affection.
 daughter,
 to him?
 speak
 so well, no, nor mean better:
 mine own thoughts I cut out
 nds, a bargain;— [to't.
 own, you shall bear witness er to him, and will make
 his.
 ast be
 or daughter: one being dead,
 than you can dream of yet;
 your wonder: But, come on.
 these witnesses.
 our hand;—
 yours.
 n, awhile, 'beseech you;
 er?
 ut what of him?
 of this?
 does, nor shall.
 a father
 of his son, a guest
 the table. Pray you, once
 r grown incapable [more;
 airs? Is he not stupid lering rheums? Can he speak?
 man? dispute his own estate?
 nd? and again does nothing,
 being childish?
 Sir,
 th, and ampler strength, in-
 of his age. [deed,
 te beard,
 this be so, a wrong
 al. Reason, my son [son, nself a wife; but as good rea-
 hose joy is nothing else
) should hold some counsel
 ss
 thus;
 separate flow from brain is called a † Talk over his affairs.

But, for some other reasons, I
 Which 'tis not fit you know, I
 My father of this business.
 Pol. Let him know't.
 Flo. He shall not.
 Pol. Pr'ythee, let him.
 Flo. No, he must not.
 Shap. Let him, my son; he
 At knowing of thy choice.
 Flo. Come, come he must Mark our contract.
 Pol. Mark your divorce, yo {Di
 Whom son I dare not call; th
 To be acknowledg'd: Thou a
 That thus affect'at a sheep-h
 traitor,
 I am sorry, that, by hanging t
 Shorten thy life one week.—
 piece
 Of excellent witchcraft; who
 The royal fool thou cup'st wit
 Shap. O, my heart!
 Pol. I'll have thy beauty
 briars, and made
 More humely than thy state.—
 If I may ever know, thou dost
 That thou no more shalt see
 never
 I mean thou shalt,) we'll bar t
 Not hold thee of our blood, no
 Far* than Deucalion off:—
 words;
 Follow us to the court.—Tho
 Though full of our displeasure
 From the dead blow of it.—A
 ment,—
 Worthy enough a herdsman;
 That makes himself, but for ou Unworthy thee,—if ever, hence
 These rural latches to his en
 Or hoop his body more with t
 I will devise a death as cruel
 As thou art tender to't.
 Per. Even here undone!
 I was not much afraid: for o
 I was about to speak; and te
 The selfsame sun, that shines Hides not his visage from our Looks on alike.—Will't plea
 gone?
 I told you, what would come
 you,
 Of your own state take care
 Being now awake, I'll queen i
 But milk my ewes, and weep.
 Cam. Why, how now, father
 Speak, ere thou diest.
 Shap. I cannot speak, nor t
 Nor dare to know that which
 You have undone a man of fi
 That thought to fill his grave
 To die upon the bed my father
 To lie close by his honest bun
 Some hangman must put on by me
 Where no priest shovels in wretch!
 That knew'st this was the prin
 adventure
 To mingle faith with him,—U
 If I might die within this hour
 To die when I desire.
 Flo. Why look you so upon
 * Further.

I'm sorry, not afeard; delay'd,
 being alter'd: What I was, I am:
 I'm on, for plucking back; not following unwillingly. [lowing

Gracious my lord,
 I'm your father's temper: at this time
 allow no speech,—which, I do guess, not purpose to him,—and as hardly endure your sight as yet, I fear.
 If the fury of his highness settle,
 it before him.

not purpose it.

Camillo.

Even he, my lord.

How often have I told you, 'twould be as said, my dignity would last [thus?
 'twere known!

I cannot fail, but by action of my faith; And then
 we crush the sides o' the earth together, or the seeds within!—Lift up thy looks:—

Succession wipe me, father! I to my affection.

Be advis'd.

am; and by my fancy † if my reason
 into be obedient, I have reason;
 by senses, better pleas'd with madness,
 I welcome.

This is desperate, Sir.

Call it: but it does fulfil my vow,
 must think it honesty. Camillo, Bohemia, nor the pomp that may not glean'd; for all the sun sees, or the earth womb, or the profound seas
 hide

own fathoms, will I break my oath
 my fair below'd: Therefore, I pray you, have e'er been my father's honour'd friend, [not

shall miss me, (as, in faith, I mean him any more,) cast your good counsels
 a passion; Let myself and fortune,
 the time to come. This you may know, deliver,—I am put to sea

r, whom here I cannot hold on shore;
 not opportune to our need, I have rides fast by, but not prepar'd design. What course I mean to hold, thing benefit your knowledge, nor me the reporting

O, my lord,

your spirit were easier for advice,
 iger for your need.

ark, Perdita. — [Takes her aside,
 you by and by. [To CAMILLO.

He's irremovable,

I for flight: Now were I happy, if I could frame to serve my turn;
 from danger, do him love and honour;
 se the sight again of dear Sicilia,
 it unhappy king, my master, whom ch thirst to see.

Now, good Camillo,

fraught with curious business, that out ceremony. [Going.

Sir, I think,

re heard of my poor services, i'the love
 have borne your father?

I very nobly

on deserv'd: it is my father's music,

in your deeds; not little of his care them recompens'd as thought on.

Well, my lord,

may please to think I love the king;

A leading string.

† Love

And, through him, what is nearest to him,
 which is

Your gracious self; embrace but my direction,
 (If your more ponderous and settled project
 May suffer alteration,) on mine honour
 I'll point you where you shall have such receiving [may

As shall become your highness, where you Enjoy your mistress; (from the whom, I see,
 There's no disjunction to be made, but by,
 As heavens forefend! your ruin.) marry her,
 And (with my best endeavours, in your absence,)

Your discontenting* father strive to qualify,
 And bring him up to liking.

Flo. How, Camillo,

May this, almost a miracle, be done?

That I may call thee something more than man,
 And, after that, trust to thee.

Cam. Have you thought on

A place, whereto you'll go?

Flo. Not any yet:

But as the unthought-on accident† is guilty
 To what we wildly do; so we profess
 Ourselves to be the slaves of chance, and flies
 Of every wind that blows.

Cam. Then list to me: [purpose,

This follows,—if you will not change your
 But undergo this flight,—Make for Sicilia;

And there present yourself, and your fair
 princess,

(For so, I see, she must be,) 'fore Leontes;

She shall be habited, as it becomes

The partner of your bed. Methinks, I see

Leontes, opening his free arms, and weeping
 His welcomes forth: asks thee, the son, forgiveness, [bands

As 'twere i'the father's person: kisses the

Of your fresh princess: o'er and o'er divides

him [one

Twixt his unkindness and his kindness; the

He chides to hell, and bids the other grow,

Faster than thought, or time.

Flo. Worthy Camillo,

What colour for my visitation shall I

Hold up before him?

Cam. Sent by the king your father

To greet him, and to give him comforts. Sir,

The manner of your bearing towards him, with

What you, as from your father, shall deliver,

Things known betwixt us three, I'll write you down. [ting,†

The which shall point you forth at every sit-

What you must say, that he shall not perceive,

But that you have your father's bosom there,

And speak his very heart.

Flo. I am bound to you:

There is some sap in this.

Cam. A course more promising

Than a wild dedication of yourselves [certain,

To unpath'd waters, undream'd shores; most

To miseries enough; no hope to help you;

But, as you shake off one, to take another:

Nothing so certain as your anchors who

Do their best office, if they can but stay you

Where you'll be loath to be: Besides, you

Prosperity's the very bond of love, [know,

Whose fresh complexion and whose heart to-affliction alters. [gether

Per. One of these is true:

I think, affliction may subdue the cheek,

But not take is† the mind.

* For discontented.

† This unthought-on accident is the unexpected discovery made by Polixenes.

‡ The council-days were called the sittings. § Conspire.

Q Q

WINTER'S TALE.

(ACT IV.)

's house, these

ing, as

seems a mistress

is;

on!—Camillo,—

me

ow shall we do?

nia's son;

ou know my for-

my care [tunes

as if [Sir,

For instance,

not want,—one

They talk aside.

honesty is! and simple gentle-

umpery; not a glass, poman-

ad, knife, tape,

ring, to keep

ing who should

been hallowed,

the buyer: by use was best in my good use,

who wants but

an,) grew so in

but he would not

both tune and

of the herd to

stuck in ears:

et, it was sense-

codpiece of a

off, that hung

ing, but my Sir's

g of it. So that,

ed and cut most

ad not the old

ob against his

and scared my

not left a purs

PERDITA, come

by this means

ear that doubt.

ecure from king

er.

er.

ing AUTOLOYOUS,

this; omit

me now,—why

[Aside.

Why shakest

s no harm in-

al worn to prevent

Aut. I am a poor fellow, Sir.

Cam. Why, be so still; here's nobody will steal that from thee: Yet, for the outside of thy poverty, we must make an exchange: therefore, discase thee instantly, (thou must think, there's necessity in't,) and change garments with this gentleman: Though the pennyworth, on his side, be the worst, yet hold thee, there's some boot.

Aut. I am a poor fellow, Sir:—I know ye well enough. [Aside.

Cam. Nay, prythee, despatch: the gentleman is half slayed already.

Aut. Are you in earnest, Sir?—I smell the trick of it.— [Aside.

Flo. Despatch, I prythee.

Aut. Indeed, I have had earnest; but I cannot with conscience take it.

Cam. Unbuckle, unbuckle.—

[Flo. and Autol. exchange garments.

Fortunate mistress,—let my prophecy

Come home to you!—you must retire yourself

into some covert: take your sweetheart's hat,

And pluck it o'er your brows; muffle your face;

Dismantle you: and as you can, disalien

The truth of your own seeming; that you may,

(For I do fear eyes over you,) to shipboard

Get undescried.

Per. I see, the play so lies,

That I must bear a part.

Cam. No remedy.—

Have you done there?

Flo. Should I now meet my father,

He would not call me son.

Cam. Nay, you shall have [friend.

No hat:—Come, lady, come.—Farewell, my

Aut. Adieu, Sir.

Flo. O Perdita, what have we twain forgot!

Pray you, a word. [They converse apart.

Cam. What I do next, shall be, to tell the king [Aside.

Of this escape, and whither they are bound;

Wherein, my hope is, I shall so prevail,

To force him after: in whose company

I shall review Sicilia; for whose sight

I have a woman's longing.

Flo. Fortune speed us!—

Thus we set on, Camillo, to the sea-side.

Cam. The swifter speed, the better.

[Exeunt FLORIZEL, PERDITA, and

CAMILLO.

Aut. I understand the business, I hear it:

To have an open ear, a quick eye, and a nimble

hand, is necessary for a cut-purse; a good

nose is requisite also, to smell out work for the other senses. I see, this is the time that the unjust man doth thrive. What an exchange had this been, without boot? What a boot is here, with this exchange? Sure, the gods do this year connive at us, and we may do any thing extempore. The prince himself is about a piece of iniquity; stealing away from his father, with his clog at his heels: If I thought it were not a piece of honesty to acquaint the king withal, I would do't: I hold it the more

knavery to conceal it: and therein am I constant to my profession.

Enter CLOWN and SHEPHERD.

Aside, aside;—here is more matter for a hot brain: Every lane's end, every shop, church,

session, hanging, yields a careful man work.

Clo. See, see; what a man you are now!

There is no other way, but to tell the king she's a changeling, and none of your flesh and

blood.

* Something over and above.

† Stripped.

Shep. Nay, I ut hear me.

Clo. Nay, but hear me.

Shep. Go to then.

Clo. She being none of your flesh and blood, your flesh and blood has not offended the king, and, so, your flesh and blood is not to be punished by him. Show those things you heard about her, those sacred things, all but what she has with her. This being done, let the law go whistle; I warrant you.

Shep. I will tell the king all, every word, yea, and his son's pranks too; who, I may say, is no honest man neither to his father, nor to me, to go about to make me the king's brother-in-law.

Clo. Indeed, brother-in law was the furthest off you could have been to him, and then your blood had been the dearer, by I know how much an ounce.

Ant. Very wisely, puppies! [Aside.

Shep. Well; let us to the king; there is that in this fardel,* will make him scratch his beard.

Ant. I know not what impediment this complaint may be to the flight of my master.

Clo. Pray heartily he be at palace.

Ant. Though I am not naturally honest, I am so sometimes by chance:—Let me pocket up my pedlar's excrement;†—[Takes up his false beard.] How now, rustics! whither are you bound?

Shep. To the palace, an it like your worship.

Ant. Your affairs there? what? with whom? the condition of that fardel, the place of your dwelling, your names, your ages, of what having;‡ breeding, and any thing that is fitting to be known, discover.

Clo. We are but plain fellows, Sir.

Ant. A he, you are rough and hairy: Let me have no lying, it becomes none but tradesmen, and they often give us soldiers the lie: but we pay them for it with stamped coin, not stabbing steel, therefore they do not give us the lie.

Clo. Your worship had like to have given us one, if you had not taken yourself with the answer.

Shep. Are you a courtier, an't like you, Sir?

Ant. Whether it like me, or no, I am a courtier. See'st thou not the air of the court, in those enfoldings? hath not my gait in it, the measure of the court?§ receives not thy nose court-odour from me? reflect I not on thy baseness, court-contempt? Think'st thou, for that I manoeuvre, or tunc¶ from thee thy business, I am therefore no courtier? I am courtier, cap-ape, and one that will either push on, or pack back thy business there whereupon I command thee to open thy affair.

Shep. My business, Sir, is to the king.

Ant. What advocate hast thou to him?

Shep. I know not, an't like you.

Clo. Advocate's the court-word for a phenomenon; say, you have none.

Shep. None, Sir! I have no pheasant, cock, or hen.

Ant. How bless'd are we, that are not simple men!

Yet nature might have made me as these are, therefore I'll not disdain.

Clo. This cannot be but a great courtier.

Shep. His garments are rich, but he wears them not handsomely.

Clo. He seems to be the more noble in being fantastical; a great man, I'll warrant; I know, by the picking on's teeth.

Ant. The fardel there! what's i'the fardel? Wherefore that box?

Shep. Sir, there lies such secrets in this fardel, and box, which none must know but the king, and which he shall know within this hour, if I may come to the speech of him.

Ant. Age, thou hast lost thy labour.

Shep. Why, Sir?

Ant. The king is not at the palace; he is gone aboard a new ship to purge melancholy, and air himself: For, if thou be'st capable of things serious, thou must know, the king is full of grief.

Shep. So 'tis said, Sir, about his son, that should have married a shepherd's daughter.

Ant. If that shepherd be not in hand fast, let him fly, the curses he shall have, the tortures he shall feel, will break the back of man, the heart of monster.

Clo. Thank you so, Sir?

Ant. Not he alone shall suffer what wit can make heavy, and vengeance bitter, but those that are germane* to him, though removed fifty times, shall all come under the hangman, which though it be great pity, yet it is necessary. An old sheep-whistling rogue, a ram-tender, to offer to have his daughter come into grace! Some say, he shall be stoned; but that death is too soft for him, say I. Draw our throne into a sheep-cote! all deaths are too few, the sharpest too easy.

Clo. Has the old man e'er a son, Sir, do you hear, an't like you, Sir?

Ant. He has a son, who shall be flayed alive; then, 'pointed over with honey, set on the head of a wasp's nest; then stand, till he be three quarters and a dram dead; then recovered again with aqua-vitæ, or some other hot infusion then, raw as he is, and in the hottest day prognostication proclaims,† shall he be set against a brick-wall, the sun looking with a southward eye upon him, where he is to behold him, with flies blown to death. But what talk we of these traitorly rascals, whose miseries are to be smiled at, their offences being so capital? Tell me, for you seem to be honest plain men,‡ what you have to the king—being something gently considered,‡ I'll bring you where he is aboard, tender your persons to his presence, whisper him in your behalfs; and, if it be in man, besides the king to effect your suits, here is man shall do it.

Clo. He seems to be of great authority: close with him, give him gold, and though authority be a stubborn bear, yet he is oft led by the nose with gold—show the inside of your purse to the outside of his hand, and no more ado. Remember stoned, and flayed alive.

Shep. An't please you, Sir, to undertake the business for us, here is that gold I have: I'll make it as much more; and leave this young man in pawn, till I bring it you.

Ant. After I have done what I promised?

Shep. Ay, Sir.

Ant. Well give me the moiety:—Are you a party in this business?

Clo. In some sort, Sir: but though my case be a pitiful one, I hope I shall not be flayed out of it.

Ant. O, that's the case of the shepherd's son:—Hang him, he'll be made an example.

Clo. Comfort, good comfort. We must to the

* Rascal, parcel

† In the fact.

‡ The dirty tread of courtiers.

† His false beard.

‡ In the fact.

‡ I ample or force.

* Related.

† The hottest day foretold in the almanack.

‡ Being handsomely dressed.

WINTER'S TALE.

ange sights; he must
daughter nor my sister,
will give you as much
the business is per-
he says, your pawn,

Walk before toward right hand; I will look
as you.

in this man, as I may

he bids us: he was

REPERD and CLOWN.
to be honest, I see,
e; she drops bouties
d now with a double ans to do the prince who knows how that advancement? I will ze blind ones, aboard
ore them again, and ave to the king con-
on call me, rogue, for or I am proof against
ue else belongs to't:
in, there may be mat-
[Exit.

Room in the Palace of
s.

ES, DION, PAULINA, EER.

ne enough, and have

ult could you make,
ecm'd; indeed, paid (last,
one trespass: At the e done; forget your
elf. [evil;

cannot forget
nd so still think of which was so much,
le my kingdom; and
companion, that e'er [man

my lord:
ed all the world,
took something good,
a, she, you kill'd,

d
at thou strik'st me
as bitter thought: Now, good [now,

ady:

a thousand things that benefit, and grac'd

me,
im.

the remembrance
e, consider little,
ness' fall of issue,
en, and devour
that were more holy,
queen is well?
yalty's repair,
for future gowl,—
good.

To bless the bed of majesty a
With a sweet fellow to't?

Paul. There is none worthy Respecting her that's gone. I Will have fulfill'd their secret
For has not the divine Apollo
Is't not the tenour of his oracle
That king Leontes shall not b
Till his lost child be found? wh
Is all as monstrous to our hur
As my Antigonus to break hi
And come again to me; who,
Did perish with the infant. My
My lord should to the heaven
Oppose against their wills.
issue;

The crown will find an heir
der

Left his to the worthiest; so
Was like to be the best.

Leon. Good Paulina,—
Who hast the memory of Her
I know, in honour,—O, that Had squar'd me to thy coun
I might have look'd upon my
Have taken treasure from her

Paul. And left them
More rich, for what they yield

Leon. Thou speak'st truth.
No more such wives; therefore
And better us'd, would make Again possess her corps; and (Where we offenders now app
Begin, And why to me?

Paul. Had she such power,
She had just cause.

Leon. She had; and would
To murder her I married.

Paul. I should so:
Were I the ghost that walk'd,
Her eye; and tell me, for wh
You chose her: then I'd shrie
ears

Shou'd rift to hear me; and Should be, Remember mine.

Leon. Stars, very stars,
And all eyes else dead coal
I'll have no wife, Paulina.

Paul. Will you swear
Never to marry, but by my fr

Leon. Never, Paulina; a
spirit!

Paul. Then, good my lords
his oath.

Cleo. You tempt him over-
Paul. Unless another,

As like Hermione as is her pl
Affront; his eye.

Cleo. Good madam,—
Paul. I have done.

Yet, if my lord will marry,—
No remedy, but you will; giv

To choose you a queen: but so young

As was your former; but she
As, walk'd your first queen's

To see her in your arms.
Leon. My true Paulina,

We shall not marry, till thou
Paul. That

Shall be, when your first q
Never till then.

Enter a GENTLEMAN

Gent. One that gives out his rize!

a Instigate. † Spill.

issues, with his princess, (she
I have yet beheld,) desires access gh presence.

But with him? he comes not father's greatness: his approach, circumstance, and sudden, tells us,
visitation fram'd, but forc'd
ad accident. What train?
it few,
but mean.

A princess, say you, with him?
y; the most peerless piece of earth,
he sun shone bright on. [I think,
Hermione,
recent time doth boast itself
offer, gone; so must thy grave to what's seen now. Sir, you your-lf

and writ so, (but your writing now has that theme,*) *She had not been,
it to be equal'd*:—thus your verse
th her beauty once; 'tis shrewdly
a have seen a better. [ebb'd,
ardon, madam:

have almost forgot; (your pardon,)
when she has obtain'd your eye, your tongue too. This is such a
nature,

begin a sect, might quench the zeal
tutors else: make proselytes
a but bid follow.

ow? not women?

men will love her, that she is a
man

h than any man; men, that she is
of all women.

), Cleomenes;

assisted with your honour'd friends,
in to our embracement.—Still 'tis ange,

[Exeunt CLEOMENES, LORDS, and GENTLEMEN.

ould steal upon us.

ad our prince, [pair'd children, seen this hour, he had this lord, there was not full a month their births.

'ythee, no more; thou know'st,
me again, when talk'd of: sure,
all see this gentleman, thy speeches
me to consider that, which may me of reason.—They are come.—

*CLEOMENES, with FLORIZEL, PERDITA,
and Attendants.*

er was most true to wedlock, prince,
I print your royal father off,
you: Were I but twenty-one,
r's image is so hit in you,
ir, that I should call you brother,
im; and speak of something, wildly
rm'd before. Most dearly welcome
sir princess, goddess!—O, alas!
ple, that 'twixt heaven and earth
I have stood, begetting wonder, as ous couple, do' and then I lost
own folly,) the society,
of your brave father, whom,
aring misery, I desire my life
to look upon.

his command
re touch'd Sicilia: and from him
all greetings, that a king, a friend,
his brother: and, but infirmity

on the coast of Hermione, the subject of your

(Which waits upon worn times,) hath something seiz'd

His wish'd ability, he had himself [his
The lands and waters 'twixt your throne and Measur'd, to look upon you, whom he loves
(He bade me say so,) more than all the scap-
And those that bear them, living. [tree,

Leon. O, my brother, (Good gentleman') the wrongs I have done
thee, stir

Afresh within me; and these thy offices,
So rarely kind, are as interpreters [ther,
Of my behind-hand slackness!—Welcome hi-
As is the spring to the earth. And hath he too
Expos'd this paragon to the fearful usage
(At least, ungentle,) of the dreadful Neptune,
To greet a man, not worth her pains; much
The adventure of her person? [less

Flo. Good my lord,

She came from Libya.

Leon. Where the warlike Smalus,
That noble honour'd lord, is fear'd, and lov'd?

Flo. Most royal Sir, from thence, from him, whose daughter [thence

His tears proclaim'd his, parting with her:
(A prosperous south-wind friendly,) we have cross'd,

To execute the charge my father gave me,
For visiting your highness: My best train
I have from your Sicilian shores dismiss'd;
Who for Bohemia bend, to signify
Not only my success in Libya, Sir,
But my arrival, and my wife's, in safety
Here, where we are.

Leon. The blessed gods
Purge all infection from our air, whilst you
Do climate here! You have a holy father,
A graceful* gentleman; against whose person,
So sacred as it is, I have done sin.

For which the heavens, taking angry note,
Have left me issueless; and your father's
bless'd,

(As he from heaven merits it,) with you,
Worthy his goodness. What might I have been,
Might I a son and daughter now have look'd
Such goodly things as you? [on,

Enter a LORD.

Lord. Most noble Sir,
That, which I shall report, will bear no credit,
Were not the proof so nigh. Please you, great
Sir,

Bohemia greets you from himself, by me:
Desires you to attach† his son; who has (His dignity and duty both cast off.)
Fled from his father, from his hopes, and with A shepherd's daughter.

Leon. Where's Bohemia? speak.

Lord. Here in the city, I now came from
I speak amazedly; and it becomes [hnu.
My marvel, and my message. To your court Whilst he was hast'ning, (in the chase, it seems,
Of this fair couple,) meets he on the way
The father of this seeming lady, and Her brother, having both their country quitted
With this young prince.

Flo. Camillo has betray'd me,
Whose honour, and whose honesty, till now,
Endur'd all weathers.

Lord. Lay't so, to his charge;

He's with the king your father.

Leon. Who? Camillo?

Lord. Camillo, Sir, I spake with him; who
now

* Full of grace and virtue.

† Seize, arrest.

WINTER'S TALE.

[ACT V.]

* Never saw I they kiss the
they speak :
realtens them

table passion of wonder appeared in them : but the wisest beholder, that knew no more but seeing, could not say, if the importance were joy, or sorrow : but in the extremity of the one,
it must needs be.

Enter another GENTLEMAN.

will not have

Here comes a gentleman, that, happily, knows
more :

we like to be ;
duleys first.—
best

The news, Rogero ?
2 Gent. Nothing but bonfires : The oracle is fulfilled ; the king's daughter is found : such a deal of wonder is broken out within this hour,
that ballad-makers cannot be able to express
it.

Enter a third GENTLEMAN.

or good father's ni sorry,
om his liking,
and as sorry,
orth : as beauty,

Here comes the lady Paulina's steward ; he can deliver you more.—How goes it now, Sir ? this news, which is called true, is so like an old tale, that the verity of it is in strong suspicion :
Has the king found his heir ?

ay, [Jot
her ; power no
—Beseech you,

3 Gent. Most true ; if ever truth were pronant by circumstance : that, which you hear, you'll swear you see, there is such unity in the proofs. The mantle of queen Hermione :—her jewel about the neck of it :—the letters of Antigonus, found with it, which they know to be his character :—the majesty of the creature, in resemblance of the mother,—the affection of nobleness, which nature shows above her breeding,—and many other evidences, proclaim her,
with all certainty, to be the king's daughter.
Did you see the meeting of the two kings ?

ore to time
of such affec-
our request,
things, as indea.
g your precious

2 Gent. No.
3 Gent. Then have you lost a sight, which was to be seen, cannot be spoken of. There might you have beheld one joy crown another ;
so, and in such manner, that, it seemed, sorrow wept to take leave of them, for their joy waded in tears. There was casting up of eyes, holding up of hands ; with countenance of such distraction, that they were to be known by garment, not by favour.† Our king, being ready to leap out of himself for joy of his found daughter ; as if that joy were now become a loss, cries, O, thy mother, thy mother ! then asks Bohemia forgiveness ; then embraces his son-in-law, then again worries he his daughter,
with clipping her ; now he thanks the old shepherd, which stands by, like a weather-bitten conduit of many kings' reigns. I never heard of such another encounter, which laments report to follow it, and undoes description to do it.

[month with in't : not a
as more worth

2 Gent. What, pray you, became of Antigonus, that carried hence the child ?

out your petition [To FLORZEL.
or father ;
your desires,
upon which

3 Gent. Like an old tale still ; which will have matter to rehearse, though credit be asleep, and not an ear open : He was torn to pieces with a bear : this avouches the shepherd's son ; who has not only his innocence (which seems much,) to justify him, but a hankerchief, and rings, of his, that Paulina knows.

ce, follow me.
Come, good my
[Exit.

1 Gent. What became of his bark and his followers ?

ore the Palace.

NTLEMAN.

you present at opening of the deliver the maner, after a little manded out of ought I heard

child.

3 Gent. Wrecked, the same instant of the master's death ; and in the view of the shepherd : so that all the instruments, which aided to expose the child, were even then lost, when it was found. But, O, the noble combat, that
'twixt joy and sorrow, was fought in Paulina !
She had one eye declined for the loss of her husband ; another elevated that the oracle was now the issue of

very of the busi-
ved in the king,
of admiration :
ing at one ano-
yes ; there was language in their they had heard destroyed : A no-

* The thing imported. † Disposition or quality.
‡ Countenance, features. § Embracing.

She lifted the princess from the earth; and, as her in embracing, as if she would pierce her heart, that she might no more grieve of losing.

The dignity of this act was worth the of kings and princes; for by such deed.

One of the prettiest touches of all, which angled for mine eyes (caught though not the fish,) was, when at the death of the queen's death, with the which she came to it, (bravely confessed, testified by the king,) how attentiveness his daughter: till, from one sign of another, she did, with an alas! I can say, bleed tears; for, I am sure, wept blood. Who was most marbled and angled colour; some swooned, all if all the world could have seen it, had been universal.

Are they returned to the court?

No: the princess hearing of her mother, which is in the keeping of Pauline many years in doing, and now formed by that rare Italian master, and; who, had he himself eternity, put breath into his work, would be more of her custom, so perfectly he is as so near to Hermione hath done that, they say, one would speak to stand in hope of answer: thither, with excess of affection, are they gone; and intend to sup.

I thought, she had some great matter in hand; for she hath privately, twice a day, ever since the death of Hermione, that removed that house. Shall we not with our company piece the re-

Who would be thence, that has the access? every wink of an eye, some will be born: our absence makes us to our knowledge. Let's along.

[Exeunt GENTLEMEN.]
Now, had I not the dash of my former would preferment drop on my head. the old man and his son aboard the old him, I heard him talk of a fardel, now not what: but he at that time, of the shepherd's daughter, (so he called her to be,) who began to be much and himself little better, extremity of continuing, this mystery remained red. But 'tis all one to me: for had I under-out of this secret, it would be elished among my other discredits.

After SHEPHERD and CLOWN.

As those I have done good to against and already appearing in the blossom of fortune.

Now, boy; I am past more children; and daughters will be all gentle-are well met, Sir: You denied to me this other day, because I was no born: See you these clothes? say, I am not, and think me still no gentleman: you were best say, these robes are gentlemen born. Give me the lie; do; whether I am not now a gentleman

now, you are now, Sir, a gentleman astonished with wonder.

† Remote.

Clo. Ay, and have been so any time these four hours.

Shep. And so have I, boy.

Clo. So you have:—but I was a gentleman born before my father: for the king's son took me by the hand, and called me, brother; and then the two kings called my father, brother; and then the prince, my brother, and the princess, my sister, called my father, father; and so we wept: and there was the first gentleman-like tears that ever we shed.

Shep. We may live, son, to shed many more.

Clo. Ay; or else 'twere hard luck, being in so preposterous estate as we are.

Aut. I humbly beseech you, Sir, to pardon me all the faults I have committed to your worship, and to give me your good report to the prince my master.

Shep. 'Pr'ythee, son, do; for we must be gentle, now we are gentlemen.

Clo. Thou wilt amend thy life?

Aut. Ay, an it like your good worship.

Clo. Give me thy hand: I will swear to the prince, thou art as honest a true fellow as any is in Bohemia.

Shep. You may say it, but not swear it.

Clo. Not swear it, now I am a gentleman? Let boors and franklins* say it, I'll swear it.

Shep. How if it be false, son?

Clo. If it be ne'er so false, a true gentleman may swear it, in the behalf of his friend:—And I'll swear to the prince, thou art a tall† fellow of thy hands, and that thou wilt not be drunk; but I know, thou art no tall fellow of thy hands, and that thou wilt be drunk; but I'll swear it: and I would, thou would'st be a tall fellow of thy hands.

Aut. I will prove so, Sir, to my power.

Clo. Ay, by any means prove a tall fellow: If I do not wonder, how thou darest venture to be drunk, not being a tall fellow, trust me not.—Hark! the kings and the princes, our kindred, are going to see the queen's picture. Come, follow us: we'll be thy good masters.

[Exeunt.]

SCENE III.—The same.—A Room in PAULINA'S House.

Enter LEONTES, POLIXENES, FLORIZEL, PERDITA, CAMILLO, PAULINA, Lords, and Attendants.

Leon. O grave and good Paulina, the great That I have had of thee! [comfort]

Paul. What, sovereign Sir, I did not well, I meant well: All my services, You have paid home: but that you have vouchsaf'd [contracted]

With your crown'd brother, and these your Heirs of your kingdoms, my poor house to visit,

It is a surplus of your grace, which never My life may last to answer.

Leon. O Paulina, We honour you with trouble: But we came To see the statue of our queen: your gallery Have we pass'd through, not without much content

In many singularities; but we saw not That which my daughter came to look upon, The statue of her mother.

Paul. As she liv'd peerless, So her dead likeness, I do well believe, Excels whatever yet you look'd upon, Or hand of man hath done; therefore I keep it

* Yeomen.

† Stout.

WINTER'S TALE

it is: prepare knock'd, as ever behold; and say, 'tis

Curtain, and discovers

more shows off peak;—first, you, my
near? [liege,

stare!—

at I may say, indeed,

rather, thou art she,

she was as tender,

But yet, Paulina,

ch wrinkled; nothing

re our carver's excel-

sixteen years, and

at have done,

fort, as it is

O, thus she stood,

majesty, (warm life,

when first I wou'd

the stone rebuke me, n it!—O, royal piece,

esty; which has

embrance; and

ter took the spirits,

thee!

e, stitution, that

her blessing.—Lady,

when I but began,

urs, to kiss.

fix'd, the colour's

row was too sore laid

cannot blow away,

scarce any joy

sorrow,

oner.

use of this, have power

from you, as he

ht of my poor image

at* you, (for the stone

e curtain,

you gaze on't; lest

es.

out that methinks al-

(lord,

make it?—See, my

it breath'd? and that

m upon her lip.

r eye has motion in'tt

art.

tain;

ed it seems to have motion

; As if.

My lord's almost so far tran
He'll think anon, it lives.

Leon. O sweet Paulina,
Make me to think so twent
No settled senses of the wo
The pleasure of that madne

Paul. I am sorry, Sir, I h
you: but

I could afflict you further.

Leon. Do, Paulina;

For this affliction has a tast

As any cordial comfort.—St

There is an air comes from chizzel

Could ever yet cut breath?

For I will kiss her.

Paul. Good my lord, forb

The ruddiness upon her lip

You'll mar it, if you kiss it;

With only painting: Shall I

Leon. No, not these twent

Per. So long could I

Stand by, a looker on.

Paul. Either forbear,

Quit presently the chapel;

For more amazement: If yo

I'll make the statue move in

And take you by the hand

think,

(Which I protest against,) I

By wicked powers.

Leon. What you can mak

I am content to look on: wh

I am content to hear; for 'ti

To make her speak, as mov

Paul. It is requir'd,

You do awake your faith: T

Or those, that think it is un

I am about, let them depart

Leon. Proceed;

No foot shall stir.

Paul. Music; awake her

Tis time; descend; be st

proach;

Strike all that look upon wi

I'll fill your grave up: stir;

Bequeath to death your m

him

Dear life redeems you.—Y

[HERMIONE comes down

Start not: her actions shall

You hear, my spell is lawful

Until you see her die again

You kill her double: Nay, p

When she was young, you w

Is she become the suitor.

Leon. O, she's warm!

If this be magic, let it be an Lawful as eating.

Pol. She embraces him.

Cam. She hangs about his

If she pertain to life, let her

Pol. Ay, and make't mani

liv'd

Or, how stol'n from the dea

Paul. That she is living,

Were it but told you, shoul

Like an old tale; but it app

Though yet she speak not. I

Please you to interpose, fai

And pray your mother's ble

Our Perdita is found.

[Presenting PERD

HERMIONE.

Her. You gods, look down

And from your secret vials

Upon my daughter's head!—

Where hast thou been preserv'd? where liv'd?
 how found [I,— Thy father's court? for thou shalt hear, that Knowing by Paulina, that the oracle
 Gave hope thou wast in being,—have preserv'd
 Myself, to see the issue.

Paul. There's time enough for that;
 Lest they desire, upon this push to trouble
 Your joys with like relation.—Go together,
 You precious winners* all; your exultation
 Partaket to every one. I, an old turtle, Will wing me to some wither'd bough; and
 there

My mate, that's never to be found again,
 Lament till I am lost.

Leon. O peace, Paulina;
 Thou should'st a husband take by my consent,
 As I by thine, a wife: this is a match,
 And made between's by vows. Thou hast found mine;

* You who by this discovery have gained what you desired. † Participate.

But how, is to be question'd: for I saw her,
 As I thought, dead; and have, in vain, said
 many

A prayer upon her grave: I'll not seek far
 (For him, I partly know his mind,) to find thee
 An honourable husband:—Come, Camillo, And take her by the hand: whose worth, and honesty,

Is richly noted; and here justified
 By us, a pair of kings.—Let's from this place.—
 What?—Look upon my brother!—both your pardons,

That e'er I put between your holy looks
 My ill suspicion.—This your son-in-law,
 And son unto the king, (whom heavens directing,) [lina,

Is troth-plight to your daughter.—Good Pau-Lead us from hence; where we may leisurely
 Each one demand, and answer to his part Perform'd in this wide gap of time, since first
 We were dissever'd: Hastily lead away.

[Exeunt.

COMEDY OF ERRORS.

PERSONS REPRESENTED.

use. win Brothers, and Sons to Æ- geon and Æmi- lia, but unknown to each other. Brothers, and attendants on the Antipholus's.	A MERCHANT, Friend to Ant cuse. PINCH, a Schoolmaster, and a ÆMILIA, Wife to Ægeon, an At ADRIANA, Wife to Antipholus LUCIANA, her Sister. LUCE, her Servant. A COURTIZAN. Jailer, Officers, and other SCENE, Ephesus
---	--

Duke's Palace.
Officer, and other

procure my fall,
and woes and all.
plead no more;
laws:
of late [duke
strange of your country men,—
their lives,
tutes with their
beat'ning looks.
fine jars
on and us,
decreed,
ourselves,
rse towns:

ten fairs,
e dies,
ke's dispose;
vied,
nsum him.
ighest rate,
d marks;
ndemn'd to die.
when your words

re evening sun.
ay, in brief, the y native home;

st to Epæsus.
t not have been speakable:

ess, that my end
by vile offence,

Natural affection.

I'll utter what my sorrow give
In Syracuse was I born; and Unto a woman, happy but for
And by me too, had not our h
With her I liv'd in joy; our w
By prosperous voyages I offer
To Epidamnum, till my factor
And he (great care of goods a Drew me from kind embraceme
From whom my absence was
old,

Before herself (almost at faint
The pleasing punishment that Had made provision for her f
And soon, and safe, arrived w
There she had not been long,
A joyful mother of two goodly
And, which was strange, the
As could not be distinguish'd
That very hour, and in the sel
A poor mean woman was deli
Of such a burden, male twins,
Those, for their parents were
I bought, and brought up to a
My wife, not meanly proud of Made daily motions for our ho
Unwilling I agreed; alas, too
We came aboard:

A league from Epidamnum he
Before the always-wind-obeyi
Gave any tragic instance of o
But longer did we not retain
For what obscured light the h
Did but convey unto our fearf
A doubtful warrant of immedi Which, though myself would
brac'd,

Yet the incessant weepings of Weeping before for what she
And piteous plainings of the p
That mourn'd for fashion, ig
fear,

Forc'd me to seek delays for t
And this it was,—for other me
The sailors sought for safety b
And left the ship, then sinkin

My wife, more careful for the latter-born,
Had fasten'd him unto a small spare mast,
Such as sea-faring men provide for storms;
To him one of the other twins was bound,
Whilst I had been like heedful of the other
The children thus dispos'd, my wife and I,
Fixing our eyes on whom our care was fix'd,
Fasten'd ourselves at either end the mast,
And floating straight, obedient to the stream,
Were carried towards Corinth, as we thought.
At length the sun, gazing upon the earth,
Dispers'd those vapours that offended us;
And, by the benefit of his wish'd light,
The seas wax'd calm, and we discovered
Two ships from far making amain to us,
Of Corinth that, of Epidaurus this
But ere they came,—O, let me say no more!
Gather the sequel by what went before.

Duke. Nay, forward, old man, do not break off so;

For we may pity, though not pardon thee.

Ege. O, had the gods done so, I had not now
Worthily term'd them merciless to us!

For, ere the ships could meet by twice five
leagues,

We were encounter'd by a mighty rock;
Which being violently borne upon,

Our helpful ship was splitted in the midst,
So that, in this unjust divorce of us,

Fortune had left to both of us alike
What to delight in, what to sorrow for.

Her part, poor soul! seeming as burdened
With lesser weight, but not with lesser woe,

Was carried with more speed before the wind;
And in our sight they three were taken up

By fishermen of Corinth, as we thought.
At length, another ship had seiz'd on us;

And, knowing whom it was their hap to save,
Gave helpful welcome to their shipwreck'd

guests;
And would have reft* the fishers of their prey,

Had not their bark been very slow of sail,
And therefore homeward did they bend their

course.—
Thus have you heard me sever'd from my bliss;

That by misfortunes was my life prolong'd,
To tell sad stories of my own mishaps.

Duke. And, for the sake of them thou sor-rowest for,

Do me the favour to dilate at full
What hath befall'n of them, and thee, till now.

Ege. My youngest boy, and yet my eldest
At eighteen years became inquisitive †

After his brother; and importun'd me,
That his attendant, (for his case was like,

Rest of his brother, but retain'd his name,)
Might bear him company in the quest of him:

Whom whilst I labour'd of a love to see,
I hazarded the loss of whom I lov'd.

Five summers have I spent in furthest Greece,
Roaming clean† through the bounds of Asia,

And, coasting homeward, came to Ephesus;
Hopeless to find, yet loath to leave unsought,

Or that, or any place that harbours men.
But here must end the story of my life;

And happy were I in my timely death,
Could all my travels warrant me they live.

Duke. Hapless Egeon, whom the fates have mark'd

To bear the extremity of dire mishap!
Now, trust me, were it not against our laws,

Against my crown, my oath, my dignity,
Which princes, would they, may not disannul,

My soul should sue as advocate for thee.
But, though thou art adjudged to the death,

* Deprived.

† Clear, completely.

And passed sentence may not be recall'd,
But to our honour's great disparagement,
Yet will I favour thee in what I can:
Therefore, merchant, I'll limit thee this day,
To seek thy help by beneficial help:
Try all the friends thou hast in Ephesus;
Beg thou, or borrow, to make up the sum,
And live, if not, then thou art doom'd to die:—
Jailer, take him to thy custody.

Jail. I will, my lord.

Ege. Hopeless, and helpless, doth Egeon
wend,*

But to procrastinate his lifeless end. [Exit.

SCENE II.—A public Place.

Enter ANTIPHOLUS and DROMIO of Syracuse,
and a MERCHANT.

Mer. Therefore, give out, you are of Epi-daurum,

Lest that your goods too soon be confiscate.

This very day, a Syracusan merchant

Is apprehended for arrival here;

And, not being able to buy out his life,

According to the statute of the town,

Dies ere the weary sun set in the west.

There is your money that I had to keep.

Ant. S. Go bear it to the Centaur,† where we host,

And stay there, Dromio, till I come to thee.

Within this hour it will be dinner-time:

Till that, I'll view the manners of the town,

Peruse the traders, gaze upon the buildings,

And then return, and sleep within mine inn;

For with long travel I am stiff and weary.

Get thee away

Dro. S. Many a man would take you at your
word,

And go indeed, having so good a mean

[Exit DRO. S.]

Ant. S. A trusty villain,‡ Sir, that very oft,
When I am dull with care and melancholy,

Lightens my humour with his merry jests.
What, will you walk with me about the town,

And then go to my inn, and dine with me?

Mer. I am invited, Sir, to certain merchants,
Of whom I hope to make much benefit;

I crave your pardon. Soon, at five o'clock,
Please you, I'll meet with you upon the mart,§

And afterwards consort you till bed-time;
My present business calls me from you now.

Ant. S. Farewell till then: I will go lose
myself,

And wander up and down, to view the city.

Mer. Sir, I commend you to your own content. [Exit MERCHANT.]

Ant. S. He that commends me to mine own
content,

Commends me to the thing I cannot get.
I to the world am like a drop of water,

That in the ocean seeks another drop;
Who, taking there to find his fellow forth,

Unseen, inquisitive, confounds himself:
So I, to find a mother, and a brother,

In quest of them, unhappy, lose myself.

Enter DROMIO of Ephesus.

Here comes the almanack of my true date,—
What now? How chance, thou art return'd so

soon?
Dro. E. Return'd so soon! rather approach'd
too late:

The capon burns, the pig falls from the spit;
The clock hath stricken twelve upon the bell,
My mistress made it one upon my cheek:

* Go.

† I.e. servant.

‡ The sign of their hotel.

§ Exchange, market-place.

COMEDY OF ERRORS.

because the meat is cold;
because you come not home;
home, because you have no

mach, having broke your fast;
now what 'tis to fast and pray,
your default to-day.

in your wind, Sir; tell me this,
[you?
you left the money that I gave expense, that I had o'Wedneser for my mistress' crupper;—

it, Sir, I kept it not.

not in a sportive humour now:
y not, where is the money?
ers here, how dar'st thou trust
e from thine own custody?

y you, jest, Sir, as you sit at

ss come to you in post;
ull be post indeed;
e your fault upon my pate.
naw, like mine, should be your

come without a messenger.

Dromio, come, these jests are
ason;

a merrier hour than this:
d I gave in charge to thee?
e, Sir? why you gave no gold

on, sir knave, have done your
as,

thou hast dispos'd thy charge.
arge was but to fetch you from [ner;

use, the Phoenix, Sir, to din-
her sister, stay for you.

us I am a Christian, answer [ney;

re you have bestow'd my mo-
that merry sounce* of yours,
ncks when I am indispos'd:
ousand marks thou hadst of some marks of yours upon

ss' marks upon my shoulders, nd marks between you both,—

our worship those again,
will not bear them patiently.

stress' marks! what mistress,
st thou?

worship's wife, my mistress at
nix;

t, till you come home to din-
you will bid you home to wilt thou flout me thus unto ere, take you that, sir knave.

man you, Sir? for God's sake,
r hands;

not, Sir, I'll take my heels.

[Exit DROMIO, E.
my life, by some device or

r-raught of all my money.

wn is full of cozenage;

rs, that deceive the eye,

recrers, that change the mind,

hes, that deform the body;

rs, prating mountebanks,
like liberties of sin:

† Over-reached.

If it prove so, I will be gone
I'll to the Centaur, to go seal
I greatly fear, my money is a

ACT II.

SCENE I.—A public place.

Enter ADRIANA, and

Adr. Neither my husband,
turn'd,

That in such haste I sent to;
Sure, Luciana, it is two o'clock

Luc. Perhaps, some merchant
him,

And from the mart he's son
Good sister, let us dine, and

A man is master of his liberty;
Time is their master; and, wif

They'll go, or come: If so, be Adr. Why should their liberty

more?

Luc. Because their business o'clock.

Adr. Look, when I serve him
ill.

Luc. O, know, he is the best
Adr. There's none, but asse

so.

Luc. Why, headstrong liberty
woe.

There's nothing, situate under
But hath its bound, in earth,

The beasts, the fishes, and the
Are their males' subject, and Men, more divine, and masters

Lords of the wide world, and

Indued with intellectual sense
Of more pre-eminence than fi

Are masters to their females,
Then let your will attend on

Adr. This servitude makes wed.

Luc. Not this, but troubles
me.

Adr. But, were you wedded
some away.

Luc. Ere I learn love, I'll p
Adr. How if your husband

where?

Luc. Till he come home again
bear.

Adr. Patience, unmov'd, wif
she pause;

They can be meek, that have A wretched soul, bruised with

We bid be quiet, when we be But were we burthen'd with

pain,

As much, or more, we should
So thou, that hast no unkind

thou,

With urging helpless patience
But, if thou live to see like rig

This fool-begg'd patience in t
Luc. Well, I will marry one d

Here comes your man, now i nigh.

Enter DROMIO of Ep

Adr. Say is your tardy master
Dro. E. Nay, he is at two l and that my two ears can witn Adr. Say, didst thou speak w thou his mind?

Dro. E. Ay, ay, he told his ear:

Beshrew his hand, I scarce c

make he so doubtfully, thou couldst
in meaning!

Nay, he struck so plainly, I could feel his blows; and withal so doubt-
t I could scarce understand them.
But say, I pr'ythee, is he coming
it seems, he hath great care to please

Why, mistress, sure my master is kern-mad.

kern-mad, thou villain?

I mean not cuckold-mad; but, sure,
he's stark mad:

lesir'd him to come home to dinner,
me for a thousand marks in gold:

n-time, quoth I; My gold, quoth he:

it doth burn, quoth I, My gold, quoth

me: [he:

come home? quoth I; My gold, quoth

the thousand marks I gave thee, villain?

quoth I, is burn'd; My gold, quoth he:

me, Sir, quoth I; Hang up thy mistress:

it thy mistress; out on thy mistress!

noth who?

Quoth my master: [tress:—

quoth he, no house, no wife, no mistress, errand, due unto my tongue,

him, I bear home upon my shoulders;

conclusion, he did beat me there.

Go back again, thou slave, and fetch him home.

Go back again, and be new beaten
home?

's sake, send some other messenger.

back, slave, or I will break thy pate across.

And he will bless that cross with other beating:

you I shall have a holy head.

hence, prating peasant, fetch thy master home.

Am I so round with you, as you
with me,

a football do you spurn me thus?

am me hence, and he will spurn me
either:

in this service, you must case me in leather. [Exit.

le, how impatience lowereth in your
face.

His company must do his minions
prince,

at home starve for a merry look.

nely age the alluring beauty took poor cheek? then he hath wasted it:

discourses dull? barren my wit?

e and sharp discourse be marr'd,

ess blunts it, more than marble hard.

gay vestments his affections bait?

it my fault, he's master of my state:

his are in me, that can be found

not ruin'd? then is he the ground features? My decayed fair?

look of his would soon repair:

unruly deer, he breaks the pale,

is from home; poor I am but his stale.
Self-arming jealousy!—he, beat it
hence.

Jafeching fools can with such wrongs dispense.

his eye doth homage elsewhere;

what let's it but he would be here?

Sister, you know, he prou

Would that alone alone I

So he would keep fair qu

I see the jewel, best ean

Will lose his beauty; an

That others touch, yet offer

Wear gold: and so no man,

But falsehood and corrupt

Since that my beauty can

I'll weep what's left aw

Luc. How many fond lousy!

SCENE II.—

Enter ANTIPHOLUS of Syracuse.

Ant. S. The gold, I gave to Dromio, is laid

Safe at the Centaur, and the heedful slave [up

Is wander'd forth, in care to seek me out.

By computation, and mine host's report,

I could not speak with Dromio, since at first

I sent him from the mart: See here he comes.

Enter DROMIO of Syracuse.

How now, Sir? is your merry humour alter'd?

As you love strokes, so jest with me again.

You know no Centaur? you receiv'd no gold?

Your mistress sent to have me home to dinner?

My house was at the Phoenix? Wast thou

mad,

That thus so madly thou didst answer me?

Dro. S. What answer, Sir? when speaks I such a word?

Ant. S. Even now, even here, not half an hour since.

Dro. S. I did not see you since you sent me

hence. [me.

Home to the Centaur, with the gold you gave

Ant. S. Villain, thou didst deny the gold's receipt;

And told'st me of a mistress, and a dinner;

For which, I hope, thou felt'st I was dis-

pleas'd.

Dro. S. I am glad to see you in this merry vein: [me.

What means this jest? I pray you, master, tell

Ant. S. Yea, dost thou jeer, and flout me in the teeth?

Think'st thou, I jest? Hold, take thou that,

and that. [Beating him.

Dro. S. Hold, Sir, for God's sake: now your jest is earnest:

Upon what bargain do you give it me?

Ant. S. Because that I familiarly sometimes

Do use you for my fool, and chat with you,

Your sauciness will jest upon my love,

And make a common of my serious hours.*

When the sun shines, let foolish quats make sport, [beams.

But creep in crannies, when he hides his

If you will jest with me, know my aspect,†

And fashion your demeanour to my looks,

Or I will beat this method in your scone.

Dro. S. Scone, call you it? so you would leave battering, I had rather have it a head.

an you use these blows long, I must get a scone for my head, and insconce† it too; or else I shall seek my wit in my shoulders. But,

I pray, Sir, why am I beaten?

Ant. S. Dost thou not know?

Dro. S. Nothing, Sir; but that I am beaten.

Ant. S. Shall I tell you why?

Dro. S. Ay, Sir, and wherefore; for, they say, every why hath a wherefore.

* I e. Intrude on them when you please.

† Study my countenance.

‡ A scone was a fortification.

† Fair, for fairness.

‡ Hinder.

COMEDY OF ERRORS.

[ACT II.

ting me; and

me.

an thus beaten

erefore, is nei-

hat?

something that

s next, to give

at say, Sir, is it

he meat wants

at's that?

be dry.

eat none of it.

leric, and pur-

et in good time;

hat, before you

as plain as the
himself.

man to recover
ture.

due and reco-

a peruke, and

man.

gurd of hair,

eriment?

ing that he be-

hath scanted

in wit.

ny a man hath

ut he hath the

lude hairy men

he sooner lost:

ty.

ones too.

ay you.

ing falsing.

money that he

at dinner they

me have proved,

er; namely, no

are.

not substantial,

ime himself is

aid's end, will

a bald conclu-

er? [sion:

CIANA.

ok strange, and

Some other mistress hath thy sweet aspects,
I am not Adriana, nor thy wife. [vow

The time was once, when thou unurg'd wouldst

That never words were music to thine ear,

That never object pleasing to thine eye,

That never touch well-welcome to thy hand,

That never meat sweet-savour'd in thy taste,

Unless I spake, look'd, touch'd, or car'd to

thee.

How comes it now, my husband, oh, how comes it,

That thou art then estranged from thyself?

Thyself I call it, being strange to me,

That, undividable, incorporate,

Am better than thy dear self's better part.

Ah, do not tear away thyself from me;

For know, my love, as easy may'st thou fall

A drop of water in the breaking gulph,

And take unmingled thence that drop again,

Without addition, or diminishing,

As take from me thyself, and not me too.

How dearly would it touch thee to the quick,

Should'st thou but hear I were licentious?

And that this body, consecrate to thee,

By ruffian lust should be contaminate?

Would'st thou not spit at me, and spurn at me,

And hurl the name of husband in my face,

And tear the stain'd skin off my harlot brow,

And from my false hand cut the wedding ring,

And break it with a deep-divorcing vow?

I know thou canst; and therefore, see, thou do

I am possess'd with an adulterate blot; [it

My blood is mingled with the crime of lust:

For, if we two be one, and thou play false,

I do digest the poison of thy flesh,

Being strumpeted by thy contagion.

Keep then fair league and truce with thy true

I live dis-stain'd, thou undishonoured. [bed;

Ant. S. Plead you to me, fair dame? I know

you not:

In Ephesus I am but two hours old,

As strange unto your town, as to your talk;

Who, every word by all my wit being scan'd,

Want wit in all one word to understand.

Lac. Fie, brother! how the world is chang'd

with you:

When were you wont to use my sister thus?

She sent for you by Dromio home to dinner.

Ant. S. By Dromio?

Dro. S. By me?

Adr. By thee: and this thou didst return from him,—

That he did buffet thee, and, in his blows

Denied my house for his, me for his wife.

Ant. S. Did you converse, Sir, with this

gentlewoman?

What is the course and drift of your complaint?

Dro. S. I, Sir? I never saw her till this time.

Ant. S. Villain, thou liest: for even her very

Didst thou deliver to me on the mart. [words

Dro. S. I never spake with her in all my life.

Ant. S. How can she thus then call us by our names, unless it be by inspiration? [names,

Adr. How ill agrees it with your gravity,

To counterfeit thus grossly with your slave,

Abetting him to thwart me in my mood?

Be it my wrong, you are from me exempt,

But wrong not that wrong with a more contempt.

Come, I will fasten on this sleeve of thine:

Thou art an elm, my husband, I a vine;

Whose weakness, married to my stronger state,

Makes me with thy strength to communicate.

If aught possess thee from me, it is dross,

Usurping ivy, brier, or idle moss;

for want of pruning, with intrusion
 of sap, and live on thy confusion.
 To me she speaks; she moves me for her theme.

Am I married to her in my dream?
 I now, and think I hear all this?
 Or drives our eyes and ears amiss?
 Now this sure uncertainty,
 Hums the offer'd fallacy.
 Dromio, go bid the servants spread for
 dinner.

O, for my beads! I cross me for a dinner.

A fairy land;—O, spite of spites!—
 With goblins, owls, and elvish sprites;
 By them not, this will ensue, [blue.
 Ask our breath, or pinch us black and /hy prat'at thou to thyself, and answer'at not? [not!

Thou drone, thou snail, thou slug, thou
 I am transformed, master, am not I?
 I think, thou art, in mind, and so am I.

Nay, master, both in mind, and in my shape.

Thou hast thine own form.

No, I am an ape.

Thou art chang'd to aught, 'tis to an
 ass.

'Tis true; she rides me, and I long
 to graze.

Am an ass; else it could never be,
 could know her as well as she knows
 me.

One, come, no longer will I be a fool,
 I'll finger in the eye and weep,
 I'll, and master, laugh my woes to scorn.—

To dinner; Dromio, keep the gate:—
 I'll dine above with you to-day,
 I'll see you of a thousand idle pranks:
 Any ask you for your master,
 Send forth, and let no creature enter.—
 Dromio, play the porter well.

Am I in earth, in heaven, or in hell?
 Or waking? mad, or well-advis'd?
 Into these, and to myself disgust'd!
 As they say, and persevere so,
 His must at all adventures go.

Master, shall I be porter at the gate?
 Y, and let none enter, lest I break
 our pate.

One, come, Antipholus, we dine too late. [Exeunt.

ACT III.

SCENE I.—The same.

ANTIPHOLUS of Ephesus, DROMIO of EPHESUS, ANGELO, and BALTHAZAR.

Good signior Angelo, you must excuse us all;

I shrewish, when I keep not hours:

I linger'd with you at your shop,

In making of her carkanet,†

It is-morrow you will bring it home.

'Tis a villain, that would face me down

on the mart; and that I beat him.

Wg'd him with a thousand marks in

gold;

I did deny my wife and house:—

Mark'd, thou, what didst thou mean by

this?

I say what you-will, Sir, but I know

what I know:

me.

† A necklace strung with pearls.

That you beat me at the mart, I have your hand to show:

If the skin were parchment, and the blows you gave were ink, [think.

Your own handwriting would tell you what I

Ant. E. I think, thou art an ass.

Dro. E. Marry, so it doth appear

By the wrongs I suffer, and the blows I bear.
 I should kick, being kick'd; and, being at that pass,

 You would keep from my heels, and beware of

an ass.

Ant. E. You are sad, signior Balthazar:

'Pray God, our cheer

May answer my good will, and your good welcome here.

Bal. I hold your dainties cheap, Sir, and your welcome dear.

Ant. E. O, signior Balthazar, either at flesh

or fish,

A table full of welcome makes scarce one dainty dish.

Bal. Good meat, Sir, is common; that every churl affords.

Ant. E. And welcome more common, for that's nothing but words.

Bal. Small cheer, and great welcome, makes a merry feast.

Ant. E. Ay, to a niggardly host, and more sparing guest:

But though my calves* be mean, take them in good part, [heart.

Better cheer may you have, but not with better
 But, soft; my door is lock'd, Go bid them let us in.

Dro. E. Maud, Bridget, Marian, Cicely,

Gillian, Jen'!

Dro. S. [Within.] Mome,† malt-horse, capon,

coxcomb, idiot, patch!‡

Either get thee from the door, or sit down at the hatch:

Dost thou conjure for wenches, that thou call'st
 for such store,

When one is one too many? Go, get thee from the door.

Dro. E. What patch is made our porter? My master stays in the street.

Dro. S. Let him walk from whence he came,
 lest he catch cold on's feet.

Ant. E. Who talks within there? ho, open
 the door.

Dro. S. Right, Sir, I'll tell you when, and you'll tell me wherefore.

Ant. E. Wherefore? for my dinner, I have not din'd to-day.

Dro. S. Nor to-day here you must not; come again, when you may.

Ant. E. What art thou, that keep'st me out from the house I owe?§

Dro. S. The porter for this time, Sir, and my name is Dromio.

Dro. E. O villain, thou hast stolen both mine office and my name; [blame.

The one ne'er got me credit, the other mickle.
 If thou had'st been Dromio to-day in my place,

Thou would'st have chang'd thy face for a name, or thy name for an ass.

Luce. [Within.] What a coil|| is there? Dro-mio, who are those at the gate?

Dro. E. Let my master in, Luce.

Luce. Faith no; he comes too late;

And so tell your master.

Dro. E. O Lord, I must laugh:—

Have at you with a proverb.—Shall I set in my staff?

* Dishes of meat.

† I own, am owner of.

‡ Blockhead.

§ Fool.

|| Bustle, tumult.

COMEDY OF ERRORS.

another: that's,— call'd Luce, Luce,
 him well.
 minion? you'll let
 ask'd you.
 well struck; there
 let me in.
 ose sake?
 the door hard.
 it ake.
 s, minion, if I beat
 that, and a pair of that at the door, that ur town is troubled ife! you might have ve! go, get you from pain, master, this cheer, Sir, nor welain have either.
 was best, we shall be door, master; bid
 her
 ing in the wind, that so, master, if your within; you stand
 as a buck, to be so something, I'll break
 king here, and I'll
 a word with you,
 re but wind;
 lace, so he break it
 wantest breaking;
 out upon thee! I have no feathers,
 in; Go borrow me
 a feather; master, [a feather:
 ere's a fowl without
 b, we'll pluck a crow
 me, fetch me an iron
 , O, let it not be so;
 our reputation,
 pass of suspect
 your wife.
 perience of her wis-
 nd modesty, [dom,
 use to you unknown;
 he will well excuse
 s are made; against proverbial phrases.

 fast.

Be rul'd by me; depart in p
 And let us to the Tiger all b
 And, about evening, come y
 To know the reason of this
 If by strong hand you offer
 Now in the stirring passage
 A vulgar comment will be n
 And that supposed by the c
 Against your yet ungalled e
 That may with soul intrusion
 And dwell upon your gra
 For slander lives upon succ
 For ever hous'd, where it om Ant. E. You have prevail
 in quiet,
 And, in despite of mirth, s
 I know a wench of excellen Pretty and witty; wild, and,
 There will we dine; this wo
 My wife (but, I protest, wit
 Hath oftentimes upbraided
 To her will we to dinner.—
 And fetch the chain; by th
 Bring it, I pray you, to the P
 For there's the house; that c (Be it for nothing but to spit Upon mine hostess there:
 h'ste:
 Since mine own doors refuse
 I'll knock elsewhere, to see
 me.
 Ang. I'll meet you at that
 hence.
 Ant. E. Do so; This jest s expense.

SCENE II.—Th

Enter LUCIANA, and ANTYPE

Luc. And may it be that y

got

A husband's office? shall,

Even in the spring of love,

rot?

Shall love, in building, gr

If you did wed my sister for

Then, for her wealth's a more kindness:

Or, if you like elsewhere, do

Muffle your false love w blindness:

Let not my sister read it in

Be not thy tongue thy ow

Look sweet, speak fair, bec

Apparel vice like virtue's

Bear a fair presence, thou tainted;

Teach sin the carriage of

Be secret-false: What need

What simple thief brags

'Tis double wrong, to truan

And let her read it in thy

Shame hath a bastard fame,

Ill deeds are doubled with

Alas, poor women! make us

Being compact of credit,†

Though others have the a sleeve;

We in your motion turn, s

Then, gentle brother, get yo

Comfort my sister, cheer b

'Tis holy sport, to be a little

When the sweet breath of

• By this time.

† Love-springs are young plants.

‡ I. e. Being made altogether of § Vain, is light of tongue.

Ant. S. Sweet mistress, (what your name is else, I know not,
 Nor by what wonder you do hit on mine,) [divine.]
 Less, in your knowledge, and your grace, you show not.
 Then our earth's wonder; more than earth Teach me, dear creature, how to think and
 speak;

Lay open to my earthy gross conceit,
 Another d in errors, feeble, shallow, weak,
 The folded meaning of your words' deceit.
 Against my soul's pure truth why labour you,
 To make it wander in an unknown field?
 Are you a god? would you create me new?
 Transform me then, and to your power I'll bet if that I am I, then well I know, [yield.]
 Your weeping sister is no wife of mine,
 Nor to her bed no homage do I owe;
 Far more, far more, to you do I decline.
 O, train me not, sweet mermaid,* with thy
 note,

To drown me in thy sister's flood of tears;
 Sing, siren, for thyself, and I will dote:
 Spread o'er the silver waves thy golden hairs,
 And as a bed I'll take thee, and there lie;
 And, in that glorious supposition, think He gains by death, that hath such means to die:—

Let love, being light, be drowned if she sink!

Lac. What, are you mad, that you do reason
 so?

Ant. S. Not mad, but mated;† how, I do not know.

Lac. It is a fault that springeth from your
 eye.

Ant. S. For gazing on your beams, fair sun,
 being by.

Lac. Gaze where you should, and that will clear your sight.

Ant. S. As good to wink, sweet love, as look on night.

Lac. Why call you me love? call my sister
 so.

Ant. S. Thy sister's sister.

Lac. That's my sister.

Ant. S. No;

It is thyself, mine own self's better part;
 Mine eye's clear eye, my dear heart's dearer
 heart; [aim,

My food, my fortune, and my sweet hope's
 My sole earth's heaven, and my heaven's claim.

Lac. All this my sister is, or else should be.

Ant. S. Call thyself sister, sweet, for I aim
 thee:

Thou wilt I love, and with thee lead my life;
 Thou hast no husband yet, nor I no wife:

Give me thy hand.

Lac. O soft, Sir, hold you still;

I'll fetch my sister, to get her good will.
[Exit Lac.]

Enter, from the house of ANTIPHOLUS of Ephesus, DROMIO of Syracuse.

Ant. S. Why, how now, Dromio? where wast thou so fast?

Dro. S. Do you know me, Sir? am I Dro-mio? am I your man? am I myself?

Ant. S. Thou art Dromio, thou art my man,
 thou art thyself.

Dro. S. I am an ass, I am a woman's man,
 and besides myself.

Ant. S. What woman's man? and how besides thyself?

Dro. S. Marry, Sir, besides myself, I am due to a woman; one that claims me, one that haunts me, one that will have me.

Ant. S. What claim lays she to thee?

Dro. S. Marry, Sir, such claim as you would lay to your horse; and she would have me as a beast; not that, I being a beast, she would have me; but that she, being a very beastly creature,
 lays claim to me.

Ant. S. What is she?

Dro. S. A very reverent body; ay, such a one as a man may not speak of, without he say,
 sir-reverence: I have but lean luck in the match, and yet is she a wondrous fat marriage?

Ant. S. How dost thou mean, a fat marriage?

Dro. S. Marry, Sir, she's the kitchen-wench, and all grease: and I know not what use to put her to, but to make a lamp of her, and run from her by her own light. I warrant, her rags, and the tallow in them, will burn a Poland winter: if she lives till doomsday, she'll burn a week longer than the whole world.

Ant. S. What complexion is she of?

Dro. S. Swart,* like my shoe, but her face nothing like so clean kept; For why? she sweats, a man may go over shoes in the grime
 of it.

Ant. S. That's a fault that water will mend.

Dro. S. No, Sir, 'tis in grain; Noah's flood could not do it.

Ant. S. What's her name?

Dro. S. Nell, Sir;—but her name and three quarters, that is, an ell and three quarters, will not measure her from hip to hip.

Ant. S. Then she bears some breadth?

Dro. S. No longer from head to foot, than from hip to hip: she is spherical, like a globe;
 I could find out countries in her.

Ant. S. In what part of her body stands Ireland?

Dro. S. Marry, Sir, in her buttocks; I found it out by the bogs.

Ant. S. Where Scotland?

Dro. S. I found it by the barrenness: hard, in the palm of the hand.

Ant. S. Where France?

Dro. S. In her forehead; arm'd and reverted, making war against her hair.

Ant. S. Where England?

Dro. S. I look'd for the chalky cliffs, but I could find no whiteness in them: but I guess, it stood in her chin, by the salt rheum that ran between France and it.

Ant. S. Where Spain?

Dro. S. Faith, I saw it not; but I felt it, hot in her breath.

Ant. S. Where America, the Indies?

Dro. S. O, Sir, upon her nose, all o'er embellished with rubies, carbuncles, sapphires,
 declining their rich aspect to the hot breath
 of Spain; who sent whole armadas of carracks†
 to be ballast to her nose.

Ant. S. Where stood Belgia, the Netherlands?

Dro. S. O, Sir, I did not look so low. To conclude, this drudge, or diviner, laid claim to me; called me Dromio; swore, I was as-sur'd‡ to her; told me what privy marks I had about me, as the mark on my shoulder, the mole in my neck, the great wart on my left arm, that I, amazed, ran from her as a witch:
 and, I think, if my breast had not been made of faith, and my heart of steel, she had transformed me to a curtail-dog, and made me turn i'the wheel.§

* Swartly.
 † Afflanced.

‡ Large ships.
 § A turn-wheel.

* Mermaid for siren.

† I. e. Confounded.

COMEDY OF ERRORS.

his thee presently, post to the
 and blow any way from shore,
 harbour in this town to-night.
 out forth, come to the mart,
 I walk, till thou return to me.
 know us, and we know none,
 think, to trudge, pack, and be from bear a man would run for her that would be my wife.

[Exit.
 here's none but witches do inhabit
 'tis high time that I were hence.
 I call me husband, even my soul
 I abhor: but her fair sister,
 with such a gentle sovereign grace,
 charming presence and discourse,
 made me traitor to myself:
 I self be guilty to self-wrong,
 I ears against the mermaid's song.

Enter ANGELO.

Antipholus?
 that's my name.
 Now it well, Sir: Lo, here is the
 I have ta'en you at the Porcupine:
 I wish'd made me stay thus long.
 What is your will, that I should do
 at this?
 I please yourself, Sir; I have
 it for you.
 I made it for me, Sir! I bespoke it once, not twice, but twenty times
 have:
 but, and please your wife withal;
 at supper-time I'll visit you,
 I receive my money for the chain.
 I pray you, Sir, receive the money

ne'er see chain, nor money, more.
 I am a merry man, Sir; fare you
 [Exit.
 that I should think of this, I cannot think, there's no man is so vain,
 I refuse so fair an offer'd chain.
 I here needs not live by shifts,
 the streets he meets such golden gifts.
 I art, and there for Dromio stay;
 I cut out, then straight away. [Exit.

ACT IV.

SCENE I.—The same.

CHANT, ANGELO, and an OFFICER.
 I know, since pentecost the sum is
 I have not much importun'd you;
 I and not, but that I am bound
 I and want gilders* for my voyage:
 I take present satisfaction,
 I with you by this officer.
 I just the sum, that I do owe to
 I to me by Antipholus; (you,
 I constant that I met with you,
 I a chain; at five o'clock,
 I ve the money for the same:
 I walk with me down to his house,
 I ge my bond, and thank you too.

Enter ANTIPHOLUS of Ephesus
 Ephesus.

Off. That labour may you be comes.

Ant. E. While I go to the g go thou

And buy a rope's end; that Among my wife and her conf
 For locking me out of my do
 But soft, I see the goldsmith
 Buy thou a rope, and bring it

Dro. E. I buy a thousand buy a rope!

Ant. E. A man is well hol
 to you:

I promised your presence, an
 But neither chain, nor goldsm
 Belike, you thought our lov
 long,

If it were chain'd together
 came not.

Ang. Saving your merry hi
 note,

How much your chain weigh
 The fineness of the gold, and Which doth amount to three
 That I stand debted to this g
 I pray you, see him presently
 For he is bound to sea, and st

Ant. E. I am not furnish'd money:

Besides, I have some busines
 Good signior take the strange
 And with you take the chain,
 Disburse the sum on the recei
 Perchance, I will* be there a

Ang. Then you will bring yourself?

Ant. E. No; bear it with not time enough.

Ang. Well, Sir, I will: Ha
 about you?

Ant. E. An if I have not,
 have;

Or else you may return witho
 Ang. Nay, come, I pray y
 the chain;

Both wind and tide stays for
 And I, to blame, have held h

Ant. E. Good lord, you use excuse

Your breach of promise to the
 I should have chid you for no
 But, like a shrew, you first be Mer. The hour steals on; .

despatch.

Ang. You hear, how he im
 chain—

Ant. E. Why, give it to my your money.

Ang. Come, come, you kno
 even now;

Either send the chain, or se
 Ant. E. Fie! now you run of breath:

Come, where's the chain? I Mer. My business cannot liauce;

Good Sir, say, wher you'll an
 If not, I'll leave him to the off

Ant. E. I answer you! Wl swer you?

Ang. The money, that you owe Ant. E. I owe you none, I

chain.

† Angelo

to 12th.

to know I gave it you half an hour ago.

You gave me none; you wrong me
both to say so.

It wrong me more, Sir, in denying it;
how it stands upon my credit.

Will officer, arrest him at my suit,
and charge you in the duke's name,
to obey me.

It touches me in reputation:—
sent to pay this sum for me,
by you by this officer.

I consent to pay thee that I never had!
Foolish fellow, if thou dar'st.

So is thy fee; arrest him officer;
I spare my brother in this case,
I scorn me so apparently.

I arrest you, Sir, you hear the suit.
I do obey thee, till I give thee
this:—

you shall buy this sport as dear metal in your shop will answer.

Sir, I shall have law in Ephesus,
for your shame, I doubt it not.

Enter DROMIO of Syracuse.

Master, there is a bark of Epidamnus,

but till her owner comes aboard,
Sir, bears away: our freightage,^a

I've stow'd aboard; and I have bought of balsamum, and aqua-vitæ,

in her trim; the merry wind [all,
from land: they stay for nought at sir owner, master, and yourself.

How now! a madman! Why thou smearest sheep,

of Epidamnium stays for me?
A ship you sent me to, to hire waf-fers.

From drunken slave, I sent thee for
wafers;

hence to what purpose and what end.
You sent me, Sir, for a rope's end
wafers:

me to the bay, Sir, for a bark.
I will debate this matter at more
ease,

your ears to listen with more heed.
A villain, bid thee straight:
his key, and tell her, in the desk
wafers o'er with Turkish tapestry,
purse of ducats. let her send it;
am arrested in the street,
shall bail me: bid thee, slave; be
to prison till it come. [gone.

Exit MERCHANT, ANGELO, OFFICER,
and ANT. K.

To Adriana! that is where he din'd,
wafers did claim me for her husband.

Wafers, I hope, for me to compass.
Must, although against my will,
to must their master's minds fulfil.

[Exit.

SCENE II.—The same.

Enter ADRIANA and LUCIANA.

Luciana, did he tempt thee so?
thou perceive austerely in his eye
d plead in earnest, yea or no? [ly?

It or red, or pale; or sad, or merry-
th, says. † Still. ‡ Carriage.

What observation mad'st thou in this case,
Of his heart's meteors tilting in his face?^a

Lac. First, he denied you had in him no right.

Adr. He meant, he did me none; the more
my spite.

Lac. Then swore he, that he was a stranger
here.

Adr. And true he swore, though yet forewarn'd
he were.

Lac. Then pleaded I for you.

Adr. And what said he?

Lac. That love I begg'd for you, he begg'd of me.

Adr. With what persuasion did he tempt thy
love?

Lac. With words, that in an honest suit might move.

First, he did praise my beauty; then, my speech.

Adr. Did'st speak him fair?

Lac. Have patience, I beseech.

Adr. I cannot, nor I will not, hold me still;
My tongue, though not my heart, shall have his will.

He is deformed, crooked, old, and severe,[†] Ill-fac'd, worse-bodied, shapeless every where;
Vicious, ungentle, foolish, blunt, unkind;
Stigmatical in making,[‡] worse in mind.

Lac. Who would be jealous then of such a
No evil lost is wail'd when it is gone. [gone?

Adr. Ah! but I think him better than I say,
And yet would herein others' eyes were
worse:

Far from her nest the lapwing cries away;[§]
My heart prays for him, though my tongue
do curse.

Enter DROMIO of Syracuse.

Dro. S. Here, go; the desk, the purse; sweet now, make haste.

Lac. How hast thou lost thy breath?

Dro. S. By running fast.

Adr. Where is thy master, Dromio? is he
well?

Dro. S. No, he's in tartar limbo, worse than
hell:

A devil in an everlasting garment^{||} hath him
One, whose hard heart is button'd up with A fiend, a fairy, pitiless and rough; [steel;

A wolf, nay, worse, a fellow all in buff;
A back-friend, a shoulder-clapper, one than countermands [lands;

The passages of alleys, creeks, and narrow
A hound that runs counter, and yet draws dry-foot well;

One that, before the judgment, carries poor souls to hell.[¶]

Adr. Why, man, what is the matter?

Dro. S. I do not know the matter? he is 'rested on the case.

Adr. What, is he arrested? tell me, at whose suit.

Dro. S. I know not at whose suit he is arrested, well;

But he's in a suit of buff, which 'rested him,
that can I tell:

Will you send him, mistress, redemption, the money in the desk?

^a An allusion to the redness of the northern lights,
likened to the appearance of armies.

[†] Dry, withered.

[‡] Marked by nature with deformity.

[§] Who crieth most where her nest is not.

^{||} The officers in those days were clad in buff, which is also a cant expression for a man's skin.

[¶] Hell was the cant term for 'prison.'

COMEDY OF ERRORS.

er.—This I wonder at, [Exit LUCIANA.

e, should be in debt:
d on a band?"
and, but on a stronger

ou not hear it ring?

bell: 'tis time, that I

m, and now the clock

back! that did I never

hour meet a sergeant,
r very fear.

e in debt! how fondly
n?

y bankrupt, and owes
worth to season.

ave you not heard men

g on by night and day?
left, and a sergeant in

[day?
urn back an hour in a

CIANA.

ere's the money, bear

home immediately.—
ress'd down with con-

and my injury.

[Exit.

—The same.

as of Syracuse.

a man I meet, but doth acquainted friend;

t me by my name.

me, some invite me;

anks for kindnesses;

ties to buy:

t me in his shop, [me,

that he had bought for measure of my body.

ginary wiles,

inhabit here.

of Syracuse.

's the gold you sent me

got the picture of old

this? what Adam dost

am, that kept the para-

that keeps the prison:

s skin that was killed

t came behind you, Sir,

id bid you forsake your

thee not.

s a plain case: he that

n a case of leather; the gentlemen are tired,

ests them; he, Sir, that men, and gives them

nt sets up his rest to do

s mace, than a morris-

mean't an officer?

sergeant of the band;

an to answer it, that † Fanciful conception.

breaks his band: one that thi ways going to bed, and says
good rest.

Ant. S. Well, Sir, there rest i Is there any ship puts forth to-
be gone?

Dro. S. Why, Sir, I brough hour since, that the bark Expe to-night! and then were you l
sergeant, to tarry for the boy,
are the angels that you sent for,

Ant. S. The fellow is distract
And here we wander in illusion
Some blessed power deliver us

Enter a COURTIZA

Cour. Well met, well met,
pholus,

I see, Sir, you have found the
Is that the chain you promis'd

Ant. S. Satan, avoid! I cha me not!

Dro. S. Master, is this mistr
Ant. S. It is the devil.

Dro. S. Nay, she is worse, al dam; and here she comes in the

wench; and thereof comes, th say, God damn me, that's as

God makes me a light wench. It appear to men like angels of li effect of fire, and fire will bu

wenches will burn; Come not

Cour. Your man and you merry, Sir.

Will you go with me? We'll m

Dro. S. Master, if you do exp

or bespeak a long spoon.

Ant. S. Why, Dromio?

Dro. S. Marry, he must hav

that must eat with the devil.

Ant. S. Avoid then, fend I me of supping?

Thou art, as you are all, a sore

I conjure thee to leave me, and

Cour. Give me the ring of m

dinner,

Or, for my diamond, the chain

And I'll be gone, Sir, and not

Dro. S. Some devils ask br one's nail,

A rush, a hair, a drop of blood

A nut, a cherry-stone: but she,

Would have a chain.

Master, be wise; and if you g

The devil will shake her chair

with it.

Cour. I pray you, Sir, the ri

chain;

I hope, you do not mean to ch

Ant. S. Avaunt, thou witch!

let us go.

Dro. S. Fly pride, says the truss, that you know.

[Exit

Cour. Now, out of doubt, An Else would he never so demea.

A ring he hath of mine worth

And for the same he promised

Both one, and other, he denies

The reason that I gather he is (Resides this present instance

Is a mad tale, he told to-day

Of his own doors being shut

trance.

Belike, his wife, acquainted

On purpose shut the doors ag

My way is now, to his house

And tell his wife, that, being lunatic,
He rush'd into my house, and took perforce
My ring away: This course I fittest choose;
For forty ducats is too much to loan. [Exit.]

SCENE IV.—The same.

Enter ANTIPHOLUS of Ephesus, and an OFFICER.

Ant. E. Fear me not, man, I will not break away;
I'll give thee, ere I leave thee, so much money
To warrant thee, as I am 'rested for.
My wife is in a wayward mood to-day:
And will not lightly trust the messenger,
That I should be attach'd in Ephesus:
I tell you, 'twill sound harshly in her ears.—

Enter DROMIO of Ephesus with a rope's end.

See comes my man; I think, he brings the money.

How now, Sir? have you that I sent you for?

Dr. E. Here's that, I warrant you, will pay them all.*

Ant. E. But where's the money?

Dr. E. Why, Sir, I gave the money for the rope.

Ant. E. Five hundred ducats, villain, for a rope?

Dr. E. I'll serve you, Sir, five hundred at the rate.

Ant. E. To what end did I bid thee bid thee home?

Dr. E. To a rope's end, Sir; and to that end I am return'd.

Ant. E. And to that end, Sir, I will welcome you. [Beating him.]

Of. Good Sir, be patient.

Dr. E. Nay, 'tis for me to be patient; I am in adversity.

Of. Good now, hold thy tongue.

Dr. E. Nay, rather persuade him to hold his hands.

Ant. E. Thou whoreson, senseless villain!

Dr. E. I would I were senseless, Sir, that I might not feel your blows.

Ant. E. Thou art sensible in nothing but blows, and so is an ass.

Dr. E. I am an ass, indeed; you may prove it by my long ears. I have serv'd him from the hour of nativity to this instant, and have nothing at his hands for my service, but blows: when I am cold, he heats me with beating; when I am warm, he cools me with beating; I am waked with it, when I sleep, raised with it, when I sit; driven out of doors with it, when I go from home; welcomed home with it, when I return: nay, I bear it on my shoulders, as a beggar wont her brat, and, I think, when he hath lamed me, I shall beg with it from door to door.

Enter ADRIANA, LUCIANA, and the COURTIZAN, with PINCH, and others.

Ant. E. Come, go along; my wife is coming yonder.

Dr. E. Mistress, respice faciem, respect your end, or rather the prophecy, like the parrot, Repeat the rope's end.

Ant. E. Wilt thou still talk? [Beats him.]

Cour. How say you now? is not your husband mad?

Adr. His incivility confirms no less.—

Good doctor Pinch, you are a conjurer;
Establish him in his true sense again,
And I will please you what you will demand.

Luc. Alas, how fiery and how sharp he looks!

* Correct them all.

Cour. Mark, how he trembles in his ecstasy.
Pinch. Give me your hand, and let me feel your pulse.

Ant. E. There is my hand, and let it feel your ear.

Pinch. I charge thee, Satan, bound within this man,

To yield possession to my holy prayers,
And to thy state of darkness bid thee straight;
I conjure thee by all the saints in heaven.

Ant. E. Peace, dotting wizard, peace, I am not mad.

Adr. O, that thou wert not, poor distressed soul!

Ant. E. You minion you, are these your customers?

Did this companion* with a saffron face
Revel and feast it at my house to day,
Whilst upon me the guilty doors were shut,
And I denied to enter in my house?

Adr. O, husband, God doth know, you din'd at home,

Where 'would you had remain'd until this time,
Free from these slanders, and this open shame!

Ant. E. I din'd at home! Thou villain, what say'st thou?

Dr. E. Sir, sooth to say, you did not dine at home.

Ant. E. Were not my doors lock'd up, and I shut out?

Dr. E. Perdy,† your doors were lock'd, and you shut out.

Ant. E. And did not she herself revile me there?

Dr. E. Sans fable,‡ she herself revil'd you there.

Ant. E. Did not her kitchen maid rail, taunt, and scorn me?

Dr. E. Certes,§ she did; the kitchen-vestal scorn'd you.

Ant. E. And did not I in rage depart from thence?

Dr. E. In verity you did;—my bones bear witness,

That since have felt the vigour of his rage.

Adr. Is't good to sooth him in these contraries?

Pinch. It is no shame; the fellow finds his vein,

And, yielding to him, humours well his frenzy.

Ant. E. Thou hast suborn'd the goldsmith to arrest me.

Adr. Alas, I sent you money to redeem you.
By Dromio here, who came in haste for it.

Dr. E. Money by me? heart and good-will you might,

But surely, master, not a rag of money.

Ant. E. Went'st not thou to her for a purse of ducats?

Adr. He came to me, and I deliver'd it.

Luc. And I am witness with her, that she did.

Dr. E. God and the rope-maker, bear me witness,

That I was sent for nothing but a rope!

Pinch. Mistress, both man and master is possess'd:

I know it by their pale and deadly looks:
They must be bound, and laid in some dark room.

Ant. E. Say, wherefore didst thou lock me forth to-day,

And why dost thou deny the bag of gold?

* Fellow

† A corruption of the French ouïs—pardon.

‡ Without a fable.

§ Certainly.

COMEDY OF ERRORS.

husband, lock thee

ter, I receiv'd no

were lock'd out.

thou speak'st false

ot, thou art false in carned pack, [all;

scorn of me:

uck out those false

he shameful sport.

ants bind ANT. and

him, let him not

the bond is strong

ow pale and was murder me? Thou

a suffer them

shall not have him.

for he is frantic too.

thou peevish* offi-

retched man [cer?

to himself?

il I let him go,

quir'd of me.

ere I go from thee:

reditor, [it.

grows, I will pay safe convey'd

st unhappy day!

strumpet!

enter'd in bond

in! wherefore dost

and for nothing? be

— [mad,

how idly do they

—Sister, go you

stants with ANT.

crested at!

with; Do you know

what is the sum he oe!

ur husband had of

chain for me, but

band, all in rage,

away my ring,

eger now,)

with a chain.

nd never see it:—

re the goldsmith is,

reat at large.

ur, with his rapier

f Syracuse.

they are loose

ky, & c. mischievous.

Adr. And come with me
call more help,
To have them bound again.

Off. Away, they'll kill us.

[Exeunt OFFICERS

Ant. S. I see these witch

swords.

Dro. S. She, that would be ran from you.

Ant. S. Come to the Centaur

from thence:

I long, that we were safe and

Dro. S. Faith, stay here this surely do us no harm; you sa

fair, give us gold: methinks,

gentle nation, that but for the flesh that claims marriage of

in my heart to stay here still,

Ant. S. I will not stay to-

town;

Therefore away, to get our s

ACT V.

SCENE I.—The

Enter MERCHANT and

Ang. I am sorry, Sir, tha

But, I protest, he had the ch

Though most dishonestly he

Mer. How is the man este

city?

Ang. Of very reverend rep

Of credit infinite, highly bel

Second to none that lives her

His word might bear my we

Mer. Speak softly: yonde

walks.

Enter ANTIPHOLUS and DRO

Ang. 'Tis so; and that sel

neck,

Which he forswore, most mon

Good Sir, draw near to me, I

Signior Antipholus, I wonde

That you would put me to this

And not without some scand

With circumstance, and oath

This chain, which now you w

Besides the charge, the shar

You have done wrong to this:

Who, but for staying on our

Had hoisted sail, and put to

This chain you had of me, ca

Ant. S. I think, I had; I r

Mer. Yes, that you did, S

it too.

Ant. S. Who heard me to swear it?

Mer. These ears of mine, t

hear thee:

Fie on thee, wretch! 'tis pity

To walk where any honest m

Ant. S. Thou art a villain

thus:

I'll prove mine honour, and Against thee presently, if the

Mer. I dare, and do defy t

Enter ADRIANA, LUCIANA, (

others.

Adr. Hold, hurt him not,

he is mad:—

* Scap.

me, take his sword away:
and bear them to my house.
Enter, run; for God's sake, haste.

—In, or we are spoil'd.
and DRONIO to the Priory.

Enter the ABBESS.

people; Wherefore throng
thy poor distracted husband

if we may bind him fast,
for his recovery.
was not in his perfect wits.
now, that I did draw on

with this possession held the

he hath been heavy, sour,

different from the man he was; his passion [was;
extremity of rage.
lost much wealth by wreck

friend? Hath not else his in unlawful love? [eye
such in youthful men,
is the liberty of gazing.
rows is he subject to these, except it be the last;
e, that drew him oft from

I for that have reprehended lid.

rough enough.
as my modesty would let private.

implies too.
enough.
copy of our conference:
of for my urging it;
of for my urging it;
subject of my theme;
in glanced it;
it was vile and bad.
if came it, that the man was

rs of a jealous woman
y than a mad dog's tooth.
were hinder'd by thy rail-

it that his head is light.
eat was sauc'd with thy up-

ke ill digestions,
fire of fever bred;
r but a fit of madness?
ports were hinder'd by thy

arr'd, what doth ensue,
ll melancholy,
and comfortless despair;)
a huge infectious troop
atures, and foes to life?
and life-preserving rest
ould mad or man, or beast;
s then, thy jealous fits usband from the use of wits.
eprehended him but mildly,
d himself rough, rude, and

with him.
f The theme.

Why bear you these rebukes, and answer not?

Adr. She did betray me to my own reproof.—
Good people, enter, and lay hold on him.

Abb. No, not a creature enters in my house.

Adr. Then, let your servants bring my husband forth.

Abb. Neither; he took this place for sanctuary,

And it shall privilege him from your hands,
Till I have brought him to his wife again,
Or lose my labour in assaying it.

Adr. I will attend my husband, be his nurse,
Diet his sickness, for it is my office,
And will have no attorney but myself;
And therefore let me have him home with me.

Abb. Be patient, for I will not let him stir, Till I have us'd the approved means I have,
With wholesome syrups, drugs, and holy prayers,

To make of him a formal man again:—
It is a branch and parcel of mine oath,
A charitable duty of my order;

Therefore depart, and leave him here with me.
Adr. I will not hence, and leave my husband
And all it doth beseech your holiness, [here;
To separate the husband and the wife.

Abb. Be quiet, and depart, thou shalt not have him. [Exit ABBESS.

Luc. Complain unto the duke of this indignity.

Adr. Come, go; I will fall prostrate at his feet,

And never rise until my tears and prayers
Have won his grace to come in person hither,
And take perforce my husband from the Abbess.

Mer. By this, I think, the dial points at five:
Anon, I am sure, the duke himself in person
Comes this way to the melancholy vale,
The place of death and sorry execution,
Behind the ditches of the abbey here.

Ang. Upon what cause?

Mer. To see a reverend Syracusan merchant,
Who put unluckily into this bay
Against the laws and statutes of this town,
Beheaded publicly for his offence.

Ang. See, where they come; we will behold his death.

Luc. Kneel to the duke, before he pass the abbey.

Enter DUKE attended; ÆGON bare-headed;
with the Headman and other Officers.

Duke. Yet once again proclaim it publicly,
If any friend will pay the sum for him,
He shall not die, so much we tender him.

Adr. Justice, most sacred duke, against the Abbess!

Duke. She is a virtuous and a reverend lady;
It cannot be, that she hath done thee wrong.

Adr. May it please your grace, Antipholus,
my husband,—

Whom I made lord of me and all I had,
At your important letters,—this ill day
A most outrageous fit of madness took him;
That desperately he hurried through the street (With him his bondman, all as mad as he,) Doing displeasure to the citizens
By rushing in their houses, bearing thence Rings, jewels, any thing his rage did like.
Once did I get him bound, and sent him home,
Whilst to take order for the wrongs I went,
That here and there his fury had committed.
Anon, I wot not by what strong escape,

* I. e. To bring him back to his senses. † Part. ‡ Red.
§ Impotent. || I. e. To take measures. ¶ Know.

COMEDY OF ERRORS.

[ACT V.

had the guard of

t and himself,
ion, with drawn

ent on us,
of more aid,

then they fled
pursued them;

gates on us,
h him out,

ve may bear him (mand,

ke, with thy com-
ad borne hence fur

band serv'd me in

ee's word,
master of thy bed,

good I could.—
abbey-gate,

to me;
I stir.

ANT.
s, shift and save

both broke loose,
nd bound the doc-

ed off with brands

hrew on him
to quench the hair:

to him, while
him like a fool:

some present help,
the conjurer.

aster and his man

report to us.
ife, I tell you true;

since I did see it.
if he can take you,

disfigure you: (Cry within.

stress; fly, be gone.
me, fear nothing:

s.
and! Witness you,

able:
the abbey here;

thought of human

omio of Ephesus.
racious duke, oh,

g since I did thee,
wars, and took

even for the blood
grant me justice.

oath doth make me

nd Dromio,
ince, against that

to be my wife;
nour'd me,

ight of injury I
wrong,

less thrown on me.
thou shalt find me

other.

Ant. E. This day, great duke, she shut the doors upon me,

While she with harlots^e feasted in my house.

Duke. A grievous fault: Say, woman, didst
thou so?

Asr. No, my good lord;—myself, he, and my sister,

To-day did dine together: So befall my soul,
As this is false, he burdens me withal!

Lac. Ne'er may I look on day, nor sleep on
night,

But she tells to your highness simple truth!

Asg. O perjor'd woman! They are both ser-
sworn.

In this the madman justly chargeth them.

Ant. E. My liege, I am advised what I say;
Neither disturb'd with the effect of wine,

Nor heady-rash, provok'd with raging ire,
Albert, my wrongs might make one wiser mad.

This woman lock'd me out this day from dinner:
That goldsmith there, were he not pack'd with

her,

Could witness it, for he was with me then;
Who parted with me to go fetch a chain,

Promising to bring it to the Porcupine,
Where Balthazar and I did dine together.

Our dinner done, and he not coming thither,
I went to seek him: in the street I met him;

And in his company, that gentleman, (dow,
There did this perjor'd goldsmith swear me

That I this day of him receiv'd the chain,
Which, God he knows, I saw not: for the

He did arrest me with an officer. (which,
I did obey; and sent my peasant home

For certain ducats: he with none return'd.
Then fairly I bespoke the officer,

To go in person with me to my house.
By the way we met

My wife, her sister, and a rabble more
Of vile confederates; along with them

They brought one Pinch; a hungry lean-fac'd
A mere anatomy, a mountebank, (villain,

A thread-bare juggler, and a fortune-teller;
A needy, hollow-ey'd, sharp-looking wretch,

A living dead man: this pernicious slave,
Forsooth, took on him as a conjurer;

And, gazing in mine eyes, feeling my pulse,
And with no face, as 'twere, outlacing me,

Cries out, I was possess'd: then altogether
They fell upon me, bound me, bore me thence;

And in a dark and dankish vault at home
There left me and my man, both bound together;

Till gnawing with my teeth my bonds in sunder,

I gain'd my freedom, and immediately
Ran hither to your grace; whom I beseech

To give me ample satisfaction
For these deep shames and great indignities.

Asg. My lord, in truth, thus far I witness
with him;

That he dined not at home but was lock'd out.

Duke. But had he such a chain of thee, or not?

Asg. He had, my lord: and when he ran
here,

These people saw the chain about his neck.

Mer. Besides, I will be sworn, these ears of
mine

Heard you confess you had the chain of him,
After you first foreswore it on the mart,

And, thereupon, I drew my sword on you;
And then you fled into this abbey here,

From whence, I think you are come by miracle.

Ant. E. I never came within these abbey
walls,

^e Harlot was a term of reproach applied to women
such as well as to women living women.

Not ever didst thou draw thy sword on me:
I never saw the chain, so help me heaven!
And this is false, you burden me withal.

Duke. Why, what an intricate impeach is this!

I think, you all have drank of Circe's cup.
If here you hous'd him, here he would have been;

If he were mad, he would not plead so cold.
You say, he dined at home; the goldsmith here
Denies that saying.—Surrah, what say you?

Dro. E. Sir, he dined with her there, at the Porcupine.

Cour. He did; and from my finger snatch'd that ring.

Ant. E. 'Tis true, my liege, this ring I had of her.

Duke. Saw'st thou him enter at the Abbey here?

Cour. As sure, my liege, as I do see your grace.

Duke. Why, this is strange:—Go all the Abbess hither;

I think you are all mated,* or stark mad.

Ege. Most mighty duke, vouchsafe me a word;

Haply I see a friend will save my life,
And pay the sum that may deliver me.

Duke. Speak freely, Syracusan, wilt thou?

Ege. Is not your name, Sir, call Antipholus?

And is not that your bondman Dromio?

Dro. E. Within this hour I was his bondman, Sir,

But he, I thank him, gnaw'd in two my cords;
Now am I Dromio, and his man, unbound.

Ege. I am sure, you both of you remember me.

Dro. E. Ourselves we do remember, Sir, by you;

For lately we were bound as you are now.
You are not Pinch's patient, are you, Sir?

Ege. Why look you strange on me? you know me well.

Ant. E. I never saw you in my life, till now.

Ege. Oh! grief hath chang'd me, since you saw me last;

And careful hours, with Time's deformed hand
Have written strange defeatures† in my face:

But tell me yet, dost thou not know my voice?

Ant. E. Neither.

Ege. Dromio, nor thou?

Dro. E. No, trust me, Sir, nor I.

Ege. I am sure, thou dost.

Dro. E. Ay, Sir; but I am sure, I do not;
And whatsoever a man denies, you are now bound to believe him.

Ege. Not know my voice! O, time's extremity!

But thou so crack'd and splitt'd my poor
In seven short years, that here my only son

Knows not my feeble key of untun'd cares?

Though now this grain'd face of mine be hid
In up-consuming winter's drizzled snow,

And all the conduits of my blood froze up;
Yet hath my night of life some memory,

Long lamp some fading glimmer left,
To deaf ears a little use to hear:

So old witnesses (I cannot err,)—
You art my son Antipholus.

Ant. E. I never saw my father in my life.

Ege. But seven years since, in Syracuse, boy,

'Thou know'st, we parted:

son,
Thou sham'st to acknowl—

Ant. E. The duke, and the city,

Can witness with me that it is:

I ne'er saw Syracuse in my life.

Duke. I tell thee, Syracusan:

Have I been patron to Antiph—

During which time he ne'er as I see, thy age and dangers ma—

Enter the ABBESS, with ANTIPHOLUS Syracusan, and DROMIO Syracusan.

Abb. Most mighty duke, behold a man much wrong'd.

Ant. I see two husbands, or mine eyes deceive me.

Duke. One of these men is Genius to the other;

And so of these: Which is the natural man, And which the spirit? Who deciphers them?

Dro. S. I, Sir, am Dromio; command him away.

Dro. E. I, Sir, am Dromio; pray let me stay.

Ant. S. Aegeon, art thou not? or else his ghost?

Dro. S. O, my old master! who hath bound him here?

Abb. Whoever bound him, I will loose his bonds,

And gain a husband by his liberty:—

Speak, old Aegeon, if thou be'st the man That had'st a wife once call'd Emilia,

That bore thee at a burden two fair sons: O, if thou be'st the same Aegeon, speak, And speak unto the same Emilia!

Ege. If I dream not, thou art Emilia; If thou art she, tell me, where is that son That floated with thee on the fatal raft?

Abb. By men of Epidamnus, he, and I, And the twin Dromio, all were taken up;

But, by and by, rude fishermen of Corinth By force took Dromio and my son from them, And me they left with those of Epidamnus:

What then became of them, I cannot tell; I, to this fortune that you see me in.

Duke. Why, here begins his morning story right;*

These two Antipholuses, these two so like, And these two Dromios, one in semblance,—

Besides her urging of her wreck at sea,— These are the parents to these children, Which accidentally are met together.

Antipholus, thou cam'st from Corinth first.

Ant. S. No, Sir, not I; I came from Syracuse.

Duke. Stay, stand apart, I know not which is which.

Ant. E. I came from Corinth, my most gracious lord.

Dro. E. And I with him.

Ant. E. Brought to this town with that most famous warrior

Duke Menaphon, your most renowned uncle.

Ant. Which of you two did dine with me to-day?

Ant. S. I, gentle mistress.

Ant. And are you not my husband?

Ant. E. No, I say nay to that.

Ant. S. And so do I, yet did she call me so; And this fair gentlewoman, her sister here, Did call me brother.—What I told you then, I hope, I shall have leisure to make good; If this be not a dream, I see, and hear.

* Continued.

† Alteration of features.

‡ Forward, lead.

* The morning story is what Aegeon tells the Duke in the first scene of this play.

COMEDY OF ERRORS.

[ACT V.

which you had

deny it not.
is chain arrest-

by it not.
to be your bail,
ought it not.

I receiv'd from them me :

her's man,
e for me,
rose.

I for my father

father hath his diamond from much thanks for safe to take the ere, [pays

d all our for-

his place,
lay's error
us company,
tion.—

one in travail present hour,
d —

children both,
nativity,

Go to a gossip's feast, and go with me ;
After so long grief, such nativity !

Duke. With all my heart, I'll gossip at this feast.

[Exeunt DUKE, ADDRESS, EZZON, COURTE-
ZAN, MERCHANT, ANGELLO, and Attendants.

Dro. S. Master, shall I fetch your stuff from shipboard ?

Ant. E. Dromio, what stuff of mine hast thou embark'd ?

Dro. S. Your goods, that lay at host, Sir, in the Centaur.

Ant. S. He speaks to me ; I am your master, Dromio :

Come, go with us : we'll look to that anon :
Embrace thy brother there, rejoice with him.

[Exeunt ANTIPHOLUS S. and E. ADZ. and LCC.

Dro. S. There is a fat friend at your master's
house,

That kitchen'd me for you to-day at dinner ;
She now shall be my sister, not my wife.

Dro. E. Methinks, you are my glass, and not
my brother :

I see by you, I am a sweet-faced youth.
Will you walk in to see their gossiping ?

Dro. S. Not I, Sir ; you are my elder.

Dro. E. That's a question : how shall we try
it ?

Dro. S. We will draw cuts for the senior : till then, lead thou first.

Dro. E. Nay, then thus : [ther :

We came into the world, like brother and bro-
And now let's go hand in hand, not one before another. [Exeunt.

MACBETH.

PERSONS REPRESENTED.

DUNCAN, King of Scotland.		An English Doctor.—A Scotch Doctor.
MALCOLM, his Son.		A Soldier.—A Porter.—An old Man.
DONALBAIN, } his Sons.
MACBETH, } Generals of the King's	Army.	LADY MACBETH.
BANQUO, }		LADY MACDUFF.
MACDUFF, }		Gentlewoman attending on Lady Macbeth.
LENOX, }		HUCCATE, and three Witches.
ROSS, }
MENTETH, }		Lords, Gentlemen, Officers, Soldiers, Murder-
ANGUS, }		ers, Attendants, and Messengers.
CATHNERS, }
FLEANCE, Son to Banquo.		The Ghost of Banquo, and several other
SIWARD, Earl of Northumberland, G	eneral of	Apparitions.
the English Forces.
YOUNG SIWARD, his Son		SCENE, in the end of the fourth act, lies in SEYTON, an Officer attending on Mac		England; through the rest of the play, in beth in Macduff.		Scotland; and, chiefly, at Macbeth's Castle.

ACT I.

SCENE I.—An open Place.

Thunder and Lightning. Enter three WITCHES.

1 Witch. When shall we three meet again
In thunder, lightning, or in rain?

2 Witch. When the hurlyburly's done,
When the battle's lost and won:

3 Witch. That will be ere set of sun.

1 Witch. Where the place?

2 Witch. Upon the heath:

3 Witch. There to meet with Macbeth.

1 Witch. I come, Graymalkin!

All. Paddock calls:—Anon.—

Fair is foul, and foul is fair.

Hover through the fog and filthy air.

[WITCHES vanish.]

SCENE II.—A Camp near Forres.

Alrum within. Enter King DUNCAN, MALCOLM, DONALBAIN, LENOX, with ATTENDANTS, meeting a bleeding SOLDIER.

Dun. What bloody man is that? He can re-
As seemeth by his plight, of the revolt [port,
The newest state.

Mal. This is the sergeant,
Who, like a good and hardy soldier, fought
'Gainst my captivity:—Hail, brave friend!
Say to the king the knowledge of the broil,
As thou didst leave it.

Sold. Doubtfully it stood;
As two spent swimmers, that do cling together,
And choke their art. The merciless Macdon-(Worthy to be a rebel; for, to that, [wald
The multiplying villanies of nature
Do swarm upon him,) from the western isles
Of Kernes and Gallowglasses is supplied;
And fortune, on his damned quarrel; smiling,

* Tumult.

† I.e. Supplied with light and heavy armed troops.

‡ Came.

Show'd like a rebel's whore: But all's too weak: [name,]

For brave Macbeth, (well he deserves that Disdaining fortune, with his brandish'd steel,
Which smok'd with bloody execution,

Like valour's minion,
Carv'd out his passage, till he fac'd the slave;
And ne'er shook hands, nor bade farewell to him, [chaps,

Till he unseam'd him from the nave to the
And fix'd his head upon our battlements.

Dun. O, valiant cousin! worthy gentleman!

Sold. As whence the sun 'gins his reflection Shipwrecking storms and direful thunders
break; [come,

So from that spring, whence comfort seem'd to Discomfort* swells. Mark, king of Scotland,
mark:

No sooner justice had, with valour arm'd, Compell'd these skipping Kernes to trust their heels;

But the Norweyan lord, surveying vantage,
With furbish'd arms, and new supplies of men,
Began a fresh assault.

Dun. Dismay'd not this
Our captains, Macbeth and Banquo?

Sold. Yes;
As sparrows, eagles; or the hare, the lion.
If I say sooth,† I must report they were
As cannons overcharg'd with double cracks;
So they

Doubly redoubled strokes upon the foe:
Except they meant to bathe in reeking wounds,
Or memorize another Golgotha,‡

I cannot tell:—
But I am faint, my gashes cry for help.

Dun. So well thy words become thee, as thy wounds;

* The opposite to comfort.

† Make another Golgotha as memorable as the first.

‡ Truth.

MACBETH.

ACT I.

Go, get him sur-
rounders, attended.

Roar.
through his eyes

range.

worthy thane?

float* the sky,

numbers,

traitor

small conflict:

app'd in proof,† parisons,

arm 'gainst arm,

d, to conclude,

[Lion;

craves composi-

of his men,

mes' inch,

general use.

1 Cawdor shall

ounce his death,

Macbeth.

ole Macbeth hath

[Exeunt.

under.—Enter the

been, sister?

had chesnuts in and mounch'd:—

[cries.

ump-fed ronyon||

ne, master o'the

nd.

he other;

ow

lay,

s nine,

ne:

ed,

it's thumb,

come,

[Drum within.

means Mary.

A vault, beyond.

Sailor's chief.

Ad. The weird sisters,* hand in hand,

Posters of the sea and land,

Thus do go about, about;

Thrice to thine, and thrice to mine,

And thrice again, to make up nine:

Peace!—the charm's wound up.

Enter MACBETH and BANQUO.

Macb. So foul and fair a day I have not seen.

Ban. How far is't call'd to Forest?—What are these,

So wither'd, and so wild in their attire;

That look not like the inhabitants o' the earth,

And yet are on't? Live you? or are you such

That man may question? You seem to understand me,

By each at once her choppy finger laying

Upon her skinny lips:—You should be women,

And yet your beards forbid me to interpret

That you are so.

Macb. Speak, if you can;—What are you?

1 Witch. All hail, Macbeth! hail to thee,

thane of Glamis!

2 Witch. All hail, Macbeth! hail to thee,

thane of Cawdor!

3 Witch. All hail, Macbeth! that shalt be king hereafter.

Ban. Good Sir, why do you start; and seem to fear

Things that do sound so fair?—I'the name of

Are ye fantastical; or that indeed

Which outwardly ye show? My noble partner

You greet with present grace, and great production

Of noble having,† and of royal hops, [ast:

That he seems rapt; withal; to me you speak

If you can look into the seeds of time,

And say, which grain will grow, and which will not;

Speak then to me, who neither beg, nor fear,

Your favours, nor your hate.

1 Witch. Hail!

2 Witch. Hail!

3 Witch. Hail!

1 Witch. Lesser than Macbeth, and greater.

2 Witch. Not so happy, yet much happier.

3 Witch. Thou shalt get kings, though thou

be none:

So, all hail, Macbeth, and Banquo!

1 Witch. Banquo, and Macbeth, all hail!

Macb. Stay, you imperfect speakers, tell me

more:

By Sinel's death, I know, I am thane of Glamis;

But how of Cawdor? the thane of Cawdor lives,

A prosperous gentleman; and, to be king,

Stands not within the prospect of belief,

No more than to be Cawdor. Say, from whence

You owe this strange intelligence? or why

Upon this blasted heath you stop our way

With such prophetic greeting?—Speak, I charge

you. [Witches consult.

Ban. The earth hath bubbles, as the water has,

And these are of them:—Whither are they ve-nish'd?

Macb. Into the air; and what seem'd corporal melted

As breath into the wind.—'Would they had

Ban. Were such things here, as we do speak

about?

[Or have we eaten of the insane root,‡

That takes the reason prisoner?

Macb. Your children shall be kings.

* Prophetic sisters.

† Estate.

‡ The root which makes insane.

† Supernatural, spiritual.

‡ Excessively affected.

MACBETH.

shall be king.
And thane of Cawdor too; went it
so?
The self-same tune, and words.
He's here?

Enter ROSS and ANGUS.

He king hath happily receiv'd, Macbeth,
Of thy success: and when he reads
all venture in the rebels' fight,
His praises do contend,
And he thine, or his: Silence'd with
it.

Over the rest o' the self-same day,
Was in the stout Norwegian ranks,
Hard of what thyself didst make,
Edges of death. As thick as tale,*
With post; and every one did bear
In his kingdom's great defence,
And then down before him.

Were sent,
And from our royal master, thanks;
Hee into his sight, not pay thee.
And, for an earnest of a greater honor,
And from him, call thee thane of Caw-
dor; hail, most worthy thane!

Can the devil speak true?
Is thane of Cawdor lives; Why do
I dress me
In robes?

Was the thane, lives yet;
Heavy judgement bears that life Deserves to lose. Whether he was Rich Norway; or did line the rebel
In help and vantage; or that with
In his country's wreck, I know not;
Is capital, confess'd, and prov'd,
Hrown him.

Amis, the thane of Cawdor:
It is behind.—Thanks for your Dues.—

Hope your children shall be kings,
That gave the thane of Cawdor to Less to them? [me,
It, trusted home,
Kindlet you unto the crown,
Thane of Cawdor. But 'tis strange.
Does, to win us to our harm,
Sents of darkness tell us truths;
In honest trifles, to betray us Consequence.—

Word, I pray you.
So truths are told,
Eclogues to the swelling act
Of thine theme. I thank you, gentleman, soliciting; [men.—
It; cannot be good.—If ill,
It given me earnest of success,
In a truth? I am thane of Caw-dor.

Do I yield to that suggestion?
And image doth unfix my hair,
My seated heart knock at my ribs,
Of use of nature? Present fears
Are horrible imaginings [cal,
Whose murder yet is but fantastical single state of man, that function
In surmise; and nothing is,
Not.

they could be counted. † Title.
‡ Excitement.
§ Firmly fixed.
|| View of action are expressed by conjecture.

Ben. Look, how our Macb. If chance will Chance may crown.
Without my stir.

Ben. New honours come
Like our strange garments;
But with the aid of use.

Macb. Come what come may;
Time and the hour* runs through the Ben. Worthy Macbeth, we stay
leisure.

Macb. Give me your favour;—
Was wrought
With things forgotten. Kind
Are register'd where every
The leaf to read them.—
king.—

Think upon what hath
The interim having
Our free hearts each
Ben. Very gladly.
Macb. Till then, enough.—Come

4.
Think upon what hath
The interim having
Our free hearts each

Ben. Very gladly.
Macb. Till then, enough.—Come

SCENE IV.—Fores.—A Room.

Flourish. Enter DUNCAN, MALCOLM,
BAIN, LENOX, and ATTENDANTS.

Dun. Is execution done on Those in commission yet return
Mal. My liege,

They are not yet come back. But I have spoke
With one that saw him die: who did report,
That very frankly he confess'd his treasons;
Implored your highness' pardon; and set forth
A deep repentance: nothing in his life
Became him, like the leaving it, he died
As one that had been studied in his death,
To throw away the dearest thing he ow'd,†
As 'twere a careless trifle.

Dun. There's no art,
To find the mind's construction in the face;‡
He was a gentleman on whom I built
An absolute trust.—O worthiest cousin!

Enter MACBETH, BANQUO, ROSS, and ANGUS.

The sin of my ingratitude even now
Was heavy on me: Thou art so far before,
That swiftest wing of recompense is slow
To overtake thee. 'Would thou hadst less de-serv'd; [ment

That the proportion both of thanks and pay-
Might have been mine! only I have left to say,
More is thy due than more than all can pay.

Macb. The services and the loyalty I owe,
In doing it, pays itself. Your highness' part
Is to receive our duties: and our duties
Are to your throne and state, children, and servants; [thing

Which do but what they should, by doing every Safe toward your love and honour.

Dun. Welcome hither.
I have begun to plant thee, and will labour
To make thee full of growing;—Noble Banquo,
That hast no less deserv'd, nor must be known
No less to have done so, let me infold thee,
And hold thee to my heart.

Ben. There if I grow,
The harvest is your own.

Dun. My plenteous joys,
Wanton in fulness, seek to hide themselves
In drops of sorrow.—Sons, kinsmen, thanes,
And you whose places are the nearest, know,

* Time and opportunity. † Pardon ‡ Owned, possessed.
§ We cannot construe the disposition of the mind by the lineaments of the face. || Exultation.

MACBETH.

[ACT I.]

pon [ter,
ve name hereaf-
ch honour must
m only,
stars, shall shine
to Inverness,
which is not us'd
and make joyful
our approach;
erland!—That is
r else o'er-leap,
[Aside,
hide your fires!
deep desires:
let that be,
is done, to see.
[Exit.
he is full so va-
fed; [liant;
alter him,
and us welcome:
ourish. Exeunt.

A Room in
le.
ting a letter.
day of success;
test report, they knowledge. When m further, they
h they vanished.
der of it, came buted me, Thane
fore, these weird
me to the coming
that shalt be!
deliver thee, my ut thou mightest
y being ignorant
er. Lay it to thy and shalt be t do I fear thy
n kindness,
u would'st be without [great,
t. What thou [false, ould'st not play
thou'd'st have,
[have it;
nnat do, if thou
tear to do,
He thee further,
thine ear;
my tongue
golden round,
and doth seem
—What is your

NT.
to-night.
at;
do, wer't so,
ration.
me; our thane

the best intelligence.
Supernatural.

One of my fellows had the speed of him;
Who, almost dead for breath, had scarcely
Than would make up his message. [more Lady M. Give him tending, He brings great news. The raven himself is hoarse, [Exit ATTENDANT.
That croaks the fatal entrance of Duncan
Under my battlements. Come, come, you spirits
That tend on mortal^a thoughts, unsex me here;
And fill me, from the crown to the toe, top-full
Of direst cruelty! make thick my blood,
Stop up the access and passage to remorse;
That no compunctious visitings of nature
Shake my fell purpose, nor keep peace between
The effect, and it! Come to my woman's breasts,
And take my milk for gall, you murdering
ministers,
Wherever in your sightless substances
You wait on nature's mischief! Come, thick
night,
And pall[†] thee in the dunest smoke of hell!
That my keen knife[‡] see not the wound it makes; [dark,
Nor heaven peep through the blanket of the
To cry, Hold, Hold!—Great Glamis! worthy Cawdor!

Enter MACBETH.

Greater than both, by the all-hail hereafter!
Thy letters have transported me beyond
This ignorant present,[§] and I feel now
The future in the instant.
Macb. My dearest love,
Duncan comes here to-night.
Lady M. And when goes hence?
Macb. To-morrow,—as he purposes.
Lady M. O, never Shall sun that morrow see!
Your face, my thane, is as a book, where May read strange matters:—To beguile the
time,
Look like the time; bear welcome in your eye,
Your hand, your tongue: look like the in-
cent flower,
But be the serpent under it. He that's coming Must be provided for: and you shall put
This night's great business into my dispatch[¶]
Which shall to all our nights and days to come Give solely sovereign sway and masterdom.
Macb. We will speak further.
Lady M. Only look up clear;
To alter favour[¶] ever is to fear:
Leave all the rest to me. [Exit.

SCENE VI.—The same.—Before the Castle.
Hautboys.—Servants of MACBETH attending.

Enter DUNCAN, MALCOLM, DONALDIN, Ban-quo, LENOX, MACDUFF, ROSS, ANGUS, and Attendants.

Dun. This castle bath a pleasant seat; the air
Nimble and sweetly recommends itself
Unto our gentle senses.

Ban. This guest of summer,
The temple-haunting martlet, does approve,
By his lov'd mansionry, that the heaven's
breath,
Smells wooingly here: no jutty, frieze, buttress,
Nor cignoe of vantage,^{} but this bird
made
His pendent bed, and procreant cradle: Where
they

^a Murderous. [†] Pity [‡] Wrap as in a mantle
[§] Knife anciently meant a sword or dagger.
[¶] I. e. Beyond the present time, which is according to the process of nature ignorant of the future.
^{} Look, countenance.  Convenient corner.

SCENE VII.]

MACBETH.

Most heed and haunt, I have observ'd, the air
Is delicate.

Enter Lady MACBETH.

Dun. See, see! our honour'd hostess:
The love that follows us, sometime is our trouble,
Which still we thank as love. Herein I teach How you shall bid God yield^a us for your
And thank us for your trouble.

Lady M. All our service
Is every point twice done, and then done dou-
ble,
Were poor and single business, to contend Against those honours deep and broad, where-
with

Your majesty loads our house: For those of old,
And the late dignities heap'd up to them,
We rest your berms.

Dun. Where's the thane of Cawdor?
We court'd him at the heels, and had a pur-veyor: but he rides well, [pose
And his great love, sharp as his spur, hath ho'p him

In his house before us: Fair and noble hostess,
Be our guest to-night.

Lady M. Your servants ever love theirs, themselves, and what is theirs, in make their and at your highness' pleasure, to return your own.

Dun. Give me your hand:
What me to mine host, we love him highly,
I shall continue our graces towards him.
your leave, hostess.

SCENE VII.—The same.—A Room in the Castle.

Enter, and pass over the
a, a Sewer, and divers Servants with and service. Then enter MACBETH.

Mac. If it were done, when 'tis done, then 'twere well

done quickly: If the assassination
trammel upon the consequence, and

catch,
increase, success; that but this blow

the be-all and the end-all here,
upon this bank and shoul of time,—

up the life to come.—But, in these have judgement here; that we but instructions, which, being taught, rethe inventor: This even-handed jus-

the ingredients of our poison'd lips. He's here in double trust.

am his kinsman and his subject,

against the deed, then, as his host,
against his murderer shut the door,

the knife myself. Besides, this can

his faculties so meek, hath been is great office, that his virtues

like angels, trumpet-tongued,
not

ination of his taking off:
s a naked new-born babe,

last, or heaven's cherubim, hors'd
less couriers of the air,

horrid deed in every eye,
I drown the wind.—I have no

mis shall ever pray for you.

and from his placing the dishes on the Winds, sightless is invisible.

To prick the sides of my intent, but on Vanishing ambition, which o'er-leaps the
And falls on the other.—How now, what

Enter Lady MACBETH.

Lady M. He has almost supp'd; Why you left the chamber?

Macb. Hath he ask'd for me?

Lady M. Know you not, he has?

Macb. We will proceed no further in
business:

He hath honour'd me of late; and I
Golden opinions from all sorts of people,
Which would be worn now in their new
Not cast aside so soon.

Lady M. Was the hope drunk,
Wherein you dress'd yourself? hath it sh

And wakes it now, to look so green and pa
At what it did so freely? From this time,
Such I account thy love. Art thou afraid

To be the same in thine own act and valour,
As thou art in desire? Would'st thou hav

that
Which thou esteem'st at the ornament of life,
And live a coward in thine own esteem;
Letting I dare not wait upon I would,

Like the poor cat i' the adage?

Macb. P'rythee, peace:
I dare do all that may become a man;
Who dares do more, is none.

Lady M. What beast was it then,
That made you break this enterprise to me?

When you durst do it, then you were a man;
And, to be more than what you were, you would Be so much more the man. Nor time, nor Did then adhere,* and yet you would make

both:
They have made themselves, and that their fitness now

Does unmake you. I have given suck; and How tender 'tis, to love the babe that milks me:

I would, while it was smiling in my face,
Have pluck'd my nipple from his boneless

gums,
And dash'd the brains out, had I so sworn, as Have done to this.

Macb. If we should fail,—

Lady M. We fail!

But screw your courage to the sticking-place,
And we'll not fail. When Duncan is asleep,

(Whereto the rather shall his day's hard journey

Soundly invite him,) his two chamberlains
Will I with wine and wassell so convince,<†
That memory, the warder of the brain,

Shall be a fume, and the receipt of reason
A limbeck only. When in swinish sleep
Their drenched natures lie, as in a death,

What cannot you and I perform upon
The unguarded Duncan? what not put upon
His spongy officers; who shall bear the guilt

Of our great quell?‡

Macb. Bring forth men-children only!
For thy undaunted mettle should compose

Nothing but males. Will it not be receiv'd,¶
When we have mark'd with blood those sleepy

two
Of his own chamber, and us'd their very daggers,

That they have don't?

Lady M. Who dares receive it other,
As we shall make our griefs and clamour roar
Upon his death?

Macb. I am settled, and bend up
In the same sense as others.

* In the same sense as others.
† Overpower.
‡ Murder.

† Intemperance.
‡ Seizure.
¶ Apprehended.

MACBETH.

to this terrible feat.
 e time with fairest show :
 what the false heart doth
 [Exeunt.]

ACT II.

—Court within the Castle.

FLEANCE, and a Servant,
 ch before them.

e night, boy ?
 down ; I have not heard

s down at twelve.
 ater, Sir.

my sword :—There's hus-
 heaven,

out.—Take thee that too.
 es like lead upon me,

sleep: Merciful powers !
 sed thoughts, that nature

!—Give me my sword ;—
 d a Servant with a torch.

ot yet at rest? The king's snal pleasure, and esset to your offices ;†

ets your wife withal, [op's
 t kind hostess ; and shut

ut.
 apar'd,

servant to defect ;
 ee have wrought.

of the three weird sisters :
 w'd some truth.

of them :
 treat an hour to serve,

ome words upon that busihe time.

st leisure.
 cleave to my consent,—

for you.
 e, nt it, but still keep

 , and allegiance clear,

e, the while !
 'The like to you !

[Exit Banquo.
 mistress, when my drink

bell. Get thee to bed.
 [Exit Servant.

ch I see before me,
 my hand? Come, let me

yet I see thee still.
 sion, sensible

at? or art thou but
 d, a false creation,

heat-oppressed brain?
 m as palpable

draw.
 the way that I was going ;

pent I was to use. [see,
 the fools o' the other sen-

rest: I see thee still ;
 and dudgeon,] gouts¶ of † Bounty.

 od to servants. } Conclude.
 ¶ Drops.

Which was not so before.—
 thing ;

It is the bloody business, w
 Thus to mine eyes.—Now

world
 Nature seems dead, and wic

The curtain'd sleep ; now wit
 Pale Hecate's offerings ; and

Alarum'd by his sentinel, th
 Whose howl's his watch, thu

With Tarquin's ravishing su
 design

Moves like a ghost.—Thou
 earth,

Hear not my steps, which w
 Thy very stones prate of my

And take the present horror
 Which now suits with it.—W lives ;

 Words to the heat of deed

gives.
 I go, and it is done ; the bel

Hear it not, Duncan ; for it
 That summons thee to leave

SCENE II.—Th

Enter Lady Mac

Lady M. That which hath hath made me bold

What hath quench'd them, h
 —Hark !—Peace!

It was the owl that shriek'd,
 Which gives the stern'at g

about it:
 The doors are open ; and the

Do mock their charge witl
 drugg'd their posset

That death and nature do co
 Whether they live, or die.

Macb. [Within.] Who's th
 Lady M. Alack! I am

awak'd,
 And 'tis not done :—the att

Confounds us :—Hark !—I
 ready,

He could not miss them.—F
 My father as he slept, I had

band?
 Enter Macb

Macb. I have done the d not hear a noise!

Lady M. I heard the owl
 crickets cry.

Did you not speak?
 Macb. When?

Lady M. Now.
 Macb. As I descended?

Lady M. Ay.
 Macb. Hark !—

Who lies i'the second chamb
 Lady M. Donalbain.

Macb. This is a sorry sigh
 [L

Lady M. A foolish thought
 sight.

Macb. There's one did laug
 one cried, murder!

That they did wake each o
 heard them:

But they did say their praye
 Again to sleep.

Lady M. There are two lo Macb. One cried, God ble

the other ;

I seen me, with these hangman's
k.

In fear, I could not say, Amen,
In say, God bless us.

Consider it not so deeply,
Wherefore could not I pronounce,
A?

Word of blessing, and Amen
Throat.

These deeds must not be thought
Upon, so, it will make us mad.
Thought, I heard a voice cry, Sleep
ore!

Murder sleep, the innocent sleep,
Sle up the ravel'd sleavet of care,
Each day's life, sore labour's bath,
Minds, great nature's second course,
Or in life's feast;—

What do you mean?

It cried, Sleep no more! to all the
B:

Murder'd sleep; and therefore Cawdor
more. Macbeth shall sleep no more!
'Ho was it that thus cried? Why,
By thine,

And your noble strength, to think
Of things.—Go, get some water,
To filthy witness from your hand.—
Bring these daggers from the
B?

There. Go, carry them; and smear
Rooms with blood.

Go no more.

O think what I have done;

Ain, I dare not.

Confirm of purpose? [dead,
daggers. The sleeping, and the ictures. 'tis the eye of childhood,
Painted devil. If he do bleed,
Faces of the grooms withal,
Seem their guilt.

[Exit. Knocking within ence is that knocking?

h me, when every noise appals me?
are here? Ha! they pluck out
e eyes!

A Neptune's ocean wash this blood
my hand? No; this my hand will linous seas intarnardine,† [rather green—one red

Re-enter Lady MACBETH.

My hands are of your colour; but une [knocking

cast so white. [Knock.] I hear a entry.—retire we to our chamber er clears us of this deed

ist then? Your constancy unattended.—[Knocking.] Hark!
re knocking.

nightgown, lest occasion call us,
to be watchers.—Be not lost
your thoughts.

know my deed,—'twere best not rev myself. [Knock.

an with thy knocking! Ay, 'would u could'st! [Exit

SCENE III.—The same.

PORTER.—[Knocking within] re's a knocking, indeed! If a man of hell-gate, he should have old
key. [Knocking] Knock, knock,

† Sleeve is unwrought silk
ordine is to stain of a flesh colour

knock: Who's there, i'the name of Belzebub?
Here's a farmer, that hanged himself on the expectation of plenty. Come in time, have baphins" enough about you, here you'll swant for't. [Knocking.] Knock, knock. Who's there, i'the devil's name? Faith, here's an equivocator, that could swear in both the scales against either scale, who committed treason enough for God's sake, yet could not equivocate
to heaven. O, come in, equivocator.
[Knocking.] Knock, knock, knock: Who's there? Faith here's an English tailor come hither for stealing out of a French hose. Come in, tailor; here you may roast your goose.
[Knocking.] Knock, knock. Never at quiet!
What are you?—But this place is too cold for hell. I'll devil-porter it no further: I had thought to have let in some of all professions,
that go the primrose way to the everlasting
bonfire. [Knocking.] Anon, anon; I pray you, remember the porter. [Opens the gate.

Enter MACDUFF and LENOX.

Macd. Was it so late, friend, ere you went to
That you do lie so late? [bed,

Port. Faith, Sir, we were carousing till the second cock: and drink, Sir, is a great provoker of three things.

Macd. What three things does drink especially provoke?

Port. Marry, Sir, nose-painting, sleep, and urine. Lechery, Sir, it provokes, and unprovokes: it provokes the desire, but it takes away
the performance. Therefore, much drink may be said to be an equivocator with lechery: it makes him, and it mars him, it sets him on,
and it takes him off, it persuades him, and dis-heartens him, makes him stand to, and not stand to: in conclusion, equivocates him in a sleep, and, giving him the lie, leaves him.

Macd. I believe, drink gave thee the lie last
night.

Port. That it did, Sir, i'the very throat o'me:
But I requited him for his lie, and, I think,
being too strong for him, though he took up my legs sometime, yet I made a shift to cast
him.

Macd. Is thy master stirring?—
Our knocking has awak'd him, here he comes.

Enter MACBETH.

Len. Good-morrow, noble Sir!

Macb. Good-morrow, both!

Macd. Is the king stirring, worthy thane?

Macb. Not yet.

Macd. He did command me to call timely on
I have almost slipp'd the hour. [him;

Macb. I'll bring you to him.

Macd. I know, this is a joyful trouble to you;
But yet, 'tis one.

Macb. The labour we delight in, physics;
This is the door. [pain.

Macd. I'll make so bold to call,
For 'tis my limited service.† [Exit MACDUFF

Len. Goes the king

From hence to-day?

Macb. He does.—He did appoint it so.

Len. The night has been unruly. Where we lay, [say,

Our chimneys were blown down: and, as they Lamentings heard i'the air; strange screams
of death,

And prophesying, with accents terrible,
Of dire combustion, and confus'd events,

• Handkerchiefs.

† &c. Affords a cordial to it.

‡ Conkerning.

§ Appointed service.

MACBETH.

The obscure [earth
some say, the

cannot parallel horror! Tongue,

see!
ter?

made his master-

h broke ope

and stole thence

he life?

ber, and destroy

t bid me speak;

elves.—Awake!

ETH and LENOX.

r' and treason!

colm' awake!

th's counterfeit,

p, up, and see

Malcolm! Ban-

[sprights,

, and walk like

[Bell rings.

ETH.

ss,

alls to parley

ak, speak,—

I can speak:

ar, [quo!

) Banquo! Ban-

but thyself,

LENOR.

hour before this

from this instant,

rtality:

erace, is dead;

l the meer lets

NALBAIN.

know it:

ain of your blood

it is stopp'd.

murder'd.

as it seem'd, had

[blood,

all badg'd with

b, unwip'd, we [found ed; no man's life

make an affirmative,

on in our author.

Macb. 1), yet I do repent
That I did kill them.

Macd. Wherefore did you Macb. Who can be wise, an and furious,

Loyal and neutral, in a mom

The expedition of my violent

Out-ran the pauser reason.—

His silver skin lac'd with his

And his gash'd stabs look'd

nature,

For ruin's wasteful entrance:

Steep'd in the colours of th daggers

Unmannerly breech'd with gr

That had a heart to love, and

Courage, to make his love kn

Lady M. Help me hence, h

Macd. Look to the lady.

Mal. Why do we hold our

That most may claim this arg

Don. What should be spok

Where our fate, hid within a

May rush, and seize us? Let's

Are not yet brew'd.

Mal. Nor our strong sorrow

The foot of motion.

Ban. Look to the lady:—

[Lady Macb

And when we have our naked

That suffer in exposure, let us

And question this most blood;

To know it further. Fears aw

us:

In the great hand of God

Against the undivulg'd pretel

Of treasonous malice.

Macb. And so do I.

All. So all.

Macb. Let's briefly put on

And meet i'the hall together.

All. Well contented.

[Exeunt all bu

Mal. What will you do? I

with them:

To show an unfelt sorrow, is

Which the false man does ca

Don. To Ireland, I; our se

Shall keep us both the safer:

There's daggers in men's smil

The nearer bloody.

Mal. This murderous shaft

Hath not yet lighted; and ou

ls, to avoid the aim. Therefo

And let us not be dainty of le

But shift away: There's warr

Which steals itself, when the SCENE IV.—Without

Enter ROSS and an Old M. Threescore and ten

well:

Within the volume of which th

Hours dreadful, and things s

sore night

Hath trifled former knowings.

Rosse. Ah, good father,

Thou see'st, the heavens, a man's act,

Threaten his bloody stage: t

day,

And yet dark night strangle

Is it night's predominance, or

* Covered with blood to their hilt.

† Power. ‡ Im

That darkness does the face of earth entomb,
When living light should kiss it?

Old M. 'Tis unnatural, [last,
Even like the deed that's done. On Tuesday
A falcon, tow'ring in her pride of place,
Was by a mousing owl hawk'd at, and kill'd.

Rosse. And Duncan's horses, (a thing most strange and certain,) Beauteous and swift, the minions of their race, Turn'd wild in nature, broke their stalls, flung out, [make Contending 'gainst obedience, as they would War with mankind.

Old M. 'Tis said, they eat each other.

Rosse. They did so; to the amazement of mine eyes, [Macduff:—
That look'd upon't. Here comes the good

Enter MACDUFF.

How goes the world, Sir, now?

Macd. Why, see you not?

Rosse. Is't known who did this more than bloody deed?

Macd. Those that Macbeth hath slain.

Rosse. Alas, the day!

What good could they pretend?

Macd. They were suborn'd:

Malcolm, and Donalbain, the king's two sons,
Are stol'n away and fled; which puts upon
them

suspicion of the deed.

Rosse. 'Gainst nature still:

Trifles ambition, that wilt ravin up
Thine own life's means!—Then 'tis most like,
The sovereignty will fall upon Macbeth.

Macd. He is already nam'd; and gone to Scone,
To be invested.

Rosse. Where is Duncan's body?

Macd. Carried to Colmes-kill;
The sacred storehouse of his predecessors,
And guardian of their bones.

Rosse. Will you to Scone?

Macd. No, cousin, I'll to Fife.

Rosse. Well, I will thither.

Macd. Well, may you see things well done
there;—adieu!—

Let our old robes sit easier than our new!

Rosse. Father, farewell.

Old M. God's benison go with you: and with those
That would make good of bad, and friends of foes! [Exeunt.

ACT III.

SCENE I.—Fores.—A Room in the Palace.

Enter BANQUO.

Ban. Thou hast it now, King, Cawdor, Glamis, all,

As the weird women promis'd; and, I fear,
Thou play'st most foully for't: yet it was said,
It should not stand in thy posterity;
But that myself should be the root, and father
Of many kings. If there come truth from them,
(As upon thee, Macbeth, their speeches shine,)
Why, by the verities on thee made good,
May they not be my oracles as well,
And set me up in hope? But hush; no more.

Drum sounded. Enter MACBETH, as King; Lady
MACBETH, as Queen; LENOX, ROSSE, Lords,
Ladies, and Attendants.

Macb. Here's our chief guest.

Lady M. If he had been forgotten,

It had been as a gap in our great feast,
And all things unbecoming.

Macb. To night we hold a solemn supper, Sir,
And I'll request your presence.

Ban. Let your highness Command upon me; to the which, my duties
Are with a most indissoluble tie
For ever knit.

Macb. Ride you this afternoon?

Ban. Ay, my good lord.

Macb. We should have else desir'd your good advice [rous,]
(Which still hath been both grave and prospe-
In this day's council; but we'll take to-morrow.
Is't far you ride?

Ban. As far, my lord, as will fill up the time
'Twixt this and supper: go not my horse the
better,

I must become a borrower of the night,
For a dark hour, or twain.

Macb. Fail not our feast.

Ban. My lord, I will not.

Macb. We hear, our bloody cousins are bestow'd
In England, and in Ireland; not confessing
Their cruel parricide, filling their hearers
With strange invention: But of that ~~to-morrow~~;
When, therewithal, we shall have ~~some~~ of
state,

Craving us jointly. Hie you to horse: Adieu, Till you return at night. Goes Fleance with
you?

Ban. Ay, my good lord: our time does call upon us.

Macb. I wish your horses swift, and sure of
foot;
And so I do commend* you to their backs.
Farewell— [Exit BANQUO.

Let every man be master of his time
Till seven at night; to make society
The sweeter welcome, we will keep ourself Till supper-time alone: while then, God be
with you.

[Exeunt Lady MACBETH, Lords, Ladies, &c.
Sirrah, a word: Attend those men our pleasure?

Atten. They are, my lord, without the palace gate.

Macb. Bring them before us.—[Exit ATTEN.]
To be thus, is nothing;

But to be safely thus:—Our fears in Banquo
Stick deep; and in his royalty† of nature
Reigns that, which would be fear'd: 'Tis much he dares;

And, to that dauntless temper of his mind,
He hath a wisdom that doth guide his valour
To act in safety. There is none, but he Whose being I do fear: and, under him,
My genius is rebuk'd; as, it is said, Mark Antony's was by Cæsar. He chid the sisters,

When first they put the name of King upon me,
And bade them speak to him; then, prophet-
like,

They hail'd him father to a line of kings:
Upon my head they plac'd a fruitless crown,
And put a barren sceptre in my gripe,
Thence to be wrench'd with an unlineal hand,
No son of mine succeeding. If it be so,
For Banquo's issue have I fil'd‡ my mind;
For them the gracious Duncan have I murder'd;

Put rancours in the vessel of my peace
Only for them; and mine eternal jewel
Given to the common enemy of man,

* Intend to themselves

* Commit.

† Nobleness.

‡ For defiled.

MACBETH.

of Banquo kings'
into the list,
France's—Who's

two MURDERERS.

ere till we call.

Exit ATTENDANT.

ke together?

our highness.

speeches? Know,

past, which held

[been

you thought, had

le good to you

ss'd in probation.

nd, how cross'd:

nd all things else,

raz'd,

n to us.

further, which is

Do you find

nt in your nature,

Are you so gos-

nd for his issue, d you to the grave,

ge

ve go for men:

, mongrels, span-

[eleped?

demi-wolves, are valued the

low, the subtle,

r, every one

ounteous nature

y he does receive

he bill

and so of men.

the file,

manhood, say it;

in your bosoms,

nemy off;

nd love of us,

ly in his life,

fect.

ifets of the world

teekless† what

g'd† with fortune,

any chance,

emy.

nd in such bloody

g thrusts [could

. And though I

keep him from my

yet I must not,

+ Proted. † Deluded.

cripts of the Counsel.

† Tide, description.

† Mortal enmity

For* certain friends that a
mine,

Whose loves I may not drop.

Whom I myself struck down:

That I to your assistance do

Masking the business from th

For sundry weighty reasons.

2 Mur. We shall, my lord,

Perform what you command:

1 Mur. Though our lives—

Macb. Your spirits shine thr

in this hour, at most,

I will advise you where to pl

Acquaint you with the perfec

The moment on't; for't must

And something from the

thought,

That I require a clearness: A

(To leave no rubs, nor botche

Flance his son, that keeps h

Whose absence is no less mat

Than is his father's. must em

(Of that dark hour. Resolve:

I'll come to you anon.

2 Mur. We are resolv'd, m

Macb. I'll call upon you stra

in.

It is concluded:—Banquo,

If it find heaven, must find it

SCENE II.—The same.—

Enter Lady MACBETH, an

Lady M. Is Banquo gone fr

Serr. Ay, madam, but retur

Lady M. Say to the king, I

For a few words.

Serr. Madam, I will.

Lady M. Nought's had, all

Where our desire is got with

'Tis safer to be that which we

Than, by destruction, dwell i

Enter MACBETH

How now, my lord? why do

(Of sorries† fancies your com

Using those thoughts, whic

have died

With them they think on?

Should be without regard:

done.

Macb. We have scotch'd th

it;

She'll close, and be herself;

Remains in danger of her for

But let

The frame of things disjoint,

Ere we will eat our meal in t

In the affliction of these terril

That shake us nightly: Be

dead,

Whom we, to gain our pla

Than on the torture of the mi

In restless ecstasy.‡ Danc

After life's fitful fever, he sl

Treason has done his worst poison.

Malice domestic, foreign lev

Can touch him further!

Lady M. Come on;

Gentle my lord, sleek o'er ye

Be bright and jovial 'mong

night.

Macb. So, shall I, love; m

you:

* Because of. † Most melanc

membrance apply to Banquo;
in eminence,* both with eye and tongue; that we
our honours in these flattering

our faces vizards to our hearts,
what they are.

You must leave this.

I, full of scorpions is my mind, dear
life!

What, that Banquo, and his Fleance,
But in them nature's copy's not
true.

There's comfort yet, they are assail-
ed;

you jocund: Ere the bat hath flown
and flight; ere, to black Hecate's summons,

home beetle; with his drowsy night's yawning peal, there shall be a dreadful note.

What's to be done?

I innocent of the knowledge, dearest
back,

applaud the deed. Come, seeling
the tender eye of pitiful day;

thy bloody and invisible hand,
and tear to pieces, that great bond toss me pale!--Light thickens; and crow

ing to the rocky wood:

ps of day begin to droop and drowse;
gh's black agents to their prey do use.

r'llest at my words; but hold thee
and begun, make strong themselves by
it.

be, go with me

II.—The same.—A Park or Lawn,
a Gate leading to the Palace.

Enter three MURDERERS.

But who did bid thee join with us?
Macbeth.

He needs not our mistrust, since he divers

it, and what we have to do, action just.

Then stand with us.

yet glimmers with some streaks of

the lated traveller apace,

a timely ion, and near approaches

it of our watch.

Hark! I hear horses.

Fifthly.] Give us a light there, ho!

Then it is he; the rest

within the note of expectation, I re it the court.

His horses go about.

Almost a mile: but he does usually,

do, from hence to the palace gate

our walk.

BANQUO and FLEANCE, a Servant with a torch preceding them.

A light, a light!

Tis he.

Stand to't.

will be run to-night.

Let it come down.

[Assaults BANQUO.

the highest honours.

a copy, the lease, by which they hold their

state, has its time of termination.

is borne in the air by its shards or scaly wings.

of endowment.

it who are set down in the list of guests, and upper.

Ban. O, treachery! Fly, good Fleance, fly,
Thou may'st revenge. O slave!

[Dies. FLEANCE and Servant escape.

2 Mur. Who did strike out the light?

1 Mur. Was't not the way?

3 Mur. There's but one down, the son is fled.

2 Mur. We have lost best half of our affair.

1 Mur. Well, let's away, and say how much is done.

[Exeunt.

SCENE IV.—A Room of State in the Palace.

A Banquet prepared. Enter MACBETH, Lady MALBETH, ROSS, LENOX, LORDS, and AT-TENDANTS.

Macb. You know your own degrees, sit down at first

And last, the hearty welcome.

Lords. Thanks to your majesty.

Macb. Ourselves will mingle with society.

And play the humble host.

Our hostess keeps her state,* but in best time,

We will require her welcome.

Lady M. Pronounce it for me, Sir, to all our

friends;

For my heart speaks, they are welcome.

Enter first MURDERER, to the door.

Macb. See, they encounter thee with their hearts' thanks.—

Both sides are even. Here I'll sit i'the midst:

Be large in mirth; anon, we'll drink a measure

The table round.—There's blood upon thy face.

Mur. 'Tis Banquo's then.

Macb. 'Tis better thee without, than he with-

Is he despatch'd?

[in.

Mur. My lord, his throat is cut; that I did

for him.

Macb. Thou art the best o'the cut-throats:

Yet he's good,

That did the like for Fleance: if thou didst it,

Thou art the nonpareil.

Mur. Most royal Sir,

Fleance is 'scap'd

Macb. Then comes my fit again: I had else

been perfect;

Whole as the marble, founded as the rock;

As broad, and general, as the casing air: [in

But now, I am cabin'd, cribb'd, confin'd, bound

To saucy doubts and fears. But Banquo's safer

Mur. Ay, my good lord: safe in a ditch he bides,

With twenty trenched gashes on his head,

The least a death to nature.

Macb. Thanks for that.

[died,

There the grown serpent lies; the worm, that's

Hath nature that in time will venom breed,

No teeth for the present.—Get thee gone; to-

morrow

We'll hear, ourselves again. [Exit MURDERER.

Lady M. My royal lord,

You do not give the cheer: the feast is sold,

That is not often vouch'd, while 'tis a making,

'Tis given with welcome: To feed, were best

at home;

From thence, the sauce to meat in ceremony,

Meeting were bare without it.

Macb. Sweet remembrancer!—

Now, good digestion wait on appetite,

And health on both!

Len. May it please your highness sit?

[The Ghost of BANQUO rises, and sits in MACBETH'S place.

Macb. Here had we now our country's honour roof'd,

Were the grac'd person of our Banquo pre-

* Continues in her chair of state.

MACBETH.

babe,
 slab :
 cauldron,*
 and trouble ;
 bubble.
 baboon's blood,
 good.
 three WITCHES.
 end your pains ;
 he gains.
 sing,
 ng,
 in.
 ite,
 y ;
 cle,
 ay.
 of my thumbs,
 comes :—
 e
 TH. secret, black, and
 ne.
 at which you pro-
 it,) answer me :
 and let them fight
 the yesty† waves
 gation up ;
 dg'd,‡ and trees
 on their warders'
 la, do slope
 tions ; though the e all together,
 , answer me
 rather hear it from ee them.
 's blood, that bath
 se, that's sweaten
 bbet, throw
 w ty‡ show.
 of an Armed Head own power,— ought ;
 ou nought.
 Macbeth! beware
 .—Dismiss me :— { Descends.
 t, for thy good cau-
 Laid flat by wind or rain.
 ve begun to sprout.

Thou hast harp'd* my fear
 word more :— 1 Witch. He will not be co
 More potent than the first.
 Thunder.—An APPARITION
 rises.
 App. Macbeth! Macbeth!
 Macb. Had I three ears, I
 App. Be bloody, bold,
 And resolute : laugh to sc
 For none of woman born sha Macb. Then live, Macduff
 of thee?
 But yet I'll make assurance
 And take a bond of fate : th
 That I may tell pale-hearted
 And sleep in spite of thund Thunder.—A APPARITION
 with a Tree in his H
 That rises like the issue of a
 And wears upon his baby b
 And top of sovereignty †
 All. Listen, but speak not
 App. Be lion-mettled, pr
 care
 Who chafes, who frets, or wh
 Macbeth shall never vanqui
 Great Birnam wood to high Shall come against him.
 Macb. That will never be
 Who can impress the forest
 Unfix his earth-bound root?
 good!
 Rebellious head, rise never,
 Of Birnam rise, and our h
 Shall live the lease of natur
 To time, and mortal custom Throbs to know one thing ;
 art
 Can tell so much,) shall Ba Reign in this kingdom?
 All. Seek to know no mor Macb. I will be satisfied :
 And an eternal curse fall
 know :—
 Why sinks that cauldron? :
 this?
 1 Witch. Show! 2 Witch
 Show!
 All. Show his eyes, and g
 Come like shadows, so dep
 Eight Kings appear, and pas order; the last with a Bonaquo following.
 Macb. Thou art too like th
 down!
 Thy crown does scar min
 thy hair,
 Thou other gold-boun
 A third is like the former :—
 Why do you show me this?
 eyes!
 What! will the line stretch
 doom?||
 Another yet?—A seventh?
 And yet the eighth appears,
 Which shows me many mo
 * Truched on a passion as a har
 † The round is that part of a cr
 head : the top is the ornament w ‡ Who can command the forest
 dier impressed.
 § Musc. || The dinst

alls and treble scepters carry :
—Ay, now, I see 'tis true ;
Miller'd* Banquo smiles upon

men for his.—What, is this so ?
Sir, all this is so :—But why
: thus amazedly ?—
hear we up his sprights,† rest of our delights ;
is to give a sound,
was the antique round :
king may kindly say,
his welcome pay.
The Witches dance, and vanish.
: are they ? Gone ?—Let this me hour
wed in the calender !—
at there !

Enter LENOX.

your grace's will ?
in the weird sisters ?
lord.
they not by you ?
red, my lord.
d be the air whereon they ride ;
I those that trust them !—I did

f horse : Who was't came by ?
or three, my lord, that bring
rd,
o England,
o England ?
good lord.
hou anticipat'et; my dread ex-mase never is o'erlook, (plots :
go with it : From this moment,
gs of my heart shall be my hand. And even now oughts with acts, be it thought
se :
acduff I will surprise ;
; give to the edge o'the sword
bes, and all unfortunate souls line. No boasting like a fool ;
o, before this purpose cool :
jhts !—Where are these gentle-

where they are. [Exit.

Five.—A Room in MACDUFF'S
Castle.

MACDUFF, her Son, and ROSS.

at had he done, to make him
land ?
ust have patience, madam.
had none : [not,
adness : When our actions do ake us traitors.‡
now not,
his wisdom, or his fear.
dom ! to leave his wife, to leave
rs,
ad his titles, in a place [not ;
imself does fly ? He loves us
tural touch :¶ for the poor wren, ative of birds, will fight,
in her nest, against the owl.
and nothing is the love,
wisdom, where the flight
all reason.
arest coz',

† blood. ‡ I e. Spirits.
taking away the opportunity.

§ considered as evidence of our treason.
|| Fight for.

I pray you, school yourself : But, for your husband,
He is noble, wise, judicious, and best knows
The fits o'the season. I dare not speak much further :

But cruel are the times, when we are traitors,
And do not know ourselves ; when we hold rumour [fear ;
From what we fear, yet know not what we
But float upon a wild and violent sea,
Each way, and move.—I take my leave of you :
Shall not be long but I'll be here again :
Things at the worst will cease, or else climb upward

To what they were before.—My pretty cousin,
Blessing upon you !

L. Macd. Father'd he is, and yet he's father-
less.

Rosse. I am so much a fool, should I stay longer,

It would be my disgrace, and your discomfort :
I take my leave at once. [Exit Rosse.

L. Macd. Sirrah,* your father's dead ;
And what will you do now ? How will you live ?

Son. As birds do, mother.

L. Macd. What, with worms and flies ?

Son. With what I get, I mean ; and so do
they.

L. Macd. Poor bird ! thou'd'st never fear the net, nor lime,

The pit-fall, nor the gin.

Son. Why should I, mother ? Poor birds they are not set for.

My father is not dead, for all your saying.

L. Macd. Yes, he is dead ; how wilt thou do for a father ?

Son. Nay, how will you do for a husband ?

L. Macd. Why, I can buy me twenty at any market.

Son. Then you'll buy 'em to sell again.

L. Macd. Thou speak'st with all thy wit ; and yet i'faith,

With wit enough for thee.

Son. Was my father a traitor, mother ?

L. Macd. Ay, that he was.

Son. What is a traitor ?

L. Macd. Why, one that swears and lies.

Son. And be all traitors, that do so ?

L. Macd. Every one that does so, is a traitor,
and must be hanged.

Son. And must they all be hanged, that swear and lie ?

L. Macd. Every one.

Son. Who must hang them ?

L. Macd. Why, the honest men.

Son. Then the liars and swearers are fools :
for there are liars and swearers enough to beat the honest men, and hang up them.

L. Macd. Now, God help thee, poor monkey ! But how wilt thou do for a father ?

Son. If he were dead, you'd weep for him :
if you would not, it were a good sign that I should quickly have a new father.

L. Macd. Poor prattler ! how thou talk'st.

Enter a MESSENGER.

Mess. Bless you, fair dame ! I am not to you
known,

Though in your state of honour I am perfect.†
I doubt, some danger does approach you near—
If you will take a homely man's advice, [ly :
Be not found here ; hence, with your little
ones.

To fright you thus, methinks, I am too savage ;
To do worse to you, were fell cruelty,

* Sirrah was not, in our author's time, a term of reproach.

† I am perfectly acquainted with your rank.

MACBETH.

son. Heaven pre-

[Exit MESSENGER.

I fly?

I remember now

where, to do harm,

ed, sometime,

Why then, alas!

defence,

What are

ERS.

and?

ce so unsanctified,

find him.

g-ear'd villain.

[Stabbing him.

other;

[Dies.

FF, crying murder,

the MURDERERS.

—A Room in the ace.

MACDUFF.

me desolate shade,

ly.

[men,

ed, and, like good

thdom: Each new

[sorrows orphans cry; new

that it resounds

and yell'd out

wail;

what I can redress,

friend, I will.

ay be so, perchance,

name blisters our

[well;

you have lov'd him

yet. I am young;

[dom

rough me; and wis-

unocent lamb,

ous.

e may recoil, [don;

But 'crave your par-

oughts cannot trans-

[fell:

though the brightest

ould wear the brows

o.

pes.

there, where I did

you wife, and child,

those strong knots of

pray you,

our dishonour,

You may be rightly

Macd. Bleed, bleed, poor on

Great tyranny, lay thou thy ba

For goodness dares not check t

thy wrongs,

Thy title is affect'd!*—Fare th

I would not be the villain that

For the whole space that's

And the rich east to boot.

Mal. Be not offended:

I speak not as in an absolute f

I think, our country sinks betw

It weeps, it bleeds; and each

Is added to her wounds: I thi

There would be hands uplifted

And here, from gracious Eagle

Of goodly thousands: But, for

When I shall tread upon the t

Or wear it on my sword, yet n

Shall have more vices than it l

More suffer, and more sundry

By him that shall succeed.

Macd. What should he be?

Mal. It is myself I mean: it

All the particulars of vice so p

That, when they shall be open

Will seem as pure as snow; an

Esteem him as a lamb, being c

With my confineless harms.

Macd. Not in the legions

Of horrid hell, can come a dev

In evils, to top Macbeth.

Mal. I grant him bloody,

Luxurious,† avaricious, false,

Sudden,‡ malicious, smacking

That has a name: But there's:

In my voluptuousness: you

daughters,

Your matrons, and your maie

The cistern of my lust; and a

All continent impediments we

That did oppose my will: Be

Than such a one to reign.

Macd. Boundless intemper

In nature is a tyranny; it hat

The untimely emptying of the

And fall of many kings. But

To take upon you what is you

Convey your pleasures in a sp

And yet seem cold, the time y

wink.

We have willing dames enoug

That vulture in you, to devou

As will to greatness dedicate

Finding it so inclin'd.

Mal. With this, there grow

In my most ill-compos'd affec

A stanchless avarice, that, w

I should cut off the nobles for

Desire his jewels, and this o

And my more-having would l

To make me hunger more;

forge

Quarrels unjust against the g

Destroying them for wealth.

Macd. This avarice

Sticks deeper; grows with

Than summer-seeding lust: I

The sword of our slain kings

Scotland bath foysons§ to fill

Of your mere own: All these

With other graces weigh'd.

Mal. But I have none: T

graces,

* Beneficent.

§ Exile from goodness in the

* Legally settled by those who exile n.

† Lascivious.

‡ Phary.

Verity, temperance, stableness,
 fortitude, mercy, lowliness,
 patience, courage, fortitude,
 relish of them; but abound
 in each several crime, [should many ways. Nay, had I power, I sweet milk of concord into hell,
 a universal peace, confound
 on earth.

O Scotland! Scotland!

Such a one be fit to govern, speak:
 have spoken.

Fit to govern!

Live.—O nation miserable,
 untitled tyrant bloody-accepter'd,
 If thou see thy wholesome days again,
 If the truest issue of thy throne
 In interdiction stands accus'd,
 If blasphemy his breed!—Thy royal tiber [thee,
 of sainted king; the queen, that bore
 on her knees than on her feet,
 y day she lived. Fare thee well!
 Is, thou repeat'st upon thyself, wish'd me from Scotland.—O, my ends here! [breast,

and off, this noble passion,
 integrity, hath from my soul
 a black scorpion, reconcil'd my thoughts [both

and truth and honour. Devilish Mac-of these trains hath sought to win me
 over; and modest wisdom plucks me credulous haste: But God above seen thee and me! for even now
 elf to thy direction, and mine own detraction: here abjure

 and blames I laid upon myself, piers to my nature. I am yet to woman; never was forsworn;

 have coveted what was mine own;
 e broke my faith; would not betray
 to his fellow; and delight [ing

truth, than life: my first false speak-upon myself: What I am truly,
 and my poor country's, to command
 indeed, before thy here-approach,
 rd, with ten thousand warlike men,
 at a point, was setting forth.

I together; And the chance, of goodness, [silent?
 is warranted quarrel! Why are you such welcome and unwelcome things
 to reconcile. [at once,

Enter a Doctor.

ell; more anon.—Comes the king
 with, I pray you?

y, Sir: there are a crew of wretched
 rals,

his cure: their malady convinces
 assay of art; but, at his touch,
 tity hath heaven given his hand,
 ently amend.

Thank you, doctor. [Exit Doctor.
 What is the disease he means?

is call'd the evil:

raculous work in this good king;
 en, since my here-remain in Eng-
 nd,

o him do. How he solicits heaven,
 eat knows. but strangely-visited
 ople,

and ulcerous, pitiful to the eye,

ty credulity.

† Overpowers, subdues.

The mere despair of surgery, he cures;
 Hanging a golden stamp^a about their necks,
 Put on with holy prayers: and 'tis spoken,
 To the succeeding royalty he leaves [thee,
 The healing benediction. With this strange vir-
 He hath a heavenly gift of prophecy;
 And sundry blessings hang about his throne,
 That speak him full of grace.

Enter Ross.

Macd. See, who comes here?

Mal. My countryman; but yet I know him
 not.

Macd. My ever-gentle cousin, welcome hi-
 ther.

Mal. I know him now: Good God, betimes
 The means that make us strangers! [remove

Ross. Sir, Amen.

Macd. Stands Scotland where it did?

Ross. Alas, poor country;
 Almost afraid to know itself! It cannot Be call'd our mother, but our grave: where
 nothing,

But who knows nothing, is once seen to smile—
 Where sighs, and groans, and shrieks that rend
 the air, [across

Are made, not mark'd; where violent sorrow
 A modern ecstasy;† the dead man's knell
 Is there scarce ask'd, for who; and good men's Expire before the flowers in their caps, [lives,
 Dying, or ere they sicken.

Macd. O, relation,
 Too nice, and yet too true!

Mal. What is the newest grief?

Ross. That of an hour's age doth hiss the Each minute teems a new one. [speaker;

Macd. How does my wife?

Ross. Why, well.

Macd. And all my children?

Ross. Well too.

Macd. The tyrant has not batter'd at their
 peace?

Ross. No; they were well at peace, when I did leave them.

Macd. Be not a niggard of your speech;
 How goes it?

Ross. When I came hither to transport the tidings,

Which I have heavily borne, there ran a rumour
 Of many worthy fellows that were out;
 Which was to my belief witness'd the rather,
 For that I saw the tyrant's power a-foot:
 Now is the time of help, your eye in Scotland
 Would create soldiers, make our women fight,
 To doff; their dire distresses.

Mal. Be it their comfort,

We are coming thither: gracious England hath Lent us good Siward, and ten thousand men;
 An older, and a better soldier, none
 That Christendom gives out.

Ross. 'Would I could answer
 This comfort with the like! But I have words,
 That would be howl'd out in the desert air,
 Where hearing should not latch them.

Macd. What concern they?
 The general cause? or is it a fee-grief,||
 Due to some single breast?

Ross. No mind, that's honest,
 But in it shares some woe; though the main Pertains to you alone. [part

Macd. If it be mine,
 Keep it not from me, quickly let me have it.

^a The coin called an angel.

[†] Common distress of mind.

[‡] Catch.

[§] Put off.

^{||} A grief that has a single owner.

MACHETH.

despise my tongue
[sound,
with the heaviest

it.
briz'd: your wife,

ate the manner,
se murder'd deer,

[brows;
ur hat upon your hef, that does not [break.
heart, and bids it

vants, all
to thence!

our great revenge,

n.—All my pretty

nte!—All?
s, and their dam,

n.

nna:
things were,
ao.—Did heaven

? Sinful Macduff,
e' naught that I

out for mine,
als: Heaven rest

ce of your sword:
[it.

the heart, enrage
woman with mine
[heaven,

e!—But, gentle
front to front,
hand, and myself;
lum; if he 'scape,

r power is ready;
leave: Macheth
owers above
ceive what cheer

ands the day.
[Exeunt.

Room in the Castle.

ad a waiting GEN-

atched with you,
our report. When

ent into the field,
r bed, throw her
her closet, take on it, read it, af-
turn to bed; yet leep.

Doct. A great perturbation in ceive at once the benefit of sleep effects of watching.—In this slumber
besides her walking, and other formances, what, at any time, I her say?

Gent. That, Sir, which I will
her.

Doct. You may, to me; and
you should.

Gent. Neither to you, nor as no witness to confirm my speech

Enter Lady MACBETH, with

Lo you, here she comes! This is and, upon my life, fast asleep.
stand close.

Doct. How came she by that?

Gent. Why, it stood by her: a her continually; 'tis her commu-

Doct. You see, her eyes are a Gent. Ay, but their sense is a Doct. What is it she does now

she rubs her hands.

Gent. It is an accustomed to seem thus washing her hands, her continue in this a quarter of Lady M. Yet here's a spot.

Doct. Hark, she speaks: I what comes from her, to satisfy brauce the more strongly.

Lady M. Out, damned spot!

One; Two; Why, then 'tis time
Hell is murky!—Fie, my lord,

and afeard! What need we fear it, when none can call our power
—Yet who would have thought
have had so much blood in him

Doct. Do you mark that?

Lady M. The thane of Fife
Where is she now?—Wh hands ne'er be clean?—No more lord, no more o'that: you may startling.

Doct. Go to, go to; you have you should not.

Gent. She has spoke what she am sure of that: Heaven knows
known.

Lady M. Here's the smell of all the perfumes of Arabia wa-
this little hand. Oh! oh! oh!

Doct. What a sight is there surely charged.

Gent. I would not have such bosom, for the dignity of the wife

Doct. Well, well, well,—

Gent. 'Pray God, it be, Sir.

Doct. This disease is beyond Yet I have known those which their sleep, who have died bolli-

Lady M. Wash your hands night-gown; look not so pale:— again, Banquo's buried; he calls of his grave.

Doct. Even so?

Lady M. To bed, to bed; to at the gate. Come, come, come, your hand; What's done, cannot
To bed, to bed, to bed. [Exit]

Doct. Will she go now to bed?

Gent. Directly.

Doct. Foul whisperings are a tural deeds

malard troubles : Infected minds of pillows will discharge their se-

the divine, than the physigive us all ! Look after her ;
 her the means of all annoyance,
 eep eyes upon her :—So, good
 it :

he has mated,* and amard my dare not speak.
 d night, good doctor. [Exit.

To—The Country near Dunsinane.
Wan and Colours, MENTETH, CATH-
LAGUS, LENOX, and Soldiers.

English power is near, led on by calm,
 ward, and the good Macduff.
 in them : for their dear causes
 is bleeding, and the grim alarm, orficed man.†

Birnam wood [coming,
 meet them ; that way are they knows, if Donalbain be with his
 her ?

ertain, Sir, he is not : I have a file
 try ; there is Siward's son, brought youths, that even now
 first of manhood.

it does the tyrant ?
 t Dunsinane he strongly fortifies :
 's mad ; others, that lesser hate
 iant fury : but, for certain, [him, skle his distemper'd cause
 it of rule.

does he feel
 orders sticking on his hands :
 y revolts upbraid his faith-breach ;
 mands, move on, in command,
 we : now does he feel the title bout him, like a giant's robe
 fish thief.

then shall blame
 senses to recoil, and start,
 t is within him does condemn ag there ?

, march we on,
 ence where 'tis truly ow'd :
 medecin'g of the sickly weal ;
 pour we, in our country's purge,
 us.

much as it needs, [weeds.
 overeign flower, and drown the march towards Birnam.

[Exit, marching.

To—Dunsinane.—A Room in the Castle.

ETH, DOCTOR, and ATTENDANTS.

ig me no more reports ; let them
 ;
 rood remove to Dunsinane,
 t with fear. What's the boy Mal-
 !

orn of woman ? The spirits that nequents, pronounc'd me thus :
 beth ; no man, that's born of woman,
 r power on thee.—Then fly, false
 he,

with the English epicures :
 way by, and the heart I bear,
 ag|| with doubt, nor shake with

Enter a SERVANT.

The devil damn thee black, thou cream-fac'd
 Where got'st thou that goose look ! [look!‡

Serv. There is ten thousand—

Macb. Geese, villain ?

Serv. Soldiers, Sir.

Macb. Go, prick thy face, and over-red thy
 fear,

Thou lily-liver'd boy. What soldiers, patch thy Death of thy soul ! those linen cheeks of thine
 Are counsellors to fear. What soldiers, whey-
 face ?

Serv. The English force, so please you.

Macb. Take thy face hence.—Seyton !—I am sick at heart,

When I behold—Seyton, I say !—This push
 Will cheer me ever, or dissol me now.

I have liv'd long enough : my way of life
 Is fall'n into the sear,† the yellow leaf :

And that which should accompany old age,
 As honour, love, obedience, troops of friends,
 I must not look to have ; but, in their stead,
 Curses, not loud, but deep, mouth-honour,
 breath, [dare not.

Which the poor heart would fain deny, but Seyton !—

Enter SEYTON.

Sey. What is your gracious pleasure ?

Macb. What news more ?

Sey. All is confirm'd, my lord, which was reported.

Macb. I'll fight, till from my bones my flesh be hack'd.

Give me my armour.

Sey. 'Tis not needed yet.

Macb. I'll put it on.

Send out more horses, skirr§ the country round ;
 Hang those that talk of fear.—Give me mine
 How does your patient, doctor ? [armour.—

Doct. Not so sick, my lord,

As she is troubled with thick-coming fancies,
 That keep her from her rest.

Macb. Cure her of that :

Canst thou not minister to a mind diseas'd ;
 Pluck from the memory a rooted sorrow ;
 Raze out the written troubles of the brain ;
 And, with some sweet oblivious antidote,
 Cleanse the stuff'd bosom of that perilous stuff,
 Which weighs upon the heart ?

Doct. Therein the patient

Must minister to himself.

Macb. Throw physic to the dogs, I'll none of it.— [staff :—

Come, put mine armour on ; give me my Seyton, send out.—Doctor, the thanes fly from me :— [cast

Come, Sir, despatch :—If thou could'st, doctor,
 The water of my land, find her disease,
 And purge it to a sound and pristine health,
 I would applaud thee to the very echo,
 That should applaud again.—Pull't off, I say.—
 What rhubarb, senna ; or what purgative drug,
 Would scour these English hence !—Hearest
 thou of them ?

Doct. Ay, my good lord ; your royal prepara-Makes us hear something. [tion

Macb. Bring it after me.—

I will not be afraid of death and bane,
 Till Birnam forest come to Dunsinane. [Exit.

Doct. Were I from Dunsinane away and clear,

Profit again should hardly draw me here.

[Exit.

† A religious ; an ascetic.
 § The physician. || Sink.

* Base fellow.
 ‡ Dry.

† An appellation of weakness.
 § Scour.

MACBETH.

For Dunsinane: A
crow.

ours, MALCOLM, old
MACDUFF, MENTETH,
Ross, and Sol-

the days are near at [hand

g.
before us?

him.
hew him down a [shadow thereby shall we

and make discovery

, but the confident

and will endure

age to be given,
given him the revolt;

n, but constrained [things,

oo.
res
put we on es,

n make us know

, and what we owe,
unwise hopes relate;

ust arbitrate:†
he war.

[Exeunt, marching.

Within the Castle.

Colours, MACBETH,
Soldiers.

ners on the outward [strength

ome: Our castle's
here let them lie,

eat them up:
those that should [beard, dareful, beard to home. What is that y within, of Women.

en, my good lord.
et the taste of fears:

senses would have
d my fell; of hair

rouse, and stir
supp'd full with

night'rous thoughts,
herefore was that

, is dead.
ied hereafter;

ce for such a word.—
t, and to-morrow,

m day to day,
ted time:

ighted fools
Out, out, brief

w; a poor player,
our upon the stage,

it is a tale
and and fury,

ermine. ; Skin

Enter a Messenger

Thou com'st to use thy to quickly.

Mess. Gracious my lord,
I shall report that which I say;
But know not how to do it.

Macb. Well, say, Sir.

Mess. As I did stand my
hill,

I look'd toward Birnam, and
The wood began to move.

Macb. Liar, and slave!

Mess. Let me endure your
so:

Within this three mile may ye
I say, a moving grove.

Macb. If thou speak'st false
Upon the next tree shalt thou

Till famine cling* thee: if thy
I care not if thou dost for me

I pull in resolution; and beg
To doubt the equivocation of

That lies like truth: Fear not,
Do come to Dunsinane;—and Comes toward Dunsinane.—

out!—

If this, which he avouches, do
There is nor flying hence, nor

I 'gin to be a-weary of the an
And wish the estate o'the

Ring the alarum bell:—Blow
wrack!

At least we'll die with harness

SCENE VI.—The same.—A Castle.

Enter, with Drums and Colours
Sirward, MACDUFF, &c. and Houghs.

Mal. Now near enough; ye throw down,

And show like those you are Shall, with my cousin, your

Lead our first battle: worthy
Shall take upon us what else

According to our order.
Sir. Fare you well.—

Do we but find the tyrant's p
Let us be beaten, if we cannot

Macd. Make all our trump them all breath,

Those clamorous harbingers death. [Exeunt. A

SCENE VII.—The same.—A [Macb.]

Enter Macbeth

Macb. They have tied me to not fly,

But, bear-like, I must fight the
That was not born of woman

Am I to fear, or none.

Enter young Sirward

Yo. Sir. What is thy name

Macb. Thou'lt be afraid to

Yo. Sir. No; though thou hotter name

Than any is in hell.

Macb. My name's Macbeth

Yo. Sir. The devil himself nounce a title

More hateful to mine ear.

Macb. No, nor more fearful

* Shrive.

in flesh, abhorred tyrant; with
ord
le thou speak'st.
light, and young SIWARD is slain.
wast born of woman.—
sile at, weapons laugh to scorn,
man that's of a woman born.

[Exit.

Enter MACDUFF.

Why the noise is:—Tyrant, show
me:

sin, and with no stroke of mine,
children's ghost will haunt me

[arms

at wretched kernes,* whose near their staves; either thou,

nd, with an unbatter'd edge,
undeeded. There thou should'st

batter, one of greatest note † Let me find him, fortune!
not.

[Exit. Alarm.

MALCOLM and SIWARD.

My lord;—The castle's gently
d:

ople on both sides do fight;
es do bravely in the war;

Itself professes yours,
do.

re met with foes
side us.

Sir, the castle.
[Exit. Alarm.

Re-enter MACBETH.

Should I play the Roman fool,
e

[gashes

sword? while I see lives, the
them.

Re-enter MACDUFF.

hell-bound, turn.
men else I have avoided thee:

sick, my soul is too much charg'd thine already.

e no words,
my sword; thou bloodier villain
a give thee out!

[They fight.

losest labour:
t thou the intrenchant air;

a sword impress, as make me
:

ade on vulnerable crests;
ed life, which must not yield

an born.
air thy charm;

igel, whom thou still hast serv'd,
duff was from his mother's womb

'd.
ped be that tongue that tells me
w'd my better part of man!

[so, juggling fiends no more believ'd,
ith us in a double sense;

word of promise to our ear,
to our hope.—I'll not fight with yield thee, coward,

the show and gaze o'the time.

e, as our rarer monsters are,

† Reported with clamour.

cannot be cut. § flourish.

Painted upon a pole; and underwrit,
Here may you see the tyrant.

Macb. I'll not yield, [feet,
To kiss the ground before young Malcolm's
And to be baited with the rabble's curse.

Though Birnam wood be come to Dunsinane,
And thou oppos'd, being of no woman born,

Yet I will try the last: Before my body
I throw my warlike shield: lay on, Macduff;

And damn'd be him that first cries, Hold, enough!
[Exit, fighting.

Retreat. Flourish. Re-enter, with Drum and Colours, MALCOLM, old SIWARD, ROSS, LA-

NOX, ANGUS, CATHNESS, MENTETH, and Soldiers.

Mal. I would, the friends we miss were safe

arriv'd.
Sir. Some must go off: and yet, by these I
So great a day as this is cheaply bought.

[see, Mal. Macduff is missing, and your noble son,
Ross. Your son, my lord, has paid a soldier's

He only liv'd but till he was a man; [debt:
The which no sooner had his prowess confirm'd

In the unshrinking station where he fought,
But like a man he died.

Sir. Then he is dead?
Ross. Ay, and brought off the field: your cause of sorrow

Must not be measur'd by his worth, for then

It hath no end.
Sir. Had he his hurts before?

Ross. Ay, on the front.
Sir. Why then, God's soldier be he!

Had I as many sons as I have hairs,
I would not wish them to a fairer death:

And so his knell is knoll'd.
Mal. He's worth more sorrow,

And that I'll spend for him.
Sir. He's worth no more;

They say, he parted well, and paid his score:
So, God be with him!—Here comes newer

comfort.
Re-enter MACDUFF, with MACBETH'S Head on a

Pole.
Macd. Hail, king! for so thou art: Behold,

where stands
The usurper's cursed head: the time is free:

I see thee compass'd with thy kingdom's pearl,*
That speak my salutation in their minds;

Whose voices I desire aloud with mine,—
Hail, king of Scotland!

All. King of Scotland, hail! [Flourish.
Mal. We shall not spend a large expense of

time,
Before we reckon with your several loves,
And make us even with you. My thanes and kinsmen,

Henceforth be earls, the first that ever Scotland

In such an honour nam'd. What's more to do,
Which would be planted newly with the time,—

As calling home our exil'd friends abroad;
That fled the snare of watchful tyranny;

Producing forth the cruel ministers
Of this dead butcher, and his fiend-like queen;

Who, as 'tis thought, by self and violent hands
Took off her life;—This, and what needful else

That calls upon us, by the grace of Grace,
We will perform in measure, time, and place:

So thanks to all at once, and to each one,
Whom we invite to see us crown'd at Scone.
[Flourish. Exit.

* The kingdom's wealth or ornament.

ING JOHN.

PERSONS REPRESENTED.

afterwards King	LEWIS, the Dauphin.
son of Geoffrey,	ARCH-DUKE of Austria.
the elder Brother	CARDINAL PANDULPH, the P.
of Pembroke.	MELUN, a French Lord.
of Essex, Chief	CHATILLON, Ambassador from
of Salisbury.	John.
of Norfolk,	ELINOR, the Widow of King
claim to the King.	Mother of King John.
Son of Sir Robert	CONSTANCE, Mother to Arthur
	BLANCH, Daughter to Alphonse tile, and Niece to King LADY FAULCONBRIDGE, Mother
	and Robert Faulconbridge.
Half-brother, bastard	Lords, Ladies, Citizens of
Richard the First.	Heralds, Officers, Soldiers
to Lady Faulcon-	and other Attendants.
et.	SCENE, sometimes in England
	in France.

A Room of State

LEWIS, PEMBROKE,

here, with CHATILLON, what would

ing, speaks the king

Majesty,

England here.

ing;—borrow'd man-

other; hear the em-

right and true be-

Geoffrey's son, [half

most lawful claim

territories;

Touraine, Maine;

the sword,

these several titles;

ing Arthur's hand,

sovereign.

If we disallow of fierce and bloody

mercifully withheld.

war for war, and

K. John. Bear mine to him

peace:

Be thou as lightning in the sky

For ere thou canst report I v

The thunder of my canon shu

So, hence! Be thou the trumpet

And sullen presago of your

An honourable conduct let h

Pembroke, look to't: Farew

[Exit CHATILLON]

Eli. What now, my son?

said,

How that ambitious Constance

Till she had kindled France,

Upon the right and party of

This might have been prevented

With very easy arguments of

Which now the manage^r of tw

With fearful bloody issue ar

K. John. Our strong poss

right, for us.

Eli. Your strong possession

your right;

Or else it must go wrong with

So much my conscience whis

Which none but heaven, and

hear.

Enter the Sheriff of Northampton

pers Essex.

Essex. My liege, here is th

traversy,

Come from the country to be

That ere I heard: Shall I pr

K. John. Let them approach

Our abbies, and our priories,

a Conduct, whither

Enter Sheriff, with ROBERT FAULCONBRIDGE, and PHILIP, his bastard Brother.

Rebellion's charge — What men are you? Your faithful subject I, a gentleman, Northamptonshire; and eldest son, opposite, to Robert Faulconbridge, who, by the honour-giving hand of the king, was knighted in the field.

What art thou?

The son and heir to that same Faulconbridge.

Is that the elder, and art thou the heir?

Not of one mother then, it seems.

Most certain of one mother, mighty king. [father:]

well known, and, as I think, one the certain knowledge of that truth, no other to heaven, and to my mother; I doubt, as all men's children may.

But on thee, rude man! thou dost shame thy mother,

and her honour with this diffidence.

I, madam? no, I have no reason for it; my brother's plea, and none of mine;

ask if he can prove, 'a pops me out from four five hundred pound a year;

guard my mother's honour, and my land!

Is a good blunt fellow:—Why, being younger born,

my claim to thine inheritance?

I know not why, except to get the land.

He slander'd me with bastardy.

'Tis I be as true-begot, or no,

I lay upon my mother's head;

I am as well begot, my liege,

I the bones that took the pains for me!

I our faces, and be judge yourself.

Robert did beget us both,

our father, and this son like him,—

Robert, father, on my knee

even thanks, I was not like to thee.

Why, what a mad-cap hath heaven lent us here!

He hath a trick of Coeur-de-lion's face,

out of his tongue affecteth him.

Not read some tokens of my son

in the composition of this man?

My eye hath well examined his parts, [speak,

is them perfect Richard—Sirrah,

will move you to claim your brother's

land?

Because he hath a half-face, like my

father;

A half-face would he have all my land,

and would groat five hundred pounds a year

of my gracious liege, when that my father lived,

never did employ my father much,

Well, Sir, by this you cannot get my

land;

I must be, how he employ'd my mother,

and once despatch'd him in an embassy

away, there, with the emperor,

of high affairs touching that time

absence of his absence took the king,

he mean time sojourn'd at my father's;

now he did prevail, I shame to speak

his truth; large lengths of seas and shores

my father and my mother lay,

we heard my father speak himself,

his same lusty gentleman was got.

Heir.

+ Trava, outline.

Upon his death-bed he by will bequeath'd His lands to me, and took it, on his death, That this, my mother's son, was none of his; And, if he were, he came into the world Full fourteen weeks before the course of time. Then, good my liege, let me have what is mine, My father's land, as was my father's will.

K. John. Sirrah, your brother is legitimate; Your father's wife did after wedlock bear him: And, if she did play false, the fault was hers; Which fault lies on the hazards of all husbands That marry wives. Tell me, how if my brother Who, as you say, took pains to get this son, Had of your father claim'd this son for his? In sooth, good friend, your father might have kept

This calf, bred from his cow, from all the In sooth, he might. then, if he were my brother's,

My brother might not claim him; nor your Being none of his, refuse him. This concludes,—

My mother's son did get your father's heir; Your father's heir must have your father's land.

Rob. Shall then my father's will be of no force,

To dispossess that child which is not his?

Bast. Of no more force to dispossess me, Sir, Than was his will to get me, as I think.

Eli. Whether hadst thou rather,—be a Faulconbridge,

And like thy brother, to enjoy thy land;

Or the reputed son of Coeur-de-lion,

Lord of thy presence,* and no land beside?

Bast. Madam, as if my brother had my shape,

And I had his, Sir Robert his, like him;

And if my legs were two such riding-rods,

My arms such eel-skins stuff'd, my face so thin,

That in mine ear I durst not stick a rose,

Lest men should say, Look, where three-farthings goes!

And, to his shape, were heir to all this land,

'Would I might never stir from off this place,

I'd give it every foot to have this face;

I would not be Sir Nob in any case.

Eli. I like thee well; Wilt thou forsake thy

fortune,

Bequeath thy land to him, and follow me?

I am a soldier, and now bound to France.

Bast. Brother, take you my land, I'll take my chance. [year;

Your face hath got five hundred pounds a

Yet sell your face for fivepence, and 'tis dear.—

Madam, I'll follow you unto the death.

Eli. Nay, I would have you go before me thither.

Bast. Our country manners give our betters

way.

K. John. What is thy name?

Bast. Philip, my liege; so is my name begun;

Philip, good old Sir Robert's wife's eldest son.

K. John. From henceforth bear his name whose form thou bear'st.

Kneel thou down Philip, but arise more great:

Arise Sir Richard and Plantagenet.

Bast. Brother, by the mother's side, give me

your hand;

My father gave me honour, yours gave land:—

Now blessed be the hour, by night or day,

When I was got, Sir Robert was away.

Eli. The very spirit of Plantagenet!—

I am thy grandame, Richard; call me so.

Bast. Madam, by chance, but not by truth:

What thought?

* Dignity of appearance.

+ Robert.

U 4

KING JOHN.

the right,
er the hatch:
at walk by night;
men do catch.
ll well shot;
got.
now hast thou [squire.— thee a lauded
chard; we must [need.
it is more than fortune come to honesty. [thee'
ut the BASTARD.
was;
rse.
an a lady:—
od-a-mercy, fel-
call him Peter.
et men's names;
able,
ur traveller,—
ship's mess;
is suffic'd,
catechise
— My dear Sir,
I begin,)
tion now;
ABC-book:—
command;
me, Sir:—
at Sir, at yours:
question would,
ent;
Apennines,
o,) clusion so.

ke myself.
ame,
ation;
k, or no;)
vice,
rement;
deliver
the age's tooth:
tise to deceive,
learn;
if my rising.—
in riding robes?
ath she no hus-

horn before her?
r and JAMES,

now, good lady!
so hastily?
e, thy brother!

or up and down?
old Sir Robert's

oughty man?
seek so?

Ay, thou unre-[Robert?

at thou at Sir
art thou.

ou give us leave
p.

respectable.
My travelled top.

Bast. Philip?—sparrow!—
There's toy's abroad; anon!

Madam, I was not old Sir Rob
Sir Robert might have eat his Upon Good-friday, and ne'er
Sir Robert could do well; Mai
Could he get me? Sir Robert
We know his handy-work:—
mother,

To whom am I beholden for th
Sir Robert never help to make Lady F. Hast thou conspired

too,
That for thine own gain shoul
What means this scorn, thou
knave?

Bast. Knight, knight, good hoolike?

What! I am dubb'd; I have it
But, mother, I am not Sir Rob
I have disclaim'd Sir Robert, Legitimation, name, and all is Then, good my mother, let me
Some proper man, I hope; V
ther?

Lady F. Hast thou denied conbridge?

Bast. As faithfully as I den
Lady F. King Richard Co
thy father;

By long and vehement suit I
To make room for him in my h
Heaven lay not my transgressi
Thou art the issue of my dear
Which was so strongly urg'd,

Bast. Now, by this light, we Madam, I would not wish a b
Some sins do bear their privile
And so doth yours; your fan
folly:

Need must you lay your heart
Subjected tribute to command
Against whose fury and unma
The awless lion could not wag
Nor keep his princely heart
hand.

He, that perforce robs lions of May easily win a woman's. A
With all my heart I thank the
Who lives and dares but say
well

When I was got, I'll send his Come, lady, I will show thee
And they shall say, when Ri
If thou hadst said him nay, it
Who says it was, he lies; I

ACT II.

SCENE I.—France.—Before Angiers.

Enter, on one side, the Aachen and Forces; on the other, the France, and Forces; LAW ARTHUR, and Attendants.

Law. Before Angiers well n tria.—

Arthur, that great fore-runner
Richard, that robb'd the lion of
And fought the holy wars in P
By this brave duke came early

* Idle reports.
† A character in an old drama called Arden.

amends to his posterity,
 importance,* hither is he come,
 his colours, boy, in thy behalf;
 shake the usurpation natural uncle, English John:
 him, love him, give him welcome
 either.

And shall forgive you Cœur-de-lion's leath,
 x, that you give his offspring life,
 ag their right under your wings of
 war.

u welcome with a powerless hand,
 a heart full of unstained love;
 before the gates of Angiers, duke.
 A noble boy! Who would not do thee
 right?

Upon thy cheek lay I this zealous kiss,
 o this indenture of my love;
 ay home I will no more return,
 wro, and the right thou hast in France,
 with that pale, that white-fac'd shore,
 yet spurns back the ocean's roaring ides,

so from other lands her islanders,
 that England, hedg'd in with the
 main,

er-walled bulwark, still secure
 ident from foreign purposes,
 that utmost corner of the west
 as for her king. till then, fair boy,
 I think of home, but follow arms.

O, take his mother's thanks, a wi-
 low's thanks, [strength,
 strong hand shall help to give him
 a more requital to your love.

The peace of heaven is theirs, that lift their swords

just and charitable war.

c Well then, to work, our cannon shall be bent

the brows of this resisting town.—
 our chiefest men of discipline,
 se plots of best advantages:†

before this town our royal bones,
 the market-place in Frenchmen's
 blood,

will make it subject to this boy.

Stay for an answer to your embassy, advis'd you stain your swords with
 blood:

Chatillon may from England bring it in peace, which here we urge in
 war;

we shall repent each drop of blood,
 rash haste so indirectly shed.

Enter CHATILLON.

. A wonder, lady!—lo, upon thy wish,
 seeger Chatillon is arriv'd.—

igland says, say briefly, gentle lord,
 y pause for thee, Chatillon, speak.

Then turn your forces from this paltry
 siege,

them up against a mightier task.

, impatient of your just demands,

himself in arms; the adverse winds,

ensure I have staid, have given him

his legions all as soon as I [time

thes are expedient to this town,

strong, his soldiers confident,

along is come the mother-queen,

stirring him to blood and strife,

humbley

stones to over-awe the town
 late, expeditions. † The Golden of Revenge.

With her her niece, the lady Blanch of Spain;
 With them a bastard of the king deceas'd:
 And all the unsettled humours of the land,—
 Rash, inconsiderate, fiery voluntaries,
 With ladies' faces, and fierce dragons' spleens,—
 Have sold their fortunes at their native homes, Bearing their birthrights proudly on their backs,

To make a hazard of new fortunes here.
 In brief, a braver choice of dauntless spirits,
 Than now the English bottoms have waft o'er,
 Did never float upon the swelling tide,
 To do offence and scath* in t'bristendom.
 The interruption of their churlish drame

[Drums beat.

Cuts off more circumstance: they are at hand,
 To parley, or to fight; therefore, prepare.

K. Phi. How much unlook'd for is this expedition!

Aust. By how much unexpected, by so much
 We must awake endeavour for defence,
 For courage mounteth with occasion:
 Let them be welcome then, we are prepar'd.

Enter King JOHN, ELINOR, BLANCH, the BASTARD, PEMBROKE, and Forces.

K. John. Peace be to France: if France in peace permit

Our just and lineal entrance to our own!
 If not; bleed France, and peace ascend to
 heaven!

Whiles we, God's wrathful agent, do correct
 Their proud contempt that beat his peace to heaven.

K. Phi. Peace be to England; if that war
 return

From France to England, there to live in peace!
 England we love; and, for that England's sake,
 With burden of our armour here we sweat:

This toil of ours should be a work of thine,

But thou from loving England art so far,

That thou has under-wrought† his lawful king,

Cut off the sequence‡ of posterity,

Outfaced infant state, and done a rape

Upon the maiden virtue of the crown.

Look here upon thy brother Geoffrey's face;—

These eyes, these brows, were moulded out of his.

This little abstract doth contain that large,

Which died in Geoffrey; and the hand of time

Shall draw this brief§ into as huge a volume.

That Geoffrey was thy elder brother born,

And this his son; England was Geoffrey's right,

And this is Geoffrey's. In the name of God,

How comes it then, that thou art call'd a king,

When living blood doth in these temples beat,

Which owe the crown that thou o'ermasterest?

K. John. From whom hast thou this great commission, France,

To draw my answer from thy articles?

K. Phi. From that supernal|| judge, that stirs

good thoughts

In any breast of strong authority,

To look into the blots and stains of right.

That judge hath made me guardian to this boy;

Under whose warrant, I impeach thy wrong;

And, by whose help, I mean to chastise it.

K. John. Alack, thou dost usurp authority.

K. Phi. Excuse; it is to beat usurping down.

Ed. Who is it, thou dost call usurper, France?

Comst. Let me make answer,—thy usurping

son.

Ed. Out, insolent! thy bastard shall be king; [world'

That thou may'st be a queen, and check the

* Mischief.

† Undermined.

‡ A short writing.

§ Succession.

|| Celestial.

KING JOHN.

thy son as true,
and this boy
effrey,
being as like,
dam.
I think,
got;
mother.
boy, that blots dam, boy, that

ou?
devil, Sir, with
you alone.
proverb goes,
by the beard;
catch you right,
faith.
ome that lion's robe! [robe,
back of him,
an ass.—
from your back;
your shoulders

ame, that deaf
luous breath?
hat we shall do
ak off your con-

m of all,— ou, Touraine,
ot thee
down thy arms?
I do defy thee,

to my hand;
give thee more France can win:

child.
andam, child;
it grandam will
a fig:

re!
in my grave;
s made for me.
so, poor boy, he

ou, wh'er's she not his mother's [eyes,

ria from his poor
ture of a fee;
heaven shall be
on you. [brib'd
of heaven and

er of heaven and ad thine, usurp
l rights.

thy eldest son's
thee; [son,
or child;
on him,

entle. } Whether

Being but the second generati
Removed from thy sin-conceiv
K. John. Bedlam, have don Const. I have but this to say That he's not only plagued for But God hath made her sin an
On this removed issue, plagu'
And with her plague, her sin;
Her injury,—the beadle to her
All punish'd in the person of
And all for her; A plague up
Efr. Thou unadvised scold,
A will, that bars the title of t Const. Ay, who doubts that?
will;

A woman's will; a canker'd g K. Phi. Peace, lady; pause, perate:

It ill beserms this presence, to
To these ill-tuned repetitions.
Some trumpet summon hither
These men of Angiers; let us h
Whose title they admit, Arthu

Trumpets sound. Enter CITIZEN

1 Cit. Who is it, that hath w wulls?

K. Phi. 'Tis France, for En
K. John. England, for itself
You men of Angiers, and my lo

K. Phi. You loving men of A
subjects,
Our trumpet call'd you to this
K. John. For our advanta hear us first.—

These flags of France, that ar
Before the eye and prospect of
Have hither march'd to your e
The cannons have their bowel
And ready mounted are they,
Their iron indignation 'gainst
All preparation for a bloody s
And merciless proceeding by t
Confront your city's eyes, you
And, but for our approach,
That as a waist do girdle you
By the compulsion of their ord
By this time from their fixed b
Had been dishabited, and wid
For bloody power to rush upon
But, on the sight of us, your lo
Who painfully, with much exp
Have brought a countercheck b
To save unscratch'd your c cheeks,—

Behold, the French, amaz'd, va
And now, instead of bullets w
To make a shaking fever in yo
They shoot but calm words, folc
To make a faithless error in yo
Which trust accordingly, kind
And let us in, your king; whose Forewearing in this action of a Crave harbourage within your

K. Phi. When I have said, i us both.

Lo, in this right hand, whose y
Is most divinely vow'd upon t
Of him it holds, stands young Son to the elder brother of this
And king o'er him, and all the
For this down-trodden equity,
In warlike march these gree
Being no further enemy to you
Than the constraint of hospital

* To encourage. } Conference.

of this oppress'd child,
y provokes. Be pleased then it duty, which you truly owe,
not owes" it; namely, this young ince

our arms, like to a muzzled bear,
pect, have all offence seal'd up;
no' malice vainly shall be spent
s invulnerable clouds of heaven;
a blessed and unwe'd retire,
ok'd swords, and helmets all un-
n'd,
ar home that lusty blood again,
o we came to spout against your wn, [peace.
your children, wives, and you, in fondly pass our proffer'd offer,
roundure of your old-fac'd walls
on from our messengers of war;
these English, and their discipline,
our'd in their rude circumference.
as, shall your city call us lord,
self which we have challeng'd it?
e give the signal to our rage,
in blood to our possession?
brief, we are the king of England's jects,
ed in his right, we hold this town.
Acknowledge then the king, and me in.
mi can we not: but he that proves
king,
I we prove loyal; till that time,
ramm'd up our gates against the aid.

Doth not the crown of England
re the king?

. that, I bring you witnesses,
en thousand hearts of England's
ed,— wards, and else.

To verify our title with their lives.
As many, and as well-born bloods
those,—

me bastards too.

stand in his face, to contradict his
im.

If you compound whose right is rthiest, [both.

re worthiest, hold the right from Then God forgive the sin of all se souls,

is everlasting residence,

dew of evening fall, shall fleet,

trial of our kingdom's king!

Amen, Amen!—Mount, chevaliers!

arms!

George,—that swing'd the dragon,
ie'er since,

horseback at mine hostess' door,

me fence! Sirrah, were I at home,

z, sirrah, [To AUSTRIA] with your

rest,

x-head to your lion's lude,

a monster of you.

ace; no more.

tremble; for you hear the lion roar.

Up higher to the plain; where we'll

forth,

ointment, all our regiments.

sed then, to take advantage of the

d.

It shall be so;—[To LEWIS] and at other hall

the rest to stand.—God, and our

bt! [Exeunt.

as.

† Circle.

SCENE II.—The same.

Alarums and Excursions; then a Retreat. Enter a French HERALD, with trumpets, to the gates.

F. Her. You men of Angiers, open wide
your gates,

And let young Arthur, duke of Bretagne, in;
Who, by the hand of France, this day hath
made

Much work for tears in many an English mo-Whose sons lie scatter'd on the bleeding
ground:

Many a widow's husband grovelling lies,
Coldly embracing the discolour'd earth;
And victory, with little loss, doth play
Upon the dancing banners of the French;
Who are at hand, triumphantly display'd,
To enter conquerors, and to proclaim
Arthur of Bretagne, England's king, and yours.

Enter an English HERALD, with trumpets.

E. Her. Rejoice, you men of Angiers, ring
your bells; [approach,
King John, your king and England's, doth
Commander of this hot malicious day!
Their armours, that march'd hence so silver-
bright,

Hither return all gilt with Frenchmen's blood;
There stuck no plume in any English crest,
That is removed by a staff of France
Our colours do return in those same hands
That did display them when we first march'd
forth;

And, like a jolly troop of huntsmen, come
Our lusty English, all with purpled hands,
Died in the dying slaughter of their foes:
Open your gates, and give the victors way.

Cut. Heralds, from off our towers we might behold,

From first to last, the onset and retire
Of both your armies; whose equality
By our best eyes cannot be censured:
Blood hath bought blood, and blows have an-swer'd blows;

Strength match'd with strength, and power
confronted power:

Both are alike; and both alike we like.

One must prove greatest: while they weigh so
even,

We hold our town for neither; yet for both.

*Enter, at one side, King JOHN, with his power;
ELINOR, BLANCH, and the BASTARD, at the other, King PHILIP, LEWIS, AUSTRIA, and Forces.*

K. John. France, hast thou yet more blood to cast away?

Say, shall the current of our right run on?
Whose passage, vex'd with thy impediment,
Shall leave his native channel, and o'er-swell
With course disturb'd even thy confining
Unless thou let his silver water keep [shores,
A peaceful progress in the ocean.

K. Ph. England, thou hast not sav'd one drop of blood,

In this hot trial, more than we of France;
Rather, lost more. And by this hand I swear,
That sways the earth this climate overlooks,—
Before we will lay down our just-borne arms,
We'll put thee down, 'gainst whom these arms
we bear,

Or add a royal number to the dead,
Gracing the scroll, that tells of this war's loss,
With slaughter coupled to the name of kings.

Bast. Ha, majesty! how high thy glory towers,

* Judged, determined.

KING JOHN.

... is set on fire !
 ... dead chaps with
 ... teeth, his fangs,
 ... the flesh of men,
 ... of kings —
 ... amazed thus ?
 ... the stained field,
 ... andied spirits !
 ... art confirm
 ... blows, blood, and
 ... the townsmen yet
 ... for England ; who's
 ... and, when we know
 ... that here hold up
 ... our own great de-
 ... person here ;
 ... and of you.
 ... than we, denies all
 ... we do lock [this ;
 ... strong-barr'd gates.
 ... our fears, resolv'd,
 ... urg'd and depos'd.
 ... scroyles of Angiers
 ... or battlements,
 ... a gape and point
 ... and acts of death.
 ... led by me ;
 ... to salem,
 ... ch conjointly bend
 ... ace on this town :
 ... ace and England
 ... nged to the mouths ;
 ... onours have brawl'd
 ... mptuous city :
 ... ese jades,
 ... on
 ... vulgar air.
 ... nted strengths,
 ... ars once again ;
 ... ly point to point :
 ... shall cull forth
 ... admon
 ... give the day,
 ... as victory.
 ... sel, mighty states ?
 ... the policy ?
 ... ky that hangs above
 ... powers,
 ... shall we knit our
 ... with the ground ;
 ... be king of it ?
 ... mettle of a king,—
 ... re, by this peevish
 ... y artillery, [town,—
 ... these saucy walls :
 ... dash'd them to the
 ... , and, pell-mell,
 ... s, for heaven, or hell.
 ... Say, where will you
 ... west will send de... [struction
 ... om the south,
 ... bullets on this town.

4 Mutineers.

Bast. O prudent disciplin
 south ;
 Austria and France shoo
 I'll stir them to it :—Come,
 1 Cit. Hear us, great k
 while to stay,
 And I shall show you pea
 Win you this city without a Rescue those breathing live
 That here come sacrifices fo
 Persever not, but hear me,
 K. John. Speak on, wit
 bent to hear.
 1 Cit. That daughter ther
 Blanch,
 Is near to England ; Look
 Of Lewis the Dauphin, and If lusty love should go in q
 Where should he find it fair
 If zealous love should go i
 Where should he find it pur
 If love ambitious sought a r
 Whose veins bound richer
 Blanch ?
 Such as she is, in beauty, v
 Is the young Dauphin ever
 If not complete, O say, he
 And she again wants nothi
 If want it be not, that she i
 He is the half part of a ble Left to be finished by such
 And she a fair divided exc
 Whose fulness of perfection
 O, two such silver currents
 Do glorify the banks that b
 And two such shores to made one,
 Two such controlling bow
 To these two princes, if you
 This union shall do more t
 To our fast-closed gates ; fi
 With swifter spleen than
 The mouth of passage shall
 And give you entrance ;
 match,
 The sea enraged is not hal
 Lions more confident, mow
 More free from motion ; no
 In mortal fury half so per
 As we to keep this city.
Bast. Here's a stay,
 That shakes the rotten care
 Out of his rags ! Here's a b That spits forth death, and
 and sea ;
 Talks as familiarly of roar
 As maids of thirteen do of What cannoner begot this He speaks plain cannon, f
 bounce ;
 He gives the bastinado wi
 Our ears are cudgel'd ; no
 But buffets better than a f
 Zounds ! I was never so bel
 Since I first call'd my brot
 Eli. Son, list to this con
 match ;
 Give with our niece a dow
 For by this knot thou shal
 Thy now unsur'd assurance
 That yon green boy shall l
 The bloom that promiseth
 I see a yielding in the lool
 Mark, how they whisper
 their souls

5 Flou.

of this ambition :
 melted, by the windy breath
 of pity, and remorse,
 back again to what it was.
 answer not the double majesties
 treaty of our threaten'd town ?
 ask England first, that hath been and first

this city : What say you ?
 that the Dauphin there, thy only son,
 look of beauty read, I love,
 will weigh equal with a queen :
 and Fair Touraine, Maine, Poictie upon this side the sea (tiers, thy now by us besieg'd)
 our crown and dignity,
 a bridal bed, and make her rich
 with, and promotions,
 city, education, blood,
 with any princess of the world.
 wilt say at thou, boy ! look in the
 face.

my lord, and in her eye I find
 a wondrous miracle,
 of myself form'd in her eye ;
 but the shadow of your son,
 and makes your son a shadow :
 never lov'd myself,
 when I beheld myself,
 flattering table* of her eye.

[Whispers with BLANCH.
 n in the flattering table of her — [brow !—
 the frowning wrinkle of her
 in her heart !—he doth espy one's traitor. This is pity now, and drawn, and quarter'd, there I be,
 so vile a lout as he.
 uncle's will, in this respect, is

it in you, that makes him like,
 he sees, which moves his liking,
 e translate it to my will ;
 , (to speak more properly,)
 it easily to my love.
 not flatter you, my lord,
 in you is worthy love,
 at nothing do I see in you,
 hath thoughts themselves should or judge,)
 d should merit any hate.
 hat say these young ones ? What you, my niece ?
 if she is bound in honour still wisdom shall vouchsafe to say.

 speak then, prince Dauphin ; can give this lady ?
 ask me if I can refrain from love ;
 her most unfeignedly.
 then do I give Volquessen, Tou-
 raine,
 Anjou, these five provinces,
 me, and this addition more,
 thousand marks of English coin.—
 ace, if thou be pleas'd withal,
 son and laughter to join hands.
 likes as well,—young princes,
 your hands.
 your lips too ; for, I am well as-

when I was first assur'd.
 w, citizens of Angiers, open your

Let in that amity which you have made ;
 For at Saint Mary's chapel, presently,
 The rites of marriage shall be solemniz'd.—
 Is not the lady Constance in this troop ?—
 I know, she is not ; for this match, made up,
 Her presence would have interrupted much :—
 Where is she and her son ? tell me, who knows.
 Lew. She is sad and passionate* at your highness' tent.

K. PAI. And, by my faith, this league, that we have made,

Will give her sadness very little cure.—
 Brother of England, how may we content
 This widow lady ? In her right we came ;
 Which we, God knows, have turn'd another
 way.

To our own vantage.†

K. JOHN. We will heal up all [league,
 For we'll create young Arthur duke of Bro-
 And earl of Richmond, and this rich fair town
 We make him lord of.—Call the lady Constance ;
 Some speedy messenger bid her repair
 To our solemnity.—I trust we shall,
 If not fill up the measure of her will,
 Yet in some measure satisfy her so,
 That we shall stop her exclamation.
 Go we, as well as haste will suffer us,
 To this unlock'd fur unprepared pomp.

[Exeunt all but the BASTARD.—The CITI-ZENS retire from the walls.

Bast. Mad world ! mad kings ! mad composition !

John, to stop Arthur's title in the whole,
 Hath willingly departed with a part.
 And France, (whose armour conscience buckled on ;

Whom zeal and charity brought to the field,
 As God's own soldier,) rounded‡ in the ear
 With that same purpose-changer, that sly
 devil,

That broker, that still breaks the pate of faith ;
 That daily break-vow ; he that wins of all,
 Of kings, of beggars, old men, young men,
 maids,—

Who having no external thing to lose [that,
 But the word maid,—cheats the poor maid of That smooth-faced gentleman, tickling commodity,§—

Commodity, the bias of the world ;
 The world, who of itself is peis'd|| well,
 Made to run even, upon even ground ;
 Till this advantage, this vile drawing bias,
 This away of motion, this commodity,
 Makes it take head from ail indifferency,
 From all direction, purpose, course, intent :
 And this same bias, this commodity,
 This bawd, this broker, this all-changing word,
 Clapp'd on the outward eye of fickle France,
 Hath drawn him from his own determin'd aid,
 From a resolv'd and honourable war,
 To a most base and vile-concluded peace.—

And why rail I on this commodity ?
 But for because he hath not woo'd me yet.
 Not that I have the power to clutch¶ my hand,
 When his fair angels would salute my palm.
 But for my hand, as unattempted yet,
 Like a poor beggar, rattleth on the rich.
 Well, whiles I am a beggar, I will rail,
 And say,—there is no sin, but to be rich ;
 And being rich, my virtue then shall be,
 To say,—there is no vice, but beggary.
 Since kings break faith upon commodity,
 Gain, be my lord ! for I will worship thee !

[Exit.

* Mournful. † Advantage. ‡ Conceiv'd. § Deceiv'd.
 ¶ Pointed, balanced. ¶ Clasp.  Coyn

† Affected

KING JOHN.

I.
The French King's

R, and SALISBURY.

ed! gone to swear a [friends!
join'd! Gone to be and Blanch those

spoke, misheard;
y tale again:
at say, 'tis so:
e, for thy word
common man:
ve thee, man;
contrary.

thus frightening me,
e of fears; [fears;
and therefore full of
ect to fears;
to fears; [jest,

less, thou didst but
not take a truce,
emble all this day.
aking of thy head?
ly on my son?
upon that breast of lamentable rheum,

et o'er his bounds?
ners of thy words?
l thy former tale,
er thy tale be true.
eve, you think them

ove my saying true.
me to believe this

w to make me die;
counter so,
esperate men,
fall, and die.—

boy, then where art
[me?—

nd! what becomes of
t brook thy sight;
a most ugly man.
have I, good lady,

s by others done?
him itself so heinous
at speak of it. [is,
madam, be content.
d'st me be content,

by mother's womb,
and sightless; stains,
ewart, prodigious,
r, and eye-offending

would be content;
e thee; no, nor thou
nor deserve a crown.
thy birth, dear boy!
to make thee great:
at with lilies boast,
se: but fortune, O!
and won from thee;
th thine uncle John;
and hath pluck'd on

ct of sovereignty,
e bawd of theirs.

† Appearing.
‡ Portentous.

France is a bawd to fortune
That strumpet fortune, thou Tell me, thou fellow, is no
Envenom him with words
And leave those woes alone
Am bound to under-bear.

Sal. Pardon me, madam
I may not go without you Const. Thou may'st, thou
with thee:

I will instruct my sorrows
For grief is proud, and ma
To me, and to the state^a of Let kings assemble; for me
That no supporter but the
Can hold it up: here I am Here is my throne, bid kin
[She throws a

Enter King JOHN, King
BLANCH, ELINOR, BAST
Attendants.

K. Phi. 'Tis true, fair blessed day,
Ever in France shall be kept
To solemnize this day, the Stays in his course, and pl
Turning, with splendour o
The meagre cloddy earth
The yearly course, that br
Shall never see it but a ho
Const. A wicked day, a

What hath this day done
That it in golden letters sh
Among the high tides,† in Nay, rather, turn this day
This day of shame, oppress
Or, if it must stand still, I Pray, that their burdens n
Lest that their hopes prod
But on this day, let shame
No bargains break, that a
This day, all things begun
Yea, faith itself to hollow
K. Phi. By heaven, lud
cause
To curse the fair proceedi
Have I not pawn'd to you Const. You have begu
terfeit,
Resembling majesty; wh
and tried,
Proves valueless: You are You came in arms to spill
But now in arms you stren
The grappling vigour and Is cold in amity and paint
And our oppression bath Arm, arm, you heavens, a kings!

A widow cries; be husband
Let not the hours of this u
Wear out the day in peace
Set armed discord 'twixt t
Hear me, O, hear me!
Aust. Lady Constance, † Const. War! war! no pe
a war.

O Lymoges! O Austria!
That bloody spoil: Thou
thou coward;
Thou little valiant, great i Thou ever strong upon the Thou fortune's champion, †

^a Seated in state.

But when her humorous ladyship is by
To touch thee safety! thou art perjur'd too,
And sooth'st up greatness. What a fool art
thou, [swear,

A ramping fool; to brag, and stamp, and Upon my party! Thou cold-blooded slave,
Hast thou not spoke like thunder on my side?
Been sworn my soldier? bidding me depend Upon thy stars, thy fortune, and thy strength?
And dost thou now fall over to my foes?
Thou wear a lion's hide! doff^a it for shame,
And hang a calf's-skin on those recreant limbs.

Aust. O, that a man should speak those words to me!

Bast. And hang a calf's-skin on those recreant limbs.

Aust. Thou dar'st not say so, villain, for thy life.

Bast. And hang a calf's-skin on those re-
creant limbs.

K. John. We like not this; thou dost forget
thyself.

Enter PANDULPH.

K. Phi. Here comes the holy legate of the pope.

Pand. Hail, you anointed deputies of heaven!
To thee, king John, my holy errand is.
I Pandulph, of fair Milan cardinal,
And from pope Innocent the legate here,
Do, in his name, religiously demand,
Why thou against the church, our holy mother,
So wilfully dost spurn; and, force perforce,
Keep Stephen Langton, chosen archbishop
Of Canterbury, from that holy see?
This, in our foresaid holy father's name,
Pope Innocent, I do demand of thee.

K. John. What earthly name to interrogato-
ries,

Can task the free breath of a sacred king?
Thou canst not, cardinal, devise a name
So slight, unworthy, and ridiculous,
To charge me to an answer, as the pope.
Tell him this tale; and from the mouth of England,

Add thus much more,—That no Italian priest
Shall tithe or toll in our dominions;
But as we under heaven are supreme head,
So, under him, that great supremacy,
Where we do reign, we will alone uphold,
Without the assistance of a mortal hand:
So tell the pope; all reverence set apart,
To him, and his usurp'd authority.

K. Phi. Brother of England, you blaspheme
in this.

K. John. Though you, and all the kings of Christendom,
Are led so grossly by this meddling priest,
Dreading the curse that money may buy out;
And, by the merit of vile gold, dross, dust,
Purchase corrupted pardon of a man,
Who, in that sale, sells pardon from himself:
Though you, and all the rest, so grossly led,
This juggling witchcraft with revenue cherish;
Yet I, alone, alone do me oppose [foes.
Against the pope, and count his friends my Pand. Then, by the lawful power that I have,

Thou shalt stand curs'd, and excommunicate:
And blessed shall he be, that doth revolt
From his allegiance to an heretic;
And meritorious shall that hand be call'd,
Canonized, and worshipp'd as a saint,
That takes away by any secret course
Thy hateful life.

Const. O, lawful let it be,

a Do so.

That I have room with Rome to curse a while!
Good father cardinal, cry thou, Amen,
To my keen curses; for, without my wrong,
There is no tongue hath power to curse him
right.

Pand. There's law and warrant, lady, for my curse.

Const. And for mine too; when law can do no right,

Let it be lawful, that law bar no wrong:
Law cannot give my child his kingdom here;
For he, that holds his kingdom, holds the law;
Therefore, since law itself is perfect wrong,
How can the law forbid my tongue to curse?

Pand. Philip of France, on peril of a curse,
Let go the hand of that arch-heretic;
And raise the power of France upon his head,
Unless he do submit himself to Rome.

Eli. Look'st thou pale, France? do not let go thy hand.

Const. Look to that, devil! lest that France repent,

And, by disjoining hands, hell lose a soul.
Aust. King Philip, listen to the cardinal.

Bast. And hang a calf's-skin on his recreant limbs.

Aust. Well, rustian, I must pocket up these Because— [wrongs,

Bast. Your breeches best may carry them.

K. John. Philip, what say'st thou to the cardinal?

Const. What should he say, but as the cardinal?

Leo. Bethink you, father; for the difference
Is, purchase of a heavy curse from Rome,
Or the light loss of England for a friend:
Forego the easier.

Blanch. That's the curse of Rome.

Const. O Lewis, stand fast; the devil tempts thee here,

In likeness of a new untrimmed^a bride.
Blanch. The lady Constance speaks not from her faith,

But from her need.

Const. O, if thou grant my need,
Which only lives but by the death of faith,
That need must needs infer this principle,—
That faith would live again by death of need;
O, then, tread down my need, and faith mounts
up;

Keep my need up, and faith is trodden down.

K. John. The king is mov'd, and answers not to this.

Const. O, be remov'd from him, and answer
well.

Aust. Do so, king Philip; hang no more in doubt.

Bast. Hang nothing but a calf's-skin, most sweet lout.

K. Phi. I am perplex'd, and know not what
to say.

Pand. What can'st thou say, but will per-
plex thee more.

If thou stand excommunicate, and curs'd?

K. Phi. Good reverend father, make my person yours,

And tell me, how you would bestow yourself.
This royal hand and mine are newly knit;
And the conjunction of our inward souls
Married in league, coupled and link'd together

With all religious strength of sacred vows;
The latest breath that gave the sound of words,
Was deep-sworn faith, peace, amity, true love,

^a "When unadorn'd adorn'd the most."

Thompson's Astoria, 266.

Between our kingdoms, and our royal selves;
And even before this truce, but new before,—
No longer than we well could wash our hands,
To clap this royal bargain up of peace,— Heaven knows, they were besmear'd and over-stain'd [paint
With slaughter's pencil; where revenge did
The fearful difference of incensed kings:
And shall these hands, so lately purg'd of
blood,

So newly join'd in love, so strong in both,
Unyoke this seizure, and this kind regret?— Play fast and loose with faith? so jest with
heaven,

Make such unconstant children of ourselves,
As now again to snatch our palm from palm;
Unswear faith sworn; and on the marriage
Of smiling peace to march a bloody host, [bed
And make a riot on the gentle brow
Of true sincerity? O holy Sir,

My reverend father, let it not be so:
Out of your grace, devise, ordain, impose
Some gentle order; and then we shall be bless'd

To do your pleasure, and continue friends.

Pand. All form is formless, order orderless,
Save what is opposite to England's love.
Therefore, to arms! be champion of our church!
Or let the church, our mother, breathe her
curse,

A mother's curse, on her revolting son.
France, thou may'st hold a serpent by the
A cased lion by the mortal paw, [tongue,
A fasting tiger safer by the tooth,
Than keep in peace that hand which thou dost hold.

K. Phi. I may disjoin my hand, but not my faith.

Pand. So mak'st thou faith an enemy to
faith;

And, like a civil war, set'st oath to oath,
Thy tongue against thy tongue. O, let thy vow
First made to heaven, first be to heaven perform'd;

That is, to be the champion of our church!
What since thou swor'st, is sworn against thy-
And may not be performed by thyself: [self,
For that, which thou hast sworn to do amiss,
Is not amiss when it is truly done;
And being not done, where doing tends to ill,
The truth is then most done not doing it:

The better act of purposes mistook
Is, to mistake again; though indirect,
Yet indirection thereby grows direct, [fire,
And falsehood falsehood cures; as fire cools
Within the scorched veins of one new burn'd.
It is religion, that doth make vows kept;
But thou hast sworn against religion;
By what thou swear'st, against the thing thou
swear'st;

And mak'st an oath the surety for thy truth
Against an oath: The truth thou art unsure
To swear, swear only not to be forsworn;
Else, what a mockery should it be to swear?
But thou dost swear only to be forsworn;
And most forsworn, to keep what thou dost swear.

Therefore, thy latter vows, against thy first,
Is in thyself rebellion to thyself:
And better conquest never canst thou make,
Than arm thy constant and thy nobler parts
Against those giddy loose suggestions:
Upon which better part our prayers come in,
If thou vouchsafe them: but, if not, then know,
The peril of our curses light on thee;

* Exchange of salutation.

So heavy, as thou shalt not shake them off.
But, in despair, die under their black weight.

Aust. Rebellion, flat rebellion!

Bast. Will't not be?

Will not a calf's-skin stop that mouth of thine?

Lew. Father, to arms!

Blanch. Upon thy wedding day?

Against the blood that thou hast married?

What, shall our feast be kept with slaughter'd men? [drums,—

Shall braying trumpets, and loud churlish
Clamours of hell,—be measures* to our pomp?
O husband, hear me!—ah, alack, how new
Is husband in my mouth!—even for that name,
Which till this time my tongue did ne'er pro-
Upon my knee I beg, go not to arms [nounce, Against mine uncle.

Const. O, upon my knee,
Made hard with kneeling, I do pray to thee,
Thou virtuous Dauphin, alter not the doom
Fore-thought by heaven.

Blanch. Now shall I see thy love; What motive may

Be stronger with thee than the name of wife?

Const. That which upholdeth him that thee upholds, [honour!

His honour: O, thine honour, Lewis, thine

Lew. I muse,† your majesty doth seem so cold,

When such profound respects do pull you on.

Pand. I will denounce a curse upon his head.

K. Phi. Thou shalt not need:—England, I'll fall from thee.

Const. O fair return of banish'd majesty!

Eli. O foul revolt of French inconstancy!

K. John. France, thou shalt rue this hour within this hour.

Bast. Old time the clock-setter, that beld sexton time,

Is it as he will? well then, France shall rue.

Blanch. The sun's o'ercast with blood: Fair day, adieu!

Which is the side that I must go withal?

I am with both: each army hath a hand;

And, in their rage, I having hold of both,

They whirl asunder, and dismember me.

Husband, I cannot pray that thou may'st win;

Uncle, I needs must pray that thou may'st lose;

Father, I may not wish the fortune thine;

Grandam, I will not wish thy wishes thrive:

Whoever wins, on that side shall I lose;

Assured loss, before the match be play'd.

Lew. Lady, with me; with me thy fortune
lies.

Blanch. There where my fortune lives, there my life dies.

K. John. Cousin, go draw our puissance together.— [Exit BASTARD.

France, I am burn'd up with inflaming wrath;
A rage, whose heat hath this condition,

Than nothing can allay, nothing but blood,

The blood, and dearest-valu'd blood, of France.

K. Phi. Thy rage shall burn thee up, and thou shalt turn

To ashes, ere our blood shall quench that fire:

Look to thyself, thou art in jeopardy.

K. John. No more than he that threatens.—To arms lets he! [Exit.

SCENE II.—The same.—Plains near Angiers.

Alarums, Excursions.—Enter the BASTARD, with AUSTRIA's head.

Bast. Now, by my life, this day grows wor-drous hot;

* Music for dancing.

† Wonder.

; Force.

Some airy devil hovers in the sky,
And pours down mischief. Austria's head lie
While Philip breathes. [there.]

Enter KING JOHN, ARTHUR, and HUBERT.

K. John. Hubert, keep this boy:—Philip,
make up:

My mother is assailed in our tent,
And ta'en, I fear.

Bast. My lord, I rescu'd her;
Her highness is in safety, fear you not:
But on, my liege: for very little pains
Will bring this labour to a happy end.

[Exeunt.]

SCENE III.—The same.

March; Exeunt; Retreat. Enter
JOHN, ELINOR, ARTHUR, the BASTARD, MAT, and Lords.

K. John. So shall it be; your grace stay behind. [To
So strongly guarded.—Cousin, look on

My grandam loves thee, and thy uncle
As dear be to thee as thy father was.

Arth. O, thus will make my mother
grief.

K. John. Cousin, [To the BASTARD] I
England; haste before:

And, ere our coming, see thou shake
Off boarding abbots; angels' imprison
Set thou at liberty the fat ribs of peas
Must by the hungry now be fed upon.

Let our commission in his utmost force, Bast. Bell, book, and candle shall not drive me back,

When gold and silver beckons me to come on.
I leave your highness.—Grandam, I will pray
If ever I remember to be holy,)

For your fair safety, so I kiss your hand.
Eli. Farewell, my gentle cousin.

K. John. Cox, farewell. [Exit BASTARD.]

Eli. Come hither, little kinsman, hark, a word. [She takes ARTHUR aside.]

K. John. Come hither, Hubert. O my gentle
Hubert,

We owe thee much; within this wall of flesh
There is a soul, counts thee her creditor,

And with advantage means to pay thy love:
And, my good friend, thy voluntary oath
Lives in this bosom, dearly cherished.

Give me thy hand. I had a thing to say,—
But I will fit it with some better time.

By heaven, Hubert, I am almost ashamed
To say what good respect I have of thee.

Hub. I am much bounden to your majesty.

K. John. Good friend, thou hast no cause to say so yet: [slow,

But thou shalt have; and creep time ne'er so
Yet it shall come, for me to do thee good.

I had a thing to say,—But let it go
The sun is in the heaven, and the proud day,
Attended with the pleasures of the world,
Is all too wanton, and too full of gawds,
To give me audience:—If the midnight bell
Did, with his iron tongue and brazen mouth,
Sound one unto the drowsy race of night;
If this same were a church-yard where we stand,

And thou possessed with a thousand wrongs;
Or if that surly spirit, melancholy,
Had bak'd thy blood, and made it heavy, thick;
(Which, else, runs tickling up and down the veins,

Making that idiot, laughter, keep men's eyes,

And strain their ch
A passion hateful t
Or if that thou cou
Hear me without th
Without a tongue, [sing]
Without eyes, ears, [sing]
words;

Then, in despite of bro
I would into thy bosom
But ah, I will not:— [sing] I lo
And, by my troth, I ink, the Hub. So well, the what you
take,
Though that my dea were ad
By heaven, I'd do't.

K. John. Do not I know, th
look .. Hubert, Hub

you young boy: I'll tell thee
a very serpent in my whoso'er this foot
lies before me. Dost thou
u art his keeper.

Hub. And I will keep him so,
That he shall not offend your majesty.

K. John. Death.
Hub. My lord?

K. John. A grave.
Hub. He shall not live.

K. John. Enough.
I could be merry now: Hubert, I love thee;
Well, I'll not say what I intend for thee:
Remember.—Madam, fare you well:
I'll send those powers o'er to your majesty.

Eli. My blessing go with thee!
K. John. For England, cousin:
Hubert shall be your man, attend on you
With all true duty.—On toward Calais, ho!
[Exeunt.]

And strain their ch
A passion hateful t
Or if that thou cou
Hear me without th
Without a tongue, [sing]
Without eyes, ears, [sing]
words;

Then, in despite of bro
I would into thy bosom
But ah, I will not:— [sing] I lo
And, by my troth, I ink, the
Hub. So well, the what you
take,
Though that my dea were ad
By heaven, I'd do't.

K. John. Do not I know, th
look .. Hubert, Hub

you young boy: I'll tell thee
a very serpent in my
whoso'er this foot
lies before me. Dost thou
u art his keeper.

Hub. And I will keep him so,
That he shall not offend your majesty.

K. John. Death.
Hub. My lord?

K. John. A grave.
Hub. He shall not live.

K. John. Enough.
I could be merry now: Hubert, I love thee;
Well, I'll not say what I intend for thee:
Remember.—Madam, fare you well:
I'll send those powers o'er to your majesty.

Eli. My blessing go with thee!
K. John. For England, cousin:
Hubert shall be your man, attend on you
With all true duty.—On toward Calais, ho!
[Exeunt.]

SCENE IV.—The same.—The French King's Tent.

Enter KING PHILIP, LEWIS, PANDULPH, and Attendants.

K. Phi. So, by a roaring tempest on the
A whole armada; of convicted sail; [blood,
Is scatter'd and disjoin'd from fellowship.

Pand. Courage and comfort! all shall yet go
well.

K. Phi. What can go well, when we have run so ill?

Are we not beaten? Is not Angiers lost?
Arthur ta'en prisoner? divers dear friends slain?

And bloody England into England gone,
O'erbearing interruption, spite of France?

Lew. What he hath won, that hath he fort-
So hot a speed with such advice dispos'd, [fied:
Such temperate order in so fierce a cause,
Doth want example: Who hath read, or heard,
Of any kindred action like to this?

K. Phi. Well could I bear that England had this praise,
So we could find some pattern of our shame.

Enter CONSTANCE.

Look, who comes here! a grave unto a soul;
Holding the eternal spirit, against her will,
In the vile prison of afflicted breath—
I pry thee, lady, go away with me.

Const. Lo, now! now see the issue of your
peace!

K. Phi. Patience, good lady! comfort, gentle Constance!

* Conception.
† Fleet of war.

‡ Joined.
§ Overcome.

KING JOHN.

Counsel, all redress,
 Counsel, true redress,
 Sweet death!
 And rottenness!
 Lasting night,
 Perity,
 Bones;
 Vaulty brows;
 In thy household
 With fulsome dust,
 Thyself:
 Will think thou
 Misery's love,

Peace.
 Having breath to Mouth!
 In the thunder's
 Shake the world;
 All anatomy,
 Feeble voice,
 Location.
 Madness, and not

To belie me so;
 As mine;
 As Geoffrey's wife;
 He is lost:
 Heaven, I were!
 Forget myself:
 Could I forget!—
 Make me mad,
 Cardinal;
 Able of grief,
 Reason
 These woes,
 Myself:
 My son;
 Wits were he:
 Well I feel
 Calamity.
 Ses: O, what love

Her hairs!
 Drop hath fallen,
 And wiry friends
 Able grief;
 Ful loves,
 Will.
 As.
 And wherefore will

, and cried aloud,
 Accm my son,
 Their liberty!
 ty,
 To their bonds,
 Prisoner.—
 Heard you say,
 W our friends in

Boy again;
 n, the first male
 y suspire,† child,
 uss creature born.
 ent my bud,
 From his cheek,
 A ghost;
 He's fit;
 So again,
 Court of heaven
 ore never, never Hur more.

† Gracful.

Pand. You hold too heinous
 grief.
 Const. He talks to me, that's
 K. Phi. You are as fond of g
 child.
 Const. Grief fills the room
 child,
 Lies in his bed, walks up and Puts on his pretty looks, repea
 Remembers me of all his gracio
 Stuffs out his vacant garments
 Then, have I reason to be fond Fare you well: had you such a
 I could give better comfort tha
 I will not keep this form upon

[Tearing off
 When there is such disorder in O lord, my boy, my Arthur, m
 My life, my joy, my food, my a My widow-comfort, and my

K. Phi. I fear some outrage,
 her.
 Lew. There's nothing in it make me joy:
 Life is as tedious as a twice-to Vexing the dull ear of a drows
 And bitter shame hath spoil'd th
 taste,
 That it yields naught, but sha
 ness.

Pand. Before the curing of a
 Even in the instant of repair as
 The fit is strongest; evils, that
 On their departure most of all.
 What have you lost by losing o

Lew. All days of glory, joy,
 Pand. If you have won it, cert
 No, no: when fortune means
 good,
 She looks upon them with a thi
 'Tis strange, to think how m
 hath lost

In this which he accounts so ch
 Are not you griev'd, that Art
 soner?

Lew. As heartily, as he is gh Pand. Your mind is all as y
 blood.

Now hear me speak, with a pro
 For even the breath of what I Shall blow each dust, each str
 Out of the path which shall dirt
 Thy foot to England's throne;
 mark.

John hath seiz'd Arthur; and:
 That, whiles warm life plays i
 veins,

The misplac'd John should ent
 One minute, nay, one quiet bre
 A sceptre, snatch'd with an un
 Must be as boisterously mainta
 And he, that stands upon a slig
 Makes nice of no vile hold to st
 That John may stand, then Art
 So be it, for it cannot be but so.

Lew. But what shall I gain
 thur's fall?

Pand. You, in the right of la
 wife,
 May then make all the claim th

Lew. And lose it, life and all,

Pand. How green are you, as old world!
 John lays you plots; the times
 For he, that steeps his safety in Shall find but bloody safety, as stilly born, shall cool the hearts

people, and freeze up their zeal;
to small advantage shall step forth,
a reign, but they will cherish it:
exhalation in the sky,
nature, no distemper'd day,
wind, no custom'd event,
ill pluck away his natural cause,
can meteora, prodigies, and signs,
portages, and tongues of heaven,
ouncing vengeance upon John.
y be, he will not touch young Ar-
u's life,
nself safe in his prisonment.

Sir, when he shall hear of your prouch,
ng Arthur be not gone already,
it news he dies. and then the hearts
people shall revolt from him,
be lips of unacquainted change;
long matter of revolt, and wrath,
bloody fingers' ends of John.
I see this hurly all on foot;
hat better matter breeds for you,
e nam'd!—The bastard Faulcondge
England, ransacking the church,
charity: If but a dozen French in arms, they would be as a call a thousand English to their side;
in snow, tumbled about,
as a mountain. O noble Dauphin,
to the king: 'Tis wonderful,
be wrought out of their discontent:
seir souls are topfull of offence,
d go; I will whet on the king.
ng reasons make strong actions:
t us go;
ay, the king will not say, no.

[Exeunt.]

ACT IV.

—Northampton.—A Room in the Castle.

HUBERT and two ATTENDANTS.

at me these irons hot: and, look
e stand
ayas: when I strike my foot
noon of the ground, rush forth:
the boy, which you shall find with hair: be heedful: hence, and watch.
I hope, your warrant will bear out
deed.
cleanly scruples! Fear not you:
k to't.— [Exeunt ATTENDANTS.]
come forth; I have to say with you.

Enter ARTHUR.

od morrow, Hubert.
od morrow, little prince.
little prince (having so great a title prince,) as may be.—You are sad.
ood, I have been merrier.
try on me!
so body should be sad but I:
mber, when I was in France,
lemen would be as sad as night,
astonness. By my christendom,
out of prison, and kept sheep,
as merry as the day is long;
ould b' here, but that I doubt
tractises more harm to me, d of me, and I of him:

a Duponty.

Is it my fault that I was Geoffrey's son?
No, indeed, is't not; And I would to heaven,
I were your son, so you would love me, Hubert.

Hub. If I talk to him, with his innocent prate
He will awake my mercy, which lies dead:
Therefore I will be sudden, and despatch.

[Aside]

Arth. Are you sick, Hubert? you look pale
to-day:

In sooth, I would you were a little sick;
That I might sit all night, and watch with you:
I warrant, I love you more than you do me.

Hub. His words do take possession of my bosom.—

Read here, young Arthur. [Showing a paper.]
How now, foolish rheum! [Aside.]

Turning spiteous torture out of door!
I must be brief; lest resolution drop
Out at mine eyes, in tender womanish tears.—
Can you not read it? is it not fair writ?

Arth. Too fairly, Hubert, for so foul effect:
Must you with hot irons burn out both mine
eyes?

Hub. Young boy, I must.

Arth. And will you?

Hub. And I will.

Arth. Have you the heart? When your head did but ache,

I knit my handkerchief about your brows,
(The best I had, a princess wrought it me,)
And I did never ask it you again:
And with my hand at midnight held your head;
And, like the watchful minutes to the hour,
Still and anon cheer'd up the heavy time;
Saying, What luck you? and, Where lies your
grief?

Or, What good love may I perform for you?
Many a poor man's son would have lain still,
And ne'er have spoke a loving word to you;
But you at your sick service had a prince.
Nay, you may think, my love was crafty love,
And call it, cunning; Do, an if you will:
If heaven be pleas'd that you must use me ill,
Why, then you must.—Will you put out mine
eyes?

These eyes, that never did, nor never shall,
So much as frown on you?

Hub. I have sworn to do it;

And with hot irons must I burn them out.

Arth. Ah, none, but in this iron age, would
do it!

The iron of itself, though heat red-hot,
Approaching near these eyes, would drink my
And quench his fiery indignation, [tears,]
Even in the matter of mine innocence:
Nay, after that, consume away in rust,
But for containing fire to harm mine eye.
Are you more stubborn-hard than hammer'd iron?

An if an angel should have come to me,
And told me, Hubert should put out mine eyes,
I would not have believ'd no tongue, but Hubert's.

Hub. Come forth.

[Stamps]

Re-enter ATTENDANTS, with Cord, Irons, &c.

Do as I bid you do.

Arth. O, save me, Hubert, save me! my eyes are out,

Even with the fierce looks of these bloody men.

Hub. Give me the iron, I say, and bind him
here.

Arth. Alas, what need you be so bold? rourough?

I will not struggle, I will stand stone-still.

KING JOHN.

ert, let me not be

ve these men away,
amb;
nor speak a word,
gerly:
ay, and I'll forgive
put me to. [you,
let me alone with

d to be from such a rcunt ATTENDANTS.
ld away my friend;
a gentle heart:—
is compassion may

ce yourself.
y?
your eyes.
ere were but a mote

wand'ring hair,
cious sense!
hings are boist'rous

ls seem horrible.
c? go to, hold your

rance of a brace of

t for a pair of eyes:
ic; let me not, Hut out my tongue, (), spare mine eyes;

to look on you!
ment is cold,

h; the fire is dead

be us'd
See else yourself;
urning coal;
down his spirit out,
hes on his head.

I can revive it, boy.
a will but make it

[Hubert:
your proceedings,
arkle in your eyes,
ell'd to fight,
th tarret him on.
se to do me wrong,
do lack
, and iron, extends,
lacking uses.
will not touch thine

me uncle owes:;
purpose, boy,
burn them out.

ike Hubert! all this [while

Adieu;
but you are dead:
with false reports.
ubtless, and secure,
h of all the world,

nk you, Hubert.
Go closely in with

for thee. [Exeunt.

† Set him on.
‡ Secretly.

SCENE II.—The same.—A
the Palace.

Enter King JOHN, crown'd; P
BURY, and other Lords. Th
State.

K. John. Here once again v
crown'd,

And look'd upon, I hope, wit
Pcm. This once again, bui ness pleas'd,

Was once superfluous: you v
And that high royalty was ne
The faiths of men ne'er stain
Fresh expectation troubled n
With any long'd-for change,

Sal. Therefore, to be posse
To guard* a title that was ric
To gild refined gold, to paint
To throw a perfume on the vi
To smooth the ice, or add ano
Unto the rainbow, or with taj
To seek the beauteous eye o
Is wasteful, and ridiculous e

Pcm. But that your royal p
done,

This act is as an ancient tale
And, in the last repeating, tr
Being urged at a time unseas

Sal. In this, the antique and
Of plain old form is much dia
And, like a shifted wind unto
It makes the course of though Startles and frights considera Makes sound opinion sick, and
For putting on so new a fashi

Pcm. When workmen strive
well,

They do confound their skill in
And, oftentimes, excusing of Doth make the fault the wors
As patches, set upon a little Discredit more in hiding of th
Than did the fault before it w

Sal. To this effect, before
crown'd,

We breath'd our counsel: be
To overbear it; and we are a Since all and every part of w
Doth make a stand at what yo

K. John. Some reasons of t
nation

I have possess'd you with,
And more, more strong, (wh
fear,)

I shall induce you with: Mean
What you would have refor
well;

And well shall you perceive,
I will both hear and grant yo Pcm. Then I, (as one that a

these,

To sound the purposes of all Both for myself and them, (be Your safety, for the which my Bend their best studies,) bear
The enfranchisement of Ari strait

Doth move the murmuring lip
To break into this dangerous
If, what in rest you have, in r
Why then your fears, (which, tend

The steps of wrong,) should m

* Lacc. † Decorate. ‡ U ‡ Publish.

be kinman, and to choke his days
 with ignorance, and deny his youth advantage of good exercise?
 His enemies may not have this pensions, let it be our suit,
 were bid us ask his liberty;
 our goods we do no further ask,
 upon our weal, on you depending,
 your weal, he have his liberty.
 Let it be so, I do commit his youth

Enter HUBERT.

Hubert.—Hubert, what news with
 us!

Is this the man should do the bloody
 deed;

I his warrant to a friend of mine.

Of a wicked heinous fault

In eye that close aspect of his

The mood of a much-troubled breast;

Forfeitedly believe, 'tis done,

So fear'd he had a charge to do.

The colour of the king doth come and

His purpose and his conscience, [go,

His twist two dreadful battles set.

It is so ripe, it needs must break.

And, when it breaks, I fear, will issue

hence

corruption of a sweet child's death.

1. We cannot bold mortality's strong

and:—

Is, although my will to give is living,

which you demand is gone and dead

is, Arthur is deceas'd to night.

And, we fear'd, his sickness was past

me.

And we heard how near his death

it was,

and child himself felt he was sick:

1. He answer'd, either here, or hence.

2. Why do you bend such solemn rows on me?

3. I bear the shears of destiny?

4. Commandment on the pulse of life?

5. Is apparent foul-play, and 'tis shame,

5. Itness should so grossly offer it:

6. It is your game! and so farewell.

7. Nay yet, lord Salisbury, I'll go with

thee.

8. The inheritance of this poor child, kingdom of a forced grave. [1. Is,

2. Which ow'd* the breath of all this

3. Of it doth hold, Bad world the while! [out

4. Not be thus borne: this will break

5. Sorrows, and ere long, I doubt,

[Exit Lords.

6. They burn in indignation; I resent,

7. No sure foundation set on blood;

8. A life achiev'd by others' death.—

Enter a MESSENGER.

1. I say thou hast; Where is that blood,

2. We seen inhabit in those cheeks?

3. Why clears not without a storm

4. Thy weather:—How goes all in

France?

5. From France to England.—Never such

6. A power

7. Foreign preparation,

8. Set in the body of a land!

9. Of your speed is learn'd by them;

10. As you should be told they do prepare,

11. As come, that they are all arriv'd.

12. And, that they are all arriv'd.

K. John. O, where hath our intelligence been drunk? [care?

Where hath it slept? Where is my mother's

That such an army could be drawn in France,

And she not hear of it?

Mess. My liege, her ear

Is stopp'd with dust; the first of April, died

Your noble mother: And, as I hear, my lord,

The lady Constance in a frenzy died [tongue

Three days before; but thus from rumour's

I idly heard; if true or false, I know not.

K. John. Withhold thy speed, dreadful occasion!

O, make a league with me, till I have pleas'd

My discontented peers!—What! mother dead?

How wildly then walks my estate in France!—

Under whose conduct came those powers of

France,

That thou for truth giv'st out, are landed here?

Mess. Under the Dauphin.

Enter the BASTARD and PETER of Pomfret.

K. John. Thou hast made me giddy [world

With these ill tidings. Now, what says the

To your proceedings? do not seek to stuff

My head with more ill news, for it is full.

Bast. But, if you be afeard to hear the worst,

Then let the worst, unheard, fall on your head.

K. John. Hear with me, cousin; For I was

amaz'd*

Under the tide: but now I breathe again

Aloft the flood; and can give audience

To any tongue, speak it of what it will.

Bast. How I have sped among the clergy-

men,

The sums I have collected shall express.

But as I travelled hither through the land,

I find the people strangely fantasied;

Possess'd with rumours, full of idle dreams;

Not knowing what they fear, but full of fear:

And here's a prophet, that I brought with me

From forth the streets of Pomfret, whom I

found

With many hundreds treading on his heels;

To whom he sang, in rude harsh-sounding

rhymes,

That, ere the next Ascension-day at noon,

Your highness should deliver up your crown.

K. John. Thou idle dreamer, wherefore didst

thou so?

Peter. Foreknowing that the truth will fall out so.

K. John. Hubert away with him; imprison

him;

And on that day at noon, whereon, he says,

I shall yield up my crown, let him be hang'd.

Deliver him to safety,† and return,

For I must use thee.—O my gentle cousin,

[Exit HUBERT, with PETER.

Hear'st thou the news abroad, who are arriv'd?

Bast. The French, my lord; men's mouths are full of it.

Besides, I met lord Bigot, and lord Salisbury,

(With eyes as red as new-enkindled fire,)

And others more, going to seek the grave

Of Arthur, who, they say, is kill'd to night

On your suggestion.

K. John. Gentle kinsman, go,

And thrust thyself into their companies:

I have a way to win their loves again;

Bring them before me.

Bast. I will seek them out.

K. John. Nay, but make haste; the better foot before.—

O, let me have no subject enemies,

KING JOHN.

affright my towns
ent invasion!—
to thy heels;
on them to me again.
time shall teach me
[Exit.
priteful noble gentle-
haps, shall need
re and the peers;
t, my liege. [Exit.
ad!

BERT.
y, five moons were ld whirl about
ous motion.
lams, in the streets
erously: {mouths:
s common in their
to, they shake their
in the ear; {heads,
th gripe the hearer's
les fearful action,
n nods, with rolling
his hammer, thus,
the anvil cool,
ung a tailor's news;
measure in his hand,
ch his nimble haste contrary feet,) warlike French,
rank'd in Kent:
t officer
of Arthur's death.
thou to possess me
ung Arthur's death?
him: I had mighty
[him.
hadst none to kill
why, did you not e of kings, to be at-[rant humours for a war-
house of life:
thority,
now the meaning
hen, perchance, it
advise'd respect.*
and seal for what I
last account 'twixt
his hand and seal
nation!
s to do ill deeds,
adest not thou been ature mark'd, [by,
a deed of shame,
into my mind:
morr'd aspect,
villany,
in danger,
of Arthur's death;
to a king,
destroy a prince.

† Observed.

K. John. Hadst thou but al-
made a pause,
When I spake darkly what I
Or turn'd an eye of doubt up
As bid me tell my tale in ex-Deep shame had struck me
break off,
And those thy fears might ha-
But thou didst understand me
And didst in signs again par-
Yea, without stop, didst let t
And, consequently, thy rude
The deed, which both our tos-
name,—
Out of my sight, and never s-
My nobles leave me; and my Even at my gates, with ranks c-Nay, in the body of this flesh
This kingdom, this confine of Hostility and civil tumult rais-Between my conscience, a Hub. Arm you against you
I'll make a peace between yo Young Arthur is alive: This Is yet a maiden and an innoc-
Not painted with the crimson
Within this bosom never ente
The dreadful motion of a mu-
And you have slander'd natu-
Which, howsoever rude exter-
Is yet the cover of a fairer mi-
Than to be butcher of an innoc-K. John. Doth Arthur live to the peers,
Throw this report on their im-
And make them tame to their Forgive the comment that my Upon thy feature; for my rag-
And foul imaginary eyes of Presented thee more hideous
O, answer not; but to my clo-
The angry lords, with all exp-
I conjure thee but slowly; ru-
SCENE III.—The same.—E-
Enter ARTHUR, on th-Arth. The wall is high; and
down:—
Good ground, be pitiful, and There's few, or none, do know
This ship-boy's semblance h-
I am afraid; and yet I'll vent
If I get down, and do not bre-
I'll find a thousand shifts to g-
As good to die, and go, as di-
O me! my uncle's spirit is in Heaven take my soul, and E-
bones!
Enter PEMBROKE, SALISBURY
Sal. Lords, I will meet himund's-Bury;
It is our safety, and we must
This gentle offer of the periles
Pem. Who brought that leti-
dinal?
Sal. The count Melun, a
France;
Whose private with me,† of the
Is much more general than th-
Big. To-morrow morning
then.

* His own body. † Expedition.

is, rather than not forward: for 'twill be [stage] journey, lands, or e'er we meet.

Enter the BASTARD.

Once more to-day will meet, discom-
p'nd' lands! [straight.

E. by me, requests your presence to king hath disposess'd himself of not like his this bastained cloak [us;
pure honour, nor attend the foot
run the print of blood where-e'er it
walks:

and tell him so; we know the worst.
What'er you think, good words, I think, were best.

if grief, and not our manners, reason
us.

but there is little reason in your grief;
a, 'twere reason, you had manners
us.

is, Sir, impatience hath his privilege.
The true; to hurt his master, no man
do.

is in the prison: What is he lies here?

[Seeing ANTHONY.
death, made proud with pure and glorious beauty]

had not a hole to hide this deed.

under, as hating what himself hath

it open, to urge an revenge. [dona.

r, when he deem'd this beauty to a

sure,

too precious-princely for a grave.

Richard, what think you? Have you seen read, or heard? or could you think?

a almost think, although you see,

do see? could thought, without this object,

is another? This is the very top,

it, the crest, or crest unto the crest,

r's arms: this is the bloodiest shame,

not savag'ry, the vilest stroke,

wall-ey'd wrath, or staring rage,

l to the tears of soft remorse.†

all murders past do stand excus'd in so sole, and so unmatchable, [this:

: a holiness, a purity,

t-unboughten sin of time;

s a deadly bloodied but a just,

l by this heinous spectacle.

t is a damned and a bloody work;

less action of a heavy hand,

be the work of any hand.

that it be the work of any hand!—

kind of light, what would ensue:

hateful work of Hubert's hand;

ice, and the purpose, of the king:—

no obedience I forbid my soul,

before this ruin of sweet life,

thing to his breathless excellence

me of a vow, a holy vow;

taste the pleasures of the world,

be infected with delight,

dreamt with ease and idleness,

e set a glory to this hand,†

it the worship of revenge.

ig. Our souls religiously confirm thy

words.

Enter HUNTER.

ords, I am hot with haste in seeking

on:

sth live; the king hath sent for you.

rumour. † Fly.

hould be dead; a glory is the circle of rays

with the heads of men in pictures.

Sol. O, he is bold, and laughs not at
death:—

Arise, thou hateful villain, get thee gone!

Hub. I am no villain.

Sol. Must I rob the law?

[Drawing his sword,

Best. Your sword is bright, Sir; put it up

again.

Sol. Not till I sheath it in a murderer's side.

Hub. Stand back, lord Salisbury, stand back,

I say; [years:

By heaven, I think, my sword's as sharp as

I would not have you, lord, forget yourself,

Nor tempt the danger of my true defence;

Last I, by marking of your rage, forget

Your worth, your greatness, and nobility.

Big. Out, duncull! dar'st thou leave a nobleman?

Hub. Not for my life: but yet I dare defend

My innocent life against an emperor.

Sol. Then art a murderer.

Hub. Do not prove me so;† [thine,

Yet, I am none: Whose tongue see'st speak

Not truly speaks; who speaks not truly, lies.

Pem. Cut him to pieces.

Best. Keep the peace, I say.

Sol. Stand by, or I shall gall you, Faulconbridge.

Best. Thou wert better gall the devil, Salisbury:

If thou but frowns on me, or stir thy foot,

Or teach thy hasty spleen to do me shame,

I'll strike thee dead. Put up thy sword be-

time;

Or I'll so maul you and your toasting-iron,

That you shall think the devil is come from hell.

Big. What wilt thou do, renowned Faulcon-

Second a villain, and a murderer? [bridge:

Hub. Lord Bigot, I am none.

Big. Who kill'd this prince?

Hub. 'Tis not an hour since I left him well:

I honour'd him, I lov'd him; and will weep

My date of life out, for his sweet life's loss.

Sol. Trust not those cunning waters of his

eyes,

For villany is not without such rheum;‡

And he, long traded in it, makes it seem

Like rivers of remorse and innocence.

Away, with me, all you whose souls abhor

The uncleanly savours of a slaughter-house,

For I am stifled with this smell of sin.

Big. Away, toward Bury, to the Dauphin

there!

Pem. There, tell the king, he may inquire us

out. [Exeunt Lords.

Best. Here's a good world!—Knew you of this fair work?

Beyond the infinite and boundless reach

Of mercy, if thou didst this deed of death,

Art thou damn'd, Hubert.

Hub. Do but hear me, Sir.

Best. Ha! I'll tell thee what;

Thou art damn'd as black—say, nothing is so

black; [cifer:

Thou art more deep damn'd than prince La-

There is not yet so ugly a head of hell!

As thou shalt be, if thou didst kill this child.

Hub. Upon my soul,—

Best. If thou didst but consent

To this most cruel act, do but despair,

And, if thou want'st a cord, the smallest thread

That ever spider twisted from her womb

Will serve to strangle thee; a rush will be

A beam to hang thee on; or would'st thou drown thyself,

o Honest. † By compelling me to tell you.

‡ Moisture. † Fly.

Put but a little water in a spoon,
And it shall be as all the ocean,
Enough to stifle such a villain up.—
I do suspect thee very grievously.

Hub. If I in act, consent, or sin of thought
Be guilty of the stealing that sweet breath
Which was embounded in this beauteous clay,
Let hell want pains enough to torture me!
I left him well.

Bast. Go, bear him in thine arms.—
I am amaz'd,* methinks; and lose my way
Among the thorns and dangers of this world.—
How easy dost thou take all England up!
From forth this morsel of dead royalty,
The life, the right, and truth of all this realm
Is fled to heaven; and England now is left
To tug and scramble, and to part by the teeth
The unow'd† interest of proud-swelling state.
Now, for the bare-pick'd bone of majesty,
Doth dogged war bristle his angry crest,
And snarleth in the gentle eyes of peace:
Now powers from home, and discontents at
home,
Meet in one line; and vast confusion waits
(As doth a raven on a sick-fallen beast,)
The imminent decay of wrested pomp.
Now happy he, whose cloak and cincture‡ can Hold out this tempest. Bear away that child,
And follow me with speed; I'll to the king:
A thousand businesses are brief in hand,
And heaven itself doth frown upon the land.
[Exeunt.]

ACT V.

SCENE I.—The same.—A Room in the Palace.

Enter King JOHN, PANDULPH with the Crown, and Attendants.

K. John. Thus have I yielded up into your hand
The circle of my glory.

Pand. Take again

[Giving JOHN the Crown.]

From this my hand, as holding of the pope,
Your sovereign greatness and authority.

K. John. Now keep your holy word: go meet the French;

And from his holiness use all your power
To stop their marches, 'fore we are inflam'd.
Our discontented counties do revolt;
Our people quarrel with obedience;
Swearing allegiance, and the love of soul,
To stranger blood, to foreign royalty.
This inundation of mistemper'd humour
Rests by you only to be qualified.
Then pause not; for the present time's so sick,
That present medicine must be minister'd,
Or overthrow incurable ensues.

Pand. It was my breath that blew this tempest up,
Upon your stubborn usage of the pope:
But, since you are a gentle convertite,§
My tongue shall hush again this storm of war,
And make fair weather in your blustering land.
On this Ascension-day, remember well,
Upon your oath of service to the pope,
Go I to make the French lay down their arms.
[Exit.]

K. John. Is this Ascension-day? Did not the prophet
Say, that, before Ascension-day at noon,
My crown I should give off? Even so I have:
I did suppose, it should be on constraint;
But, heaven be thank'd, it is but voluntary.

Enter the BASTARD.

Bast. All Kent hath yielded; nothing there holds out,
But Dover castle: London hath receiv'd,
Like a kind host, the Dauphin and his powers:
Your nobles will not hear you, but are gone
To offer service to your enemy;
And wild amazement hurries up and down
The little number of your doubtful friends.

K. John. Would not my lords return to me
again,
After they heard young Arthur was alive?

Bast. They found him dead, and cast him
the streets;
An empty casket, where the jewel of life
By some damn'd hand was robb'd and ta'en
away.

K. John. That villain Hubert told me, he did
live.

Bast. So, on my soul, he did, for aught he knew. [sad?]

But wherefore do you droop? why look you
Be great in act, as you have been in thought;
Let not the world see fear, and sad distrust,
Govern the motion of a kingly eye:
Be stirring as the time; be fire with fire;
Threaten the threat'ner, and outface the brow
(Of bragging horror: so shall inferior eyes,
That borrow their behaviours from the great,
Grow great by your example, and put on
The dauntless spirit of resolution.

Away; and glister like the god of war,
When he intendeth to become the field:
Show boldness, and aspiring confidence.
What, shall they seek the lion in his den,
And fright him there? and make him tremble
(, let it not be said!—Forage, and run [there?]
To meet displeasure further from the doors;
And grapple with him, ere he come so nigh.

K. John. The legate of the pope hath been
with me.

And I have made a happy peace with him;
And he hath promis'd to dismiss the powers*
Led by the Dauphin.

Bast. O inglorious league!
Shall we, upon the footing of our land,
Send fair-play orders, and make compromise,
Insinuation, parley, and base truce.
To arms invasive? shall a beardless boy,
A cocker'd† silken wanton brave our fields,
And flesh his spirit in a warlike soil,
Mocking the air with colours idly spread,
And find no check? Let us, my liege, to arms:
Perchance, the cardinal cannot make your
(Or if he do, let it at least be said, [peace;
They saw we had a purpose of defence.

K. John. Have thou the ordering of this present time.

Bast. Away then, with good courage; yet I
know,
Our party may well meet a prouder foe.
[Exeunt.]

SCENE II.—A Plain, near St. Edmund's-Bury.

Enter, in arms, LEWIS, SALISBURY, MELUN, PEMBROKE, BIGOT, and Soldiers.

Leic. My lord Melun, let this be copied out,
And keep it safe for our remembrance:
Return the precedent to these lords again;
That, having our fair order written down,
Both they, and we, perusing o'er these notes,
May know wherefore we took the sacrament,
And keep our faiths firm and inviolable.

* Confounded. † Unowned. ‡ Girdle. § Convert.

* Forces.

† Fondled.

Upon our sides it never shall be broken.
 noble Dauphin, albeit we swear
 stary zeal, and unurg'd faith,
 proceedings; yet, believe me, prince,
 I glad that such a sore of time
 seek a plaster by condemn'd revolt,
 all the inveterate canker of one wound,
 ing many: O, it grieves my soul,
 must draw this metal from my side
 widow-maker; O, and there,
 honourable rescue, and defence,
 it upon the name of Salisbury:
 it is the infection of the time,
 or the health and physio of our right,
 not deal but with the very hand
 of injustice and confused wrong.—
 I not pity, O my grieved friends!
 O, the sons and children of this isle,
 born to see so sad an hour as this;
 when we step after a stranger march or gentle bosom, and fill up enemies' ranks, (I must withdraw and no spot of this enforced cause,) [weep
 the gentry of a land remote,
 how unacquainted colours here?
 were!—O nation, that thou could'st remove!

Fortune's arms, who clippeth^{*} thee about,
 bear thee from the knowledge of thy apple thee unto a pagan shore; [self,
 these two Christian armies might com-
 ed of malice in a vein of league, [bine
 t to spend it so unneighbourly!
 A noble temper dost thou show in this;
 sat affections, wrestling in thy bosom,
 e an earthquake of nobility.
 t a noble combat hast thou fought,
 a compulsion and a brave respect!†
 wipe off this honourable dew,
 verly doth progress on thy cheeks;
 rt hath melted at a lady's tears,
 an ordinary inundation;
 effusion of such manly drops,
 ower, blown up by tempest of the soul,
 mine eyes, and makes me more amaz'd
 had seen the vaulty top of heaven
 quite o'er with burning meteors.
 thy brow, renowned Salisbury,
 th a great heart heave away this storm:
 nd these waters to those baby eyes,
 ver saw the giant world enrag'd;
 t with fortune other than at feasts,
 urn of blood, of mirth, of gossiping.
 come; for thou shalt thrust thy hand as e purse of rich prosperity, [deep
 ris himself:—so, nobles, shall you all,
 nit your sinews to the strength of mine.

Enter PANDULPH, attended.

When there, methinks, an angel spake:
 where the holy legate comes apace,
 us warrant from the hand of heaven;
 our actions set the name of right,
 oly breath.
 Hail, noble prince of France!
 xt is this,—king John hath reconcil'd
 f to Rome; his spirit is come in,
 stood out against the holy church,
 eat metropolis and see of Rome:
 re thy threat'ning colours now wind up,
 me the savage spirit of wild war;
 like a lion foster'd up at hand,
 lie gently at the foot of peace,
 e no further harmful than in show.

embrace.

† Love of country.

Lew. Your grace shall pardon me, I will not
 I am too high-born to be propertyed,* [back;
 To be a secondary at control,
 Or useful serving-man, and instrument,
 To any sovereign state throughout the world.
 Your breath first kindled the dead coal of wars,
 Between this châtis'd kingdom and myself,
 And brought in matter that should feed this
 fire;

And now 'tis far too huge to be blown out
 With that same weak wind which enkindled it.
 You taught me how to know the face of right,
 Acquainted me with interest to this land,
 Yea, thrust this enterprize into my heart;
 And come you now to tell me, John hath made His peace with Rome? What is that peace to
 I, by the honour of my marriage-bed, [me?
 After young Arthur, claim this land for mine;
 And, now it is half-conquer'd, must I back,
 Because that John hath made his peace with Rome?

[borne,
 Am I Rome's slave? What penny hath Rome
 What men provided, what munition sent,
 To underprop this action? is't not I,
 That undergo this charge? who else but I,
 And such as to my claim are liable,
 Sweat in this business, and maintain this war
 Have I not heard these islanders shout out,
Vive le roy! as I have bank'd their towns?
 Have I not here the best cards for the game,
 To win this easy match play'd for a crown?
 And shall I now give o'er the yielded set?
 No, on my soul, it never shall be said.

Pand. You look but on the outside of this work.

Lew. Outside or inside, I will not return
 Till my attempt so much be glorified
 As to my ample hope was promised
 Before I drew this gallant head of war,
 And cull'd these fiery spirits from the world,
 To outlook† conquest, and to win renown
 Even in the jaws of danger and of death.—

[Trumpet sounds.

What lusty trumpet thus doth summon us?

Enter the BASTARD, attended.

Bast. According to the fair play of the world,
 Let me have audience; I am sent to speak:—
 My holy lord of Milan, from the king
 I come, to learn how you have dealt for him;
 And, as you answer, I do know the scope
 And warrant limited unto my tongue.

Pand. The Dauphin is too wilful-opposite,
 And will not temporize with my entreaties;
 He flatly says, he'll not lay down his arms.

Bast. By all the blood that ever fury breath'd,
 The youth says well:—Now hear our English
 For thus his royalty doth speak in me. [king;
 He is prepar'd; and reason too, he should:
 This apish and unmannerly approach,
 This harness'd masque, and unadvised revel,
 This unhair'd sauciness, and boyish troops,
 The king doth smile at; and is well prepar'd
 To whip this dwarfish war, these pigmy arms,
 From out the circle of his territories.
 That hand, which had the strength, even at your door,

To cudgel you, and make you take the hatch;‡
 To dive, like buckets, in concealed wells;
 To crouch in litter of your stable planks;
 To lie, like pawns, lock'd up in chests and trunks;
 To hug with swine; to seek sweet safety out
 In vaults and prisons; and to thrill, and shake,

* Appropriated.

† Leap over the hatch.

‡ Face down.

\ Covered.

KING JOHN.

on's crow,*
 Englishman;—
 bled here,
 hastenment!
 is in arms;
 towers,t near his nest.—
 te revolts,
 the womb
 ash for shame:
 visag'd maids,
 ter drums;
 tiets change,
 r gentle hearts
 n.
 nd turn thy face
 [well];
 d us: fare thee
 to be spent

her:— e tongue of war
 being here.
 being beaten,
 Do but start
 hy drum,
 eady brac'd,
 and as thine;
 er shalt,
 lkin's ear,
 thunder: for al

gate here,
 port than need,) ehead sits
 he is this day
 s of the French.
 o find this dan-

it, Dauphin, do
 [Exeunt.

Field of Battle.
 and HUBERT.

with us? O, tell fares your ma-
 ath troubled me
 rt is sick!

ER.

kinsman, Faul-

the field;
 uch way you go.
 winstead, to the

, for the great

upbin here,

go on Goodwin

[now:

chard but even

fire themselves.

ant fever burns

as good news.—

ly latter straight;

† Nest.
 ‡ Sky

Weakness possesseth me, and

SCENE IV.—The same.—Ans-
same.

Enter SALISBURY, PEMBROKE
others.

Sal. I did not think the king
 friends.

Pem. Uponce again; put spir
 If they miscarry, we miscarry

Sal. That misbegotten devil,
 In spite of spite, alone uphold

Pem. They say, king John, left the field.

Enter MELUN wounded, and h

Mel. Lead me to the revolts o

Sal. When we were happy names.

Pem. It is the count Melun.

Sal. Wounded to death.

Mel. Fly, noble English, you
 Unthread the rude eye of rebe
 And welcome home again disc
 Seek out king John, and fall
 For, if the French be lords of Het means to recompense the
 By cutting off your heads: 'Thu
 And I with him, and many m
 Upon the altar at Saint Edmu
 Even on that altar, where we
 Dear amity and everlasting lo

Sal. May this be possible? n

Mel. Have I not hideous
 Retaining but a quantity of li
 Which bleeds away, even as a Resolved from his figure 'gain
 What in the world should m

ceive,
 Since I must lose the use of al
 Why should I then be false; :
 That I must die here, and live
 I say again, if Lewis do win
 He is forsworn, if e'er those e Behold another day break in But even this night,—whose I
 breath

Already smokes about the bu
 Of the old, feeble, and day-w
 Even this ill night, your breath
 Paying the fine of rated treach
 Even with a treacherous line
 If Lewis by your assistance w
 Commend me to one Hubert,
 The love of him,—and this res
 For that my grandsire was an Awakes my conscience to can
 In lieu whereof, I pray you,
 From forth the noise and rum
 Where I may think the remnan
 In peace, and part this body a
 With contemplation and devo

Sal. We do believe thee,—A
 But I do love the favour and
 Of this most fair occasion, by
 We will untread the steps of
 And, like a bated and retired
 Leaving our rankness and irr
 Stoop low within those bound
 And calmly run on in obedien
 Even to our ocean, to our grea
 My arm shall give thee help to

* A proverb intimating treachery.
 † In allusion to the images made by ‡ There ; 13 let

to the cruel pangs of death! [sigh; close eye.—Away, my friends! New news,† that intends old right.
[Exeunt, leading off MELUN.

V.—The same.—The French Camp.

Enter LEWIS and his Train.

O sun of heaven, methought, was ath to set; [blush,
and made the western welkin English measur'd backward their
ground,
O, bravely came we off,
a volley of our needless shot,
bloody toil, we bid good night;
our tatter'd colours clearly up,
field, and almost lords of it!

Enter a MESSENGER.

Here is my prince the Dauphin?
re:—What news?
we count Melun is slain; the Eng-
h lords,
sation, are again fallen off: [long,
supply, which you have wish'd so
way, and sunk, on Goodwin sands.
I, foul shrewd news!—Heshrew thy ry heart!
hink to be so sad to-night,
h made me.—Who was he, that said,
did fly, an hour or two before bling night did part our weary wers?
hoever spoke it, it is true, my lord.
ell; keep good quarter,§ and good re to-night;
all not be up so soon as I,
fair adventure of to-morrow.

[Exeunt.

I.—An open Place in the Neighbourhood of Swinstead-Abbey.

Enter BASTARD and HUBERT, meeting.

so's there? speak, ho! speak quickly,
I shoot.
friend:—What art thou?
the part of England.
hither dost thou go?
hat's that to thee? Why may not I
mand
fairs, as well as thou of mine?
ubert, I think.
ou hast a perfect thought:
all hazards, well believe [well:
y friend, that know'st my tongue so
ou?
ho thou wilt: an if thou please,
st befriend me so much, as to think
way of the Plantagenets.
kind remembrance! thou, and eyes night, [me,
me shame:—Brave soldier, pardon
ccent, breaking from thy tongue,
ape the true acquaintance of mine
r.
me, come; sans|| compliment, what
ws abroad?
hy, here walk I, in the black brow
night, s out.
rief, then; and what's the news?

se. † Innovation.
posts or stations.

† Sky.
|| Without.

Hub. O, my sweet Sir, news fitting to the
night,
Black, fearful, comfortless, and horrible.

Bast. Show me the very wound of this ill
I am no woman, I'll not swoon at it. [news;

Hub. The king, I fear, is poison'd by a monk:
I left him almost speechless, and broke out
To acquaint you with this evil; that you might
The better arm you to the sudden time,
Than if you had at leisure known of this.

Bast. How did he take it? who did taste to
him?

Hub. A monk, I tell you; a resolved villain,
Whose bowels suddenly burst out: the king
Yet speaks, and, peradventure, may recover.

Bast. Who didst thou leave to tend his majesty?

Hub. Why, know you not? the lords are all come back,

And brought prince Henry in their company;
At whose request the king hath pardon'd them,
And they are all about his majesty.

Bast. Withhold thine indignation, mighty
heaven,

And tempt us not to bear above our power!—
I'll tell thee, Hubert, half my power* this
night,

Passing these flats, are taken by the tide,
These Lincoln washes have devoured them;
Myself, well-mounted, hardly have escap'd.
Away, before! conduct me to the king;
I doubt, he will be dead, or ere I come.

[Exeunt.

SCENE VII.—The Orchard of Swinstead-Abbey.

Enter Prince HENRY, SALISBURY, and BIGOT.

P. Hen. It is too late; the life of all his
blood
Is touch'd corruptibly; and his pure brain (Which some suppose the soul's frail dwelling-
house.)

Doth, by the idle comments that it makes,
Foretell the ending of mortality.

Enter PEMBROKE.

Pem. His highness yet doth speak; and holds belief,
That, being brought into the open air,
It would allay the burning quality
Of that fell poison which assaileth him.

P. Hen. Let him be brought into the orchard
here.—

Doth he still rage? [Exit BIGOT.

Pem. He is more patient
Than when you left him; even now he sung.

P. Hen. O vanity of sickness! fierce extremes,

In their continuance, will not feel themselves.
Death, having prey'd upon the outward parts,
Leaves them insensible; and his siege is now Against the mind, the which he pricks and
wounds

With many legions of strange fantasies; [hold,
Which, in their throng and press to that last Confound themselves. 'Tis strange, that death should sing.—

I am the cygnet to this pale faint swan,
Who chants a doleful hymn to his own death;
And, from the organ-pipe of frailty, sings
His soul and body to their lasting rest.

Sal. Be of good comfort, prince; for you are born

To set a form upon that indigest
Which he hath left so shapeless and so rude.

* Forces.

KING JOHN.

nts, who bring in hair.

my soul hath ei-
nor at doors.
my bosom,
up to dust:
with a pen
just this fire

majesty?
—dead, forsook,

the winter come,
maw;
take their course
nor entreat the

my parched lips,
—I do not ask you are so strait,*

me that.
some virtue in

is hot,— ere the poison
annize
d blood.

ARD.

th my violent mo-
our majesty. tion,
art come to set

uck'd and burn'd;
with my life should

ne little hair:
ng to stay it by,
s be uttered;
t, is but a clod,
l royalty.
paring hitherward;
ow we shall answer

t of my power,
move,
varily,
d flood.

[The King dies.
d news in as dead
[thus.
now a king,—now
un on, and even so [stay,
what hope, what

+ Model.

When this was now a king,
Hast Art thou gone so?
To do the office for thee of n
And then my soul shall

heaven,
As it on earth hath been thy Now, now, you stars, that spheres,
Where be your powers?
mended faiths;

And instantly return with m
To push destruction, and pe
Out of the weak-door of our Straight let us seek, or at sought;

The Dauphin rages at our v
Sal. It seems, you know
as we:

The cardinal Pandulph is w
Who half an hour since ca
phin;

And brings from him such a
As we with honour and resq
With purpose presently to k

Hast. He will the rather Ourselves well sinewed to c

Sal. Nay, it is in a manne
For many carriages he hath
To the seaside, and put his
To the disposing of the card
With whom yourself, myself
If you think meet, this after
To consummate this business

Hast. Let it be so;—As prince,

With other princes that may
Shall wait upon your father

P. Hen. At Worcester m
For so he will'd it.

Hast. Thither shall it the
And happily may your swe
The lineal state and glory o
To whom, with all submissi
I do bequeath my faithful a
And true subjection everlas

Sal. And the like tendi
To rest without a spot for e

P. Hen. I have a kind so you thanks,

And knows not how to do i Hast. O, let us pay the

woe,
Since it hath been beforehan
This England never did, (n
Lie at the proud foot of a c

But when it first did help to Now these her princes are

Come the three corners of t
And we shall shock them:

us rue,
If England to itself do rest

THE LIFE AND DEATH OF KING RICHARD II.

PERSONS REPRESENTED.

KING RICHARD THE SECOND.
HENRY OF LANCASTER, Duke of York;
JOHN OF GAUNT, Duke of Lancaster;
HENRY, surnamed Bolingbroke, Duke of Hereford, Son to John of Gaunt; afterwards King Henry IV.
DUKE OF AUMERLE, Son to the Duke of York.
MOWBRAY, Duke of Norfolk.
DUKE OF SURREY.
EARL OF SALISBURY.
EARL BERKLEY.
BONNY, BACOT, GREEN, } Creatures to King Richard.
EARL OF NORTHUMBERLAND.
HENRY PERCY, his Son.
LORD ROSS.

LORD WILLOUGHBY.
LORD FITZWATER.
BISHOP OF CARLISLE.
ABBOT OF WESTMINSTER.
LORD MARSHAL; and another Lord.
SIR PIERCE of Exton.
SIR STEPHEN SCROOP.
Captain of a band of Welshmen.

QUEEN to King Richard.
DUCHESS OF GLOSTER.
DUCHESS OF YORK.
LADY attending on the Queen.

Lords, Herald, Officers, Soldiers, two Gardeners, Keeper, Messenger, Groom, and other Attendants.

SCENE, dispersedly in England and Wales.

ACT I.

SCENE I.—London.—A Room in the Palace.

Enter King RICHARD, attended; JOHN of GAUNT, and other Nobles, with him.

K. Rich. Old John of Gaunt, time-honour'd Lancaster,

Hast thou, according to thy oath and band,*
 Brought hither Henry Hereford thy bold son;
 Here to make good the boisterous late appeal,
 Which then our leisure would not let us hear,
 Against the Duke of Norfolk, Thomas Mowbray?

Gaunt. I have, my liege.

K. Rich. Tell me moreover, hast thou sounded him,

If he appeal the Duke on ancient malice;
 Or worthily as a good subject should,
 On some known ground of treachery in him?

Gaunt. As near as I could sift him on that argument,—

On some apparent danger seen in him,
 Aim'd at your highness, no inveterate malice.

K. Rich. Then call them to our presence; face to face, [hear

ed frowning brow to brow, ourselves will be accuser, and the accused, freely speak:—

[Exit some Attendants.

High-stomach'd are they both, and full of ire,
 In rage deaf as the sea, hasty as fire.

Re-enter Attendants, with BOLINGBROKE and NORFOLK.

Boling. May many years of happy days befall
 My gracious sovereign, my most loving liege!

Nor. Each day still better other's happiness;
 Until the heavens, envying earth's good hap,
 Add an immortal title to your crown!

K. Rich. We thank you both: yet one but flatters us,

As well appeareth by the cause you come;
 Namely, to appeal* each other of high trea-
 son.—

Cousin of Hereford, what dost thou object
 Against the Duke of Norfolk, Thomas Mowbray?

Boling. First, (heaven be the record of my
 In the devotion of a subject's love, [speech!]
 Tendering the precious safety of my prince,
 And free from other misbegotten hate,
 Come I appellant to this princely presence.—
 Now, Thomas Mowbray, do I turn to thee,
 And mark my greeting well; for what I speak,
 My body shall make good upon this earth,
 Or my divine soul answer it in heaven.

Thou art a traitor, and a miscreant;
 Too good to be so, and too bad to live;
 Since, the more fair and crystal is the sky,
 The uglier seem the clouds that in it fly.
 Once more, the more to aggravate the note,
 With a foul traitor's name stuff I thy throat;

KING RICHARD II.

[ACT I.]

reign,) ere I move,
right-drawn sword

is here accuse my
s war, [zeal;
tongues,
t us twain:
cool'd for this,
patience boast,
at all to say:
ur highness curbs

my free speech;
it had return'd
down his throat.
loyalty,
my liege,
am,
ed, and a villain:
low him odds;
run a-foot
the Alps,
ble*
t set his foot.
loyalty,—
doth he lie.
ard, there I throw

of a king;
s royalty,
akes thee to ex-
so much strength,
awn, then stoop:
ighbourhood else,
arm to arm,
can't worst de-

by that sword I [der, ood on my shoul-
gree,
ily trial:
y I not light,
nt!
asin lay to Mow-

eritt us
t in him.
ak my life shall [nobles,
eight thousand
ghness' soldiers;
or lewd; employ-

rious villain.
ttle prove,— furthest vergo
nglish eye,— eighteen years
this land,
ur first head and will maintain

l this good,— Gloster's death;
adversaries;
tor coward,
through streams

Abel's, cries,
rns of the earth,
chastisement;
my descent,
te be spent.

ked. } Prompt

K. Rich. How high a pitch his resolution soars!—

Thomas of Norfolk, what say'st thou to this?
Nor. O, let my sovereign turn away his face,
And bid his ears a little while be deaf,
Till I have told this slander of his blood,*

How kind, and good men, hate so foul a liar.
K. Rich. Mowbray, impartial are our eyes,
and ears:

Were he my brother, say, my kingdom's heir,
(As he is but my father's brother's son.)

Now by my sceptre's awe I make a vow,
Such neighbour nearness to our sacred blood
Should nothing privilege him, nor partialize
The unstooping firmness of my upright soul;
He is our subject, Mowbray, so art thou;
Free speech, and fearless, I to thee allow.

Nor. Then, Bolingbroke, as low as to thy heart, [beat!

Through the false passage of thy throat, then
Three parts of that receipt I had for Calais, Disburs'd I duly to his highness' soldiers:
The other part reserv'd I by consent;
For that my sovereign liege was in my debt,
Upon remainder of a dear account.
Since last I went to France to fetch his queen:
Now swallow down that lie.—For Gloucester's
death,—

I slew him not; but to my own disgrace,
Neglected my sworn duty in that case,—
For you, my noble lord of Lancaster,
The honourable father to my foe,
Once did I lay in ambush for your life,
A trespass that doth vex my griev'd soul:
But, ere I last receiv'd the sacrament,
I did confess it; and exactly begg'd
Your grace's pardon, and, I hope, I had it.
This is my fault: As for the rest appeal'd,†
It issues from the rancour of a villain,
A recreant and most degenerate traitor:
Which in myself I boldly will defend;
And interchangeably hurl down my gage
Upon this overweening traitor's foot,
To prove myself a loyal gentleman
Even in the best blood chamber'd in his house:
In haste whereof, most heartily I pray
Your highness to assign our trial day.

K. Rich. Wrath-kindled gentlemen, be rul'd
by me;

Let's purge this choler without letting blood:
Thus we prescribe though no physician;
Deep malice makes too deep incision:
Forget, forgive; conclude, and be agreed;
Our doctors say, this is no time to bleed.—
Good uncle, let this end where it began;
We'll calm the duke of Norfolk, you your son.

Gaunt. To be a make-peace shall become my age:

Throw down, my son, the duke of Norfolk's K. Rich. And, Norfolk, throw down his.

Gaunt. When, Harry? when?
Obedience bids, I should not bid again.

K. Rich. Norfolk, throw down; we bid;
there is no boot.‡

Nor. Myself, I throw, dread sovereign, at thy foot;

My life thou shalt command, but not my shame:
The one my duty owes; but my fair name,
(Despite of death, that lives upon my grave,)
To dark dishonour's use thou shalt not have.
I am disgrac'd, impeach'd, and baffled here;
Pierc'd to the soul with slander's venom;
spear;

The which no balm can cure, but his hand
Which breath'd this poison.

* Reproach to his ancestry. † Charge.
‡ Arrogant. § No advantage in doing.

ch. Rage must be withstood :
his gage :—Lions make leopards tame.
Yea, but not change their spots : take
but my shame,
sign my gage. My dear dear lord,
no treasure mortal times afford,
less reputation ; that away,
but gilded loam, or painted clay.
In a ten-times-barr'd-up chest
I'd spirit in a loyal breast.
Your is my life ; both grow in one ;
your from me, and my life is done :
as my liege, mine honour let me try ;
live, and for that will I die.

a. Cousin, throw down your gage ; do you begin.

O, God defend my soul from such foul sin !

How crest-fallen in my father's sight ?
pale beggar-fear impeach my height
His out-dar'd dastard ! Ere my tongue read mine honour with such feeble
wrong,

I so base a parle, my teeth shall tear
his motive of recanting fear ;
It bleeding in his high disgrace,
none doth harbour, even in Mowbray's face. [Exit GAUNT.

a. We were not born to sue, but to
command :

For we cannot do to make you friends,
as your lives shall answer it,
try, upon Saint Lambert's day ;
all your swords and lances arbitrate
ling difference of your settled hate ;
cannot atone* you, we shall see leign† the victor's chivalry.—
command our officers at arms
to direct these home-alarms.

[Exeunt.

II.—The same.—A Room in the Duke of LANCASTER'S Palace.

GAUNT, and Duchess of GLOSTER.

Alas ! the part† I had in Gloster's
blood
re solicit me, than your exclams,
gainst the butchers of his life.
A correction lieth in those hands,
made the fault that we cannot correct,
our quarrel to the will of heaven ;
as he sees the hours ripe on earth,
his hot vengeance on offenders' heads.
Finds brotherhood in thee no sharper spur ?

Is there in thy old blood no living fire ?
Seven sons, whereof thyself art one,
seven phials of his sacred blood,
fair branches springing from one root :
those seven are dried by nature's
course,
those branches by the destinies cut :
alas, my dear lord, my life, my Glos-
ter,—

I full of Edward's sacred blood,
ishing branch of his most royal root,—
d, and all the precious liquor spilt ;
I down, and his summer leaves all
aded,
his hand, and murder's bloody axe.
Went! his blood was thine ; that bed,
that womb, [thee,
title, that self-mould, that fashion'd
in a man ; and though thou liv'st, and breath'st,

file.

† Show.

‡ Relationship.

Yet art thou slain in him : Thou dost consent*
In some large measure to thy father's death,
In that thou seest thy wretched brother die,
Who was the model of thy father's life.
Call it not patience, Gaunt, it is despair :
In suffering thus thy brother to be slaughter'd,
Thou show'st the naked pathway to thy life,
Teaching stern murder how to butcher thee :
That which in mean men we entitle—patience,
Is pale cold cowardice in noble breasts.

What shall I say ? to safeguard thine own life,
The best way is—to 'venge my Gloster's death.

Gaunt. Heaven's is the quarrel ; for heaven's substitute,

His deputy anointed in his sight, [fully Hath caus'd his death : the which if wrong-
Let heaven revenge ; for I may never lift
An angry arm against his minister.

Duch. Where then, alas ! may I complain
myself ?

Gaunt. To heaven, the widow's champion and defence.

Duch. Why then, I will. Farewell, old Gaunt.

Thou go'st to Coventry, there to behold
Our cousin Hereford and fell Mowbray fight ;
O, sit my husband's wrongs on Hereford's
spear,

That it may enter butcher Mowbray's breast !
Or, if misfortune miss the first career,
Be Mowbray's sins so heavy in his bosom,
That they may break his foaming courser's
back,

And throw the rider headlong in the lists,
A caitiff† recreant‡ to my cousin Hereford !
Farewell, old Gaunt ; thy sometime brother's
wife,

With her companion grief must end her life.

Gaunt. Sister, farewell ; I must to Coventry :
As much good stay with thee, as go with me !

Duch. Yet one word more ;—Grief boundeth
where it falls,

Not with the empty hollowness, but weight :
I take my leave before I have begun ;
For sorrow ends not when it seemeth done.
Commend me to my brother, Edmund York.
Lo, this is all :—Nay, yet depart not so ;
Though this be all, do not so quickly go ;
I shall remember more. Bid him—O, what ?—
With all good speed at Plashy§ visit me.
Alack, and what shall good old York there see,
But empty lodgings and unfurnish'd walls,
Unpeopled offices, untrodden stones ?
And what cheer there for welcome, but my groans ? [there,

Therefore commend me ; let him not come
To seek out sorrow that dwells every where :
Desolate, desolate, will I hence, and die ;
The last leave of thee takes my weeping eye.

[Exeunt.

SCENE III.—Gosford Green, near Coventry.

*Lists set out, and a Throne. HERALDS, &c.
attending.*

Enter the Lord MARSHAL, and AUMERLE:

Mar. My lord Aumerle, is Harry Hereford
arm'd ?

Aum. Yea, at all points ; and longs to enter in.

Mar. The duke of Norfolk, sprightly and bold, [pet

Stays but the summons of the appellant's trum-Aum. Why then, the champions are prepar'd and stay

For nothing but his majesty's approach.

* Assent.

† Cowardly.

Z z

† A base villain.

§ Her house in Essex.

KING RICHARD II.

King RICHARD,
GAUNT, and their places. A sistered by another Norfolk in ar-

of yonder cham-
in arms: (pion
ly proceed
his cause.

king's, say who (arms:
knightly clad in st, and what thy

ed, and thy oath;
and thy valour!
Mowbray, duke of my oath,

might should vio-
truth, [late'] ceding issue,
that appeals me,
and this mine arm,
himself,
and me:
the heaven!
He takes his seat.

GAUNT, in ar-
Herald.

under knight in

ometh hither
war;
law
s cause.

and wherefore

royal lists?

and what's thy (ven!

defend thee hea-Lancaster, and

ed in arms,
and my body's

duke of Norfolk,

dangerous,

ard, and to me;

he heaven!

erson be so bold,

he lists;

officers

designs.

or kiss my sove-

majesty:

e like two men

grimage;

s leave,

veral friends.

duty greets your (leave.

l, and take his

and fold him in use is right,

ght!

day thou shed,

ge thee dead.

profane a tear

owbray's spear;

light

owbray fight.—

My loving lord, [To Lord MA
my leave of you;—

[Of you, my noble cousin, lord

Not, sick, although I have to d
But lusty, young, and ch
breath.—

Lo, as at English feasts, so I n
The daintiest last, to make the e
O thou, the earthly author of n

Whose youthful spirit, in me re
Doth with a two-fold vigour lif
To reach at victory above my h
Add proof unto mine armour w
And with thy blessings steel m
That it may enter Mowbray's v
And furbisht new the name of Even in the lusty 'haviour of h GAUNT. Heaven in thy good c prosperous!

Be swift like lightning in the e
And let thy blows, doubly red
Fall like amazing thunder on t
Of thy adverse pernicious ones
Housc up thy youthful blood, Boling. Mine innocence, an to thrive! [H

Nor. [Rising] However heav
cast my lot,

There lives or dies, true to
A loyal, just, and upright gent
Never did captive with a freer Cast off his chains of bondage,
His golden uncontroll'd enfran
More than my dancing soul du
This feast of battle with mine
Most mighty liege, and my con
Take from my mouth the wish
As gentle and as jocund, as to Go I to fight; Truth hath a qu

K. Rich. Farewell, my lord:
Virtue with valour couched in Order the trial, marshal, and l

[The KING and the LORDS rets

Mar. Harry of Hereford,
Derby,

Receive thy lance; and God d Boling. [Rising.] Strong as I cry—Amen.

Mar. Go bear this lance [T
Thomas duke of Norfo

1 Her. Harry of Hereford,
Derby,

Stands here for God, his sove
On pain to be found false and

To prove the duke of Norfolk,
bray,

A traitor to his God, his king,
And dares him to set forward

2 Her. Here standeth Tho
duke of Norfolk,

On pain to be found false and
Both to defend himself, and to

Henry of Hereford, Lancaster
To God, his sovereign, and to Courageously, and with a free Attending but the signal to be

Mar. Sound, trumpets; as combatants. [A

Stay, the king hath thrown his K. Rich. Let them lay by th
their spears,

And both return back to their Withdraw with us:—and le
sound,

* Yielding. † Brighten up.
‡ Play a part in a mask.

we return these dukedoms what we deserve.—

[A long flourish.
[To the Combatants.
What with our council we have done,
at our kingdom's earth should not be sell'd

at dear blood which it hath fostered ;
our eyes do hate the dire aspect wounds plough'd up with neighbours'
swords ;

if we think the eagle-winged pride
aspiring and ambitious thoughts,
val-hating envy, set you on [cradle to our peace, which in our country's the sweet infant breath of gentle sleep ;]
up rose'd up with bolsterous untan'd drums, [bray,

such resounding trumpets' dreadful
sling shock of wrathful iron arms,
turn our quiet confidence flight fair peace,
also as wade even in our kindred's
blood ;—

ye, we banish you our territories :—
make Hereford, upon pain of death, ten five summers have enrich'd our
at regret our fair domains, [fields,
ad the stranger paths of banishment.

g. Your will be done : This must my comfort be,— [me ;

a, that warms you here, shall shine on me his golden beams, to you here lent,
set on me, and gild my banishment.

ch. Norfolk, for thee remains a heavier
doom,

[with some unwillingness pronounce :
slow hours shall not determinate clear limit of thy dear exile ;—
clear word of—never to return

I against thee, upon pain of life.
A heavy sentence, my most sovereign
liege, [mouth :

I unlook'd for from your highness'
r merit, not so deep a main

cast forth in the common air,
deserved at your highness' hand.

guage I have learn'd these forty years,
ve English, now I must forego :

as my tongue's use is to me no more,
unstringed viol or a harp ;

a cunning instrument cas'd up,
g open, put into his hands

ows no touch to tune the harmony.
my mouth you have enjoin'd my tongue,

portcullis'd,† with my teeth and lips ;
I, unfeeling, barren ignorance

my jailer to attend on me.
old to fawn upon a nurse,

in years to be a pupil now ; [death,
a thy sentence then, but speechless

robe my tongue from breathing native
tongue ?

ish. It boots thee not to be compassionate ;†

ir sentence plaining comes too late.
Then thus I turn me from my country's

light,
I in solemn shades of endless night.

[Retiring.
ch. Return again, and take an oath
with thee,

our royal sword your banish'd hands ;
y the duty that you owe to heaven,

at therein we banish with yourselves,)
the oath that we administer—

we shall (so help you truth and heaven !)

ch. [Barred. † To move compassion.

Embrace each other's love in banishment ;
Nor never look upon each other's face ;

Nor never write, regret, nor remembrance
This lowering tempest of your home-bred hate—

Nor never by advised* purpose meet,
To plot, contrive, or compass any ill,

'Gainst us, our state, our subjects, or our land.
Boling. I swear.

Nor. And I, to keep all this.
Boling. Norfolk, so far as to make enemy ;—

By this time, had the king permitted us,
One of our souls had wander'd in the air,

Banish'd this frail sepulchre of our flesh,
As now our flesh is banish'd from this land :

Confess thy treasons, ere thou fly the realm ;
Since thou hast far to go, bear not along

The clogging burden of a guilty soul.
Nor. No, Bolingbroke, if ever I were true—

My name be blotted from the book of life, [tor,
And I from heaven banish'd, as from hence !

But what thou art, heaven, thou, and I do
know ;

And all too soon, I fear, the king shall rue.—
Farewell, my liege :—Now no way can I stray ;

Save back to England, all the world's my way.
[Exit.

K. Rich. Uncle, even in the glasses of time
I see thy griev'd heart : thy end aspect [eyes

Hath from the number of his banish'd years
Pluck'd four away ;—Six frozen winters spent,

Return [To Boling.] with welcome home from banishment.

Boling. How long a time lies in one little
word !

Four lagging winters, and four wanton springs,
End in a word ; Such is the breath of kings.

Gau. I thank my liege, that, in regard of
He shortens four years of my son's exile : [me,

But little vantage shall I reap thereby ;
For, ere the six years that he hath to spend,

Can change their moons, and bring their times
about,

My oil-dried lamp, and time-bewasted light,
Shall be extinct with age, and endless night ;

My inch of taper will be burnt and done,
And blindfold death not let me see my son.

K. Rich. Why, uncle, thou has many years
to live.

Gau. But not a minute, king, that thou canst give :

Shorten my days thou canst with sullen sorrow,
And pluck nights from me, but not lend a

morrow :
Thou canst help time to furrow me with age,

But stop no wrinkle in his pilgrimage ;
Thy word is current with him for my death ;

But, dead, thy kingdom cannot buy my breath.
K. Rich. Thy son is banish'd upon good advice,† Whereto thy tongue a party† verdict gave ;

Why at our justice seem'st thou then to lower ?
Gau. Things sweet to taste, prove in digestion sour.

You urg'd me as a judge : but I had rather,

You would have bid me argue like a father :—
O, had it been a stranger, not my child,

To smooth his fault I should have been more
A partial slanderer sought I to avoid, [mild :

And in the sentence my own life destroy'd.
Alas, I look'd, when some of you should say,

I was too strict, to make mine own away ;
But you gave leave to my unwilling tongue,

Against my will, to do myself this wrong.
K. Rich. Cousin, farewell :—and, uncle, bid

him so ;

* Concerted. † Consideration. ‡ Had a part or share.
§ It grows of partially.

KING RICHARD II.

shall go.
ARD and Train. presence must

paper show.
I; for I will

our side.
lost thou heard

to thy friends?
ke my leave of

and be prodigal
of the heart.
absence for a present for that they are quick-

grief makes one

thou tak'st for

then I miscall it
grunage. [so,

thy weary steps

to set

return.

tedious stride I deal of world

I love.

vicehood

he end,

nothing else,

to grief?

eye of heaven

happy havens:

thus;

ty.

thee;

the heavier sit,

fully borne.

urchase honour,

or suppose,

our air,

er clime.

ar, imagine it

ot whence thou

ascians;

st, the presence

my steps, no more

a dance:

power to bite

sets it light.

ure in his hand,

casus?

ppetite,

er's snow,

ner's heat?

he good,

to the worse:

rankle more,

eth not the sore.

ou, I'll bring thee

I would not stay.

round, farewell;

ourt. | Growing.

My mother, and my nurse, that Where-e'er I wander, boast of Though banish'd, yet a truebo

SCENE IV.—The same.—A Ru
Castle.

Enter King RICHARD, BAGOT
AUMERLE follows

K. Rich. We did observe.—C
How far brought you high F
way?

Ann. I brought high Heref
him so,

But to the next highway, and

K. Rich. And, say, what s tears were shed?

Ann. 'Faith, none by me: es
east wind,

Which then blew bitterly agah Awak'd the sleeping rheum; an

Did grace our hollow parting v

K. Rich. What said our cou parted with him.

Ann. Farewell:
And, for my heart disdained d

Should so profane the word,
To counterfeit oppression of su

That words seem'd buried i grave.

Marry, would the word
lengthen'd hours,

And added years to his short b

He should have had a volume

But, since it would not, he has

K. Rich. He is our cousin, i doubt,

When time shall call him home

Whether our kinsman come to Ourselves, and Bushy, Bagot her

Observ'd his courtship to the cou

How he did seem to dive into

With humble and familiar cou

What reverence he did throw s

Wooing poor craftsmen, wit
smiles,

And patient underbearing of b

As 'twere, to banish their effec

Off goes his bunnet to an oyste

A brace of draymen bid—God

And had the tribute of his sup

With—Thanks my countrymen, s

As were our England in reven

And he our subjects next degr

Green. Well, he is gone; as these thoughts.

Now for the rebels, which sh

Expedient* manage must be m

Ere further leisure yield them

For their advantage, and your

K. Rich. We will ourself i
war.

And, for our coffers—with too

And liberal largess,—are gi
light,

We are enforc'd to farm our re

The revenue whereof shall sur

For our affairs in hand: If the

Our substitutes at home sh

charters;

Whereto, when they shall kno

They shall subscribe them for

gold,

And send them after to supply

For we will make for Ireland]

* Expeditious.

Enter Bushy.

What news?

B. Old John of Gaunt is grievous sick, my lord;

ly taken; and hath sent post-haste, at your majesty to visit him.

Ch. Where lies he?

B. At Ely-house.

Ch. Now put it, heaven, in his physician's mind,

him to his grave immediately!

Ag of his coffers shall make coats

our soldiers for these Irish wars.—

gentlemen, let's all go visit him:

And, we may make haste, and come too late!

[Exeunt.]

ACT II.

E. L.—London.—A Room in Ely-house.

On a Couch; the Duke of York, and others standing by him.

Y. Will the king come? that I may breathe my last

some counsel to his unstaied youth.

Vex not yourself, nor strive not with your breath;

A vain comes counsel to his ear.

O, but they say, the tongues of dying attention, like deep harmony: [men words are scarce, they are seldom spent in vain: [in pain.

breathe truth, that breathe their words no more may say, is listen'd more

they whom youth and ease have taught to glose;* [before:

men's ends mark'd, than their lives setting sun, and music at the close,

last taste of sweets, is sweetest last; remembrance, more than things long past: [hear,

Richard my life's counsel would not

h's sad tale may yet undeaf his ear.

No; it is stopp'd with other flattering sounds,

soes of his state: then, there are found as metres; to whose venom sound

a ear of youth doth always listen:

f fashions in proud Italy;

manners still our tardy apish nation

fler, in base imitation,

both the world thrust forth a vanity,

new, there's no respect how vile,) not quickly buzz'd into his ears?

too late comes counsel to be heard,

will doth mutiny with wit's regard.

At him, whose way himself will choose; with thou lack'st, and that breath wilt thou lose.

Methinks, I am a prophet new inspir'd;

and, expiring, do foretell of him;

A fierce blaze of riot cannot last;

but fires soon burn out themselves:

flowers last long, but sudden storms are

short;

betimes, that spurs too fast betimes;

per feeding, food doth choke the feeder:

greedy, insatiate cormorant,

beg means, soon preys upon itself.

Al throne of kings, this scepter'd isle,

th of majesty, this seat of Mars,

er Eden, demi-paradise;

press, built by nature for herself,

* Flatter.

Against infection, and the hand of war;

This happy breed of men, this little world;

This precious stone set in the silver sea,

Which serves it in the office of a wall,

Or as a moat defensive to a house,

Against the envy of less happier lands;

This blessed plot, this earth, this realm, this England,

This nurse, this teeming womb of royal kings,

Fear'd by their breed, and famous by their birth,

Renowned for their deeds as far from home,

(For Christian service, and true chivalry,)

As is the sepulchre in stubborn Jewry,

Of the world's ransom, blessed Mary's son:

This land of such dear souls, this dear dear land,

Dear for her reputation through the world,

Is now leas'd out (I die pronouncing it,)

Like to a tenement, or palting* farm:

England, bound in with the triumphant sea,

Whose rocky shore beats back the envious siege

Of watery Neptune, is now bound in with shame,

With inky blots, and rotten parchment bonds;

That England, that was wont to conquer others,

Hath made a shameful conquest of itself:

O, would the scandal vanish with my life,

How happy then were my ensuing death!

Enter King RICHARD, and QUEEN; AUMERLE, BUSHY, GREEN, BAGOT, ROSS, and WILLOUGHBY.

York. The king is come: deal mildly with his youth; [more.

For young hot colts, being rag'd, do rage the Queen. How fares our noble uncle, Lancaster?

K. Rich. What, comfort, man? How is't with aged Gaunt?

Gaunt. O, how that name befits my composition!

Old Gaunt, indeed; and gaunt† in being old: Within me grief hath kept a tedious fast;

And who abstains from meat, that is not gaunt? For sleeping England long time have I watch'd;

Watching breeds leanness, leanness is all gaunt:

The pleasure, that some fathers feed upon, Is my strict fast, I mean—my children's looks;

And, therein fasting, hast thou made me gaunt: Gaunt am I for the grave, gaunt as a grave,

Whose hollow womb inherits nought but bones.

K. Rich. Can sick men play so nicely with their names?

Gaunt. No, misery makes sport to mock itself:

Since thou dost seek to kill my name in me, I mock my name, great king, to flatter thee.

K. Rich. Should dying men flatter with those that live?

Gaunt. No, no; men living flatter those that die.

K. Rich. Thou, now a dying, say'st—thou flatter'st me.

Gaunt. Oh! no; thou diest, though I the sicker be.

K. Rich. I am in health, I breathe, and see thee ill.

Gaunt. Now, He that made me, knows I see thee ill;

Ill in myself to see, and in thee seeing ill. Thy death-bed is no lesser than the land,

Wherein thou liest in reputation sick: And thou, too careless patient as thou art,

And thou, too careless patient as thou art,

* Paltry.

† Lean, thin.

KING RICHARD II.

anointed body to the cure
 Physicians that first wounded thee :
 Flatterers sit within thy crown,
 None is no bigger than thy head ;
 Measured in so small a verge,
 No whit lesser than thy land.
 Randairs, with a prophet's eye,
 A son a son should destroy his sons,
 My reach he would have laid thy
 — before thou wert possess'd,
 Possess'd now to depose thyself.
 Wert thou regent of the world,
 Me to let this land by lease :
 World, enjoying but this land,
 Thus shame, to shame it not !
 England art thou now, not king :
 Law is bondsman to the law ;

— a lunatic lean-witted fool,
 An ague's privilege,
 My frozen admonition
 On cheek, chasing the royal blood,
 From his native residence.
 Not's right royal majesty,
 My brother to great Edward's son,
 That runs so roundly in thy head,
 Thy head from thy unreverend
 — spare me not, my brother Ed-
 — his father Edward's son ;
 Ready, like the pelican,
 Fed out, and drunkenly carous'd :
 Gloster, plain well-meaning soul,
 Metall in heaven 'mongst happy
 — edent and witness good, (souls)
 Respect'at not spilling Edward's present sickness that I have ;

 Madness be like crooked age,
 Or a too-long wither'd flower.
 Shame, but die not shame with — hereafter thy tormentors be !—
 To my bed, then to my grave :
 Live, that love and honour have.
 — set, borne out by his Attendants.
 And let them die, that age and sul-
 — have ;
 — thou, and both become the grave.
 — each your majesty, impute his — sickness and age in him : (words
 — on my life, and holds you dear
 — of Hereford, were he here.
 — ight ; you say true : as Hereford's
 — so his :
 — mine ; and all be as it is.

For NORTHUMBERLAND.
 — hege, old Gaunt commends him
 — r majesty.
 — hat says he now ?
 — nothing ; all is said :
 — now a stringless instrument ;
 — and all, old Lancaster hath spent.
 — ork the next that must be bank-
 — so !
 — be poor, it ends a mortal woe.
 — he ripest fruit first falls, and so
 — he ;
 — ent, our pilgrimage must be :
 — ant.—Now for our Irish wars :
 — plant those rough rug-headed
 — †

Which live like venom, where
 But only they, hath privilege
 And for these great affairs do Towards our assistance, we
 The plate, coin, revenues, all Whereof our uncle Gaunt did York. How long shall I
 — how long

Shall tender duty make me
 Not Gloster's death, nor E-
 — ment,
 Not Gaunt's rebukes, nor Nor the pervention of poor I
 About his marriage, nor my Have ever made me sour my Or bend one wrinkle on my
 I am the last of noble Edward
 Of whom thy father, prince of
 In war, was never lion rag'd
 In peace, was never gentle I
 Than was that young and pr
 His face thou hast, for even Accomplish'd with the numb
 But, when he frown'd, it
 — French,

And not against his friends :
 Did win what he did spend,
 Which his triumphant father
 His hands were guilty of no
 But bloody with the enemies
 O, Richard ! York is too far
 Or else he never would com
 K. Rich. Why, uncle, wh
 York. O, my liege,
 Pardon me, if you please ; b
 Not to be pardon'd, am cont
 Seek you to seize, and gripe
 The royalties and rights of b
 Is not Gaunt dead ? and d
 — live ?

Was not Gaunt just ? and is
 Did not the one deserve to b
 Is not his heir a well-deserv
 Take Hereford's rights awa
 His charters, and his custom
 Let not to-morrow then ensu
 Be not thyself, for how art t
 But by fair sequence and su
 Now, afore God (God forbid
 If you do wrongfully seize
 Call in the letters patent tha
 By his attorney-general to a
 His livery,† and deny his off
 You pluck a thousand dang
 You lose a thousand well-di
 And prick my tender patience
 Which honour and allegiance

K. Rich. Think what you — to our hands
 His plate, his goods, his mon York. I'll not be by, the
 — farewell :
 What will ensue hereof, the
 But by bad courses may be
 That their events can never

K. Rich. Go, Bushy, to the
 — straight ;
 Bid him repair to us to Ely-
 To see this business : To-mo
 We will for Ireland ; and 'tis
 And we create, in absence of Our uncle York lord govern
 For he is just, and always lo

† Alluding to the idea that no v in Ireland.
 † When of thy age. ; Tu

† Irish soldiers.

soon: to-morrow must we part;
our time of stay is short.

[Flourish.
THE QUEEN, BUSHY, ACMERLE,
and BAGOT.

Lords, the duke of Lancaster is dying too; for now his son is in title, not in revenue.

In both, if justice had her part is great; but it must break

hence,

send with a liberal^o tongue.

Speak thy mind; and let him
speak more,

words again, to do thee harm!

That thou'dst speak, to the [Hereford]

with it boldly, man;

or to hear of good towards him.

At all, that I can do for him;

It good to pity him,

not of his patrimony.

Before heaven, 'tis shame, such

are borne,

since, and many more

in this declining land.

himself, but basely led

and what they will inform,

'gainst any of us all,

not severely prosecute [heirs.

lives, our children, and our monies hath he pill'd; with a taxes,

carts: the nobles hath he fin'd barrels, and quite lost their daily new exactions are devis'd;

violences, and I wot not what:

his name, doth become of this?

have not wasted it, for warr'd

not,

led upon compromise

ancestors achiev'd with blows:

spent in peace, than they in

of Wiltshire hath the realm

king's grown bankrupt, like a

man.

ach, and dissolution, hangeth

on.

not money for these Irish wars,

taxations notwithstanding,

king of the banish'd duke.

able kinsman: most degenerate

near this fearful tempest sing,

after to avoid the storm:

and sit sore upon our sails,

like not, but securely perish.†

is the very wreck that we must

is the danger now, [suffer,

the causes of our wreck.

even through the hollow eyes

h,

ing; but I dare not say things of our comfort is.

let us share thy thoughts, as not ours.

Adent to speak, Northumber-

We three are but thyself; and, speaking, so,
Thy words are but as thoughts; therefore, be
bold.

North. Then thus:—I have from Port le Blanc, a bay

In Brittany, receiv'd intelligence,

That Harry Hereford, Reignold lord Cobham,

[The son of Richard Earl of Arundel,]

That late broke from the duke of Exeter,

His brother, archbishop late of Canterbury,

Sir Thomas Erpingham, sir John Ramston,

Sir John Norbery, sir Robert Waterton, and

Francis Quoint,— [Lugne,

All these well furnish'd by the duke of Bre-

With eight tall^o ships, three thousand men of

war,

Are making hither with all due expedience,†

And shortly mean to touch our northern shore:

Perhaps, they had ere this, but that they stay

The first departing of the king for Ireland.

If then we shall shake off our slavish yoke,

Impt out our drooping country's broken wing,

Redeem from broking pawn the blemish'd

crown,

Wipe off the dust that hides our sceptre's gilt,‡

And make high majesty look like itself,

Away, with me, in post to Ravenspurg:

But if you faint, as fearing to do so,

Stay, and be secret, and myself will go.

Ross. To horse, to horse! urge doubts to them that fear.

Will. Hold out my horse, and I will first be there. [Exeunt.

SCENE II.—The same.—A Room in the Palace.

Enter QUEEN, BUSHY, and BAGOT.

Bushy. Madam, your majesty is too much sad:

You promis'd, when you parted with the king,

To lay aside life-harming heaviness,

And entertain a cheerful disposition.

Queen. To please the king, I did; to please

I cannot do it; yet I know no cause [myself,

Why I should welcome such a guest as grief,

Save bidding farewell to so sweet a guest

As my sweet Richard: Yet, again, methinks,

Some unborn sorrow, ripe in fortune's womb,

Is coming towards me; and my inward soul

With nothing trembles, at something it grieves,

More than with parting from my lord the king.

Bushy. Each substance of a grief hath twenty shadows,

Which show like grief itself, but are not so:

For sorrow's eye, glazed with blinding tears,

Divides one thing entire to many objects;

Like perspectives,|| which, rightly gaz'd upon,

Show nothing but confusion; ey'd awry,

Distinguish form: so your sweet majesty,

Looking awry upon your lord's departure,

Finds shapes of grief, more than himself, to wail; [dows

Which, look'd on as it is, is nought but sha-

Of what is not. Then, thrice-gracious queen,

More than your lord's departure weep not;

more's not seen:

Or if it be, 'tis with false sorrow's eye,

Which, for things true, weeps things imaginary.

Queen. It may be so; but yet my inward

soul

Persuades me, it is otherwise: Howe'er it be,

I cannot but be sad; so heavy sad,

^o Deprived. † Pillaged.
since in our security.

^o Stout. † Expedition. ‡ Supply with new leather.
‡ Gilding. § Pictures.

KING RICHARD II.

on no thought I ng faint and shrink.
conceit,* my gra-

conceit is still de-

f, mine is not so;
-omething grief;
ang that I grieve:
possess;
et known; what
se woe, I wot.

majesty!—and well

shipp'd for Ireland.
so? 'tis better hope, [hope;
ste, his haste good
u hope, he is not

, might have retir'd

h enemy's hope,
ing in this land:
repeals himself,
safe arriv'd

ven forbid!

oo true: and that is

d, his young son

ad, and Willoughby,
nds, are fled to him.

t proclaim'd North-

olling faction

on the earl of Wor-

n'd his stewardship,
ants fled with him

art the midwife to

ow's dismal heir:
forth her prodigy;
wer'd mother,

so sorrow join'd.
lam,
r me?

umity
n flatterer,
of death,
e the bands of life,
n extremity.

rk.

duke of York.

ear about his aged

are his looks!—

comfortable words.
I should belie my

we are on the earth,
crosses, care, and

to save far off,
ke him lose at home:
op his land;

ow. ; Drawn it back.

Who, weak with age, cannot Now comes the sick hour this Now shall he try his friends

Enter a SERV.

Serv. My lord, your son

York. He was!—Why, I

The nobles they are fled, th
And will, I fear, revolt on H

Sirrah,
Get thee to Plasby, to my s
Bid her send me presently

Serv. My lord, I had forg
To-day, as I came by, I ca
But I shall grieve you to re

York. What is it, knave!
Serr. An hour before I
died.

York. God for his mere woes
Comes rushing on this wof

I know not what to do:—I (So my untruth* had not pe
The king had cut off my l

What, are these posts despa
How shall we do for money
Come, sister,—cousin, I w

Go, fellow, [To the SERVANT:
provide some carts
And bring away the armour

Gentlemen, will you go mu
How, or which way, to ord

Thus thrust disorderly into Never believe me. Both a

The one's my sovereign, w
And duty bids defend; th
Is my kinsman, whom the

Whom conscience and my k
Well, somewhat we must I'll

Dispose of you:—Go, must
And meet me presently at

I should to Plasby too;—
But time will not permit:—
And every thing is left at:

[Exit
Bushy. The wind sits fa
Ireland,

But none returns. For us
Proportionable to the enon
Is all impossible.

Green. Besides our 'nea
love,
Is near the hate of those k

Bagot. And that's the
for their love
Lies in their purses; and v

By so much fills their hear Bushy. Wherein the ki matters'd

Bagot. If judgement lie
we,
Because we ever have bee

Green. Well, I'll for ref
tol castle;
The earl of Wiltshire is al

Bushy. Thither will I office
The hateful commons will

* Dialogus

Except the cure to tear us all to pieces.—
Will you go along with us?

Bol. No. I'll to Ireland to his majesty.
Farewell! if heart's presages be not vain,
We three here part, that ne'er shall meet again.

Bol. That's as York thrives to beat back Bolingbroke.

Over. Alas, poor duke! the task he undertakes

Is—numb'ring sands, and drinking oceans dry;
Where one on his side fights, thousands will fly.

Bol. Farewell at once; for once, for all,
and ever.

Over. Well, we may meet again,
Bol. I fear me, never. [Exeunt.]

SCENE III.—The Wilds in Gloucestershire.

Enter BOLINGBROKE and NORTHUMBERLAND, with Forces.

Bol. How far is it, my lord, to Berkley
now?

North. Believe me, noble lord,
I am a stranger here in Gloucestershire.
These high wild hills, and rough uneven ways,
Draw out our miles, and make them wearisome;
And yet your fair discourse hath been as sugar,
Making the hard way sweet and delectable.
But, I bethink me, what a weary way
From Ravenspur to Cotswold, will be found In Ross and Willoughby, wanting your company;

Which, I protest, hath very much beguil'd
The tediousness and process of my travel:
But theirs is sweeten'd with the hope to have
The present benefit which I possess:
And hope to joy, is little less in joy,
Than hope enjoy'd: by this the weary lords
Shall make their way seem short; as mine hath done

By sight of what I have, your noble company.

Bol. Of much less value is my company,
Than your good words. But who comes here?

Enter HARRY PERCY.

North. It is my son, young Harry Percy, Sent from my brother Worcester, whence-soever.—

Harry, how fares your uncle?
Percy. I had thought, my lord, to have learn'd his health of you.

North. Why, is he not with the queen?

Percy. No, my good lord; he hath forsook
the court,

Broken his staff of office, and dispers'd
The household of the king.

North. What was his reason? [together.

He was not so resolv'd, when last we spake
Percy. Because your lordship was proclaimed traitor.

But he, my lord, is gone to Ravenspur,
To offer service to the duke of Hereford;
And sent me o'er by Berkley, to discover
What power the duke of York had levied there;
Then with direction to repair to Ravenspur.

North. Have you forgot the duke of Hereford, boy?

Percy. No, my good lord; for that is not forgot.

Which ne'er I did remember: to my know-
I never in my life did look on him.

North. Then learn to know him now; this is the duke.

Percy. My gracious lord, I tender you my service,

Such as it is, being tender, raw, and young;
Which older days shall ripen, and confirm
To more approved service and desert.

Bol. I thank thee, gentle Percy; and be
sure,

I count myself in nothing else so happy,
As in a soul rememb'ring my good friends;
And, as my fortune ripens with thy love,
It shall be still thy true love's recompense:
My heart this covenant makes, my hand thee
seals it.

North. How far is it to Berkley? And what stir [War?

Keeps good old York there, with his men of Percy. There stands the castle, by yon tuft
of trees, [heard:

Mann'd with three hundred men, as I have
And in it are the lords of York, Berkley, and Beymour;

None else of name, and noble estimate.

Enter ROSS and WILLOUGHBY.

North. Here come the lords of Ross and Willoughby,
Bloody with spurring, fiery-red with haste.

Bol. Welcome, my lords: I wot,^a your love pursues

A banish'd traitor; all my treasury
Is yet but unfelt thanks, which, more enrich'd,
Shall be your love and labour's recompense.

Ross. Your presence makes us rich, most noble lord.

Will. And far surmounts our labour to attain it.

Bol. Evermore thanks, the exchequer of the poor;

Which, till my infant fortune come to years,
Stands for my bounty. But who comes here?

Enter STANLEY.

North. It is my lord of Berkley, as I guess.

Berk. My lord of Hereford, my message is
to you.

Bol. My lord, my answer is—to Lancaster;

And I am come to seek that name in England:
And I must find that title in your tongue,
Before I make reply to aught you say.

Berk. Mistake me not, my lord; 'tis not my meaning,

To raze one title of your honour out:—
To you, my lord, I come, (what lord you will),

From the most glorious regent of this land,
The duke of York; to know, what pricks you
To take advantage of the absent time,[†] [on

And fright our native peace with self-born
arms.

Enter YORK, attended.

Bol. I shall not need transport my words
by you;

Here comes his grace in person.—My noble uncle! [Kneels.

York. Show me thy humble heart, and not thy knee,

Whose duty is deceivable and false.

Bol. My gracious uncle!—
York. Tut, tut!

Grace me no grace, nor uncle me no uncle:
I am no traitor's uncle; and that word—grace,
In an ungracious mouth, is but profane.

Why have those banish'd and forbidden legs
Dar'd once to touch a dust of England's
ground?

But then more why;—Why have they dar'd
to march

So many miles upon her peaceful bosom;
Frighting her pale-fac'd villages with war,

^a Know. [†] Time of the king's absence.

KING RICHARD II.

arms? [hence?
 appointed king is left behind,
 power.
 hot youth.
 ther, and myself,
 that young Mars

thousand French;
 this arm of mine,
 astise thee,
 fault?
 let me know my

and wherein?
 the worst deed treason:

 here art come,
 time,
 sovereign.

I was banish'd
 Lancaster.

our grace,
 indifferent eye:

anks, in you
 my father
 stand condemn'd

rights and royal-
 [away

force, and given ore was I born?

of England,
 of Lancaster.

noble kinsman;
 been thus trod

e Gaunt a father,
 use them to the

here, [bay.
 me leave:

un'd and sold;
 as employ'd.

I am a subject.
 are denied me;

my claim
 cent.

been too much upon, to do him

endowments are let me tell you

n's wrongs,
 him right:

aving arms,
 at his way,

it may not be;
 this kind,

is all.
 sworn, his com-

right of that,
 o give him aid;

that breaks that e issue of these

s confess,
 and all ill left:

ave me life
 no wrong him.

it is your interest.

I would attach you all, and me
 Unto the sovereign mercy of th
 But, since I cannot, be it know
 I do remain as neuter. So, fa
 Unless you please to enter in t
 And there repose you for this

Boling. An offer, uncle, that
 But we must win your grace,
 To Bristol castle; which, they
 By Bushy, Bagot, and their co
 The caterpillars of the common
 Which I have sworn to weed, a

York. It may be, I will go yet I'll pause;

For I am loath to break our co
 Nor friends, nor foes, to me w
 Things past redress, are now

care.

SCENE IV.—A Camp.
Enter SALISBURY, and a

Capt. My lord of Salisbury,
 ten days,

And hardly kept our countrymen
 And yet we hear no tidings fr
 Therefore we will disperse ours

Sat. Stay yet another day, tho
 The king reposeth all his conf
 In thee

Capt. 'Tis thought, the king i not stay.

The bay-trees in our country a
 And meteors fright the fixed st
 The pale-fac'd moon looks bloo
 And lean-look'd prophets a change;

 Rich men look sad, and ruff
 The one, in fear to lose what th
 The other, to enjoy by rage am
 These signs forerun the de

kings.—
 Farewell; our countrymen are
 As well assur'd, Richard their

Sat. Ah, Richard! with the
 I see thy glory, like a shooting
 Fall to the base earth from the Thy sun sets weeping in the lo

Witnessing storms to come, wo
 Thy friends are fled, to wait up
 And crossly to thy good all for

And crossly to thy good all for

ACT III.
SCENE I.—BOLINGBROKE'S C

Enter BOLINGBROKE, YORK, LAND, PERCY, WILLOUGHBY,
behind with BUSHY and GREEN!

Boling. Bring forth these met Bushy, and Green, I will not v (Since presently your souls mu

dies,)

With too much urging your per
 For 'twere no charity: yet, to w
 From off my hands, here, in the

I will unfold some causes of yo
 You have misled a prince, a ro
 A happy gentleman in blood an

By you unhappied and disfigur
 You have, in manner, with you
 Made a divorce betwixt his que

Broke the possession of a royal
 And stain'd the beauty of a fair
 With tears drawn from her eye wrongs.

* Completely.

face, by fortune of my birth;
 fling in blood; and near in love,
 make him misinterpret me,—
 my neck under your injuries,
 my English breath in foreign
 air,
 My bread of banishment:
 have fed upon my signories,
 my parts, and sell'd my forest
 in; [coat, †
 in windows torn my household impress, leaving me no sign,— pinions, and my living blood,—
 world I am a gentleman.
 much more, much more than twice
 as,
 as to the death:—See them ded over
 and the hand of death.
 so welcome is the stroke of death
 to [well.
 stroke to England. Lords, fare-comfort is,—that heaven will take souls,
 injustice with the pains of hell.
 Lord Northumberland, see them
 catch'd.
 and NORTHUMBERLAND and others,
 in Prisoners.
 gy, the queen is at your house;
 make, fairly let her be entreated:
 and to her my kind commends; ‡
 care my greetings be deliver'd.
 gentleman of mine I have despatch'd
 of your love to her at large.
 unks, gentle uncle.—Come, lords,
 Glendower and his complices;
 ask, and, after, holiday. [Exeunt.

—The Coast of Wales.—A castle
 in view.

Enter King
 Bishop of CARLISLE, AUMERLE, and arkloughly castle call you this at my lord: How brooks your grace

 is,
 sing on the breaking seas!
 loads must I like it well; I weep
 ry,
 in my kingdom once again.—
 do salute thee with my hand,
 in wound thee with their horses'
 I:
 rted mother with her child
 with her tears, and smiles in
 ing;
 smiling, greet I thee, my earth,
 favour with my royal hands.
 sovereign's foe, my gentle earth,
 sweets comfort his ravenous sense:
 piders, that suck up thy venom,
 aided toads, lie in their way;
 face to the treacherous feet,
 usurping steps do trample thee.
 g nettles to mine enemies:
 ey from thy bosom pluck a flower,
 way thee, with a lurking adder;
 le tongue may with a mortal touch
 upon thy sovereign's enemies.—
 senseless conjuration, lords;

own the hedges. † Of arms. ‡ Motto.
 † Commendations.

This earth shall have a feeling, and these stones
 Prove armed soldiers, ere her native king
 Shall falter under foul rebellious arms.

Car. Fear not, my lord; that Power, that made you king,

Hath power to keep you king in spite of all.
 The means that heaven yields must be em-
 brac'd,

And not neglected, else, if heaven would,
 And we will not, heaven's offer we refuse;
 The proffer'd means of succour and redress.

Aum. He means, my lord, that we are too remiss,

Whilst Bolingbroke, through our security, Grows strong and great, in substance, and in
 friends.

K. Rich. Discomfortable cousin! know'st
 thou not,

That when the searching eye of heaven is hid
 Behind the globe, and lights the lower world,
 Then thieves and robbers range abroad unseen
 In murders, and in outrage, bloody here;
 But when, from under this terrestrial ball,
 He fires the proud tops of the eastern pines,
 And darts his light through every guilty hole,
 Then murders, treasons, and detested sins,
 The cloak of night being pluck'd from off their backs, [selves!

Stand bare and naked, trembling at them—
 So when this thief, this traitor, Bolingbroke,—
 Who all this while hath revell'd in the night,
 Whilst we were wand'ring with the antipodes,—
 Shall see us rising in our throne the east,
 His treasons will sit blushing in his face,
 Not able to endure the sight of day,
 But, self-affrighted, tremble at his sin.
 Not all the water in the rough rude sea
 Can wash the balm from an anointed king:
 The breath of worldly men cannot depose
 The deputy elected by the Lord:
 For every man that Bolingbroke hath press'd,
 To lift shrewd steel against our golden crown,
 God for his Richard hath in heavenly pay
 A glorious angel: then, if angels fight, Weak men must fall; for heaven still guards
 the right.

Enter SALISBURY.

Welcome, my lord; How far off lies your
 power?

Sal. Nor near, nor further off, my gracious
 lord, [tongue,

Than this weak arm: Discomfort guides my
 And bids me speak of nothing but despair.
 One day too late, I fear, my noble lord,
 Hath clouded all thy happy days on earth.
 O, call back yesterday, bid time return,
 And thou shalt have twelve thousand fighting
 To-day, to-day, unhappy day, too late, [men!
 O'erthrows thy joys, friends, fortune, and thy
 state;

For all the Welshmen, hearing thou wert dead,
 Are gone to Bolingbroke, dispers'd, and fled.

Aum. Comfort, my liege: why looks your grace so pale?

K. Rich. But now, the blood of twenty thousand men

Did triumph in my face, and they are fled;
 And, till so much blood thither come again,
 Have I not reason to look pale and dead?
 All souls that will be safe, fly from my side;
 For time hath set a blot upon my pride.

Aum. Comfort, my liege; remember who you are.

K. Rich. I had forgot myself: Am I not king?

a Force.

KING RICHARD II.

'thou sleep'st.
 thousand names?
 subject strikes
 to the ground,
 we not high?
 know, my uncle
 turn. But who happiness betide
 deliver him.
 and my heart pre-
 canst unfold.
 'twas my care;
 of care?
 great as we?
 serve God,
 his fellow so:
 cannot mend;
 as well as us:
 loss, decay;
 death will have his
 our highness is so
 ty. [arm'd
 day, [shores,
 ers drown their
 ly'd to tears;
 is the rage
 our fearful land
 hearts harder than [sculps
 r thin and hairless
 s, with women's their female joints
 st thy crown:
 bend their bows
 thy state;
 rusty bills
 g and old rebel,
 ve power to tell.
 ll, thou tell'st a [got?
 re? where is Ba-
 here is Green?
 r us enemy
 n peaceful steps?
 ll pay for it.
 eace with Hollag-
 ade with him, in-
 , damn'd without any man!
 arm'd, that sting [Judas! rce worse than rrible hell make this offence! [war
 changing his pro-
 at deadly hate:—
 their peace is made nds: those whom [wound], ath's destroying
 e hollow ground.
 l the earl of Wilt-Bristol lost their

Am. Where is the duke my
 power?
 K. Rich. No matter where;
 man speak:
 Let's talk of graves, of worms,
 Make dust our paper, and with Write sorrow on the bosom of Let's choose executors, and ta
 And yet not so,—for what can Save our deposed bodies to the
 Our lands, our lives, and all are
 And nothing can we call our o
 And that small model of the be
 Which serves as paste and cov
 For heaven's sake, let us sit up
 And tell sad stories of the deal
 How some have been depos'd
 war;
 Some haunted by the ghosts the
 Some poison'd by their wives,
 kill'd;
 All murder'd:—For within the
 That rounds the mortal temple
 Keeps death his court: and the Scolding his state, and grinning
 Allowing him a breath, a little
 To monarchize, be fear'd, and Infusing him with self and vain
 As if this flesh, which walls ab
 Were brass impregnable; and,
 Comes at the last, and with a l
 Bores through his castle wall,
 king!
 Cover your heads, and mock
 With solemn reverence; throw Tradition, form, and ceremoni
 For you have but mistook me a
 I live with bread like you, feel u
 Need friends:—Subjected thus
 How can you say to me—I am
 Car. My lord, wise men n present woes,
 But presently prevent the way
 To fear the foe, since fear oppo
 Gives, in your weakness, stre
 foe,
 And so your follies fight again
 Fear, and be slain; no more fight:
 And fight and die, is death des
 Where fearing dying, pays dent
 Am. My father hath a pow
 And learn to make a body of a K. Rich. 'Thou chid'st me wel ingbroke, I come
 To change blows with thee for o
 This ague-fit of fear is over-blo
 An easy task it is, to win our o Say, Scroop, where lies our
 power?
 Speak sweetly, man, although Scroop. Men judge by the co
 The state and inclination of
 So may you by my dull and he
 My tongue hath but a heavie
 I play the torturer, by small an
 To lengthen out the worst that n
 Your uncle York hath join'd wit
 And all your northern castles y
 And all your southern gentlemen
 Upon his party."
 K. Rich. Thou hast said eno Beadrew't thee, cousin, which
 forth
 Of that sweet way I was in to say you now! What comfort have we now, I'll hate him everlastingly, [now?]

his name be of comfort any more,
a first castle; there I'll give away;
my wife's slave, shall kindly use every power I have, discharge; and let them

at the hand that both come here to grow,
have none:—let us men speak again
for this, for counsel is but vain.

My king, one word.

Alack, He does me double wrong, wounds me with the fathering of his
language.

My followers, let them hence:—
Richard's night, to Bolingbroke's fair
day.

THE III.—Wales.—Before First Castle.

with Arms and Colours, BOLINGBROKE, [Enter; YORK, NORTHUMBERLAND, and
others.

Reg. So that by this intelligence we learn,
Walesmen are dispers'd; and Salisbury
me to meet the king, who lately landed,
leaves few private friends, upon this coast.
With this news is very fair and good, my
lord;

and, not far from hence, hath hid his head.
Oh, it would become the lord Northumberland,

up—king Richard:—Alack the heavy day,
on such a sacred king should hide his head!
With your grace mistakes me; only to be
I his title out.

With the time hath been, [brief;]
with you have been so brief with him, he would not so brief with you, to shorten you,
taking so the head, your whole head's
length.

With. Mistake not, uncle, further than you should.

With. Take not, good cousin, further than you should, [head.]

With you mistake: The heavens are o'er your king. I know it, uncle; and oppose not will against their will.—But who comes
here?

Enter Percy.

Al. Harry; what, will not this castle yield?
With. The castle royally is mann'd, my lord,
that thy entrance.

With. Royally!

With. It contains no king?

With. Yes, my good lord,

both contains a king; king Richard lies in the limits of yon lime and stone:
with him are the lord Aumerle, lord Salisbury,

Stephen Scroop; besides a clergyman
of reverence, who, I cannot learn.

With. Belike, it is the bishop of Carlisle.

With. Noble lord

to the rude ribs of that ancient castle;
rough brass trumpet send the breath of this ruin'd ears, and thus deliver. [parley]
my Bolingbroke

both his knees doth kiss king Richard's
and sends allegiance, and true faith of heart,
his most royal person: hither come
himself to lay my arms and power;
willed that, my banishment repeal'd,
and lands restor'd again, be freely granted:

If not, I'll use the advantage of my power,
And lay the summer's dust with showers of
blood.

With. 'Tis from the wounds of slaughter'd English—
The which, how far off from the mind of Bol-
ingbroke

It is, such crimson tempest should bedrench
The fresh green lap of fair king Richard's land,
My stooping duty tenderly shall show.

Go, signify as much; while here we march
Upon the grassy carpet of this plain.—

[NORTHUMBERLAND advances to the Castle, with a Trumpet.

Let's march without the noise of threatening
drum,

That from the castle's tetter'd battlements
Our fair appointments may be well perceiv'd.
Methinks, king Richard and myself should
With no less terror than the elements [meet
Of fire and water, when their thund'ring shock
At meeting tears the cloudy cheeks of heaven.
Be he the fire, I'll be the yielding water:
The rage be his, while on the earth I rain
My waters; on the earth, and not on him.
March on, and mark king Richard how he looks.

A parol sounded, and answered by another Trumpet within. Flourish. Enter on the walls King RICHARD, the Bishop of CARLISLE, AUWERLE, SCROOP, and SALISBURY.

York. See, see, king Richard doth himself
appear,

As doth the blushing discontented sun
From out the fiery portal of the east;
When he perceives the envious clouds are bent
To dim his glory, and to stain the track
Of his bright passage to the occident.
Yet looks he like a king; behold, his eye,
As bright as is the eagle's, lightens forth
Controlling majesty; Alack, alack, for woe,
That any harm should stain so fair a show!

With. We are amaz'd; and thus long have we stood

To watch the fearful bending of thy knee,
[To NORTHUMBERLAND.]

Because we thought ourself thy lawful king:
And if we be, how dare thy joints forget
To pay their awful duty to our presence?
If we be not, show us the hand of God
That hath dismiss'd us from our stewardship;
For well we know, no hand of blood and bone
Can gripe the sacred handle of our sceptre,
Unless he do profane, steal, or usurp.

And though you think, that all, as you have
done,

Have torn their souls, by turning them from
And we are barren, and bereft of friends;—

Yet know,—my master, God omnipotent,
Is must'ring in his clouds, on our behalf,
Armies of pestilence; and they shall strike
Your children yet unborn, and unbegot,
That lift your vassal hands against my head,
And threat the glory of my precious crown.

Tell Bolingbroke, (for yond, methinks, he is,)
That every stride he makes upon my land,
Is dangerous treason: He is come to ope
The purple testament of bleeding war;
But ere the crown he looks for live in peace,
Ten thousand bloody crowns of mothers' sons
Shall ill become the flower of England's face;
Change the complexion of her maid-pale peace
To scarlet indignation, and bedew
Her pastures' grass with faithful English blood.

o Penn.
i Rich. II.

† Plough.

; Short.
j Parly.

o Soil.

KING RICHARD II.

forbid, our lord

And arms

noble cousin,

only kiss thy hand;

he swears,

randaire's bones;

your bloods,

ne most gracious

arlike Gaunt;

of himself,

worn or said,—

ether scope,

end to beg

in his knees:

ented once,

minend* to rust,

and his heart

gesty.

nce, is just;

credit him.

, say,—thus tho-

come hither;

er demands

contradiction:

ce thou hast

and commends.—

, do we not,

[To AUMERLE.

ak so fair?

erland, and send

die?

's fight with gen-

ends their help-

nd' that e'er this ad banishment

ake it off again

at I were as great

my name!

have been!

et be now!

'll give thee scope

both thee and me.

es back from Bong do now? Must

he be depos'd?

Must he lose

ame, let it go:

et heads;

ermitage;

man's gown;

of wood;

alking-staff;

ved saints;

ittle grave,

ore grave:—

's highway, [feet

, where subjects'

sovereign's head:

now whilst I live;

pon my head—

y tender-hearted

h despised tears;

odge the summer

evolving land.

* Softness.

Or shall we play the wantons
And make some pretty mate
tears?

As thus:—To drop them still Till they have fretted us a pa
Within the earth; and, therein
Two kinsmen, digg'd their gra
eyes?

Would not this ill do well?—
I talk but idly, and you mock
Most mighty prince, my lord!
What says king Bolingbroke?
Give Richard leave to live til
You make a leg,* and Boling North. My lord, in the bas attend

To speak with you; may't ple
K. Rich. Down, down, I co
ing Phaeton,

Wanting the manage of unrol
[North.]
In the base court? Base coi grow base,

To come at traitors' calls, and In the base court? Come dow down, king!

For night-owls shriek, when should sing. [E

Boling. What says his maj
North. Sorrow and grief of Makes him speak fondly,† lik
Yet he is come.

Enter King RICHARD, and below.

Boling. Stand all apart,
And show fair duty to his ma
My gracious lord,—

K. Rich. Fair cousin, y
princely knee,
To make the base earth prom
Me rather had, my heart mig
Than my unpleas'd eye see y
Up, cousin, up; your heart u
Thus high at least, [Touch
although your knee t

Boling. My gracious lord,
mine own.

K. Rich. Your own is your
and all.

Boling. So far be mine, m
lord,

As my true service shall dem

K. Rich. Well you deserve serve to have,
That know the strong'st m
Uncle, give me your hand: m Tears show their love, but
dies.—

Cousin, I am too young to be Though you are old enough t
What you will have, I'll give
For do we must, what force
Set on towards London:—Ce

Boling. Yea, my good lord

K. Rich. Then I must not

SCENE IV.—Langley.—Th
Garden.

Enter the QUEEN, and t

Queen. What sport shall this garden,
To drive away the heavy tho
I Lady. Madam, we'll play

* A bow.

† Lower.

'Twill make me think,
it is full of rubs, and that my fortune
is not the bias.*

Madam, we will dance.
My legs can keep no measure in delight, [grief:
poor heart no measure keeps in no dancing, girl; some other sport.
Madam, we'll tell tales.

Of sorrow, or of joy?
Of either, madam.
Of neither, girl:
ay, being altogether wanting,
remember me the more of sorrow;
nay, being altogether had,
more sorrow to my want of joy:
I have, I need not to repeat;
I want, it boots† not to complain.
Madam, I'll sing.
Tis well, that thou hast cause;
should'st please me better, would'st
me weep.

I could weep, madam, would it do me good.
And I could weep, would weeping
do me good,
I borrow any tear of thee.
Here come the gardeners:
into the shadow of these trees.—

THE GARDENER, and two SERVANTS.
bedness unto a row of pins,
lack of state; for every one doth so change: Woe is forerun with woe.

[QUEEN and LADIES retire.
to, bind thou up yon' dangling apric-
ocks,
to unruly children, make their sire
oppression of their prodigal weight;
supportance to the bending twigs.—
and like an executioner,
heads of too-fast-growing sprays,
too lofty in our commonwealth:
be even in our government.—
employ'd, I will go root away
me weeds, that without profit suck
fertility from wholesome flowers.
Why, should we, in the compass of pale,‡
and form, and due proportion,
as in a model, our firm estate?
sea-walled garden, the whole land,
woods; her fairest flowers chok'd up,
trees all unprun'd, her hedges ruin'd,
all disorder'd, and her wholesome
with caterpillars? [herbs

told thy peace:—
ath suffer'd this disorder'd spring,
himself met with the fall of leaf:
is that his broad-spreading leaves
id shelter,
d'd in eating him to hold him up,
d'd up, root and all, by Bolingbroke;
he earl of Wiltshire, Bushy, Green.

What, are they dead?
They are; and Bolingbroke is the wasteful king.—Oh! What pity is it, [land,
had not so trimm'd and dress'd his his garden! We at time of year in the bark, the skin of our fruit-trees;
ing over-proud with sap and blood,
much riches it confound itself:

* Fixed on one side of the bowl which turns it straight line.

† Inclosure. ‡ Figures planted in box.

Had he done so to great and growing men,
They might have liv'd to bear, and he to taste
Their fruits of duty. All superfluous branches
We lop away, that bearing boughs may live:
Had he done so, himself had borne the crown,
Which waste of idle hours hath quite thrown
down.

I Serv. What, think you then, the king shall be depos'd;

Gard. Depress'd he is already; and depos'd,
Tis doubt,* he will be; Letters came last
night

To a dear friend of the good duke of York's,
That tell black tidings.

Queen. O, I am press'd to death,
Through want of speaking!—Thou, old Adam's likeness, [Coming from her concealment.
Set to dress this garden, how dares Thy harsh-rude tongue sound this displeasing
news?

What Eve, what serpent hath suggested thee
To make a second fall of cursed man?
Why dost thou say, king Richard is depos'd?
Dar'st thou, thou little better thing than earth, Divine his downfall? Say, where, when, and how, [wretch.

Cam'st thou by these ill tidings? speak, thou
Gard. Pardon me, madam: little joy have I,
To breathe this news; yet, what I say, is true.
King Richard, he is in the mighty hold Of Bolingbroke; their fortunes both are weigh'd:

In your lord's scale is nothing but himself,
And some few vanities that make him light;
But in the balance of great Bolingbroke,
Besides himself, are all the English peers,
And with that odds he weighs king Richard
down.

Post you to London, and you'll find it so;
I speak no more than every one doth know.

Queen. Nimble mischance, that art so light of foot,

Doth not thy embassy belong to me,
And am I last that knows it? O, thou think'st
To serve me last, that I may longest keep Thy sorrow in my breast.—Come, ladies, go,
To meet at London London's king in woe.—
What, was I born to this! that my sad look Should grace the triumph of great Boling-
broke?—

Gardener, for telling me this news of woe,
I would, the plants thou graft'st, may never grow. [Exit QUEEN and LADIES.

Gard. Poor queen! so that thy state might be no worse,

I would, my skill were subject to thy curse.—
Here did she drop a tear; here, in this place,
I'll set a bank of rue, sour herb of grace:
Rue, even for ruth,† here shortly shall be seen,
In the remembrance of a weeping queen.

[Exit.

ACT IV.

SCENE I.—London.—Westminster Hall.

The Lords spiritual on the right side of the Throne;
the Lords temporal on the left; the Commons
below. Enter BOLINGBROKE, AUMERLE, SUR-REY, NORTHUMBERLAND, PERCY, FITZWATER, another LORD, Bishop of CARLISLE, Abbot of WESTMINSTER, and Attendants. Officers behind, with BAGOT.

Boling. Call forth Bagot:—
Now, Bagot, freely speak thy mind;
What thou dost know of noble Gloster's death;

* No doubt.

† Pity.

KING RICHARD II.

at it with the king, and who per-
d
office of his timeless end.
set before my face the lord Auman, stand forth, and look upon
man.
lord Aumerle, I know your dar-vague
may what once it hath deliver'd.
time when Gloster's death was led,
—Is not my arm of length,
from the restless English court
to my uncle's head?
other talk, that very time,
say, that you had rather refuse
a hundred thousand crowns, Broke's return to England;
how blest this land would be,
cousin's death.
ea, and noble lords,
shall I make to this base man?
dishonour my fair stars,
to give him chastisement?
or have mine honour soil'd
under of his stand'rous lips.—
gage, the manual seal of death,
thee out for hell: I say, thou liest,
saints, what thou hast said, is blood, though being all too base temper of my knightly sword.
got, forbear, thou shalt not take tempting one, I would he were the presence, that hath mov'd me so.
at thy valour stand on sympathies,
gage, Aumerle, in gage to thine:
sua that shows me where thou
st, [it,
say, and vauntingly thou spak'st
cause of noble Gloster's death.
st it, twenty times thou liest;
urn thy falsehood to thy heart,
forged, with my rapier's point.
dar'st not, coward, live to see
day.
by my soul, I would it were this water, thou art damn'd to hell for merle, thou liest; his honour is as
l, as thou art all unjust;
ou art so, there I throw my gage,
u thee to the extremest point
athing; seize it, if thou dar'st.
at I do not, may my hands rot off,
randish more revengeful steel
tering helmet of my foe!
te the earth to the like, forsworn
erle;
ce on with full as many lies otla'd in thy treacherous ear
sun: there is my honour's pawn;
the trial, if thou dar'st.
o sets me else! by heaven, I'll
y at all:
s and spirits in one breast,
enty thousand such as you.
lord Fitzwater, I do remember
e Aumerle and you did talk.

• Untimely.

Fitz. My lord, 'tis true: yo
then;
And you can witness with Surrey. As false, by heav
is true.
Fitz. Surrey, thou liest.
Surrey. Dishonourable be
That lie shall lie so heavy o
That it shall render vengeance
Till thou the lie-giver, and
In earth as quiet as thy fath
In proof whereof, there is a Engage it to the trial if thou Fitz. How fondly dost th
horse!
If I dare eat, or drink, or b
I dare meet Surrey in a w
And spit upon him, whilst I
And lies, and lies: there is
To tie thee to my strong cor
As I intend to thrive in this Aumerle is guilty of my tru
Besides, I heard the banish
That thou, Aumerle, didst
To execute the noble duke Aumerle. Some honest Christi
gage,
That Norfolk lies: here do I
If he may be repeal'd to try Boling. These differences
gage,
Till Norfolk be repeal'd: re
And, though mine enemy, n
To all his land and signori
turn'd,
Against Aumerle we will b
Car. That honourable d seen.—
Many a time hath banish'd
For Jesu Christ; in glorious Streaming the ensign of the Against black Pagans, Tur
And, toil'd with works of w
To Italy; and there, at Ven
His body to that pleasant co
And his pure soul unto his Under whose colours he had Boling. Why, bishop, is N Car. As sure as I live, my Boling. Sweet peace cond to the bosom
Of good old Abraham!—Lo
Your differences shall all re
Till we assign you to your d
Enter York, att
York. Great duke of Lan
thee
From plume-pluck'd Richard
Adopts thee heir, and his hi
To the possession of thy roy Ascend his throne, descend
And long live Henry, of the Boling. In God's name, I'll throne.
Car. Marry, God forbid!—
Worst in this royal presence
Yet best befitting me to sp
Would God, that any in this
Were enough noble to be up
Of noble Richard; then true Learn him forbearance from What subject can give sente
And who sits here, that is a ject!

• Noted.

are not judg'd, but they are by to hear,
 Apparent guilt be seen in them:
 The figure of God's majesty,
 His steward, deputy elect,
 I crowned, planted many years,
 By subject and inferior breath,
 Himself not present? O, forbid it, God,
 A Christian climate, souls refin'd Show so heinous, black, obscene a
 deed!

O subjects, and a subject speaks,
 Pity heaven thus boldly for his king.
 Of Hereford here, whom you call king,
 Traitor to proud Hereford a king.
 To crown him, let me prophesy,—
 Of English shall manure the ground,
 As ages groan for this foul act;
 All go sleep with Turks and Infidels,
 This seat of peace, tumultuous wars
 With kin, and kind with kind confusion, horror, fear, and mutiny, [found;
 To inhabit, and this land be call'd
 Of Golgotha, and dead men's skulls.
 Fear this house against this house,
 In woofullest division prove,
 To fall upon this cursed earth
 Resist it, let it not be so,
 O, child's children, cry against you—
 For!

We'll have you argu'd, Sir, and for
 your pains,
 A treason we arrest you here.—
 Of Westminster, be it your charge
 him safely till his day of trial—
 Ease you, lords, to grant the common's
 suit.

Fetch hither Richard, that in common view
 surrender; so we shall proceed suspicion.

I will be his conduct." [Exit.

Lords, you that are here under our arrest, [answer:—

your sureties for your days of answer we beholden to your love, [To CAR-TILF.

Look'd for at your helping hands

YORK, with KING RICHARD, and Officers bearing the Crown, &c.

A. Alack, why am I sent for to a king,
 have shook off the regal thoughts
 with I reign'd? I hardly yet have learn'd salute, flatter, bow, and bend my knee.—

Now leave a while to tutor me submission. Yet I well remember court of these men. Were they not mine?

I not sometime cry, all hail! to me?
 I did to Christ: but he, in twelve,
 ruth in all, but one; I, in twelve thousand, none.

O the king!—Will no man say, amen?
 O the priest and clerk? Well then, amen.
 O the king! although I be not he,
 I, amen, if heaven do think him me.—
 What service am I sent for hither?

To do that office, of thine own good
 will,

Thine majesty did make thee offer,— Ignation of thy state and crown
 by Bolingbroke.

A. Give me the crown:—Here, cousin,
 seize the crown,

Here, on this side, my hand; on that side,
 thine.

Now is this golden crown like a deep well,
 That owes* two buckets filling one another;
 The emptier ever dancing in the air,
 The other down, unseen, and full of water:
 That bucket down, and full of tears, am I, Drinking my grief, whilst you mount up on high.

Boling. I thought you had been willing to resign.

K. Rich. My crown, I am, but still my griefs are mine.

You say my glories and my state depose,
 But not my griefs; still am I king of those.

Boling. Part of your cares you give me with your crown.

K. Rich. Your cares set up, do not pluck my cares down.

My care is—loss of care, by old care done;
 Your care is—gain of care, by new care won;
 The cares I give, I have, though given away;
 They tend the crown, yet still with me they
 stay.

Boling. Are you contented to resign the crown?

K. Rich. Ay, no,—no, ay;—for I must nothing be.

Therefore no no, for I resign to thee.

Now mark me how I will undo myself.—
 I give this heavy weight from off my head,
 And this unwieldy sceptre from my hand,
 The pride of kingly sway from out my heart,
 With mine own tears I wash away my balm,
 With mine own hands I give away my crown,
 With mine own tongue deny my sacred state,
 With mine own breath release all duties.
 All pomp and majesty I do forswear, [oaths.
 My manors, rents, revenues, I forego,
 My acts, decrees, and statutes, I deny
 God pardon all oaths, that are broke to me!
 God keep all vows unbroke, are made to thee!
 Make me, that nothing have, with nothing
 griev'd; [chief'd!

And thou with all pleas'd, that hast all along may'st thou live in Richard's seat to sit,
 And soon lie Richard in an earthly pit!
 God save king Henry, unking'd Richard says,
 And send him many years of sunshine days!—
 What more remains?

North. No more, but that you read [Offering a Paper.

These accusations, and these grievous crimes,
 Committed by your person, and your followers,
 Against the state and profit of this land;
 That, by confessing them, the souls of men
 May deem that you are worthily depos'd.

K. Rich. Must I do so? and must I ravel
 out

My wear'd-up follies? Gentle Northumberland,
 If thy offences were upon record,
 Would it not shame thee in so fair a troop,
 To read a lecture of them? If thou would'st,
 There should'st thou find one heinous article,—
 Containing the deposing of a king,
 And cracking the strong warrant of an oath,— Mark'd with a blot, damn'd in the book of heaven.—

Nay, all of you, that stand and look upon me,
 Whilst that my wretchedness doth bait me,
 [hands,

Though some of you, with Pilate, wash your Showing an outward pity, yet you Pilates
 Have here deliver'd me to my sour cross,
 And water cannot wash away your sin.

KING RICHARD II.

h, read o'er these

all of tears, I can-

hem not so much,
traitors here.

on myself,
the rest:
om's consent,
ly of a king;
reignty, a slave;
tate, a peasant.

, thou haught,† in-

o name, no title,— n me at the font,—
heavy day,
inters out,
me to call myself!
ing of snow,
Bolingbroke,
ar-drops'
and yet not greatly et in England,

er straight;
a face I have,
mesty.

d fetch a looking-
Exit an Attendant.
er, while the glass

ment'at me ere I

my lord Northum-

I not then be satis-

satisfied: I'll read

indeed
, and that's—my-

with a Glass.

rein will I read.—
with sorrow struck
of mine,
ust—O, flattering
perity, [glass,
this face the face,
household roof
a? Was this the

beholders wink?
so many follies,
Bolingbroke?

face;
face;

against the ground.
undred shivers.—
of this sport,—
destroy'd my face.
your sorrow bath [destroy'd

Ha! let's see:—
all within;
of lament
unseen grief,
the tortur'd soul;
and I thank thee,

ot only giv'at

Haughty

Me cause to wait, but teacher
How to lament the cause. I'
And then be gone, and troubl Shall I obtain it?

Boling. Name it, fair cousin
K. Rich. Fair cousin? Wl than a king:

For, when I was a king, my f
Were then but subjects; bein
I have a king here to my flath
Being so great, I have no nee

Boling. Yet ask.
K. Rich. And shall I have?

Boling. You shall.

K. Rich. Then give me leav

Boling. Whither?

K. Rich. Whither you will your sights.

Boling. Go, some of you, c
Tower.

K. Rich. O, good! Conve
are you all,

That rise thus nimbly by a tri [Exeunt K. RICHARD, & Guard.

Boling. On Wednesday ne set down

Our coronation: lords, prepar [Exeunt all but the A CARLISLE, &

Abbot. A woful pageant h held.

Car. The woe's to come;
unborn

Shall feel this day as sharp to Aum. You holy clergymen,

To rid the realm of this perni
Abbot. Before I freely spea

You shall not only take the s
To bury: mine intents, but to Whatever I shall happen to d

I see your brows are full of d

Your hearts of sorrow, and yc
Come home with me to suppe

A plot, shall show us all a m

ACT V.

SCENE I.—London.—A S
the Tower.

Enter QUEEN, and I

Queen. This way the king w
the way

To Julius Caesar's ill-erected
To whose flint bosom my cons
Is doom'd a prisoner, by prou
Here let us rest, if this rebell
Have any resting for her true

Enter King RICHARD, &

But soft, but see, or rather de
My fair rose wither: Yet loo
That you in pity may dissolve
And wash him fresh again
tears.--

Ah, thou, the model where old Thou map of honour; thou tomb,

And not king Richard; thou inn.

Why should hard-favour'd g
When triumph is become an s

* Jugglers, also robbers.

† Lower of London.

‡ Ca

§ Pi

KING RICHARD II.

not with grief, fair woman, do too sudden : learn, good soul,
 ever state a happy dream,
 rak'd, the truth of what we are his : I am sworn brother, sweet,
 ity ; and he said I [France,
 ague till death. Hie thee to ee in some religious house.
 must win a new world's crown,
 nine hours here have stricken

is my Richard both in shape and [broke and weakened ? Hath Boling-intellect ? hath he been in thy

thrusteth forth his paw,
 the earth, if nothing else, with

'd, and wilt thou, pupil-like,
 ction wildly ? kiss the rod ;
 age with base humility,
 a, and a king of beasts ?
 ing of beasts, indeed ; if aught
 like,

a happy king of men.
 queen, prepare thee hence for
 : [tak'st,
 end, and that even here thou
 ath-bed, my last living leave.
 low nights, sit by the fire folks ; and let them tell thee
 long ago betid.* [tales bid good night, to quit their imentable fall of me, [grief, earers weeping to their beds.
 enseless brands will sympathize
 at of thy moving tongue,
 mon, weep the fire out :
 I mourn in ashes, some coal-
 ing of a rightful king. [black,

ERTHMBERLAND, attended.

rd, the mind of Bolingbroke is
 d ;
 misfret, not unto the Tower.—
 here is order ta'en for you ;
 peed you must away to France.
 orthumberland, thou ladder
 withal
 Bolingbroke ascends my throne,
 not be many hours of age
 ere foul sin, gathering head,
 o corruption : thou shalt think,
 ide the realm, and give thee
 helping him to all ; [half,
 nak, that thou, which know'st
 y
 btful kings, wilt know again,
 little urg'd, another way
 headlong from the usurped

ked friends converts to fear ;
 do ; and hate turns one, or both,
 ger, and deserved death.
 wilt be on my head, and there
 " [with.
 d part ; for you must part forth-nably divorc'd?—Bad man, ye
 ,
 riage ; 'twixt my crown and me ;
 vixt me and my married wife.—
 the oath 'twixt thee and me ;
 , for with a kiss 'twas made.—

† So even with them.

Part us, Northumberland
 north,
 Where shivering cold an
 My wife to France ; from pomp,
 She came adorned hither
 Sent back like Hallowmas
 Queen. And must we b
 part ?

K. Rich. Ay, hand from mine heart from heart.

Queen. Banish us both, and
 with me.

North. That were some ! — but

Queen. Then whither he

K. ?

Weep in F
 Better ..
 Go, you say

Queen ? it way

K. R. for one step : a groan, and way being short,

And piece the way out with a heavy heart.
 Come, come, in wooing sorrow let's be brief,
 Since, wedding it, there is such length in grief.
 One kiss shall stop our mouths, and dumbly
 part ;

Thus give I mine, and thus I take thy heart.

Queen. Give me mine own again ; 'twere no good part,

To take on me to keep, and kill thy heart.

So, now I have my own again, begone,
 That I may strive to kill it with a groan.

K. Rich. We make woe wanton with this fond delay :

Once more, adieu ; the rest let sorrow say.

[Exit.

SCENE II.—The same.—A Room in the Duke of York's Palace.

Enter YORK, and his DUCHESS.

Duch. My lord, you told me, you would tell
 the rest,

When weeping made you break the story off
 Of our two cousins coming into London.

York. Where did I leave ?

Duch. At that sad stop, my lord,

Where rude misgovern'd hands, from window's tops, [head.

Threw dust and rubbish on King Richard's

York. Then, as I said, the duke, great Bol-
 ingbroke,—

Mounted upon a hot and fiery steed,
 Which his aspiring rider seem'd to know,—

With slow, but stately pace, kept on his course, While all tongues cried—God save thee, Bol-ingbroke ! [spake,

You would have thought the very windows
 So many greedy looks of young and old

Through casements darted their desiring eyes
 Upon his visage ; and that all the walls,

With painted imag'ry, had said at once,—
 Jesu preserve thee ! welcome, Bolingbroke !

Whilst he, from one side to the other turning,
 Bare-headed, lower than his proud steed's
 neck,

* All-hallows, i. e. All-saints, Nov. 1.

† Never the higher

‡ Tapestry hung from the windows.

KING RICHARD II.

you, country-

pass'd along.
where rides he

eyes of men,
es the stage,
ters next,
ious:

ontempt, men's
[him;

cried, God save
welcome home:

sacred head;
he shook off,—

tears and smiles,
tience,—

strong purpose, [melted,

st perforce, have
ned him.

ese events;
our calm contents.

subjects now,
yet allow.

t.

Aumerle.

hard's friend,
Rutland now:

his truth,
made king.

Who are the vio-
[spring?

of the new-come
nor I greatly care

none, as one.

or this new spring

a come to prime,
hold those just:

my lord, they do.

know.

I purpose so.

at hangs without

see the writing.

sees it:

the writing.

to pardon me;

ence,

ld not have seen.

sons, Sir, I mean

or? [into

that he is enter'd

triumph day.

hat doth he with you art a fool.—

ardon me; I may

et me see it, I say.

ches it, and reads.

'traitor' slave!

my lord?

ere? [Enter a

horse

chery is here!

† Ever

nts.

Duch. Why, what is it, my York. Give me my boots,
horse:—

Now by mine honour, by my
I will approach the villain.

Duch. What's the matter?

York. Peace, foolish woman!

Duch. I will not peace:—W
son?

Ann. Good mother, be con-
Than my poor life must answer

Duch. Thy life answer!

Re-enter Servant, w

York. Bring me my boots
king.

Duch. Strike him, Aumerle
art amaz'd:*

Hence, villain; never more co

York. Give me my boots, I

Duch. Why, York, what v

Wilt thou not hide the trespass

Have we more sons? or are v

Is not my teeming date drur

And wilt thou pluck my hairs

And rob me of a happy mother

Is he not like thee? is he not

York. Thou fond mad won

Wilt thou conceal this dark

A dozen of them here have ta

And interchangeably set do

To kill the king at Oxford.

Duch. He shall be none;

We'll keep him here: Ther

York. Away,

Fond woman! were he twen

I would approach him.

Duch. Hadst thou groan'd

As I have done, thou'd'st be

But now I know thy mind,

That I have been disloyal to

And that he is a bastard, no

Sweet York, sweet husband

He is as like thee as a man

Not like to me, or any of my

And yet I love him

York. Make way, unruly

Duch. Alas, Aumerle; m

horse,

Spur, post; and get before

And beg thy pardon ere he

I'll not be long behind; that

I doubt not but to ride as fu

And never will I rise up fro

Till Bolingbroke have pard

Begone.

SCENE III.—Windsor.—A

Enter BOLINGBROKE as King,

Lords.

Boling. Can no man tell of

'Tis full three months, sin

last:—

If any plague hang over us,

I would to God, my lords, h

Inquire at London, 'mongst

For there, they say, he daily

With unrestrained loose com

Even such, they say, as stan

And beat our watch, and rut

While he, young, wanton, al

Takes on the point of honou

So dissolute a crew.

* I'mplead, confounded.

My lord, some two days since I saw
the prince;
him of these triumphs held at Oxford.

And what said the gallant?

His answer was,—he would unto the tews;

the common'st creature pluck a glove,
t it as a favour; and with that
t unhorse the lustiest challenger.

As discolute as desperate, yet, rough both
a sparkles of a better hope,
ter days may happily bring forth.
comes here?

Enter ARMERLE, hastily.

Where is the king?

What means

a, that he stares and looks so wildly?
lod save your grace. I do beseech
our majesty,

one conference with your grace alone.

Withdraw yourselves, and leave us
one alone.—

[Exit Percy and Lonan.
no matter with our cousin now?

be ever may my knees grow to the arth, [Kneels.

e cleave to my roof within my mouth,
ardon, ere I rise, or speak.

Intended, or committed, was this first, how heinous ere it be, [fault?
y after-love, I pardon thee.

hen give me leave that I may turn ic key,

an enter till my tale be done.

Have thy desire.

[ARMERLE locks the door.

Within.] My liege, beware, look to yself;

a traitor in thy presence there.

Villain, I'll make thee safe.

[Drawing.

by thy revengeful hand;

no cause to fear.

Within.] Open the door, secure, fool-
ardy king:

r love, speak treason to thy face?

door, or I will break it open.

[BOLINGBROKE opens the door.

Enter YORK.

What is the matter, uncle? speak;
death; tell us how near is danger,
ay arm us to encounter it.

Peruse this writing here, and thou talt know

in that my haste forbids me show.

remember, as thou read'st, thy pro-
ise past:

at me; read not my name there,

is not confederate with my hand.

I was, villain, ere thy hand did set it
own.—

can the traitor's bosom, king:

not love, begets his penitence:

pity him, lest thy pity prove that will sting thee to the heart.

O heinous, strong, and bold conspiacy!—

ither of a treacherous son!

er,* ironaculate, and silver fountain,

rece this stream through muddy pas-
ages,

his current, and defil'd himself!

* Transparent

Thy overflow of good converts to bad;

And thy abundant goodness shall excuse

This deadly blot in thy digressing* son.

York. So shall my virtue be his vice's bawd.

And he shall spend mine honour with his
shame,

As thriftless sons their scruping fathers' gold.

Mine honour lives when his dishonour dies,

Or my sham'd life in his dishonour lies:

Thou kill'st me in his life; giving him breath,

The traitor lives, the true man's put to death.

Duch. [Within.] What ho, my liege! for God's sake let me in.

Boling. What shrill-voic'd suppliant makes this eager cry?

Duch. A woman, and thine aunt, great king,
'tis I.

Speak with me, pity me, open the door;

A beggar begs, that never begg'd before.

Boling. Our scene is alter'd,—from a serious
thing,

And now chang'd to The Beggar and the King.†

My dangerous cousin, let your mother in;

I know, she's come to pray for your soul sin.

York. If thou do pardon, whosoever pray,

More sins, for this forgiveness, prosper may.

This fester'd joint cut off, the rest rents sound;

This, let alone, will all the rest confound.

Enter DUCHESS.

Duch. O king, believe not this hard-hearted
man;

Love, loving not itself, none other can.

York. Thou frantic woman, what dost thou maket here?

Shall thy old dugs once more a traitor rear?

Duch. Sweet York, be patient: Hear me,
gentle liege. [Kneels.

Boling. Rise up, good aunt,

Duch. Not yet, I thee beseech:

For ever will I kneel upon my knees,

And never see day that the happy sees,

Till thou give joy; until thou bid me joy,

By pardoning Ruland, my transgressing boy

Aunt. Unto my mother's prayers, I bend my knee [Kneels.

York. Against them both, my true joints bended be. [Kneels.

Ill may'st thou thrive, if thou grant any grace!

Duch. Pleads he in earnest? look upon his face; [Jest;

His eyes do drop no tears, his prayers are in His words come from his mouth, ours from our breast:

He prays but faintly, and would be denied;

We pray with heart, and soul, and all beside.

His weary joints would gladly rise, I know,

Our knees shall kneel till to the ground they
grow,

His prayers are full of false hypocrisy;

Ours of true zeal and deep integrity. [have

Our prayers do out-pray his; then let them

That mercy, which true prayers ought to have

Boling. Good aunt, stand up.

Duch. Nay, do not say—stand up,

But, pardon, first; and afterwards stand up.

And if I were thy nurse, thy tongue to teach,

Pardon—should be the first word of thy speech.

I never long'd to hear a word till now,

Say—pardon, king; let pity teach thee how:

The word is short, but not so short as sweet,

No word like pardon, for kings' mouths so meet.

* Transgressing

† An old ballad.

‡ No

KING RICHARD II.

king; say, par-
on pardon to de-
rd-hearted lord.
ust the word!—
in our land;
t understand.
set thy tongue

thou thine ear;
and prayers do
to rehearse.

in hand.
od shall pardon
a kneeling knee
it again;
t pardon twain,

urt.
rother-in-law,— orted crew,—
g them at the

ral powerst
traitors are:
world, I swear,
know where.
too, adieu:
and prove you

I pray God make [Exeunt.

SERVANT.

k the king, what
this living fear?

words.
oth he: he spake
did he not?

wistfully look'd
[man
t, thou wert the r from my heart;
t. Come, let's rid his foe.

[Exeunt.

Dungeon of the

GARD.

ying how I may

to the world:
s populous,
t myself,
mer it out.
e to my soul;
ee two beget

† Forces.

A generation of still-breeding
And these same thoughts
world:*

In humours, like the people
For no thought is content sort,—

As thoughts of things divine,
With scripples, and do set the Again at the word.

As thus,—Come little ones on
It is as hard to come, as for a c
To thread the postern of a man
Thought tending to ambition.
Unlikely wond'rs how these May tear a passage through t
Of this hard world, my ragge
And, for they cannot, die in t
Thoughts tending to confes
selves,—

That they be not the first of Nor shall not be the last lik.
Who, sitting in the stock
shame,—

That many have, and others
And in this thought they find Hearing their own misfortune
Of such as have before endur
Thus play I, in one person, in
And none contented. Someti
Then treason makes me wish
And so am I then crushing Persuades me I was better w
Then am I king'd again: and Think that I am unking'd by
And straight am nothing:
Nor I, nor any man, that but
With nothing shall be pleas'd
With being nothing.—Music

Ha, ha! keep time:—How sic is.

When time is broke, and no
So is it in the music of men's
And here have I the daintine
To check time broke in a disc
But, for the concord of my t
Had not an ear to hear my t
I wasted time, and now doth
For now hath time made m clock.

My thoughts are minutes;
they jar
Their watches on to mine ey
watch,

Whereto my finger, like a dial
is pointing still, in cleansing
Now, Sir, the sound, that tell Are clamorous groans, that
heart,

Which is the bell: So sighs
groans,
Show minutes, times, and
time

Runs posting on in Bolingbro
While I stand fooling here,
clock.†

This music mads me, let it so
For, though it have holpe
with,

n me, seems it will make
Yet blessing on his heart tha
For 'tis a sign of love, and
Is a strange brooch‡ in this

* His own body. † ‡ † Little gate. ‡ † ‡ Strike for him, like the figure of ‡ An ornamented buckle, and also

KING RICHARD II.

Enter GROOM.

Hail, royal prince!
 Thanks, noble peer;
 Not of us is ten groats too dear.
 How! and how comest thou hither,
 man never comes, but that sad dog
 give me food, to make misfortune live?
 I was a poor groom of thy stable,
 now,
 a wretched king; who, travelling towards York,
 had, at length have gotten leave
 on my sometimes' master's face.
 Yern'd my heart, when I beheld,
 streets, that coronation day,
 Bolingbroke rode on roan Barbary!
 that thou so often hast bestrid;
 that I so carefully have dress'd!
 Rode he on Barbary? Tell me, gentle friend,
 be under him?
 So proudly, as if he disdain'd the
 wind.
 So proud that Bolingbroke was on a back!
 hath eat bread from my royal hand;
 hath made him proud with clapping
 me.
 not stumble? Would he not fall
 now,
 he must have a fall,) and break the
 neck
 of our man that did usurp his back?
 no, horse! why do I rail on thee,
 created to be aw'd by man,
 to bear? I was not made a horse;
 bear a burden like an ass,
 d, and tir'd, by jauncing Boling-
 broke.

Enter KEEPER, with a Dish.

allow, give place; here is no longer
 my. [To the GROOM.
 If thou love me, 'tis time thou wert
 way.
 What my tongue dares not, that my ear shall say. [Exit.
 My lord, will't please you to fall to?
 Taste of it first, as thou art wont
 to do.
 My lord, I dare not; Sir Pierce of Exton, who come from the king, commands the contrary.
 The devil take Henry of Lancaster,
 and thee!
 is stale, and I am weary of it.
 [Beats the KEEPER.
 Help, help, help!

Enter EXTON, and Servants, armed.

How now? what means death in his rude assault?
 thy own hand yields thy death's instrument.
 [Snatching a weapon and killing one.
 and fill another room in hell.
 [He kills another, then EXTON strikes
him down.
 I shall burn in never-quenching fire,
 ere thus my person.—Exton, thy better hand

77000.

† Jaunting.

Hath with the king's blood
 own land.
 Mount, mount, my soul,
 high;
 Whilst my gross flesh sinks now
 die.

Exton. As full of valour, as Both have I spilt; O, wou-
 good!
 For now the devil, that told me—
 Says that this deed is chro-
 This dead king to the living
 Take hence the rest, and give . .

SCENE VI.—Windsor.—A Room in the Castle.Flourish. Enter BOLINGBROKE, and YORK, with Lords and Attendants.

Boling. Kind uncle York, the latest news
 we hear
 is—that the rebels have consum'd with fire
 Our town of Leicester in Gloucestershire;
 But whether they be ta'en, or slain, we hear
 not.

Enter NORTHUMBERLAND.

Welcome, my lord: What is the news?
 North. First, to thy sacred state wish I all happiness.
 The next news is,—I have to London sent
 The heads of Salisbury, Spencer, Blunt, and Kent:
 The manner of their taking may appear
 At large discours'd in this paper here.

[Presenting a paper.]

Boling. We thank thee, gentle Percy, for thy pains,
 And to thy worth will add right worthy gains.

Enter FITZWATER.

Fitz. My lord, I have from Oxford sent to London
 The heads of Brocas, and Sir Bennet Seely;
 Two of the dangerous consorted traitors,
 That sought at Oxford thy dire overthrow.
 Boling. Thy pains, Fitzwater, shall not be
 forgot;
 Right noble is thy merit, well I wot.

Enter PERCY, with the Bishop of CARLISLE.

Percy. The grand conspirator, abbot of Westminster,
 With clog of conscience, and sour melancholy,
 Hath yielded up his body to the grave;
 But here is Carlisle living, to abide
 Thy kingly doom, and sentence of his pride.
 Boling. Carlisle, this is your doom.— Choose out some secret place, some reverend room,
 More than thou hast, and with it joy thy life;
 So, as thou liv'st in peace, die free from strife;
 For though mine enemy thou hast ever been,
 High sparks of honour in thee have I seen.

Enter EXTON, with ATTENDANTS bearing a Coffin.

Exton. Great king, within this coffin I present
 Thy buried fear: herein all breathless lies
 The mightiest of thy greatest enemies,
 Richard of Bourdeaux, by me hither brought.
 Boling. Exton, I thank thee not; for thou hast wrought

TO RICHARD II.

fatal hand,
 famous land.
 With, my lord, did
 on that do poison
 wish him dead,
 murdered.
 thou for thy la-
 princely favour:
 gh the shade of

And never show thy head by Lords, I protest, my soul is fi
 That blood should sprinkle
 grow:
 Come, mourn with me for wh
 And put on sullen black ince
 I'll make a voyage to the Ho
 To wash this blood off from n
 March sadly after; grace
 here,
 In weeping after this untimel

* Immediately.

PART OF KING HENRY IV.

ve Archibald,
d Scot,

and bloody hour,
very,
news was told;
the very heat
did take horse,

ay
true-industrious
d from his horse,
each soil
his seat of ours;
th and welcome
dited; [news.
two-and-twenty

id Sir Walter see isoners, Hotspur eldest son [took
e irls of Athol,
teeth.
e spoil?
is it not?

o boast of.
ak'st me sad, and

umberland
st a son:
neur's tongue;
raightest plant;
o, and her pride:
raise of him,
e brow [prov'd,
hat it could be
y had exchang'd
where they lay,
-Plantagenet!
, and he mine.
ts —What think

the prisoners,
th surpriz'd,
I send me word,
e earl of Fife.
teaching, this is

ts;†
self, and bristle
ur dignity. [up or him to answer

we must neglect
ur council we rm the lords:
to us again;
be done,
red.

[Exeunt.

Another Room in

, and FALSTAFF.

of day is it, lad?
ited, with drink-ouring thee after
nches after noon,
emand that truly
now. What the hours.

on their feathers.

devil hast thou to do with the unless hours were cups of rapons, and clocks the tongu-dials of signs of leaping-house
sun himself a fair hot wench
laffata; I see no reason, w
be so superfluous to demand
day.

Fal. Indeed, you come nea for we, that take pursers, go seven stars; and not by Pl round ring knight so fair. A sweet wag, when thou art kin thy grace, (majesty, I shoul thou wilt have none,)—

P. Hen. What, none?

Fal. No, by my truth; not serve to be prologue to an egg

P. Hen. Well, how then?

Fal. Marry, then, sweet wa king, let not us, that are acqui body, be called thieves of the us be—Diana's foresters, g shade, minions* of the moon:
we be men of good government
as the sea is, by our noble an
the moon, under whose co steal.

P. Hen. Thou say'st well;
too: for the fortune of us, the men, doth ebb and flow like governed as the sea is, by th
prisel, now: A purse of gold snatched on Monday night,
lutely spent on Tuesday mo swearing—lay by;† and spe
bring in;‡ now, in as low an
the ladder: and, by and by, in the ridge of the gallows.

Fal. By the Lord, thou say's is not my hostess of the tave
wench?

P. Hen. As the honey of H of the castle. And is not a b sweet robe of durance?§

Fal. How now, how now,
in thy quips, and thy quidditie
have I to do with a buff jerkin

P. Hen. Why, what a pox h
my hostess of the tavern?

Fal. Well, thou hast called ing, many a time and oft.

P. Hen. Did I ever call for
part?

Fal. No; I'll give thee thy paid all there.

P. Hen. Yea, and elsewhere
com would stretch; and, wh
I have used my credit.

Fal. Yea, and so used it, tha apparent that thou art heir n
pry thee, sweet wag, shall t
standing in England when the resolution thus fobbed as it i crub of old father antic the la when thou art king, hang a th

P. Hen. No; thou shalt.

Fal. Shall I? O rare! By th
brave judge.

P. Hen. Thou judgest false;
thou shalt have the hanging of
so become a rare hangman.

Fal. Well, Hal, well; and * Favourites. † Stand still. ‡ § The dress of Sheriff's

h my humour, as well as waiting in I can tell you.

For obtaining of suits?
a, for obtaining of suits: whereof an bath no lean wardrobe. 'Sblood, melancholy as a gib^e cat, or a lugged

Or an old lion; or a lover's lute.
a, or the drone of a Lincolnshire

What sayest thou to a hare, or the of Moor-ditch?

u hast the most unsavoury similes;
deed, the most comparative, rascal-
et young prince,—But, Hal, I pr'yle me no more with vanity. I would ou and I knew where a commodity
mes were to be bought: An old lord ncil rated me the other day in the
at you, Sir; but I marked him not:
talked very wisely; but I regarded nd yet he taked wisely, and in the

Thou did'st well; for wisdom cries streets, and no man regards it.

hou hast damnable iteration;† and able to corrupt a saint. Thou hast harm upon me, Hal,—God forgive

Before I knew thee, Hal, I knew nd now am I, if a man should speak better than one of the wicked. I ver this life, and I will give it over;
d, an I do not, I am a villain; I'll for never a king's son in Christen-

Where shall we take a purse tock?

re thou wilt, lad, I'll make one; an all me villain, and baffle§ me.

I see a good amendment of life in praying, to purse-taking.

Enter POINS, at a distance.

, Hal, 'tis my vocation, Hal; 'tis
a man to labour in his vocation.
ow shall we know if Gadshill hath
-|| O, if men were to be saved by t hole in hell were hot enough for s the most omnipotent villain, that Stand, to a true¶ man.

Good morrow, Ned.

ood morrow, sweet Hal.—What ur Remorse? What says Sir John ugar? Jack, how agrees the devil out thy soul, that thou soldest him
riday last, for a cup of Madeira, apon's leg?

Sir John stands to his word, the ave his bargain; for he was never
r of proverbs, he will give the devil

en art thou damned for keeping thy he devil.

lse he had been damned for cozen-
l.

it, my lads, my lads, to-morrow
four o'clock, early at Gadshill:
ilgrims going to Canterbury with gs, and traders riding to London
es: I have visors* for you all, you for yourselves; Gadshill lies to-hester; I have bespoke supper to-ould be lib cat,—a Scotch term at this day

l. † Croak of a frog.
holy texts. ‡ Treat me with ignominy.
pointment. § Honeat.  Mask.

morrow night in Eastcheap; we may do it as secure as sleep: If you will go, I will stuff
your purses full of crowns; if you will not, tarry at home, and be hanged.

Fal. Hear me, Yedward; if I tarry at home,
and go not, I'll hang you for going.

Poins. You will, chops?

Fal. Hal, wilt thou make one?

P. Hen. Who, I rob? I a thief? not I, by my faith.

Fal. There's neither honesty, manhood, nor good fellowship in thee, nor thou camest not of the blood royal, if thou darest not stand for ten shillings.*

P. Hen. Well, then once in my days I'll be a mad-cap.

Fal. Why, that's well said.

P. Hen. Well, come what will, I'll tarry at home.

Fal. By the Lord, I'll be a traitor then, when thou art king.

P. Hen. I care not.

Poins. Sir John, I pr'ythee, leave the prince and me alone; I will lay him down such reasons for this adventure, that he shall go.

Fal. Well, may'st thou have the spirit of persuasion, and he the ears of profiting, that what thou speakest may move, and what he hears may be believed, that the true prince may (for recreation sake,) prove a false thief; for the poor abuses of the time want countenance.
Farewell: You shall find me in Eastcheap.

P. Hen. Farewell, thou latter spring! Farewell, All-hallown summer!† [Exit FALSTAFF.

Poins. Now, my good sweet honey lord, ride with us to-morrow; I have a jest to execute,
that I cannot manage alone. Falstaff, Bar-dolph, Peto, and Gadshill, shall rob those men that we have already way-laid; yourself, and I, will not be there: and when they have the booty, if you and I do not rob them, cut this head from my shoulders.

P. Hen. But how shall we part from them in setting forth?

Poins. Why, we will set forth before or after them, and appoint them a place of meeting, wherein it is at our pleasure to fail; and then will they adventure upon the exploit themselves: which they shall have no sooner achieved, but we'll set upon them.

P. Hen. Ay, but, 'tis like, that they will know us, by our horses, by our habits, and by every other appointment, to be ourselves.

Poins. Tut! our horses they shall not see,
I'll tie them in the wood; our visors we will change, after we leave them; and, sirrah, I have cases of buckram for the nonce,‡ to im-mask our noted outward garments.

P. Hen. But, I doubt, they will be too hard for us.

Poins. Well, for two of them, I know them to be as true-bred cowards as ever turned back;
and for the third, if he fight longer than he sees reason, I'll forswear arms. The virtue of this jest will be, the incomprehensible lies that this same fat rogue will tell us, when we meet at supper: how thirty, at least, he fought with; what wards, what blows, what extremities he endured; and, in the reproof§ of this,
lies the jest.

P. Hen. Well, I'll go with thee; provide us all things necessary, and meet me to-morrow night
in Eastcheap, there I'll sup. Farewell.

* The value of a coin called real or royal.

† Fine weather at All-hallown-tide, (i. e. All Saints, Nov. 1st,) is called a All-hallown summer.

‡ Occasion.

§ Confutation.

ACT PART OF KING HENRY IV.

[Exit Poins. and will a while and will a while idleness :

 sun;
 contagious clouds
 in the world,
 to be himself,
 are wonder'd at,
 and ugly mists
 strangle him.
 holidays,
 as to work ;
 they wish'd-for

are accidents.
 or I throw off,
 promised,
 word I am,
 en's hopes ;
 silent ground,
 er my fault,
 attract more eyes,
 to set it off.
 e a skill ;
 thank least I will.
 [Exit.

Another Room in the

MBERLAND, WOR-AITER BLUNT, and

been too cold and
 ities, [temperate,
 accordingly,
 but, be sure,
 be myself,
 an my condition ;
 oil, soft as young

of respect,
 pays, but to the ereign liege, little

be used on it ;
 oo which our own [hands

nee gone, for I see ye : O, Sir,

 and peremptory,
 et endure

ant brow. [need eave us ; when we e shall send for Exit WORCESTER.

[To NORTH.
 [manded, ighness' name de-

Holmedon took,
 such strength de-

ty : [nied
 isprision
 ot my son.

y no prisoners.
 light was done,
 and extreme toil,
 eg upon my sword
 eat, trimly dress'd,
 ischun, new reap'd,
 at harvest home ;

Disposition.
 ready account.

He was perfumed like a mill
 And 'twixt his finger and his
 A pouncet-box,* which ever
 He gave his nose, and took't
 Who, therewith angry, wh

there,
 Took it in snuff:—and still
 And, as the soldiers bore des
 He call'd them—untaught kr
 To bring a slovenly unhand
 Betwixt the wind and his nol
 With many holiday and lady
 He question'd me ; among th
 My prisoners, in your majest
 I then, all smarting, with
 To be so pester'd with a popi
 Out of my grief ; and my imp
 Answer'd neglectingly, I km
 He should, or he should not ;
 mad,

To see him shine so brisk, an
 And talk so like a waiting-g
 Of guns, and drums, and wo
 the mark!)

And telling me, the sovereign
 Was parmaceti, for an inwar
 And that it was great pity, a
 That villanous saltpetre shou
 Out of the bowels of the har
 Which many a good tall f
 So cowardly ; and, but for th
 He would himself have been
 This bald unjointed chat of
 I answer'd indirectly, as I
 And, I beseech you, let not Come current for an accusati
 Betwixt my love and your hi Blunt. The circumstances
 my lord,

Whatever Harry Percy then
 To such a person, and in suc
 At such a time, with all the May reasonably die, and ne
 To do him wrong, or any wa
 What then he said, so he un

K. Hen. Why, yet he doth
 But with proviso, and excep
 That we, at our own cha
 straight

His brother-in-law, the fooli
 Who, on my soul, hath wilfr
 The lives of those that be di
 Against the great magicia
 dower ;

Whose daughter, as we h Hath lately married. Shall Be emptied, to redeem a tra
 Shall we buy treason ? and i
 When they have lost and for
 No, on the barren mountain
 For I shall never hold that Whose tongue shall ask me

To ransom home revolted M
 Hot. Revolted Mortimer !
 He never did fall off, my so
 But by the chance of war ;—

Needs no more but one toi
 wounds,

Those mouthed wounds, w
 When on the gentle Severn
 In single opposition, hand t
 He did confound† the best
 In changing hardiment wi
 er :

* A small box for snuff or other † Parrot. ‡ Fain.
 § Sign an indenture. ¶ Expenses

as they breath'd, and three times did they drink,
 content, of swift Severn's flood;
 and, affrighted with their bloody looks,
 lily among the trembling reeds,
 his crisp* head in the hollow bank,
 dead with these valiant combatants.
 I have and rotten policy
 working with such deadly wounds;
 could the noble Mortimer
 so many, and all willingly:
 him not be slander'd with revolt.
 Thou dost belie him, Percy, thou
 dost belie him,
 did encounter with Glendower;
 as well have met the devil alone,
 Glendower for an enemy.
 shamed? But, sirrah, henceforth at hear you speak of Mortimer:
 your prisoners with the speediest
 means,
 all hear in such a kind from me
 I please you.—My lord Northumber-
 land,
 is your departure with your son:—
 our prisoners, or you'll hear of it.
 that King HENRY, BLUNT, and Train.
 and if the devil come and roar for
 him,
 send them:—I will after straight,
 him so; for I will ease my heart,
 it be with hazard of my head.
 What, drunk with choler? stay, and ease awhile;
 is your uncle.

Re-enter WORCESTER.

peak of Mortimer?
 I will speak of him; and let my soul
 cry, if I do not join with him:
 his part, I'll empty all these veins,
 I my dear blood drop by drop i'the
 I lift the down-trod Mortimer [dust,
 'the air as this unthankful king,
 grate and canker'd Bolingbroke.
 Brother, the king hath made your nephew mad. [To WORCESTER.
 Who struck this heat up, after I was
 one?
 e will, forsooth, have all my prison-
 n I urg'd the ransom once again [ers;
 ife's brother, then his cheek look'd
 pale;
 ay face he turn'd an eye of death,
 g even at the name of Mortimer.
 cannot blame him: Was he not pro-
 claim'd,
 rd that dead is, the next of blood?
 He was; I heard the proclamation:
 it was, when the unhappy king wrongs in us God pardon!) did set Irish expedition; [forth
 ence he, intercepted, did return
 pos'd, and shortly, murdered.
 and for whose death, we in the world's wide mouth
 maliz'd, and foully spoken of.
 but, soft, I pray you; Did king Richard then
 my brother Edmund Mortimer
 be crown?
 He did; myself did hear it.
 I say, then I cannot blame his cousin
 king,

ried.

† Ungrateful.

That wish'd him on the barren mountains
 starv'd.
 But shall it be, that you,—that set the crown
 Upon the head of this forgetful man;
 And, for his sake, wear the detested blot
 Of murd'rous subordination,—shall it be,
 That you a world of curses undergo;
 Being the agents, or base second means,
 The cords, the ladder, or the hangman rather?—
 O, pardon me, that I descend so low,
 To show the line, and the predicament,
 Wherein you range under this subtle king.—
 Shall it, for shame, be spoken in these days,
 Or fill up chronicles in time to come,
 That men of your nobility and power,
 Did gage them both in an unjust behalf,—
 As both of you, God pardon it! have done,—
 To put down Richard, that sweet lovely rose,
 And plant this thorn, this canker,* Boling-broke? [ken,
 And shall it, in more shame, be further spo-
 That you are fool'd, discarded, and shook off
 By him, for whom these shames ye underwent?
 No; yet time serves, wherein you may redeem
 Your banish'd honours, and restore yourselves
 Into the good thoughts of the world again:
 Revenge the jeering, and disdain'd† contempt,
 Of this proud king; who studies, day and
 To answer all the debt he owes to you, [night,
 Even with the bloody payment of your deaths.
 Therefore, I say,—
 Wor. Peace, cousin, say no more:
 And now I will unclasp a secret book,
 And to your quick-conceiving discontents
 I'll read you matter deep and dangerous;
 As full of peril, and advent'rous spirit,
 As to o'er-walk a current, roaring loud,
 On the unsteadfast footing of a spear.
 Hot. If he fall in, good night:—or sink swim:
 Send danger from the east unto the west,
 So honour cross it from the north to south,
 And let them grapple;—O! the blood more
 To rouse a lion, than to start a hare. [stirs,
 North. Imagination of some great exploit Drives him beyond the bounds of patience.
 Hot. By heaven, methinks, it were an easy
 leap, [moon;
 To pluck bright honour from the pale-fac'd
 Or dive unto the bottom of the deep,
 Where fathom-line could never touch the
 ground,
 And pluck up drowned honour by the locks;
 So he, that doth redeem her thence, might Without corival,‡ all her dignities: [wear,
 But out upon this half-fac'd fellowship!§
 Wor. He apprehends a world of figures||
 here,
 But not the form of what he should attend.—
 Good cousin, give me audience for a while.
 Hot. I cry you mercy.
 Wor. Those same noble Scots,
 That are your prisoners,—
 Hot. I'll keep them all;
 By heaven he shall not have a Scot of them:
 No, if a Scot would save his soul, he shall not:
 I'll keep them, by this hand.
 Wor. You start away,
 And lend no ear unto my purposes.—
 Those prisoners you shall keep.
 Hot. Nay, I will; that's flat:—
 He said, he would not ransom Mortimer;
 Forbade my tongue to speak of Mortimer;
 But I will find him when he lies asleep,
 And in his ear I'll holla—Mortimer!

* The dog-rose.

† Disdainful.

‡ A rival.

§ Friendship.

|| Shapes created by his imagination.

PART OF KING HENRY IV.

ought to speak
ve it him,
ion.

mnly defy.*
as Bolingbroke :
cklert Prince of

es him not,
with some mis-

pot of ale.
will talk to you,
to attend.
slung and impa-

oman's mood ; †
ut thine own ?
in whipp'd and res, when I hear

roke.
to you call the ustershire ;—

his uncle kept ;
st bow'd my knee
Bolingbroke,
om Ravenspurg.

ourtesy
did proffer me !
ame to age,
nd, kind cousin,—
ers !—God for-

I have done.
to't again ;

our Scottish pris-
ransom straight,
our only mean
ch,—for divers

en,—be assur'd,
my lord,—
THUMBERLAND. is employ'd,— creep
all belov'd,

d
the lord Scroop.

ll
t what I know
down ;
the face
ng it on.
g, it will do well.
a-foot, thou still

e but be a noble
l, and of York,—

ngly well aim'd.

home fellow,
Conjectur

War. And 'tis no little reason
To save our heads by raising
For, bear ourselves as even as
The king we always think him
And think we think ourselves
Till he hath found a time to part
And see already, how he doth
To make us strangers to his love
Hot. He does, he does; w on him.

War. Cousin, farewell :—N
this,

Than I by letters shall direct
When time is ripe, (which will I'll send to Glendower, and let Where you and Douglas, and
once,

(As I will fashion it,) shall be
To bear our fortunes in our own
Which now we hold at much North. Farewell, good brother thrive, I trust.

Hot. Uncle, adieu :—O, let
short,
Till fields, and blows, and gro
sport!

ACT II.

SCENE I.—Rochester.—A

Enter a CARRIER, with a Lamb

1 Car. Heigh ho! An't be day, I'll be hanged : Charles the new chimney, and yet our What, ostler!

Out. [Within.] Anon, anon.

1 Car. I pry thee Tom, beat put a few flocks in the point;
wrung in the withers out of all

Enter another CARRIER

2 Car. Pease and beans are as a dog, and that is the next judes the bote. † this house is down, since Robin ostler died.

1 Car. Poor fellow! never price of oats rose; it was the

2 Car. I think, this be the house in all London road for like a tench.

1 Car. Like a tench? by the ne'er a king in Christendom bit than I have been since the

2 Car. Why, they will allow den, and then we leak in you your chamber-lie breeds fious!

1 Car. What, ostler! come hanged, come away.

2 Car. I have a gammon of razes of ginger, to be delivered ingrass.

1 Car. 'Odsbody! the turkie are quite starved.—What, ost
ou thee! hast thou never an e canst not hear! An 'twere not as drink, to break the pate of t villain.—Come, and be hanged
in thee!

Enter GADSHILL

Gads. Good morrow, carriers.

* A body of forces. † The constell
‡ Name of his horse. § Measure.

 Mottled like a tench.

†† A small fish called to breed for

think it be two o'clock.

Pr'ythee, lend me thy lantern, to see in the stable.

Y, soft, I pray ye; I know a trick of that, I'faith.

Pr'ythee, lend me thine.

, when? canst tell?—Lend me thy th a?—marry, I'll see thee hanged

ah carrier, what time do you mean London?

ne enough to go to bed with a warrant thee.—Come, neighbour call up the gentlemen; they will company, for they have great [Exeunt CARRIERS.

at ho! chamberlain!

[Within.] At hand, quoth pick-purse.* it's even as fair as—at hand, quoth rain: for thou variest no more of purses, than giving direction bousing; thou lay'st the plot how.

Enter CHAMBERLAIN.

od morrow, master Gadshill. It at, that I told you yesternight: unklint in the wild of Kent, hath e hundred marks with him in gold: tell it to one of his company, last per; a kind of auditor; one that ance of charge too, God knows are up already, and call for eggs They will away presently.

ah, if they meet not with saint erks,† I'll give thee this neck.

, I'll none of it: I pr'ythee, keep hangman; for, I know, thou wor- t Nicholas as truly as a man of ay.

at talkest thou to me of the hang- ng, I'll make a fat pair of gallows: ag, old Sir John hangs with me; nowest, he's no starveling. Tut! er Trojans that thou dreamest not ch, for sport sake, are content to asion some grace; that would, if uld be looked into, for their own make all whole. I am joined with l-rakers,§ no long-staff, sixpenny ie of these mad, mustachio purple- orms: but with nobility, and tran- rgomasters, and great oneyers;|| hold in; such as will strike sooner and speak sooner than drink, and r than pray: And yet I lie; for ntinually to their saint, the com- or, rather, not pray to her, but for they ride up and down on her, er their boots.¶

at, the commonwealth their boots? d out water in foul way?

: will, she will; justice hath li-  We steal us in a castle, cock- ave the receipt of fern-seed, we de.

y, by my faith? I think you are en to the night, than to fern-seed, king invisible.

ve me thy hand: thou shalt have a purchase,†† as I am a true†† man. y, rather let me have it, as you are

Gads. Go to; Homo is a common name to all men. Bid the ostler bring my gelding out of the stable. Farewell, you muddy knave.

[Exeunt.

SCENE II.—The Road by Gadshill.

Enter Prince HENRY, and POINS; BARDOLPH and PETO, at some distance.

Poins. Come, shelter, shelter; I have removed Falstaff's horse, and he frets like a gummed velvet.

P. Hen. Stand close.

Enter FALSTAFF.

Fal. Poins! Poins, and be hanged! Poins!

P. Hen. Peace, ye fat-kidneyed rascal; What a brawling dost thou keep?

Fal. Where's Poins, Hal?

P. Hen. He is walked up to the top of the hill; I'll go seek him. [Pretends to seek POINS.

Fal. I am accursed to rob in that thief's company: the rascal hath removed my horse, and tied him I know not where. If I travel but four foot by the squire* further afoot, I shall break my wind. Well, I doubt not but to die a fair death for all this, if I 'scape hanging for killing that rogue. I have forsworn his company hourly any time this two-and-twenty years, and yet I am bewitched with the rogue's company. If the rascal have not given me medicinest to make me love him, I'll be hanged; it could not be else; I have drunk medicines.—Poins!—Hal!—a plague upon you both!—Bardolph!—Peto!—I'll starve, ere I'll rob a foot further. An 'twere not as good a deed as drink, to turn true† man, and leave these rogues, I am the veriest varlet that ever chewed with a tooth. Eight yards of uneven ground, is threescore and ten miles afoot with me; and the stony-hearted villains know it well enough: A plague upon't, when thieves cannot be true to one another! [They whistle.] Whew!—A plague upon you all! Give me my horse, you rogues; give me my horse, and be hanged.

P. Hen. Peace, ye fat-guts! lie down; lay thine ear close to the ground, and list if thou canst hear the tread of travellers.

Fal. Have you any levers to lift me up again, being down? 'Sblood, I'll not bear mine own flesh so far afoot again, for all the coin in thy father's exchequer. What a plague mean ye to colt§ me thus?

P. Hen. Thou liest, thou art not colted, thou art uncolted.

Fal. I pr'ythee, good prince Hal, help me to my horse; good king's son.

P. Hen. Out, you rogue! shall I be your ostler!

Fal. Go, hang thyself in thy own heir-apparent garters! If I be ta'en, I'll peach for this. An I have not ballads made on you all, and sung to filthy tunes, let a cup of sack be my poison: When a jest is so forward, and afoot too,—I hate it.

Enter GADSHILL.

Gads. Stand.

Fal. So I do, against my will.

Poins. O, 'tis our setter: I know his voice.

Enter BARDOLPH.

Bard. What news?

Gads. Case ye, case ye; on with your visors;

* from the pick-purse being always ready.

† Cant term for highwaymen.

|| Public accountants.

 Oiled, smoothed her over.

re acquire.

†† Honest.

* Square.

† Love-powder.

‡ Honest.

§ Make a youngster of me.

ST PART OF KING HENRY IV.

coming down the exchequer.
; 'tis going to the
make us all.

shall front them in e, and I, will walk
a your encounter,

of them?

not rob us?

Sir John Paunch?
ohn of Gaunt, your ward, Hal.

that to the proof.

horse stands behind

est him, there thou

and stand fast.

um, if I should be

our disguises?

and close.

HENRY and POINS.

happy man be his

his business.

ALERS.

the boy shall lead

we'll walk afoot a

them; cut the vil-

on caterpillars! bale us youth: down

both we and ours,

knaves; Are ye

; I would, your ons, on! What, ye

ive: You are grand-

; 'faith.

&c. driving the TRA-

RY and POINS.

ave bound the true

l I rob the thieves,

it would be argu-

er for a month, and

ar them coming.

EVES.

, let us share, and

An the prince and

towards, there's no

more valour in that

ushing out upon them.

PRINCE and POINS

RAFF, after a blow or away, leaving their ease. Now merrily

and possess'd with

not meet each other;

an officer.

; Clowns. } A subject.

Away, good Ned. Falstaff's
And lards* the lean earth as I Wer'l not for laughing, I shot
Poins. How the rogue roars!

SCENE III.—Warkworth.—
Castle.

Enter HOTSPUR, reading

—But, for mine own part,
be well contented to be there,
love I bear your house.—He con-
—Why is he not then? In re-he bears our house:—he show
his own barn better than he Let me see some more. The p
take, is dangerous;—Why, th dangerous to take a cold, to but I tell you, my lord fool, c danger, we pluck this flower, pose you undertake, is dangerous
have named, uncertain; the tin
and your whole plot too light, fi
of so great an opposition.—Say so? I say unto you again, y cowardly hind, and you lie brain is this? By the Lord, c plot as ever was laid; our i constant: a good plot, good of expectation: an excellent friends. What a frosty-spirit!
Why, my lord of York comme
the general course of the acti
I were now by this rascal, I with his lady's fan. Is ther my uncle, and myself? lord E
my lord of York, and Ower
there not, besides, the Doug all their letters, to meet me in
of the next month? and are them, set forward already?
rascal is this! an infidel! H
now, in very sincerity of fea
will be to the king, and lay ceedings. O, I could divide buffets, for moving such a milk with so honourable an e let him tell the king: We are set forward to-night.

Enter Lady PERCIB

How now, Kate? I must l
these two hours.

Lady. O my good lord, v
alone!

For what offence have I, this
A banish'd woman from my Tell me, sweet lord, what is
thee

Thy stomach, pleasure, and Why dost thou bend thine ey
And start so often when thou Why hast thou lost the fr
checks;

And given my treasures, and
To thick-ey'd musing, and c
In thy faint slumbers, I by t
And heard thee murmur tale Speak terms of manage to thy Cry, Courage!—to the field
talk'd

Of sallies, and retires; of tre
(Of palisadoes, frontiers, par
Of basilisks, of cannon, culv

* Drops his fan

ransom, and of soldiers slain,
currents[†] of a heady fight.
him thee hath been so at war,
so bestirr'd thee in thy sleep,
of sweat have stood upon thy

in a late-disturbed stream:
face strange motions have ap-
d, e when men restrain their breath
at sudden haste. O, what por-
are these?
business hath my lord in hand,
now it, else he loves me not.
ho! is Gilliams with the packet
?

Enter SERVANT.

my lord, an hour ago.
Butler brought these horses from horse, my lord, he brought even horse? a roan, a crop-car, is it

my lord.
van shall be my throne.
ack him straight: O esperance!†—
ad him forth into the park.

[Exit SERVANT.]

near you, my lord.
say'st, my lady?
it is it carries you away?
rse,
horse.
you mad-headed ape!
h not such a deal of spleen,
es'd with. In faith,
r business, Harry, that I will.
other Mortimer doth stir
e; and hath sent for you, nterprize: But if you go—
afoot, I shall be weary, love.
e, come, you paraquito,|| answer
is question that I ask. [me break thy little finger, Harry, lt not tell me all things true.

ifier!—Love?—I love thee not,
thee, Kate: this is no world;
mammets,¶ and to tilt with lips:
ve bloody noses, and crack'd
ns,
em current too.—Gods me, my
!—
thou, Kate? what would'st thou
with me?
you not love me? do you not, in-
?
then; for, since you love me not,
e myself. Do you not love me?
if you speak in jest, or no.
wilt thou see me ride?
am o'horse-back, I will swear ninitely. But hark you, Kate;
ve you henceforth question me
nor reason whereabout:
ust, I must; and, to conclude,
must I leave you, gentle Kate.
wise; but yet no further wise,
Percy's wife: constant you are;
man: and for secresy,
er; for I well believe,

Thou wilt not utter what thou dost not know;
And so far will I trust thee, gentle Kate!

Lady. How! so far?

Hef. Not an inch farther. But hark you,
Kate?

Whither I go, thither shall you go too;
To-day will I set forth, to-morrow you.—
Will this content you, Kate?

Lady. It must, of force.

[Exit.]

SCENE IV.—Eastcheap.—A Room in the Bear's Head Tavern.

Enter Prince HENRY and POINS.

P. Hen. Ned, pr'ythee, come out of that fat room, and lend me thy hand to laugh a little.

Poins. Where hast been, Hal?

P. Hen. With three or four loggerheads, amongst three or four score hogsheads. I have sounded the very base string of humility.
Sirrah, I am sworn brother to a leash^{*} of drawers; and can call them all by their Christian names, as—Tom, Dick, and Francis. They take it already upon their salvation, that, though I be but prince of Wales, yet I am the king of courtesy; and tell me flatly, I am no proud Jack, like Falstaff; but a Corinthian,† a lad of mettle, a good boy,—by the Lord, so they call me; and when I am king of England,
I shall command all the good lads in Eastcheap.
They call—drinking deep, dying scarlet: and when you breathe in your watering, they cry—hem! and bid you play it off.—To conclude, I am so good a proficient in one quarter of an hour, that I can drink with any tinker in his own language during my life. I tell thee, Ned, thou hast lost much honour, that thou wert not with me in this action. But, sweet Ned,—to sweeten which name of Ned, I give thee this pennyworth of sugar, clapped even now in my hand by an under-skinker;‡ one that never spake other English in his life, than —Eight shillings and sixpence, and—You are welcome; with this shrill addition;—Anon, anon, Sir! Score a pint of bastard in the Half-moon, or so. But, Ned, to drive away the time till Falstaff come, I pr'ythee, do thou stand in some by-room, while I question my puny
drawer, to what end he gave me the sugar;
and do thou never leave calling—Francis,
that his tale to me may be nothing but—anon.
Step aside, and I'll show thee a precedent.

Poins. Francis!

P. Hen. Thou art perfect.

Poins. Francis!

[Exit POINS.]

Enter FRANCIS.

Fran. Anon, anon, Sir.—Look down into the Pomegranate, Ralph.

P. Hen. Come hither, Francis.

Fran. My lord.

P. Hen. How long hast thou to serve, Francis?

Fran. Forsooth, five year, and as much as
to—

Poins. [Within.] Francis!

Fran. Anon, anon, Sir.

P. Hen. Five years! by'r lady, a long lease for the clinking of pewter. But, Francis, darest thou be so valiant, as to play the coward
with thy indenture, and to show it a fair pair of heels, and run from it?

Fran. O lord, Sir! I'll be sworn upon all the books in England, I could find in my heart—

Poins. [Within.] Francis!

† Drops.
‡ Strengthen.
¶ Puppets.

* Three.
3 D

† A wench.

‡ Tapster.

ST PART OF KING HENRY IV.

Francis?
Michaelmas next

you, stay a little,
you, Francis. For
twas a pennyworth,
ld, it had been two.
e for it a thousand wilt, and thou shalt

No, Francis: but Francis, on Thurs-
when thou wilt. But,

his leathern-jerkin,
agate-ring, puke-
smooth-tongue, Spa-

do you mean?
r brown bastard* is you, Francis, your sully: in Barbary,
uch.

is!
gue; Dost thou not

, the Drauser stands
which way to go.

NER.

ou still, and hear'st
the guests within.
Sir John, with half oor; Shall I let them

awhile, and then TNER.] Poins!

UINS.

and the rest of the
shall we be merry?
kets, my lad. But atch have you made
? come, what's the

humours, that have
s, since the old days
e pupil age of this midnight. [Re-enter t's o'clock, Francis?

fellow should have
, and yet the son of
is—up-stairs, and ce, the parcel of a
of Percy's mind, the
that kills me some
ots at a breakfast,
ys to his wife,—Fie
work. O my sweet
y had thou killed to-trench, says he; and
mour after; a trifle, Falstaff; I'll play
brawn shall play

dame Mortimer his wife. Rise
ard. Call in ribs, call in tall

Enter FALSTAFF, GADSHILL, PETO.

Poins. Welcome, Jack. I
been?

Fal. A plague of all cowas vengeance too! marry, and a cup of sack, boy.—Ere I let I'll sew netherstocks,* and foot them too. A plague of all me a cup of sack, rogue.—I extant?

P. Hen. Didst thou never dish of butter? pitiful hearted
ed at the sweet tale of the so then behold that compound.

Fal. You rogue, here's lime
There is nothing but roguer;
villanous man: Yet a coward
cup of sack with lime in it;
ard.—Go thy ways, old Jack wilt, if manhood, good manhood upon the face of the earth, the herring. There live not three hanged in England; and old and grows old. God help the world, I say! I would, I w could sing psalms or any thing
all cowards, I say still.

P. Hen. How now, wool-w
you?

Fal. A king's son! If I do
of thy kingdom with a dagger
all thy subjects afore thee like goose, I'll never wear hair:
You prince of Wales!

P. Hen. Why, you whore
what's the matter?

Fal. Are you not a coward that; and Poins there?

Poins. 'Zounds, ye fat pa
me coward, I'll stab thee.

Fal. I call thee coward! I'll ere I call thee coward: but thousand pound, I could ru canst. You are straight eno ders, you care not who sees
you that backing of your shi
upon such backing! give me face me.—Give me a cup o rogue, if I drunk to-day.

P. Hen. O villain! thy lips
since thou drunk'st last.

Fal. All's one for that. A p ards, still say I.

P. Hen. What's the matter
Fal. What's the matter? th
here have ta'en a thousand po

P. Hen. Where is it, Jack?

Fal. Where is it? taken fro dred upon poor four of us.

P. Hen. What, a hundred,

Fal. I am a rogue, if I w sword with a dozen of them tw
I have 'scap'd by miracle.
thrust through the doublet; f
hose; my buckler cut throug
my sword hacked like a hand-
I never dealt better since I would not do. A plague of al them speak: if they speak t truth, they are villains, and I
neer.

* Stockings.

a. Speak, Sir; how was it?

*We four set upon some damns,——
And bound them.*

*No, no, they were not bound.
On rogues, they were bound, every
how; or I am a Jew else, an Elzevir*

*As we were sharing, some six or seven set upon us,——
and unbowed the rest, and then come
back.*

a. What, fought ye with them all?
b. I know not what ye call, all; but it was not with fifty of them, I am a bunch
: if there were not two or three and a poor old Jack, then I am no two-faced man.

*Pray God, you have not murdered
them.*

*ay, that's past praying for: for I have killed two of them: two, I am sure, I have no remorse in buckram suits. I tell thee, Hal,—if I tell thee a lie, spit in my eye home. Thou knowest my old hobby I lay, and thus I bore my point.
Now in buckram let drive at me,——*

a. What, four? thou said'st but two,
b.

four, Hal; I told thee four.

ay, ay, he said four.

have four come all a-front, and mainly I hit. I made me no more ado, but their seven points in my target, thus.

a. Seven? why, there were but four,
b.
a buckram.

ay, four, in buckram suits.

even, by these hilts, or I am a villain

a. Pr'ythee, let him alone; we shall re-anon.

but thou hear me, Hal?

a. Ay, and mark thee too, Jack.

*be so, for it is worth the listening to,
me in buckram, that I told thee of,——*

a. So, two more already.

their points being broken,——

Down fall their hose.

*begun to give me ground: But I follow close, came in foot and hand; and,
bought, seven of the eleven I paid.*

a. O monstrous! eleven buckram men out of two!

but, as the devil would have it, three then knives, in Kendal green, came ask, and let drive at me;—for it was Hal, that thou could'st not see thy

a. These lies are like the father that bore; gross as a mountain, open, pal-
try. Why, thou clay-brained guts; thou sated fool; thou whorson, obscene,
allow-keech,——

What, art thou mad? art thou mad? is truth, the truth?

a. Why, how could'st thou know these Kendal green, when it was so dark aid'st not see thy hand? come tell us
soon; What sayest thou to this?

Come, your reason, Jack, your rea-

What, upon compulsion? No; were I tappado, or all the racks in the world,

*as in Westmoreland famous for making cloth,
and lump of fat.*

I would not tell you on compulsion. Give you a reason on compulsion! If reasons were as plenty as blackberries, I would give no man a reason upon compulsion, I.

P. Hen. I'll be no longer guilty of this sin:
this sanguine coward, this bed presser, this horse-back-breaker, this huge hill of flesh;——

Fal. Away, you starveling, you elf skis, you dried neat's-tongue, bull's pizzle, you stock-
fish,—O, for breath to utter what is like thee!
—you tailor's yard, you sheath, you bow-case,
you vile standing tuck;——

P. Hen. Well, breathe awhile, and then to it again: and when thou hast tired thyself in these comparisons, hear me speak but this.

Prin. Mark, Jack.

P. Hen. We two saw you four set on four;
you bound them, and were masters of their wealth.—Mark now, how plain a tale shall put you down.—Then did we two set on you four: and, with a word, out-faced you from your prime, and have it; yea, and can show it you here in the house:—and, Falstaff, you carried your guts away as nimbly, with as quick dexterity, and roared for mercy, and still ran and roared, as ever I heard a bull-calf. What a slave art thou, to hack thy sword as thou hast done; and then say, it was in fight! What trick, what device, what starting-hole, can'st thou now find out to hide thee from this open and apparent shame?

Prin. Come, let's hear, Jack; What trick hast thou now?

Fal. By the Lord, I knew ye, as well as he that made ye. Why, hear ye, my masters:
Was it for me to kill the heir apparent? Should I turn upon the true prince? Why, thou knowest, I am as vallant as Hercules: but beware instinct; the lion will not touch the true prince. Instinct is a great matter; I was a coward on instinct. I shall think the better of myself and thee, during my life; I, for a valiant lion, and thou, for a true prince. But,
by the Lord, lads, I am glad you have the money.—Hostess, clap to the doors; watch
to-night, pray to-morrow.—Gallants, lads, boys, hearts of gold, All the titles of good fellowship come to you! What, shall we be merry? shall we have a play extempore?

P. Hen. Content,—and the argument shall be, thy running away.

Fal. Ah! no more of that, Hal, an thou lovest me.

Enter Hostess.

Host. My lord the prince,——

P. Hen. How now, my lady the hostess
what say'st thou to me?

Host. Marry, my lord, there is a nobleman of the court at door, would speak with you:
he says, he comes from your father.

P. Hen. Give him as much as will make him a royal man, and send him back again to my mother.

Fal. What manner of man is he?

Host. An old man.

Fal. What doth gravity out of his bed at midnight?—Shall I give him his answer?

P. Hen. Pr'ythee, do, Jack.

Fal. 'Faith, and I'll send him packing.

[Exit.]

P. Hen. Now, Sirs; by'r lady, you fought fair;—so did you, Peto;—so did you, Bardolph;
you are lions too, you run away upon instinct,
you will not touch the true prince; no,—Fal!

Bard. 'Faith, I ran when I saw others run.

quest, How came

with his dagger;
out of England,
it was done in
the like.

our noses with ed, and then to
it, and swear it
I did that I
re, I blushed to

est a cup of sack
taken with the st blushed ex-sword on thy What instinct

these meteors?
us?

portend?
purses.†
thly taken.
n, halter.

comes bare-bone.
e of bombast?
ce thou sawest

I was about thy le's talon in the an alderman's
hing and grief!
holder. There's was Sir John
ust to the court
ad follow of the s, that gave A-
made Lucifer
s true liegeman hook,—What, a

—and his son-orthumberland;
s, Douglas, that
indicular.
gh speed, and
fying.

sparrow.
good mettle in

art thou then, to but, a fool, he stant.

t. Well, he is and a thousand stolen away toned white with ow as cheap as if there come a hold, we shall

b nails, by the

ayest true; it is

and poverty.

of the four kings,
child.

Like, we shall have good trading that way.—
But, tell me, Hal, art thou not horribly afraid?
thou being heir apparent, could the world
pick thee out three such enemies again, as that fiend Douglas, that spirit Percy, and that devil Glendower? Art thou not horribly afraid?
doth not thy blood thrill at it?

P. Hen. Not a whit, i'faith; I lack some of thy instinct.

Fal. Well, thou wilt be horribly chid to-morrow, when thou comest to thy father: If thou love me, practise an answer.

P. Hen. Do thou stand for my father, and examine me upon the particulars of my life.

Fal. Shall I? content:—This chair shall be my state,* this dagger my sceptre, and this cushion my crown.

P. Hen. Thy state is taken for a joint-stool, thy golden sceptre for a leaden dagger, and thy precious rich crown, for a plufel bald
crown!

Fal. Well, an the fire of grace be not quite out of thee, now shalt thou be moved.—Give me a cup of sack, to make mine eyes look red,
that it may be thought I have wept; for I must speak in passion, and I will do it in king Cambyses's vein.

P. Hen. Well, here is my leg.‡

Fal. And here is my speech:—Stand aside, nobility.

Host. This is excellent sport, i'faith.

Fal. Weep not, sweet queen, for trickling tears are vain.

Host. O, the father, how he holds his countenance!

Fal. For God's sake, lords, convey my tribful queen,

For tears do stop the flood-gates of her eyes.

Host. O rare! he doth it as like one of those harlotry players, as I ever see.

Fal. Peace, good point-pot; peace, good tickle-brain.‡—Harry, I do not only marvel where thou spendest thy time, but also how thou art accompanied: for though the canomole, the more it is trodden on, the faster it grows, yet youth, the more it is wasted, the sooner it wears. That thou art my son, I have partly thy mother's word, partly my own opi-
on; but chiefly, a villanous trick of thine eye, and a foolish hanging of thy nether lip, that doth warrant me. If then thou be son to me, here lies the point;—Why, being son to me, art thou so pointed at? Shall the blessed sun of heaven prove a micher,‡ and eat blackberries? a question not to be asked. Shall the son of England prove a thief, and take parents'
a question to be asked. There is a thing, Harry, which thou hast often heard of, and it is known to many in our land by the name of pitch: this pitch, as ancient writers do report,
doth defile; so doth the company thou keepst:
for, Harry, now I do not speak to thee in drink,
but in tears; not in pleasure, but in passion;
not in words only, but in woes also:—And yet
there is a virtuous man, whom I have often noted in thy company, but I know not his
name.

P. Hen. What manner of man, an it like
your majesty?

Fal. A good portly man, i'faith, and a carpulent; of a cheerful look, a pleasing eye, and a most noble carriage; and, as I think, blasphe-

* Chair of state.

† A character in a Tragedy by T. Preston, 1678.

‡ (Mis)ance.

§ Sorrowful.

¶ Name of a strong liquor.

‡ A trusty boy

Exeunt By's lady, inclining to threaten now I remember me, his name is if that man should be lowly given, with me; for, Harry, I see virtue in his [than the true may be known by the he stult by the tree, then, peremptorily it, there is virtue in that Falstaff: with, the rest banish. And tell me, naughty varlet, tell me, where hast thou been?

Doest thou speak like a king? Do I for me, and I'll play my father. spurn me? if thou dost it half so me majestically, both in word and me up by the heels for a rabbit-er a pomegranate's hare.

Well, here I am set.
all have I stand:—judge, my masters.
Now, Harry! whence come you?
noble lord, from Eastcheap.

The complaints I hear of thee are dead, my lord, they are false:—say, ye for a young prince, I faith.

Sweetest thou, ungracious boy? never look on me. Thou art violently ray from grace: there is a devil in, in the likeness of a fat old man: sun is thy companion. Why dost thou with that trunk of humours, up-butcher of beastliness, that swollen leopards, that huge bombard of sack, all sleek-bag of guts, that roasted red ox with the pudding in his belly, and vice, that grey iniquity, that inn, that vanity in years? Wherein I, but to taste sack and drink it? eat and cleanly, but to carve a capon? whereat canning, but in craft? misty, but in villany? wherein vill in all things? wherein worthy, but?

ould, your grace would take me
Whom means your grace?

That villanous abominable misyouth, Falstaff, that old white-lord, the man I know.

I know, thou dost.

I to say, I know more harm in him self, were to say more than I know. old, (the more the pity,) his white itness it. but that he is (saving your in a whoremaster, that I utterly deny. all sugar be a fault, God help the! to be old and merry be a sin, then old host that I know, is damned: if to be hated, then Pharaoh's lean be loved. No, my good lord; banish all Bardolph, banish Poins. but for Falstaff, kind Jack Falstaff, true off, valiant Jack Falstaff, and there- valiant, being, as he is, old Jack inish not him thy Harry's company, ap Jack, and banish all the world. I do, I will. [A knocking heard.
and Hostess, FRANCIS, and BARDOLPH.

Enter BARDOLPH, running.

my lord, my lord; the sheriff, with stroud watch, is at the door.

What?

See which separates four from ten.

Black jack to bold beer.

where a large ox was roasted whole.

er than I can follow.

Fal. Out, you rogue! play out the play: I have much to say in the behalf of that Falstaff.

Re-enter Hostess, hastily.

Host. O Jesu, my lord, my lord!—

Fal. Heigh, heigh! the devil rides upon a saddlstick: What's the matter?

Host. The sheriff and all the watch are at the door: they are come to search the house; Shall I let them in?

Fal. Dost thou hear, Hal? never call a true piece of gold, a counterfeit: thou art essentially mad, without seeming so.

P. Hen. And thou a natural coward, without instinct.

Fal. I deny your majesty: if you will deny the sheriff, so; if not, let him enter: if I become not a cart as well as another man, a plague on my bringing up! I hope, I shall as soon be strangled with a halter, as another.

P. Hen. Go, hide thee behind the arras;—the rest walk up above. Now, my masters, for a true face, and good conscience.

Fal. Both which I have had: but their date is out, and therefore I'll hide me.

[Exeunt all but the PRINCE and POINS.]

P. Hen. Call in the sheriff.—

Enter SHERIFF and CARRIER.

Now, master sheriff; what's your will with me?

Sher. First, pardon me, my lord. A hue and cry

Hath follow'd certain men unto this house.

P. Hen. What men?

Sher. One of them is well known, my gracious lord,

A gross fat man.

Car. As fat as butter.

P. Hen. The man, I do assure you, is not here;

For I myself at this time have employ'd him.

And, sheriff, I will engage my word to thee,

That I will, by to-morrow dinner-time,

Send him to answer thee, or any man,

For any thing he shall be charg'd withal:

And so let me entreat you leave the house.

Sher. I will, my lord: There are two gentlemen (marks.

Have in this robbery lost three hundred

P. Hen. It may be so: if he have robb'd

these men,

He shall be answerable; and so, farewell.

Sher. Good night, my noble lord.

P. Hen. I think it is good morrow; Is it not?

Sher. Indeed, my lord, I think it be two o'clock. [Exeunt SHERIFF and CARRIER.]

P. Hen. This oily rascal is known as well as Paul's.† Go, call him forth.

Poins. Falstaff!—fast asleep behind the arras, and snoring like a horse.

P. Hen. Hark, how hard he fetches breath: Search his pockets. [POINS searches.] What hast thou found?

Poins. Nothing but papers, my lord.

P. Hen. Let's see what they be: read them.

Poins. Item, A capon, 2s. 2d.

Item, Sauce, 4d.

Item, Sack, two gallons, 5s. 8d.

Item, Anchovies, and sack after supper, 2s. 6d.

Item, Bread, a halfpenny.

• Tapestry.

† St. Paul's cathedral.

PART OF KING HENRY IV.

one half penny-
able deal of sack!
use; we'll read it
hito sleep till day.
ing; we must all
be honourable.
arge of foot; and,
march of twelve-
paid back again
ne betimes in the w, Poins.
my lord.

[Exeunt.]

room in the Arch-Mortimer, and fair, the parties
prosperous hope.
nd cousin Glen[dower,— plagues upon it!

cousin Hotspur:
Lancaster [with looks pale; and,
in heaven.
ften as he hears

at my nativity,
of fiery shapes,
at my birth,
tion of the earth

ave done
mother's cut had elf had ne'er been

ld shake when I

th was not of my

on it shook.

re all on fire, the

ook to see the hea-

ivity.

breaks forth

teeming earth

d and vex'd

ly wind

for enlargement

[down

urth, and topplest

towers. At your

[ture,

ke this distempera-

men

Give me leave

at my birth,

of fiery shapes;

ountains, and the

to the frightened fields.

extraordinary;

le do show,

non men.

deacons, and also upon ons, &c. † Turnides

Where is he living,—clipp'd
That chides the banks of E
Wales,—

Which calls me pupil, or ha
And bring lum out, that is f
Can trace me in the tedious
And hold me pace in deep s

Hot. I think there is no s

I will to dinner.

Mort. Peace, cousin Perc

him mad.

Glend. I can call spirits fr

Hot. Why, so can I; or so

But will they come, when yo

Glend. Why, I can teach y

The devil.

Hot. And I can teach th

the devil,

By telling truth; Tell truth,

If thou have power to rais

hither,

And I'll be sworn, I have p

hence.

O, while you live, tell tru

Mort. Come, come,

No more of this unprofitable

Glend. Three times hath I made head

Against my power: thrice f

And sandy-bottom'd Severn

Bootless" home, and weathe

Hot. Home without boots,

ther too'

How 'scapes he agues, in th

Glend. Come, here's the s

vide our right,

According to our three-fold

Mort. The archdeacon ha

Into three limits, very equal

England, from Trent and Se

By south and east, is to my

All westward, Wales beyon

And all the fertile land with

To Owen Glendower:—and

The remnant northward, lyi

And our indentures tripartit

Which being sealed interchi

(A business that this night

To-morrow, cousin Percy, y

And my good lord of Worces

To meet your father, and th

As is appointed us, at Shre

My father Glendower is not

Nor shall we need his he days:—

Within that space, [To Glend

drawn together

Your tenants, friends, and s

Glend. A shorter time sha

lords,

And in my conduct shall yo

From whom you now must

leave;

For there will be a world of

Upon the parting of your wi

Hot. Methinks, my molety

ton here,

In quantity equals not one o

See, how this river comes m

And cuts me, from the best

A huge half moon, a monst

I'll have the current in this

And here the smug and silv

In a new channel, fair and Unsuccessful.

‡ Part.

† Three co ‡ Corner.

As with such a deep indent,
rich a bottom here.
And? it shall, it must; you see,

[me up
He bears his course, and runs
stage on the other side;
opposed continent as much,
side it takes from you.
But a little charge will trench
re,
with side win this cape of land;
its straight and even.
Is it so; a little charge will do it.
I not have it alter'd.

At you?
For you shall not.
Will say me nay?
That will I.
Not understand it then,
ish.
Speak English, lord, as well as

I'd up in the English court:
But young, I framed to the harp
ish ditty, lovely well,
tongue a helpful ornament;
Was never seen in you.
And I'm glad of it with all my

As a kitten, and cry—mew,
see same metre ballad-mongers:
For a brazen canstick† turn'd,
I grate on an axle-tree;
I set my teeth nothing on edge,
ch as mincing poetry;
I'd gait of a shuffling nag.
You shall have Trent turn'd.
At care: I'll give thrice so much serving friend; [land
y of bargain, mark ye me,
e ninth part of a hair.
Tires drawn? shall we be gone?
noon shines fair, you may away
ht:
writer,† and, withal, [hence:
your wives of your departure
y daughter will run mad,
loteth on her Mortimer. [Exit.
ousin Percy! how you cross my
!

Not choose: sometimes he angers
e of the moldwarp|| and the ant,
r Merlin and his prophecies;
on and a finless fish,
griffin, and a moulten raven,
on, and a ramping cat,
eal of skimble-skamble stuff
om my faith. I tell you what,— nt last night, at least nine hours,
up the several devils' names, lackeys: I cried, humph,—and —go to,— im not a word. O, he's as tedious horse, a railing wife;
smoky house:—I had rather live
nd garlic, in a windmill, far,
cates,‡ and have him talk to me,
r-house in Christendom.
ith, he is a worthy gentleman;
well read, and profited
ncealments;  valiant as a lion,
us affable; and as bountiful

As mines of India. Shall I tell you, cousin?
He holds your temper in a high respect,
And curbs himself even of his natural scope,
When you do cross his humour; faith, he does:
I warrant you, that man is not alive,
Might so have tempted him as you have done,
Without the taste of danger and reproof;
But do not use it oft, let me entreat you.

Wer. In faith, my lord, you are too wilful-
blame;
And since your coming hither have done enough
To put him quite beside his patience.
You must needs learn, lord, to amend this fault:
Though sometimes it show greatness, courage,
blood,

(And that's the dearest grace it renders you,)
Yet oftentimes it doth present harsh rage,
Defect of manners, want of government,
Pride, haughtiness, opinion, and disdain:
The least of which, haunting a nobleman,
Loseth men's hearts; and leaves behind a stain
Upon the beauty of all parts besides,
Beguiling them of commendation.

Hot. Well, I am school'd; good manners be your speed!
Here comes our wives, and let us take our leave.

Re-enter GLENDOWER, with the LADIES.

Mort. This is the deadly spite that angers
me,—

My wife can speak no English, I no Welsh.
Glend. My daughter weeps; she will not part
with you,

She'll be a soldier too, she'll to the wars.
Mort. Good father, tell her,—that she, and my aunt Percy,

Shall follow in your conduct* speedily
[GLENDOWER speaks to his Daughter in Welsh,
and she answers him in the same.

Glend. She's desperate here; a peevish self-will'd harlotry,
One no persuasion can do good upon.

[Lady M. speaks to MORTIMER in Welsh.
Mort. I understand thy looks: that pretty Welsh [heavens,

Which thou pourest down from these swelling
I am too perfect in; and, but for shame,
In such a parley would I answer thee.

[Lady M. speaks.
I understand thy kisses, and thou mine,
And that's a feeling disputation:

But I will never be a truant, love, [tongue
Till I have learn'd thy language; for thy Makes Welsh as sweet as ditties highly penn'd,
Sung by a fair queen in a summer's bower,
With ravishing division, to her lute.†

Glend. Nay, if you melt, then will she run mad. [Lady M. speaks again.

Mort. O, I am ignorance itself in this.
Glend. She bids you

Upon the wanton rushes lay you down,
And rest your gentle head upon her lap,
And she will sing the song that pleaseth you,
And on your eyelids crown the god of sleep,
Charming your blood with pleasing heaviness;
Making such difference 'twixt wake and sleep,
As is the difference betwixt day and night,
The hour before the heavenly-harness'd team
Begins his golden progress in the east.

Mort. With all my heart I'll sit, and hear her sing:

By that time will our book,‡ I think, be drawn.
Glend. Do so;

And those musicians that shall play to you,

† Candlestick.
‡ Break the matter.
 Secrets.

* Guard, escort. † A compliment to queen Elizabeth.
‡ Our paper of conditions.

FIRST PART OF KING HENRY IV.

and leagues from ere: sit, and attend.
art perfect in lying
, that I may lay my
oose.

Welsh words, and plays.

the devil understands humorous.

ician.

you be nothing but together governed by f, and bear the lady

Lady, my brach,*

have thy head brok-

man's fault.
thee'
's bed.

g by Lady M.

ave your song too.
ed sooth.

l sooth! 'Heart, you
s wife! Not you, in
as I live, and, As
As sure as day:
surety for thy oaths,
t further than Fins-

dy, as thou art.
, and leave in sooth,
r gingerbread,
unday-citizens.

to turn tailor, or be the indentures be ese two hours; and [Exit.

d Mortimer; you are

re to go.

, we'll but seal, and [then

t. [Exeunt.

Room in the Palace.

ince of WALES, and leave; the Prince of [hand,

nce: But be near at ve need of you.—

[Exeunt Lords.

will have it so,

nce I have done,

out of my blood

and a scourge for me;

sages of life,

thou art only mark'd

l the rod of heaven,

gs. Tell me else,

nd low desires,

oorfields,

cockney

Such poor, such bare, such attempts,*

Such barren pleasures, rude
As thou art match'd withal, Accompany the greatness of
And hold their level with thy

P. Hen. So please your ma could

Quit all offences with as clea
As well as, I am doubtless,
Myself of many I am charg'd
Yet such extenuation let me
As, in reproof of many tales
Which oft the ear of great
hear,—

By smiling pick-thanks† and
I may, for some things true,
Hath faulty wander'd and ir
Find pardon on my true sub

K. Hen. God pardon thee!
der, Harry,

At thy affections, which do l
Quite from the sight of all th
Thy place in council thou ha
Which by thy younger broth
And art almost an alien to th
Of all the court and princes
The hope and expectation of
Is ruin'd, and the soul of ev
Prophetically does fore-thin
Had I so lavish of my presen
So common-backney'd in the
So stale and cheap to vulgar Opinion, that did help me to
Had still kept loyal to posse
And left me in reputeless ba
A fellow of no mark, nor lik
By being seldom seen, I coul
But, like a comet, I was wou
That men would tell their ch Others would say,—Where
broke?

And then I stole all courtesy
And dress'd myself in such l
That I did pluck allegiance f
Loud shouts and salutations
Even in the presence of the Thus did I keep my person f
My presence, like a robe poi Ne'er seen, but wonder'd at Seldom, but sumptuous, shor
And won, by rareness, such
The skipping king, he amble
With shallow jesters, and ru Soon kindled, and soon bu
state;

Mingled his royalty with ca
Had his great name profaned
And gave his countenance, ‡
To laugh at glibing boys, and
Of every beardless vain com
Grew a companion to the co
Enticoff'd§ himself to popul
That being daily swallow'd
They surfeited with honey;
To loathe the taste of swe

More than a little is by muc
So, when he had occasion to
He was but as the cuckoo in Heard, not regarded; seen
As, sick and blunted with c
Afford no extraordinary gaz
Such as is bent on sun-like

* Unworthy undertakings. †

‡ True to him that had then pass

§ Brudiwood. ¶ Mira.

has seldom in admiring eyes :
 shows'd, and hung their eye-lids
 on,
 like, and render'd such aspect
 men use to their adversaries ; [fall.
 his presence glutt'd, gorge'd, and every line, Harry, stand'st thou :
 not lost thy princely privilege,
 anticipation ; not an eye
 away of thy common sight, [more ;
 which hath desir'd to see thee
 doth that I would not have it do,
 I myself with foolish tenderness,
 I shall hereafter, my three-gracious
 d, fault.

For all the world,
 t to this hour, was Richard then
 as France set foot at Ravenspurg ;
 as I was then, is Percy now.
 y sceptre, and my soul to boot,
 are worthy interest to the state,
 the shadow of succession :
 right, nor colour like to right,
 fields with harness in the realm ;
 I against the lion's armed jaws ;
 g no more is debt to years than

me,
 out lords and reverend bishops on,
 battles, and to bruising arms.
 e-dying honour hath he got snowed Douglas ; whose high eds, [arms,
 t incursions, and great name in
 a all soldiers chief majority,
 ry title capital, [Christ ?
 If the kingdoms that acknowledge
 in this Hotspur Mars is swathing

then,
 t warrior, in his enterprises
 d great Douglas : ta'en him once,
 him, and made a friend of him,
 mouth of deep defiance up,
 the peace and safety of our throne.
 say you to this ? Percy, Northum-erland,
 bishop's grace of York, Douglas,
 ortimer,
 t against us, and are up.
 fore do I tell these news to thee ?
 ry, do I tell thee of my foes,
 my near'st and dearest ; enemy ?
 : art like enough,—through vassal
 ar,
 nation, and the start of spleen,—
 paint me under Percy's pay,
 i heels, and court'sy at his frowns,
 how much degenerate thou art.

Do not think so, you shall not find so ; [sway'd

forgive them, that have so much my's good thoughts away from me !
 see all this on Percy's head,
 as closing of some glorious day,
 : tell you, that I am your son ;
 'll wear a garment all of blood,
 my favours with a bloody mask,
 ash'd away, shall scour my shame
 dth it.

shall be the day, whene'er it lights,
 same child of honour and renown,
 ut Hotspur, this all-praised knight,
 unthought-of Harry, chance to meet :
 honour sitting on his helm, [head
 hey were multitudes, and on my

My shame redoubled ! for the time will come,
 That I shall make this northern youth exchange
 His glorious deeds for my indignities.

Percy is but my factor, good my lord,
 To engross up glorious deeds on my behalf ;
 And I will call him to so strict account,
 That he shall render every glory up,
 Yea, even the slightest worship of his time,
 Or I will tear the reckoning from his heart.
 This, in the name of God, I promise here :
 The which if he be pleas'd I shall perform,
 I do beseech your majesty, may save
 The long-grown wounds of my intemperance :
 If not, the end of life cancels all bands ;
 And I will die a hundred thousand deaths,
 Ere break the smallest parcel of this vow.

K. Hen. A hundred thousand rebels die in this :— [herein.
 Thou shalt have charge, and sovereign trust,

Enter Blunt.

How now, good Blunt ? thy looks are fall of speed.

Blunt. So hath the business that I come to speak of.

Lord Mortimer of Scotland hath sent word,—
 That Douglas, and the English rebels, met,
 The eleventh of this month, at Shrewsbury :
 A mighty and a fearful head they are,
 If promises be kept on every hand,
 As ever offer'd foul play in a state.

K. Hen. The earl of Westmoreland set forth
 to-day ;

With him my son, lord John of Lancaster ;
 For this advertisement is five days old :—
 On Wednesday next, Harry, you shall set Forward ; on Thursday, we ourselves will march :

Our meeting is Bridgnorth : and, Harry, you Shall march through Glostershire ; by which account,

Our business valued, some twelve days hence
 Our general forces at Bridgnorth shall meet.
 Our hands are full of business : let's away ;
 Advantage feeds him fat, while men delay.

[Exeunt.

SCENE III.—Eastcheap.—A Room in the Bear's Head Tavern.

Enter FALSTAFF and BARDOLPH.

Fal. Bardolph, am I not fallen away vilely since this last action ? do I not bate ? do I not dwindle ? Why, my skin hangs about me like an old lady's loose gown ; I am wither'd like an old apple-John. Well, I'll repent, and that suddenly, while I am in some liking ; I shall be out of heart shortly, and then I shall have no strength to repent. An I have not forgotten what the inside of a church is made of, I am a pepper-corn, a brewer's horse : the inside of a church ! Company, villanous company, hath been the spoil of me.

Bard. Sir John, you are so fretful, you cannot live long.

Fal. Why, there is it :—come, sing me a bawdy song ; make me merry. I was as vir-tuously given, as a gentleman need to be ; vir-tuously enough : swore little ; dined, not above
 seven times a week ; went to a bawdy-house,
 not above once in a quarter—of an hour ; paid
 money that I borrowed, three or four times ;
 lived well, and in good compass : and now I live out of all order, out of all compass.

* Bonds. † Part. ‡ Intelligence.
 † Feeds himself. ‡ Here comes back.

FIRST PART OF KING HENRY IV.

are so fat, Sir John, that at of all compass. . . of pass, Sir John.

read thy face, and I am sure
at admiral,* thou bearest coop,—but 'tis in the case of the knight of the burning

John, my face does you

sworn; I make as good use both of a death's head, or never see thy face, but I and Dives that lived in
is in his robes, burning,
any way given to virtue,
thy face, my oath should thou art altogether even ed, but for the light it ter darkness. When thou in the night to catch my I think thou hadst been an ball of wildfire, there's no
O, thou art a perpetual esting bonfire-light! Thou mad marks in links and with thee in the night betwixt
but the sack that thou ha have bought me lights as arest chandler's in Europe
that salamander of yours
this two and thirty years
for it!

would my face were in your so should I be sure to be Hostess.

partlet the hen to have you picked my pocket?
John! what do you think,
think I keep thieves in my arched, I have inquired, so man by man, boy by boy,
the tithes of a hair was use before.

stess; Bardolph was shaved,
hair: and I'll be sworn, my Go to, you are a woman,

pley thee: I was never called se before.

w you well enough.
n, you do not know me, Sir
u, Sir John: you owe me
and now you pick a quarrel
I bought you a dozen of thy dowlas: I have given ers' wives, and they have tu.

am a true woman, holland
ell. You owe money here for your diet, and by drink-lent you, four and twenty

part of it; let him pay.
he is poor; he hath no

look upon his face; What them coin his nose, let them
ll not pay a denier. What, younker of me? shall I not name inn, but I shall have to the story-book of Heynard the my pocket picked! I have let my grandfather's worth forty Host. O Jesu! I have heard him. I know not how oft, the copper.

Fal. How! the prince is a cup, and, if he were here, I w
like a dog, if he would say so.

Enter Prince HENRY and P Falstaff meets the Prince truncheon like a life.

Fal. How now, lad! is the w faith! must we all march?

Host. Yea, two and two, N

Host. My lord, I pray you,

P. Hen. What sayest thou, H
How does thy husband? I lov
an honest man

Host. Good my lord, hear m

Fal. Prythee, let her alone

P. Hen. What sayest thou,

Fal. The other night I fell hind the arras, and had my this house is turned bawdy-l pockets.

P. Hen. What didst thou lo
Fal. Wilt thou believe me four bonds of forty pound a-p ring of my grandfather's.

P. Hen. A title, some eight

Host. So I told him, my lon heard your grace say so: A speaks most vilely of you, like man as he is; and said, he w

P. Hen. What! he did not!

Host. There's neither faith,
manhood in me else.

Fal. There's no more faith i stewed prune; nor no more tr
in a drawn fox; and for we Marant may be the deputy's to thee. Go, you thing, go.

Host. Say, what thing? wh

Fal. What thing? why, a God on.

Host. I am no thing to t would thou shouldst know it man's wife: and, setting thy k
thou art a knave to call me so

Fal. Setting thy womanhood
a beast to say otherwise.

Host. Say, what beast, thou

Fal. What beast? why an o

P. Hen. An otter, Sir John!

Fal. Why? she's neither f man knows not where to have Host. Thou art an unjust m thou or any man knows wh

thou knave thou!

P. Hen. Thou sayest true, slanders thee most grossly.

Host. So he doth you, my lo
other day, you owed him a th

P. Hen. Sirrah, do I owe
pound?

Fal. A thousand pound, f thy love is worth a million; O
love.

Host. Nay, my lord, he call said, he would cudgel you.

Fal. Did I, Bardolph?

Host. Indeed, Sir John, yo

I. Yea; if he said, my rit

* A term of contempt frequently us † A man dressed like a woman, dunces.

I say, 'tis copper: darest thou be my word now?

Hal. thou knowest, as thou art I dare: but, as thou art prince, I am I fear the roaring of the lion's

And why not, as the lion?

King himself is to be feared as the thou think, I'll fear thee as I fear I say, as I do, I pray God, my k!

O, if it should, how would thy guts thy knees! But, sirrah, there's no lth, truth, nor honesty, in this bos- it is filled up with guts, and mid- ge an honest woman with picking I Why, thou whoreson, impudent rascal, if there were any thing in but tavern-reckonings, memoran- dums, and one poor penny- gus-candy to make thee long wind- pocket were enriched with any other of these, I am a villain. And yet ted to it; you will not pocket up t thou not ashamed?

I thou hear, Hal? thou knowest, in innocence, Adam fell; and what Jack Falstaff do, in the days of hou seest, I have more flesh than n; and therefore more frailty.— s then, you picked my pocket? It appears so by the story.

Yes, I forgive thee. Go, make ready love thy husband, look to thy ser- as thy guests: thou shalt find me any honest reason: thou seest I —Still?—Nay, pr'ythee, be gone. —Now, Hal, to the news at the robbery, lad,—How is that

O, my sweet beef, I must still be to thee:—The money is paid back

do not like that paying back, 'tis a

er. I am good friends with my father, any thing.

me the exchequer the first thing and do it with unwashed hands too, my lord.

I have procured thee, Jack, a charge old, it had been of horse. Where one that can steal well? O for a f the age of two and twenty, or I I am heinously unprovided re thanked for these rebels, they but the virtuous; I laud them, I

Bardolph—

lord.

to bear this letter to lord John of easter, [land.—

John, this to my lord of Westmore- to horse, to horse; for thou, and I, miles to ride yet ere dinner time.—

morrow i' the temple hall

ck i' the afternoon:

thou know thy charge; and there

ive I order for their furniture, burning; Percy stands on high; they, or we, must lower lie.

nd PRINCE, POINS, and BARDOLPH.

* Swain, puffy.

Fal. Rare words! brave world!—Hostess, my breakfast; come:—

O, I could wish, this tavern were my drum. [Exit

ACT IV.

SCENE I.—The Rebel Camp near Shrews- bury.

Enter HOTSPUR, WORCESTER, and DOUGLAS.

Hot. Well said, my noble Scot: if speaking truth,

In this fine age, were not thought flattery, Such attribution should the Douglas * have, As not a soldier of this season's stamp Should go so general current through the world. By heaven, I cannot flatter; I defy!

The tongues of soothers, but a braver place In my heart's love, hath no man than yourself; Nay, task me to the word; approve me, lord.

Doug. Thou art the king of honour. No man so potent breathes upon the ground, But I will beard him.

Hot. Do so, and 'tis well.

Enter a MESSENGER, with letters.

What letters hast thou there?—I can but thank you.

Mess. These letters come from your father,—

Hot. Letters from him? why comes he not himself?

Mess. He cannot come, my lord; he's grievous sick.

Hot. 'Zounds! how has he the leisure to be sick, [power?]

In such a justling time? Who leads his Under whose government come they along?

Mess. His letters bear his mind, not I, my lord.

Wor. I pr'ythee, tell me, doth he keep his bed?

Mess. He did, my lord, four days ere I set forth,

And at the time of my departure thence, He was much fear'd by his physicians.

Wor. I would, the state of time had first been whole,

Ere he by sickness had been visited, His health was never better worth than now.

Hot. Sick now? droop now? this sickness doth infect

The very life-blood of our enterprise;

'Tis catching hither, even to our camp.—

He writes me here,—that inward sickness—

And that his friends by deputation could not

So soon be drawn, nor did he think it meet,

To lay so dangerous and dear a trust

On any soul remov'd but on his own.

Yet doth he give us bold advertisement,—

That with our small conjunction, we should on,

To see how fortune is dispos'd to us.

For, as he writes, there is no quailing || now;

Because the king is certainly possess'd ¶

Of all our purposes. What say you to it?

Wor. Your father's sickness is a main to us.

Hot. A perilous gaah, a very limb lopp'd off:—

And yet, in faith, 'tis not; his present want Seems more than we shall find it:—Were it good,

To set the exact wealth of all our states

All at one cast? to set so rich a main

On the nice hazard of one doubtful hour?

* This expression is applied by way of prominence

to the head of the Douglas family

† Distant. ‡ Meet him face to face. § Forties

|| Languishing. ¶ Informed.

ST PART OF KING HENRY IV.

should we read
of hope;
most bound

should!
et reversion:
the hope of what

s in this.
to fly unto,
we look big
affairs.
our father had been attempt [here,
be thought
y he is away,
ere dislike
e earl from hence;
prehension
faction,
on in our cause:
the offering side
arbitrement;
every loop, from

in upon us:
s draws a curtain,
kind of fear

ake this use;—
great opinion,
interprize, [think,
re: for men must make a head
n, with his help,
rvy down.—
r joints are whole.
there is not such

is term of fear.

VERNON.

welcome, by my

s be worth a wel-[strong,
d, seven thousand
with him, prince

ore?
e learn'd,—
is set forth,
pedily,
paration.
one too. Where is the prince of Wales,

d the world aside,

arms,
hat wing the wind;
tely bath'd;†
like images;
n of May,
t andsummer;
s, wild as young

his beaver on,
gallantly arm'd,— weather'd Mercury,
into his seat,
n from the clouds,

+ Whereas.
; Threw off.

•• Armour.

To turn and wind a fiery Peg
And witch* the world with Hot. No more, no more; we in March,

This praise doth nourish as They come like sacrifices in d
And to the fire-ey'd maid of s
All hot, and bleeding, will w
The mailed Mars shall on his
Up to the ears in blood. I an
To hear this rich reprisal is as
And yet not ours:—Come,
Who is to bear me, like a thu
Against the bosom of the pris
Harry to Harry shall, hot hor
Meet, and ne'er part, till o corse.—

O, that Glendower were com

Ver. There is more news:

I learn'd in Worcester, as I r

He cannot draw his power th

Doug. That's the worst tid

of yet.

War. Ay, by my faith, the

sound.

Hot. What may the king reach unto?

Ver. To thirty thousand.

Hot. Forty let it be;

My father and Glendower bel

The powers of us may serve s

Come, let us make a muster s

Doomsday is near; die all, d

Doug. Talk not of dying; I

Of death, or death's hand,

year.

SCENE II.—A Public Room

Enter FALSTAFF and B

Fal. Bardolph, get thee be fill me a bottle of sack: o

march through; we'll to S

night.

Hard. Will you give me m

Fal. Lay out, lay out.

Hard. This bottle makes as

Fal. An if it do, take it fur

if it make twenty, take them

the coinage. Bid my lieuta me at the town's end.

Hard. I will, captain: fare

Fal. If I be not ashamed

am a souced gurnet.† I b king's press damnably. I l exchange of a hundred an

three hundred and odd p

me none but good househo

sons: inquire me out contr

such as had been asked tw

such a commodity of warm

let hear the devil as a dram;

report of a caliver,‡ worse th

or a hurt wild duck. I pres

such toasts and butter, wit

bellies no bigger than pins'

have bought out their servio

whole charge consists of anc lieutenants, gentlemen of com

ragged as Lazarus in the pain

the glutton's dogs licked his

as, indeed, were never soldier

unjust serving-men, younger brothers, revolted tapsters, a fallen; the cankers of a cal

long peace; ten times mor

• Bewitch, charm. † A fish.

old faced ancient;* and such
the rooms of them that have services, that you would
a hundred and fifty tattered
come from swine-keeping, and huaks. A mad fellow way, and told me, I had un-gibbets, and pressed the dead
bath seen such scare-crows.
through Coventry with them,
ry, and the villains march wide
as if they had gyves on;
and the most of them out of
but a shirt and a half in all my
the half-shirt is two napkins,
and thrown over the shoulders
coat without sleeves, and the truth, stolen from my host at or the red-nose inn-keeper of that's all one; they'll find a every hedge.

HENRY and WESTMORELAND.

How now, blown Jack? how now, halt? How now, mad wug? what in Warwickshire?—My good Westmoreland, I cry you mercy; I honour had already been at

Sir John, 'tis more than time
you, and you too; but my powers
why: The king, I can tell you,
we must away all night.
fear me; I am as vigilant as
ream.

ink, to steal cream indeed; for already made thee butter. But Whose fellows are these that halt, mine.

I never see such pitiful rascals.
good enough to toss; food for or powder, they'll fill a pit, as tush, man, mortal men, mortal

st, Sir John, methinks they are and bare; too beggarly.
for their poverty,—I know not that: and for their bareness,
ey never learned that of me.

I'll be sworn; unless you call
the ribs, bare. But, sirrah,
why is already in the field.

Is the king encamped?

Sir John; I fear, we shall stay

nd of a fray, and the beginning ast,
ter, and a keen guest. [Exeunt.]

—The Rebel Camp near Shrews-
bury.

2, WORCESTER, DOUGLAS, and VERNON.

ght with him to-night,
not be.

ive him then advantage.

hit.

y you so? looks he not for sup-

er.

ertain, ours is doubtful

Wor. Good cousin, be advis'd; stir not to-
night.

Ver. Do not, my lord.

Doug. You do not counsel well;

You speak it out of fear, and cold heart.

Ver. Do me no slander, Douglas: by my life,
(And I dare well maintain it with my life,)

If well respected honour bid me on,

I hold no little counsel with weak fear,

As you my lord, or any Scot that lives:—

Let it be seen to-morrow in the battle,

Which of us fears.

Doug. Yea, or to-night.

Ver. Content.

Hot. To-night, say I.

Ver. Come, come, it may not be.

I wonder much, being men of such great lead-

ing,*

That you foresee not what impediments

Drag back our expedition: Certain horse

Of my cousin Vernon's are not yet come up:

Your uncle Worcester's horse came but to-

day;

And now their pride and mettle is asleep,

Their courage with hard labour tame and dull,

That not a horse is half the half himself.

Hot. So are the horses of the enemy

In general, journey-bated, and brought low;

The better part of ours is full of rest.

Wor. The number of the king exceedeth
ours.

For God's sake, cousin, stay till all come in.

[The Trumpet sounds a parley.]

Enter Sir WALTER BLUNT.

Blunt. I come with gracious offers from the
king,

If you vouchsafe me hearing, and respect.

Hot. Welcome, Sir Walter Blunt; And would to God,

You were of our determination!

Some of us love you well: and even those some

Envy your great deserving, and good name;

Because you are not of our quality,†

But stand against us like an enemy.

Blunt. And God defend, but still I should stand so,

So long as, out of limit and true rule,

You stand against anointed majesty! [know

But, to my charge.—The king hath sent to

The nature of your griefs,‡ and whereupon

You conjure from the breast of civil peace

Such bold hostility, teaching this duteous land

Audacious cruelty: If that the king

Have any way your good deserts forgot,—

Which he confesseth to be manifold,—

He bids you name your griefs, and, with all

speed,

You shall have your desires, with interest;

And pardon absolute yourself, and these,

Herein misled by your suggestion.

Hot. The king is kind; and, well we know,

the king

Knows at what time to promise, when to pay.

My father, and my uncle, and myself,

Did give him that same royalty he wears:

And,—when he was not six and twenty strong,

Sick in the world's regard, wretched and low,

A poor unminded outlaw sneaking home,—

My father gave him welcome to the shore:

And,—when he heard him swear, and vow to God,

He came but to be duke of Lancaster,

To sue his livery,§ and beg his peace;

† Fathers.

‡ Deventry.

* Conduct, experience.

‡ Grievances.

† Fellowship.

§ The delivery of his lands.

ST PART OF KING HENRY IV.

terms of zeal,—
 pity mov'd,
 perform'd it too.
 erons of the realm
 did lean to him,
 with cap and knee;
 villages;
 ood in lanes,
 r d him their oaths,
 ges follow'd him,
 n multitudes
 knows itself,—
 his vow
 s blood was poor,
 conspurg;
 him to reform
 ure strait decrees,
 ommonwealth:
 us to weep
 and, by this face,
 , did he win
 l angle for.
 od the heads
 he absent king
 as here,
 ne Irish war.
 hear this.

sed the king;
 us of his life;
 k d the whole state:
 or'd his kinsman

re well plac'd,
 g'd in Wales,
 forfeited;
 victories;
 ingence;
 ouncil-board.
 from the court;
 l wrong on wrong:
 is to seek out
 uthal, to pry
 and vance.
 answer to the king?
 r, we'll withdraw

re be impawn'd
 rn again,
 hall mine uncle
 al so farewell.
 old accept of grace
 e shall.
 do! {Exeunt.

room in the Arch-
 se.

ORK, and a GENTLE-

Michael, bear this lord mareschal;
 and all the rest
 if you knew
 , you would make

do.
 el, is a day,
 thousand men
 Sir, at Shrewsbury,

} Letter

As I am truly given to unders
 The king, with mighty and qui Merts with lord Harry:

Michael,—
 What with the sickness of No (Whose power was in the first
 And what with Owen Glendu
 thence,

(Wl.) with them was a rated.
 And comes not in, o'er-rul'd
 I fear, the power of Percy is To wage an instant trial with Gent. Why, good my lord, y there's Douglas,

And Mortimer.

Arch. No, Mortimer's not th
 Gent. But there is Mordal

Harry Percy,
 And there's my lord of Worces

Of gallant warriors, noble ge Arch. And so there is: but drawn

The special head of all the lan
 The prince of Wales, lord Joh
 The noble Westmoreland, an
 And many more carrivale, an
 Of estimation and command b
 Gent. Doubt not, my lord, l oppos'd.

Arch. I hope no less, yet ne
 And, to prevent the worst, Sir
 For, if lord Percy thrive not,
 Dismiss his power, he means
 For he hath heard of our conf
 And 'tis but wisdom to mak
 him;

Therefore, make haste: I mu
 To other friends; and so farev

ACT V.

SCENE I.—The King's Camp

Enter KING HENRY, Prince
 JOHN of Lancaster, Sir WAL
 Sir JOHN FALSTAFF.

K. Hen. How bloodily the s
 Above yon busky hill! the d
 At his distemperature,

P. Hen. The southern wind
 Doth play the trumpet to his
 And, by his hollow whistling
 Foretells a tempest, and a bit

K. Hen. Then with the lo
 pathize;
 For nothing can seem foul to

Trumpet.—Enter WORCESTE

How now, my lord of Worces
 That you and I should meet
 As now we meet: You have d
 And made us doff our easy r
 To crush our old limbs in ung
 This is not well, my lord, this
 What say you to't? will you
 This churlish knot of all-abho
 And move in that obedient or Where you would give a fair s
 And be no more an exhal'd m
 A prodigy of fear, and a port
 Of broached mischief to the u

Wor. Hear me, my liege:
 For mine own part, I could
 To entertain the lag-end of m
 With quiet hours; for, I do p a A strength on which they reckon } Put off.

might the day of this conflict.
 'You have not sought for it? how
 was it then?'
 'Thus lay in his way, and he found it.
 Peace, cheer, peace.
 'Shall I your majesty, to turn your back on self, and all our house,
 that remember you, my lord,
 to first and dearest of your friends,
 to staff and sword, did I break
 a law—and perjured day and night
 in the way, and have your hand,
 that were in place and in account
 strong and virtuous as I.
 'Alas, my brother, and his son, [dare bid you home, and bravely did out-of the time. You swore to us,— to swear that oath at Doncaster,— did nothing purpose 'gainst the us; [right,
 no further than your new-dell's
 'Gent, children of Lancaster:
 given our aid. But, in short space,
 have fortune showering on your
 all;
 a flood of gentleness fall on you,—
 our help; what with the absent
 of;
 the injuries of a wretched time;
 of continuance that you had borne;
 of unsteady winds, that held the king
 his unlucky Irish wars, England did repute him dead,—
 this course of fair advantages,
 would to be quickly won'd
 a general way into your hand:
 to us at Doncaster;
 'And by us, you w'd us so gentle gull, the cuckoo's bird,
 parrot: did oppress our nest;
 or feeding to so great a bulk,
 our love durst not come near your
 it,
 swallowing; but with nimble wing
 shew'd, for safety sake, to fly
 right, and raise this present head:
 to stand opposed by such means
 would have for'd against yourself;
 wings, dangerous countenance,
 too of all faith and truth
 in your younger enterprise.
 These things, indeed, you have ar-stated,†
 at market-crosses, read in churches;
 garment of rebellion
 the colour, that may please the eye
 angelings, and poor discontents,
 a, and rub the elbow, at the sews
 my innovation:
 yet did insurrection want
 colours, to impart his cause;
 beggars, starving for a time
 havoc and confusion.
 In both our armies, there is many
 all dearly for this encounter,
 join in trial. Tell your nephew,
 of Wales doth join with all the
 III
 'Henry Percy; By my hopes,— at enterprise set off his head,— nk, a braver gentleman,
 r-valiant, or more valiant-young,
 g, or more bold, is now alive,

To grace this latter age with noble deeds.
 For my part, I may speak it to my shame,
 I have a trumpet blown to chivalry;
 And so, I hear, he doth account me too:
 Yet this before my father's majesty,—
 I am content, that he shall take the odds
 Of his great name and estimation;
 And will, to save the blood on either side,
 Try fortune with him in a single fight.
 K. Hen. And, prince of Wales, so dare we venture thee,
 Albeit, considerations infinite
 Do make against it:—No, good Worcester, no,
 We love our people well; even those we love,
 That are misled upon your cousin's part:
 And, will they take the offer of our grace,
 Both he, and they, and you, yea, every man Shall be my friend again, and I'll be his:
 So tell your cousin, and bring me word
 What he will do:—But if he will not yield,
 Rebuke and dread correction wait on us,
 And they shall do their office. So, be gone;
 We will not now be troubled with reply:
 We offer fair, take it advisedly.
 [Exeunt WORCESTER and VERNON.
 P. Hen. It will not be accepted, on my life:
 The Douglas and the Hotspur both together
 Are confident against the world in arms.
 K. Hen. Hence, therefore, every leader to his charge;
 For, on their answer, will we set on them:
 And God befriend us, as our cause is just!
 [Exeunt KING, BLUNT, and PRINCE JOHN.
 Fal. Hal, if thou see me down in the battle,
 and bestride me, so; 'tis a point of friendship.
 P. Hen. Nothing but a calamus can do thee that friendship. Say thy prayers, and fare-
 well.
 Fal. I would it were bed-time, Hal, and all
 well.
 P. Hen. Why, then, sweet God a death.
 [Exit.
 Fal. 'Tis not due yet; I would be loath to pay him before his day. What need I be so forward with him that calls not on me? Well,
 'tis no matter; Honour pricks me on. Yea,
 but how if honour prick me off when I come on; how then? Can honour set to a leg? No.
 Or an arm? No. Or take away the grief of a wound? No. Honour hath no skill in surgery then? No. What is honour? A word. What is in that word, honour? What is that honour?
 Air. A trim reckoning!—Who hath it? He that died o'Wednesday. Doth he feel it? No.
 Doth he hear it? No. Is it insensible then?
 Yea, to the dead. But will it not live with the living? No. Why? Detraction will not suffer it:—therefore I'll none of it: Honour is a mere scutcheon,* and so ends my catechism.
 [Exit.
 SCENE II.—The Rebel Camp.—Enter WOR-CESTER and VERNON.
 Wor. O, no, my nephew must not know,
 Sir Richard,
 The liberal kind offer of the king.
 Ver. 'Twere best he did.
 Wor. Then are we all undone.
 It is not possible, it cannot be,
 The king should keep his word in loving us;
 He will suspect us still, and find a time
 To punish this offence in other faults:
 Suspicion shall be all stuck full of eyes:
 For treason is but trusted like the fox;

ing bird, a pea. † Exhibited in articles. * Painted heraldry in general.

Who, ne'er so tame, so cherish'd, and lock'd up,
Will have a wild trick of his ancestors.
Look how we can, or sad, or merrily,
Interpretation will misquote our looks;
And we shall feed like oxen at a stall,
The better cherish'd, still the nearer death.
My nephew's trespass may be well forgot,
It hath the excuse of youth, and heat of blood;
And an adopted name of privilege,—
A hare-brain'd Hotspur, govern'd by a spleen:
All his offences live upon my head,
And on his father's;—we did train him on;
And, his corruption being ta'en from us,
We, as the spring of all, shall pay for all.
Therefore, good cousin, let not Harry know,
In any case, the offer of the king.
Ver. Deliver what you will, I'll say, 'tis so.
Here comes your cousin.

Enter HOTSPUR and DOUGLAS; and Officers and Soldiers, behind.

Hot. My uncle is return'd:—Deliver up My lord of Westmoreland.—Uncle, what
news?

Wor. The king will bid you battle presently.

Doug. Defy him by the lord of Westmoreland.

Hot. Lord Douglas, go you and tell him so.

Doug. Marry, and shall, and very willingly.
[Exit.]

Wor. There is no seeming mercy in the king.

Hot. Did you beg any? God forbid!

Wor. I told him gently of our grievances,
Of his oath-breaking; which he mended
thus,—

By now forswearing that he is forsworn:
He calls us rebels, traitors; and will scourge
With haughty arms this hateful name in us.

Re-enter DOUGLAS.

Doug. Arm, gentlemen; to arms! for I have thrown

A brave defiance in King Henry's teeth,
And Westmoreland, that was engag'd, did
bear it;

Which cannot choose but bring him quickly
[on.]

Wor. The prince of Wales stepp'd forth before the king,

And, nephew, challeng'd you to single fight.

Hot. O, 'would the quarrel lay upon our heads;

And that no man might draw short breath to-
But I, and Harry Monmouth! Tell me, tell
me,

How show'd his tasking? seem'd it in con[tempt?]

Ver. No, by my soul; I never in my life

Did hear a challenge urg'd more modestly,

Unless a brother should a brother dare

To gentle exercise and proof of arms.

He gave you all the duties of a man; [tongue;

Trim'd up your praises with a princely

Spoke your deservings like a chronicle;

Making you ever better than his praise,

By still dispraising praise, valued with you:

And, which became him like a prince indeed,

He made a blushing cital* of himself;

And chid his truant youth with such a grace,

As if he master'd there a double spirit,

Of teaching, and of learning, instantly.

There did he pause: But let me tell the

If he outlive the envy of this day, [world,—

England did never owe so sweet a hope,

So much misconstrued in his wantonness.

Hot. Cousin, I think, thou art enamoured

Upon his follies; never did I hear

Of any prince, so wild, at liberty:
But, be he as he will, yet once er
I will embrace him with a soldier's
That he shall shrink under my cou-Arm, arm, with speed:—And, I
diers, friends,

Better consider what you have to
Than I, that have not well the gift
Can lift your blood up with persua-

Enter a MESSENGER.

Mess. My lord, here are letters!

Hot. I cannot read them now.—

O gentlemen, the time of life is sh-
To spend that shortness basely, w-
If life did ride upon a dial's point
Still ending at the arrival of an h-An if we live, we live to tread on-
If die, brave death, when princes
Now for our conscience,—the arm
When the intent of bearing them i-

Enter another MESSENGER.

Mess. My lord, prepare; the kiapace.

Hot. I thank him, that he cuts
tale,

For I profess not talking; Only Let each man do his best: and be
A sword, whose temper I intend t-
With the best blood that I can me-
In the adventure of this perilous d-
Now,—*Esperance!—Percy!—A-Sound all the lofty instruments of
And by that music let us all embr-
For, heaven to earth, some of us
A second time do such a courtesy [The Trumpets sound. They exunt.]

SCENE III.—Plain near Sh-

Excursions, and Parties fighting.
the Battle. Then enter DOUGLAS meeting.

Blunt. What is thy name, that
thus

Thou crossest me? what honour d
Upon my head?

Doug. Know then, my name is
And I do haunt thee in the battle
Because some tell me that thou a

Blunt. They tell thee true.

Doug. The lord of Stafford dea-
bought

Thy likeness; for, instead of thee
This sword hath ended him: so a

Unless thou yield thee as my pris-

Blunt. I was not born a yield-Scot;

And thou shalt find a king that v-
Lord Stafford's death.

[They fight, and E

Enter HOTSPUR.

Hot. O Douglas, hadst thou fomedon thus,

I never had triumph'd upon a Sc-Doug. All's done, all's won; h-lies the king.

Hot. Where?

Doug. Here.

to Douglas? no, I know this thou
I well:

might be was, his name was Blunt;
'twould like the king himself.

Shall go with thy soul, whither it
go!

I little hast thou bought too dear.

Then tell me that thou wert a king;
A king hath many marching in his train.

Now, by my sword, I will kill all his
train;

all his wardrobe, piece by piece,
at the king.

and away;
is stand full fairly for the day.

[Exit.]

Alarum.—Enter FALSTAFF.

ugh I could 'scape shot-free at London shot here; here's no scoring,
to pate.—Soft! who art thou? Sir

at,—there's honour for you: Here's
—I am as hot as molten lead, and o: God keep lead out of me! I need eight than mine own bowels.—I

y raggamuffins where they are pop-p's but these of my hundred and ve, and they are for the town's end, ag life. But who comes here?

Enter Prince Henry.

What, stand'st thou idle here? lend
thy sword:

down lies stark and stiff
souls of vaunting enemies,
the are unreveng'd: Pr'ythee, lend sword.

Alas, I pr'ythee, give me leave to hilo.—Tyrk Gregory never did such me, as I have done this day. I have

I have made him sure.
He is, indeed; and living to kill
I me thy sword, I pr'ythee.

, before God, Hal, if Percy be alive,
not my sword; but take my pistol,

Give it me: What, is it in the case?
Hal; 'tis hot, 'tis hot; there's that
city.

The Prince draws out a bottle of sack.
What, isn't a time to jest and dally

[Throws it at him and cries.]
I, if Percy be alive, I'll pierce him.
me in my way, so, if he do not, if I

, willingly, let him make a carbon. I like not such grinning honour for bath: Give me life: which if I

o; if not, honour comes unlooked
for's an end. [Exit.]

IV.—Another part of the Field.

Excursions.—Enter the KING, Prince Prince JOHN, and WESTMORELAND.

I pr'ythee,
draw thyself; thou bleed'st too
ch:—

of Lancaster, go you with him.
Not I, my lord, unless I did bleed

do beseech your majesty, make up,
strament do amaze your friends.
I will do so:—

Westmoreland, lead him to his tent.

Enter

I meet out countrymen for the prisoners.

West. Come, my lord, I will lead you to your tent.

P. Hen. Lead me, my lord? I do not need your help;

And heaven forbid, a shallow scratch should
The prince of Wales from such a field as this;

Where state's nobility has trodden on,
And rebels' arms triumph in westmoreland!

P. John. We breathe too long:—Come, come, in Westmoreland.

Our duty this way lies; for God's sake, come.
[Exit Prince JOHN and WESTMORELAND.]

P. Hen. By heaven, thou hast deceiv'd me,
Lancaster,

I did not think thee lord of such a spirit:
Before, I lov'd thee as a brother, John;

But now, I do respect thee as my guest.
K. Hen. I saw him hold lord Percy at the point,

With luckier maintenance than I did look for
Of such an upgrown warrior.

P. Hen. O, this boy
Lends mettle to us all! [Exit]

Alarum.—Enter DOUGLAS.

Doug. Another king! they grow like Hyden's
I am the Douglas, fatal to all those [heads];

That wear these colours on them.—What art
That counterfeits the person of a king? [Then,

K. Hen. The king himself; who, Douglas,
grieves at heart,

So many of his shadows thou hast met,
And not the very king. I have two boys,

Seek Percy, and thyself, about the field:
But, seeing thou fall'st on me so luckily,

I will assay thee; so defend thyself.
Doug. I fear, thou art another counterfeits;

And yet, in faith, thou bear'st thee like a king:
But mine, I am sure, thou art, when'er thou be,
And thus I win thee.

[They fight; the KING being in danger, enter Prince HENRY.]

P. Hen. Hold up thy head, vile Scot, or thou art like

Never to hold it up again! the spirits
Of Shirley, Stafford, Blount, are in my arms:

It is the prince of Wales, that threatens thee;
Who never promiseth, but he means to pay.—

[They fight; DOUGLAS slain.]
Cheerly, my lord; flow thine own grace!

Sir Nicholas Gawayne hath for succour sent,
And so hath Clifton; I'll to Clifton straight.

K. Hen. Stay, and breathe a while:—
Thou hast redeem'd thy lost opinion [life],

And show'd, thou mak'st some tender of my
In this fair rescue thou hast brought to me.

P. Hen. O heaven! they did me too much injury,

That ever said, I hearken'd for your death.
If it were so, I might have let alone

The insulting hand of Douglas over you;
Which would have been as speedy in your end,
As all the poisonous potions in the world,
And sav'd the treacherous labour of your men.

K. Hen. Make up to Clifton, I'll to Sir Nicholas Gawayne. [Exit King HENRY.]

Enter HOTSPUR.

Hot. If I mistake not, thou art Harry Mon-
mouth.

P. Hen. Thou speak'st as if I would deny
my name.

Hot. My name is Harry Percy.
P. Hen. Why, then I see

A very valiant rebel of the name.
I am the prince of Wales; and think not, Percy,

o. Supplication.

To share with me in glory any more:
Two stars keep not their motion in one sphere;
Nor can one England break a double reign,
Of Harry Percy, and the prince of Wales.

Hot. Nor shall it, Harry, for the hour is come
To end the one of us; And 'would to God,
Thy name in arms were now as great as mine!

P. Hen. I'll make it greater, ere I part from

And all the budding honours on thy crest
I'll crop, to make a garland for my head.

Hot. I can no longer brook thy vanities.

[They fight.]

Enter FALSTAFF.

Fal. Well said, Hal! to it, Hal!—Nay, you shall find no boy's play here, I can tell you.

*Enter DOUGLAS; he fights with FALSTAFF, who falls down as if he were dead, and exit DOUGLAS.
HOTSPUR is wounded, and falls.*

Hot. O, Harry, thou hast robb'd me of my
I better brook the loss of brittle life, [youth,
Than these proud titles thou hast won of me;
They wound my thoughts, worse than thy sword my flesh:—

But thought's the slave of life, and life time's
And time, that takes survey of all the world,
Must have a stop. O, I could prophesy,
But that the earthy and cold hand of death
Lies on my tongue:—No, Percy, thou art dust,
And food for—

P. Hen. For worms, brave Percy: Fare thee
well, great heart!—

Ill-wear'd ambition, how much art thou shrunk!
When that this body did contain a spirit,
A kingdom for it was too small a bound;
But now, two paces of the vilest earth
Is room enough:—This earth, that bears thee
Bears not alive so stout a gentleman. [dead,
If thou wert sensible of courtesy,
I should not make so dear a show of zeal:—
But let my favours^a hide thy mangled face;
And, even in thy behalf, I'll thank myself
For doing these fair rites of tenderness.
Adieu, and take thy praise with thee to heaven!
Thy ignomy sleep with thee in the grave,
But not remember'd in thy epitaph!—

[He sees FALSTAFF on the ground.]

What! old acquaintance! could not all this flesh
Keep in a little life? Poor Jack, farewell!
I could have better spar'd a better man.
O, I should have a heavy miss of thee,
If I were much in love with vanity.
Death hath not struck so fat a deer to-day,
Though many dearer, in this bloody fray:—
Embowell'd will I see thee by and by;
Till then, in blood by noble Percy lie. [Exit.]

Fal. [Rising slowly.] Embowell'd! If thou embowel me to-day, I'll give you leave to powder me, and eat me too, to-morrow. 'Sblood,
'Twas time to counterfeit, or that hot termagant Scot had paid me scot and lot too. Counterfeit? I lie, I am so counterfeit: To die, is to be a counterfeit; for he is but the counterfeit of a man, who hath not the life of a man. but to counterfeit dying, when a man thereby liveth,
is to be so counterfeit, but the true and perfect
image of life indeed. The better part of valour is—discretion; in the which better part, I have saved my life. 'Zounds, I am afraid of this gunpowder Percy, though he be dead. How,
if he should counterfeit too, and rise? I am afraid, he would prove the better counterfeit.
Therefore I'll make him sure: yea, and I'll swear I killed him. Why may not he rise, as ^a Surf, with which he covers Percy's face. q. surf.

well as I?
nobody can [Hot.] with along with

Re-enter

P. Hen.

hot

Thy cousin

P. John.

Did you see

P. Hen.

an

Upon the Art thou a

That plays

We will as

Thou art as

Fal. No,

man: but I

a Jack. I

dear.] If I

so; if not,

I look to be

you.

P. Hen.

saw thee do

Fal. Did

is given to

and out of both at an

Shrewsbury

if not, let the sin upon

my death, I

if the man

would mak

P. John.

hot

P. Hen.

hot

Come, bring

For my part

I'll gild it

The trumpet

Come, brot

To see who

[Enter]

Fal. I'll

that reward

grow great,

leave such,

should do.

SCENE

The Trump

Prince H

LAND, and

SON, pris

K. Hen.

hot

Ill-spirited

Pardon, an

And would

Misuse the Three king

A noble ear

Had been a

If, like a C

Betwixt ou

Wer. Wh

And I can

Since out to

K. Hen.

Ver

r offenders we will pause upon.—

Exeunt WORCESTER and VERNON, guarded.
goes the field?

Hen. The noble Scot, lord Douglas, when he saw

fortune of the day quite turn'd from him,
noble Percy slain, and all his men
the foot of fear,—fled with the rest;
, falling from a hill, he was so bruise'd,
the pursuers took him. At my tent Douglas is; and I beseech your grace,
y dispose of him.

Hen. With all my heart.

Hen. Then, brother John of Lancaster to honourable bounty shall belong: [you
the Douglas, and deliver him
his pleasure, ransomless, and free:
valour, shown upon our crests to-day,

Hath taught us how to cherish such high deeds,
Even in the bosom of our adversaries.

K. Hen. Then this remains,—that we divide our power.—

You, son John, and my cousin Westmoreland, Towards York shall bend you, with your dearest speed,

To meet Northumberland, and the prelate Scroop,

Who, as we hear, are busily in arms:

Myself,—and you, son Harry,—will towards Wales,

To fight with Glendower, and the earl of March.

Rebellion in this land shall lose his sway,

Meeting the check of such another day:

And since this business so fair is done,

Let us not leave till all our own be won.

[Exeunt.

SECOND PART

OF

KING HENRY

PERSONS REPRESENTED.

KING HENRY THE FOURTH.			TRAVERS and Moberland.
HENRY, Prince of Wales, afterwards King Henry V.	his Sons.	}	FALSTAFF, BARD
THOMAS, Duke of Clarence,			POINS and PETO,
PRINCE JOHN OF LANCASTER, afterwards (2 Henry V.) Duke of Bedford;			SHALLOW and SIL
PRINCE HUMPHREY of GLOSTER, afterwards (2 Henry V.) Duke of Gloster.			DAVY, Servant
EARL OF WARWICK,	of the King's Party.	}	MOULDY, SHADOW
EARL OF WESTMORELAND,			CALF, R
ROBERT, — HARCOURT,			FANG and SNARE
LORD CHIEF JUSTICE of the King's Bench.			RUMOUR.—A Pe
GENTLEMAN attending on the Chief Justice.	Enemies to the King.	}	A DANCER, Spe
EARL OF NORTHUMBERLAND,
BISHOP OF YORK,			LADY NORTHUMBER
LORD MOWBRAY; LORD HASTINGS,			Hostess QUICKLY
LORD BARDOLPH; Sir JOHN COLEVILLE, Lords and other
			diers, Messengers
			&c.
			Sc

INDUCTION.

Warwickworth.—Before Northumberland's Castle.

Enter RUMOUR, painted full of Tongues.

Rum. Open your ears; For which of you will stop [speaks?]

I have vent of hearing, when loud Rumour
 From the orient to the drooping west,
 Taking the wind my post-horse, still unfold
 The acts commenced on this ball of earth:
 Upon my tongues continual slanders ride;
 The which in every language I pronounce,
 Stuffing the ears of men with false reports.
 I speak of peace, while covert enmity,
 Under the smile of safety, wounds the world:
 And who but Rumour, who but only I,
 Make fearful musters, and prepar'd defence;
 Whilst the big year, swol'n with some other
 Grief,

Thought with child by the stern tyrant war,
 Had no such matter? Rumour is a pipe
 Drawn by surmises, jealousies, conjectures;
 And of so easy and so plain a stop,
 That the blunt monster with uncounted heads,
 The still-discordant wavering multitude,
 Can play upon it. But what need I thus Show my well-known body to anatomize
 Among my household? Why is Rumour here?
 I have been before King Harry's victory;
 And so, in a bloody field by Shrewsbury,

Hath beaten do
 troops,

Quenching the fire
 Even with the rel
 To speak so true
 To noise abroad,
 Under the wrath
 And that the kin
 Stoop'd his anoin
 This have I run towns

Between that roy
 And this worm-e
 Where Hotspur's
 Lies crafty-sick:
 And not a man of
 Than they have le tongues

They bring smoot
 true wro

SCENE I.—The Gate; En

Bard. Who ke
 Where is Port. What sh

— Nor

on the earl,
Bardolph doth attend him here.
The ship is walk'd forth into the bay;
Hence, knock but at the gate,
I will answer.

• NORTHUMBERLAND.

Attend the earl.
News, lord Bardolph? every
now
either of some stratagem :
wild ; contention, like a horse
ding, madly hath broke loose,
and all before him.

earl,
His news from Shrewsbury.
an heaven will !
I as heart can wish :—
yet wounded to the death ;
one of my lord your son,
slain outright ; and both the

[John,
and of Douglas : young prince and, and Stafford, fled the field ;
smooth's brawn, the bulk Sir
er son : O, such a day, [John,
low'd, and so fairly won,
now, to dignify the times,
stunnes !

is this deriv'd ?
didst come you from Shrewsbury ?
with one, my lord, that came near ;
I bred, and of good name,
er'd me these news for true.
comes my servant, Travers,
sent
to listen after news.
I, I over-rode him on the way ;
I'd with no certainties,
I may retain from me.

Enter TRAVERS.

Travers, what good tidings come
I ?
Sir John Umfreville turn'd
back ; and, being better hors'd,
after him, came spurring hard,
most surpenn'd with speed,
I me to breathe his bloodied

to Chester, and of him that news from Shrewsbury.
rebellion had bad luck,
Harry Percy's spur was cold ;
we his able horse the head,
ward, struck his armed heels
ling sides of his poor jade
head, and, starting so,
raining to devour the way,
I question.

—Again.
Harry Percy's spur was cold ?
I spur ? that rebellion

I
I'll tell you what ;— your son have not the day, er, for a silken point
say : never talk of it.
would the gentleman, that rode
ers,
instances of loss ?
I ?

He was some 'hilding' fellow, that had stol'n
The horse he rode on ; and, upon my life, Spoke at a venture. Look, here comes more
news.

Enter MORTON.

North. Yea, this man's brow, like to a little leaf,

Portends the nature of a tragic volume :
So looks the strand, whereon the imperious
Hath left a witness'd usurpation.—— [Good
Say, Morton, didst thou come from Shrewsbury ?
Mer. I ran from Shrewsbury, my noble lord ;
Where hateful death put on his ugliest mask,
To fright our party.

North. How doth my son, and brother ?
Thou tremblest ; and the whiteness in thy cheek
Is apter than thy tongue to tell thy errand.
Even such a man, so faint, so spiritless,
So dull, so dead in look, so woe-begone,
Drew Priam's curtains in the dead of night,
And would have told him, half his Troy was burn'd :

But Priam found the fire, ere he his tongue,
And I my Percy's death, ere thou report it.
This thou would'st say,—Your son did thus,
and thus,

[He ;
Your brother, thus ; so fought the noble Doug-
Stopping my greedy ear with their bold deeds :
But in the end, to stop mine ear indeed,
Thou hast a sigh to blow away this praise,
Ending with—brother, son, and all are dead.

Mer. Douglas is living, and your brother,
But, for my lord your son,— [yet :
North. Why, he is dead.

See, what a ready tongue suspicion hath ?
He, that but fears the thing he would not know, [eyes,
Hath, by instinct, knowledge from others
That what he fear'd is chanced. Yet speak, Morton ;

Tell thou thy earl, his divination lies ;
And I will take it as a sweet disgrace,
And make thee rich for doing me such wrong.

Mer. You are too great to be by me gain-said :
Your spirit is too true, your fears too certain.

North. Yet, for all this, say not that Percy's
dead.

I see a strange confession in thine eye : [sin,
Thou shak'st thy head, and hold'st it fear or
To speak a truth. If he be slain, say so :
The tongue offends not, that reports his death :
And he doth sin, that doth belie the dead ;
Not he, which says the dead is not alive.

Yet the first bringer of unwelcome news
Hath but a losing office ; and his tongue
Sounds ever after as a sullen bell,
Remember'd knolling a departing friend.

Berd. I cannot think, my lord, your son is dead.

Mer. I am sorry, I should force you to believe

That, which I would to heaven I had not seen :
But these mine eyes saw him in bloody state,
Read'ring faint quittance,† wearied and outbreath'd

To Harry Monmouth : whose swift wrath
beat down

The never-daunted Percy to the earth, [up.
From whence with life he never more sprung
In few,‡ his death (whose spirit lent a fire
Even to the dullest peasant in his camp,)
Being bruited‡ once, took fire and heat away

• Hilding, here, cowardly.

† An exhibition of his courage.

‡ Return of blows.

§ In few words.

¶ Exasperated.

From the best temper'd courage in his troops :
 For from his metal was his party steel'd ;
 Which once in him abated, all the rest
 Turn'd on themselves, like dull and heavy
 And as the thing that's heavy in itself, [lead.
 Upon enforcement, flies with greatest speed ;
 So did our men, heavy in Hotspur's loss, Lend to this weight such lightness with their
 fear,

That arrows fled not swifter toward their aim,
 Than did our soldiers, aiming at their safety,
 Fly from the field : Then was that noble Worcester

Too soon ta'en prisoner : and that furious Scot,
 The bloody Douglas, whose well-labouring
 sword

Had three times slain the appearance of the 'Gan vail' his stomach, and did grace the
 shame

Of those that turn'd their backs : and, in his stumbling in fear, was took. The sum of all
 Is,—that the king hath won ; and hath sent out
 A speedy power to encounter you, my lord,
 Under the conduct of young Lancaster,
 And Westmoreland : this is the news at full.

North. For this I shall have time enough to mourn.

In poison there is physic ; and these news,
 Having been well, that would have made me sick,

Being sick, have in some measure made me
 And as the wretch, whose fever-weaken'd
 joints,

Like strengthless hinges, buckle under life,
 Impatient of his fit, breaks like a fire
 Out of his keeper's arms ; even so my limbs, Weaken'd with grief, being now enrag'd with
 grief,

Are thrice themselves : hence therefore, thou nicest crutch ;

A scaly gauntlet now, with joints of steel,
 Must glove this hand : and hence, thou sickly quoil,†

Thou art a guard too wanton for the head,
 Which princes, flesh'd with conquest, aim to
 hit.

Now bind my brows with iron ; and approach
 The ragged'st hour that time and spite dare
 bring,

To frown upon the enrag'd Northumberland !
 Let heaven kiss earth ! Now let not nature's
 hand

Keep the wild flood confin'd ! let order die !
 And let this world no longer be a stage,
 To feed contention in a lingering act ;
 But let one spirit of the first-born Cain
 Reign in all bosoms, that, each heart being set
 On bloody courses, the rude scene may end,
 And darkness be the burier of the dead !

Tra. This strained passion doth you wrong,
 my lord.

Bard. Sweet earl, divorce not wisdom from your honour.

Mor. The Lives of all your loving complices Lean on your health ; the which, if you give
 To stormy passion, must perforce decay. [o'er
 You cast the event of war, my noble lord,
 And summ'd the account of chance, before you
 said,—

Let us make head. It was your presurmise,
 That in the doleful of blows your son might drop:

You knew, he walk'd o'er perils, on an edge,
 More likely to fall in, than to get o'er :
 You were advis'd, his flesh was capable

Of wounds, and spirits
 Would lift him
 Yet did you say
 Though strongly
 The stiff-borne fallen,
 Or what bathed
 More than that !

Bard. We all,
 Knew that we
 That, if we
 And yet we Chok'd the resp
 And, since we Come, we will

Mor. 'Tis mo
 noble

I hear for certai
 The gentle arch
 With well-app
 Who with a do
 My lord your
 But shadows,
 For that same
 The action of t
 And they did

As men drink p Seem'd on our souls,

This word, reb
 As fish are in a Turns insurrec
 Suppos'd since
 He's follow'd l
 And doth enla
 Of fair king

Derives from h Tells them he Gasping for lif
 And more,† an

North. I kne
 truth,

This present g
 Go in with me
 The aptest way
 Get posts, and speed
 Never so few,

SCENE

Enter Sir Jo bearing

Fal. Sirrah,
 to my water ?

Page. He sa
 good healthy owed it, he m
 knew for.

Fal. Men of me : The brai clay, man, is tends to laugh
 vented on me :
 but the cause
 here walk bef overwhelmed
 prince put the reason than to judgement. T

* Forces.

† Greater.

‡ A root suppo

* Let fall. † Trifling. ‡ Cap. † Distribution.

I were in my cap, than to wait at me never manned with an eagle.^o
I will set you neither in gold nor vile apparel, and send you back master, for a jewel; the juvenal,
or master, whose chin is not yet ill sooner have a beard grow in ry hand, than he shall get one on nd yet he will not stick to say, no-royal (God may finish it when ut a hair arises yet. he may keep en-royal, for a barber shall never e out of it, and yet he will be f he had writ man ever since his bachelor. He may keep his own is almost out of mine. I can as-
-What said master Dumbleton
in for my short chuck, and slope?
aid, Sir, you should procure him
um than Bardolph: he would and and yours; he liked not the m be damned like a glutton¹ may better!—A whoreson Achitophel!

a-foresooth leave! to bear a gun-
rd, and then stand upon security!
can smooth-pates do now wear
high shoes, and bunches of keys
e; and if a man is thorought with it taking up, then they must stand
ty. I had as lief they would put ey mouth, as offer to stop it with looked he should have sent me
ty yards of satin, as I am a true
he sends me security. Well, he security, for he hath the horns of nd the lightness of his wife shines nd yet cannot he see, though he lantern to light him.—Where's

e gone into Smithfield, to buy a horse.
ght him in Paul's, and he'll buy
n Smithfield. an I could get me
he stews, I were manned, bored,

OLD CHIEF JUSTICE, and an AT-TENDANT.

here comes the nobleman that a prince for striking him about close, I will not see him,

What's he that goes there?
staff, an't please your lordship.
He that was in question for the

, my lord but he hath since done
at Shrewsbury; and, as I hear,
g with some charge to the lord
master.

What, to York? Call him back

John Falstaff!
tell him, I am deaf.
must speak louder, my master is

I am sure, he is, to the hearing of ed.—Go, pluck him by the elbow,
t with him.

John.—
! a young knave, and beg¹ is rs? Is there not employment? Doth

we cut in an eagle. † In their debt.
an old proverb. Who goes to Westminster
t Paul's for a man, and to Smithfield for a e with a whore, a knave, and a jade

not the king lack subjects? do not the realm need soldiers? Though it be a shame to be on any side but one, it is worse shame to beg than to be on the worst side, were it worse than the name of rebellion can tell how to make it.

Alon. You mistake me, Sir.

Fal. Why, Sir, did I say you were an honest man? setting my knight-hood and my soldier-ship aside, I had had in my throat if I had said so.

Alon. I pray you, Sir, then set your knighthood and your soldiership aside; and give me leave to tell you, you lie in your throat, if you say I am any other than an honest man.

Fal. I give thee leave to tell me so! I lay aside that which grows to me! If thou get'st any leave of me, hang me: if thou takest leave, thou wert better be hanged; You hunt-counter,† hence! avaunt!

Alon. Sir, my lord would speak with you.

Ch. Just. Sir John Falstaff, a word with
you.

Fal. My good lord!—God give your lordship good time of day. I am glad to see your lordship abroad: I heard say, your lordship was sick: I hope, your lordship goes abroad by advice. Your lordship, though not clean past your youth, hath yet some smack of age in you,
some relish of the saltiness of time; and I most humbly beseech your lordship, to have a reverend care of your health.

Ch. Just. Sir John, I sent for you before your expedition to Shrewsbury.

Fal. An't please your lordship, I hear, his majesty is returned with some discomfort from Wales.

Ch. Just. I talk not of his majesty:—You would not come when I sent for you.

Fal. And I hear moreover, his highness is fallen into this same whoreson apoplexy.

Ch. Just. Well, heaven mend him! I pray,
let me speak with you.

Fal. This apoplexy is, as I take it, a kind of lethargy, an't please your lordship; a kind of sleeping in the blood, a whoreson tingling.

Ch. Just. What tell you me of it? be it as it is.

Fal. It hath its original from much grief;
from study, and perturbation of the brain: I have read the cause of his effects in Galen; it is a kind of deafness.

Ch. Just. I think, you are fallen into the disease; for you hear not what I say to you.

Fal. Very well, my lord, very well: rather,
an't please you, it is the disease of not listening, the malady of not marking, that I am troubled withal.

Ch. Just. To punish you by the heels, would amend the attention of your ears; and I care
not, if I do become your physician.

Fal. I am as poor as Job, my lord; but not so patient: your lordship may minister the potion of imprisonment to me, in respect of poverty; but how I should be your patient to follow your prescriptions, the wine may make some dram of a scruple, or, indeed, a scruple itself.

Ch. Just. I sent for you, when there were matters against you for your life, to come speak with me.

Fal. As I was then advised by my learned counsel in the laws of this land-service, I did not come.

Ch. Just. Well, the truth is, Sir John, you live in great infamy.

o A catch-pole, or town-bill.

Fal. He that buckles him in my belt, cannot live in less.

Ch. Just. Your means are very slender, and your waste is great.

Fal. I would it were otherwise; I would my means were greater, and my waist slenderer.

Ch. Just. You have misled the youthful prince.

Fal. The young prince hath misled me: I am the fellow with the great belly, and he my dog.

Ch. Just. Well, I am loath to gall a new-healed wound; your day's service at Shrewsbury hath a little gilded over your night's exploit on Gads-hill: you may thank the unquiet time for your quiet o'er-posting that action.

Fal. My lord?

Ch. Just. But since all is well, keep it so: wake not a sleeping wolf.

Fal. To wake a wolf, is as bad as to smell a fox.

Ch. Just. What! you are as a candle, the better part burnt out.

Fal. A wassel* candle, my lord; all tallow: if I did say of wax, my growth would approve the truth.

Ch. Just. There is not a white hair on your face, but should have his effect of gravity.

Fal. His effect of gravy, gravy, gravy.

Ch. Just. You follow the young prince up and down, like his ill angel.

Fal. Not so, my lord; your ill angel† is light; but, I hope, he that looks upon me, will take me without weighing: and yet, in some respects, I grant, I cannot go, I cannot tell:‡ Virtue is of so little regard in these costermonger times, that true valour is turned bear-herd: Pregnancy§ is made a tapster, and hath his quick wit wasted in giving reckonings: all the other gifts appertinent to man, as the malice of this age shapes them, are not worth a gooseberry. You, that are old, consider not the capacities of us that are young: you measure the heat of our livers with the bitterness of your galls: and we that are in the vaward|| of our youth, I must confess, are wags too.

Ch. Just. Do you set down your name in the scroll of youth, that are written down old with all the characters of age? Have you not a moist eye? a dry hand? a yellow cheek? a white beard? a decreasing leg? an increasing belly? Is not your voice broken? your wind short? your chin double? your wit single?¶ and every part about you blasted with antiquity?⁂ and will you yet call yourself young? Fie, fie, fie, Sir John!

Fal. My lord, I was born about three of the clock in the afternoon, with a white head, and something a round belly. For my voice,—I have lost it with hollaing, and singing of anthems. To approve my youth further, I will not: the truth is, I am only old in judgement and understanding; and he that will caper with me for a thousand marks, let him lend me the money, and have at him. For the box o'the ear that the prince gave you,—he gave it like a rude prince, and you took it like a sensible lord. I have checked him for it; and the young lion repents: marry, not in ashes, and sackcloth; but in new silk, and old sack.

Ch. Just. Well, heaven send the prince a better companion!

Fal. Heaven send the companion a better prince! I cannot rid my hands of him.

Ch. Just. Well, the king hath severed you and Prince Harry: I hear, you are going with lord John of Lancaster, against the archbishop, and the earl of Northumberland.

Fal. Yea; I thank your pretty sweet wit for it. But look you pray, all you that kiss my lady peace at home, that our armies join not in a hot day! for, by the Lord, I take but two shirts out with me, and I mean not to sweat extraordinarily: if it be a hot day, an I brandish any thing but my bottle, I would I might never spit white again. There is not a dangerous action can peep out his head, but I am thrust upon it: Well, I cannot last ever: But it was always yet the trick of our English nation, if they have a good thing, to make it too common. If you will needs say, I am an old man, you should give me rest. I would to God, my name were not so terrible to the enemy as it is. I were better to be eaten to death with rust, than to be scoured to nothing with perpetual motion.

Ch. Just. Well, be honest, be honest; And God bless your expedition!

Fal. Will your lordship lend me a thousand pound, to furnish me forth?

Ch. Just. Not a penny, not a penny; you are too impatient to bear crosses. Fare you well: Commend me to my cousin Westmoreland. [Exit CHIEF JUSTICE and ATTENDANT.]

Fal. If I do, fillip me with a three-man beetle.*—A man can no more separate age and covetousness, than he can part young limbs and lechery: but the gout galls the one, and the pox pinches the other; and so both the degrees prevent† my curses.—Boy!—

Page. Sir?

Fal. What money is in my purse?

Page. Seven groats and twopence.

Fal. I can get no remedy against this consumption of the purse: borrowing only lingers and lingers it out, but the disease is incurable.—Go bear this letter to my lord of Lancaster; this to the prince; this to the earl of Westmoreland; and this to old mistress Ursula, whom I have weekly sworn to marry since I perceived the first white hair on my chin: About it; you know where to find me. [Exit PAGE.] A pox of this gout! or, a gout of this pox! for the one, or the other, plays the rogue with my great toe. It is no matter, if I do halt; I have the wars for my colour, and my pension shall seem the more reasonable: A good wit will make use of any thing; I will turn diseases to commodity. ‡ [Exit.]

SCENE III.—York.—A Room in the Archbishop's Palace.

Enter the ARCHBISHOP OF YORK, the Lords HASTINGS, MOWBRAY, and BARDOLPH.

Arch. Thus have you heard our cause, and known our means;

And, my most noble friends, I pray you all, Speak plainly your opinions of our hopes:—And first, lord marshal, what say you to it?

Morb. I well allow the occasion of our arms; But gladly would be better satisfied, [selves] How, in our means, we should advance our—To look with forehead bold and big enough Upon the power and puissance of the king.

Hast. Our present musters grow upon the file To five and twenty thousand men of choice; And our supplies live largely in the hope Of great Northumberland, whose bosom burns With an incensed fire of injuries.

* A large candle for a feast. † The coin called an angel ‡ Pass current. § Readiness.
|| Forepart. ¶ Small. ⁂ Old age.

* A large wooden hammer so heavy as to require three men to wield it. † Anticipate. ‡ Profit.

tion then, lord Hastings,
bus :—
at five and twenty thousand without Northumberland.
we may.

there's the point :
we be thought too feeble,
we should not step too far distance by the hand :
bloody-fac'd as this,
action, and surmise
should not be admitted.
true, lord Bardolph ; for,

par's case at Shrewsbury.
y lord ; who lin'd himself

romise of supply,
with project of a power
the smallest of his thoughts :
imagination,
led his powers to death,
p'd into destruction.
our leave, it never yet did

oods, and forms of hope.
a present quality of war ;—
action, (a cause on foot,)
s in an early spring [fruit, ing buds ; which, to prove
such warrant, as despair,
s them. When we mean to plot, then draw the model ;

he figure of the house,
the cost of the erection .
itweighs ability,
ut draw anew the model
, at least, desist [work,
Much more, in this great
to pluck a kingdom down,
,) should we survey
n, and the model ;
re foundation ;

; know our own estate,
ork to undergo,
is opposite ; or else,
, and in figures,
men, instead of men :
es the model of a house
r to build it ; who, half

res his part created cost
the weeping clouds,
fish winter's tyranny.
t our hopes (yet likely for n, and that we now pos-expectation ; [seas'd

dy strong enough,
equal with the king.
se king but five and twenty

more ; nay, not so much,
lph.
s the times do brawl,
s : one power against the

leadower ; perforce, a third to is the unfirm king ad his coffers sound
y and emptiness.
should draw his several
gether,
is in full puissance,
xl.

Agree

Hast. If he should do so,
He leaves his back unarm'd, the French and Welsh

Baying him at the heels : never fear that.

Bard. Who, is it like, should lead his forces
hither ?

Hast. The duke of Lancaster, and Westmoreland :

Against the Welsh, himself, and Harry Mon-
But who is substituted 'gainst the French,
I have no certain notice.

Arch. Let us on ;
And publish the occasion of our arms.

The commonwealth is sick of their own choice,
Their over-greedy love hath surfeited :—

A habitation giddy and unsure
Hath he, that buildeth on the vulgar heart.

O thou fond many !^o with what loud applause
Didst thou beat heaven with blessing Boling-
broke,

Before he was what thou would'st have him
And being now trimm'd^t in thine own desires,

Thou, beastly feeder, art so full of him,
That thou provok'st thyself to cast him up.

So, so, thou common dog, didst thou disgorge
Thy glutton bosom of the royal Richard ;

And now thou would'st eat thy dead vomit up,
And howl'st to find it. What trust is in these times ?

They that, when Richard liv'd, would have him die,

Are now become enamour'd on his grave :
Thou, that threw'st dust upon his goodly head,

When through proud London he came sighing
After the admired heels of Bolingbroke,

And take thou this ! O thoughts of men accurst !
Past, and to come, seem best ; things present,
worst.

Monb. Shall we go draw our numbers, and set on ?

Hast. We are time's subjects, and time bids
be gone.

Exeunt.

ACT II.

SCENE I.—London.—A Street.

Enter Hostess, Fang, and his Boy, with her ;
and Snare following.

Host. Master Fang, have you entered the action ?

Fang. It is entered.

Host. Where is your yeoman ! Is it a lusty yeoman ? will a' stand to't ?

Fang. Sirrah, where's Snare ?

Host. O lord, ay : good master Snare.

Snare. Here, here.

Fang. Snare, we must arrest Sir John Fal-staff.

Host. Yes, good master Snare ; I have entered him and all.

Snare. It may chance cost some of us our lives, for he will stab.

Host. Alas the day ! take heed of him ; he stabbed me in mine own house, and that most beastly : in good faith, a' cares not what mischief he doth, if his weapon be out : he will join^t like any devil ; he will spare neither man, woman, nor child.

Fang. If I can close with him, I care not for his thrust.

Host. No, nor I neither : I'll be at your elbow.

Fang. An I but fist him once ; an a' come but within my vice !—

Exeunt.

Agree

o Multitude.
t A halberd.
t Thrust.
t Grasp.

Host. I am undone by his going; I warrant you, he's an infinitive thing upon my score:—good master Fang, hold him sure;—good master Snare, let him not scape. He comes continually to Pie-corner, (saving your manhoods,) to buy a saddle; and he's indited to dinner to the lubbar's head in Lumbert-street, to master Smooth's the silkman: I pray ye, since my exion is entered, and my case so openly known to the world, let him be brought to his answer. A hundred mark is a long oan for a poor lone woman to bear: and I have borne, and borne, and borne; and have been rubbed off, and rubbed off, and rubbed off, from this day to that day, that it is a shame to be thought on. There is no honesty in such dealing; unless a woman should be made an ass, and a beast, to bear every knave's wrong.—

Enter Sir JOHN FALSTAFF, PAGE, and BARDOLPH.

Host. Wonder he comes; and that arrant malmsey-douse knave, Bardolph, with him. Do your offices, do your offices, master Fang, and master Snare; do me, do me, do me your offices.

Fal. How now? whose mare's dead? what's the matter?

Fang. Sir John, I arrest you at the suit of mistress Quickly.

Fal. Away, varlets!—Draw, Bardolph; cut me off the villain's head; throw the quean in the channel.

Host. Throw me in the channel? I'll throw thee in the channel. Wilt thou? wilt thou? thou bastardy rogue!—Murder, murder! O thou honey-suckle* villain! wilt thou kill God's officers, and the king's? O thou honey-seed† rogue! thou art a honey-seed; a man-queller, and a woman-queller.

Fal. Keep them off, Bardolph.

Fang. A rescue! a rescue!

Host. Good people, bring a rescue or two.—Thou wo't, wo't thou? thou wo't, wo't thou? do, do, thou rogue! do, thou hemp-seed!

Fal. Away, you scullion! you rampallian! you fustilarian! I'll tickle your catastrophe.

Enter the Lord CHIEF JUSTICE, attended.

Ch. Just. What's the matter? keep the peace here, ho!

Host. Good my lord, be good to me! I beseech you, stand to me!

Ch. Just. How now, Sir John? what, are you brawling here?

Host. Doth this become your place, your time, and business?

Ch. Just. [York.—] You should have been well on your way to stand from him, fellow; Wherefore hang'st thou on him?

Host. O my most worshipful lord, an't please your grace, I am a poor widow of Eastcheap, and he is arrested at my suit.

Ch. Just. For what sum?

Host. It is more than for some, my lord: it is for all, all I have: he hath eaten me out of house and home; he hath put all my substance into that fat belly of his:—but I will have some of it out again, or I'll ride thee o' nights, like the mare.

Fal. I think, I am as like to ride the mare, if I have any vantage of ground to get up.

Ch. Just. How comes this, Sir John? Fie! what man of good temper would endure this tempest of exclamation? Are you not ashamed, to enforce a poor to come by her own Fal. What is thee?

Host. Marry, if thyself, and the n to me upon a par! Dolphin-chamber, coal fire, upon W when the prince I father to a singing swear to me then, to marry me, and Canst thou deny the butcher's wife gossip Quickly? of vinegar; tellir prawns; whereby whereby I told t wound? And d gone down stairs familiarity with ere long they al didst thou not k thirty shillings? oath; deny it, if

Fal. My lord, she says, up and est son is like y and, the truth is But for these fo may have redres

Ch. Just. Sir acquainted with y true cause the f brow, nor the th such more than can thrust me fr have, as it app easy-yielding s her serve your

Host. Yea, in

Ch. Just. Pr'y you owe her, as done with her; ling money, and ance.

Fal. My lord, without reply. impudent sauc court'sy, and s my lord, my hu not be your sui deliverance fr hasty employm

Ch. Just. You wrong: but an tation,† and sat

Fal. Come hi

Ch. Just. No Gow. The kin of Wal Arc near at hal

Fal. As I am

Host. Nay, y

Fal. As I a more words of i

Host. By thi must be fain to tapestry of my Fal. Glasses

* Homicidal.

† Homicide.

* Party gilt.
† Su

valle,—a pretty slight drollery, or the prodigal, or the German bunter-work, is worth a thousand of agings, and these fly-bitten tapes— it be ten pound, if thou canst. were not for thy humours, there is wench in England. Go, wash thy aw^e thy action: Come, thou must humour with me; dost not know some, I know thou wast set on to y thee, Sir John, let it be but as; i'faith I am loath to pawn my d earnest, la.

alone; I'll make other shift; you'll l.

l, you shall have it, though I pawn I hope, you'll come to supper: as all together?

I live!—Go, with her, with her; [R.] hook on, hook on.

I you have Doll Tear-sheet meet e!

ere words; let's have her.

me HOTSPA, BARDOLPH, OFFICERS, d PAGE.

I have heard better news.

's the news, my good lord?

Where lay the king last night?

Isingstoke, my lord.

e, my lord, all's well: What's the d?

Come all his forces back?

fifteen hundred foot, five hundred

e,

up to my lord of Lancaster,

thumberland, and the archbishop.

a the king back from Wales, my

You shall have letters of me pre- e, go along with me, good master

rd!

What's the matter?

r Gower, shall I entreat you with

!

ist wait upon my good lord here:

good Sir John.

Sir John, you loiter here too long,

w to take soldiers up in counties as ron sup with me, master Gower?

What foolish master taught you

re, Sir John?

er Gower, if they become me not,

I that taught them me.—This is eing grace, my lord; tap for tap,

air.

Now the Lord lighten thee! thou

sol. [Exeunt.]

II.—The same.—Another Street.

Prince HENRY and POINS.

rust me, I am exceeding weary.

It came to that? I had thought,

ist not have attached one of so

'ajth, it does me; though it dis-

complexion of my greatness to ac-

L. Dost it not show vilely in me, all beer?

y, a prince should not be so loose-

s to remember so weak a compari-

elike then, my appetite was not princely got; for, by my troth, I do now re- member the poor creature, small beer. But, indeed, these humble considerations make me out of love with my greatness. What a dis- grace is it to me, to remember thy name! or to know thy face to-morrow! or to take note how many pair of silk stockings thou hast; viz. these, and those that were the peach-colour'd ones! or to hear the inventory of thy shirts; as, one for superfluity, and one other for use!—but that, the tennis-court-keeper knows better than I; for it is a low ebb of linen with thee, when thou keepest not racket there; as thou hast not done a great while, because the rest of thy low- countries have made a shift to eat up thy Hol- land: and God knows, whether those that bawl out the ruins of thy linen,* shall inherit his kingdom: but the midwives say, the children are not in the fault; whereupon the world in- creases, and kindreds are mightily strength- ened.

POINS. How ill it follows, after you have la- boured so hard, you should talk so idly! Tell me, how many good young princes would do so, their fathers being so sick as yours at this time is?

P. Hen. Shall I tell thee one thing, Poins?

POINS. Yes; and let it be an excellent good thing.

P. Hen. It will serve among wits of no higher breeding than thine.

POINS. Go to, I stand the peak of your one thing that you will tell.

P. Hen. Why, I tell thee,—it is not meet that I should be sad, now my father is sick: albeit I could tell to thee, (as to one it pleases me, for fault of a better, to call my friend,) I could be sad, and sad indeed too.

POINS. Very hardly, upon such a subject.

P. Hen. By this hand, thou think'st me as far in the devil's book, as thou, and Falstaff, for obduracy and persistency: Let the end try the man. But I tell thee,—my heart bleeds lawdly, that my father is so sick: and keep- ing such vile company as thou art, hath in rea- son taken from me all ostentation of sorrow.

POINS. The reason?

P. Hen. What would'st thou think of me, if I should weep?

POINS. I would think thee a most princely hypocrite.

P. Hen. It would be every man's thought: and thou art a blessed fellow, to think as every man thinks; never a man's thought in the world keeps the road-way better than thine: every man would think me a hypocrite indeed. And what awakes your most worshipful thought, to think so?

POINS. Why, because you have been so lowd, and so much engrafted to Falstaff.

P. Hen. And to thee.

POINS. By this light, I am well spoken of, I can hear it with my own ears: the worst that they can say of me is, that I am a second bro- ther, and that I am a proper fellow of my hands; and those two things, I confess, I can- not help. By the mass, here comes Bardolph.

P. Hen. And the boy that I gave Falstaff: he had him from me Christian; and look, if the fat villain hath not transformed him up.

Enter BARDOLPH and PAGE.

Bard. Save your grace!

P. Hen. And yours, most noble Bardolph!

Bard. Come, you virtuous man, [To the PAGE.]

* Withdraw.

* Children wrapped up in his old shirts.

ou bashful fool, must you be blushing? where-re blush you now? What a maidenly man at us are you become? Is it such a matter, to
at a pottle-pot's maidenhead.

Page. He called me even now, my lord, rough a red lattice,* and I could discern no
art of his face from the window: at last, I oied his eyes; and, methought, he had made vo holes in the ale-wife's new petticoat, and eeped through.

P. Hen. Hath not the boy profited?

Bard. Away, you whoreson upright rabbit,
way!

Page. Away, you rascally Althea's dream,
way!

P. Hen. Instruct us, boy: What dream, boy?

Page. Marry, my lord, Althea dreamed she as delivered of a fire-brand; and therefore I all him her dream.

P. Hen. A crown's worth of good interpreta-on.—There it is, boy. [Gives him money.]

Poins. O, that this good blossom could be ept from cankers!—Well, there is sixpence to reserve thee.

Bard. An you do not make him be hanged
mong you, the gallows shall have wrong.

P. Hen. And how doth thy master, Bar-oloph?

Bard. Well, my lord. He heard of your race's coming to town; there's a letter for you.

Poins. Delivered with good respect.—And ow doth the martlemas,† your master?

Bard. In bodily health, Sir.

Poins. Marry, the immortal part needs a phy-ician: but that moves not him; though that be ick, it dies not.

P. Hen. I do allow this went to be as familiar with me as my dog: and he holds his place;
or, look you, how he writes.

Poins. [Reads.] John Falstaff, knight,— very man must know that, as oft as he has ccasion to name himself. Even like those nat are kin to the king; for they never prick neir finger, but they say, There is some of the ing's blood spilt: How comes that? says he,
nat takes upon him not to conceive: the answer
as ready as a borrower's cap; I am the king's our cousin, Sir.

P. Hen. Nay, they will be kin to us, or they will fetch it from Japhet. But the letter:—

Poins. Sir John Falstaff, knight, to the son f the king, nearest his father, Harry Prince of Wales, greeting.—Why, this is a certificate.

P. Hen. Peace!

Poins. I will imitate the honourable Roman in revity:—he sure means brevity in breath;
hort-winded.—I commend me to thee, I commend thee, and I leave thee. Be not too familiar with Poins; for he misuses thy favours so much,
hat he swears, thou art to marry his sister Nell.
Repent at idle times as thou may'st, and so fare-
well.

Thine, by yea and no, (which is as much as to say, as thou usest him,)

Jack Falstaff, with my familiars;

John, with my brothers and sisters;

and Sir John, with all Europe.

My lord, I will steep this letter in sack, and make him eat it.

P. Hen. That's to make him eat twenty of his words. But do you use me thus, Ned? must marry your sister?

Poins. May the wench have no worse forune! but I never said so.

* An ale-house window.

† Martinmas, St. Martin's day is Nov. 11.

‡ Swoln excrescence.

P. Hen. Well, I
the time; and the clouds and mock London?

Bard. Yes, my

P. Hen. Where
seed in the old fru

Bard. At the o
cheap.

P. Hen. What

Page. Ephesian

P. Hen. Sup at

Page. None, I Quickly, and mis

P. Hen. What

Page. A prop
kinswoman of my

P. Hen. Even
are to the town

them, Ned, at su

Poins. I am yc
low you.

P. Hen. Sirrah
no word to your town: There's fu

Bard. I have r

Page. And for

P. Hen. Fare
DOLPH and PAGE.

be some road.

Poins. I warra
between Saint A

P. Hen. How
himself to-night

ourselves be see

Poins. Put ont
and wait upon b

P. Hen. From
scension! it wa

to a prentice? a be mine: for, in

weigh with the l

SCENE III.—

Enter NORTHUM
LANE

North. I pray
daught

Give even way

Put not you on

And be, like the Lady N. I ha

more:

Do what you w

North. Alas,
pawn;

And, but my go

Lady P. O, y
these w

The time was,
When you were

When your ow

Harry,
Threw many a r

Bring up his po

Who then pers

There were two son's.

For yours,—ma
For his,—it stu

In the grey vau

Did all the chiv

To do brave act
Wherein the no

pe, that practised not his gait:
g thick, which nature made his coats of the vallant; [blemiſh,
I could ſpeak low, and tardily,
his own perfection to abate,
him: So that, in ſpeech, in gait,
actions of delight,
lea, humours of blood,
art and glaſs, copy and book,
I others. And him,—O wondrous men!—him did you leave, no, unſucceeded by you,)

the hideous god of war
ge; to abide a field,
g but the ſound of Hotſpur's name
reſiſible:—ſo you left him:
er, do his ghoul the wrong,
honour more precise and alce
than with him; let them alone;
and the archbiſhop, are ſtrong;
d Harry had but half their num-

I, hanging on Hotſpur's neck,
d Moumouth's grave.
new^d your heart,
! you do draw my ſpirits from ſeeking ancient overſights. [me,
s, and meet with danger there;
k me in another place,
more provided.
ſy to Scotland,
reſiſtles, and the armed commons,
puiſſance made a little taſte.
they get ground and vantage of
ing,
s with them, like a rib of ſteel,
enough ſtronger; but, for all our try themſelves: So did your ſon;
ffer'd, ſo came I a widow;
all have length of life enough,
remembrance with mine eyes,
row and ſprout as high as heaven to my noble huſband. [ven, ſe, come, go in with me: 'tis with ſlad,
ide ſwell'd up unto its height,
s ſtill-ſtand, running neither way,
I go to meet the archbiſhop,
reſand reaſons hold me back:—
s for Scotland; there am I,
I vantage crave my company.

[Exit.

—London.—A Room in the Bear's
and Tugger, in Eaſtcheap.

Enter two DRAWERS.

What the devil haſt thou brought
—Johns? thou know'ſt, Sir John re an apple-John.
iaſs, thou ſayeſt true: The prince ch of apple-Johns before him, and re were five more Sir Johns. and,
his hat, ſaid, I will now take my
e ſir dry, round, old, wither'd angered him to the heart; but he hat.

Why then, cover, and ſet them
ſee if thou canſt find out Sneak's
raſe Tear-sheet would ſain hear
. Deſpatch:—The room where they ſupped, is the hat; they'll come in ſtraight.

2 Draw. Sirrah, here will be the prince, and maſter Peine anon: and they will put on two of our jerkins, and aprons; and Sir John muſt
not know of it: Herdolph hath brought word.

1 Draw. By the ſeaſon, here will be old wither'd
It will be an excellent ſtraggles.

2 Draw. I'll ſee, if I can find out Sneak.

[Exit.

Enter HOTSPUR and DOLL TEAR-SHEET.

Hot. I'faith, ſweet heart, methinks now you are in an excellent good temperality: your palſidge beats as extraordinarily as heart would deſire; and your colour, I warrant you, is as red as any roſe: but, i'faith, you have drunk
too much canaries; and that's a marvellous ſearching wine, and it perfumes the blood ere one can ſay,—What's that? How do you ſaw?

Del. Better than I was. Heia!

Hot. Why, that's well ſaid; a good heart's worth gold. Look, here comes Sir John.

Enter PALSTAFF, ſinging.

Pal. When Arthur ſet to court—Empty the jordan—And ſee a worthy king: [Exit DRAWers.] How now, miſtreſs Doll?

Hot. Sick of a cold: yea, good ſooth.

Pal. So is all her ſect; as they be once in a cold, they are ſick.

Del. You muddy rascal, is that all the comfort you give me?

Pal. You make fat rascals, miſtreſs Doll.

Del. I make them! gluttony and diſeaſes make them; I make them not.

Pal. If the cook help to make the gluttony you help to make the diſeaſes, Doll: we catch of you, Doll, we catch of you; grant that, my poor virtue, grant that.

Del. Ay, marry; our chains, and our jewels.

Pal. Your breeches, pearls, and ſouches;—for to ſerve bravely, is to come halting off, you know: To come off the breach with his pike bent bravely, and to ſurgery bravely; to venture upon the charged chamberſt bravely:—

Del. Hang yourſelf, you muddy conger, hang yourſelf!

Hot. By my troth, this is the old faſhion;
you two never meet, but you fall to ſome diſ-
cord: you are both, in good troth, as rheumatic as two dry toaſts; you cannot one hear with another's conſtrictions. What the goodyear's! one muſt bear, and that muſt be you:
[To DOLL.] you are the weaker veſſel, as they
ſay, the emptier veſſel.

Del. Can a weak empty veſſel bear ſuch a huge full hogſhead? there's a whole merchant's venture of Bordeaux ſtuff in him; you have not ſeen a hulk better ſtuffed in the hold.
—Come, I'll be friends with thee, Jack: thou art going to the wars; and whether I ſhall ever ſee thee again, or no, there is nobody cares.

Re-enter DRAWER.

Draw. Sir, anciently Pistol's below, and would ſpeak with you.

Del. Hang him, ſwaggering ſcoundrel! let him not come hither: It is the foul mouth'd ſet rogue in England.

† An apple that will keep two years.
s ſweet miſtreſs: a ſeal of miſtreſs or a ſeal.

• Merry deſign. † Small piece of codman.
s Miſs Quickly's ſlander Sir John, &c. &c.
s Knight.

Host. If he swagger, let him not come here: no, by my faith; I must live amongst my neighbours; I'll no swaggerers: I am in good name and fame with the very best:—Shut the door;—there comes no swaggerers here: I have not lived all this while, to have swaggering now:—shut the door, I pray you.

Fal. Dost thou hear, hostess?—

Host. Pray you, pacify yourself, Sir John; here comes no swaggerers^a here.

Fal. Dost thou hear? it is mine ancient.

Host. Tilly-fally, Sir John, never tell me; our ancient swaggerer comes not in my doors.

was before master Tisick, the deputy, the other day; and, as he said to me,—it was no longer ago than Wednesday last,—Neighbour Quickly, says he;—master Dumb, our minister, was by then;—Neighbour Quickly, says he; reccite those that are civil; for, saith he, you are an ill name;—now he said so, I can tell hereupon; for, says he, you are an honest woman, and well thought on; therefore take heed what guests you receive: Reccite, says he, no ragging companions.—There comes none here;—you would bless you to hear what he said:—no, I'll no swaggerers.

Fal. He's no swaggerer, hostess; a tame heater,† he; you may stroke him as gently as puppy greyhound: he will not swagger with Barbary hen, if her feathers turn back in any show of resistance.—Call him up, drawer.

Host. Cheater, call you him? I will bar no honest man my house, nor no cheater: But I do not love swaggering; by my troth, I am the worse, when one says—swagger: feel, masters, how I shake; look you, I warrant you.

Dol. So you do, hostess.

Host. Do I? yea, in very truth, do I, as were an aspen leaf: I cannot abide swaggerers.

Enter PISTOL, BARDOLPH, and PAGE.

Pist. 'Save you, Sir John!

Fal. Welcome, ancient Pistol. Here, Pistol, charge you with a cup of sack: do you discharge upon mine hostess.

Pist. I will discharge upon her, Sir John, with two bullets.

Fal. She is pistol proof, Sir; you shall hardly offend her.

Host. Come, I'll drink no proofs, nor no bullets: I'll drink no more than will do me good, for no man's pleasure, I.

Pist. Then to you, mistress Dorothy; I will charge you.

Dol. Charge me? I scorn you, scurvy companion. What! you poor, base, rascally, cheating, lacklinen mate! Away you mouldy rogue, away! I am meat for your master.

Pist. I know you, mistress Dorothy.

Dol. Away, you cut-purse rascal! you filthy dung, away! by this wine, I'll thrust my knife in your mouldy chaps, an you play the saucy little with me. Away, you bottle-ale rascal! you basket-hilt stale juggler, you!—Since then, I pray you, Sir?—What, with two points on your shoulder? much!§

Pist. I will murder your ruff for this.

Fal. No more, Pistol; I would not have you go off here: discharge yourself of our company, Pistol.

Host. No, good captain Pistol; not here, sweet captain.

^a A blustering, fighting fellow.
[§] Laces, marks of his commission.
^j An expression of disdain.

† Gamester.

Dol. Captain! cheater, art thou captain? If captain would truncheon names upon you! You a captain, yielding a poor whore! He a captain! I upon mouldy stew! A captain! these captain as odious was an excellent ill-sorted: therefore to it.

Bard. Pray the

Fal. Hark thee

Pist. Not I: t dolph;—I could on her.

Page. Pray the

Pist. I'll see h damned lake, to bus and tortures line, say I. Do tors! Have we Host. Good ca very late, i'faith vate your choler.

Pist. These be pack hor And hollow pam Which cannot go Compare with C And Trojan Gre with

King Cerberus; Shall we fall fou

Host. By my t bitter words.

Bard. Be got grow to a brawl

Pist. Die men pins; Have we Host. O' my such here. What I would deny he Pist. Then, fe polis:§

Come, give's son Si fortuna

lente Fear we broads

Give me some thou the

Come we to full nothing!

Fal. Pistol, I

Pist. Sweet k we have seen the

Dol. Thrust hi dure such a susti

Pist. Thrust hi Galloway nags?¶

Fal. Quoit!|| I shove-groat shilli

speak nothing, h

Bard. Come, g

Pist. What! sh imbrue? Then death rock

ful days!

* Traitors, rascals.

† A quotation from

‡ Blunder for Hank

§ Parody of a line I

|| Fist. ¶ Comm

†† Part of an ancie

in, let grievous, ghastly, gaping wounds
e the sisters three! Come, Atropos, I
say!

Here's goodly stuff toward!

Give me my rapier, boy.

I pray thee, Jack, I pray thee, do not let you down stairs.

[Drawing, and driving PISTOL out.

Here's a goodly tumult! I'll forswear house, afore I'll be in these tirrits and So; murder, I warrant now.—Alas,
t up your naked weapons, put up your reapons.

[Exit PISTOL and BARDOLPH.

I pray thee, Jack, be quiet; the rascal
Ah, you whoreson little valiant villain,

Are you not hurt i'the groin? me-
be made a shrewd thrust at your belly.

Re-enter BARDOLPH.

Have you turned him out of doors?

Yes, Sir. The rascal's drunk: you rt him, Sir, in the shoulder.

A rascal! to brave me!

Ah, you sweet little rogue, you! Alas,
s, how thou sweat'st! Come, let me face;—come on, you whoreson chops:
gue! i'faith, I love thee. Thou art as as Hector of Troy, worth five of mon, and ten times better than the rthies. Ah, villain!

A rascally slave! I will toss the rogue sket.

So, if thou darest for thy heart: if thou
I canvas thee between a pair of sheets.

Enter Music.

The music is come, Sir.

et them play;—Play, Sirs.—Sit on my
oll. A rascal bragging slave! the rogue o me like quicksilver.

'faith, and thou followedst him like a

Thou whoreson little tidy Bartholoar-pig, when wilt thou leave fighting and foining† o' nights, and begin to p thine old body for heaven?

ehind, Prince HENRY and POINS, disguised like Drawers.

Peace, good Doll! do not speak like a head: do not bid me remember mine

Sirrah, what humour is the prince of?

A good shallow young fellow: he would ade a good pantler, he would have bread well.

They say, Poins has a good wit.

He a good wit? hang him, baboon! his s thick as Tewksbury mustard; there is e conceit in him, than is in a mallet.

Why does the prince love him so then?

Because their legs are both of a bigness:

plays at quoits well; and eats conger

mel; and drinks off candles' ends for igons; and rides the wild mare with the ad jumps upon joint-stools; and swears

good grace; and wears his boot very

, like unto the sign of the leg; and so bate with telling of discreet stories,

th other gambol faculties he hath, that weak mind and an able body, for the

the prince admits him: for the prince himself is such another; the weight of a hair

will turn the scales between their avoirdupois:

P. Hen. Would not this nave of a wheel have his ears cut off?

Poins. Let's beat him before his whore.

P. Hen. Look, if the withered elder hath not his poll clawed like a parrot.

Poins. Is it not strange, that desire should so many years outlive performance?

Fal. Kiss me, Doll.

P. Hen. Saturn and Venus this year in conjunction! what says the almanack to that?

Poins. And, look, whether the fiery Trigon,*
his man, be not lipping to his master's old tables; his note-book, his counsel-keeper.

Fal. Thou dost give me flattering busses.

Dol. Nay, truly; I kiss thee with a most constant heart.

Fal. I am old, I am old.

Dol. I love thee better than I love e'er a scurvy young boy of them all.

Fal. What stuff wilt have a kirtlet off? I shall receive money on Thursday: thou shalt have a cap to-morrow. A merry song, come:
it grows late, we'll to bed. Thou'lt forget me,
when I am gone.

Dol. By my troth, thou'lt set me a weeping, an thou sayest so: prove that ever I dress myself handsome till thy return.—Well, hearken
the end.

Fal. Some sack, Francis.

P. Hen. Poins. Anon, anon, Sir.

[Advancing.

Fal. Ha! a bastard son of the king's?—And art not thou Poins his brother?

P. Hen. Why, thou globe of sinful continents, what a life dost thou lead?

Fal. A better than thou; I am a gentleman,
thou art a drawer.

P. Hen. Very true, Sir; and I come to draw
you out by the ears.

Host. O, the Lord preserve thy good grace!
by my troth, welcome to London.—Now the Lord bless that sweet face of thine! O Jesu, are you come from Wales?

Fal. Thou whoreson mad compound of majesty,—by this light flesh and corrupt blood, thou art welcome.

[Leaning his hand upon DOLL.

Dol. How! you fat fool, I scorn you.

Poins. My lord, he will drive you out of your revenge, and turn all to a merriment, if you take not the heat.

P. Hen. You whoreson candle-mine, you, how vilely did you speak of me even now, before this honest, virtuous, civil gentlewoman?

Host. 'Blessing o' your good heart! and so she is, by my troth.

Fal. Didst thou hear me?

P. Hen. Yes; and you knew me, as you did when you ran away by Gad's-hill: you knew,
I was at your back, and spoke it on purpose,
to try my patience.

Fal. No, no, no; not so; I did not think,
thou wast within hearing.

P. Hen. I shall drive you then to confess the wilful abuse; and then I know how to handle
you.

Fal. No abuse, Hal, on mine honour; no abuse.

P. Hen. Not! to dispraise me; and call me—
pantler, and bread-chipper, and I know not what?

Fal. No abuse, Hal.

Poins. No abuse!

Fal. No abuse, Ned, in the world; honest and none. I dispraised him before the wicked, that the wicked might not fall in love with us:—in which doing, I have done the part of careful friend, and a true subject, and thy duty is to give me thanks for it. No abuse, Ned;—none, Ned, none;—no, boys, none.
P. Hen. See now, whether pure fear and enervate cowardice, doth not make thee wrong this virtuous gentlewoman to close with us. Is she 'the wicked'? Is this hostess here of the wicked? Or is the boy of the wicked? Or most Bardolph, whose zeal burns in his nose, 'the wicked'?

Poins. Answer, thou dead elm, answer.

Fal. The fend hath pricked down Bardolph recoverable: and his face is Lucifer's privy-titchen, where he doth nothing but roast malt-worms. For the boy,—there is a good angel out him; but the devil outbids him too.

P. Hen. For the women,——

Fal. For one of them,—she is in hell already, and burns, poor soul! For the other,—I owe money and whether she be damned for it, I know not.

Host. No, I warrant you.

Fal. No, I think thou art not; I think, thou quit for that: Marry, there is another iniquity upon thee, for suffering flesh to be ten in thy house, contrary to the law; for which, I think, thou wilt howl.

Host. All victuallers do so: What's a joint mutton or two in a whole Lent?

P. Hen. You, gentlewoman,——

Dol. What says your grace?

Fal. His grace says that which his flesh tells against.

Host. Who knocks so loud at door? look to 'door there, Francis.

Enter Peto.

P. Hen. Peto, how now? what news?

Peto. The king your father is at Westminster;

and there are twenty weak and wearied posts, come from the north: and, as I came along, met, and overtook, a dozen captains, [yerns, re-headed, sweating, knocking at the table asking every one for Sir John Falstaff.]

P. Hen. By heaven, Poins, I feel me much to blame, idly to profane the precious time, when tempest of commotion like the south wind with black vapour, doth begin to melt, and drop upon our bare unarmed heads: Give me my sword, and cloak;—Falstaff, good night.

[Exeunt Prince HENRY, POINS, PETO, and BARDOLPH.]

Fal. Now comes in the sweetest morsel of the night, and we must hence, and leave it unknocked. [Knocking heard.] More knocking at door?

Re-enter BARDOLPH.

Now? what's the matter?

Bard. You must away to court, Sir, present—a dozen captains stay at door for you.

Fal. Pay the musicians, sirrah. [To the DOOR.]—Farewell, hostess;—farewell, Doll.—I see, my good wenches, how men of merit are sought after: the undeserver may sleep, in the man of action is called on. Farewell, good wenches: If I be not sent away yet, I will see you again ere I go.

Dol. I cannot speak;—If my heart be not ready to burst:—Well of thyself.

Fal. Farewell, &c. [Exit]

Host. Well, fare thee these twenty times, but an honest—Well, fare thee.

Bard. [Within.]

Host. What's the matter?

Bard. [Within.] Come to my master.

Host. O run, do

SCENE I.—

Enter King Henry

K. Hen. Go, call Warwick

But, ere they come And well consider speed.—

How many thousands

Are at this hour a

Nature's soft nurse

That thou no more

And steep my sense

Why rather, sleep

Upon uneasy pillow

And hush'd with slumber;

Than in the perfume

Under the canopy

And all'd with it

O thou dull god,

In loathsome bed

couch,

A watch-case, or

Wilt thou upon thy

Seal up the ship

brains

In cradle of the morn

And in the visitation

Who take the ruff

Curling their morsels

With deaf'ning claps

That, with the hum

Canst thou, O peace

To the wet sea-bow

And, in the calm

With all appliances

Deny it to a king

down!

Uneasy lies the head

Enter Warwick

War. Many good

K. Hen. Is it good

War. Tis one of

K. Hen. Why then

my lords,

Have you read o'er

War. We have,

K. Hen. Then your kingdom

How foul it is; w

And with what da

War. It is but a

Which to his form

With good advice,

My lord Northum

heaven! that one might read the book of fate;

revolution of the times
fains level, and the continent old (frances,) melt itself
! and, other times, to see girdle of the ocean (moak,
or Neptune's hips: how chances
all the cup of alteration liquors! O, if this were seen, it youth,—viewing his progress
ugh.

past, what comes to ensue,—
the book, and sit him down and rears gone. [dis.

rd, and Northumberland. great
ids,

gether, and in two years after,
t wars: It is but eight years, since
was the man nearest my soul;

mother toil'd in my affairs,
love and life under my foot;

sake, even to the eyes of Richard,
sance. But which of you was by,
Nevil, as I may remember.)

(To Warwick.
d,—with his eye brimfull of tears,
I and rated by Northumberland,— me words, now prov'd a prophecy?

nd, then ladder, by the which finger'd ascends my throne;—
heaven knows, I had no such 4;

unity so bow'd the state,
wantness were compell'd to kiss:—
come, thus did he follow it,
I come, that foul sin, gathering to corruption:—so went on,

its same time's condition,
son of our amity

is a history in all men's lives,
nature of the times decess'd:
serv'd, a man may prophecy,
sim, of the main chance of things
me to life, which in their seeds,
glannings, lie intresured.

become the hatch and brood of cessary form of this, [time;
I might create a perfect guess,
orthumberland, then false to him,
at seed, grow to a greater false-

I not find a ground to root upon,
b.

to these things then necessities?
not them like necessities.—
a word even now cries out on us;
bishop and Northumberland
and strong.

not be, my lord;
double, like the voice and echo,
of the fear'd:—Pleas'd it your

upon my life, my lord,
and you already have sent forth,
is prize in very easily.

as the more, I have receiv'd
ance, that Glendower is dead.
hath been this fortnight ill;
season'd hours, perforce, must kneess. [add

will take your counsel:
me inward wars once out of hand,
sar lords, unto the Holy Land.

[Exeunt.

SCENE II.—Court before Justice Shallow's
House in Gloucestershire.

Enter SHALLOW and SILENCE, meeting; MOW-
BY, SHADOW, WART, FIDDLE, MULL-GALL,
and SCREWINS, behind.

Shal. Come on, come on, come on; give me your hand, Sir, give me your hand, Sir: an early stirrer, by the road.* And how doth my good cousin Silence?

Sil. Good morrow, good cousin Shallow.

Shal. And how doth my cousin, your brother-law? and your fairest daughter, and mine, my god-daughter Ellen?

Sil. Alas, a black cross, cousin Shallow.

Shal. By you and my, Sir, I dare say, my cousin William is become a good scholar: he is at Oxford, still, is he not?

Sil. Indeed, Sir; to my cost.

Shal. He must then to the inn of court shortly: I was once of Clement's-inn; where I think, they will talk of mad Shallow yet.

Sil. You were called—lusty Shallow, then,
cousin.

Shal. By the mass, I was called any thing;
and I would have done any thing, indeed, and roundly too. There was I, and little John Doit of Staffordshire, and black George Hare
and Francis Pickbone, and Will Squire:

Cotswold men,—you had not four such swinge bucklers† in all the inn of court again: and I may say to you, we knew where the bean robast were; and had the best of them all a commandment. Then was Jack Falstaff, now Sir John, a boy; and page to Thomas Mow bray, duke of Norfolk.

Sil. This Sir John, cousin, that comes hither anon about soldiers?

Shal. The same Sir John, the very same. I saw him break Skogan's head at the court gate,
when he was a crack,‡ not thus high: and the very same day did I fight with one Sampson Stockfish, a fruiterer, behind Gray's-inn. O
he mad days that I have spent! and to see how many of mine old acquaintances are dead!

Sil. We shall all follow, cousin.

Shal. Certain, 'tis certain; very sure, very sure: death, as the Psalmist saith, is certain to all; all shall die. How a good yoke of bul-locks at Stamford fair?

Sil. Truly, cousin, I was not there.

Shal. Death is certain.—Is old Double on your town living yet?

Sil. Dead, Sir.

Shal. Dead!—See, see!—he drew a good bow;—And dead!—he shot a fine shoot:—
John of Gaunt loved him well, and betted much money on his head. Dead!—he would have clapped i' the clout at twelve score‡ and carried you a forehead shaft a fourteen and fourteen and a half, that it would have done a man's heart good to see.—How a score of swes now?

Sil. Thereafter as they be: a score of good swes may be worth ten pounds.

Shal. And is old Double dead?

Enter BARBOLIN, and one with him.

Sil. Here come two of Sir John Falstaff's men, as I think.

Barb. Good morrow, honest gentlemen: I basecock you, which is Justice Shallow?

Shal. I am Robert Shallow, Sir; a poor co-

* Cry.

† Bats or staton.

‡ Ladys of stamess.

§ Hie.

|| Hit the white mark at twelve score yards.

§ H

re of this county, and one of the king's justices of the peace: What is your good pleasure in me?

Bard. My captain, Sir, commends him to me: my captain, Sir John Falstaff: a tall gentleman, by heaven, and a most gallant soldier.

Shal. He greets me well, Sir; I knew him a good backward man: How doth the good knight? may I ask, how my lady his wife doth?

Bard. Sir, pardon; a soldier is better accommodated, than with a wife.

Shal. It is well said, in faith, Sir; and it is well said indeed too. Better accommodated! that is good; yea, indeed, it is: good phrases are surely, and ever were, very commendable. Accommodated!—it comes from accommodo: very good; a good phrase.

Bard. Pardon me, Sir: I have heard the word. Please, call you it? By this good day, I know the phrase: but I will maintain the word with my sword, to be a soldier-like word, and a word of exceeding good command. Accommodated: That is, when a man is, as they say, accommodated: or, when a man is,—being,—thereby,—he may be thought to be accommodated; which is an excellent thing.

Enter FALSTAFF.

Shal. It is very just:—Look, here comes good Sir John.—Give me your hand, give me your worship's good hand: By my truth, you look well, and bear your years very well: welcome, good Sir John.

Fal. I am glad to see you well, good master Shallow:—Master Sure-card, as I thank you.

Shal. No, Sir John; it is my cousin Silence, commission with me.

Fal. Good master Silence, it well befits you should be of the peace.

Sil. Your good worship is welcome.

Fal. Fie! this is hot weather.—Gentlemen, were you provided me here half a dozen sufficient men?

Shal. Marry, have we, Sir. Will you sit?

Fal. Let me see them, I beseech you.

Shal. Where's the roll? where's the roll? where's the roll?—Let me see, let me see. So, so, so: Yea, marry, Sir:—Ralph Mouldy: let them appear as I call; let them do so, let them do so.—Let me see; Where is Mouldy?

Moul. Here, an't please you.

Shal. What think you, Sir John? a goodly fellow: young, strong, and of good ends.

Fal. Is thy name Mouldy?

Moul. Yea, an't please you.

Fal. 'Tis the more time thou wert used.

Shal. Ha, ha, ha! most excellent, i'faith! things, that are mouldy, lack use: Very singular!—In faith, well said, Sir John; very well said.

Fal. Prick him.

[To SHALLOW.]

Moul. I was pricked well enough before, and I could have let me alone: my old dame I be undone now, for one to do her husbandry, and her drudgery: you need not to have pricked me; there are other men fitter to be pricked than I.

Fal. Go to; peace, Mouldy, you shall go. Mouldy, it is time you were spent.

Moul. Spent!

Shal. Peace, fellow, peace; stand aside;

Know you where you are?—let me see;—

Fal. Ay marry, he's like to be a colt.

Shal. Where's Shallow?

Shal. Here, Sir.

Fal. Shadow, what shadow?

Shal. My mother.

Fal. Thy mother.

thy father's shadow.

is the shadow of thy deed; but not much

Shal. Do you like it?

Fal. Shadow will him;—for we have

fill up the muster-book.

Shal. Thomas Wurt.

Fal. Where's he?

Wurt. Here, Sir.

Fal. Is thy name Wurt?

Wurt. Yea, Sir.

Fal. Thou art a

Shal. Shall I prick

Fal. It were sufficient built upon his bones

stands upon pins:

Shal. Ha, ha, ha!

can do it: I cannot Feeble!

Fee. Here, Sir.

Fal. What trade

Fee. A woman's

Shal. Shall I prick

Fal. You may: a tailor, he would have

make as many holes

thou hast done in

Fee. I will do no

have no more.

Fal. Well said,

said, courageous!

liant as the wrathful

mous mouse.—Prick

master Shallow;

Fee. I would, V

Fal. I would, thou

thou might'st me

go. I cannot put

that is the leader

that suffice, most

Fee. It shall suffice

Fal. I am bound

Who is next?

Shal. Peter Bull.

Fal. Yea, marry.

Bull. Here, Sir.

Fal. 'Fore God

prick me Bull-cal

Bull. O lord! g

Fal. What, dost

pricked?

Bull. O lord, Si

Fal. What disease

Bull. A whores

which I caught

affairs, upon his c

Fal. Come, thou

gown; we will have

take such order, thou thee.—Is here all?

Shal. Here is a number; you must

and so, I pray you

Fal. Come, I will

cannot tarry dinner

good truth, master

Shal. O, Sir Jo

the windmill in St. George's of that, good master Shallow,

as a merry night. And is alive?

master Shallow.

could away with me.

ver: she would always say,
ie master Shallow.

ass, I could anger her to the then a bona-roba. Doth she
l?

master Shallow.

must be old; she cannot d; certain, she's old; and t-work by old Night-work, Clement's-inn.

-five year ago.

in Silence, that thou hadst
a knight and I have seen!—
d I well?

heard the chimes at midnight,

have, that we have, that we
: John, we have; our watch-
eys!—Come, let's to dinner;
ner:—O, the days that we
e, come.

AFF, SHALLOW, and SILENCE.
er corporate Bardolph, stand
re is four Harry ten shillings
for you. In very truth, Sir, anged, Sir, as go: and yet,
; Sir, I do not care; but, ram unwilling, and, for mine
lesire to stay with my friends;
t care, for mine own part, so

land aside.

I master corporal captain, for ce, stand my friend: she has thing about her, when I am old, and cannot help herself:
ty, Sir.

land aside.

h I care not;—a man can die
we God a death;—I'll ne'er
l:—an't be my destiny, so;
o man's too good to serve his go which way it will, be that quit for the next.

l; thou'rt a good fellow.

bear no base mind.

ALSTAFF, and Justices.

which men shall I have?

which you please.

ord with you:—I have three ldy and Bull-calf.

ll.

r John, which four will you

ose for me.

on,—Mouldy, Bull-calf, Feed Bull-calf:—For you, Moul-

still; you are past service:—
rt, Bull-calf,—grow till you
ill none of you.

, Sir John, do not yourself
our likeliest men, and I would with the best.

ell me, master Shallow, how ? Care I for the limb, the re, bulk, and big assemblance
as the spirit, master Shallow.

—Here's Wart;—you see what a ragged appearance it is: he shall charge you, and discharge you, with the motion of a pewterer's hammer; come off, and on, swifter than he that gibbets-on the brewer's bucket. And this same half-fac'd fellow, Shadow,—give me this man; he presents no mark to the enemy; the foeman* may with as great aim level at the edge of a penknife: And, for a retreat,—how swiftly will this Feeble, the woman's tailor, run off? O, give me the spare men, and spare me the great ones.—Put me a caliver† into Wart's hand, Bardolph.

Bard. Hold, Wart, traverse;‡ thus, thus,
thus.

Fal. Come, manage me your caliver. So:— very well:—go to:—very good:—exceeding good.—O, give me always a little, lean, old,
chapped, bald shot.¶—Well said, i'faith Wart;
thou'rt a good scab: hold, there's a tester for
thee.

Shal. He is not his craft's-master, he doth not do it right. I remember at Mile-end green,
(when I lay at Clement's inn,—I was then Sir Dagonet in Arthur's show,§) there was a little quiver fellow, and 'a would manage you his piece thus: and 'a would about, and about,
and come you in, and come you in: rah,
tah, tah, would 'a say; boumer, would 'a say;
and away again would 'a go, and again would
'a come:—I shall never see such a fellow.

Fal. These fellows will do well, master Shallow.—God keep you, master Silence; I will not use many words with you:—Fare you well, gentlemen both: I thank you: I must a dozen mile to-night.—Bardolph give the soldiers coats.

Shal. Sir John, heaven bless you, and prosper your affairs, and send us peace! As you return, visit my house; let our old acquaintance be renewed: peradventure, I will with you to
the court.

Fal. I would you would, master Shallow.

Shal. Go to; I have spoke, at a word. Fare
you well. [Exit SHALLOW and SILENCE.]

Fal. Fare you well, gentle gentlemen. On,
Bardolph; lead the men away. [Exit BAR-DOLPH, Recruits, &c.] As I return, I will fetch off these justices: I do see the bottom of justice Shallow. Lord, lord, how subject we old men are to this vice of lying! This same starved justice hath done nothing but prate to me of the wildness of his youth, and the feats he hath done about Turnbull-street;¶ and every third word a lie, duer paid to the hearer than the Turk's tribute. I do remember him at Clement's-inn, like a man made after supper of a cheese-paring: when he was naked, he was,
for all the world, like a forked radish, with a head fantastically carved upon it with a knife: he was so forlorn, that his dimensions to any thick sight were invisible: he was the very Genius of famine; yet lecherous as a monkey, and the whores called him—mandrake:
he came ever in the rear-ward of the fashion;
and sung those tunes to the over-scutched
huswives that he heard the carmen whistle,
and sware—they were his fancies, or his good-nights. And now is this Vice's dagger† become a squire; and talks as familiarly of John of Gaunt, as if he had been sworn brother to him: and I'll be sworn he never saw him but once

* Enemy.

† Gun.

‡ March.

§ Shooter.

|| An exhibition of archery.

¶ In Clerkenwell.

 Titles of little poems.

†† A wooden dagger like that used by the modern Harlequin.

e Tilt-yard; and then he burst* his head, rowding among the marshal's men. I saw nd told John of Gaunt, he beat his own
 :† for you might have truss'd him, and s apparel, into an eel-skin; the case of a e haut-boy was a mansion for him, a t; and now has he land and beeves.
 ; I will be acquainted with him, if I re-
 : and it shall go hard, but I will make him
 ilosopher's two stones to me: If the young
 be a bait for the old pike, I see no reason,
 ie law of nature, but I may snap at him.
 time shape, and there an end. [Exit.

ACT IV.

SCENE I.—A Forest in Yorkshire.

ce the ARCHBISHOP OF YORK, MOWBRAY, HASTINGS, and others.

rch. What is this forest call'd?

ast. 'Tis Gaultree forest, an't shall please
 your grace.

rch. Here stand, my lords; and send discoverers forth,

now the numbers of our enemies.

ast. We have sent forth already.

rch. 'Tis well done.

riends, and brethren in these great affairs,
 ist acquaint you that I have receiv'd
 r-dated letters from Northumberland;
 ir cold intent, tenor, and substance thus:—
 e doth he wish his person, with such powers
 night hold sortance; with his quality, which he could not levy; whereupon
 is retir'd, to ripe his growing fortunes,
 icotland: and concludes in hearty prayers,
 t your attempts may overlive the hazard,
 . fearful meeting of their opposite.

ourb. Thus do the hopes we have in him touch ground,
 . dash themselves to pieces.

Enter a MESSENGER.

ast. Now, what news?

ess. West of this forest, scarcely off a mile,
 oodly form comes on the enemy:
 l, by the ground they hide, I judge their number

n, or near, the rate of thirty thousand.

ourb. The just proportion that we gave them
 out.

us sway on, and face them in the field.

Enter WESTMORELAND.

rch. What well-appointed leader fronts us here?

ourb. I think, it is my lord of Westmore-
 land.

West. Health and fair greeting from our general,

prince, lord John and duke of Lancaster.

rch. Say on, my lord of Westmoreland, in at doth concern your coming? [peace;

West. Then, my lord,

o your grace do I in chief address substance of my speech. If that rebellion ie like itself, in base and abject routs,
 on by bloody youth, guarded with rage,
 l countenanc'd by boys and beggary;
 y, if damn'd commotion so appear'd,
 is true, native, and most proper shape,
 i, reverend father, and these noble lords,
 I not been here, to dress the ugly form
 ase and bloody insurrection [bishop,— h your fair honours. You, lord arch-

Broke.

be suitable.

† Gaunt is thin, slender.

‡ Completely accounted.

Whose see is by a cle Whose beard the sil
 touch'd;

Whose learning and Whose white investm

The dove and very bl

Wherefore do you so

Out of the speech of

grace,

Into the harsh and b

Turning your books

blood,

Your pens to lances;

To a loud trumpet, a

Arch. Wherefore d

stands.

Briefly to this end:—

And, with our surfei

Have brought oursel

And we must bleed

Our late king, Rich

But, my most noble

I take not on me her

Nor do I, as an ene

Troop in the throngs

But, rather, show a

To diet rank minds,

And purge the obs

Our very veins of li

I have in equal bala

What wrongs our a

we suffer,

And find our griefs'

We see which way t

And are enforc'd fr

By the rough torren

And have the summ

When time shall se

Which, long ere thi

And might by no s

When we are wron

We are denied acce

Even by those mer

wrong.

The dangers of the (Whose memory is

With yet-appearing

Of every minute's i

Have put us in the

Not to break peace

But to establish he

Concurring both in West. When eve

nied?

Wherein have you l

What peer hath bee

That you should se

Of forg'd rebellion

And consecrate cor

Arch. My broth

wealth,

To brother born an

I make my quarrel

West. There is n

Or, if there were, i

Mowb. Why not

That feel the bruise

And suffer the conc

To lay a heavy and

Upon our honours?

West. O my goo

Construe the times

And you shall say

And not the king,

Yet, for your part,

ing, or in the present time,
ave an inch of any ground
: Were you not restor'd Norfolk's signiories,
it-well-remember'd father's?
ing, in honour, had my father

riv'd, and breath'd in me?
r'd him, as the state stood

e, compell'd to banish him:
arry Bolingbroke, and he,— id both roused in their seats,
users daring of the spur,
s^e in charge, their beaverst

[steel, parkling through sights† of
pet blowing them together;
there was nothing could breast of Bolingbroke,

lid throw his warder‡ down,
upon the staff he threw:
n himself; and all their lives,
it, and by dint of sword,
ried under Bolingbroke,
k, lord Mowbray, now you
what:

rd was reputed then
st valiant gentleman;
whom fortune would then
d?

had been victor there,
e it out of Coventry:
, in a general voice,
him; and all their prayers,

ford, whom they doted on,
rac'd indeed, more than the

gression from my purpose.—
our princely general,
fs; to tell you from his grace,
you audience: and wherein
it your demands are just,
em; every thing set off,
ch as think you enemies.
hath forc'd us to compel this om policy, not love. [offer;
, you overween,|| to take it

rom mercy, not from fear:
ken,¶ our army lies;
r, all too confident
e to a thought of fear.
: full of names than yours,
fect in the use of arms,
strong, our cause the best;
s, our hearts should be as

our offer is compell'd.
y my will, we shall admit no
gues but the shame of your les no handling.

e prince John a full com-
ue of his father, [mission,
lutely to determine
is we shall stand upon?
intended in the general's

ke so slight a question.

† Helmets.
‡ Truncheon.
¶ Sight.
|| Wender.

Arch. Then take, my lord of Westmoreland,
this schedule;*

For this contains our general grievances:—
Each several article herein redress'd;
All members of our cause, both here and hence,
That are insinew'd to this action,
Acquitted by a true substantial form;
And present execution of our wills
To us, and to our purposes, consign'd;
We come within our awful bankst again,
And knit our powers to the arm of peace.

West. This will I show the general. Please you, lords,

In sight of both our battles we may meet:
And either end in peace, which heaven so
frame!

Or to the place of difference call the swords
Which must decide it.

Arch. My lord, we will do so.

[Exit Wmr.

Mowb. There is a thing within my bosom,
tells me,

That no conditions of our peace can stand.

Hast. Fear you not that: if we can make our peace

Upon such large terms, and so absolute,
As our conditions shall consist upon, [tains.
Our peace shall stand as firm as rocky moun-

Mowb. Ay, but our valuation shall be such,
That every slight and false-derived cause,
Yea, every idle, nice,† and wanton reason,
Shall, to the king, taste of this action:

That were our royal faith‡ martyrs in love,
We shall be winnow'd with so rough a wind,
That, even our corn shall seem as light as chaff,
And good from bad find no partition.

Arch. No, no, my lord; Note this,—the king is weary

(Of dainty and such picking|| grievances:
For he hath found,—to end one doubt by
death,

Revives two greater in the heirs of life.
And therefore will he wipe his tables¶ clean;
And keep no tell-tale to his memory,
That may repeat and history his loss

To new remembrance: For full well he knows.
He cannot so precisely weed this land,

As his misdoubts present occasion:

His foes are so enrooted with his friends,

That, plucking to unfix an enemy,

He doth unfasten so, and shake a friend.

So that this land, like an offensive wife,

That hath enrag'd him on to offer strokes;

As he is striking, holds his infant up,

And hangs resolv'd correction in the arm

That was uprear'd to execution.

Hast. Besides, the king hath wasted all his rods

(On late offenders, that he now doth lack

The very instruments of chastisement:

So that his power, like a fangless lion,

May offer, but not hold.

Arch. 'Tis very true;— [shal,

And therefore be assur'd, my good lord mar-

If we do now make our atonement well,

(Our peace will, like a broken limb united,

Grow stronger for the breaking.

Mowb. Be it so.

Here is return'd my lord of Westmoreland.

Re-enter WESTMORELAND.

West. The prince is here at hand: Pleaseth
your lordship,

* Inventory. † Proper limits of reverence.
‡ Trivial. § The faith due to a king
|| Holding, insignificant. ¶ Book for memorandums.

meet his grace just distance 'tween our armies?

Mowb. Your grace of York, in God's name then set forward.

Arch. Before, and greet his grace:—my lord, we come. [Exeunt.]

SCENE II.—Another part of the Forest.

Enter, from one side, MOWBRAY, the ARCHBISHOP, HASTINGS, and others; from the other side, Prince JOHN of Lancaster, WESTMORELAND, Officers and Attendants.

P. John. You are well encounter'd here, my cousin Mowbray:—

Good day to you, gentle lord Archbishop;— and so to you, lord Hastings,—and to all.— My lord of York, it better show'd with you,
When that your flock, assembled by the bell,
Encircled you, to hear with reverence
Our exposition on the holy text;
Than now to see you here an iron man,*
Beating a rout of rebels with your drum,
Turning the word to sword, and life to death.
That man, that sits within a monarch's heart,
And ripens in the sunshine of his favour,
Could he abuse the countenance of the king,
Lack, what mischiefs might he set abroad,
A shadow of such greatness! With you, lord bishop,

is even so:—Who hath not heard it spoken,
How deep you were within the books of God?
To us, the speaker in his parliament;
To us, the imagin'd voice of God himself;
The very opener, and intelligencer,
Between the grace, the sanctities of heaven,
And our dull workings:† (O, who shall believe,
That you misuse the reverence of your place;
Employ the countenance and grace of heaven,
As a false favourite doth his prince's name,
In deeds dishonourable? You have taken up,†
Under the counterfeited zeal of God,
The subjects of his substitute, my father;
And, both against the peace of heaven and him,
Have here up-swarm'd them.

Arch. Good my lord of Lancaster,
I am not here against your father's peace:
But, as I told my lord of Westmoreland,
The time misorder'd doth, in common sense,
Rouse us, and crush us, to this monstrous
form,

To hold our safety up. I sent your grace
The parcels and particulars of our grief;
The which hath been with scorn shov'd from
the court,

Whereon this Hydra son of war is born:
Whose dangerous eyes may well be charm'd
asleep,

With grant of our most just and right desires;
And true obedience of this madness cur'd,
To stoop tamely to the foot of majesty.

Mowb. If not, we ready are to try our fortune
To the last man. [tunes]

Hast. And though we here fall down,
We have supplies to second our attempt;
If they miscarry, theirs shall second them:
And so, success of mischief shall be born;
And heir from heir shall hold this quarrel up,
While England shall have generation.

P. John. You are too shallow, Hastings,
Much too shallow,

To sound the bottom of the after-times.

West. Pleaseth your grace, to answer them directly,

How far-forth you do like their articles?

P. John. I like them
well:

And swear here by
My father's purpose
And some about him
Wrested his meaning
My lord, these gowns
dress'd;

Upon my soul, the Discharge your po-
ties,

As we will ours:
Let's drink together
That all their eyes
Of our restored lo-

Arch. I take you dresses.

P. John. I give you
word:

And thereupon I Hast. Go, captain,
over to the

This news of peace
I know, it will win
captain.

Arch. To you, I
land.

West. I pledge knew when

I have bestow'd,
You would drink
Shall show itself:

Arch. I do not care
West. I am glad

Health to my lord, Mowb. You will

season;
For I am, on the

Arch. Against
merry;

But heaviness for West. Therefore

den sorrow
Serves to say thou

to-morrow
Arch. Believe me

Mowb. So much
be true.

P. John. The Hark, he

Mowb. This has Arch. A peace is

For then both parties
And neither party

P. John. Go, my lord,
And let our army

And, good my lord,
trainst

March by us; that We should have

Arch. Go, good
And, ere they be

P. John. I trust
night together

Re-enter

Now, cousin, what West. The least

to stand,
Will not go off us:

P. John. They

* Clad in armour.
† Raised in arms.

† Labours of thought.
‡ Succession.

• Approve

Re-enter HASTINGS.

Lord, our army is dispers'd already:
 In steers^a unyok'd, they take their spears
 north, south; or, like a school truck [place.
 toward his home, and sporting-ed tidings, my lord Hastings; for which thee, traitor, of high treason:—
 lord archbishop,—and you, lord
 whew,
 reason I attach you both.
 this proceeding just and honour-
 is?

your assembly so?
 I you thus break your faith?
 pawns'd these some:
 grievances of these same grievances,
 as did complain; which, by mine
 own,
 with a most Christian care,
 rebels,—look to taste the due
 illness, and such acts as yours.
 why did you these arms commence,
 right here, and foolishly sent hence:
 drama, pursue the scatter'd stray,
 not we, have safely fought to-day,
 these traitors to the block of death,
 so bed, and yielder up of breath.
 [Exeunt.

III.—Another part of the Forest.

Enter FALSTAFF and COLEVILLE, meeting.

's your name, Sir? of what condi-
 ; and of what place, I pray?
 a knight, Sir; and my name is—
 he dale.

then, Coleville is your name; a our degree; and your place, the
 is shall still be your name; a trait-ree; and the dungeon your place,
 as enough; so shall you still be
 he dale.

not you Sir John Falstaff?
 and a man as he, Sir, whoe'er I am.
 Sir? or shall I sweat for you? If they are drops of thy lovers, and e thy death: therefore rouse up nbling, and do observance to my

h, you are Sir John Falstaff; and,
 hi, yield me.

a whole school of tongues in this
 ; and not a tongue of them all ther word but my name. An I silly of any indifferency, I were not active fellow in Europe: My umb, my womb undoes me.—Here
 neral.

JOHN of Lancaster, WESTMORE-LAND, and others.

he heat is past, follow no further

owers, good cousin Westmore-
 — [Exit WEST.

Where have you been all this

king is ended, then you come:
 ricks of yours will, on my life,
 ther break some gallowa' back.
 d be sorry, my lord, but it should ever knew yet, but rebuke and mislike.

† Foolishly

check was the reward of valour. Do you think me a swallow, an arrow, or a bullet? Have I,
 in my poor and old motion, the expedition of thought? I have speeded hither with the very extreme inch of possibility; I have founded nine-score and odd posts: and here, travel-tainted as I am, have, in my pure and immaculate valour, taken Sir John Coleville of the dale, a most furious knight, and valiant man-ny: But what of that? he saw me, and yielded; that I may justly say with the back-sword fellow of Rome,—"I came, saw, and overcame."

P. John. It was more of his courtesy than your deserving.

Fal. I know not; here he is, and here I yield him: and I beseech your grace, let it be booked with the rest of this day's deeds; or, by the Lord, I will have it in a particular ballad also,
 with mine own picture on the top of it, Cole-ville kissing my foot: To the which course if I be enforced, if you do not all show like gift twopenness to me; and I, in the clear sky of fame, o'ershine you as much as the full moon
 doth the windows of the element, which show like pins' heads to her; believe not the word of the noble: Therefore let me have right, and let desert meet.

P. John. Thine's too heavy to mount.

Fal. Let it shine then.

P. John. Thine's too thick to shine.

Fal. Let it do something, my good lord, that may do me good, and call it what you will.

P. John. Is thy name Coleville?

Cole. It is, my lord.

P. John. A famous rebel art thou, Coleville.

Fal. And a famous true subject took him.

Cole. I am, my lord, but as my betters are,
 That led me hither: had they been rul'd by me,
 You should have won them dearer than you
 have.

Fal. I know not how they sold themselves:
 but thou, like a kind fellow, gavest thyself
 away; and I thank thee for that.

Re-enter WESTMORELAND.

P. John. Now, have you left pursuit?

West. Retreat is made, and execution stay'd.

P. John. Send Coleville, with his confederates,
 To York, to present execution:—

Blunt, lead him hence; and see you guard him
 sure. [Exeunt some with COLEVILLE.

And now despatch we toward the court, my
 lords,

I hear, the king my father is sore sick:

Our news shall go before us to his majesty,—
 Which, cousin, you shall bear,—to comfort

him;

And we with sober speed will follow you.

Fal. My lord, I beseech you, give me leave to go through Gloucestershire: and when you come to court, stand my good lord,† pray, in your good report.

P. John. Fare you well, Falstaff: I, in my condition,†

Shall better speak of you than you deserve.

[Exit P. John.]
 Fal. I would, you had but the wit; 'twere better than your drunkenness.—Good faith, this same young sober-blooded boy doth not love me; nor a man cannot make him laugh;—but that's so marvel, he drinks no wine. There's never any of these demure boys come to any proof: for this drink doth so over-cool their blood, and making many fish-meals, that they o'grow.

† Stand very good French.

; in my present temper.

into a kind of male green-sickness; and when they marry, they get wenches: they are generally fools and cowards;—which none of us should be too, but for inflammation. A good sherris-sack had a two-fold operation in it. It ascends me into the brain; it warms me there all the foolish, and dull, and cloudy vapours which environ it: makes it apprehensive, quick, forgetive,* full of nimble, merry, and delectable shapes; which delivered over to the voice, (the tongue,) which is the mouth, becomes excellent wit. The second property of your excellent sherris is,—the warming of the blood; which, before cold and untitled, left the liver white and pale, which is the badge of pusillanimity and cowardice: but the sherris warms it, and makes it course from the inwards to the parts extreme. It brighteneth the face; which, as a beacon, gives warning to all the rest of this little kingdom, to arm: and then the vital commoners, and inland petty spirits, muster me all to their captain, the heart; who, great, and pulled up with this retinue, doth any deed of courage; and this valour comes of sherris: So that skill in the weapon is nothing, without sack; for it sets it a-work: and learning, a mere hoard of gold kept by a devil; till sack commences it and sets it in act and use. Hereof comes that prince Harry is valiant: for the cold blood he did naturally inherit of his father, hath, like lean, sterile, and bare land, being manured, husbanded, and tilled, with excellent endeavour of drinking good, and good store of fertile sherris; that he is become very hot, and valiant. If I had a thousand laws, the first human principle I would teach them, should be,—to forswear thin potations, and addict themselves to sack.

Enter BARDOLPH.

Now now, Bardolph!

Bard. The army is discharged all, and gone.

Fal. Let them go. I'll through Glostershire; and there will I visit master Robert Shallow, toquire: I have him already tempering between my finger and my thumb, and shortly will I seal with him.† Come away.

[Exeunt.]

SCENE IV.—Westminster.—A Room in the Palace.

Enter King HENRY, CLARENCE, Prince HUMPHREY, WARWICK, and others.

K. Hen. Now, lords, if heaven doth give successful end to this debate that bleedeth at our doors, we will our youth lead on to higher fields, and draw no swords but what are sanctified. Our navy is address'd,§ our power collected, our substitutes in absence well invested, and every thing lies level to our wish: only, we want a little personal strength; and pause us, till these rebels, now afoot, come underneath the yoke of government.

War. Both which, we doubt not but your majesty

all soon enjoy.

K. Hen. Humphrey, my son of Gloster, here is the prince your brother?

P. Humph. I think, he's gone to hunt, my lord, at Windsor.

K. Hen. And how accompanied?

P. Humph. I do not know, my lord.

Inventive.

† Brings it into action.

An allusion to the old use of sealing with soft wax.

Ready, prepared.

K. Hen. Is not he rence with

P. Humph. No, a sence here.

Cla. What would

K. Hen. Nothing

of Clarence

How chance, thou brother?

He loves thee, an

Thou hast a better

Than all thy brothe

And noble offices t

Of mediation, after

Between his grea

Therefore, omit him

Nor lose the good

By seeming cold, o

For he is gracious,

He hath a tear for

Open us day for m

Yet notwithstanding

As humorous as

As flaws congealed

His temper, there

Chide him for fault

When you perceive

But, being moody,

Till that his passio

Confound themse

this, Thou

And thou shalt pr

A hoop of gold, to

That the united ve

Mingled with ven

(As, force perfore

Shall never leak,

As aconitum,† or

Cla. I shall ob

love.

K. Hen. Why a

him, Tho

Cla. He is not

London.

K. Hen. And

thou tell

Cla. With Poi

followers

K. Hen. Most

weeds;

And he, the nobl

Is overspread wit

Stretches itself be

The blood weep:

shape,

In forms imagina

And rotten times

When I am sleep

For when his hea

When rage and h

When means an

gether,

O, with what wi

Towards fronting

War. My grac

him quite

The prince but st

Like a strange t

language

'Tis needful, that

Be look'd upon,

tain'd,

Your highness ki

But to be known

terms,

* Has an attention

† Wolf's bane, a p

The prince will, in the perfectness of time,
Cast off his followers: and their memory
Shall as a pattern or a measure live,
By which his grace must mete the lives of Turning past evils to advantages. [others;

K. Hen. 'Tis seldom, when the bee doth leave her comb. [land?
In the dead carrion.—Who's here? Westmore-

Enter WESTMORELAND.

West. Health to my sovereign! and new happiness -

Added to that that I am to deliver! [hand:
Prince John, your son, doth kiss your grace's Mowbray, the bishop Scroop, Hastings, and
all,

Are brought to the correction of your law;
There is not now a rebel's sword unsheath'd,
But peace puts forth her olive every where.
The manner how this action hath been borne,
Here at more leisure, may your highness read;
With every course, in his particular.*

K. Hen. O Westmoreland, thou art a summer bird,
Which ever in the haunch of winter sings
The lifting up of day. Look! here's more news.

Enter HARQUART.

Har. From enemies heaven keep your majesty;

And, when they stand against you, may they
As those that I am come to tell you of!

The earl of Northumberland, and the lord Har-dolph,

With a great power of English, and of Scots,
Are by the sheriff of Yorkshire overthrown:
The manner and true order of the fight,
This packet, please it you, contains at large.

K. Hen. And wherefore should these good news make me sick?

Will fortune never come with both hands full,
But write her fair words still in foulest letters?

She either gives a stomach, and no food,—
Such are the poor, in health; or else a feast,
And takes away the stomach,—such are the
That have abundance, and enjoy it not. [rich,
I should rejoice now at this happy news;
And now my sight fails, and my brain is gid-
dy:—

O me! come near me, now I am much ill.

[Swoons.

P. Humph. Comfort, your majesty!

Cla. O my royal father!

West. My sovereign lord, cheer up yourself,
look up!

War. Be patient, princes; you do know, these fits
are with his highness very ordinary. [well.
Stand from him, give him air; he'll straight be

Cla. No, no; he cannot long hold out these pangs;

The incessant care and labour of his mind
Hath wrought the mure,† that should confine it in, [out.

So thin, that life looks through, and will break

P. Humph. The people fear me;‡ for they do observe

Unfather'd heirs,§ and loathly birds of nature:
The seasons change their manners, as the
year||

Had found some months asleep, and leap'd them over.

Cla. The river hath thrice flow'd, no ebb between;*

And the old folk, time's doting chronicles,
Say, it did so, a little time before
That our great grandsire, Edward, sick'd
and died.

War. Speak lower, princes, for the king recovers.

P. Humph. This apoplex will, certain, be his end.

K. Hen. I pray you, take me up, and bear me hence

Into some other chamber: softly, 'pray.

[They convey the King into an inner part of the room, and place him on a Bed.

Let there be no noise made, my gentle friends;
Unless some dull and favourable hand
Will whisper music to my weary spirit.

War. Call for the music in the other room.

K. Hen. Set me the crown upon my pillow
here.

Cla. His eye is hollow, and he changes much.

War. Less noise, less noise.

Enter Prince HENRY.

P. Hen. Who saw the duke of Clarence?

Cla. I am here, brother, full of heaviness.

P. Hen. How now! rain within doors, and none abroad!

How doth the king?

P. Humph. Exceeding ill.

P. Hen. Heard he the good news yet?

Tell it him.

P. Humph. He alter'd much upon the hearing it.

P. Hen. If he be sick

With joy, he will recover without physic.

War. Not so much noise, my lords:—sweet prince, speak low;

The king your father is dispos'd to sleep.

Cla. Let us withdraw into the other room.

War. Will't please your grace to go along with us?

P. Hen. No; I will sit and watch here by the king. [Exeunt all but P. HENRY.

Why doth the crown lie there upon his pillow,
Being so troublesome a bedfellow?

O polish'd perturbation! golden care!

That keeps the ports of slumber open wide

To many a watchful night!—sleep with it
now!

Yet not so sound, and half so deeply sweet,
As he, whose brow, with homely biggin's
bound,

Snores out the watch of night. O majesty!

When thou dost pinch thy bearer, thou dost sit
Like a rich armour worn in heat of day,

That scalds with safety. By his gates of
breath

There lies a downy feather, which stirs not:
Did he suspire, that light and weightless down Perforce must move.—My gracious lord! my
father!—

This sleep is sound indeed; this is a sleep,
That from this golden rigoll|| hath divorc'd
So many English kings. Thy due, from me,
Is tears, and heavy sorrows of the blood;
Which nature, love, and filial tenderness,
Shall, O dear father, pay thee plenteously:
My due, from thee, is this imperial crown;
Which, as immediate from thy place and
blood,

* The detail contained in Prince John's letter.

† Worked the wall

§ Monsters.

‡ Make me afraid.

|| As if the year.

* An historical fact, on Oct. 12, 1411.

† Melancholy, soothing.

§ Cap.

|| Circle.

‡ Gates.

|| Circle.

2 1

ves itself to me. Lo, here it sits,—

[Putting it on his head.

ch heaven shall guard: And put the world's whole strength

one giant arm, it shall not force
l, real honour from me: This from thee
I to mine leave, as 'tis left to me. [Exit.

. Hen. Warwick! Gloucester! Clarence!

Re-enter WARWICK, and the rest.

a. Doth the king call?

ar. What would your majesty? How fares your grace?

. Hen. Why did you leave me here alone, my lords?

a. We left the prince my brother here, my liege, undertook to sit and watch by you.

. Hen. The prince of Wales? Where is he? let me see him:

s not here.

ar. This door is open; he is gone this way.

Humph. He came not through the chamber where we stay'd.

. Hen. Where is the crown? who took it from my pillow?

ar. When we withdrew, my liege, we left it here.

. Hen. The prince hath ta'en it hence:—go, seek him out.

so hasty, that he doth suppose sleep my death?

l him, my lord of Warwick; chide him hither. [Exit WARWICK.

part of his conjoins with my disease, helps to end me.—See, sons, what things you are!

r quickly nature falls into revolt,

in gold becomes her object!

this the foolish over-careful fathers

e broke their sleep with thoughts, their brains with care,

r bones with industry;

this they have engrossed and pil'd up canker'd heaps of strange-achieved gold;

this they have been thoughtful to invest

r sons with arts, and martial exercises:

n, like the bee, tolling* from every flower virtuous sweets;

thighs pack'd with wax, our mouths with honey,

bring it to the hive; and, like the bees, murder'd for our pains. This bitter taste d his engrossments† to the ending father.—

Re-enter WARWICK.

r, where is he that will not stay so long his friend sickness hath determin'd‡ me?

ar. My lord, I found the prince in the next room,

hing with kindly tears his gentle cheeks;

such a deep demeanour in great sorrow,

tyranny, which never quass'd but blood, old, by beholding him, have wash'd his knife gentle eye-drops. He is coming hither.

. Hen. But wherefore did he take away the crown?

Re-enter Prince HENRY.

where he comes.—Come hither to me, Harry:—

urt the chamber, leave us here alone.

[Exit CLARENCE, Prince HUMPHREY, Lords, &c.

P. Hen. I never t again.

K. Hen. Thy wish thought:

I stay too long by t

Dost thou so hunger

That thou wilt nee honours

Before thy hour be

Thou seek'st the gre thee.

Stay but a little; se

Is held from falling

That it will quickly

Thou hast stol'n t

hours,

Were thine without

Thou hast seal'd up

Thy life did manife

And thou wilt have

Thou hid'st a thous

Which thou hast w

To stab at half an l

What! canst thou

Then get thee gone

And bid the merry

That thou art crow

Let all the tears thi

Be drops of balm,

Only compound m

Give that, which

worms;

Pluck down my of

For now a time is

Harry the fifth is c

Down, royal state

hence!

And to the Englist

From every region

Now, neighbour c

Have you a ruffi

dance,

Revel the night; r

The oldest sins the

Be happy, he will

England shall dou

England shall give

For the fifth Harry

The muzzle of rest

Shall flesh his toot

O my poor kingdo

When that my ca

riots,

What wilt thou do

O, thou wilt be a v

Peopled with wolv

P. Hen. O, pari

my tears,

The moist impedin

I had forestall'd th

Ere you with grief

The course of it so

And He that wear

Long guard it you

Than as your hono

Let me no more fre

(Which my most

spirit

Teacheth,) this pro

Heaven witness wi

And found no coi

majesty,

How cold it struck

O, let me in my pr

And never live to s

change that I have purposed!
Look on you, thinking you dead,
almost, my liege, to think you
re,

on the crown as having sense,
upbraided it: The cure on thee de-
on the body of my father; [pending,
has, best of gold, art worst of gold;
fine in curat,* is more precious,
life in medicine potable:† [newn'd,
most fine, most honour'd, most rey bearer up. Thus, my most royal to, I put it on my head;

it,—as with an enemy,
fore my face murder'd my father,—
l of a true inheritor.

I infect my blood with joy,
y thoughts to any strain of pride;
I or vain spirit of mine
be least affection of a welcome,
sinnest to the might of it,
r ever keep it from my head!
me as the poorest vassal is,
with awe and terror kneel to it!
O my son!

t it in thy mind, to take it hence,
might'st win the more thy father's
e, r wisely in excuse of it.

e, Harry, sit thou by my bed;
I think, the very latest counsel shall breathe. Heaven knows, my

h, paths, and indirect crook'd ways,
rown; and I myself know well,
lesome it sat upon my head:

shall descend with better quiet,
ion, better confirmation;
soil; of the achievement goes to the earth. It seem'd in me, honour snatch'd with boisterous
many living, to upbraid [hand;
it by their assistances;

y grew to quarrel and to bloodshed,
supposed peace: all these bold
re,

with peril I have answered:
reign hath been but as a scene
t argument; and now my death is made:‡ for what in me was pur-as'd,§

there in a more fairer sort;
garland wear'st successively.
h thou stand'st more sure than I
ld do, [green;

not firm enough, since griefs are
y friends, which thou must make r friends, [out;

their stings and teeth newly ta'en
fell working I was first advanc'd, hose power I well might lodge a a displac'd, which to avoid, [fear off; and had a purpose now

t many to the Holy Land;
and lying still, might make them
ik

to my state. Therefore, my Harry, curse, to busy giddy minds
ign quarrels; that action, hence me out,

the memory of the former days.
d I, but my lungs are wasted so,

† To be taken.
‡ Frights. § State of things.
e, in Shakespeare, frequently means stolen

That strength of speech is utterly denied me.
How I came by the crown, O God, forgive!
And grant it may with thee in true peace live!

P. Hen. My gracious liege,
You won it, wore it, kept it, gave it me:
Then plain, and right, must my possession be:
Which I, with more than with a common pain,
'Gainst all the world will rightfully maintain.

Enter Prince JOHN of Lancaster, WARWICK,
Lords, and others.

K. Hen. Look, look, here comes my John of Lancaster.

P. John. Health, peace, and happiness, to my royal father!

K. Hen. Thou bring'st me happiness and peace, son John; [flows

But health, alas, with youthful wings is
From this bare, wither'd trunk: upon thy
sight,

My worldly business makes a period.—

Where is my lord of Warwick?

P. Hen. My lord of Warwick!

K. Hen. Doth any name particular belong
Unto the lodging where I first did swoon?

War. 'Tis called Jerusalem, my noble lord.

K. Hen. Laud be to God!—even there my life must end.

It hath been prophesied to me many years,
I should not die but in Jerusalem;
Which vainly I suppos'd, the Holy Land:—
But, bear me to that chamber; there I'll lie:
In that Jerusalem shall Harry die. [Exeunt.

ACT V.

SCENE I.—Gloucestershire.—A Hall in SHALLOW'S
House.

Enter SHALLOW, FALSTAFF, BARDOLPH, and PAGE.

Shal. By cock and pye, Sir, you shall not away to night.—What, Davy, I say!

Fal. You must excuse me, master Robert William.

Shal. I will not excuse you; you shall not be excused; excuses shall not be admitted;
there is no excuse shall serve; you shall not be excused.—Why, Davy!

Enter DAVY.

Davy. Here, Sir.

Shal. Davy, Davy, Davy,—let me see, Davy;
let me see:—yea, marry, William cook, bid him come hither.—Sir John, you shall not be excused.

Davy. Marry, Sir, thus:—those precepts* cannot be served; and, again, Sir,—Shall we sow the headland with wheat?

Shal. With red wheat, Davy. But for William cook:—Are there no young pigeons?

Davy. Yea, Sir.—Here is now the smith's note, for shoeing, and plough-irons.

Shal. Let it be cast,† and paid:—Sir John,
you shall not be excused.

Davy. Now, Sir, a new link to the bucket must needs be had.—And, Sir, do you mean to stop any of William's wages, about the sack
he lost the other day at Hinckley fair?

Shal. He shall answer it:—Some pigeons, Davy; a couple of short-legged hens; a joint of mutton; and any pretty little tiny kick-shaw, tell William cook.

Davy. Doth the man of war stay all night,
Sir?

* Warrants.

† Accounted up.

Shal. You Davy. I will use him well; A and the other is better than a penny in the. Use the men well, Davy; for they are not such as you and will buckle.

Davy. No worse than they are back-bitten,
 for they have marvellous foul men.

Shal. Well concerted. Davy. About thy matter, Davy.

Davy. I beseech you, Sir, to countenance
 William Visor of Wincot against Clement
 Face of the mill.

Shal. There are many complaints. Davy.
 First that Visor; that Visor is an arrant
 knave on my knowledge.

Davy. I grant your worship, that he is a knave, Sir; but yet, God forbid, Sir, but a knave should have some countenance at his lord's request. An honest man, Sir, is able to speak for himself, when a knave is not. I have served your worship truly, Sir, this eight years; and if I cannot once or twice in a quarrel bear out a knave against an honest man, I have but a very little credit with your worship.

Davy. A knave is mine honest friend, Sir; therefore, I beseech your worship, let him be countenanced.

Shal. Go to; I say, he shall have no wrong.
 Look about, Davy. [Exit Davy.] Where are you, Sir John? Come, off with your boots.—
 Give me your hand, master Bardolph.

Bardolph. I am glad to see your worship.

Shal. I thank thee with all my heart, kind master Bardolph;—and welcome, my tall fellow. [To the PAGE.] Come, Sir John.

[Exit SHALLOW.]

Shal. I'll follow you, good master Robert Shallow. Bardolph, look to our horses. [Exit BARDOLPH and PAGE.] If I were sawed into planks, I should make four dozen of such railed hermit's-staves as master Shallow. It is a wonderful thing, to see the semblable consequence of his men's spirits and his: They, by serving him, do bear themselves like foolish asses; he, by conversing with them, is turned into a justice-like serving-man; their spirits
 so married in conjunction with the participation of society, that they flock together in flocks, like so many wild-geese. If I had a word to master Shallow, I would humour his humour, with the imputation of being near their master: if to his men, I would curry with master Shallow, that no man could better commend his servants. It is certain, that either the bearing, or ignorant carriage, is caught,
 when men take diseases, one of another: therefore, let men take heed of their company. I will devise matter enough out of this Shallow,
 to keep prince Harry in continual laughter, wearing-out of six fashions, (which is four fashions, or two actions,) and he shall laugh out interluniums. O, it is much, that a lie, with a slight oath, and a jest, with a sad brow,
 will do with a fellow that never had the ache
 in his shoulders! O, you shall see him laugh, his face be like a wet cloak ill laid up.

Shal. [Within.] Sir John!
 Shal. I come, master Shallow; I come, master Shallow.

[Exit FALSTAFF.]

SCENE II.—Westminster.—A Room in the Palace.
 Enter WARWICK, and the Lord CHIEF JUSTICE.
 War. How now, my lord chief justice? whither
 away?
 Ch. Just. How doth the king?

A serious face. [Full of wrinkles.]

War. Exceedingly
 ended.

Ch. Just. I hope,

War. He's walk'd

And, to our purpose

Ch. Just. I would

with him:

The service that I

Hath left me open

War. Indeed, I

you not.

Ch. Just. I know

myself,

To welcome the cor

Which cannot look

Than I have drawn

Enter Prince JOHN

RENCE, WEST

War. Here come

Harry:

O, that the living

Of him, the worst

How many noblest

That must strike

Ch. Just. Alas!

P. John. Good m

P. Humph. Cla.

P. John. We me

to speak.

War. We do rem

Is all too heavy to

P. John. Well, I

made us h

Ch. Just. Peace

vier!

P. Humph. O, g

a friend, it

And I dare swear,

Of seeming sorrow

P. John. Though

grace to m

You stand in cold

I am the sorrier;

Cla. Well, you

Falstaff fa

Which swims again

Ch. Just. Sweet

honour,

Led by the impari

And never shall ye

A ragged and fore

If truth and upright

I'll to the king my

And tell him who

War. Here come

Enter

Ch. Just. Good

your majes

King. This new

Sits not so easy on

Brothers, you mix

This is the English

Not Amurath an A

But Harry Harry:

For, to speak truth

Sorrow so royally

That I will deeply

And wear it in my

But entertain no

Than a joint burde

For me, by heaven

I'll be your father

Let me but bear yo

* Emperor of the T

succeeded him, had all

but Harry's dead; and so will I:
Ives, that shall convert these tears,
into hours of happiness.

We hope no other from your mary. All look strangely on me:—and must; [To the Cu. Justice.

think, assur'd I love you not.

I am assur'd, if I be measur'd
thy,

I hath no just cause to hate me.

A prince of my great hopes forget guilties you laid upon me? [son rubbish, and roughly send to prison heir of England! Was this easy?
wesh'd in Lothe, and forgotten?
I then did use the person of your
or;

If his power lay than in me:
administration of his law,
a busy for the commonwealth,
as pleased to forget my place,
and power of law and justice,
[the king whom I presented,
me in my very seat of judgement:
an offender to your father,
say to my authority,
omit you. If the deed were ill,
noted, wearing now the garland,
a set your decrees at naught;
on justice from your awful bench;
rules of law, and blunt the sword
the peace and safety of your per-

o spurs at your most royal image,
our workings in a second body.†
ar royal thoughts, make the case
latter, and propose a son: [yours;
va dignity so much profan'd,
it dreadful laws so loosely slight-
self as by a son disdained; [ed,
agrees me taking your part,
power, soft silencing your son:
ld consideration, sentence me;
are a king, speak in your state,‡
done, that misbecame my place,
e my liege's sovereignty.
are right, justice, and you weigh
well;

I'll bear the balance and the sword:
in your honours may increase,
ve to see a son of mine
and obey you, as I did.

o to speak my father's words;—
that have a man so bold,
justice on my proper son:
happy, having such a son,
threw up his greatness as
of justice.—You did commit me:

do commit into your hand [bear;
ed sword that you have us'd to membrance,—That you use the bold, just, and impartial spirit,

I done 'gainst me. There is my
I;

as a father to my youth: [ear;
I'll counsel as you do prompt mine
and humble my intents practis'd, wise directions.—

all, believe me, I beseech you;— gone wild into his grave,

misinterpret your acts executed by a repre-
d character and office.

For in his tomb lie my affections;
And with his spirit sadly I survive,
To mock the expectation of the world;
To frustrate prophecies; and to run out
Rotten opinion, who hath writ me down
After my seeming. The tide of blood in me
Hath proudly flow'd in vanity, till now:
Now doth it turn, and ebb back to the sea;
Where it shall mingle with the state of floods,
And flow henceforth in formal majesty.
Now call we our high court of parliament:
And let us choose such limbs of noble counsel,
That the great body of our state may go
In equal rank with the best-govern'd nation
That war, or peace, or both at once, may be
As thing acquainted and familiar to us;—
In which you, father, shall have foremost hand.— [To the Lord Cu. Justice.

Our coronation done, we will accite,†
As I have remember'd, all our state:
And (God consigning to my good intents,) No prince, nor peer, shall have just cause to
say,—

Heaven shorten Harry's happy life one day.

[Exeunt.

SCENE III.—Glastonbury.—The Garden of SHALLOW'S house.

Enter FALSTAFF, SHALLOW, SILENCE, BAR-
DOLPH, the PAGE, and DAVY.

Shal. Nay, you shall see mine orchard:
where, in an arbour, we will eat a last year's pippin of my own grafting, with a dish of car-raways, and so forth;—come, cousin Silence;—
and then to bed.

Fal. 'Fore God, you have here a goodly dwelling, and a rich.

Shal. Barren, barren, barren; beggars all,
beggars all, Sir John:—marry, good air.—
Spread, Davy; spread, Davy; well said, Davy.

Fal. This Davy serves you for good uses; he is your serving-man, and your husbandman.

Shal. A good varlet, a good varlet, a very good varlet, Sir John.—By the mass, I have drunk too much sack at supper:—a good varlet. Now sit down, now sit down:—come,
cousin.

Sil. Ah, sirrah! quoth-a,—we shall Do nothing but eat, and make good cheer,
[Singing.

And praise heaven for the merry year;
When flesh is cheap, and females dear,
And lusty lads roam here and there,
So merrily,

And ever among so merrily.

Fal. There's a merry heart!—Good master
Silence, I'll give you a health for that anon.

Shal. Give master Bardolph some wine, Davy.

Davy. Sweet Sir, sit; [Seating Bardolph
and the PAGE at another table.] I'll be with you
anon:—most sweet Sir, sit.—Master Page, good master Page, sit: profane! What you want in meat, we'll have in drink. But you must bear; The heart's all. [Exit.

Shal. Be merry, master Bardolph;—and my little soldier there, be merry.

Sil. Be merry, be merry, my wife's as all;‡ [Singing.

For women are shrives, both short and tall;
'Tis merry in hall, when hearts are all,
And welcome merry above-all.

Be merry, be merry, &c.

† Gravely. ‡ Humorous.
‡ Jesters, much good may it do you.
§ As all women are.

Fal. I did not think, master Silence had en a man of this mettle.

Sil. Who I? I have been merry twice and ice, ere now.

Re-enter DAVY.

Davy. There is a dish of leather-coats* for
 you. [Setting them before BARDOLPH.]

Shal. Davy,—

Davy. Your worship?—I'll be with you right. [To BARD.—A cup of wine, Sir?

Sil. *A cup of wine, that's brisk and fine,
 And drink unto the lamen' mine;* [Singing.
And a merry heart lives long-a.

Fal. Well said, master Silence.

Sil. And we shall be merry,—now comes in the sweet of the night.

Fal. Health and long life to you, master
 Silence.

Sil. Fill the cup, and let it come;

I'll pledge you a mile to the bottom.

Shal. Honest Bardolph, welcome: if thou antest any thing, and wilt not call, beshrew
 my heart.—Welcome, my little tiny thief:
 [To the PAGE.] and welcome, indeed, too.—
 'll drink to master Bardolph, and to all the valeroes; about London.

Davy. I hope to see London once ere I die.

Bard. An I might see you there Davy,— Shal. By the mass, you'll crack a quart toether. Ha! will you not, master Bardolph?

Bard. Yes, Sir, in a pottle pot.

Shal. I thank thee:—The knave will stick by thee, I can assure thee that: he will not out; he is true bred.

Bard. And I'll stick by him, Sir.

Shal. Why, there spoke a king. Lack nothing: be merry. [Knocking heard.] Look who's at door there: Ho! who knocks? [Exit DAVY.]

Fal. Why, now you have done me right.
 [To SILENCE, who drinks a bumper.]

Sil. Do me right, [Singing.
And dub me knight:§
Samingo.¶

Is't not so?

Fal. 'Tis so.

Sil. Is't so? Why, then say, an old man can lo somewhat.

Re-enter DAVY.

Davy. An it please your worship, there's one Pistol come from the court with news.

Fal. From the court, let him come in.—

Enter PISTOL.

Fal. How now, Pistol?

Pist. God save you, Sir John!

Fal. What wind blew you hither, Pistol?

Pist. Not the ill wind which blows no man to good.—Sweet knight, thou art now one of the greatest men in the realm.

Sil. By'r lady, I think 'a be; but Goodman Puff of Barson.

Pist. Puff?

Puff in thy teeth, most recreant coward base!—

Sir John, I am thy Pistol, and thy friend,

And helter-skelter have I rode to thee;

And tidings do I bring, and lucky joys,

And golden times, and happy news of price.

Fal. I pr'ythee now, deliver them like a man of this world.

* Apples commonly called russetines.

† Sweetheart.

‡ Gay fellows.

§ He who drank a bumper on his knees to the health of his mistress, was dubbed a knight for the evening.

¶ It should be Domingo; it is part of a song in one of Nashe's plays.

Pist. A soutra f
 base!

I speak of Africa

Fal. O base A
 news?

Let king Cophet

Sil. And Robin

Pist. Shall dur
 And shall good

Then, Pistol, lay

Shal. Honest breeding

Pist. Why the

Shal. Give me

come with news

is but two way

conceal them. I

some authority.

Pist. Under w
 or die.

Shal. Under k

Pist. Harry th

Shal. Harry th

Pist. A soutra

Sir John, thy ter

Harry the fifth's

When Pistol lie

The bragging Sy

Fal. What! is

Pist. As nail

are just

Fal. Away, I

Master Robert

thou wilt in the

double-charge th

Bard. O joyf

knighthood for

Pist. What?

Fal. Carry m

Shallow, my lor

I am fortune's

we'll ride all

Away, Bardolp

tol, utter more

something, to master Snallow

sick for me. L

the laws of Eng

Happy are they

and woe to my

Pist. Let vul

also!

Where is the lif

Why, here it is;

SCENE

Enter BEADLES,
and

Host. No, th might die, that thou hast draw

I Beud. The

over to me; and enough, I war

man or two late

Dol. Nut-hoc

on; I'll tell th

visaged rascal;

miscarry, thou

thy mother, tho

Host. O the I

* A torn

SECOND PART OF KING HENRY IV.

447

this a bloody day to somebody.
he fruit of her womb miscarry!
lo, you shall have a dozen of
; you have but eleven now.
you both go with me; for the
at you and Pistol beat among see what, thou thin man in a

have you as soundly swung
-bottle rogue!† you filthy fan-
ner! if you be not swung,
-kirtles.†

come, you she knight-errant,

right should thus overcome
sufferance comes ease.

u rogue, come; bring me to a

se, you starved blood-hound.

death! goodman bones!

my, thou!

thin thing; come, you rascal!
rell. [Exeunt.

Public Place near Westminster
Abbey.

rooms, strewing Rushes.

rushes, more rushes.

rumpets have sounded twice.

be two o'clock ere they come

on: Despatch, despatch.

[Exeunt Grooms.

SHALLOW, PISTOL, BARDOLPH,
and the PAGE.

by me, master Robert Shal-
the king do you grace: I will
'a comes by; and do but mark
hat he will give me.

thy lungs, good knight.

, Pistol; stand behind me.—

ne to have made new liveries,

towed the thousand pound I

[To SHALLOW.] But 'tis no

show doth better: this doth id to see him.

y earnestness of affection.

.

on.

doth, it doth.

, to ride day and night; and not to remember, not to have

ne

certain.

nd stained with travel, and sire to see him: thinking of

ing all affairs else in oblivion;

othing else to be done, but to

idem, for absque hoc nihil est:‡

art.

deed.

it, I will inflame thy noble

ge. [liver,

len of thy noble thoughts,

, and contagious prison;

al and dirty hand:—

e from ebon den with fell

make,

stol speaks nought but truth.

er her.

thin, and the Trumpets sound.

counterfeit pregnancy.

re a blue livery. ‡ Short cloaks.

all in every part.

Pist. There roar'd the sea, and trumpet-clangor sounds.

Enter the KING and his Train, the CHIEF Jus-TICE among them.

Fal. God save thy grace, king Hal! my royal Hal!

Pist. The heavens thee guard and keep, most royal imp* of fame!

Fal. God save thee, my sweet boy!

King. My lord chief justice, speak to that vain man.

Ch. Just. Have you your wits? know you what 'tis you speak?

Fal. My king! my Jove! I speak to thee, my
heart!

King. I know thee not, old man: Fall to thy prayers;

How ill white hairs become a fool, and jester!

I have long dream'd of such a kind of man,

So surfeit-swell'd, so old, and so profane;

But, being awake, I do despise my dream.

Make less thy body hence,† and more thy grace;

Leave gormandizing; know, the grave doth

gape

For thee thrice wider than for other men:—

Reply not to me with a fool-born jest;

Presume not, that I am the thing I was:

For heaven doth know, so shall the world perceive,

That I have turn'd away my former self;

So will I those that kept me company.

When thou dost hear I am as I have been,

Approach me; and thou shalt be as thou wast,

The tutor and the feeder of my riots:

Till then, I banish thee, on pain of death,—

As I have done the rest of my misleaders,—

Not to come near our person by ten mile.

For competence of life, I will allow you,

That lack of means enforce you not to evil:

And, as we hear you do reform yourselves,

We will,—according to your strength, and qualities, [lord,

Give you advancement.—Be it your charge, my

To see perform'd the tenor of our word.

Set on. [Exeunt KING, and his Train.

Fal. Master Shallow, I owe you a thousand
pound.

Shal. Ay, marry, Sir John; which I beseech
you to let me have home with me.

Fal. That can hardly be, master Shallow.

Do not you grieve at this; I shall be sent for in private to him: look you, he must seem thus to the world. Fear not your advancement; I will be the man yet, that shall make you great.

Shal. I cannot perceive how; unless you give me your doublet, and stuff me out with straw. I beseech you, good Sir John, let me have five hundred of my thousand.

Fal. Sir, I will be as good as my word: this that you heard, was but a colour.

Shal. A colour, I fear, that you will die in,

Sir John.

Fal. Fear no colours; go with me to dinner.

Come, lieutenant Pistol;—come, Bardolph:—I shall be sent for soon at night.

Re-enter Prince JOHN, the CHIEF JUSTICE,

Officers, &c.

Ch. Just. Go, carry Sir John Falstaff to the Fleet;

Take all his company along with him.

Fal. My lord, my lord,—

Ch. Just. I cannot now speak: I will hear you

Take them away.

[soon.

* Child, offspring.

† Henceforward.

We bear our civil swords, and native fire,
As far as France: I heard a bird so sing,
Whose music, to my thinking, pleas'd the king.
Come, will you hence? (Exeunt.)

EPILOGUE

SPOKEN BY A DANCER.

First, my fear; then, my court'sy; last, my speech. My fear is, your displeasure; my court'sy, my duty; and my speech, to beg your pardon. If you look for a good speech now, you undo me: for what I have to say, is of mine own making; and what, indeed, I should say, will, I doubt, prove mine own marring.
But to the purpose, and so to the vesture.—Be it known to you, (as it is very well,) I was lately here in the end of a displeasing play, to gentleness;

agree with even before
One will not too well
another will
in it, and it
of France's staff shall killed with died a man
tongue is bid you go
you;—but,

• Next of
for the King of England, &c

KING HENRY V.

PERSONS REPRESENTED.

BY THE FIFTH.

LOSTER, } Brothers to the King.
EDFORD, }
KETER, Uncle to the King.
ORK, Cousin to the King.
SALISBURY, WESTMORELAND, and BIRWICK.
P OF CANTERBURY.
ELY.
BRIDGE, } Conspirators against
OF, } the King.
GREY, }
ERPINGHAM, GOWER, FLUELLEN,
MORRIS, JAMY, Officers in King
Henry's Army.
RT, WILLIAMS, Soldiers in the same.
DOLPH, PISTOL, formerly Servants
Falstaff, now Soldiers in the same.
nt to them.—A HERALD.—CHORUS.

CHARLES THE SIXTH, King of France.
LEWIS, the Dauphin.
DUKES OF BURGUNDY, ORLEANS, and BOURBON
The CONSTABLE of France.
RAMBURES, and GRANDFREE, French Lords.
GOVERNOR OF HARFLEUR. MONTJOY, a French
Herald.
AMBASSADORS to the King of England.
ISABEL, Queen of France.
KATHARINE, Daughter of Charles and Isabel.
ALICE, a Lady attending on the Princess Katharine.
QUICKLY, Pistol's Wife, a Hostess.
Lords, Ladies, Officers, French and English
Soldiers, Messengers, and Attendants.
The SCENE, at the beginning of the Play, lies in England; but afterwards wholly in France.

Enter CHORUS.

use of fire, that would ascend
st heaven of invention!
for a stage, princes to act,
chs to behold the swelling scene!
d the warlike Harry, like himself,
port of Mars; and, at his heels,
like hounds, should famine, sword,
fire, [all,
employment. But pardon, gentles
aised spirit, that hath dar'd, worthy scaffold, to bring forth object: Can this cockpit hold elds of France? or may we cram wooden O,* the very casques,† right the air at Agincourt?
since a crooked figure may tile place, a million;
ciphers to this great accompt,
aginary forces; work:
ithin the girdle of these walls
nfin'd two mighty monarchies,
upreared and abutting fronts
s, narrow ocean parts asunder.
r imperfections with your thoughts;
and parts divide one man,
maginary puissance: [them
n we talk of horses, that you see ir proud hoo's i'the receiving earth:
r thoughts that now must deck our gs,
ere and there; jumping o'er times;
accomplishment of many years
r glass; For the which supply,
horus to this history; [pray,
gue-like, your humble patience
ar, kindly to judge, our play.

on to the circular form of the theatre.
‡ Powers of fancy.

ACT I.

SCENE I.—London.—An Antichamber in the King's Palace.

Enter the Archbishop of CANTERBURY, and
Bishop of ELY.

Can. My lord, I'll tell you,—that self bill is urg'd,
Which, in the eleventh year o'the last king's
Was like, and had indeed against us pass'd,
But that the scrambling and unquiet time
Did push it out of further question.*

Ely. But how, my lord, shall we resist it
now?

Can. It must be thought on. If it pass
against us,
We lose the better half of our possession:
For all the temporal lands, which men devout
By testament have given to the church,
Would they strip from us; being valued thus,—
As much as would maintain, to the king's
honour,

Full fifteen earls, and fifteen hundred knights;
Six thousand and two hundred good esquires;
And to relief of lazars, and weak age,
Of indigent saint souls, past corporal toll,
A hundred alms-houses, right well supplied;
And to the coffers of the king beside, [bill.
A thousand pounds by the year: Thus runs the Ely. This would drink deep.

Can. 'Twould drink the cup and all.

Ely. But what prevention?

Can. The king is full of grace, and fair regard.

Ely. And a true lover of the holy church.

Can. The courses of his youth promis'd it
not.

The breath no sooner left his father's body,

* Debate.

But that his wildness, mortified in him,
Seem'd to die too: yea, at that very moment,
Consideration like an angel came,
And whipp'd the offending Adam out of him;
Leaving his body as a paradise,
To envelop and contain celestial spirits.
Never was such a sudden scholar made:
Never came reformation in a flood,
With such a heady current, scouring faults;
Nor never Hydra-headed wilfulness
So soon did lose his seat, and all at once,
As in this king.

Ely. We are blessed in the change.

Cant. Hear him but reason in divinity,
And, all-admiring, with an inward wish
You would desire, the king were made a prelate:

Hear him debate of commonwealth affairs,
You would say,—it hath been all-in-all his
study:

List* his discourse of war, and you shall hear
A fearful battle render'd you in music:

Turn him to any cause of policy,
The Gordian knot of it he will unloose,
Familiar as his garter; that, when he speaks,
The air, a charter'd libertine, is still,
And the mute wonder lurketh in men's ears,
To steal his sweet and honeyed sentences;
So that the art and practic part of life
Must be the mistress to this theoric:†
Which is a wonder, how his grace should glean it,

Since his addiction was to courses vain:
His companies† unletter'd, rude, and shallow;
His hours fill'd up with riots, banquets, sports;
And never noted in him any study,
Any retirement, any sequestration
From open haunts and popularity.

Ely. The strawberry grows underneath the nettle;

And wholesome berries thrive and ripen best,
Neighbour'd by fruit of baser quality:
And so the prince obscur'd his contemplation
Under the veil of wildness; which, no doubt,
Grew like summer grass, fastest by night,
Unseen, yet crecive§ in his faculty.

Cant. It must be so: for miracles are ceas'd;
And therefore we must needs admit the means,
How things are perfected.

Ely. But, my good lord,
How now for mitigation of this bill
Urg'd by the commons? Doth his majesty Incline to it, or no?

Cant. He seems indifferent;
Or, rather, swaying more upon our part,
Than cherishing the exhibitors against us:
For I have made an offer to his majesty,—
Upon our spiritual convocation;
And in regard of causes now in hand,
Which I have open'd to his grace at large,
As touching France,—to give a greater sum
Than ever at one time the clergy yet
Did to his predecessors part withal.

Ely. How did this offer seem receiv'd, my
lord?

Cant. With good acceptance of his majesty;
Save, that there was not time enough to hear (As, I perceiv'd, his grace would fain have done,)

The severals, and unhidden passages,
Of his true titles to some certain dukedoms;
And, generally, to the crown and seat of
France,
Deriv'd from Edward, his great grandfather.

Ely. What was the impediment that brake
this off?

Cant. The French ambassador, upon that instant,
Crav'd audience: and the hour I think, is come,
To give him hearing: Is it four o'clock?

Ely. It is.

Cant. Then go we in, to know his embassy;
Which I could, with a ready guess, declare,
Before the Frenchman speak a word of it.

Ely. I'll wait upon you; and I long to hear it. [Exeunt.]

*SCENE II.—The same.—A Room of State in
the same.*

Enter King HENRY, GLOSTER, BEDFORD, EX-TER, WARWICK, WESTMORELAND, and Attendants.

K. Hen. Where is my gracious lord of Canterbury?

Exe. Not here in presence.

K. Hen. Send for him, good uncle.

West. Shall we call in the ambassador, my liege?

K. Hen. Not yet, my cousin; we would be resolv'd,
Before we hear him, of some things of weight,
That task our thoughts, concerning us and
France.

*Enter the Archbishop of CANTERBURY, and
Bishop of ELY.*

Cant. God, and his angels, guard your sacred throne,
And make you long become it!

K. Hen. Sure, we thank you.
My learned lord, we pray you to proceed;
And justly and religiously unfold,
Why the law Salique, that they have in France,
Or should, or should not, bar us in our claim.
And God forbid, my dear and faithful lord,
That you should fashion, wrest, or bow your reading,

Or nicely charge your understanding soul
With opening titles miscreate,* whose right
Suits not in native colours with the truth;
For God doth know, how many, now in health
Shall drop their blood in approbation
Of what your reverence shall incite us to:
Therefore take heed how you impawn our
person,

How you awake the sleeping sword of war;
We charge you in the name of God, take heed:
For never two such kingdoms did contend,
Without much fall of blood; whose guiltless
drops

Are every one a woe, a sore complaint,
'Gainst him, whose wrongs give edge unto the
swords

That make such waste in brief mortality.
Under this conjuration, speak, my lord:
And we will hear, note, and believe in heart.
That what you speak is in your conscience
As pure as sin with baptism. [wash'd]

Cant. Then hear me, gracious sovereign,— and you peers,
That owe your lives, your faith, and services,
To this imperial throne;—There is no bar
To make against your highness' claim to France, [mond,—]

But this, which they produce from Phara-
In terram Salicam mulieres ne succedant,
No woman shall succeed in Salique land:
Which Salique land the French unjustly gloze.*

* Listen to.
† Companions.

† Theory.
‡ Increasing.

* Spurious.

† Explain.

alm of France, and Pharamond
of this law and female bar.
n authors faithfully affirm,
d Salique lies in Germany,
: floods of Sala and of Elbe:
les the great, having subdued the ons,
hind and settled certain French;
g in disdain the German women,
shonest manners of their life,
there this law,—to wit, no female
heritrix in Salique land;
ue, as I said, 'twixt Elbe and Sala,
y in Germany call'd—Meisen.
well appear, the Salique law
ised for the realm of France:
French possess the Salique land
undred one and twenty years
ction of king Pharamond,
'd the founder of this law;
ithin the year of our redemption
d twenty-six; and Charles the great
e Saxons, and did seat the French river Sala, in the year
ed five. Besides, their writers say,
, which deposed Childerick,
general, being descended [thair,
, which was the daughter to Clo-
and title to the crown of France.
t also,—that usurp'd the crown
the duke of Lorain, sole heir male
e line and stock of Charles the
at,— title with some show of truth,
pure truth, it was corrupt and ght,)
umself as heir to the lady Lingare, Charlemain, who was the son
ie emperor, and Lewis the son
the great. Also king Lewis the
th,
le heir to the usurper Capet,
eep quiet in his conscience,
e crown of France, till satisfied
een Isabel, his grandmother,
of the lady Ermengare, [Lorain:
o Charles the foresaid duke of h marriage, the line of Charles the ted to the crown of France. [great lear as is the summer's sun,
's title, and Hugh Capet's claim,
his satisfaction, all appear ight and title of the female:
ings of France unto this day;
ey would hold up this Salique law,
highness claiming from the female;
choose to hide them in a net,
' to imbaret their crooked titles
m you and your progenitors.
May I, with right and conscience,
ke this claim?
e sin upon my head, dread soeign!
ook of Numbers is it writ,—
on dies, let the inheritance
to the daughter. Gracious lord,
our own; unwind your bloody flag;
unto your mighty ancestors:
ad lord, to your great grandsire's
ib, [spirit,
n you claim; invoke his warlike
great uncle's, Edward the black
nce;
French ground play'd a tragedy,

Making defeat on the full power of France;
Whiles his most mighty father on a hill
Stood smiling; to behold his lion's whelp
Forage in blood of French nobility.*
O noble English that could entertain
With half their forces the full pride of France;
And let another half stand laughing by,
All out of work, and cold for action!

Ely. Awake remembrance of these valiant
dead,
And with your puissant arm renew their feats:
You are their heir, you sit upon their thrones;
The blood and courage, that renown'd them,
Runs in your veins; and my thrice-puissant
Is in the very May-morn of his youth, [liege
Ripe for exploits and mighty enterprises.

Ere. Your brother kings and monarchs of the earth
Do all expect that you should rease yourself,
As did the former lions of your blood.

West. They know, your grace hath cause,
and means, and might;
So hath your highness; never king of England
Had nobles richer, and more loyal subjects;
Whose hearts have left their bodies here in England,
And lie pavilion'd in the fields of France.

Cent. O, let their bodies follow, my dear
liege, [right:
With blood, and sword, and fire, to win you
In aid whereof, we of the spirituality
Will raise your highness such a mighty sum,
As never did the clergy at one time
Bring in to any of your ancestors.

K. Hen. We must not only arm to invade
the French;
But lay down our proportions to defend Against the Scot, who will make road upon us
With all advantages.

Cent. They of those marches,† gracious so-
Shall be a wall sufficient to defend [vereign,
Our inland from the pelfering borderers.

K. Hen. We do not mean the coursing snatchers only,
But fear the main intendment‡ of the Scot
Who hath been still a giddy neighbour to us;
For you shall read, that my great grandfather
Never went with his forces into France,
But that the Scot on his unfurnish'd kingdom
Came pouring, like the tide unto a breach,
With ample and brim fulness of his force;
Galling the gleaned land with hot essays;
Girding with grievous siege, castles and towns;
That England, being empty of defence,
Hath shook, and trembled at the ill neighbourhood.

Cent. She hath been then more fear'd‡ than harm'd, my liege:
For hear her but exempl'd by herself,—
When all her chivalry hath been in France,
And she a mourning widow of her nobles,
She hath herself not only well defended,
But taken, and impounded as a stray,
The king of Scots; whom she did send to France, [kings;
To fill king Edward's fame with prisoner
And make your chronicle as rich with praise,
As is the ooze and bottom of the sea
With sunken wreck and sunless treasures.

West. But there's a saying, very old and true,—
If that you will France win,
Then with Scotland first begin:

* Make showy or specious.

is title.

† Lay open.

* At the battle of Crecy.

† The borders of England and Scotland.

‡ General disposition.

{ Frightened.

For once the eagle England being in prey,
To her unguarded nest the wrennet ^{nest} ^{nest}
Comes sneaking, and so seeks her privacy

Playing the mouse, in absence of the cat,
To speak and have more than she can eat.

Hen. It follows then, the cat must stay at Yet that is but a cur'd necessity; [home :
Since we have looks to safeguard necessities,
And pretty traps to catch the petty thieves.
While that the armed hand doth fight abroad,
The advised head defends itself at home :
For government, though high, and low, and

lower,
Put into parts, doth keep in one consent ;
Congruing in a full and natural close,
Like music.

Cont. True therefore doth heaven divide
The state of man in divers functions,
Setting endeavour in continual motion ;
To which is fixed, as an aim or butt,
Obedience, for so work the honey bees ;
Creatures, that, by a rule in nature, teach
The act of order to a peopled kingdom.
They have a king, and officers of sorts ;
Where some, like magistrates, correct at home ;
Others, like merchants, venture trade abroad ;
Others, like soldiers, armed in their stings,
Make boot upon the summer's velvet buds ;
Which pillage they with merry march bring
To the tent-royal of their emperor : [home

Who, busied in his majesty, surveys
The singing swains building roofs of gold ;
The civil citizens kneading up the honey ;
The poor mechanic porters crowding in Their heavy burdens at his narrow gate ;
The sad-eyed justice, with his surly hum,
Delivering o'er to executors pale
The lazy yawning drone — I this infer,—
That many things, having full reference
To one consent, may work contrariety ;
As many arrows, loosed several ways,
Fly to one mark ;

As many several ways meet in one town ;
As many fresh streams run in one self sea ;
As many lines close in the dial's centre ;
So many a thousand actions, once afoot,
End in one purpose, and be all well borne Without defeat. Therefore to France, my liege.

Divide your happy England into four ;
Whereof take you one quarter into France,
And you withal shall make all Gallia shake.
If we, with thrice that power left at home,
Cannot defend our own door from the dog,
Let us be worried ; and our nation lose
The name of hardiness, and policy.

K. Hen. Call in the messengers sent from the Dauphin.

[Exit an Attendant. The King ascends his Throne.

Now are we well resolv'd : and,—by God's help ;

And yours, the noble sinews of our power,—
France being ours, we'll bend it to our awe,
Or break it all to pieces : Or there we'll sit,
Ruling, in large and ample camp, [¶] [¶] [¶]
O'er France, and all her almost kingly duke—
Or lay these bones in an unworthy urn,
Tombless, with no remembrance over them :
Either our history shall, with full mouth,
Speak freely of our acts ; or else our grave,
Like Turkish mutes, shall have a tongueless
mouth,

Not worship'd with a waxen epitaph.

• Homage. † Agreeing. ‡ Different degrees.
§ Chosen. || Executioners. ¶ Devotion.

Enter Ambassadors of France.

Now are we well prepar'd to know the pleasure

Of our fair cousin Dauphin ; for, we have,
Your greeting is from him, not from the king.
Ans. May it please your majesty, to give us
leave

Freely to render what we have in charge ;
Or shall we sparingly show you far off
The Dauphin's meaning, and our embassy ?

K. Hen. We are no tyrant, but a Christian
king ;

Unto whose grace our passion is as subject,
As are our wretches fetter'd in our prisons :
Therefore, with frank and with uncurbed plain,
Tell us the Dauphin's mind. [ans.

Ans. Thus then, in few.
Your highness, lately sending into France,
Did claim some certain dukedoms, in the right
Of your great predecessor, king Edward the third.

In answer of which claim, the prince our time Says,—that you encroach too much of your youth ; [France.

And bids you be advis'd, there's naught in
That can be with a nimble galliard's wren ;
You cannot revel into dukedoms there :
He therefore sends you, master for your spirit,
This tax of treasure ; and, in lieu of this,
Desires you, let the dukedoms, that you claim,
Hear no more of you. This the Dauphin speaks.

K. Hen. What treasure, uncle ?

Ans. Tennis-balls, my liege.

K. Hen. We are glad, the Dauphin is so pleasant with us ; [Ans.

His present, and your pains, we thank you
When we have match'd our rackets to these balls.

We will, in France, by God's grace, play a set,
Shall strike his father's crown into the hazard :
Tell him, he hath made a match with such a wrangler,

That all the courts of France will be disturb'd
With chaces ; And we understand him well,
How he comes o'er us with our wilder days,
Not measuring what use we made of them.
We never valu'd this poor seat of England ;
And therefore, living hence, did give counsel
To barbarous licence ; As 'tis ever custom,
That men are merriest when they are from
home.

But tell the Dauphin,—I will keep my state ;
Be like a king, and show my sail of greatness,
When I do rouse me in my throne of France :
For that I have laid by my majesty,
And plodded like a man for working days ;

But I will rise there with so full a glory,
That I will dazzle all the eyes of France,
Yea, strike the Dauphin blind to look on us.
And tell the pleasant prince,—this mock of his Hath turn'd his balls to gun-stones ; and his soul

Shall stand sore charged for the wasteful van-
That shall fly with them : for many a thousand widows

Shall this his mock mock out of their dear hus-Mock mothers from their sons, mock castles
down ;

And some are yet ungotten, and unborn,
That shall have cause to curse the Dauphin's
scorn.

• An ancient dance.

† A place in the tennis-court into which the ball is sometimes struck.

‡ A term at tennis.

§ The throne. || Withdrawing from the court.

his lies all within the will of God,
 even I do appeal; And in whose name,
 on the Dauphin, I am coming on,
 see me as I may, and to put forth
 my hand in a well-hallow'd cause.
 If you hence in peace; and tell the Dan-
 net will sever but of shallow wit, [phon, thousands weep, more than did laugh
 at it—

try them with safe conduct.—Pare you well. [Exit AMBASSADOR.

1. This was a merry message.

Alas. We hope to make the sender blush
 at it. [Descends from his Throne.

Alas, my lords, omit no happy hour,
 may give furtherance to our expedition:
 to have now so thought in us but France;
 to see to God, that run before our business
 there, let our proportions for these wars
 be collected; and all things thought upon,
 I say, with reasonable swiftness, add feathers to our wings, for, God before,
 I will this Dauphin at his father's door.
 Alas, let every man now task his thought,
 his fair action may on foot be brought.

[Exit.

ACT II

Enter CHORUS.

1. Now all the youth of England are on fire,

illuminate the wardrobe lies;
 drive the armourers, and honour's thought
 is solely in the breast of every man:
 and the pasture now, to buy the horse;
 bring the mirror of all Christian kings,
 winged heels, as English Mercenaries.

Now sits Expectation in the air;
 strikes a sword, from hilts unto the point,
 throws imperial, crowns, and coronets,
 to Harry, and his followers.

'Tis such, advis'd by good intelligence
 is most dreadful preparation,
 is their fear; and with pale policy
 he diverts the English purposes.

Alas!—model to thy inward greatness,
 little body with a mighty heart,— might'st thou do, that honour would thee

 call thy children kind and natural! [do, to thy fault! France hath in thee found a hollow bosom, which he's fill'd [out with crooked crowns: and three corrupted

men,— [good,
 Richard earl of Cambridge; and the second Scroop of Marston; and the third,

Thomas Grey knight of Northumberland,—
 for the gift of France, (O guilt, indeed!)

'twould conspiracy with fearful France;
 by their hands this grace of kings must
 and treason hold their promises, [die,
 to take ship for France, and in Southampton.

 By your patience on; and well digest
 time of distance, while we force a play.

Time is paid; the traitors are agreed;
 they are set from London; and the scene
 is transported, gentles, to Southampton:

in the playhouse now, there must you sit:

thence to France shall we convey you safe,
 bring you back, charming the narrow seas
 to you gentle pass; for, if we may,
 I not offend one stomach with our play.

a. The king of France.

† Golden money

But, till the king come forth, and not till then,
 Unto Southampton do we shift our scene.

[Exit.

SCENE I.—The same.—Southampton.

Enter NYM and BARDOLPH.

Bard. Well met, corporal Nym.

Nym. Good morrow, lieutenant Bardolph.

Bard. What, are ancient Pistol and you friends yet?

Nym. For my part, I care not: I say little;
 but when time shall serve, there shall be smiles,—but that shall be as it may. I dare not fight; but I will wink, and hold out mine iron: It is a simple one; but what though? It will toast cheese; and it will endure cold as another man's sword will: and there's the humour of it.

Bard. I will bestow a breakfast, to make you friends; and we'll be all three sworn brothers
 to France, let it be so, good corporal Nym.

Nym. Faith, I will live so long as I may,
 that's the certain of it; and when I cannot live any longer, I will do as I may: that is my rest,* that is the rendezvous of it.

Bard. It is certain, corporal, that he is married to Nell Quickly: and, certainly, she did you wrong, for you were troth-plight to her.

Nym. I cannot tell; things must be as they may. men may sleep, and they may have their throats about them at that time; and, some say, knives have edges. It must be as it may:
 though patience be a tired mare, yet she will plod. There must be conclusions. Well, I cannot tell.

Enter PISTOL and MRS. QUICKLY.

Bard. Here comes ancient Pistol, and his wife—good corporal, be patient here.—How now, mine host Pistol?

Pist. Base like, call'st thou me—host?
 Now, by this hand I swear, I scorn the term;
 Nor shall my Nell keep lodgers.

Quick. No, by my troth, not long: for we cannot lodge and board a dozen or fourteen gentlewomen, that live honestly by the prick of their needles, but it will be thought we keep a bawdy-house straight. [Nym draws his sword.] O well-a-day, Lady, if he be not drawn now! O Lord! here's corporal Nym's
 —now shall we have wilful adultery and mar-der committed. Good lieutenant Bardolph,— good corporal, offer nothing here.

Nym. Pish!

Pist. Pish for thee, Iceland dog! thou prick-eared cur of Iceland!

Quick. Good corporal Nym, show the valour
 of a man, and put up thy sword.

Nym. Will you shog off? I would have you soles. [Shouting his sword.

Pist. Solus, egregious dog! O viper vile!
 The solus in thy most marvellous face;
 The solus in thy teeth, and in thy throat,
 And in thy hateful lungs, yea, in thy maw,
 perdy, i

And, which is worse, within thy nasty mouth!
 I do retort the solus in thy bowels:
 For I can take, and Pistol's cock is up,
 And flashing fire will follow.

Nym. I am not Barbason;† you cannot con-jure me. I have a humour to knock you indifferently well: If you grow foul with me, Pistol, I will scour you with my rapier, as I may, in fair terms: If you would walk off, I

* What I am resolved on.

† For draw!

‡ Clown.

§ Name of a demon.

, than if we heard that Eng-

a Whitsun merris-dance :
e, she is so idly king'd, statistically borne
shallow, humorous youth,
her not.

Prince Dauphin !
mistaken in this king :
we the late ambassadors,—
state he heard their embassy,
ed with noble counsellors, (suspicion,* and, withal,
instant resolution,—
d, his vanities fore-spent;
side of the Roman Brutus,
in with a coat of folly ;
with ordure hide those roots
king, and be most delicate.
I not so, my lord high con-

think it so, it is no matter :
be, 'tis best to weigh mighty than he seems,
s of defence are ill'd ;
t and niggardly protection,
; spoil his coat, with scanting

ik we king Harry strong ;
ik, you strongly arm to meet

m hath been flesh'd upon us ;
st of that bloody strain,†
in our familiar paths :
such memorable shame,
the fatally was struck,
was captiv'd, by the hand
me, Edward black prince of mountain sire,—on mountain

; own'd with the golden sun,— seed, and smil'd to see him
of nature, and deface
at by God and by French

s been made. This is a stem s stock ; and let us fear
tiness and fate of him.

er a MESSENGER.

adors from Henry King of
ance to your majesty.
ll give them present audience.
bring them.

most Miss. and certain Lords.
see is hotly follow'd, friends.
ed, and stop pursuit : for cow-

air mouths, when what they threaten,
them. Good my sovereign,
flish short ; and let them know
rchy you are the head :
ge, is not so vile a sin
mg.

oe, with EXETER and Train.

me our brother England ?
m ; and thus he greets your
the name of God Almighty, yourself, and lay apart

stems. † Wasted, exhausted.
‡ Lineage.

The borrow'd glories, that, by gift of heaven,
By law of nature, and of nations, 'long
To him, and to his heirs ; namely the crown,
And all wide-stretched honours that pertain,
By custom and the ordinance of times,
Unto the crown of France. What you may
know,

'Tis no sinister, nor no awkward claim,
Pick'd from the worm-holes of long-vanish'd
days,

Nor from the dust of old oblivion rak'd,
He sends you this most memorable line,

[Gives a paper.

In every branch truly demonstrative ;
Willing you, overlook this pedigree :
And, when you find him evenly deriv'd
From his most fam'd of famous ancestors,
Edward the third, he bids you then resign
Your crown and kingdom, indirectly held
From him the native and true challenger.

Fr. King. Or else what follows ?

Exc. Bloody constraint, for if you hide the crown

Even in your hearts, there will he rake for it,
And therefore in fierce tempest is he coming ;
In thunder, and in earthquake, like a Jove ;
(That, if requiring fail, he will compel ;)
And bids you, in the bowels of the Lord,
Deliver up the crown ; and to take mercy
On the poor souls, for whom this hungry war
Opens his vasty jaws. and on your head
Turns he the widows' tears, the orphans' cries,
The dead men's blood, the pining maidens'
groans,

For husbands, fathers, and betrothed lovers,
That shall be swallow'd in this controversy.
This is his claim, his threatening, and my
message ;

Unless the Dauphin be in presence here,
To whom expressly I bring greeting too.

Fr. King. For us, we will consider of this
further :

To-morrow shall you bear our full intent
Back to our brother England.

Des. For the Dauphin, [land ?

I stand here for him ; What to him from Eng-Exc. Scorn, and defiance ; slight regard,
contempt,

And any thing that may not misbecome
The mighty sender, doth he prize you at.
Thus says my king : and, if your father's high-
ness

Do not, in grant of all demands at large,
Sweeten the bitter mock you sent his majesty,
He'll call you to so hot an answer for it,
That caves and wombby vaultages of France
Shall chide* your trespass, and return your
In second accent of his ordnance. [mock

Des. Say, if my father render fair reply,

It is against my will : for I desire
Nothing but odds with England ; to that end,
As matching to his youth and vanity,
I did present him with those Paris balls.

Exc. He'll make your Paris Louvre shake
for it,

Were it the mistress court of mighty Europe :
And, be assur'd, you'll find a difference,
(As we, his subjects, have in wonder found,)
Between the promise of his greener days,
And these he masters now ; now he weighs time, [read

Even to the utmost grain ; which you shall
In your own losses, if he stay in France.

Fr. King. To-morrow shall you know our mind at full.

* Harrowed, etc.

Exc. Despatch us with all speed, lest that our king
come here himself to question our delay;
for he is footed in this land already.

Fr. King. You shall be soon despatch'd, with fair conditions:
A night is but small breath, and little pause,
to answer matters of this consequence.

[Exeunt.]

ACT III.

Enter CHORUS.

Chor. Thus with imagin'd wing our swift scene flies,

in motion of no less celerity [seen than that of thought. Suppose, that you have the well-appointed king at Hampton pier embark his royalty; and his brave fleet [ning.
With silken streamers the young Phœbus fan-
play with your fancies; and in them behold,
upon the hempen tackle, ship-boys climbing:
hear the shrill whistle, which doth order give
to sounds confus'd: behold the threaten sails,
borne with the invisible and creeping wind,
draw the huge bottoms through the furrow'd
sea,

breasting the lofty surge: O, do but think,
you stand upon the rivage,* and behold
a city on the inconstant billows dancing;
for so appears this fleet majestical, [low!
holding due course to Harfleur. Follow, follow, trapple your minds to sternage† of this navy;
and leave your England, as dead midnight,
still,

warded with grandsires, babies, and old women, either past, or not arriv'd to, pith and puissance:

or who is he, whose chin is but enrich'd
with one appearing hair, that will not follow these cull'd and choise-drawn cavaliers to France?

For, work, work, your thoughts, and therein see
a siege:

Behold the ordnance on their carriages,
with fatal mouths gaping on girded Harfleur.
Oppose, the ambassador from the French
comes back;

tells Harry—that the king doth offer him Catharine his daughter; and with her, to dowry,

some petty and unprofitable dukedoms.
He offer likes not: and the nimble gunner
with linstock‡ now the devilish cannon touches,

[Alarm; and Chambers§ go off.
And down goes all before them. Still be kind,
and eke out our performance with your mind.

[Exit.]

SCENE I.—The same.—Before Harfleur.

Alarms. Enter King HENRY, EXETER, BED-FORD, GLOSTER, and Soldiers, with Scaling Ladders.

K. Hen. Once more unto the breach, dear friends, once more;
For close the wall up with our English dead!
In peace, there's nothing so becomes a man,
as modest stillness, and humility:
But when the blast of war blows in our ears,
then imitate the action of the tiger;
Stiffen the sinews, summon up the blood,
Disguise fair nature with hard-favour'd rage:

* Bank or shore.

† Sterns of the ships.

‡ The staff which holds the match used in firing cannon.

§ Small pieces of ordnance.

Then lend the eye
Let it pry through
Like the brass can
As fearfully, as d
O'erhang and jut
Swill'd with the v
Now set the tee
wide;
Hold hard the bre
To his full height
glish,
Whose blood is fe
Fathers, that, lik
Have, in these fought,
And sheath'd the
ment,§ Dishonour not yo
That those, whon
get you!
Be copy now to n
And teach them |
yeomen,
Whose limbs wei
The mettle of yo
That you are w doubt ne
For there is none
That hath not no
I see you stand l
Straining upon t
Follow your spir
Cry—God for F
George!
[Exeunt.]

SCENE II

Forces pass over;
Pi

Bard. On, on,
the breach!

Nym. 'Pray th
are too hot; and,
a case of lives:
that is the very p

Pist. The plai
mours d

Knocks go and c
And s

In blo
Doth win i

Boy. 'Would I
don! I would giv
and safety.

Pist. And I:
It wishe

My purp
But

Boy. As duly,
sing on bough.

Ei

Flu. Got's bloc
rascals! will you

Pist. Be merc mould!¶

Abate thy rage, i Abate thy rage, §

Good lawcock,
sweet ch

* A mole to withst

† Worn, wasted.

‡ Matter, subject.

of honour!—your honour

1, Pistol, and Bardolph,
y Fluellen.

As I am, I have observed
am boy to them all three:
though they would serve a to me; for, indeed, three amount to a man. For its-livered, and red-faced;
of, 'a faces it out, but fights
he hath a killing tongue,
by the means whereof 'a carries whole weapons. For rd, that men of few words and therefore he scorns to t 'a should be thought a w bad words are matched leads; for 'a never broke t his own; and that was he was drunk. They will call it,—purchase. Barre; bore it twelve leagues, halfpence. Nym, and Bar-rothers in flogging; and in re-shovel: I knew, by that men would carry coals.
so as familiar with men's res or their handkerchiefs:
against my manhood, if I other's pocket, to put into pocketing up of wrongs. I d seek some better service:
against my weak stomach,
cast it up. [Exit Boy.

28, GOWER following.

Fluellen, you must come pre-
the duke of Gloster would

It tell you the duke, it is to the mines: For, look of according to the disci-
the concavities of it is not you, th' adversary (you duke, look you,) is diggt
under the countermine:
, 'a will plow up all, if directions.

f Gloster, to whom the oriven, is altogether directed
a very valiant gentleman,

Macmorris, is it not?

e.
is an ass, as in the 'orld:
th in his peard: he has no
the true disciplines of the he Roman disciplines, than

and JAMV, at a distance.

es; and the Scots captain,
him.

ay is a marvellous valorous
ertain; and of great expe-
dge, in the ancient wars,
knowledge of his direc-
he will maintain his argu-
military man in the 'orld,
f the pristine wars of the day, captain Fluellen.

your worship, good captain

affronts. ; Dignat. ; How.

Gow. How, now, captain Macmorris? have you quit the mines? have the plowmen given
o'er?

Mac. By Christ la, tish ill done: the work
ish give over, the trumpet sound the retreat.
By my hand, I swear, and by my father's soul,
the work ish ill done; it ish give over: I would have blowed up the town, so Christ save me, la, in an hour. O, tish ill done, tish ill done;
by my hand, tish ill done!

Fla. Captain Macmorris, I beseech you now, will you vouchsafe me, look you, a few disputations with you, as partly touching or concerning the disciplines of the war, the Roman wars,
in the way of argument, look you, and friendly
communication, partly, to satisfy my opinion,
and partly, for the satisfaction, look you, of my mind, as touching the direction of the military discipline, that is the point.

Jamv. It shall be very good, good faith, good captains both: and I shall quit you with good love, as I may pick occasion; that shall I, marry.

Mac. It is no time to discourse, so Christ save me, the day is hot, and the weather, and the warm, and the king, and the dukes; it is no time to discourse. The town is beseeched, and the trumpet calls us to the breach, and we talk, and, by Christ, do nothing; 'tis shame
for us all. so God sa' me, 'tis shame to stand still; it is shame, by my hand: and there is throats to be cut, and works to be done; and there ish nothing done, so Christ sa' me, la.

Jamv. By the mass, ere these eyes of mine tak themselves to slumber, will do good service, or will ligge i' the ground for it, ay, or go to death, and will pay it as valorously as I may, that shall I surely do, that is the bress and the long. Marry, I wad full fain heard some question 'twix you tway.

Fla. Captain Macmorris, I think, look you, under your correction, there is not many of your nation—

Mac. Of my nation? What ish my nation?
ish a villain, and a bastard, and a knave, and a rascal? What ish my nation? Who talks of my nation?

Fla. Look you, if you take the matter otherwise than is meant, captain Macmorris, peradventure, I shall think you do not use me with that affability as in discretion you ought to use
me, look you; being as good a man as yourself,
both in the disciplines of wars, and in the derivation of my birth, and in other particularities.

Mac. I do not know you so good a man as myself: so Christ save me, I will cut off your head.

Gow. Gentlemen both, you will mistake each other.

Jamv. And that's a foul fault.

[A Parley sounded.

Gow. The town sounds a parley.

Fla. Captain Macmorris, when there is more better opportunity to be required, look you, I will be so bold as to tell you, I know the disciplines of war; and there is an end. [Re-enter.

SCENE III.—The same.—Before the Gates of Harfleur.

The Governor and some Citizens on the Walls;
the English Forces below. Enter King Henry and his Train.

K. Hen. How yet resolves the governor of the town?

This is the latest parley we will admit:

Therefore, to our best mercy give yourselves;

o English, answer.

(1)

like to men proud of destruction,
us to our worst: for, as I am a soldier,
name, that, in my thoughts, becomes me
begin the battery once again, [best,] ll not leave the half-achieved Harfleur.
in her ashes she lie buried.
gates of mercy shall be all shut up;
the flesh'd soldier,—rough and hard of
heart,—

liberty of bloody hand, shall range [grass
h conscience wide as hell; mowing like
r fresh-fair virgins, and your flowering infants.

at is it then to me, if impious war,— ay'd in flames, like to the prince of fiends,— with his smurch'd^o complexion, all fell nk'd to waste and desolation? [seats
it is't to me, when you yourselves are cause,
our pure maidens fall into the hand
not and forcing violation?

at rein can hold licentious wickedness,
en down the hill he holds his fierce career?
may as bootless; spend our vain command
n the enraged soldiers in their spoil,
end precepts to the Leviathan [fleur,
some ashore. Therefore, you men of Har-

o pity of your town, and of your people,
iles yet my soldiers are in my command;
iles yet the cool and temperate wind of
grace

rblows the filthy and contagious clouds
leadly murder, spoil, and villany.
ot, why, in a moment, look to see

blind and bloody soldier with foul hand
ile the locks of your shrill-shrieking daugh-
r fathers taken by the silver beards, [ters;
l their most reverend heads dash'd to the walls;

r naked infants spitted upon pikes;
iles the mad mothers with their howls
confus'd

break the clouds, as did the wives of Jewry Herod's bloody-hunting slaughtermen.

at say you? will you yield, and this avoid?
guilty in defence, be thus destroy'd?

or. Our expectation hath this day an
end:

Dauphin, whom of succour we entreated,
urns us—that his powers are not yet ready raise so great a siege. Therefore, dread
king,

yield our town, and lives, to thy soft
mercy:

er our gates; dispose of us, and ours;
we no longer are defensible.

Hen. Open your gates.—Come, uncle Exeter,

you and enter Harfleur; there remain,
l fortify it strongly 'gainst the French:

mercy to them all. For us, dear uncle,— winter coming on, and sickness growing on our soldiers,—we'll retire to Calais.

night in Harfleur will we be your guest;
morrow for the march are we address'd.

[Flourish. The King, &c. enter the Town.

ENE IV.—Roën.—A Room in the Palace.

Enter KATHARINE and ALICE.

Kath. Alice, tu as esté en Angleterre, et tu les bien le language.

Alice. Un peu madame.

Kath. Je te prie, m'enseigneuz; il faut que prenne à parler. Comment appelez vous la n, en Anglois?

Alice. La main? elle est appelée, de hand.

Index. † Cræli. ‡ Without success. § Prepared.

Kath. De hand.

Alice. Les doigts
doigts; mais je me
pense, qu'ils sont app
gres.

Kath. La main, e
gres. Je pense, q J'ay gagné deux moi
ment appelez vous l

Alice. Les ongles

Kath. De nails.
parle bien: de hand

Alice. C'est bien
Anglois.

Kath. Dites moy

Alice. De arm, n

Kath. Et le coude

Alice. De elbow.

Kath. De elbow.
de tous les mots, q
present.

Alice. Il est trop
pense.

Kath. Excusez
hand, de finger, de

Alice. De elbow.

Kath. O Seigneur
elbow. Comment

Alice. De neck,

Kath. De neck:

Alice. De chin.

Kath. De sin.
de sin.

Alice. Ouy. Sa
vous prononcez les
tj's d'Angleterre.

Kath. Je ne doi
grace de Dieu; et e

Alice. N'avez v vous ny enseignée?

Kath. Non, je re
De hand de finger,

Alice. De nails,

Kath. De nails,

Alice. Sans cost

Kath. Ainsi dis j sin: Comment appe

Alice. De foot, n

Kath. De foot, e ces sont mots de

grosse, et impudiq
d'honneur d'user:

ces mots devant les tout le monde. Il neant-moins. Je rec ensemble: De ham

arm, de elbow, de n

Alice. Excellent,

Kath. C'est assez
dianer.

SCENE V.—The s

Enter the French K
BOURBON, the Com

Fr. King. Tis ce

river Some.

Com. And if he be

Let us not live in F
And give our viney

Dau. O Dieu r

us,—

The emptying of ou
Our scions, put in v

Spirit up so sudden
And overlook their

but bastard Normans, Norwiche!
if they march along
but I will sell my dukedom,
and a dirty farm
in the isle of Albion.
Mistress! where have they this is foggy, raw, and dull?

scarcely, the sun looks pale,
with frowns! Can sudden

re-join'd jade, their barley
blood to such valiant heat?
dark blood, spirited with wine,
for honour of our land,
like roping leeches [people
thatch, whilst a mere frosty
plant youth in our rich fields;
ill them, in their native lords.
and honour,
look at us; and plainly say,
I out; and they will give a lust of English youth,
once with bastard warriors.
us—to the English dancing-

at high, and swift courtesies;
is only in our heels,
most lofty runaways.
there is Montjoy, the herald?
hence;
England with our sharp doli-

with spirit of honour edg'd,
your swords, hie to the field:
t, high constable of France;
sire, Bourbon, and of Berry,
Bar, and Burgundy;
Rambures, Vandemont,
Lys, Roussi, and Faucon-

meignault, and Charoleis;
t princes, barons, lords, and ants, now quit you of great ed, that sweeps through our sited in the blood of Har-

as doth the melted snow whose low vassal seat
it and void his rheum upon:
—you have power enough,— chariot, into Rouen
over.

ies the great.
embers are so few,
and famish'd in their march;
you shall see our army,
it into the sink of fear,
ent, offer us his ransom.
efore, lord constable, haste
y:

England, that we send him ransom he will give.— you shall stay with us in to beseech your majesty.

tient, for you shall remain

constable, and princes all;
us word of England's fall.

[Exeunt.]

† Over-strained.
‡ Pendants, small flags.

SCENE VI.—The English Camp in Picardy.
Enter GOWKE and FLEWELLEN.

Gow. How now, captain Fleweller? come you from the bridge?

Fle. I assure you, there is very excellent service committed at the bridge.

Gow. Is the duke of Exeter safe?

Fle. The duke of Exeter is as magnanimous as Agamemnon; and a man that I love and honour with my soul, and my heart, and my duty, and my life, and my livings, and my uttermost powers: he is not, (God be praised, and blessed!) any hurt in the world; but keeps the bridge most valiantly, with excellent discipline. There is an ensign there at the bridge,
—I think, in my very conscience, he is as valiant as Mark Antony; and he is a man of no estimation in the world: but I did see him do gallant service.

Gow. What do you call him?

Fle. He is called—ancient Pistol.

Gow. I know him not.

Enter Pistol.

Fle. Do you not know him? Here comes the
man.

Pist. Captain, I thus beseech to do me favour:

The duke of Exeter doth love thee well.

Fle. Ay, I praise God; and I have merited
some love at his hands.

Pist. Bardolph, a soldier, true and sound of
heart,
Of bexom valour,* both,—by cruel fate,
And giddy fortune's furious fickle wheel,
That goddess blind,
That stands upon the rolling restless stone,—

Fle. By your patience, ancient Pistol. Fortune is painted blind, with a mantle before her eyes, to signify to you that fortune is blind:
And she is painted also with a wheel; to signify to you, which is the moral of it, that she is turning, and inconstant, and variations, and mutabilities: and her foot, look you, is fixed upon a spherical stone, which rolls, and rolls, and rolls;—In good truth, the poet is make a most excellent description of fortune: fortune,
look you, is an excellent moral.

Pist. Fortune is Bardolph's foe, and flows
on him;

For he hath stol'n a pie,† and hang'd must 'a be.
A damned death!

Let gallows gape for dog, let men go free,
And let not hemp his wind-pipe suffocate:
But Exeter hath given the crown of death,
For pie of little price.

[voice;
Therefore, go speak, the duke will hear thy
And let not Bardolph's vital thread be cut
With edge of penny cord, and vile reproach:
Speak captain, for his life, and I will thee re-
quite.

Fle. Ancient Pistol, I do partly understand your meaning.

Pist. Why then rejoice therefore.

Fle. Certainly, ancient, it is not a thing to rejoice at: for if, look you, he were my brother,
I would desire the duke to use his good pleasure, and put him to execution; for discipline
ought to be used.

Pist. Die and be damn'd; and fight for thy friendship!

† Valour under good command.
‡ A field of linen which partially covered the face.
§ A small box in which were kept the accustomed velours.
|| An allusion to the custom in Spain and Italy of springling painted signs.

Flu. It is well.

Pist. The fig of Spain!

[Exit Pistol.]

Flu. Very good.

Gow. Why, this is an arrant counterfeit seal; I remember him now; a bawd; a cut-irsc.

Flu. I'll assure you, 'a utter'd as prave 'ords the pridge, as you shall see in a summer's ty: But it is very well; what he has spoke to e, that is well, I warrant you, when time is rve.

Gow. Why, 'tis a gull, a fool, a rogue; that w and then goes to the wars, to grace him- lf, at his return into London, under the form a soldier. And such fellows are perfect in eat commanders' names: and they will learn u by rote, where services were done;—at ch and such a sounce,* at such a breach, at ch a convoy; who came off bravely, who was ot, who disgraced, what terms the enemy od on; and this they con perfectly in the ase of war, which they trick up with new- ned oaths: And what a beard of the gene- l's cut, and a horrid suit of the camp, will do ong foaming bottles, and ale-washed wits, wonderful to be thought on! but you must arn to know such slanders of the age, or else u may be marvellous mistook.

Flu. I tell you what, captain Gower;—I do rceive, he is not the man that he would adly make show to the 'orld he is; if I find a le in his coat, I will tell him my mind. Drum heard.] Hark you, the king is coming; d I must speak with him from the pridge.

Enter King HENRY, GLOSTER, and Soldiers.

Flu. Got pleas your majesty!

K. Hen. How now, Fluellen? camest thou m the bridge?

Flu. Ay, so please your majesty. The duke Exeter has very gallantly maintained the idge: the French is gone off, look you; and ere is gallant and most prave passages: arry, th'athversary was have possession of e pridge; but he is enforced to retire, and e duke of Exeter is master of the pridge: I n tell your majesty, the duke is a prave man.

K. Hen. What men have you lost, Fluellen?

Flu. The perdition of th'athversary hath been ry great, very reasonable great: marry, for / part, I think the duke hath lost never a n, but one that is like to be executed for bbing a church, one Bardolph, if your ma- ty know the man: his face is all bubukles, d whelks, and knobs, and flames of fire; and lips plows at his nose, and it is like a coal fire, sometimes plue, and sometimes red; but nose is executed, and his fire's out.

K. Hen. We would have all such offenders cut off:—and we give express charge, that our marches through the country, there be thing compelled from the villages, nothing ten but paid for; none of the French up- aided, or abused in disdainful language; r when lenity and cruelty play for a king- m, the gentler gamester is the soonest winner.

Tucket sounds. Enter MONTJOY.

Mont. You know me by my habit.†

K. Hen. Well then, I know thee; What shall I know of thee?

Mont. My master's mind.

K. Hen. Unfold it.

Mont. Thus says my king:—Say thou to rry of England, Though we seemed dead,

* An Intrenchment hastily thrown up.

† I. e. By his herald's coat.

we did but sleep; dier, than rashness. rebuked him at Hen not good to bruise ripe:—now we spe voice is imperial: folly, see his weakr ance. Bid him, the som; which must pr borne, the subjects we have digested; swer, his pettiness losses, his exchequ sion of our blood, too faint a number own person kneeli and worthless satis fiance: and tell hi betrayed his follow is pronounced. So so much my office.

K. Hen. What i quality.

Mont. Montjoy.

K. Hen. Thou d thee back, And tell thy king; But could be willi Without impeachn (Though 'tis no wi Unto an enemy of My people are wit My numbers lesse Almost no better t Who when they herald,

I thought, upon o Did march three me, God,

That I do brag th Hath blown that Go, therefore, tell My ransom, is th My army, but a w Yet, God before,† Though France neighbour

Stand in our wa Go, bid thy maste If we may pass, v We will your te blood

Discolour: and se The sum of all ou We would not se Nor, as we are, v So tell your mast

Mont. I shall highness.

Glo. I hope, t now.

K. Hen. We ar in theirs. March to the br Beyond the river And on to-morro

SCENE VII.—1

Enter the CONSTA BURES, the Duk others.

Con. Tut! I t world.—'Would,

* In our turn.

† Then used for G

excellent armour; but let me.

the best horse of Europe.

Or be morning?

Orleans, and my lord high of horse and armour,—

well provided of both, as world.

Is night is this!——I will be with any that treads but

'a ha!' He bounds from the rails were hairs; * le cheval

; qui a les narines de feu! n, I soar, I am a hawk: he

orth sings when he touches of his hoof is more musical

times.

colour of the nutmeg.

heat of the ginger. It is a is pure air and fire; and earth and water never ap- in patient stillness, while

m: he is, indeed, a horse; you may call—beasts.

lord, it is a most absolute ince of palfreys; his neigh of a monarch, and his coun- mage.

usin.

in hath no wit, that cannot, the lark to the lodging of

rved praise on my palfrey: sent as the sea; turn the tongues, and my horse is all: 'tis a subject for a

on, and for a sovereign's; and for the world (fami-known,) to lay apart their, and wonder at him. I in his praise, and began sure,—

l a sonnet begin so to one's hey imitate that which I urser; for my horse is my

as bears well.

high is the prescript praise good and particular mis-

ie other day, methought, dly shook your back.

did yours.

ot bridled.

belike, she was old and e like a Kernet of Ireland,

ff, and in your strait tros-

good judgement in horse-

by me then: they that ride arily, fall into foul bogs;

y horse to my mistress.

I have my mistress a jade.

, constable, my mistress

ke as true a boast as that, y mistress.

retourné à son propre romis- ée au boubier: thou makest

t use my horse for my mis- proverb, so little kin to the nding of tennis balls, which were † Trowers.

Ram. My lord constable, the armour, that I saw in your tent to-night, are those stars, or suns, upon it?

Con. Stars, my lord.

Den. Some of them will fall to-morrow, I hope.

Con. And yet my sky shall not want.

Den. That may be, for you bear a many superfluously; and 'twere more honour, some were away.

Con. Even as your horse bears your praises; who would trot as well, were some of your brags dismounted.

Den. 'Would I were able to load him with his desert! Will it never be day? I will trot to-morrow a mile, and my way shall be paved with English faces.

Con. I will not say so, for fear I should be faced out of my way: But I would it were morning, for I would fain be about the ears of the English.

Ram. Who will go to hazard with me for twenty English prisoners?

Con. You must first go yourself to hazard, ere you have them.

Den. 'Tis midnight I'll go arm myself. [Exit

Orl. The Dauphin longs for morning.

Ram. He longs to eat the English.

Con. I think, he will eat all he kills.

Orl. By the white hand of my lady, he's a gallant prince.

Con. Swear by her foot, that she may tread out the oath.

Orl. He is, simply, the most active gentleman of France.

Con. Doing is activity: and he will still be doing.

Orl. He never did harm, that I heard of.

Con. Nor will do none to-morrow; he will keep that good name still.

Orl. I know him to be valiant.

Con. I was told that, by one that knows him better than you.

Orl. What's he?

Con. Marry, he told me so himself; and he said, he cared not who knew it.

Orl. He needs not, it is no hidden virtue in him.

Con. By my faith, Sir, but it is; never any body saw it, but his lackey: 'tis a hooded valour; and, when it appears, it will bate.*

Orl. Ill will never said well.

Con. I will cap that proverb with—There is flattery in friendship.

Orl. And I will take up that with—Give the devil his due.

Con. Well placed; there stands your friend for the devil: have at the very eye of that proverb, with—A pox of the devil.

Orl. You are the better at proverbs, by how much—A fool's bolt is soon shot.

Con. You have shot over.

Orl. 'Tis not the first time you were over-shot.

Enter a MESSENGER.

Mess. My lord high constable, the English lie within fifteen hundred paces of your tent.

Con. Who hath measured the ground?

Mess. The lord Grandpré.

Con. A valiant and most expert gentleman.—Would it were day!—Alas, poor Harry of England!—he longs not for the dawning, as we do.

* An equivocal in terms in falconry: he means, his valour is hid from every body but his lackey, and when it appears it will fall off.

Ar. What a wretched and peevish* fellow his king of England, to mope with his sat-
ined followers so far out of his knowledge!
Jon. If the English had any apprehension,
y would run away.

Ar. That they lack; for if their heads had intellectual armour, they could never wear
h heavy head-pieces.

Sam. That island of England breeds very iant creatures; their mastiffs are of un-chable courage.

Ar. Foolish curs! that run winking into the uth of a Russian bear, and have their heads shed like rotten apples: You may as well
,—that's a valiant flea, that dare eat his akfast on the lip of a lion.

Jon. Just, just; and the men do sympathize
h the mastiffs, in robustious and rough com-
on, leaving their wits with their wives:
I then give them great meals of beef, and
s, and steel, they will eat like wolves, and it like devils.

Ar. Ay, but these English are shrewdly out
beef.

Jon. Then we shall find to-morrow—they re only stomachs to eat, and none to fight.
w is it time to arm: Come, shall we about

Ar. It is now two o'clock: but, let me see,
—by ten,

we shall have each a hundred Englishmen.

[Exeunt.]

ACT IV.

Enter CHORUS.

Chor. Now entertain conjecture of a time,
when creeping murmur, and the poring dark,
Is the wide vessel of the universe.

From camp to camp, through the foul womb
of night,

The hum of either army stilly† sounds,
at the fix'd sentinels almost receive
the secret whispers of each other's watch:
The answers fire; and through their paly flames
each battle sees the other's unnumber'd face:
The red threatens steed, in high and boastful
neighs

forcing the night's dull ear; and from the
the armourers, accomplishing the knights,
with busy hammers closing rivets up,
we dreadful note of preparation.

The country cocks do crow, the clocks do toll,
and the third hour of drowsy morning name.
Proud of their numbers, and secure in soul,
the confident and over-lusty‡ French
the low-rated English play at dice;
and chide the cripple tardy-gaited night,
who, like a foul and ugly witch, doth limp
tediously away. The poor condemned English sacrifices, by their watchful fires

patiently, and inly ruminate
the morning's danger; and their gesture sad,
resting lank-lean cheeks, and war-worn
resenteth them unto the gazing moon [coats,
many horrid ghosts. O, now, who will be-
the royal captain of this ruin'd band, [hold alking from watch to watch, from tent to
tent,

let him cry—Praise and glory on his head!
For forth he goes, and visits all his host;
he bids them good-morrow, with a modest smile;
and calls them—brothers, friends, and countrymen.

the poor condemned English sacrifices, by their watchful fires

patiently, and inly ruminate
the morning's danger; and their gesture sad,
resting lank-lean cheeks, and war-worn
resenteth them unto the gazing moon [coats,
many horrid ghosts. O, now, who will be-
the royal captain of this ruin'd band, [hold
alking from watch to watch, from tent to
tent,

let him cry—Praise and glory on his head!
For forth he goes, and visits all his host;
he bids them good-morrow, with a modest smile;
and calls them—brothers, friends, and countrymen.

the poor condemned English sacrifices, by their watchful fires

patiently, and inly ruminate
the morning's danger; and their gesture sad,
resting lank-lean cheeks, and war-worn
resenteth them unto the gazing moon [coats,
many horrid ghosts. O, now, who will be-
the royal captain of this ruin'd band, [hold
alking from watch to watch, from tent to
tent,

let him cry—Praise and glory on his head!
For forth he goes, and visits all his host;
he bids them good-morrow, with a modest smile;
and calls them—brothers, friends, and countrymen.

the poor condemned English sacrifices, by their watchful fires

patiently, and inly ruminate
the morning's danger; and their gesture sad,
resting lank-lean cheeks, and war-worn
resenteth them unto the gazing moon [coats,
many horrid ghosts. O, now, who will be-
the royal captain of this ruin'd band, [hold
alking from watch to watch, from tent to
tent,

let him cry—Praise and glory on his head!
For forth he goes, and visits all his host;
he bids them good-morrow, with a modest smile;
and calls them—brothers, friends, and countrymen.

the poor condemned English sacrifices, by their watchful fires

Upon his royal face
How dread an army
Nor doth he deduce
Unto the weary arm
But freshly looks, and
With cheerful semblance
That every wretch,
Beholding him, plucks
A largess universal
His liberal eye doth Thawing cold fear.
Behold, as may you
A little touch of Henry
And so our scene is set Where, (O for pity
With four or five more Right ill dispos'd,
The name of Agincourt
Minding* true thin-
be.

SCENE I.—The

Enter King HENRY.

K. Hen. Gloster
great danger
The greater thereof
Good morrow, be mighty!

There is some soul
Would men observe
For our bad neighbour
Which is both healer
Besides, they are
And preachers to
That we should do
Thus may we gather
And make a more

Exit

Good morrow, old
A good soft pillow
Were better than

Erp. Not so, my
better,

Since I may say—

K. Hen. 'Tis good sent pain

Upon example; and
And, when the mind
The organs, though
Break up their dr
With casted slough
Lend me thy cloak
both,

Commend me to them
Do my good-morrow
Desire them all to

Glo. We shall,

[Exit]

Erp. Shall I attend

K. Hen. No, my Go with my brother
I and my bosom friend
And then I would

Erp. The Lord
Harry!

K. Hen. God-a-rest cheer!

Exit

Pist. Qui va là?

K. Hen. A friend

Pist. Discuss with me
Or art thou base,

* Calling to remem-† Slough is the skin, ‡ Lightness, nimble

Foolish. † Gently, lowly.
Discoloured by the gleam of the fires.
Over-saucy.

gentleman of a company.
in the puissant pike?

1: What are you?
gentleman as the emperor.
I are a better than the king,
a hawcock, and a heart of
up^o of fame; [gold,
I list most valiant: [strings
shoe, and from my heart-ally. What's thy name?

1: Ray.
Cornish name: art thou of
ow?
I a Welshman.
an Englishman.

1: I knock his look about his
day. [pate,
you wear your dagger in
I, lest he knock that about

1: friend?
kinsman too.
- then thou!
you: God be with you!
1: Pistol called. [Exit.
well with your fierceness.

1: and Gower, severely.
action!
me of Chesham Christ, speak greatest admiration in the men the true and ancient us of the wars is not kept:
he pains but to examine the so Great, you shall find, I here is no fiddle taddle, or 'ompey's camp; I warrant
the ceremonies of the wars,
and the forms of it, and the
the modesty of it, to be enemy is loud; you heard

- is an ass and a fool, and a
- it meet, think you, that we
- on, be an ass, and a fool,
comb; in your own com-
k lower.
and peasech you, that you
not GOWER and FLEELLEN.
- it appear a little out of [men.
- and valour is this Welsh-

COURT, and WILLIAMS.
John Bates, is not that the
ask youder?
he: but we have no great
approach of day.
under the beginning of the re shall never see the end
ere?
- captain serve you?
ir Thomas Erpingham.
d commander, and a most pray you, what thinks he of men wrecked upon a sand,
hed off the next tide.
not told his thought to the

K. Hen. No; nor it is not meet he should.
For, though I speak it to you, I think, the king is but a man, as I am: the violet smells to him, as it doth to me, the element shows to him, as it doth to me, all his senses have but human conditions.* his ceremonies laid by, in his nakedness he appears but a man, and though his affections are higher mounted than ours, yet,
when they stoop, they stoop with the like wing;
therefore when he sees reason of fears, as we do, his fears, out of doubt, be of the same relish as ours are. Yet, in reason, no man should possess him with any appearance of fear, lest
he, by showing it, should dishearten his army.

Bates. He may show what outward courage
he will: but, I believe, as cold a night as 'tis,
he could wish himself in the Thames up to the neck, and so I would he were, and I by him,
at all adventures, so we were quit here.

K. Hen. By my troth, I will speak my conscience of the king, I think, he would not wish himself any where but where he is.

Bates. Then, 'would he were here alone; so should he be sure to be ransomed, and a many poor men's lives saved.

K. Hen. I dare say, you love him not so ill,
to wish him here alone; howsoever you speak
this, to fool other men's minds: Methinks, I could not die any where so contented, as in the king's company; his cause being just, and his quarrel honourable.

Will. That's more than we know.

Bates. Ay, or more than we should seek after; for we know enough, if we knew we are the king's subjects, if his cause be wrong, our obedience to the king wipes the crime of it out of us.

Will. But, if the cause be not good, the king himself hath a heavy reckoning to make; when all those legs, and arms, and heads, chopped off in a battle, shall join together at the latter day, and cry all—We died at such a place;
some, swearing; some, crying for a surgeon;
some, upon their wives left poor behind them;
some, upon the debts they owe; some, upon their children rawly left. I am afraid there are few die well, that die in battle; for how can they charitably dispose of any thing, when blood is their argument? Now, if these men do not die well, it will be a black matter for the king that led them to it; whom to disobey,
were against all proportion of subjection.

K. Hen. So, if a son, that is by his father sent about merchandise, do sinfully miscarry
upon the sea, the imputation of his wickedness, by your rule, should be imposed upon his father that sent him: or if a servant, under his master's command, transporting a sum of money, be assailed by robbers, and die in many irreconciled iniquities, you may call the business of the master the author of the servant's damnation:—But this is not so: the king is not bound to answer the particular endings of his soldiers, the father of his son, nor the master of his servant; for they purpose not their death,
when they purpose their services. Besides,
there is no king, be his cause never so spotless,
if it come to the arbitrement of swords, can try it out with all unspotted soldiers. Some, peradventure, have on them the guilt of premeditated and contrived murder; some, of beguiling virgins with the broken seals of perjury;
some, making the wars their bulwark, that have before gored the gentle bosom of peace

* Agree.

* Qualities.

† The last day, the day of judgement.
‡ Suddenly.

th pillage and robbery. Now, if these men
ve defeated the law, and outrun native pun-ment,* though they can outstrip men, they ve no wings to fly from God: war is his ngence; so that here men are punished, for fore-breach of the king's laws, in now the ng's quarrel: where they feared the death,
ey have borne life away; and where they ould be safe, they perish: Then if they die
rovided, no more is the king guilty of their unnation, than he was before guilty of those ipeties for the which they are now visited.
very subject's duty is the king's; but every bject's soul is his own. Therefore should ery soldier in the wars do as every sick man
his bed, wash every mote out of his conience; and dying so, death is to him advan-
ge; or not dying, the time was blessedly lost, herein such preparation was gained: and,
him that escapes, it were not sin to think,
at making God so free an offer, he let him-live that day to see his greatness, and to ach others how they should prepare.

Will. 'Tis certain, that every man that dies
, the ill is upon his own head, the king is t to answer for it.

Bates. I do not desire he should answer for e; and yet I determine to fight lustily for m.

K. Hen. I myself heard the king say, he ould not be ransomed.

Will. Ay, he said so, to make us fight cheerlly: but, when our throats are cut, he may ransomed, and we ne'er the wiser.

K. Hen. If I live to see it, I will never trust is word after.

Will. 'Mash, you'll pay[†] him then! That's perilous shot out of an elder gun, that a poor
nd private displeasure can do against a monch! you may as well go about to turn the
in to ice, with fanning in his face with a pea-ck's feather. You'll never trust his word ter! come, 'tis a foolish saying.

K. Hen. Your reproof is something too und;‡ I should be angry with you, if the me were convenient.

Will. Let it be a quarrel between us, if you
ve.

K. Hen. I embrace it.

Will. How shall I know thee again?

K. Hen. Give me any gage of thine, and I ill wear it in my bonnet: then, if ever thou arest acknowledge it, I will make it my uarrel.

Will. Here's my glove; give me another of
ine.

K. Hen. There.

Will. This will I also wear in my cap: if rer thou come to me and say, after to-morrow,
his is my glove, by this hand, I will take thee
box on the ear.

K. Hen. If ever I live to see it, I will chal-nge it.

Will. Thou dardest as well be hanged.

K. Hen. Well, I will do it, though I take ee in the king's company.

Will. Keep thy word: fare thee well.

Bates. Be friends, you English fools, be iends; we have French quarrels enough, if ou could tell how to reckon.

K. Hen. Indeed, the French may lay twenty rench crowns to one, they will beat us; for ey bear them on their shoulders: But it is no English treason

and, to-morrow, th
clipper.

Upon the king! let
Our debts, our can
and

Our sins, lay on th
O hard condition!
Subjected to the br
Whose sense no m wringing!

What infinite heart
That private men e
And what have kin
Save ceremony, say

And what art thou
What kind of god
Of mortal griefs, th
What are thy rents

O ceremony, show
What is the soul of Art thou aught el Creating awe and

Wherein thou art l
Than they in feari
What drink'st the
But poison'd flatte

And bid thy ceren
Think'st thou, the
With titles blown
Will it give place

Canst thou, when gar's knee
Command the her
That play'st so sul

I am a king, that
'Tis not the balm,
The sword, the mi
The enter-tissued

The farced[†] title r
The throne he sits
That beats upon t

No, not all these,
Not all these, laid
Can sleep so soun
Who, with a body

Gets him to rest
bread;
Never sees horrid

But, like a lackey
Sweats in the eye
Sleeps in Elysium
Doth rise, and he

And follows so th
With profitable la
And, but for cere
Winding up days

sleep,
Had the fore-hanc
The slave, a mem
Enjoys it; but in What watch the

peace,
Whose hours the Ent

Erp. My lord, y
absence,
Seek through you
K. Hen. Good

Collect them all to
I'll be before thee

* I. e. Punishment in their native country.

[†] To pay here signifies to bring to account, to punish.

‡ Too rough.

* "What is the rea-don."

[†] Farced is stuffed.
a king's name is hanc

My lord. [Exit.
 Attles! steel my soldiers'
 [now
 h fear; take from them
 5, if the opposed numbers
 n them!—Not to-day, O

ot upon the fault
 mpassing the crown?
 interred new;
 v'd more contrite tears,
 orced drops of blood.
 ave in yearly pay,
 r wither'd hands hold up ardon blood; and I have [priests
 re the sad and solemn
 s soul. More will I do:
 do, is nothing worth;
 ce comes after all,

GLOSTER.

r Gloster's voice?—Ay;
 will go with thee:—
 and all things stay for [Exeunt.

The French Camp.

LEANS, RAMBURES, and hers.

gild our armour; up, my val:—My horse! rület!

ix et le terre—
 r et le feu—Orleans.—

CONSTABLE.

ble!
 ir steeds for present ser-
 and make incision in their

may spin in English eyes,
 th superfluous courage:

you have them weep our
 ?
 ehould their natural tears?

MESSENGER.

are embattled, you French gallant princes! straight

por and starved band,
 hall suck away their souls,
 e shales and husks of men.
 ough for all our hands;
 in all their sickly veins,
 urtle-ax a stain,
 ints shall to-day draw out,
 of sport: let us but blow

our will o'erturn them.
 all exceptions, lords,
 s lackeys, and our pea-
 action, swarm [sants,— f battle,—were enough

exclamation.
 ish them.

To purge this field of such a hilding* foe;
 Though we, upon this mountain's basis by
 Took stand for idle speculation:
 But that our honours must not. What's to say?
 A very little little let us do,
 And all is done. Then let the trumpets sound
 The tucket-sonuance,† and the note to mount:
 For our approach shall so much dare the field,
 That England shall couch down in fear, and yield.

Enter GRANDPRL.

Grand. Why do you stay so long, my lords of France?
 Yon island carrions, desperate of their bones,
 Ill-favour'dly become the morning field:
 Their ragged curtains‡ poorly are let loose,
 And our air shakes them passing scornfully.
 Big Mars seems bankrupt in their beggar'd
 host,
 And faintly through a rusty beaver peeps.
 Their horsemen sit like fixed candlesticks,
 With torch-staves in their hand: and their poor
 jades [hips;
 Lob down their beads, dropping the hides and
 The gum down-roping from their pale-dead
 eyes;
 And in their pale dull mouths the gimmal§ bit
 Lies foul with chew'd grass, still and motion-
 less;
 And their executors, the knavish crows,
 Fly o'er them all, impatient for their hour.
 Description cannot suit itself in words,
 To demonstrate the life of such a battle
 In life so lifeless as it shows itself.
 Con. They have said their prayers, and they stay for death.
 Dau. Shall we go send them dinners, and fresh suits,
 And give their fasting horses provender,
 And after fight with them?
 Con. I stay but for my guard; On, to the field:
 I will the banner from a trumpet take,
 And use it for my haste. Come, come away!
 The sun is high, and we outwear the day.
 [Exeunt.

SCENE III.—The English Camp.

Enter the English Host; GLOSTER, BEDFORD, EXETER, SALISBURY, and WESTMORELAND.

Glo. Where is the king?

Bed. The king himself is rode to view their battle,

West. Of fighting men they have full three-score thousand.

Exe. There's five to one; besides, they all are fresh.

Sal. God's arm strike with us! 'tis a fearful odds.

God be wi' you, princes all; I'll to my charge:
 If we no more meet, till we meet in heaven,
 Then, joyfully,—my noble lord of Bedford,—
 My dear lord Gloster,—and my good lord Exeter,—

And my kind kinsman,—warriors all, adieu!

Bed. Farewell, good Salisbury; and good luck go with thee!

Exe. Farewell, kind lord; fight valiantly to-
 day:

And yet I do thee wrong, to mind thee of it,
 For thou art fram'd of the firm truth of valour.
 [Exit SALISBURY.

* Mean, despicable.

† The name of an introductory flourish on the trumpet.

‡ Colours.

§ Ring.

Bed. He is as full of valour, as of kindness;
Princely in both.

West. O that we now had here

Enter King HENRY.

but one ten thousand of those men in England,
that do no work to-day!

K. Hen. What's he, that wishes so?
My cousin Westmoreland?—No, my fair cousin, if we are mark'd to die, we are enough [sin:
to do our country loss; and if to live,
the fewer men, the greater share of honour.
God's will! I pray thee, wish not one man
by Jove, I am not covetous for gold: [more.
I care not, who doth feed upon my cost;
I yearn^e me not, if men my garments wear;
such outward things dwell not in my desires:
but, if it be a sin to covet honour,
I am the most offending soul alive. [land:

God's peace! I would not lose so great an honour, [me,

as one man more, methinks, would share from me, for the best hope I have. O, do not wish one more: [host,

rather proclaim it, Westmoreland, through my country, that he, which hath no stomach to this fight,
may he depart; his passport shall be made,
and crowns for convoy put into his purse:
he would not die in that man's company,

that fears his fellowship to die with us.
This day is call'd—the feast of Crispian:
he that outlives this day, and comes safe
home,

shall stand a tip-toe when this day is nam'd,
and rouse him at the name of Crispian.

He that shall live this day, and see old age,
shall yearly on the vigil feast his friends,
and say—to-morrow is Saint Crispian:

then will he strip his sleeve, and show his scars,

and say, these wounds I had on Crispin's day.
Old men forget; yet all shall be forgot,
but he'll remember, with advantages,
what feats he did that day: Then shall our
names,

familiar in their mouths as household words,— Harry the king, Bedford, and Exeter, Warwick and Talbot, Salisbury and Gloster,—
be in their flowing cups freshly remember'd:

his story shall the good man teach his son;
and Crispin Crispian shall ne'er go by,
from this day to the ending of the world,
but we in it shall be remembered:

A few, we happy few, we band of brothers;
for he, to-day that sheds his blood with me,
shall be my brother; be he ne'er so vile,
this day shall gentle his condition:†
and gentlemen in England, now a-bed, shall think themselves accurs'd, they were not here; [speaks,

and hold their manhoods cheap, while any but this day shall fight with us upon Saint Crispin's day.

Enter SALISBURY.

Sal. My sovereign lord, bestow yourself with speed:

The French are bravely† in their battles set,
and will with all expedience‡ charge on us.

K. Hen. All things are ready, if our minds be so.

West. Perish the man, whose mind is backward now!

Grieves.
[E. c. This day shall advance him to the rank of a general.

Expedition.

Remind.
[E. c. In brazen plate
We are soldiers but Golden show, upon

As, if God please
then
Will soon be levied
bour;
Come thou no more
They shall have no
joints:
Which if they have
Shall yield them lit

Mark then a bound
That, being dead,
Break out into a se
Killing in relapse
Let me speak prou
We are but warrior
Our gayness, and o
With rainy marchin
There's not a piece
(Good argument, I
And time hath wor
But, by the mass, c
And my poor soldie
They'll be in freshe
The gay new coat
heads,
And turn them out
(As, if God please
then
Will soon be levied
bour;
Come thou no more
They shall have no
joints:
Which if they have
Shall yield them lit

Mark then a bound
That, being dead,
Break out into a se
Killing in relapse
Let me speak prou
We are but warrior
Our gayness, and o
With rainy marchin
There's not a piece
(Good argument, I
And time hath wor
But, by the mass, c
And my poor soldie
They'll be in freshe
The gay new coat
heads,
And turn them out
(As, if God please
then
Will soon be levied
bour;
Come thou no more
They shall have no
joints:
Which if they have
Shall yield them lit

Mark then a bound
That, being dead,
Break out into a se
Killing in relapse
Let me speak prou
We are but warrior
Our gayness, and o
With rainy marchin
There's not a piece
(Good argument, I
And time hath wor
But, by the mass, c
And my poor soldie
They'll be in freshe
The gay new coat
heads,
And turn them out
(As, if God please
then
Will soon be levied
bour;
Come thou no more
They shall have no
joints:
Which if they have
Shall yield them lit

Mark then a bound
That, being dead,
Break out into a se
Killing in relapse
Let me speak prou
We are but warrior
Our gayness, and o
With rainy marchin
There's not a piece
(Good argument, I
And time hath wor
But, by the mass, c
And my poor soldie
They'll be in freshe
The gay new coat
heads,
And turn them out
(As, if God please
then
Will soon be levied
bour;
Come thou no more
They shall have no
joints:
Which if they have
Shall yield them lit

Mark then a bound
That, being dead,
Break out into a se
Killing in relapse
Let me speak prou
We are but warrior
Our gayness, and o
With rainy marchin
There's not a piece
(Good argument, I
And time hath wor
But, by the mass, c
And my poor soldie
They'll be in freshe
The gay new coat
heads,
And turn them out
(As, if God please
then
Will soon be levied
bour;
Come thou no more
They shall have no
joints:
Which if they have
Shall yield them lit

Mark then a bound
That, being dead,
Break out into a se
Killing in relapse
Let me speak prou
We are but warrior
Our gayness, and o
With rainy marchin
There's not a piece
(Good argument, I
And time hath wor
But, by the mass, c
And my poor soldie
They'll be in freshe
The gay new coat
heads,
And turn them out
(As, if God please
then
Will soon be levied
bour;
Come thou no more
They shall have no
joints:
Which if they have
Shall yield them lit

Mark then a bound
That, being dead,
Break out into a se
Killing in relapse
Let me speak prou
We are but warrior
Our gayness, and o
With rainy marchin
There's not a piece
(Good argument, I
And time hath wor
But, by the mass, c
And my poor soldie
They'll be in freshe
The gay new coat
heads,
And turn them out
(As, if God please
then
Will soon be levied
bour;
Come thou no more
They shall have no
joints:
Which if they have
Shall yield them lit

Mark then a bound
That, being dead,
Break out into a se
Killing in relapse
Let me speak prou
We are but warrior
Our gayness, and o
With rainy marchin
There's not a piece
(Good argument, I
And time hath wor
But, by the mass, c
And my poor soldie
They'll be in freshe
The gay new coat
heads,
And turn them out
(As, if God please
then
Will soon be levied
bour;
Come thou no more
They shall have no
joints:
Which if they have
Shall yield them lit

K. Hen. Thou dost England, at

West. God's will,
I alone,

Without more help,†

K. Hen. Why, not
thousand men

Which likes me better
You know your plan

Tucket.—

Mont. Once, more king Harry.

If for thy ransom thou
Before thy most ass

For, certainly, thou Thou needs must have

mercy,
The Constable desire

Thy followers of rejoyce
May make a peace

From off these fields
poor bodies

Must lie and fester.
K. Hen. Who ha

Mont. The Constable
K. Hen. I pray thee

back;
Bid them achieve a

Good God! why should he thus?

The man that once
While the beast li

ing him.
A many of our bodi

Find native graves
Shall witness live in

And those that le
France,

Dying like men, the hills,

They shall be fam'd
greet them

And draw their hon
Leaving their earth

The smell whereof
France.

Mark then a bound
That, being dead,

Break out into a se
Killing in relapse

Let me speak prou
We are but warrior

Our gayness, and o
With rainy marchin

There's not a piece
(Good argument, I

And time hath wor
But, by the mass, c

And my poor soldie
They'll be in freshe

The gay new coat
heads,

And turn them out
(As, if God please

then
Will soon be levied

bour;
Come thou no more

They shall have no
joints:

Which if they have
Shall yield them lit

Remind.
† E. c. In brazen plate

‡ We are soldiers but Golden show, upon

king Harry. And so fare thee
I hear herald any more. [Exit.
, thou'lt once more come again
on.

the Duke of YORK.

I, most humbly on my knee I be vaward.* [beg
it, brave York.—Now, solarch away;—
least, God, dispose the day!
[Exit.

V.—The Field of Battle.

Alarum. Enter FRENCH SOLDIER,
WYLL, and BOY.

WYLL. Et, que vous'etes le gentilhomme
call you me?—Constree me,
Jehan? What is thy name?

BOY. mon Dieu!
our Dew should be a gentle-[mark;—
ords, O signieur Dew, and
, thou diest on point of fox,†
our, thou do give to me
on.

WYLL. mes misericorde! eyes pitié de
If not serve, I will have forty thy rim; out at thy throat,
son blood.
impossible d'eschapper la force

BOY. et luxurieuse mountain goat,
et donnez moy!
hon me so? is that a ton of
—
; Ask me this slave in French,
WYLL.
; Comment estes vous appelé?
leur le Fer.
his name is—master Fer.
Fer! I'll fer him, and fir† him:—discuss the same in WYLL.
know the French for fer, and a prepare, for I will cut his fit-il, monsieur?

entendez de vous dire que vous
; car de soldat icy est disposé tout
vaper vostre gorge.
aper gorge, par ma foy, pesant,
e me crowns, brave crowns;
it thou be by this my sword.
e vous supplie pour l'amour de ouer! Je suis gentilhomme de urdez ma vie, et je vous donneray
his words?
re you to save his life: he is a good house; and, for his ran-
e you two hundred crowns.

ed fir a sword, so called from a famous name of Fer.

† Lascivious.
† Chaotic.

Pist. Tell him,—my fury shall abate, and I
The crowns will take.

Fr. Sol. Petit monsieur, que dit-il?

Boy. Encore qu'il est contre son serment, de perdre aucun prisonnier; néanmoins, pour les cœurs que vous l'avez prout, il est content de vous donner la liberté, le franchement.

Fr. Sol. Sur mes genoux, je vous donne mille remercimens: et je m'estime heureux que je suis tombé entre les mains d'un chevalier, je pense, le plus brave, vaillant, et tres distingué seigneur d'Angleterre.

Pist. Expound unto me, boy.

Boy. He gives you, upon his knees, a thousand thanks: and he esteems himself happy that he hath fallen into the hands of (as he thinks) the most brave, valorous, and three-worthy signieur of England.

Pist. As I suck blood, I will some more
show.—

Follow me, our. [Exit Pistol.

Boy. Suivez vous le grand capitaine.

[Exit FRENCH SOLDIER.
I did never know so full a voice issue from an empty a heart: but the saying is true,—The empty vessel makes the greatest sound. Bar-dolph, and Nym, had ten times more valour than this roaring devil in the old play, that every one may pare his nails with a wooden dagger;
and they are both hanged; and so would this
be, if he durst steal any thing adventurously.
I must stay with the lackeys, with the luggage
of our camp: the French might have a good prey of us, if he knew of it; for there is none
to guard it, but boys. [Exit.

SCENE V.—Another part of the Field of Battle.

Alarum. Enter DAUPHIN, ORLEANS, BOURBON,
CONSTABLE, RAMBOUR, and others.

Con. O diable?
Ori. O seigneur!—le jour est perdu, tout est
perdu!
Dau. Mort de ma vie! all is confounded, all!
Reproach and everlasting shame Sits mocking in our plumes.—O wretched fortune!—
Do not run away. [A short Alarum.
Con. Why, all our ranks are broke.
Dau. O perdurable* shame!—let's stab ourselves. [for?
Be these the wretches that we play'd at dice
Ori. Is this the king we sent to for his ransom?

Bour. Shame, and eternal shame, nothing but shame!

Let us die instant. Once more back again;
And he that will not follow Bourbon now,
Let him go hence, and, with his cap in hand,
Like a base pander, hold the chamber-door,
Whilst by a slave, no gentler than my dog,†
His fairest daughter is contaminate.

Con. Disorder, that hath spoil'd us, friend us now!

Let us, in heaps, go offer up our lives
Unto these English, or else die with fame.

Ori. We are enough, yet living in the field,
To smother up the English in our throats,
If any order might be thought upon.

Bour. The devil take order now! I'll to the throng;

Let life be short; else, shame will be too long.
[Exit.

* Lasting † I. e. Who has no more gentility.

SCENE VI.—Another part of the Field.

Alarums. Enter King HENRY and Forces; EXETER, and others.

K. Hen. Well have we done, thrice-valiant countrymen:

But all's not done, yet keep the French the field.

Exe. The duke of York commends him to your majesty.

K. Hen. Lives he, good uncle? thrice, within this hour,

I saw him down; thrice up again, and fighting; From helmet to the spur, all blood he was.

Exe. In which array, (brave soldier,) doth he lie,

Larding the plain: and by his bloody side, (Yoke-fellow to his honour-owing wounds,) The noble earl of Suffolk also lies.

Suffolk first died, and York, all haggled over,

Comes to him, where in gore he lay insteep'd,

And takes him by the beard; kisses the gashes,

That bloodily did yawn upon his face;

And cries aloud.—Tarry, dear cousin Suffolk!

My soul shall thine keep company to heaven:

Tarry, sweet soul, for mine, then fly a-breast;

As, in this glorious and well-foughten field,

We kept together in our chivalry!

Upon these words I came, and cheer'd him up:

He smil'd me in the face, raught^a me his hand,

And, with a feeble gripe, says,—Dear my lord,

Commend my service to my sovereign.

So did he turn, and over Suffolk's neck

He threw his wounded arm, and kiss'd his lips;

And so, espous'd to death, with blood he seal'd

A testament of noble-ending love.

The pretty and sweet manner of it forc'd

Those waters from me, which I would have stopp'd;

But I had not so much of man in me,

But all my mother came into mine eyes,

And gave me up to tears.

K. Hen. I blame you not;

For, hearing this, I must perforce compound

With mistful eyes, or they will issue too.—

[Alarum.

But, hark! what new alarm is this same?—

The French have reinforc'd their scatter'd

men:—

Then every soldier kill his prisoners;

Give the word through. [Exeunt.

SCENE VII.—Another part of the Field.

Alarums. Enter FLUELLEN and GOWER.

Flu. Kill the boys and the luggage! 'tis expressly against the law of arms: 'tis as arrant a piece of knavery, mark you now, as can be offered, in the world: In your conscience now, is it not?

Gow. 'Tis certain, there's not a boy left alive; and the cowardly rascals, that ran from the battle, have done this slaughter: besides, they have burned and carried away all that was in the king's tent; wherefore the king, most worthily, hath caused every soldier to cut his prisoner's throat. O, 'tis a gallant king!

Flu. Ay, he was born at Monmouth, captain Gower: What call you the town's name, where Alexander the pig was born?

Gow. Alexander the great.

Flu. Why, I pray you, is not pig, great? The pig, or the great, or the mighty, or the huge, or the magnanimous, are all one reckonings, save the phrase is a little variations.

Gow. I think, Alexander the great was born in Macedon; his father was called—Philip of Macedon, as I take it.

Flu. I think, it is in Macedon, where Alexander is born. I tell you, captain,—If you look in the maps of the world, I warrant, you shall find, in the comparisons between Macedon and Monmouth, that the situations, look you, is both alike. There is a river in Macedon; and there is also moreover a river at Monmouth: it is called Wye, at Monmouth: but it is out of my prains, what is the name of the other river; but 'tis all one, 'tis so like as my finger is to my fingers, and there is salmon in both. If you mark Alexander's life well, Harry of Monmouth's life is come after it indifferent well; for there is figures in all things. Alexander (God knows, and you know,) in his rages, and his furies, and his wraths, and his cholers, and his moods, and his displeasures, and his indignations, and also being a little intoxicates in his prains, did, in his ales and his angers, look you, kill his pest friend, Clytus.

Gow. Our king is not like him in that; he never killed any of his friends.

Flu. Is it not well done, mark you now, to take tales out of my mouth, ere it is made an end and finished. I speak but in the figures and comparisons of it: As Alexander is kill his friend Clytus, being in his ales and his cups; so also Harry Monmouth, being in right wits and his good judgements, is turn away the fat knight with the great pelly-doublet: he was full of jests, and gipes, and knaveries, and mocks; I am forget his name.

Gow. Sir John Falstaff.

Flu. That is he: I can tell you, there is good men born at Monmouth.

Gow. Here comes his majesty.

Alarum. Enter King HENRY, with a part of the English Forces; WARWICK, GLOSTER, EXETER, and others.

K. Hen. I was not angry since I came to France

Until this instant.—Take a trumpet, herald. Ride thou unto the horsemen on yon hill; If they will fight with us, bid them come down. Or void the field; they do offend our sight: If they'll do neither, we will come to them; And make them skirr^a away as swift as stones Enforced from the old Assyrian slings: Besides, we'll cut the throats of those we have;

And not a man of them, that we shall take. Shall taste our mercy:—Go, and tell them so.

Enter MONTJOY.

Exc. Here comes the herald of the French. my liege.

Glo. His eyes are humbler than they us'd to be.

K. Hen. How now, what means this, herald? know'st thou not, [some] That I have fin'd these bones of mine for ransom? Com'st thou again for ransom?

Mont. No, great king: I come to thee for charitable license, That we may wander o'er this bloody field, To book our dead, and then to bury them; To sort our nobles from our common men; For many of our princes (woe the while!) Lie drown'd and soak'd in mercenary blood; (So do our vulgar drench their peasant limbs

;) and their wounded steeds
in gore, and, with wild [ters,
ed heels at their dead mas-
e. O, give us leave, great safety, and dispose,

es.

ee truly, herald,
day be ours, or no; ,
your horsemen peer,
s field.

yours.
d be God, and not our
or it!—

call'd, that stands hard by?
it—Agincourt.

ll we this—the field of Agin-of Crispin Crispianus.

lfather of famous memory,
jesty, and your great-uncle prince of Wales, as I have icles, fought a most prave
ce.
d, Fluellen.

sty says very true: If your bered of it, the Welshman
a garden where leeks did
s in their Monmouth caps;
ty knows, to this hour is an
of the service; and, I do be-takes no scorn to wear the vy's day.

it for a memorable honour:
ou know, good countryman.
er in Wye cannot wash your ood out of your pody, I can press it and preserve it, as his grace, and his majesty

, good my countryman.

I am your majesty's coun-
who know it; I will confess I need not to be ashamed of ed be God, so long as your st man.

ep me so!—Our heralds go

ce of the numbers dead
—Call yonder fellow hither.

LLIAMS. [Exeunt MONTJOY
thers.

u must come to the king.

why wear'st thou that glove

e your majesty, 'tis the gage
d fight withal, if he be alive.
glishman?

se your majesty, a rascal,
th me last night: who, if 'a e to challenge this glove, I him a box o'the ear: or, if
in his cap, (which he swore,
r, be would wear, if alive,) soundly.

hink you, captain Fluellen?
keep his oath?

even* and a villain else, an't
ty, in my conscience.

be, his enemy is a gentleman
e from the answer of his de-

be as goot a gentleman as cifer and Belzebub himself,

it is necessary, look your grace, that he keep his vow and his oath: if he be perjured, see you now, his reputation is as arrant a villain,
and a Jack-sance,* as ever his plack shoe trod
upon Got's ground and his earth, in my conscience, la.

K. Hen. Then keep thy vow, sirrah, when thou meet'st the fellow.

Will. So I will, my liege, as I live.

K. Hen. Who servest thou under?

Will. Under captain Gower, my liege.

Flu. Gower is a goot captain; and is good knowledge and literature in the wars.

K. Hen. Call him hither to me, soldier.

Will. I will, my liege. [Exit.

K. Hen. Here, Fluellen; wear thou this favour for me, and stick it in thy cap: When Alençon and myself were down together, I plucked this glove from his helm: if any man challenge this, he is a friend to Alençon and an enemy to our person; if thou encounter any such, apprehend him, an thou dost love me.

Flu. Your grace does me as great honours,
as can be desired in the hearts of his subjects:
I would fain see the man, that has but two legs, that shall find himself aggrieved at this glove, that is all; but I would fain see it once; an please Got of his grace, that I might see it.

K. Hen. Knowest thou Gower?

Flu. He is my dear friend, an please you.

K. Hen. Pray thee, go seek him, and bring him to my tent.

Flu. I will fetch him. [Exit.

K. Hen. My lord of Warwick,—and my brother Gloster,

Follow Fluellen closely at the heels: [vour,
The glove, which I have given him for a fa-
May, haply, purchase him a box o'the ear;
It is the soldier's; I, by bargain, should Wear it myself. Follow, good cousin Warwick:

If that the soldier strike him, (as, I judge
By his blunt bearing, he will keep his word,)
Some sudden mischief may arise of it;
For I do know Fluellen valiant,
And, touch'd with choler, hot as gunpowder,
And quickly will return an injury:
Follow, and see there be no harm between
them.—

Go you with me, uncle of Exeter. [Exeunt.

SCENE VIII.—Before King HENRY's Pavi- lion.

Enter GOWER and WILLIAMS.

Will. I warrant, it is to knight you, captain.

Enter FLUELLEN.

Flu. Got's will and his pleasure, captain, I peseech you now, come apace to the king:
there is more goot toward you, peradventure,
than is in your knowledge to dream of.

Will. Sir, know you this glove?

Flu. Know the glove? I know, the glove is a glove.

Will. I know this; and thus I challenge it.

[Strikes him.

Flu. 'Sblud, an arrant traitor, as any's in the universal 'orld, or in France, or in England.

Gow. How now, Sir? you villain!

Will. Do you think I'll be forsworn?

Flu. Stand away, captain Gower; I will give treason his payment into plows, I warrant
you.

Will. I am no traitor.

Fln. That's a lie in thy throat.—I charge you in his majesty's name, apprehend him; he's a friend of the duke Alençon's.

Enter WARWICK and GLOSTER.

War. How now, how now! what's the matter?

Fln. My lord of Warwick, here is (praised be God for it!) a most contagious treason come to light, look you, as you shall desire in a summer's day. Here is his majesty.

Enter King HENRY and EXETER.

K. Hen. How now! what's the matter?

Fln. My liege, here is a villain, and a traitor, that, look your grace, has struck the glove which your majesty is take out of the helmet of Alençon.

Will. My liege, this was my glove; here is the fellow of it: and he, that I gave it to in change, promised to wear it in his cap; I promised to strike him, if he did: I met this man with my glove in his cap, and I have been as good as my word.

Fln. Your majesty hear now, (saving your majesty's manhood,) what an arrant, rascally, beggarly, lowsy knave it is: I hope, your majesty is pear me testimony, and witness, and avouchments, that this is the glove of Alençon, that your majesty gave me, in your conscience now.

K. Hen. Give me thy glove, soldier; Look, here is the fellow of it. 'Twas I, indeed, thou promised'st to strike; and thou hast given me most bitter terms.

Fln. An please your majesty, let his neck answer for it, if there is any martial law in the world.

K. Hen. How canst thou make me satisfaction?

Will. All offences, my liege, come from the heart: never came any from mine, that might offend your majesty.

K. Hen. It was ourself thou didst abuse.

Will. Your majesty came not like yourself: you appeared to me but as a common man; witness the night, your garments, your lowliness; and what your highness suffered under that shape, I beseech, you take it for your own fault, and not mine: for had you been as I took you for, I made no offence; therefore, I beseech your highness, pardon me.

K. Hen. Here, uncle Exeter, fill this glove with crowns, And give it to this fellow.—Keep it, fellow; And wear it for an honour in thy cap, Till I do challenge it.—Give him the crowns:—And, captain, you must needs be friends with him.

Fln. By this day and this light, the fellow has mettle enough in his pelly:—Hold, there's twelve pence for you, and I pray you to serve God, and keep you out of prawls, and prabbles, and quarrels, and dissensions, and, I warrant you, it is the better for you.

Will. I will none of your money.

Fln. It is with a goot will; I can tell you, it will serve you to mend your shoes: Come, therefore should you be so pashtful? your shoes are not so goot: 'tis a goot silling, I warrant you, or I will change it.

Enter an English HERALD.

K. Hen. Now, herald—dead number—

Her. Here is the French.

K. Hen. What taken, we

Exc. Charles du king;

John duke of Bor Of other lords,

'squires, Full fifteen hundred

K. Hen. This sand Fre

That in the field And nobles bear

One hundred two Of knights, esq

Eight thousand which,

Five hundred So that, in these

There are but six The rest are—pr

'squires, And gentlemen

The name of thos Charles De-la-br

Jaques of Chatil The master of th

Great-master of chard D

John Duke of A The brother to th

And Edward du Grandpré, and B

Beaumont, and tale,

Here was a roya Where is the nu

[H Edward the duk

Sir Richard Ketl None else of nan

But five and twer And not to us, bi

Ascribe we all.— But in plain sho

Was ever known On one part and

For it is only thi Exc. 'Tis wond

K. Hen. Come village:

And be it death To boast of this,

Which is his only Fln. Is it not la

to tell how many K. Hen. Yes, c

That God fought Fln. Yes, my

goot. K. Hen. Do we

Let there be sung The dead with ch

We'll then to Cal Where ne'er from men.

E

Chor. Vouchsaf the story,

That I may promp I humbly pray the

Of time, of numbe Which cannot in

ed. Now we bear the king
grant him there; there seen,
upon your winged thoughts, Behold, the English beach
d with men, with wives, and

and claps out-voice the deep
sea,

ighty whiffler^a 'fore the king,
his way: so let him land;
see him set on to London.

ath thought, that even now
e him upon Blackheath:

eds desire him, to have borne
set, and his bended sword,
ugh the city: he forbids it,
a vainness and self-glorious
ry, signal, and ostent, [pride;
all, to God.† But now behold,
forge and workinghouse of

th pour out her citizens!
all his brethren, in best sort,— tors of the antique Rome,
uns swarming at their heels,— ch their conquering Cæsar in:
at by loving likelihood,§ neral of our gracious empress me, he may,) from Ireland

on broached¶ on his sword,
d the peaceful city quit,
? much more, and much more

[him;
arry. Now in London place ntation of the French
of England's stay at home:
oming in behalf of France, etween them;) and omit
es, whatever chanc'd,
k-return again to France;
bring him; and myself have remembering you—tis past.

idgment; and your eyes ad-

ight, straight back again to [Exit.

France.—An English Court of Guard.

LUELLEN and GOWER.

at's right; but why wear you
? Saint Davy's day is past.
occasions and causes why and things: I will tell you, as my Gower; The rascally, scald,
y, praggling knave, Pistol,— yourself, and all the 'orld,
petter than a fellow, look you rits,—he is come to me, and
and salt yesterday, look you,
t my leek: it was in a place
not breed no contentions with I be so pold as to wear it in e him once again, and then I ittle piece of my desires.

Enter PISTOL.

ere he comes, swelling like a atter for his swellings, nor his walks first in processions.

to be borne.

the honours of conquest from himself

§ Similitude.

x in the reign of Elizabeth.

ed

turkey-cocks.—Got pless you, ancient Pistol—
you scurvy, lowsy knave, Got bless you!

Pist. Ha! art thou Bedlam? dost thou thirst,
base Trojan,

To have me fold up Paris's fatal web?^a

Hence! I am qualmish at the smell of leek.

Fla. I peseech you heartily, scurvy, lowsy knave, at my desires, and my requests, and my petitions, to eat, look you, this leek; because, look you, you do not love it, nor your affections, and your appetites, and your diges-tions, does not agree with it, I would desire you to eat it.

Pist. Not for Cadwallader, and all his goats.

Fla. There is one goat for you. [Strikes him.]
Will you be so goot, scald knave, as eat it?

Pist. Base Trojan, thou shalt die.

Fla. You say very true, scald knave, when Got's will is: I will desire you to live in the mean time, and eat your victuals; come, there is sauce for it. [Striking him again.] You called me yesterday, mountain-squire; but I will make you to-day a squire of low degree.
I pray you, fall to; if you can mock a leek,
you can eat a leek.

Gow. Enough, captain; you have astonished† him.

Fla. I say, I will make him eat some part of my leek, or I will peat his pate four days:—

Pite, I pray you; it is goot for your green wound, and your bloody coxcomb.

Pist. Must I bite?

Fla. Yes, certainly; and out of doubt, and out of questions too, and ambiguities.

Pist. By this leek, I will most horribly revenge; I eat, and eke I swear—

Fla. Eat, I pray you: Will you have some more sauce to your leek? there is not enough leak to swear by.

Pist. Quit thy cudgel; thou dost see, I eat.

Fla. Much goot do you, scald knave, heartily.
Nay, pray you, throw none away; the skin is goot for your proken coxcomb. When you take occasions to see leaks hereafter, I pray
you, mock at them; that is all.

Pist. Good.

Fla. Ay, leaks is goot:—Hold you, there is a groat to heal your pate.

Pist. Me a groat!

Fla. Yes, verily, and in truth, you shall take it; or I have another leek in my pocket, which you shall eat.

Pist. I take thy groat, in earnest of revenge.

Fla. If I owe you any thing, I will pay you in cudgels; you shall be a woodmonger, and buy nothing of me but cudgels. God be wi'
you, and keep you, and heal your pate. [Exit.

Pist. All hell shall stir for this.

Gow. Go, go; you are a counterfeit cowardly knave. Will you mock at an ancient tradition, —begun upon an honorable respect, and worn as a memorable trophy of predeceased valour,—and dare not avouch in your deeds
any of your words? I have seen you gleeking† and galling at this gentleman twice or thrice.
You thought, because he could not speak English in the native garb, he could not therefore handle an English cudgel: you find it otherwise; and, henceforth, let a Welsh correction teach you a good English condition.‡
Fare ye well. [Exit.

Pist. Doth fortune play the huswife§ with me now?

^a "Dost thou desire to have me put thee to death?"

† Stunned.

‡ Temper.

§ Scoffing, sneering.

¶ For hit.

cows have I, that my Nell is dead i'the spital*
 of malady of France;
 and there my rendezvous is quite cut off.
 old I do wax; and from my weary limbs honour is cudgell'd. Well, bawd will I turn,
 and something lean to cutpurse of quick hand.
 o England will I steal, and there I'll steal:
 and patches will I get unto these scars,
 and swear, I got them in the Gallia wars.

[Exit.

SCENE II.—Troyes in Champagne.—An Apartment in the French King's Palace.

Enter, at one door, King HENRY, BEDFORD, GLOSTER, EXETER, WARWICK, WESTMORELAND, and other Lords; at another, the FRENCH KING, Queen ISABEL, the Princess KATHARINE, Lords, Ladies, &c. the Duke of BURGUNDY, and his Train.

K. Hen. Peace to this meeting, wherefore we are met!

Into our brother France,—and to our sister,
 health and fair time of day:—joy and good wishes to our most fair and princely cousin Katharine (as a branch and member of this royalty, by whom this great assembly is contriv'd,) we do salute you, duke of Burgundy;—

and, princes French, and peers, health to you all!

Fr. King. Right joyous are we to behold your face, lost worthy brother England; fairly met:—

 so are you, princes English, every one.

Q. Isa. So happy be the issue, brother England, of this good day, and of this gracious meeting, as we are now glad to behold your eyes;

your eyes, which hitherto have borne in them against the French, that met them in their the fatal balls of murdering basilisks: [bent, the venom of such looks, we fairly hope, have lost their quality; and that this day shall change all griets, and quarrels, into love.

K. Hen. To cry amen to that, thus we appear.

Q. Isa. You English princes all, I do salute you.

Bur. My duty to you both, on equal love, great kings of France and England! That I have laboured with all my wits, my pains and strong endeavours to bring your most imperial majesties into this bart and royal interview, your mightiness on both parts best can witness.

Since then my office hath so far prevail'd, that, face to face, and royal eye to eye, you have congregated; let it not disgrace me, if I demand, before this royal view,

what rub, or what impediment, there is, why that the naked, poor, and mangled peace,

Dear nurse of arts, plenties, and joyful births, should not, in this best garden of the world,

Our fertile France, put up her lovely visage? Alas! she hath from France too long been chas'd; And all her husbandry doth lie on heaps,

Corrupting in its own fertility. Her vine, the merry cheerer of the heart,

Unpruned dies: her hedges even-pleached,—Like prisoners wildly over-grown with hair,

Put forth disorder'd twigs: her fallow leas The darnel hemlock, and rank fumitory,

Both root upon; while that the coulter, rusts,

That should derach The even mead, the The freckled cowali Wanting the scyth Conceives by idlen But hateful docks Losing both beauty And as our viney hedges,

Defective in their Even so our houses Have lost, or do n The sciences that

But grow, like sa That nothing do b To swearing, and

And every thing t Which to reduce i You are assembled

That I may know Should not expel And bless us with

K. Hen. If, dul the peace Whose want gives

Which you have ci With full accord Whose tenors and

You have, ensche Bur. The king which, as

There is no answe K. Hen. Well t Which you before

Fr. King. I hav O'er-glanc'd the a To appoint some

To sit with us on To re-survey then Pass our accept,

K. Hen. Brothe ter,—

And brother Clare Warwick—and king:

And take with yo Augment, or alter Shall see advanta

Any thing in, or And we'll consigt Go with the princ

Q. Isa. Our gra them; Haply, a woman's

When articles, to K. Hen. Yet les with us;

She is our capital Within the fore-r

Q. Isa. She hat [Exeunt

K. Hen. Fair K Will you vouchsa Such as will ente

And plead his lov Kath. Your maj not speak your F

K. Hen. O fair me soundly with glad to hear you

English tongue. Kath. Pardon me like etc.

* Hospital.

† Barrier.

‡ Plough-hare.

* To derach † Extravagant.

a. As angel is like you, Kate; and you is angel.

Que dit-il? que je suis semblable à lui

Dis, croquant, (sang/entre/genre) what

a. I said so, dear Katharine; and I blush to affirm it.

O bon Dieu! les langues des hommes
se des tromperies.

b. What says she, fair one? that the tongues are full of deceit?

Dis, dat de langues of de man is be guin. d. de prison.

c. The princess is the better Englishwoman. Kate, my writing is fit for thy reading. I am glad, then, thou canst speak

English, for if thou couldst, thou shalt see such a plain king, that thou shalt think, I had sold my farm to buy my love; no way to mine it in love,

say to say I love you: then, if you rather than to say—Do you in faith?

at my suit. Give me your answer;
be and so clap hands and a bargain.

—My lady?

My sweet honour, me understand

d. Harry, if you would put me to verdict for your sake, Kate, why you

it for the one, I have neither words
like; and for the other, I have no

in measure,* yet a reasonable manner. If I could win a lady at leap-frog, vaulting into my saddle with my

to my back, under the correction of
be it spoken, I should quickly leap
it. Or, if I might buffet for my love,

my horse for her favours, I could lay
brusher, and sit like a jack-an-apes,

but, before God, I cannot look green-gasp out my eloquence, nor I have the in protestation, only downright him I never use till urged, nor never raving. If thou canst love a fellow man, Kate, whose face is not worth slag, that never looks in his glass for anything he sees there, let thine eye be

it. I speak to thee plain soldier. If thou love me for this, take me. If not, to be—that I shall die, is true; but—

by the Lord, so, yet I love thee too.

So thou livest, dear Kate, take a follow and uncoined constancy: for he that do thee right, because he hath gift to woo in other places: for those

if infinite tongue, that can rhyme them-
the ladies' favours,—they do always themselves out again. What! a speaker gentler, a rhyme is but a ballad. A will fall: a straight back will stoop, beard will turn white; a curled pate

e-bald, a fair face will wither; a full wax hollow; but a good heart, Kate, is and moon; or, rather, the sun, and new, for it shines bright, and never but keeps his course truly. If thou art such a one, take me. And take a soldier; take a soldier, take a king:

of myself thou then to my love? speak,
and fairly, I pray thee.

Is it possible that I should love de
France?

dis. † I. e. Like a young lover, extremely man, resembling a plain piece of metal which excited any impression. ‡ Full stop.

dis. † I. e. Though my love has no power to offend you.

K. Hen. No, it is not possible, you should love the enemy of France, Kate: but, in loving me, you should love the friend of France: for I love France so well, that I will not part with a village of it; I will have it all mine: and,
Kate, when France is mine, and I am yours,
then yours is France, and you are mine.

Kath. I cannot tell yet is dat.

K. Hen. No, Kate! I will tell thee in French, which, I am sure, will hang upon my tongue
like a new-married wife about her husband's neck, hardly to be shook off. Quand j'ay le promesse de France, et quand une chose est promesse de moi, (let me see, what thou? Saint Denise be my speed!)—dow centre est France, et avec cotes mine. It is as easy for me, Kate, to conquer the kingdom, as to speak as much more French: I shall never move thee, in French, unless it be to laugh at me.

Kath. Dis/entre/homme, le Français
vous parlez, est meilleur que l'Anglais l'anglais parle.

K. Hen. No, faith, 'tis not, Kate: but thy speaking of my tongue, and I think, most truly shew, must needs be granted as he speaks of me. But, Kate, dost thou understand that much English? Canst thou love me?

Kath. I cannot tell.

K. Hen. Can any of your neighbours tell,
Kate? I'll ask them. Come, I know, thou lovest me, and at night when you come into your closet, you'll question this gentleman
about me; and I know, Kate, you will, to hear, dispraise those parts in me, that you love with your heart: but, good Kate, mark me manifully; the rather, gentle princess, because I love thee cruelly. If ever thou be'st mine, Kate, (as I have a saving faith within me, tells me,—thou shalt,) I get thee with scrambling,
and thou must therefore needs prove a good soldier-brooder: Shall not thou and I, between Saint Dennis and Saint George, compound a boy, half French, half English, that shall go to Constantinople, and take the Turk
by the beard? shall we not? what sayest thou,
my fair flower-de-luce?

Kath. I do not know dat.

K. Hen. No; 'tis hardwar to know, but now to promise: do but now promise, Kate, you will endeavour for your French part of such a boy; and, for my English moiety, take the word of a king and a bachelor. How answer you, in this tale Katharine de maids, man love share of divine dower?

Kath. Your majesty's grace, French enough to deserve de most sage d'homme dat is in France.

K. Hen. Now, so upon my false French!
By mine honour, in true English, I love thee,
Kate: by which honour I dare not swear, thou lovest me, yet my blood begins to flatter me that thou dost, notwithstanding the poor and untempering effect of my wine.* Now beshrew my father's ambition! he was thinking of civil wars when he got me; therefore was I created with a stubborn outside, with an ap-pet of iron, that, when I come to woo ladies,
I fright them. But, in faith, Kate, the older
I wax, the better I shall appear: my comfort is, that old age, that ill layer-up of beauty, can do no more spoil upon my face: thou hast me, if thou hast me, at the worst; and then shall wear me, if thou wear me, better and better;
And therefore tell me, most fair Katharine,
will you have me? Put off your wisdom

* I. e. Though my love has no power to offend you.

shes, avouch the thoughts of your heart
h the looks of an empress; take me by the d, and say—Harry of England, I am thine:
ch word thou shalt no sooner bless mine withal, but I will tell thee aloud—England
hine, Ireland is thine, France is thine, and nry Plantagenet is thine; who, though I ak it before his face, if he be not fellow
h the best king, thou shalt find the best king
good fellows. Come, your answer in bro-music; for thy voice is music, and thy glish broken: therefore, queen of all, Karine, break thy mind to me in broken Eng-Wilt thou have me?

Kath. Dat is, as it shall please de roy mon

Hen. Nay, it will please him well, Kate;
all please him, Kate.

Kath. Den it shall also content me.

Hen. Upon that I will kiss your hand,
I call you—my queen.

Kath. *Laissez, mon sieigneur, laissez, laissez:
foy, je ne veux point que vous abbaissiez vostre
deur, en baisant la main d'une vostre indigne iteure; excusez moy, je vous supplie, mon tres sant seigneur.*

Hen. Then I will kiss your lips, Kate.

Kath. *Les dames, et damoiselles, pour estre
rés devant leur nopces, il n'est pas le coûtume
France.*

Hen. Madam, my interpreter, what says lice. Dat it is not be de fashion pour les es of France,—I cannot tell what is, laisser, English.

Hen. To kiss.

lice. Your majesty entendre better que moy.

Hen. It is not the fashion for the maids in ace to kiss before they are married, would
say?

lice. Ouy, rrayment.

Hen. O, Kate, nice customs curt'sy to t kings. Dear Kate, you and I cannot be ined within the weak list^a of a country's ion: we are the makers of manners, Kate;
the liberty that follows our places, stops
mouths of all find-faults; as I will do yours,
upholding the nice fashion of your country,
nying me a kiss: therefore, patiently, and ling. [Kissing her.] You have witchcraft our lips, Kate: there is more eloquence in gar touch of them, than in the tongues of French council; and they should sooner
uade Harry of England, than a general
ion of monarchs. Here comes your father.

*r the FRENCH KING and QUEEN, BURGUN-
, BEDFORD, GLOSTER, EXETER, WEST-IRELAND, and other French and English rds.*

r. God save your majesty! my royal couteach you our princess English?

Hen. I would have her learn, my fair in, how perfectly I love her; and that is English.

r. Is she not apt?

Hen. Our tongue is rough, coz; and my ition[†] is not smooth: so that, having nei-
the voice nor the heart of flattery about I cannot so conjure up the spirit of love in that he will appear in his true likeness.

r. Pardon the frankness of my mirth, if I er you for that. If you would conjure in ou must make a circle: if conjure up love r in his true likeness, he must appear naked, and blind: C

being a maid yet r
crimson of modesty, M
of a naked blind boy
It were, my lord, a h
to consign to.

K. Hen. Yet they d is blind, and enforces

Bur. They are ther
they see not what the

K. Hen. Then, go cousin to consent to

Bur. I will wink o
if you will teach her maids, well summere
flies at Bartholomew
have their eyes; an handling, which best ing on.

K. Hen. This mor
and a hot summer; a your cousin, in the la
blind too.

Bur. As love is, m

K. Hen. It is so: a thank love for my b
many a fair French maid that stands in

Fr. King. Yes, m spectively, the citie
they are all girdled
war hath never enter

K. Hen. Shall Kat

Fr. King. So pleas

K. Hen. I am con
you talk of, may wai stood in the way of n
way to my will.

Fr. King. We hav
reason.

K. Hen. Is't so, m

West. The king ha
His daughter, first;
According to their fi

Exc. Only, he hath Where your majesty of France, having a matter of grant, shal
this form, and with t
*Notre tres cher filz h retier de France; an rissimus filius noster
haves Francia.*

Fr. King. Nor thi
denied,

But your request sha

K. Hen. I pray yo alliance,

Let that one article r
And, thereupon, give

Fr. King. Take he blood raise t

Issue to me: that the
Of France and Eng
look pale

With envy of each ot
May cease their hate
Piant neighbourhood
In their sweet bosoms
His bleeding sword
France.

All. Amen!

K. Hen. Now welc
witness all,
That here I kiss her

Is. God, the best maker of all marriages, Shine your hearts in one, your realms in
one!

Man and wife, being two, are one in love,
Where'twixt your kingdoms such a spousal,
Never may ill office, or fell jealousy,
ish troubles oft the bed of blessed marriage,

ist in between the paction of these kingdoms,

ake divorce of their incorporate league;
English may as French, French English-
men,

ive each other!—God speak this Amen!
R. Amen!

Hen. Prepare we for our marriage:—on which day,

ord of Burgundy, we'll take your oath,
all the peers', for surety of our leagues.—

shall I swear to Kate, and you to me;
may our oaths well kept and prosp'rous

be!
[Exeunt.

Enter CHORUS.

Thus far, with rough, and all unable pen,
Our bending* author hath pursu'd the story;
In little room confining mighty men,

Mangling by starts the full course of their glory. [liv'd

Small time, but in that small, most greatly
This star of England: fortune made his sword;

By which the world's best garden† he achiev'd,
And of it left his son imperial lord.

Henry the sixth, in infant bands crown'd king
Of France and England did this king succeed;

Whose state so many had the managing,
That they lost France, and made his England bleed:

Which oft our stage hath shown; and, for their sake,

In your fair minds let this acceptance take.
[Exit.

* I. e. Unequal to the weight of the subject. † France.

FIRST PART

OF

KING HENRY VI.

PERSONS REPRESENTED.

KING HENRY THE SIXTH. DUKE OF GLOSTER, Uncle to the King, and Protector. DUKE OF BEDFORD, Uncle to the King, and Regent of France. THOMAS BEAUFORT, Duke of Exeter, great Uncle to the King. HENRY BEAUFORT, great Uncle to the King, Bishop of Winchester; and afterwards Cardinal. JOHN BEAUFORT, Earl of Somerset; afterwards Duke. RICHARD PLANTAGENET, eldest Son of Richard, late Earl of Cambridge; afterwards Duke of York. EARL OF WARWICK.—EARL OF SALISBURY.—EARL OF SUFFOLK. LORD TALBOT, afterwards Earl of Shrewsbury. JOHN TALBOT, his Son. EDMUND MORTIMER, Earl of March. MORTIMER'S KEEPER, and a Lawyer. SIR JOHN FASTOLFE.—SIR WILLIAM LUCY. SIR WILLIAM GLANSDALE.—SIR THOMAS GARGRAVE. MAYOR OF LONDON. WOODVILLE, Lieutenant of the Tower.	VERNON, of the White Rose, or York Faction. BASSET, of the Red Rose, or Lancaster Faction. CHARLES, Dauphin, and afterwards King of France. REIGNIER, Duke of Anjou, and titular King of Naples. DUKE OF BURGUNDY.—DUKE OF ALENÇON. GOVERNOR OF PARIS.—BASTARD OF ORLEANS. MASTER-GUNNER OF ORLEANS, and his Son. GENERAL OF THE FRENCH FORCES IN BORDAUX. A FRENCH SERGEANT.—A PORTER. AN OLD SHEPHERD, Father to Joan la Pucelle. MARGARET, Daughter to Reignier; afterwards married to King Henry. COUNTESS OF AUVERGNE. JOAN LA PUCELLE, commonly called, Joan of Arc. Fiends appearing to La Pucelle, Lords, Warders of the Tower, Herald, Officers, Soldiers, Messengers, and several Attendants both on the English and French. SCENE; partly in England, and partly in France.
---	---

ACT I.

SCENE I.—Westminster Abbey.

Dead march. Corpse of King HENRY the Fifth discovered, lying in state; attended on by the Dukes of BEDFORD, GLOSTER, and EXETER; the Earl of WARWICK, the Bishop of WINCHESTER, Herald, &c.

Bed. Hung be the heavens with black,*
 yield day to night!

Comets, importing change of times and states,
 Brandish your crystal tresses in the sky;
 And with them scourge the bad revolting stars,

That have consented unto Henry's death!

Henry the fifth, too famous to live long!

England ne'er lost a king of so much worth.

Glo. England ne'er had a king, until his Virtue he had, deserving to command: [time.
 His brandish'd sword did blind men with his beams;

His arms spread wider than a dragon's wings;
 His sparkling eyes replete with wrathful fire,

* Alluding to our ancient stage-practice when a tragedy was to be acted

More dazzled and drove back his enemies,
 Than mid-day sun, fierce bent against their faces. [speech

What should I say? his deeds exceed all
 He ne'er lift up his hand, but conquered.

Exe. We mourn in black; Why mourn we not in blood?

Henry is dead, and never shall revive:

Upon a wooden coffin we attend;

And death's dishonourable victory

We with our stately presence glorify,

Like captives bound to a triumphant car.

What? shall we curse the planets of mishap

That plotted thus our glory's overthrow?

Or shall we think the subtle-witted French

Conjurers and sorcerers, that, afraid of him,

By magic verses* have contriv'd his end?

Win. He was a king bless'd of the King's kings.

Unto the French the dreadful judgement day

So dreadful will not be, as was his fight.

The battles of the Lord of hosts he fought:

The church's prayers made him so prosperous

* There was a notion long prevalent, that life might be taken away by metrical charms.

where is it? Had not ray'd,
not so soon decay'd:
an effeminate prince,
boy, you may over-awe.
e'er we like, thou art

and the prince, and realm,
holdeth thee in awe,
ligious churchmen, may.
gion, for thou lov'st the [go'st,

t the year to church thou
against thy foes.

hese jars, and rest your
ce!

eralds, wait on us:—

offer up our arms;
now that Henry's dead.—
retched years, [suck;
s' moist eyes babes shall urish* of salt tears,
left to wail the dead.—
host I invoke;
eep it from civil broils!
planets in the heavens!
ar thy soul will make,
r bright—

MESSENGER.

o lords, health to you all!
you out of France,
and discomfiture:
s, Rheims, Orleans,
iers, are all quite lost.
thou, man, before dead
?

oss of those great towns
his lead, and rise from

is Rouen yielded up?
d to life again,
use him once more yield

ey lost? what treachery

; but want of men and is is muttered,—

in several factions;
ould be despatch'd and

your generals.
ing wars, with little cost;
ift but wanteth wings;
without expense at all,
s peace may be obtain'd.
ish nobility!

r honours, new-begot:
r-de-luces in your arms;
e half is cut away.
s wanting to this funeral,
call forth hert flowing cern; regent I am of

at, I'll fight for France.—
raceful wailing robes!
e French, instead of eyes,
ssive miseries.†

or MESSENGER.

these letters, full of bad

spelt.

ch have had only a short inter-

France is revolted from the English quite;
Except some petty towns of no import:
The Dauphin Charles is crowned king in Rheims;

The bastard of Orleans with him is join'd;
Reignier, duke of Anjou, doth take his part;
The duke of Alençon flieth to his side.

Exc. The Dauphin crowned king! all fly to
him!

O, whither shall we fly from this reproach?

Glo. We will not fly, but to our enemies'
throats:

Bedford, if thou be slack, I'll fight it out.

Bed. Gloster, why doubt'st thou of my stewardness!

An army have I master'd in my thoughts,
Wherewith already France is over-run.

Enter a third Messenger.

3 Mess. My gracious lords,—to add to your laments, [hears,—

Wherewith you now bedew King Henry's
I must inform you of a dismal fight,

Betwixt the stout lord Talbot and the French.
Win. What! wherein Talbot overcame? is't
so?

3 Mess. O, no; wherein lord Talbot was o'er-
thrown:

The circumstance I'll tell you more at large.
The tenth of August last, this dreadful lord,
Retiring from the siege of Orleans,
Having full scarce six thousand in his troop;
By three and twenty thousand of the French
Was round encompassed and set upon:
No leisure had he to enrank his men;
He wanted pikes to set before his archers;
Instead whereof, sharp stakes, pluck'd out of hedges,

They pitched in the ground confusedly,
To keep the horsemen off from breaking in.
More than three hours the fight continued;
Where valiant Talbot, above human thought,
Enacted wonders with his sword and lance.
Hundreds he sent to hell, and none durst stand
him;

Here, there, and every where, enrag'd he slew:
The French exclaim'd, The devil was in arms;
All the whole army stood amaz'd on him:
His soldiers, spying his undaunted spirit,
A Talbot! a Talbot! cried out amain,
And rush'd into the bowels of the battle.
Here had the conquest fully been seal'd up,
If Sir John Fastolf had not play'd the coward;
He being in the vaward, (plac'd behind,
With purpose to relieve and follow them,)
Cowardly fled, not having struck one stroke,
Hence grew the general wreck and massacre;
Enclosed were they with their enemies:

A base Walloon, to win the Dauphin's grace,
Thrust Talbot with a spear into the back;
Whom all France, with their chief assembled
strength,

Durst not presume to look once in the face.

Bed. Is Talbot slain? then I will slay myself,
For living idly here, in pomp and ease,
Whilst such a worthy leader, wanting aid,
Unto his dastard foe-man is betray'd.

3 Mess. O no, he lives; but is took prisoner,
And lord Scales with him, and lord Hungerford:

Most of the rest slaughter'd, or took, likewise.

Bed. His ransom there is none but I shall pay:

I'll hale the Dauphin headlong from his throne,
His crown shall be the ransom of my friend;
Four of their lords I'll change for one of ours.—

Farewell, my masters; to my task will I;
Bonfires in France forthwith I am to make,
To keep our great Saint George's feast withal:
Ten thousand soldiers with me I will take,
Whose bloody deeds shall make all Europe
quake.

3. Mess. So you had need; for Orleans is be-sieg'd;

The English army is grown weak and faint:
The earl of Salisbury craveth supply,
And hardly keeps his men from mutiny,
Since they, so few, watch such a multitude.

Erc. Remember, lords, your oaths to Henry Either to quell the Dauphin utterly, [sworn;
Or bring him in obedience to your yoke.

Brd. I do remember it; and here take leave,
To go about my preparation. [Exit.

Glo. I'll to the Tower, with all the haste I can,
To view the artillery and munition;
And then I will proclaim young Henry king. [Exit.

Erc. To Eltham will I, where the young king is,
Being ordain'd his special governor;
And for his safety there I'll best advise. [Exit.

Win. Each hath his place and function to attend:
I am left out; for me nothing remains.
But long I will not be Jack-out-of-office;
The king from Eltham I intend to send,
And sit at chiefest stern of public weal.
[Exit. Scene closes.

SCENE II.—France.—Before Orleans.

Enter CHARLES, with his Forces; ALENÇON, REIGNIER, and others.

Char. Mars his true moving, even as in the heavens,
So in the earth, to this day is not known:
Late did he shine upon the English side;
Now we are victors upon us he smiles.
What towns of any moment, but we have?
At pleasure here we lie, near Orleans;
Otherwhiles, the famish'd English, like pale ghosts,
Faintly besiege us one hour in a month.

Alen. They want their porridge, and their fat
bull-beeves:

Either they must be dieted like mules,
And have their provender tyed to their mouths,
Or piteous they will look, like drowned mice.

Reig. Let's raise the siege; Why live we idly here?

Falbot is taken, whom we wont to fear:
Remaineth none but mad-brain'd Salisbury;
And he may well in fretting spend his gall,
Nor men, nor money, hath he to make war.

Char. Sound, sound alarum; we will rush on them.

Now for the honour of the forlorn French:—
Him I forgive my death, that killeth me,
When he sees me go back one foot, or fly.

[Exeunt.

Alarums; Excursions; afterwards a Retreat.

Re-enter CHARLES, ALENÇON, REIGNIER, and
others.

Char. Who ever saw the like? what men have
I?

Dogs! cowards! dastards!—I would ne'er
have fled,

But that they left me 'midst my enemies.

Reig. Salisbury is a desperate homicide;
He fighteth as one weary of his life.

The other lords, lil
Do rush upon us a

Alen. Froissard,
cords,

England all Oliver
During the time E

More truly now m
For none but Sam

It sendeth forth to Lean raw-bon'd r

They had such co
Char. Let's lea

hair-brain
And hunger will

Of old I know the
The walls they'll

siege.
Reig. I think, b

vice,
Their arms are set

Else ne'er could t
By my consent, w

Alen. Be it so.

Enter the Bast. Where's

news for

Char. Bastard;
to us.

Bast. Methinks
cheerly ap

Hath the late ove
Be not dismay'd,

A holy maid hith
Which, by a visio

Ordained is to rai
And drive the F

France.
The spirit of deep

Exceeding the n
What's past, an

descry.
Speak, shall I cal

For they are certa Char. Go, call

first, to t
Reignier, stand t

Question her prou
By this means sh

hath.

Enter LA PUCEL

Reig. Fair ma
wond'rou

Puc. Reignier,
guile me!

Where is the Dau
I know thee well,

Be not amaz'd, th
In private will I t

Stand back, you
while.

Reig. She take dash.

Puc. Dauphin,
daughter,

My wit untrain'd
Heaven, and our l

To shine on my co

* I. e. The prey for † A gimmal is a plac
moves within another;
gine.

‡ This was not in the Countenance.

l on my tender lambs,
ching heat display'd my ted to appear to me;

ll of majesty,
my base vocation,
ry from calamity:
'd, and assur'd success:
she reveal'd herself;
is black and swart before,
ys which she infus'd on me,
less'd with, which you see.
tion thou canst possible,
unpremeditated:
combat, if thou dar'st,
I that I exceed my sex.
Thou shalt be fortunate,
for thy warlike mate.
astonish'd me with thy high of thy valour make,— ou shalt buckle with me;

labest, thy words are true;
see all confidence.
r'd: here is my keen-edg'd

ur-de-luces on each side;
sine, in Saint Katharine's
d,
I from I chose forth.
e o'God's name, I fear no

I live, I'll near fly from a
[They fight.]
thy hands; thou art an

he sword of Deborah.
ther helps me, else I were helps thee, 'tis thou that

me:
with thy desire;
thou hast at once subdu'd.
if thy name be so,
, and not sovereign, be;
uphin sueth to thee thus.
yield to any rites of love,
sacred from above:
d all thy foes from hence,
pon a recompense.
look gracious on thy pros-

methinks, is very long in he shrives this woman to
; so long protract his speech.
disturb him, since he keeps

can more than we poor men [tongues.]
shrewd tempters with their
here are you? what devise

Orleans or no?
say, distrustful recreants!
asp; I will be your guard.
says, I'll confirm; we'll

I to be the English scourge.
s assuredly I'll raise:
n's summer,† balcyon days,
d into these wars.
e in the water,

of it.
her misfortune

Which never ceaseth to enlarge itself,
Till, by broad spreading, it disperse to nought.
With Henry's death, the English circle ends;
Dispersed are the glories it included.
Now am I like that proud insulting ship,
Which Caesar and his fortune bare at once.

Char. Was Mahomet inspired with a dove?
Thou with an eagle art inspired then.
Helen, the mother of great Constantine, [thou.
Nor yet Saint Philip's daughters,‡ were like Bright star of Venus, fall'n down on the earth,
How may I reverently worship thee enough?

Alen. Leave off delays, and let us raise the siege.

Ricg. Woman, do what thou canst to save our honour;

Drive them from Orleans, and be immortaliz'd.

Char. Presently we'll try:—Come let's away
about it:

No prophet will I trust, if she prove false.

[Exeunt.]

SCENE III.—London.—Hill before the Tower.

Enter, at the Gates, the Duke of Gloster, with his Serving-men, in full coats.

Glo. I am come to survey the Tower this day; Since Henry's death, I fear, there is conveyance.‡—Where be these wardens, that they wait not here? Open the gates; Gloster it is that calls. [Serving-men knock.]

1 Ward. [Within.] Who is there that knocks
so imperiously?

1 Serv. It is the noble Duke of Gloster.

2 Ward. [Within.] Whoe'er he be, you may not be let in.

1 Serv. Answer you so the lord protector, villains?

1 Ward. [Within.] The Lord protect him!
so we answer him:

We do no otherwise than we are will'd.

Glo. Who will'd you? or whose will stands
but mine?

There's none protector of the realm, but I.—
Break up! the gates, I'll be your warrantize:
Shall I be flouted thus by dunghill grooms?

SERVANTS rush at the Tower Gates. Enter, to the Gates, WOODVILLE, the Lieutenant.

Wood. [Within.] What noise is this? what traitors have we here?

Glo. Lieutenant, is it you, whose voice I hear? [Enter.]

Open the gates; here's Gloster that would Wood. [Within.] Have patience, noble duke:
I may not open;

The cardinal of Winchester forbids:
From him I have express commandement,

That thou, nor none of thine, shall be let in.

Glo. Faint-hearted Woodville, prizest him
'fore me!

Arrogant Winchester? that haughty prelate, Whom Henry, our late sovereign, ne'er could brook?

Thou art no friend to God, or to the king:
Open the gates, or I'll shut thee out shortly.

1 Serv. Open the gates unto the lord protector; [quickly.]

Or we'll burst them open, if that you come not

Enter WINCHESTER, attended by a Train of Serving-men in tawny Coats.

Win. How now, ambitious Humphry? what means this?

‡ Meaning the four daughters of Philip mentioned in Acts xxi. 9. † Their. ‡ Break open.

Glo. Piel'd priest,* dost thou command me to be shut out?

Win. I do, thou most usurping proditor,†
d not protector of the king or realm.

Glo. Stand back, thou manifest conspirator;
ou, that contriv'dst to murder our dead lord;
ou, that giv'st whores indulgences to sin:
canvast thee in thy broad cardinal's hat,
thou proceed in this thy insolence.

Win. Nay, stand thou back, I will not budge
a foot;

is he Damascus, be thou curs'd Cain,
slay thy brother Abel if thou wilt.

Glo. I will not slay thee, but I'll drive thee
back:

y scarlet robes, as a child's bearing-cloth
I use, to carry thee out of this place.

Win. Do what thou dar'st; I heard thee to
thy face.

Glo. What! am I dar'd, and bearded to my face?—

aw, men, for all this privileged place;
we-coats to tawny-coats.†† Priest, beware
your beard;

[GLOSTER and his Men attack the Bishop.
mean to tug it, and to cuff you soundly:

ider my feet I stamp thy cardinal's hat;
spite of pope or dignities of church, ere by the cheeks I'll drag thee up and down.

Win. Gloster, thou'lt answer this before the pope.

Glo. Winchester goose,§ I cry—a rope! a rope!— [stay!—

ow beat them hence. Why do you let them see I'll chase hence, thou wolf in sheep's array.—

ol, tawny coats!—out, scarlet!|| hypocrite!

ere a great Tumult. In the midst of it, Enter the MAYOR of London, and Officers.

May. Pie, lords! that you, being supreme magistrates,

us contumeliously should break the peace!

Glo. Peace, mayor; thou know'st little of my wrongs: [king,

ere's Beaufort, that regards nor God nor ath here distrain'd the Tower to his use.

Win. Here's Gloster too, a foe to citizens;
ne that still motions war, and never peace,

'ercharging your free purses with large fines;
hat seeks to overthrow religion,

ecause he is protector of the realm;
nd would have armour here out of the Tower,

o crown himself king, and suppress the prince.

Glo. I will not answer thee with words, but blows. [Here they skirmish again.

May. Nought rests for me, in this tumulttuous strife,

ut to make open proclamation:—
ome, officer; as loud as e'er thou canst.

Off. All manner of men, assembled here in arms
this day, against God's peace and the king's,

we charge and command you, in his highness
name, to repair to your several dwelling-places;

and not to wear, handle, or use, any sword,
weapon, or dagger, henceforward, upon pain of
death.

Glo. Cardinal, I'll be no breaker of the law but we shall meet, and break our minds at large.

Win. Gloster, we'll meet; to thy dear cost,
be sure:

hy heart-blood I will have, for this day's work.

May. I'll call for
away:—
This cardinal is now
Glo. Mayor, fare
thou may'st
Win. Abominable
For I intend to have
May. See the cons
depart.—
Good God! that not
I myself fight not of SCENE IV.—F

Enter, on the Walls,

M. Gun. Sirrah,
is being'd
And how the Engli
Sen. Father, I k
them,
Howe'er, unfortun
M. Gun. But no
rul'd by m
Chief master-gunne
Something I must
The prince's espial
How the English,
trench'd,
Wont, through a s
In yonder tower, t
And thence discove
They may vex us,
To intercept this
A piece of ordnanc
And fully even the
If I could see them.
For I can stay no l
If thou spy'st any,
And thou shalt find

Sen. Father, I
care;
I'll never trouble y
Enter, in an upper Lords SALISBURY
GLANSDALE, Sir
others.

Sal. Talbot, my l
How wert thou hat
Or by what means Discourse, I pr'yth Tal. The duke of
Called—the brave!
For him I was exel
But with a baser m
Once, in contempt,
Which I, disdaining
Rather than I wou
In fine, redeem'd I
But, O! the treach
Whom with my bar
If I now had him b
Sal. Yet tell'st th
ertain'd.

Tal. With scoffs, lions taunt
In open market-pla
To be a public spec
Here, said they, is
The scare-crow tha
Then broke I from
And with my nails
ground,

* Alluding to his shaven crown. † Traitor. ‡ &c. &c.
A drumpet. || An allusion to the Bishop's habit.

* That is, for peace-off † Pride.

‡ &c. &c.
§ So stripped of honour

lers of my shame.
ce made others fly;
ear for fear of sudden
em'd me not secure;
name 'mongst them was
I could rend bars of steel,
posts of adamant:
f chosen shot I had,
e every minute-while;
out of my bed,
shoot me to the heart.
ear what torments you

g'd sufficiently.
e in Orleans: [one,
grate, I can count every
men how they fortify;
sight will much delight [dale,
e, and Sir William Glans-
press opinions,
to make our battery next.
the north gate; for there

e, at the bulwark of the ee, this city must be famshes enfeebled.
own. SALISBURY and Sir GRAVE fall.

mercy on us, wretched
ve mercy on me, woeful
e is this, that suddenly
us?—
least, if thou canst speak;
ror of all martial men?
d thy cheek's side struck

cursed fatal hand,
this woeful tragedy!
salisbury o'ercame;
st train'd to the wars;
id sound, or drum struck [field.— er leave striking in the sbury? though thy speech

o look to heaven for grace:
e vieweth all the world.—
cious to none alive,
mercy at thy hands!—
, I will help to bury it,—
e hast thou any life?
nay, look up to him.
spirit with this comfort;
whiles—

hand, and smiles on me;
When I am dead and gone,
me on the French.—

; and Nero-like,
holding the towns burn:
nce be only in my name.
rd; afterwards an Alarm.
What tumult's in the hea-

alarm, and the noise?

MESSANGER.

ay lord, the French have ad: [join'd,—
h one Joan la Pucelle
new risen up,—

Is come with a great power to raise the siege.
[SALISBURY groans.

Tal. Hear, hear, how dying Salisbury doth groan!
It irks his heart, he cannot be reveng'd.—
Frenchmen, I'll be a Salisbury to you:—
Pucelle or puzzel,* dolphin or dogfish,
Your hearts I'll stamp out with my horse's
heels,
And make a quagmire of your mingled brains.—
Convey me Salisbury into his tent,
And then we'll try what these dastardly
Frenchmen dare.

[Exit, bearing out the Bodies.

SCENE V.—The same—Before one of the Gates.

Alarm. Skirmishings. TALBOT pursueth the DAUPHIN, and driveth him in: then enter JOAN LA PUCELLE, driving Englishmen before her. Then enter TALBOT.

Tal. Where is my strength, my valour, and my force?
Our English troops retire, I cannot stay them;
A woman, clad in armour, chaseth them.

Enter LA PUCELLE.

Here, here she comes:—I'll have a bout with
thee;
Devil, or devil's dam, I'll conjure thee:
Blood will I draw on thee,† thou art a witch,
And straightway give thy soul to him thou serv'st.

Puc. Come, come, 'tis only I that must disgrace thee; [They fight.

Tal. Heavens, can you suffer hell so to prevail? [age,

My breast I'll burst with straining of my cour-
And from my shoulders crack my arms asun-
der,

But I will chastise this high-minded strumpet.

Puc. Talbot, farewell; thy hour is not yet
come:

I must go victual Orleans forthwith.
O'ertake me, if thou canst; I scorn thy strength.
Go, go, cheer up thy hunger-starved men;
Help Salisbury to make his testament:
This day is ours, as many more shall be.

[PUCELLE enters the Town, with Soldiers.

Tal. My thoughts are whirled like a potter's wheel;

I know not where I am, nor what I do:
A witch, by fear, not force, like Hannibal, Drives back our troops, and conquers, as she lists: [stench,
So bees with smoke, and doves with noisome
Are from their hives, and houses, driven away.
They call'd us, for our fierceness, English
dogs;

Now, like to whelps, we crying run away.

[A short Alarm.

Hark, countrymen? either renew the fight,
Or tear the lions out of England's coat;
Renounce your soil, give sheep in lion's stead:
Sheep run not half so timorous from the wolf,
Or horse, or oxen, from the leopard,
As you fly from your oft subdued slaves.

[Alarm. Another Skirmish.

It will not be:—Retire into your trenches:
You all consented unto Salisbury's death,
For none would strike a stroke in his revenge.—
Pucelle is enter'd into Orleans,
In spite of us, or aught that we could do.
O, would I were to die with Salisbury!

* A dirty wench.

† The superstition of those times taught, that he who could draw a witch's blood was free from her power.

he shame hereof will make me hide my head.

[Alarum. Retreat. Excunt TALBOT and his Forces, &c.]

SCENE VI.—The same.

Enter, on the Walls, PUCELLE, CHARLES, REIGNIER, ALENÇON, and Soldiers.

Puc. Advance our waving colours on the walls;

rescu'd is Orleans from the English wolves:—
thus Joan la Pucelle hath perform'd her word.

Char. Divinest creature, bright Astræa's daughter,

how shall I honour thee for this success?
thy promises are like Adonis' gardens,
that one day bloom'd, and fruitful were the next.—

France, triumph in thy glorious prophetess!—
recover'd is the town of Orleans:

more blessed hap did ne'er befall our state.

Reig. Why ring not out the bells throughout the town?

Dauphin, command the citizens make bonfires,
and feast and banquet in the open streets,
to celebrate the joy that God hath given us.

Alen. All France will be replete with mirth and joy,

when they shall hear how we have play'd the Char. 'Tis Joan, not we, by whom the day is won;

for which, I will divide my crown with her:
and all the priests and friars in my realm
shall, in procession, sing her endless praise.

statelier pyramids to her I'll rear,
than Rhodope's, or Memphis', ever was:

In memory of her, when she is dead,
her ashes, in an urn more precious
than the rich-jewel'd coffer of Darius, transported shall be at high festivals
before the kings and queens of France.
No longer on Saint Dennis will we cry,
but Joan la Pucelle shall be France's saint.
Come in; and let us banquet royally,
after this golden day of victory.

[Flourish. Excunt.]

ACT II.

SCENE I.—The same.

Enter to the Gates, a French SERGEANT, and two SENTINELS.

Serg. Sirs, take your places, and be vigilant:
any noise, or soldier, you perceive,
bear to the walls, by some apparent sign,
let us have knowledge at the court of guard.*

1 Sent. Sergeant, you shall. [Exit SERGEANT.] Thus are poor servitors when others sleep upon their quiet beds, constrain'd to watch in darkness, rain, and cold.

Enter TALBOT, BEDFORD, BURGUNDY, and Forces, with scaling Ladders; their Drums beating a dead march.

Tal. Lord regent,—and redoubted Burgundy,— thy whose approach, the regions of Artois, Flanders, and Picardy, are friends to us,—

this happy night the Frenchmen are secure,
having all day carous'd and banquetted:
embrace we then this opportunity;
'tis fitting best to quittance their deceit,
contriv'd by art, and baleful sorcery.

Bed. Coward of France!—how much he wrongs his fame,

* The same as guard-room.

Despairing of his aid
To join with witch
Bur. Traitors be
But what's that P
pure?

Tal. A maid, the

Bed. A maid! as

Bur. Pray God,
long;

If underneath the
She carry armour,

Tal. Well, let with spirit

God is our fortress
Let us resolve to s

Bed. Ascend, b
thee.

Tal. Not all toge
That we do make

That, if it chance
The other yet may

Bed. Agreed; I'

Bur. And I to th

Tal. And here
his grave.

Now, Salisbury! f
Of English Henry
How much in duty

[The English as George! a Tall]

Sent. [Within.]
make assa

*The French leap o
Enter, several a*

REIGNIER, half r

Alen. How now ready* so?

Bast. Unready?
well.

Reig. 'Twas time
our beds,

Hearing alarums a Alen. Of all ex

Ne'er heard I of a More venturous, or

Bast. I think, th

Reig. Is not of he
him.

Alen. Here come
he sped.

Enter CHARL

Bast. Tut! holy
guard.

Char. Is this th
dame?

Didst thou at first,
Make us partakers

That now our loss n
Puc. Wherefore

his friend?

At all times will yo Sleeping, or waking

Or will you blame a Improvident soldier

good,

This sudden mischic
Char. Duke of Al

fault;

That, being captain
Did look no better t

Alen. Had all yo

As that whereof I ha

en thus shamefully surpriz'd.
was secure.

was mine, my lord.
or myself, most part of all this

arter, and mine own precinct,
in passing to and fro,
of the sentinels:
which way, should they first
in?

n, my lords, no further of the [place
way; 'tis sure, they found some arded, where the breach was rests no other shift but this,— oldiers, scatter'd and dispers'd, platforms* to endamage them.

an English SOLDIER, crying, a albot! They fly, leaving their
l.

o bold to take what they have

ot serves me for a sword;
en me with many spoils,
weapon but his name. [Exit.

-Orleans.—Within the Town.

r, BEDFORD, BURGUNDY, a PTAIN, and others.

begins to break, and night is

antle over-veil'd the earth.
eat, and cease our hot pursuit.

[Retreat sounded.
th the body of old Salisbury;
ce it in the market-place,
re of this cursed town.—

d my vow unto his soul;
of blood was drawn from him,
east five Frenchmen died to-fter ages may behold [night.
en'd in revenge of him,
efest temple I'll erect

his corpse shall be interr'd:
, that every one may read,
d the sack of Orleans;
manner of his mournful death,
or he had been to France.

our bloody massacre,
not with the Dauphin's grace;
ampion, virtuous Joan of Arc;
alse confederates.

ight, lord Talbot, when the gan,
idden from their drowsy beds,
gst the troops of armed men,
alls for refuge in the field.

as far as I could well discern,
dusky vapours of the night,
d the Dauphin, and his trull;
n they both came swiftly run-
loving turtle-doves, [uing,
ive asunder day or night.

s are set in order here,
m with all the power we have.

er a MESSENGER.

il, my lords! which of this train

ike Talbot, for his acts
uded through the realm of

Tal. Here is the Talbot; who would speak
with him?

Mess. The virtuous lady, countess of Au-
With modesty admiring thy renown, [vergne,
By me entreats, good lord, thou wouldst vouch-
safe

To visit her poor castle where she lies;*
That she may boast, she hath beheld the man Whose glory fills the world with loud report.

Bar. Is it even so? Nay, then, I see, our wars
Will turn into a peaceful comic sport,
When ladies crave to be encounter'd with.—

You may not, my lord, despise her gentle suit.

Tal. Ne'er trust me then; for, when a world of men

Could not prevail with all their oratory,
Yet hath a woman's kindness over-ruled:—
And therefore tell her, I return great thanks;
And in submission will attend on her.—

Will not your honours bear me company?

Bed. No, truly; it is more than manners will:
And I have heard it said,—Unbidden guests
Are often welcomest when they are gone.

Tal. Well then, alone, since there's no reme-
I mean to prove this lady's courtesy. [dy, Come hither, captain. [Whispers.]—You perceive my mind.

Capt. I do, my lord; and mean accordingly.
[Exeunt.

SCENE III.—Auvergne.—Court of the Castle.

Enter the COUNTESS and her PORTER.

Count. Porter, remember what I gave in charge; [to me.

And, when you have done so, bring the keys
Port. Madam, I will. [Exit.

Count. The plot is laid: if all things fall out
I shall as famous be by this exploit, [right,
As Scythian Thomyris by Cyrus' death.

Great is the rumour of this dreadful knight,
And his achievements of no less account:
Fain would mine eyes be witness with mine
ears,

To give their censur† of these rare reports.

Enter MESSENGER and TALBOT.

Mess. Madam,
According as your ladyship desir'd,
My message crav'd, so is lord Talbot come.

Count. And he is welcome. What! is this the man?

Mess. Madam, it is.
Count. Is this the scourge of France?

Is this the Talbot, so much fear'd abroad,
That with his name the mothers still their
I see, report is fabulous and false: [babes?

I thought, I should have seen some Hercules,
A second Hector, for his grim aspect,
And large proportion of his strong-knit limbs.

Alas! this is a child, a silly dwarf:
It cannot be, this weak and writhled‡ shrimp
Should strike such terror to his enemies.

Tal. Madam, I have been bold to trouble
you:

But, since your ladyship is not at leisure,
I'll sort some other time to visit you.

Count. What means he now?—Go ask him, whither he goes.

Mess. Stay, my lord Talbot; for my lady craves

To know the cause of your abrupt departure.

Tal. Marry, for that she's in a wrong belief,
I go to certify her, Talbot's here.

* I e. Where she dwells.

† For opinion.

‡ Wrinkled.

Re-enter PORTER, with Keys.

Count. If thou be he, then art thou prisoner.
al. Prisoner! to whom?

Count. To me, blood-thirsty lord;
For that cause I train'd thee to my house.
Long time thy shadow hath been thrall to me,
In my gallery thy picture hangs:
Now the substance shall endure the like;
I will chain these legs and arms of thine,
That hast by tyranny, these many years,
Ravaged our country, slain our citizens,
I sent our sons and husbands captivate.

al. Ha, ha, ha!

Count. Laughest thou, wretch! thy mirth shall turn to moan.

al. I laugh to see your ladyship so fond,*
I think that you have aught but Talbot's shadow to practise your severity. [dow,

Count. Why, art not thou the man?

al. I am indeed.

Count. Then have I substance too.

al. No, no, I am but shadow of myself:
You are deceiv'd, my substance is not here;
What you see, is but the smallest part
And least proportion of humanity:
If you, madam, were the whole frame here,
The roof of such a spacious lofty pitch,
Your roof were not sufficient to contain it.

Count. This is a riddling merchant for the nonce;†

How will he be here, and yet he is not here:

How can these contrarieties agree?

al. That will I show you presently.

Sounds a Horn. Drums heard; then a Peal of Ordinance. The Gates being forced, enter Soldiers.

Now say you, madam? are you now persuaded,
That Talbot is but shadow of himself?

These are his substance, sinews, arms, and
strength,

With which he yoketh your rebellious necks;
He razeth your cities, and subverts your towns,
And in a moment makes them desolate.

Count. Victorious Talbot! pardon my abuse:
Indeed, thou art no less than fame hath bruited;‡
And more than may be gather'd by thy shape.
Let my presumption not provoke thy wrath;
For I am sorry, that with reverence
I did not entertain thee as thou art.

Tal. Be not dismay'd, fair lady; nor misconceive the mind of Talbot, as you did mistake [struck]
the outward composition of his body.

What you have done, hath not offended me:
No other satisfaction do I crave,

But only (with your patience,) that we may Taste of your wine, and see what cates you
have;

For soldiers' stomachs always serve them well.

Count. With all my heart: and think me honoured

to feast so great a warrior in my house.

[Exeunt.]

SCENE IV.—London.—The Temple Garden.

Enter the Earls of SOMERSET, SUFFOLK, and WARWICK; RICHARD PLANTAGENET, VER-NON, and another LAWYER.

Plan. Great lords, and gentlemen, what means this silence?

There is no man answer in a case of truth?

Suff. Within the temple hall we were too
The garden here is more convenient. [loud;

* Foolish

† For a purpose—
read loudly

Plan. Then say at
truth;

Or, else, was wrong

Suff. Faith, I have
And never yet could
And, therefore, fra-

Som. Judge you,
between us

War. Between the higher pitch

Between two dogs
Between two blades

temper,

Between two horns
Between two girls

eye,

I have, perhaps, so

But in these nice sh-

Good faith, I am no

Plan. Tut, tut, I
ance:

The truth appears:

That any purblind

Som. And on my

So clear, so shining

That it will glimmer

Plan. Since you s-

to speak,

In dumb significant

Let him, that is a t-

And stands upon ti-

If he suppose that

From off this brier

Som. Let him thi-

terer,

But dare maintain

Pluck a red rose fr-

War. I love no

Of base insinuating

I pluck this white

Suff. I pluck thi-

merset;

And say withal, I

Ver. Stay, lords,

no more,

Till you conclude—

The fewest roses as

Shall yield the other

Som. Good maste-

If I have fewest, I

Plan. And I.

Ver. Then, for the case,

I pluck this pale, a

Giving my verdict

Som. Prick not;

off;

Lest, bleeding, you

And fall on my side

Ver. If I, my lord

Opinion shall be su-

And keep me on the

Som. Well, well,

Law. Unless my s-

The argument you l-

In sign whereof, I

Plan. Now, Som-

ment?

Som. Here, in my

Shall die your white

Plan. Meantime, your roses;

* I.e. Regulate his m-† Tute and deceits: a ‡ Justly proposed

ok with fear, as witnessing
side.

Plantagenet,
but anger,—that thy cheeks
same, to counterfeit our roses;
que will not confess thy error.
thy rose a canker, Somerset?
thy rose a thorn, Planta-

rp and piercing, to maintain [hood.
suming canker eats his false-
'll find friends to wear my
roses,
ain what I have said is true,
ntagenet dare not be seen.
y this maiden blossom in my

thy fashion, pceevish boy.
thy scorns this way, Planta-

Poole, I will; and scorn both
thee.

ny part thereof into thy throa.
away, good William De-la-

[him.
yeoman, by conversing with
y God's will, thou wrong'st
merset;

was Lionel, duke of Clarence,
third Edward king of Eng-

yeomen* from so deep a root?
s him on the place's privilege,†
his craven heart, say thus.

that made me, I'll maintain ds

ground in Christendom:
ather, Richard, earl of Cam-

cuted in our late king's days?
son, stand'st not thou attainted,
exempt† from ancient gentry?
lives guilty in thy blood;
e restor'd, thou art a yeoman.
er was attached, not attainted;
lie for treason, but no traitor;
ove on better men than Somer-

time once ripen'd to my will.
er's Poole, and you yourself,
my book of memory,
for this apprehension: ||
; and say you are well warn'd.
ou shalt find us ready for thee

by these colours, for thy foes;
riends, in spite of thee, shall

by my soul, this pale and angry

of my blood-drinking hate,
and my faction, wear;
with me to the grave,
be height of my degree.
ward, and be chok'd with thy
on!

l, until I meet thee next. [Exit.
with thee, Poole.—Farewell,
ous Richard. [Exit.

am brav'd, and must perforce
it!
plot, that they object against
cuse,

o have no right to arms.
ing a religious house, was a sanctuary.
Confederate. "Opinion.

Shall be wip'd out in the next parliament,
Call'd for the truce of Winchester and G'oster:
And, if thou be not then created York,
I will not live to be accounted Warwick.
Meantime, in signal of my love to thee,
Against proud Somerset, and William Poole,
Will I upon thy party wear this rose:
And here I prophesy.—This brawl to-day,
Grown to this faction, in the Temple garden, Shall send, between the red rose and the
white,

A thousand souls to death and deadly night.

Plan. Good master Vernon, I am bound to
you,

That you on my behalf would pluck a flower.

Ver. In your behalf still will I wear the same.

Law. And so will I.

Plan. Thanks, gentle Sir.

Come let us four to dinner: I dare say,
This quarrel will drink blood another day.

[Exeunt.

SCENE V.—The same.—A Room in the Tower.

Enter MORTIMER, brought in a Chair by two Keepers.

Mor. Kind keepers of my weak decaying
age,

Let dying Mortimer here rest himself.—
Even like a man new haled from the rack,
So fare my limbs with long imprisonment:
And these grey locks, the pursuivants of
death,*

Nestor-like aged, in an age of care,
Argue the end of Edmund Mortimer.

These eyes—like lamps whose wasting oil is spent,—

Wax dim, as drawing to their exigent:†
Weak shoulders, overborne with burd'ning
grief;

And pithless arms, like to a wither'd vine
That droops his sapless branches to the ground:— [numb,

Yet are these feet—whose strengthless stay is Unable to support this lump of clay,—

Swift-winged with desire to get a grave,
As witting I no other comfort have.—

But tell me, keeper, will my nephew come?
I Keep. Richard Plantagenet, my lord, will
come:

We sent unto the Temple, to his chamber;
And answer was return'd that he will come.

Mor. Enough; my soul shall then be satisfied.—

Poor gentleman! his wrong doth equal mine.
Since Henry Monmouth first began to reign,
(Before whose glory I was great in arms,)†
This loathsome sequestration have I had;
And even since then hath Richard been ob-
Depriv'd of honour and inheritance: [scur'd.
But now, the arbitrator of despairs,
Just death, kind umpire‡ of men's miseries,
With sweet enlargement doth dismiss me
hence;

I would, his troubles likewise were expir'd,
That so he might recover what was lost.

Enter RICHARD PLANTAGENET.

I Keep. My lord, your loving nephew now is come.

Mor. Richard Plantagenet, my friend? Is he
come?

* The heralds that, fore running death, proclaim'd his up-
† And.

‡ He who terminates or concludes misery.

Plan. Ay, noble nuncle, thus ignobly us'd,
Your nephew, late-despis'd* Richard, comes.

Mor. Direct mine arms, I may embrace his
neck,

And in his bosom spend my latter gasp:
(O), tell me, when my lips do touch his cheeks,
That I may kindly give one fainting kiss.—

And now declare, sweet stem from York's great stock,

Why didst thou say—of late thou wert despis'd?

Plan. First, lean thine aged back against mine arm;

And, in that ease, I'll tell thee my disease.†

This day, in argument upon a case, [me:

Some words there grew 'twixt Somerset and

Among which terms he used his lavish tongue,

And did upbraid me with my father's death;

Which obloquy set bars before my tongue,

Else with the like I had requited him:

Therefore, good uncle,—for my father's sake,

In honour of a true Plantagenet,

And for alliance' sake,—declare the cause

My father, earl of Cambridge, lost his head.

Mor. That cause, fair nephew, that imprison'd me,

And hath detain'd me, all my flow'ring youth,

Within a loathsome dungeon, there to pine,

Was cursed instrument of his decease.

Plan. Discover more at large what cause that was;

For I am ignorant, and cannot guess.

Mor. I will; if that my fading breath permit,

And death approach not ere my tale be done.

Henry the fourth, grandfather to this king,

Depos'd his nephew Richard; Edward's son,

The first-begotten, and the lawful heir

(Of Edward king, the third of that descent:

During whose reign, the Percies of the north,

Finding his usurpation most unjust,

Endeavour'd my advancement to the throne:

The reason mov'd these warlike lords to this,

Was—for that (young king Richard thus re-
mov'd,

Leaving no heir begotten of his body,)

I was the next by birth and parentage;

For by my mother I derived am

From Lionel duke of Clarence, the third son

To king Edward the third, whereas he,

From John of Gaunt doth bring his pedigree,

Being but fourth of that heroic line.

But mark; as, in this haughty; great attempt,

They laboured to plant the rightful heir,

I lost my liberty, and they their lives.

Long after this, when Henry the fifth,—

Succeeding his father Bolingbroke,—did reign,

Thy father, earl of Cambridge,—then deriv'd

From famous Edmund Langley, duke of York,—

Marrying my sister, that thy mother was,

Again, in pity of my hard distress,

Levied an army; weening; to redeem,

And have install'd me in the diadem:

But, as the rest, so fell that noble earl,

And was beheaded. Thus the Mortimers.

In whom the title rested, were suppress'd.

Plan. Of which, my lord, your honour is the last.

Mor. True; and thou seest, that I no issue
have;

And that my fainting words do warrant death:

Thou art my heir; the rest, I wish thee gather:

But yet be wary in thy studious care.

Plan. Thy grave admonishments prevail with
me:

But yet, methinks
W'as nothing less

Mor. With silent

Strung-fixed is the

And, like a mourn

But now thy uncl

As princes do t

cloy'd

With long contin

Plan. O, uncl

young ye

Might but redeem

Mor. Thou do

slaught'n

Which giveth man

Mourn not, excep

Only, give order

And so farewell;

And prosperous

Plan. And pear

In prison hast th

And like a hermi

Well, I will lock

And what I do in Keepers, convey

Will see his buri

[Exeunt Ke

Here dies the du

Chok'd with am

And, for those w

Which Somerset

I doubt not, but

And therefore he

Either to be rest

Or make my ill

SCENE I.—The

Flourish. Enter

TER, WARWIC

the Bishop of

TAGENET, and

up a Bill;†

tears it.

Win. Com'st

lines,

With written pai

Humphrey of Gl

Or aught intend'

Do it without in

As I with sudden

Purpose to answ

Glo. Presumpt

mands

(Or thou should'

Think not, altho

The manner of t

That therefore I

Verbatim to rehe

No, prelate; suc

ness,

Thy lewd, pestife

As very infants

Thou art a most

Froward by natu

Lascivious, want

A man of thy pro

And for thy trea

In that thou laid'

As well at Lond

Beside, I fear m

* Lately-despised
† High

† Uneasiness, discontent.
‡ Thinking.

* Lucky, prosper
‡ I.e.

reign, is not quite exempt
 of thy swelling heart.
 To defy thee.—Lords, vouchwhat I shall reply. [safe ambitious, or perverse,
 , How am I so poor?
 seek not to advance
 t keep my wonted calling :
 Who preferreth peace
 xcept I be provok'd?
 it is not that offends ;
 hath incens'd the duke :
 e should sway but he ;
 ould be about the king ;
 s thund' in his breast,
 r these accusations forth.
 I am as good—— grandfather!—

 Sir; For what are you, I n another's throne? [pray,
 protector, saucy priest?
 not a prelate of the church?
 outlaw in a castle keeps,
 onage his theft.
 Gloster!

erent
 ial function, not thy life.
 shall remedy.
 r then.
 were your duty to forbear.
 bishop be not overborne.
 y lord should be religious,
 e that belongs to such.
 his lordship should be hum-
 te so to plead. [bler;
 his holy state is touch'd so
 r unhallow'd, what of that?
 tector to the king?
 et, I see, must hold his

rk, sirrah, when you should ;
 ct enter talk with lords?
 t fling at Winchester.

[Aside.
 of Gloster, and of Win-

en of our English weal ;
 prayers might prevail,
 in love and amity.
 s it to our crown,
 e peers as ye, should jar!
 y tender years can tell, ,
 viperous worm,
 els of the commonwealth.—
 own with the tawny coats!

I dare warrant,
 ice of the bishop's men.
 ise again; Stones! Stones!
 R of London, attended.

lords,—and virtuous Hendon, pity us! [ry,— duke of Gloster's men,
 rry any weapon,
 ckets full of pebble-stones;
 selves in contrary parts,
 e another's pate, [out:
 heir giddy brains knock'd
 roke down in every street,
 ompell'd to shut our shops.

the Retainers of GLOSTER
 ER, with bloody pates.

rge you, on allegiance to

To hold your slaughtering hands, and keep the peace.

Pray, uncle Gloster, mitigate this strife.

1 Serv. Nay, if we be [teeth.
 Forbidden stones, we'll fall to it with our

2 Serv. Do what ye dare, we are as resolute.
 [Skirmish again.

Glo. You of my household, leave this peevish
 And set this unaccustom'd* fight aside. [broil,

1 Serv. My lord, we know your grace to be a
 man

Just and upright; and, for your royal birth,
 Inferior to none, but his majesty:
 And ere that we will suffer such a prince,
 So kind a father of the commonweal,
 To be disgraced by an iakhorn mate,†
 We, and our wives, and children, all will fight,
 And have our bodies slaughter'd by thy foes.

2 Serv. Ay, and the very parings of our nails Shall pitch a field, when we are dead.

[Skirmish again.

Glo. Stay, stay, I say!

And, if you love me, as you say you do,
 Let me persuade you to forbear a while.

K. Hen. O, how this discord doth afflict my soul!—

Can you, my lord of Winchester, behold
 My sighs and tears, and will not once relent?
 Who should be pitiful, if you be not?
 Or who should study to prefer a peace,
 If holy churchmen take delight in broils?

War. My lord protector, yield;—yield Winchester;—

Except you mean, with obstinate repulse,
 To slay your sovereign, and destroy the realm.
 You see what mischief, and what murder too,
 Hath been enacted through your enmity;
 Then be at peace, except ye thirst for blood.

Win. He shall submit, or I will never yield.

Glo. Compassion on the king commands me stoop;

Or, I would see his heart out, ere the priest
 Should ever get that privilege of me.

War. Behold, my lord of Winchester, the Hath banish'd moody discontented fury, [duke
 As by his smoothed brows it doth appear:
 Why look you still so stern, and tragical?

Glo. Here, Winchester, I offer thee my hand.

K. Hen. Pie, uncle Beaufort! I have heard
 you preach,

That malice was a great and grievous sin:
 And will not you maintain the thing you teach,
 But prove a chief offender in the same?

War. Sweet king!—The bishop hath a kindly gird.‡

For shame, my lord of Winchester! relent;
 What, shall a child instruct you what to do?

Win. Well, duke of Gloster, I will yield to
 thee;

Love for thy love, and hand for hand I give.

Glo. Ay; but, I fear me, with a hollow
 heart.—

See here, my friends, and loving countrymen;
 This token serveth for a flag of truce,
 Betwixt ourselves, and all our followers:
 So help me God, as I dissemble not!

Win. So help me God, as I intend it not!
 [Aside.

K. Hen. O loving uncle, kind duke of Gloster,
 How joyful am I made by this contract!—

Away, my masters! trouble us no more;
 But join in friendship, as your lords have done.

1 Serv. Content; I'll to the surgeon's.

2 Serv. And so will I.

* Unseemly, indecent.

† This was a term of reproach toward men of learning.

‡ Feels an emotion of kind remorse.

Serv. And I will see what physic the tavern affords.

[Exeunt SERVANTS, MAYOR, &c.]

War. Accept this scroll, most gracious sovereign;

high in the right of Richard Plantagenet, we do exhibit to your majesty.

Glo. Well urg'd, my lord of Warwick;—for, sweet prince,

if your grace mark every circumstance, you have great reason to do Richard right: specially, for those occasions

Eltham-place I told your majesty.

K. Hen. And those occasions, uncle, were of force:

therefore, my loving lords, our pleasure is, that Richard be restored to his blood.

War. Let Richard be restored to his blood; shall his father's wrongs be recompens'd.

Win. As will the rest, so willeth Winchester.

K. Hen. If Richard will be true, not that it all the whole inheritance I give, [alone, that doth belong unto the house of York, from whence you spring by lineal descent.

Plan. Thy humble servant vows obedience, and humble service, till the point of death.

K. Hen. Stoop then, and set your knee against my foot;

and, in requerdon* of that duty done, girt thee with the valiant sword of York:

see, Richard, like a true Plantagenet;

and rise created princely duke of York.

Plan. And so thrive Richard, as thy foes may fall!

and as my duty springs so perish they that grudge one thought against your majesty!

All. Welcome, high prince, the mighty duke of York!

Som. Perish, base prince, ignoble duke of York! [Aside.

Glo. Now will it best avail your majesty, to cross the seas, and to be crown'd in France:

the presence of a king engenders love amongst his subjects, and his loyal friends;

but it disanimates his enemies.

K. Hen. When Gloster says the word, king Henry goes;

or friendly counsel cuts off many foes.

Glo. Your ships already are in readiness.

[Exeunt all but EXETER.]

Exe. Ay, we may march in England, or in it seeing what is likely to ensue: [France, is late dissention, grown betwixt the peers, burns under feigned ashes of forg'd love,

and will at last break out into a flame:

the fester'd members rot but by degrees,

all bones, and flesh, and sinews, fall away,

and will this base and envious discord breed.

and now I fear that fatal prophecy,

which, in the time of Henry, nam'd the fifth,

was in the mouth of every sucking babe,—

that Henry, born at Monmouth, should win all;

and Henry, born at Windsor, should lose all:

which is so plain, that Exeter doth wish

his days may finish ere that hapless time.

[Exit.

SCENE II.—France.—Before Roüen.

Enter LA PUCELLE disguised, and SOLDIERS dressed like Countrymen, with Sacks upon their backs.

Puc. These are the city gates, the gates of Roüen,

* Recompense.

Through which our Take heed, be we words;

Talk like the vulgar That come to gather

If we have entrance And that we find th

I'll by a sign give n That Charles the

them.

I Sold. Our sack the city,

And we be lords an Therefore we'll kne

Guard. [Within.]

Puc. Peisants, po Poor market-folks

corn.

Guard. Enter, g rung.

Puc. Now, Roüen to the grou

[I

Enter CHARLES, BASTARD

Char. Saint Denis gem!

And once again we

Bast. Here enter tisans;*

Now she is there, t

Where is the best a

Alen. By thrustin tower;

Which, once discern ing is,—

No way to that,t

Enter LA PUCELLE out a'

Puc. Behold, th torch,

That joineth Roüen But burning fatal t

Bast. See, noble friend,

The burning torch i

Char. Now shine A prophet to the fa

Alen. Defer no tir ends;

Enter, and cry—Th

And then do execu

Alarums. Enter TALBOT

Tal. France, the with thy tet

If Talbot but surviv

Pucelle, that witch.

Hath wrought this

That hardly we esci

Alarum: Excursion

BEDFORD, brought

TALBOT, BURGUNDY

Then, enter on

CHARLES, BASTARD

Puc. Good morrow

for bread?

I think, the duke of

* Confeder

† I. e. No way equal to in at such a rate:

; Do you like the taste?
fend, and shameless cour-

shoke thee with thine own,
e the harvest of that corn.
may starve, perhaps, be-

is, but deeds, revenge this

ou do, good grey-beard?

ce,
ath within a chair?

France, and bag of all de-

ry lustful paramours!

tunt his valiant age,

rdice a man half dead?

out with you again,

rish with this shame.

hot, Sir?—Yet, Pucelle,

ice;

nder, rain will follow.—

d the rest, consult together.

ament! who shall be the forth, and meet us in the lordship takes us then for n be ours, or no.

that railing Hecate,

con, and the rest;

s, come and fight it out?

ng!—base muleteers of

ys do they keep the walls,

p arms like gentlemen.

vay: let's get us from the goodness, by his looks.—

lord! we came, Sir, but

ELLE, &c. from the Walls.

ll we be too, ere it be long,

Talbot's greatest fame!—

honour of thy house,

olic wrongs, sustain'd in vn again, or die:

English Henry lives,

re was conqueror;

te-betrayed town

's heart was buried;

get the town, or die.

e equal partners with thy

, regard this dying prince,

Bedford:—Come, my lord,

in some better place,

and for crazy age.

do not so dishonour me:

e the walls of Roüen,

of your weal, or woe.

Bedford, let us now per-

one from hence; for once

on, in his litter, sick,

nd vanquished his foes:

revive the soldiers' hearts,

nd them as myself.

pirit in a dying breast!—

ceavens keep old Bedford

And now no more ado, brave Burgundy,
But gather we our forces out of hand,
And set upon our boasting enemy.

[Exeunt BURGUNDY, TALBOT, and Forces, leaving BEDFORD, and others.]

Alarums: Excursions. Enter Sir JOHN FASTOLFE, and a CAPTAIN.

Cap. Whither away, Sir John Fastolfe, in such haste?

Fast. Whither away? to save myself by
flight;

We are like to have the overthrow again.

Cap. What! will you fly, and leave lord Talbot?

Fast. Ay,

All the Talbots in the world to save my life.

[Exit.

Cap. Cowardly knight! ill fortune follow
thee!

[Exit.

Retreat: Excursions. Enter from the Town, La PUCELLE, ALENÇON, CHARLES, &c. and Ex-
eunt, flying.

Bed. Now, quiet soul, depart when heaven
please;

For I have seen our enemies' overthrow.

What is the trust or strength of foolish man?

They, that of late were daring with their scoffs,

Are glad and fain by flight to save themselves.

[Dies, and is carried off in his Chair.

Alarm: Enter TALBOT, BURGUNDY, and others.

Tal. Lost, and recover'd in a day again!

This is a double honour, Burgundy:

Yet, heavens have glory for this victory!

Bar. Warlike and martial Talbot, Burgundy

Enshrines thee in his heart; and there erects

Thy noble deeds, as valour's monument.

Tal. Thanks, gentle duke. But where is Pucelle now?

I think, her old familiar is asleep:

Now where's the Bastard's braves, and Charles his gleeks?

What, all a-mort?† Roüen hangs her head

for grief,

That such a valiant company are fled.

Now will we take some order† in the town,

Placing therein some expert officers;

And then depart to Paris, to the king;

For there young Harry, with his nobles, lies.

Bar. What wills lord Talbot, pleaseth Burgundy.

Tal. But yet, before we go, let's not forget

The noble duke of Bedford, late deceas'd,

But see his exequies‡ fulfill'd in Roüen;

A braver soldier never couched lance,

A gentler heart did never sway in court:

But kings and mightiest potentates must die;

For that's the end of human misery. [Exeunt.

SCENE III.—The same.—The Plains near the City.

Enter CHARLES, the BASTARD, ALENÇON, La

PUCELLE, and Forces.

Puc. Dismay not, princes, at this accident,

Nor grieve that Roüen is so recovered:

Care is no cure, but rather corrosive,

For things that are not to be remedied.

Let frantic Talbot triumph for a while,

And like a peacock sweep along his tail;

We'll pull his plumes, and take away his train,

If Dauphin, and the rest, will be but rul'd.

† Scoff.

‡ Make some necessary dispositions.

† Quite dispirited.

‡ Funeral rites.

Char. We have been guided by thee hitherto,
And of thy cunning had no diffidence;
No sudden foil shall never breed distrust.

Bast. Search out thy wit for secret policies,
And we will make thee famous through the world.

Alen. We'll set thy statue in some holy place,
And have thee reverenc'd like a blessed saint;
Employ thee then, sweet virgin, for our good.

Puc. Then thus it must be; this doth Joan
devise:

By fair persuasions, mix'd with sugar'd words,
She will entice the duke of Burgundy
To leave the Talbot, and to follow us.

Char. Ay, marry, sweeting, if we could do
that,

France were no place for Henry's warriors;
Or should that nation boast it so with us,
That be extirp'd* from our provinces.

Alen. For ever should they be expuls'd† from France.

And not have title to an earldom here.

Puc. Your honours shall perceive how I will work.

I bring this matter to the wished end.

[Drums heard.]

Mark! by the sound of drum, you may perceive
Their powers are marching unto Paris-ward.

English March. Enter, and pass over at a distance, TALBOT and his Forces.

Here goes the Talbot, with his colours spread;
And all the troops of English after him.

French March. Enter the duke of BURGUNDY and Forces.

Now, in the rearward, comes the duke, and
his;

Fortune, in favour, make him lag behind.

Summon a parley, we will talk with him.

[A Parley sounded.]

Char. A parley with the duke of Burgundy.

Bar. Who craves a parley with the Burgundy?

Puc. The princely Charles of France, thy countryman.

Bar. What say'st thou, Charles? for I am marching hence.

Char. Speak, Pucelle; and enchant him with thy words.

Puc. Brave Burgundy, undoubted hope of France!

Say, let thy humble handmaid speak to thee.

Bar. Speak on; but be not over-tedious.

Puc. Look on thy country, look on fertile
France,

And see the cities and the towns defac'd

By wasting ruin of the cruel foe!

Behold the mother on her lowly babe,

When death doth close his tender dying eyes,

Behold, see, the pining malady of France;

Behold the wounds, the most unnatural wounds,
Which thou thyself hast given her woful breast!

Turn thy edged sword another way; [help!]

Strike those that hurt, and hurt not those that

Drop a drop of blood, drawn from thy country's bosom,

Could grieve thee more than streams of foreign

Turn thee, therefore, with a flood of tears,

And wash away thy country's stained spots!

Bar. Either she hath bewitch'd me with her words,

Nature makes me suddenly relent.

Puc. Besides, all French and France exclaims on thee,

Doubting thy birth
Who join'st thou with
That will not trust
When Talbot hath
And fashion'd thee
Who then, but Engli
And thou be thrust
Call we to mind,—
proof;—

Was not the duke of
And was he not in
But, when they hear
They set him free, v
In spite of Burgund
See then! thou fight'
And join'st with th
men,

Come, come, return
Charles, and the re
arms.

Bar. I am vanquis
of hers

Have batter'd me li
And made me almo
Forgive me, country
And, lords, accept
My forces and my
So, farewell, Talbo

Puc. Done like a
again!

Char. Welcome, I
makes us f

Bast. And doth
breasts.

Alen. Pucelle ha
in this,

And doth deserve a

Char. Now let us
powers;

And seek how we

SCENE IV.—Paris

Enter King HENRY
VERNON, BASSET,
some of his Officers

Tal. My gracious peers,—

Hearing of your ar

I have a while give

To do my duty to n

In sign whereof, th

To your obedience

Twelve cities, and

Beside five hundred

Lets fall his sword

And, with submissi

Ascribes the glory

First to my God, at

K. Hen. Is this t

ter,

That hath so long b

Glo. Yes, if it ple

K. Hen. Welcom

rious lord!

When I was young

I do remember how

A stouter champion

Long since we were

Your faithful servit

Yet never have you

(Or been requerdon'

Because till now w

* Rooted out.

† Expelled.

* Elevated. † Confidant.

and up; and, for these good de-

te you earl of Shrewsbury;
coronation take your place.

King HENRY, GLOSTER, TALBOT,
Nobles.

Sir, to you, that were so hot at these colours, that I wear [sea,
my noble lord of York,— maintain the former words thou
st?

Sir; as well as you dare patronage
marking of your saucy tongue toward the duke of Somerset.

thy lord I honour as he is.
what is he? as good a man as ye; not so: in witness, take ye

[Strikes him.
n, thou know'st, the law of arms
ch,

draws a sword, 'tis present death;
blow should broach thy dearest
his majesty, and crave [blood.
berty to 'venge this wrong;
halt see, I'll meet thee to thy cost.
miscreant, I'll be there as soon as meet you sooner than you would.

[Exeunt.

ACT IV.

—The same.—A Room of State.

HENRY, GLOSTER, EXETER, YORK,
SOMERSET, WINCHESTER, WAR-BOT, the GOVERNOR of Paris, and bishop, set the crown upon his save king Henry, of that name the overnor of Paris, take your oath,—

[GOVERNOR kneels.
st no other king but him:

friends, but such as are his friends;
or foes, but such as shall pretend actices against his state:

do, so help you righteous God!

[Exeunt Gov. and his Train.

ter Sir JOHN FASTOLFE.

gracious sovereign, as I rode from your coronation, [Calais,

deliver'd to my hands,
grace from the duke of Burgundy.

e to the duke of Burgundy, and [next,

the knight, when I did meet thee
arter from thy craven'st leg,

[Plucking it off.

re done) because unworthily
stalled in that high degree.—

princely Henry, and the rest:
at the battle of Patay,

all I was six thousand strong,
French were almost ten to one,—

et, or that a stroke was given,
sty squire, did run away;

sult we lost twelve hundred men;
divers gentlemen beside,

surpris'd, and taken prisoners.
great lords, if I have done amiss;

that such cowards ought to wear
nt of knighthood, yea, or no.

Glo. To say the truth, this fact was infamous,
And ill beseeeming any common man;
Much more a knight, a captain, and a leader.

Tal. When first this order was ordain'd, my
lords,

Knights of the garter were of noble birth;
Valiant, and virtuous, full of haughty* courage,
Such as were grown to credit by the wars;
Not fearing death, nor shrinking for distress,
But always resolute in most extremes.†

He then, that is not furnish'd in this sort,
Doth but usurp the sacred name of knight,
Profaning this most honourable order;
And should (if I were worthy to be judge,)
Be quite degraded, like a hedge-born swain
That doth presume to boast of gentle blood.

K. Hen. Stain to thy countrymen! thou bear'st thy doom:

Be packing therefore, thou that wast a knight;
Henceforth we banish thee, on pain of death.—

[Exit FASTOLFE.

And now, my lord protector, view the letter
Sent from our uncle duke of Burgundy.

Glo. What means his grace, that he hath chang'd his style?

[Viewing the superscription.

No more but, plain and bluntly,—To the king?
Hath he forgot, he is his sovereign?

Or doth this churlish superscription
Pretend some alteration in good will?

What's here?—I have, upon especial cause,—

[Reads.

Mov'd with compassion of my country's wreck,
Together with the pitiful complaints
Of such as your oppression feeds upon,—

Forsaken your pernicious faction, [France.
And join'd with Charles, the rightful king of

O monstrous treachery! Can this be so;
That in alliance, amity, and oaths, [guile?

There should be found such false dissembling
K. Hen. What! doth my uncle Burgundy revolt?

Glo. He doth, my lord; and is become your

foe.
K. Hen. Is that the worst, this letter doth contain?

Glo. It is the worst, and all, my lord, he writes.

K. Hen. Why then, lord Talbot there shall talk with him,

And give him chastisement for this abuse:—

My lord, how say you? are not you content?
Tal. Content, my liege! Yes; but that I am prevented,‡ [ploy'd.

I should have begg'd I might have been em-

K. Hen. Then gather strength, and march unto him straight: [son;

Let him perceive, how ill we brook his trea-
And what offence it is, to flout his friends.

Tal. I go, my lord; in heart desiring still,
You may behold confusion of your foes. [Exit.

Enter VERNON and BASSET.

Ver. Grant me the combat, gracious sovereign!

Bas. And me, my lord, grant me the combat
too!

York. This is my servant; Hear him, noble
prince!

Som. And this is mine; Sweet Henry, favour
him!

K. Hen. Be patient, lords; and give them leave to speak.—

Say, gentlemen, What makes you thus exclaim.

* High.

† Design.

‡ I. e. In greatest extremities.

§ Anticipated.

† Mean, dastardly

I wherefore crave you combat? or with whom?

cr. With him, my lord; for he hath done me wrong.

as. And I with him; for he hath done me wrong.

. Hen. What is that wrong whereof you both complain?

It let me know, and then I'll answer you.

as. Crossing the sea from England into France,

A fellow here, with envious carping tongue, braided me about the rose I wear;

Saying—the sanguine colour of the leaves

represent my master's blushing cheeks,

And stubbornly he did repugn* the truth,

And put a certain question in the law,

And betwixt the duke of York and him;

And other vile and ignominious terms:

Confutation of which rude reproach,

I in defence of my lord's worthiness,

Have the benefit of law of arms.

cr. And that is my petition, noble lord:

Though he seem, with forged quaint conceit, a gloss upon his bold intent, [ceit,

I know, my lord, I was provok'd by him;

And he first took exceptions at this badge,

Denouncing—that the paleness of this flower

betray'd the faintness of my master's heart.

York. Will not this malice, Somerset, be left?

as. Your private grudge, my lord of York, will out,

Though ne'er so cunningly you smother it.

. Hen. Good lord! what madness rules in brain-sick men;

For so slight and frivolous a cause,

Such factious emulations shall arise!—

And cousins both, of York and Somerset,

Set yourselves, I pray, and be at peace.

York. Let this dissention first be tried by fight,

And then your highness shall command a peace.

as. The quarrel toucheth none but us alone;

And betwixt ourselves let us decide it then.

York. There is my pledge; accept it, Somerset.

cr. Nay, let it rest where it began at first.

as. Confirm it so, mine honourable lord.

Ho. Confirm it so? Confounded be your strife!

I perish ye, with your audacious prate!

Such sumptuous vassals! are you not asham'd,

That this immodest clamorous outrage

Trouble and disturb the king and us?

I you, my lords,—methinks, you do not

Bear with their perverse objections; [well,

Which less, to take occasion from their mouths

Raise a mutiny betwixt yourselves;

And I will persuade you take a better course.

as. It grieves his highness;—Good my lords; be friends.

. Hen. Come hither, you that would be combatants: [favour,

And for this causeforth, I charge you, as you love our

State to forget this quarrel, and the cause.—

I you, my lords,—remember where we are;

France, amongst a fickle wavering nation:

They perceive dissention in our looks,

And that within ourselves we disagree,

And will their grudging stomachs be provok'd

To wilful disobedience, and rebel?

Ho. What infamy will there arise,

When foreign princes shall be certified,

* Resist.

† Betrayed,

That, for a toy, a trifle,
King Henry's peers,
Destroy'd themselves
France?

O, think upon the cost
My tender years: and
That for a trifle, that Let me be umpire in
I see no reason, if I

That any one should
I more incline to so
Both are my kinsmen
As well they may Because, forsooth, that
But your discretion
Than I am able to
And therefore, as we
So let us still continue Cousin of York, we
To be our regent in
And good my lord
Your troops of horse
foot;—

And, like true subjects
Go cheerfully together
Your angry choler
Ourself, my lord pray
After some respite,
From thence to England
To be presented, by
With Charles, Ale
rout.

[Flourish. Exeunt
WIN.

War. My lord of
king

Prettily, methought York. And so he

In that he wears the War. Tush! that

him not;

I dare presume, swear York. And, if I

rest;

Other affairs must needs

[Exeunt YORK

Exc. Well didst thou
thy voice:

For, had the passion

I fear we should have

More rancorous spirit

Than yet can be imagined

But howsoever, no sign

This jarring discord

This should ring of

This factious bandying

But that it doth press

'Tis much,* when

hands;

But more, when

There comes the ruin

SCENE II.—FRANCE

Enter TALBOT

Tal. Go to the gate
peter,

Summon their generals

Trumpet sounds a Parley
the GENERAL of the English John Talbot,

Servant in arms to Henry

And thus he would,—

* To arms

† Fidelity.

call my sovereign yours,
age as obedient subjects,
w me and my bloody power:
upon this proffer'd peace,
ry of my three attendants,
artering steel, and climbing

at, even with the earth
ately and air-braving towers,
e offer of their love.
ous and fearful owl of death,
or, and their bloody scourge!
r tyranny approacheth.

not enter, but by death:
e are well fortified,
gh to issue out and fight:
Dauphin, well appointed,
mares of war to tangle thee:
thee there are squadrous

the liberty of flight;
t thou turn thee for redress,
out thee with apparent spoil,
tion meets thee in the face.
rench have ta'en the sacra-
gerous artillery [ment,

n soul but English Talbot.
tand'st, a breathing valiant inconquer'd spirit: [man,
glory of thy praise,
r, due^e thee withal;

that now begins to run,
s of his sandy hour,
ee thee now well coloured,
er'd, bloody, pale, and dead.

[Drum afar off.
Dauphin's drum, a warning
to thy timorous soul; [bell,
ng thy dire departure out.

GENERAL, &c. from the Walls.
ot, I hear the enemy;—
horsemen, and peruse their heedless discipline!

d, and bounded in a pale;
gland's timorous deer,
ing kennel of French curs!
leer, be then in blood:†
o fall down with a pinch;
mad, and desperate stags,
y bounds with heads of steel,
wards stand aloof at bay:

life as dear as mine,
ind dear deer of us, my

George! Talbot, and Eng-
it!
rs in this dangerous fight!

[Exeunt.

[—Plains in Gascony.

Forces; to him a MESSENGER.

the speedy scouts return'd

ighty army of the Dauphin?
eturn'd, my lord; and give

[power,
d to Bourdeaux with his
ot: As he march'd along,
ere discovered

s than that the Dauphin led;
him, and made their march aux.

† In high spirits.
term of chase for deer and deer.

York. A plague upon that villain Somerse-
That thus delays my promised supply
Of horsemen, that were levied for this siege
Renowned Talbot doth expect my aid;
And I am lowted^e by a traitor villain,
And cannot help the noble chevalier:
God comfort him in this necessity!
If he miscarry, farewell wars in France.

Enter Sir WILLIAM LUCY.

Lucy. Thou princely leader of our English
strength,

Never so needful on the earth of France,
Spur to the rescue of the noble Talbot;
Who now is girdled with a waist of iron,
And hemm'd about with grim destruction:
To Bourdeaux, warlike duke! to Bourdeaux,
York!

Else, farewell Talbot, France, and England's
honour.

York. O God! that Somerset—who in proud
heart

Doth stop my cornets—were in Talbot's place!
So should we save a valiant gentleman,
By forfeiting a traitor and a coward.

Mad ire, and wrathful fury, makes me weep,
That thus we die, while remiss traitors sleep.

Lucy. O, send some succour to the distress'd
lord!

York. He dies, we lose; I break my warlike
word:

We mourn, France smiles; we lose, they daily
All 'long of this vile traitor Somerset. [get;

Lucy. Then, God take mercy on brave Tal-bot's soul! [since,

And on his son, young John; whom two hours
I met in travel toward his warlike father!

This seven years did not Talbot see his son;
And now they meet where both their lives are
done.†

York. Alas! what joy shall noble Talbot
have,

To bid his young son welcome to his grave?
Away! vexation almost stops my breath,
That sunder'd friends greet in the hour of
death.—

Lucy, farewell: no more my fortune can,
But curse the cause I cannot aid the man.—
Maine, Blois, Poitiers, and Tours, are won
away,

'Long all of Somerset, and his delay. [Exit.

Lucy. Thus, while the vulture† of sedition
Feeds in the bosom of such great commanders,
Sleeping neglect doth betray to loss
The conquest of our scarce-cold conqueror,
That ever-living man of memory,
Henry the fifth:—Whiles they each other cross,
Lives, honours, lands, and all, hurry to loss.

[Exit.

SCENE IV.—Other Plains of Gascony.

Enter SOMERSET, with his Forces; an OFFICER of TALBOT's with him.

Som. It is too late; I cannot send them now;
This expedition was by York, and Talbot,
Too rashly plotted; all our general force
Might with a sally of the very town
Be buckled with: the over-daring Talbot
Hath sullied all his gloss of former honour,
By this unheedful, desperate, wild adventure:
York set him on to fight, and die in shame,
That, Talbot dead, great York might bear the
name.

Off. Here is Sir William Lucy, who with me
Set from our o'er-match'd forces forth for aid.

* Vanquished, bruted

* Expended, consumed.

† Alluding to the tale of Prometheus.

Enter Sir WILLIAM LUCY.

Som. How now, Sir William? whither were you sent?

Lucy. Whither, my lord? from bought and sold lord Talbot;^a

Who, ring'd about with bold adversity,
Cries out for noble York and Somerset,
To beat assailing death from his weak legions.
And whiles the honourable captain there
Drops bloody sweat from his war-wearied limbs,

And, in advantage ling'ring, looks for rescue,
You, his false hopes, the trust of England's honour,

Keep off aloof with worthless emulation.

Let not your private discord keep away
The levied succours that should lend him aid,

While he, renowned noble gentleman,
Yields up his life unto a world of odds:

Orleans the Bastard, Charles, and Burgundy, Alençon, Reignier, compass him about,

And Talbot perisheth by your default.

Som. York set him on, York should have sent him aid.

Lucy. And York as fast upon your grace exclaims;

Swearing that you withhold his levied host,
Collected for this expedition.

Som. York lies; he might have sent and had the horse:

I owe him little duty, and less love; [ing.
And take foul scorn, to fawn on him by send-

Lucy. The fraud of England, not the force of France,

Hath now entrapp'd the noble-minded Talbot:
Never to England shall he bear his life;

But dies, betrayed to fortune by your strife.

Som. Come, go; I will despatch the horsemen straight:

Within six hours they will be at his aid.

Lucy. Too late comes rescue: he is ta'en, or slain:

For fly he could not, if he would have fled;

And fly would Talbot never, though he might.

Som. If he be dead, brave Talbot then adieu!

Lucy. His fame lives in the world, his shame in you. [Exeunt.

SCENE V.—The English Camp, near Bour-deux.

Enter TALBOT and JOHN his Son.

Tal. O young John Talbot! I did send for To tutor thee in stratagems of war; [thee,
That Talbot's name might be in thee reviv'd,
When supless age, and weak unable limbs,
Should bring thy father to his drooping chair.

But,—() malignant and ill-boding stars!—
Now thou art come unto a feast of death,†
A terrible and unavoided‡ danger: [horse;

Therefore, dear boy, mount on my swiftest
And I'll direct thee how thou shalt escape

By sudden flight: come, dally not, be gone.

John. Is my name Talbot? and am I your son?

And shall I fly? O, if you love my mother,

Dishonour not her honourable name,

To make a bastard and a slave of me:

The world will say—He is not Talbot's blood,
That basely fled, when noble Talbot stood.

Tal. Fly, to revenge my death, if I be slain.

John. He, that flies so, will ne'er return again.

^a I. e. From one utterly ruined by the treacherous practices of others.

[†] Encircled.

[‡] I'm a field where death will be feasted with slaughter.

[§] For unavoidable.

Tal. If we both of John. Then let me fly:

Your loss is great,
My worth unknown

Upon my death the In yours they will,

Flight cannot stain But mine it will, if

You fled for vanta But, if I bow, they

There is no hope if If, the first hour, I

Here, on my knee, Rather than life p

Tal. Shall all th tomb?

John. Ay, rather womb.

Tal. Upon my b John. To fight I

Tal. Part of thy John. No part c

me.

Tal. Thou neve not lose i

John. Yes, yo flight ab

Tal. Thy fathe from th

John. You ca slain.

If death be so ap Tal. And leavi and die? My age was neve

John. And sha blame?

No more can I be Than can yoursel

Stay, go, do wha For live I will ne

Tal. Then here Born to eclipse t

Come, side by si And soul with fly.

SCENE

Alarm: Excurs hemmed about

Tal. Saint Geoi fight:

The regent bath And left us to th

Where is John T breath;

I gave thee life, John. O twice

son:

The life, thou f Till with thy wa

To my determin Tal. When fr sword st

It warm'd thy fa Of bold fac'd vic

Quicken'd with rage,

Beat down Alen And from the pri

The ireful bastard From thee, my b

(Of thy first fight

^a Your care of you ng blows, I quickly shed

rd blood; and, in disgrace, Contaminated, base,
lood I spill of thine,
or; for that pure blood of mine,
force from Talbot, my brave

he Bastard to destroy, rescue. Speak, thy father's

y, John? How dost thou fare?
re the battle, boy, and fly,
I'd the son of chivalry?
y death, when I am dead;
ands me in little stead.
is it, well I wot,
lives in one small boat.
t with Frenchmen's rage,
I die with mickle age:
ig gain, an if I stay,
ning of my life one day:
rdies, our household's name,
ge, thy youth, and England's

re, we hazard by thy stay;
I, if thou wilt fly away.
d of Orleans hath not made
[heart:
urs draw life-blood from my
s, bought with such a shame,
life, and slay bright fame,
bot from old Talbot fly,
that bears me, fall and die:
he peasant boys of France;
n, and subject of mischance!
glory you have won,
ot Talbot's son:
e of flight, it is no boot;
lie at Talbot's foot.
n thou thy desperate sire of life to me is sweet:

fight by thy father's side;
le prov'd, let's die in pride.
[Exeunt.

—Another part of the same.

ms. Enter TALBOT wounded,
led by a SERVANT.

ny other life?—mine own is [John?—
g Talbot? where is valiant I, smear'd with captivity!†
four makes me smile at thee:
I me shrink, and on my knee,
he brandish'd over me,
ry lion, did commence
age, and stern impatience;
ry guardant stood alone,
I,† and assail'd of none,
and great rage of heart,
im from my side to start
g battle of the French:
f blood my boy did dreuch spirit; and there died
ossom, in his pride.

bearing the Body of JOHN TALBOT.

r lord! lo, where your son is ic death, which laugh'st us
orn,

me to a level with
dihonoured with captivity.
th tenderness in my fall."

Anon, from thy insulting tyranny,
Coupled in bonds of perpetuity,
Two Talbots, winged through the lither* sky,
In thy despite, shall 'scape mortality.—
O thou whose wounds become hard-favour'd
death,

Speak to thy father, ere thou yield thy breath:
Brave death by speaking, whether he will, or
no;

Imagine him a Frenchman, and thy foe.—
Poor boy! he smiles, methinks; as who should say—

[to-day.
Had death been French, then death had died
Come, come, and lay him in his father's arms;
My spirit can no longer bear these harms.
Soldiers, adieu! I have what I would have,
Now my old arms are young John Talbot's grave. [Dies.

Alarums. Exeunt Soldiers and Servant, leaving the two Bodies. Enter CHARLES, ALENÇON, BURGUNDY, BASTARD, LA PUCELLE, and Forces.

Char. Had York and Somerset brought rescue in,
We should have found a bloody day of this.

Bast. How the young whelp of Talbot's, raging-wood,† [blood!

Did flesh his puny sword in Frenchmen's Puc. Once I encounter'd him, and thus I
said,

Thou maiden youth, be vanquish'd by a maid:
But—with a proud, majestic high scorn,—
He answer'd thus; Young Talbot was not born
To be the pillage of a giglot; wench:
So, rushing in the bowels of the French,
He left me proudly as unworthy fight.

Bur. Doubtless, he would have made a noble
knight:

See, where he lies inhered in the arms
Of the most bloody nurser of his harms.

Bast. Hew them to pieces, hack their bones asunder; [der.

Whose life was England's glory, Gallia's won-Char. O, no; forbear: for that which we have fled

During the life, let us not wrong it dead.

Enter Sir WILLIAM LUCY, attended; a French
Herald preceding.

Lucy. Herald,
Conduct me to the Dauphin's tent; to know
Who hath obtain'd the glory of the day.

Char. On what submissive message art thou
sent?

Lucy. Submission, Dauphin? 'tis a mere French word;

We English warriors wot not what it means.
I come to know what prisoners thou hast ta'en,
And to survey the bodies of the dead.

Char. For prisoners ask'st thou? hell our prison is.

But tell me whom thou seek'st.

Lucy. Where is the great Alcides of the field,
Valiant lord Talbot, earl of Shrewsbury?
Created, for his rare success in arms, [lence;
Great earl of Washford, Waterford, and Va-
Lord Talbot of Goodrig and Urchingfield, Lord Strange of Blackmere, lord Verdun of Alton, [Sheffield,

Lord Cromwell of Wingfield, lord Furnival of
The thrice victorious lord of Falconbridge;
Knight of the noble order of Saint George,
Worthy saint Michael, and the golden fleece;

* Flexible, yielding. † Raving mad. ‡ Wanton.

eat mareschal to Henry the sixth,
 all his wars within the realm of France?
Puc. Here is a silly stately style indeed!
 e Turk, that two and fifty kingdoms hath,
 rites not so tedious a style as this.—
 m, that thou magnifiest with all these titles,
 nking, and fly-blown, lies here at our feet.
Lacy. Is Talbot slain; the Frenchmen's only scourge.
 ur kingdom's terror and black Nemesis?
 were mine eye-balls into bullets turn'd,
 at I, in rage, might shoot them at your
 faces!
 that I could but call these dead to life!
 were enough to fright the realm of France:
 re but his picture left among you here,
 would amaze the proudest of you all.
 re me their bodies; that I may bear them
 hence,
 d give them burial as beseems their worth.
Puc. I think, this upstart is old Talbot's ghost,
 : speaks with such a proud commanding
 spirit.
 r God's sake, let him have 'em; to keep them here,
 ey would but stink, and putrify the air.
Char. Go, take their bodies hence.
Lacy. I'll bear them hence:
 it from their ashes shall be rear'd
 phornix that shall make all France afeard.
Char. So we be rid of them, do with 'em
 what thou wilt.
 d now to Paris, in this conquering vein;
 I will be ours, now bloody Talbot's slain.
 [Exeunt.]

ACT V.

SCENE I.—London.—A Room in the Palace.

Enter King HENRY, GLOSTER, and EXETER.

K. Hen. Have you perus'd the letters from the pope,
 e emperor, and the earl of Armagnac?
Glo. I have, my lord; and their intent is
 this,—
 ey humbly sue unto your excellence,
 have a godly peace concluded of,
 tween the realms of England and of France.
K. Hen. How doth your grace affect their motion?
Glo. Well, my good lord; and as the only means
 stop effusion of our Christian blood,
 d 'stablish quietness on every side.
K. Hen. Ay, marry, uncle; for I always
 thought,
 was both impious and unnatural,
 at such immanity† and bloody strife
 ould reign among professors of one faith.
Glo. Beside, my lord,—the sooner to effect,
 d surer bind, this knot of amity,—
 e earl of Armagnac—near knit to Charles,
 man of great authority in France,— offers his only daughter to your grace marriage, with a large and sumptuous
 dowry.
K. Hen. Marriage, uncle! alas! my years
 are young;
 id fitter is my study and my books,
 an wanton dalliance with a paramour.
 t, call the ambassadors; and, as you
 please,
 let them have their answers every one:

Confound

† Barbarity, savageness.

I shall be well content
 Tends to God's glory

Enter a LEGATE, and WINCHESTER, and

Exc. What! is he stall'd,
 And call'd unto a
 Then, I perceive, th
 Henry the fifth did
 If once he come to be He'll make his cap co
K. Hen. My lords
 ral suits
 Have been consider
 Your purpose is bot
 And, therefore, are
 To draw conditions
 Which, by my lord
 Shall be transported Glo. And for the
 master,—
 I have inform'd his
 As—liking of the la
 Her beauty, and the
 He doth intend she
K. Hen. In argu
 contract,
 Bear her this jewel,
 my affection
 And so, my lord pr
 And safely brough
 shipp'd,
 Commit them to the [Exeunt King H EXETER, and Win. Stay, my lo receive

The sum of money,
 Should be deliver'd
 For clothing me in t
Lcg. I will attend
 sure.

Win. Now, Winc
 Or be inferior to the Humphrey of Glos
 ceive,
 That, neither in bir
 The bishop will be c
 I'll either make thee
 Or sack this country

SCENE II.—Fr

Enter CHARLES, B PUCELLE, and

Char. These news,
 drooping spi
 'Tis said, the stout F
 And turn again unto Alen. Then march
 France,
 And keep not back y Puc. Peace be an
 to us;
 Else, ruin combat wi

Enter a

Mess. Success unto
 And happiness to his Char. What tidings
 thee, speak.
Mess. The English
 Into two parts, is now
 And means to give y

Char. Somewhat too sudden, Sirs, the warning is;

But we will presently provide for them.

Bar. I trust, the ghost of Talbot is not there; Now he is gone, my lord, you need not fear.

Puc. Of all base passions, fear is most accurs'd:—

Command the conquest, Charles, it shall be [thine; Let Henry fret, and all the world repine.

Char. Then on, my lords; And France be fortunate! [Exeunt.

SCENE III.—The same.—Before Angiers.

Alarums: Excursions. Enter LA PUCELLE.

Puc. The regent conquers, and the Frenchmen fly.—

Now help, ye charming spells, and periapts;* And ye choice spirits that admonish me, And give me signs of future accidents!

[Thunder.

You speedy helpers, that are substitutes Under the lordly monarch of the north,† Appear, and aid me in this enterprize!

Enter Fiends.

This speedy quick appearance argues proof Of your accustom'd diligence to me.

Now, ye familiar spirits, that are cull'd Out of the powerful regions under earth, Help me this once, that France may get the field. [They walk about, and speak not.

O, hold me not with silence over-long! Where I was wont to feed you with my blood, I'll lop a member off, and give it you, In earnest of a further benefit; So you do condescend to help me now.—

[They hang their heads.

No hope to have redress?—My body shall Pay recompense, if you will grant my suit.

[They shake their heads.

Cannot my body, nor blood-sacrifice, Entreat you to your wonted furtherance? Then take my soul; my body, soul, and all, Before that England give the French the foil.

[They depart.

See! they forsake me. Now the time is come, That France must vail; her lofty-plumed crest, And let her head fall into England's lap.

My ancient incantations are too weak, And hell too strong for me to buckle with: Now, France, thy glory droopeth to the dust.

[Exit.

Alarums. Enter French and English, fighting.

LA PUCELLE and YORK fight hand to hand.

LA PUCELLE is taken. The French fly.

York. Damsel of France, I think, I have you fast:

Unchain your spirits now with spelling charms, And try if they can gain your liberty.—

A goodly prize, fit for the devil's grace! See, how the ugly witch doth bend her brows, As if, with Circe, she would change my shape.

Puc. Chang'd to a worsen shape thou canst not be.

York. O, Charles the Dauphin is a proper man;

No shape but his can please your dainty eye.

Puc. A plaguing mischief light on Charles, and thee!

And may you both be suddenly surpris'd By bloody hands, in sleeping on your beds!

York. Fell, banning* hag! enchantress, hold thy tongue.

Puc. I prythee, give me leave to curse a while.

York. Curse, miscreant, when thou comest to the stake. [Exeunt.

Alarums. Enter SUFFOLK, leading in Lady MARGARET.

Suff. Be what thou wilt, thou art my prisoner. [Gazes on her.

O fairest beauty, do not fear, nor fly; For I will touch thee but with reverent hands, And lay them gently on thy tender side. I kiss these fingers [Kissing her hand.] for eternal peace:

Who art thou? say, that I may honour thee.

Mar. Margaret my name; and daughter to a king,

The king of Naples, whosoe'er thou art.

Suff. An earl I am, and Suffolk am I call'd.

Be not offended, nature's miracle,

Thou art allotted to be ta'en by me:

So doth the swan her downy cygnets save, Keeping them prisoners underneath her wings.

Yet, if this servile usage once offend, Go, and be free again as Suffolk's friend.

[She turns away as going.

O, stay!—I have no power to let her pass; My hand would free her, but my heart says—no.

As plays the sun upon the glassy streams, Twinkling another counterfeited beam, So seems this gorgeous beauty to mine eyes. Fain would I woo her, yet I dare not speak: I'll call for pen and ink, and write my mind: Fie, De la Poole! disable not thyself;† Hast not a tongue? is she not here thy prisoner?

Wilt thou be daunted at a woman's sight?

Ay; beauty's princely majesty is such, Confounds the tongue, and makes the senses rough.

Mar. Say earl of Suffolk,—if thy name be so,—

What ransom must I pay before I pass?

For, I perceive, I am thy prisoner.

Suff. How canst thou tell, she will deny thy suit,

Before thou make a trial of her love? [Aside.

Mar. Why speak'st thou not? what ransom must I pay?

Suff. She's beautiful; and therefore to be woo'd:

She is a woman; therefore to be won. [Aside.

Mar. Wilt thou accept of ransom, yea, or no?

Suff. Fond man! remember, that thou hast a wife;

Then how can Margaret be thy paramour? [Aside.

Mar. I were best leave him, for he will not hear.

Suff. There all is marr'd; there lies a cooling card.

Mar. He talks at random; sure, the man is mad.

Suff. And yet a dispensation may be had.

Mar. And yet I would that you would answer me.

Suff. I'll win this lady Margaret. For whom? Why, for my king: Tush! that's a wooden thing.‡

* To ban is to curse.

† "Do not represent thyself as weak."

‡ An awkward business, an undertaking not likely to succeed.

* Charms sowed up.

† The north was supposed to be the particular habitation of bad spirits.

‡ Lower.

Mar. He talks of wood: It is some carpenter.

Suff. Yet so my fancy^a may be satisfied,
And peace established between these realms.
But there remains a scruple in that too:
For though her father be the king of Naples,
Duke of Anjou and Maine, yet is he poor,
And our nobility will scorn the match. [Aside.]

Mar. Hear ye, captain? Are you not at leisure?

Suff. It shall be so, disdain they ne'er so much:
Henry is youthful, and will quickly yield.—
Madam, I have a secret to reveal.

Mar. What though I be enthralld? he seems a knight,
And will not any way dishonour me. [Aside.]

Suff. Lady, vouchsafe to listen what I say.

Mar. Perhaps, I shall be rescu'd by the French;
And then I need not crave his courtesy. [Aside.]

Suff. Sweet madam, give me hearing in a cause—

Mar. Tush! women have been captivate ere now. [Aside.]

Suff. Lady, wherefore talk you so?

Mar. I cry you mercy, 'tis but quid pro quo.

Suff. Say, gentle princess, would you not suppose
Your bondage happy, to be made a queen?

Mar. To be a queen in bondage, is more vile
Than is a slave in base servility;
For princes should be free.

Suff. And so shall you,
If happy England's royal king be free.

Mar. Why, what concerns his freedom unto me?

Suff. I'll undertake to make thee Henry's queen;
To put a golden sceptre in thy hand,
And set a precious crown upon thy head,
If thou wilt condescend to be my—

Mar. What?

Suff. His love.

Mar. I am unworthy to be Henry's wife.

Suff. No, gentle madam; I unworthy am
To woo so fair a dame to be his wife,
And have no portion in the choice myself.
How say you, madam; are you so content?

Mar. An if my father please, I am content.

Suff. Then call our captains, and our colours forth:
And, madam, at your father's castle walls
We'll crave a parley, to confer with him.
[Troops come foricard.]

A Parley sounded. Enter REIGNIER, on the Walls.

Suff. See, Reignier, see, thy daughter prisoner.

Reig. To whom?

Suff. To me.

Reig. Suffolk, what remedy?
I am a soldier; and unapt to weep,
Or to exclaim on fortune's fickleness.

Suff. Yes, there is remedy enough, my lord:
Consent, (and for thy honour give consent,)
Thy daughter shall be wedded to my king;
Whom I with pain have woo'd and won thereto;
And this her easy-held imprisonment
Hath gain'd thy daughter princely liberty.

Reig. Speaks Suffolk as he thinks?

Suff. Fair Margaret knows,
That Suffolk doth not flatter, flacc,[†] or feign.

^a Love.[†] Play the hypocrite.

Reig. Upon
To give thee

Suff. And

Trumpets on

Reig. Welo
torious Command in

Suff. Thank
child,
Fit to be made
What answer

Reig. Since
worth
To be the prin
Upon conditio
Enjoy mine ow
Free from opp
My daughter

Suff. That is
And those two
Your grace sh

Reig. And I
As deputy unt
Give thee her

Suff. Reigni
Because this is
And yet, meth
To be mine ow
I'll over then t
And make this
So, farewell, R
In golden pala

Reig. I do en
The Christian
here.

Mar. Farewe
and pr
Shall Suffolk e

Suff. Farewe
Marga
No princely co

Mar. Such co
A virgin, and

Suff. Words
directe
But, madam, I
No loving toke

Mar. Yes, m
heart,
Never yet taint

Suff. And th

Mar. That for
To send such p [Ex]

Suff. O, wert
stay;
Thou may'st no
There Minotaur
Solicit Henry w Bethink thee of Mad,† natural;
Repeat their sei
That, when the feet, Thou may'st be
der.

SCENE IV.—

Enter York

York. Bring f
to burn.

[†] Childish

CELLE, guarded, and a SHEPHERD.

Joan! this kills thy father's heart
right!

at every country far and near,
is my chance to find thee out,
d thy timeless* cruel death?
weet daughter Joan, I'll die with
!

pit miser!† base ignoble wretch!
led of a gentler blood;
ather, nor no friend, of mine.

out!—My lords, an please you,
ot so;

er, all the parish knows:
iveth yet, can testify,
first fruit of my bachelorship.
elms! wilt thou deny thy paren-
?

argues what her kind of life hath
; file; and so her death concludes.
Joan! that thou wilt be so ob-
;!

hou art a collop of my flesh;
ake have I shed many a tear:
I pr'ythee, gentle Joan.

nt, avaunt!—You have suborn'd
an,
obscure my noble birth.

ue, I gave a noble to the priest,
t I was wedded to her mother.—
and take my blessing, good my stoop? Now cursed be the time

y! I would, the milk [breast, ive thee, when thou suck'dst her
ttle ratsbane for thy sake!
thou didst keep my lambs a-field,
avenous wolf had eaten thee!
y thy father, cursed drab?
urn her; hanging is too good.

her away; for she hath liv'd too
ld with vicious qualities. [long,
let me tell you whom you have mn'd:

en of a shepherd swain,
m the progeny of kings;
holy; chosen from above,
of celestial grace,
eding miracles on earth.

do with wicked spirits:
t are polluted with your lusts,
he guiltless blood of innocents,
ainted with a thousand vices,—
want the grace that others have,
traight a thing impossible
onders, but by help of devils.

red!‡ Joan of Arc hath been her tender infancy,
maculate in very thought;
blood, thus rigorously effus'd,
ngeance at the gates of heaven.
y;—away with her to execution.
ark ye, Sirs; because she is a

gots, let there be enough:
f pitch upon the fatal stake,
ture may be shortened.
othing turn your unrelenting
?—

ply means a miserable creature.
of obstinate.
uncivern, ye who mistake me and my

Then, Joan, discover thine infirmity;
That warranteth by law to be thy privilege.—
I am with child, ye bloody homicides:
Murder not then the fruit within my womb,
Although ye hale me to a violent death.

York. Now heaven forfend! the holy maid
with child?

War. The greatest miracle that e'er ye wrought:

Is all your strict preciseness come to this?

York. She and the Dauphin have been juggling:

I did imagine what would be her refuge.

War. Well, go to; we will have no bastards Epecially, since Charles must father it. [live;

Puc. You are deceiv'd; my child is none of It was Alençon, that enjoy'd my love. [his;

York. Alençon! that notorious Machiavel!
It dies, an if it had a thousand lives.

Puc. O, give me leave, I have deluded you;
'Twas neither Charles, nor yet the duke I
nam'd,

But Reignier, king of Naples, that prevail'd.

War. A married man! that's most intolerable.

York. Why, here's a girl! I think, she knows not well,

There were so many, whom she may accuse.

War. It's sign, she hath been liberal and free.

York. And, yet, forsooth, she is a virgin
pure.— [thee:

Strumpet, thy words condemn thy brat, and Use no entreaty, for it is in vain.

Puc. Then lead me hence;—with whom I leave my curse:

May never glorious sun reflex his beams
Upon the country where you make abode!
But darkness and the gloomy shade of death
Environ you; till mischief, and despair, Drive you to break your necks, or hang yourselves! [Exit, guarded.

York. Break thou in pieces, and consume to Thou foul accursed minister of hell! [ashes,

Enter Cardinal BEAUFORT, attended.

Car. Lord regent, I do greet your excellence
With letters of commission from the king.
For know, my lords, the states of Christendom,
Mov'd with remorse* of these outrageous broils,
Have earnestly implor'd a general peace
Betwixt our nation and the aspiring French;
And here at hand the Dauphin, and his train,
Approacheth, to confer about some matter.

York. Is all our travail turn'd to this effect?
